

THE HOLY BIBLE,

CONTAINING THE Old and New Testaments,

WITH ORIGINAL NOTES,
PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS, AND COPIOUS MARGINAL REFERENCES.

BY THOMAS SCOTT,
RECTOR OF ASTON SANDFORD, BUCKS, AND CHAPLAIN TO THE LOCK HOSPITAL.

IN FIVE VOLUMES.

VOL. II.

THE FOURTH AMERICAN, FROM THE SECOND LONDON EDITION, IMPROVED AND ENLARGED.

New-York :

PUBLISHED BY DODGE & SAYRE, No. 86 BROADWAY.

J. SEYMOUR, PRINTER, No. 49 JOHN-STREET.

1814,

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2025

KINGS,

COMMONLY CALLED

THE THIRD BOOK OF THE KINGS.

THE two following books contain, as their name imports, the history of Judah and Israel, under the government of kings, from the close of David's reign to the Babylonish captivity, during about four hundred and twenty-seven years. They seem originally to have formed but one book, and to have been called Vah-melech David, from the first words; but they were afterwards divided into two, and called "The first and second books of the Kings;" and in some versions, "The third and fourth books of the Kings." It is evident, that they contain an abstract of the history, compiled from much more copious records, which seem to have been collected and preserved by contemporary prophets: (xi. 41. xiv. 29. xv. 31. xxii. 39. 45. 2 Chr. ix. 29. xii. 15. xiii. 22. xx. 34. xxvi. 22.) and indeed a considerable part of the transactions of their own times is related in connexion with the prophecies of Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel. It is, however, uncertain by whom this compilation was made: but if Ezra, as it is generally and probably supposed, compiled the books of Chronicles; it is not likely, that according to the opinion of some learned men, he compiled these also: as they form a distinct history of the same narrative. If, therefore, they were arranged in the present manner principally by one sacred writer, they who ascribe them to Jeremiah seem to have adopted the more probable opinion. Indeed, the second book of the Kings, and his prophecy, end with the narrative of the same events; though, perhaps, both were added after his death by another hand; and it is not unlikely that some other trivial alterations were made in the days of Ezra, to render the narrative more perspicuous to the Jews after the captivity.—They have, however, been constantly received, both by Jews and Christians, as a part of the sacred canon, the holy Scriptures: and the events recorded are frequently referred to in the New Testament. (Matt. i. 7—12. vi. 29. xii. 42. Luke iv. 25—27. Acts ii. 29. vii. 47—50. Jam. v. 17, 18.) It is observable also, that our Lord and his apostle James, not only speak of them as authentic records, and a part of the sacred oracles as received by the Jews; but especially attest some of the most wonderful miracles recorded in them; and thus affix a direct sanction to them, as given by inspiration of God.—They also contain many prophecies; especially that of Josiah, who was foretold by name three hundred years before his birth; but none of these, in their most evident literal meaning, refer to events later than the Babylonish captivity.—After the death of David, the sacred historian records the principal transactions of Solomon's long and peaceful reign; which, however, was covered with a dark cloud, towards the close: and under his successor, the nation was divided into the two distinct kingdoms of Judah and Israel. The descendants of Solomon reigned over that of Judah till the captivity, for about three hundred and eighty-seven years. So that from the accession of David, during a course of four hundred and sixty-seven years, the throne was filled by his descendants, in lineal descent, except as the sons of Josiah succeeded one another. During this long term of years there was not a single revolution, or civil war; and but one short interruption, by Athaliah's usurpation. Perhaps it would be difficult to find, in universal history, any thing equal to this permanent internal order and tranquillity. Let the reader recollect how many revolutions, civil wars, murders of reigning kings by rivals and successors, and changes in the succession, are found in the English history, during the same number of years.—Above half the kings of Judah supported true religion, and many of them were eminently pious men: and it is remarkable that their reigns were much longer than those of the wicked princes; so that they comprise much above three hundred years of this period; and the greatest part of this time was evidently passed either in profound peace or in remarkable prosperity. Let this state of things be compared with the history of Greece or Rome; and the situation of Judah must be allowed to have been vastly more desirable than that of these celebrated heathen nations. The kingdom of Israel continued under nineteen kings, about two hundred and fifty-four years, till the Assyrian captivity. These were all idolaters, and most of them monsters of iniquity: yet the Lord by his prophets, especially by Elijah and Elisha, preserved a considerable degree of true religion in the land, till the measure of their national wickedness was full; and then they were finally dispersed among the Gentiles ; except as a remnant of them was incorporated among the Jews.—In these books the history of the two kingdoms is carried on together : and the whole forms an admirable comment on the prophecies delivered to the nation by Moses and Joshua : (Lev. xxvi. Deut. iv. xxviii. xxix. xxx. xxxi. xxxii. Josh. xxiii. 15, 16 :) and a striking illustration of the proverb, “ Righteousness exalteth a nation ; but sin is the reproach of any people.” This first book contains the history of about a hundred and twenty years. Connected with the peace and prosperity of Solomon’s reign, and the fame of his wisdom ; a full account is given of the temple having been built by him. God had commanded Israel to offer all their sacrifices at one place ; Shiloh had for some time been that place ; and the ark had been removed to Zion, by David, in order that a temple might there be built, which Solomon his son accomplished. Now a large proportion of the subsequent parts of the Old Testament relate to this temple ; to the sins of the people in sacrificing elsewhere ; to their profanation of the temple ; to the judgments of God upon them for these crimes ; especially to the destruction of the temple by the Chaldeans ; and to the rebuilding of it by Zerubbabel. These things so run through all the subsequent history and prophecies, that if Solomon did not build the temple by the express command of God, it must follow, that God punished the nation with tremendous judgments for violating merely human appointments.—When the Samaritans preferred Mount Gerizim, our Lord told the woman of Samaria, that they “ knew not what they worshipped, for salvation was of the Jews :” and this declaration, with his own constant attendance at the ordinances there administered, sufficiently attest the divine inspiration of those records, in which alone it is expressly declared, that Solomon built the temple by the direction and appointment of God himself.—Solomon’s fall into idolatry seems evidently implied in the book of Ecclesiastes : and the history of Rehoboam’s imprudence, the division of his kingdom, Jeroboam’s idolatry, and the subsequent events to the end of the book, are assumed as undoubted facts in the writings of all the prophets. So entirely does the whole canon of Scripture coincide ; while each part confirms and receives confirmation from all the rest.

B. C. 1015.

CHAP. I.

Abishag is procured to cherish David, in his old age and sickness, 1—4. Adonijah gains Joab and Abiathar, and aspires to the throne, 5—10. Nathan counsels Bath-sheba, who speaks to David, and is seconded by Nathan, 11—27. David assures Bath-sheba, by an oath, that Solomon shall succeed him ; and gives orders that he should, that day, be anointed and proclaimed king, 28—37. Zadok and Nathan execute these orders, and the people rejoice, 38—40. Jonathan informs Adonijah and his company ; and they hastily disperse, 41—49. Adonijah flees to the horns of the altar, and obtains from Solomon a conditional pardon, 50—53.

B. C. 1015.

NOW king David was ^a old and ^{*} stricken in years ; and they covered him with clothes, but he gat no heat.

2 Wherefore his ^b servants said unto him, † Let there be sought for my lord the king ‡ a young virgin : and let her ^c stand before the king, and let her ^d cherish him, and let her ^d lie in thy bosom, that my lord the king may ^e get heat.

3 So ^f they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the coasts of Israel, and found ^g Abishag a ^h Shunammite, and brought her to the king.

4 And the damsel was very fair, and

^a 2 Sam. v. 4.
^{Ps} xc. 10.
^{*} Heb. entered into days. Gen. xviii. 11. Josh. xxiii. 1, 2. Luke i. 7.
^b Gen. xl. 20. xli. 37, 38.
[†] Heb. Let them seek.
[‡] Heb. a damsel, a virgin.
^c Deut. x. 8.
^d 1 Sam. xvi. 21, 22.
^e Heb. be a cherisher unto him.
^f Gen. xvi. 5. Deut. xiii. 6.
^g 2 Sam. xii. 3. Mic. vii. 5.
^h Ec. iv. 11.
^f Esth. ii. 2—4.
^g 17—25.
^h Josh. xix. 18.
ⁱ 1 Sam. xxviii. 4.
² Kings iv. 8, 25.

NOTES.

CHAP. I. V. 1—4. David was seventy years old when he died, and these events occurred not long before. He seems to have been a healthy man : yet his constitution was entirely worn out : perhaps in some measure through his great exertions in his various wars.—The counsel of his courtiers, or physicians, (if so they may be called,) to excite in him a due degree of animal heat, (especially when we advert to the pains bestowed to find out a very fair damsel for the purpose,) deserves censure : though similar advice has often been given in other ages and countries. We may suppose, that David acceded to it merely in compliance with their wishes, and in deference to their judgment ; but the appearance was not at all becoming his character and circumstances.

V. 5, 6. Adonijah could not be ignorant, that Solomon had been appointed by God himself to succeed David in the kingdom ; and his whole conduct shows, that he considered him alone as his rival. After the death of Absalom, he was David’s eldest son : and no doubt he considered the i Matt. i. 25.

k 2 Sam. iii. 4.
l Chr. iii. 2.
m Ex. ix. 17. Pro.
xvi. 18. xviii. 12.
Luke xiv. 11.
xviii. 14.

* Heb. reign.
Deut. xvii. 15.
Judg. ix. 2.
Chr. xxi. 5-11.
xxviii. 5. xxix. 1.
m Deut. xvii. 16.
2 Sam. xv. 1.
n 1 Sam. iii. 13.
Prov. xxiii. 13.
14. xxix. 15.
Heb. xii. 5, 6.
† Heb. from his days.

o 1 Sam. ix. 2. x.
23. 2 Sam. xiv.
25.

p 2 Sam. iii. 3.
4. Chr. iii. 2.

† Heb. His words were with.

q 2 Sam. xv. 12.
Ps. ii. 2.

r ii. 5, 6. 2 Sam.
viii. 16.

s 1 Sam. xxii. 20.
-23. 2 Sam. xv.
24-29. 35. xx.
25.

† Heb. helped of ter Adonijah. ii.
22. 26-35.

t 2 Sam. viii. 17.
18.

u 2 Sam. vii. 2-
4. xii. 1-15.
x iv. 18. xvi. 5.
y 2 Sam. xxiii. 8-39. 1 Chr. xi. 19-47.

cherished the king, and ministered to him: but the king ⁱ knew her not.

5 ¶ Then ^k Adonijah the son of Haggith ^l exalted himself, saying, I will ^m be king: and ⁿ he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.

6 And his father ⁿ had not displeased him [†] at any time in saying, Why hast thou done so? and he also was a ^o very goodly man; and his mother ^p bare him after Absalom.

7 And [†] he ^q conferred with ^r Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with ^s Abiathar the priest: and they [†] following Adonijah helped him.

8 But ^t Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and ^u Nathan the prophet, and ^x Shimei, and Rei, and ^y the mighty men which belonged to David, were not with Adonijah.

9 And Adonijah ^z slew sheep and oxen and fat cattle by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by ^{||} En-rogel, and ^a called all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Judah the king's servants:

10 But Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and ^b Solomon his brother, he called not.

11 ¶ Wherefore Nathan ^c spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of ^d Haggith doth reign, and David our Lord knoweth it not?

12 Now therefore come, ^e let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest ^f save thine own life, and ^g the life of thy son Solomon.

13 Go, and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, ^h Assuredly Solomon thy z 2 Sam. xv. 12.

Prov. xv. 8.

|| Or, the well Re-
get. 2 Sam.
xvii. 17.
a 2 Sam. xiii. 23.
27. xv. 11.

b 19.

c 2 Sam. vii. 12-15. 1 Chr. xiii.
9, 10.

d 2 Sam. iii. 4.

e Prov. xi. 14.

f 21. Gen. xix.
17. Acts xxvii.
31.

g Judg. ix. 5.
2 Kings xi. 1.
Matt. xxi. 38.

h 2 Sam. xii. 24.
25. 1 Chr. xxii.
9, 10. xxviii. 5, 6.

kingdom as his birth-right, and confided in the support of the people to seize upon it; without any regard to his father or to the word of God by his prophet.—It is remarkable how frequently the first-born were set aside by the express appointment of God. In the ordinary course of things it is expedient that the primogeniture should have the precedence; and the judicial law of Moses, (as well as the civil laws of most nations) was formed accordingly. But the examples of Jacob, Judah, the sons of Joseph, David, Solomon, and others, prove that this is not grounded upon moral obligation, is not divine, or unalterable, or to be put in competition with the welfare of whole nations, and the liberty and rights of all the rest of mankind; according to the sentiments of some authors, who most absurdly ground their doctrine upon the word of God, though it is evidently contradictory to it!—Absalom had been displeased with his father, though unjustly, because of the disgrace he put him under for the murder of Amnon: but David had never given Adonijah the least cause of displeasure, except that, in obedience to God, he intended his son Solomon to be his successor. It is probable, that Adonijah was of an imperious disposition; and David very imprudently indulged him, and never restrained or reprov'd him in any matter. This was David's fault: for he ought to have exerted his authority, and kept him under: but at the same time it aggravated Adonijah's contempt and ingratitude.—He seems to have greatly resembled his elder brother Absalom: like him he was too much indulged and beloved on account of his exterior accomplishments; and he succeeded to his ambitious projects, though he concealed and deferred them, till his father was, as he supposed, finally incapacitated for business.

V. 7. It seems wonderful that Joab and Abiathar, who were persons of years, experience, and capacity; who had long attended on David, and were highly preferred under him, and who doubtless understood his intentions concerning Solomon; should at last concur in Adonijah's conspiracy! But perhaps Joab, though attached to David, was not favourable to Solomon, and preferred Adonijah as more congenial with his own disposition. Being destitute of true piety, he would disregard the divine appointment, and deem it more politic to place the eldest son upon the throne; and no injury to David, who, he might think, injured Adonijah in preferring his younger brother. Perhaps he was still afraid of being called to account for his murders; and hoped to secure himself, to continue his preferment, and to increase his influence, by helping Adonijah to the kingdom: and it may be supposed, that he secretly resented David's conduct in attempting to lay him aside, and to put Amasa in his place.—Abiathar, though high-priest, seems to have been less regarded by David than Zadok was: and perhaps he suspected that Solomon would set his family aside, in favour of the line of Eleazar to which Zadok belonged; but by attaching himself to Adonijah, he hastened that event, and showed, that David had good reasons for preferring Zadok, who probably was a man of more serious religion.

V. 8—10. Adonijah knew that it would be in vain and dangerous to tamper with Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah, who were firmly attached to the cause of Solomon, as well as to that of David.—It is not certain, whether Shimei was the same person who cursed David, or he whom Solomon afterwards preferred. (iv. 18.) The latter opinion is most probable; for Shimei the Benjamite would be regarded by neither party.—We know nothing further of Rei: but no doubt he was a person of consequence.—The mighty men were the chieftains before enumerated. (Marg. Ref.) It is most likely that Adonijah made a solemn sacrifice, as well as a magnificent feast on the occasion; and thus he concealed his designs, till ripe for execution.—En-rogel was in the vicinity of Jerusalem.

son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

14 Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I will also come in after thee, and * confirm thy words.

15 ¶ And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was ^k very old; and Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

16 And Bath-sheba ^l bowed and did obeisance unto the king. And the king said, † What wouldest thou?

17 And she said unto him, ^m My lord, ⁿ thou swarest by the LORD thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne;

18 And now behold, ^p Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, ^p thou knowest it not.

19 And ^q he hath slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant hath he not called.

20 And thou, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that ^r thou shouldest tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.

21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall ^s sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted ‡ offenders.

22 ¶ And lo, while she yet talked with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in.

23 And they told the king, saying, Behold, Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, ^t he bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground.

24 And Nathan said, My lord, O king, ^u hast thou said, Adonijah shall ^x reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne?

25 For he is gone down this day, and hath ^y slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, § God save king Adonijah.

26 But me, even ^z me thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called.

27 Is this thing done by my lord the king, and thou hast not shewed it unto thy servant, who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?

28 ¶ Then king David answered and i Deut xvii. 18.

i Chr. xxix. 23.
14. 15. 7. Jer.
xxxi. 21. Luke
i. 32, 33.

* Heb. fill up.
17-27. 2 Cor.
xiii. 1.

k 2-4.

l 23. 1 Sam. xv.
41. xxiv. 8. xxv.
23.

† Heb. What to thee?
m Gen. xviii. 12.
i Pet. iii. 6.
n 13. 30.

o 25. 2 Sam. xv.
10. p 24. 27. Acts.
iii. 17.

q 7-10. 25.

r 2 Sam. xxiii. 2.
i Chr. xxii. 9-
10. xxviii. 5, 6.
10. xxix. 1.

s ii. 10. Gen. xv.
15. Deut. xxxi.
16.

† Heb. sinners.
ii. 22-24.

t 16.

u 14. 13.
x 13. 17.

y 1 Sam. xi. 14.
15. 1 Chr. xxxix.
21-23.

§ Heb. let king
Adonijah live.
34. 1 Sam. x. 24.
2 Sam. xvi. 16.
Matt. xxi. 9.
Mark xi. 9. 10.
Luke xix. 38.
z 8. 19. 2 Sam.
vii. 2. 12-17.
xii. 25.

V. 11--14. Solomon could not be ignorant of Adonijah's intentions, of which he made no secret: but he remained quiet, and left his cause with God. His life and succession were secured by promise; yet it was proper that Nathan and Bath-sheba should use prudent means for his preservation, and the maintenance of his right. Had Adonijah succeeded, he would probably have put Solomon and Bath-sheba to death: for the history of the world demonstrates, that when men are aspiring after dominion, they are easily tempted to the most enormous crimes which seem necessary for their purpose, even when most contrary to their apparent natural disposition.

V. 15--18. It is not recorded, on what occasion David swore to Bath-sheba, that Solomon should succeed him: but it is supposed with probability, that it took place after Absalom's rebellion; and as God himself had settled the succession, he might very properly give her this satisfaction.—David was aware that Adonijah had taken great state upon him: but he did not know that he had actually advanced a claim to the kingdom: this both enhanced Adonijah's crime, and pleaded David's excuse.

V. 20. The people knew, "that the Spirit of the Lord spake by David, and his word was in his tongue;"

and they had great confidence in his wisdom, piety, and affection. They therefore waited to know the will of God from him. David, though anointed to the kingdom, did not assume regal authority at first, without the concurrence of the elders of Judah and Israel: and after Absalom's rebellion, he did not return to the exercise of it without their approbation. He would not therefore claim a right to dispose of the kingdom by will, as if it had been his own private property; but he might very properly inform the people of the Lord's appointment in that behalf: and so far from eagerly joining Adonijah as they had done Absalom, they remained in suspense, till his determination was notified.

V. 23. He bowed, &c. The exterior indications of civil honour to persons in authority, was generally rendered by the most eminent servants and prophets of God. The refusal of it may arise from an erroneous conscience: but it has the appearance of pride and affected moroseness.

V. 27. As the business was so public, and such eminent persons were concerned, it had the appearance of being countenanced by the king: but after all that had passed, the prophet could not believe, that David would have taken such a step without informing him. (Marg. Ref.) said, Call me Bath-sheba. And she came ^{*} into the king's presence, and stood before the king.

^a xvii. 1. Judg. viii. 19. 2 Sam. xii. 5. ^b Gen. xlviii. 16. 2 Sam. iv. 9. Ps. xxxiv. 19—22. lxxiv. 14. cxxxviii. 7. ^c 13. 17.

29 And the king sware, and said, ^a As the LORD liveth that ^b hath redeemed my soul out of all distress, 30 Even ^c as I sware unto thee by the LORD God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day.

31 Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the earth, and did reverence to the king, and said, ^d Let my lord king David live for ever.

32 And king David said, call me ^e Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride ^f upon mine own mule, and bring him down to ^g Gihon.

34 And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet ^h anoint him there king over Israel: and ⁱ blow ye with the trumpet, and say, ^j God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and ^k sit upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead: and ^l I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, ^m Amen: ⁿ the LORD God of my lord the king say so too.

37 ^o As the LORD hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, ^p and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.

38 So ^q Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon ^r king David's mule, and ^r ³³ brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took ^s an horn of oil ^t out of the tabernacle, and ^u anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; and ^x all the people said, God save king Solomon.

40 And all the people came up after him; and the people piped with ^y pipes, and ^z rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

41 ¹ And Adonijah and all the guests that ^{were} with him heard ^{it} ^z as they had made an end of eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, ^a Wherefore is this noise of ^b the city being in an uproar?

42 And while he yet spake, behold, ^c Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came; and Adonijah said unto him, Come in; for thou ^{art} ^d a valiant man, and bringest good tidings.

43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, ^e Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king.

44 And the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule.

V. 31. Live for ever. This common expression of loyalty and affection to princes, in this application of it, implied, that Bath-sheba cordially desired the continuance of David's life, in preference to her son's succession to the throne.

V. 36, 37. The language of Benaiah, on this occasion, not only expressed the most loyal attachment to Solomon, but also fervent piety; and an earnest desire for the prosperity of Israel, under the government God had placed over them.—This instance serves to explain the original use and emphasis of the word Amen.

V. 38. Gihon. A fountain near Jerusalem.

V. 39. An horn, &c. Neither Absalom nor Adonijah regarded this expressive ceremony: (perhaps presuming on the right of primogeniture, for we do not find that kings who thus succeeded were anointed.) The anointing denoted both their appointment expressly from God, and the qualifications with which he would endow them; and their being types of Christ, the anointed of the Father. The oil, with which Solomon was anointed, was taken out of the tabernacle, being, as it is probable, the same holy oil with which the priests were anointed.

V. 41. Adonijah and his guests seem to have wasted much time upon this magnificent feast, when more important concerns waited their attention, and ruin hung over their heads.

V. 42. It is probable that Jonathan was not invited to the feast, nor concerned in the conspiracy; but he went to warn his father of the danger: though some think he was left in the city to learn what should occur, and to bring an account of it to Adonijah.

^o Ex. iii. 12. Josh. i. 5. 17. 1 Sam. xx. 13. Ps. xlv. 7. Is. viii. 10. Mat. i. 23. Rom. viii. 31. ^p 47. 2 Sam. xxiv. 3. 2 Kings ii. 9. Ps. lxxii. 3. 17—19. Dan. vii. 14. ^q 8. 26. 2 Sam. xv. 18. xx. 23.

^s 1 Sam. xvi. 3. ^t Ex. xxx. 23—33. Ps. lxxxix. 20. ^u 1 Chr. xxix. 22. ^x 1 Sam. x. 24. 2 Kings xi. 12. 3. Chr. xxxiii. 11. 13.

^y 1 Sam. xi. 15. 2 Kings xi. 14. 20. 1 Chr. xii. 38—40. Ps. xcvi. 1. Zech. ix. 9. Luke xix. 37. Rev. xi. 15—18. ^z Job xx. 5. Pro. xiv. 13. Luke xvii. 26—29.

^a Job xv. 21. 22. Ps. lxxvii. 18—20. ^b Mat. xxi. 9—11. 15.

^c 2 Sam. xv. 36. xvii. 17.

^d xxvii. 18. 2 Sam. xviii. 27. 2 Kings ix. 22. Is. lvii. 21. 1 Thes. v. 2. 3.

^e 32—40.

45 And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon: and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again. ^g This is the noise that ye have heard.

^g 1 Sam. xxviii. 19. Dan. v. 26—28.

^h 13. 1 Chr. xxix. 23. Ps. cxxxii. 11.

46 And also Solomon ^h sitteth on the throne of the kingdom.

ⁱ Ex. xii. 32. 2 Sam. viii. 10. xxi. 3. Ezra vi. 10. Ps. xx. 1—4. k 37. Luke xix. 38.

47 And moreover the king's servants came to ⁱ bless our lord king David, saying, ^k God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. And the king ^l bowed himself upon the bed.

^l Gen. xxiv. 26. xlvii. 31. Heb. xi. 21.

^m 1 Chr. xxix. 10. 20. Ps. xxxiv. 1. lxxii. 17—19. ciii.

ⁿ 1, 2 cxlv. 2. Luke i. 46, 47. 68, 69. Eph. i. 3. ^m 1 Pet. i. 3.

ⁿ iii. 6. 1 Chr. xlvii. 11—14. 17. Ps. cxxxii. 11, 12.

^o Prov. xvii. 6.

^p 2 Sam. xxiv. 3.

^q Prov. xxviii. 1.

^r Is. xxi. 4, 5. Dan. v. 4—6.

48 And also thus said the king, Blessed ^{be} the LORD God of Israel, which hath given ^{one} to sit on my throne this day, ^o mine eyes even seeing it.

49 And ^p all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid, and rose up, and went every man his way.

50 And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, and arose, and went and ^q caught hold on the horns of the altar.

^q ii. 28. Ex. xxxi. 14. xxxviii. 2. Ps. cxviii. 27.

51 And it was told Solomon, saying, Behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon, for lo he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar, saying, Let king Solomon swear unto me to-day, that he will not slay his servant with the sword.

52 And Solomon said, If he will shew himself a worthy man, ^r there shall not an hair of him fall to the earth; but if ^s wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die.

^r 1 Sam. xiv. 45. 2 Sam. xiv. 11. Luke xxi. 18. Acts xxvii. 34. s ii. 21—23.

53 So king Solomon sent, and they brought him down from the altar. And he came and ^t bowed himself to king Solomon: and Solomon said unto him, ^u Go to thine house.

^t 16. 31. 2 Sam. i. 2.

^u ii. 36. 2 Sam. xiv. 24. 28. Prov. xxiv. 21.

V. 49—53. Adonijah expected the assistance of the people; but finding himself mistaken, and being deserted by his friends, he gave up all for lost. The murderer was to be taken from the altar and slain; (Ex. xxi. 14.) but in other crimes it was a customary refuge, at least till a pardon could be supplicated; as representing the method of obtaining forgiveness from God, through the great sacrifice for sin. Solomon granted Adonijah a conditional pardon, but gave him fair warning that he was put upon his good behaviour. He also required him to go to his house and live a retired private life, not affecting the splendour and state, which he had before done.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

The most vigorous constitutions must soon wear out, and our lives hasten to a close: and though proper means of restoring health and prolonging our days should be used; yet a wise man ought not to yield to such expedients as have the appearance of evil, or may become temptations to him. But carnal men counsel others according to their own inclinations, and often enforce their advice under specious pretexts; by which they impose upon such as mean no evil, but are induced to actions inconsistent with their character and profession. Indulgent parents are commonly chastised with disobedient children, who ungratefully despise their infirmities, and are impatient to get possession of their estates. Every depraved propensity gathers strength by being gratified: and when ambition comes within the reach of its object, it urges a man to violate all obligations, to break through all obstructions, to despise all dangers, and to disregard the examples of those who have before been ruined by similar attempts. So long as carnal self-love reigns in the heart, no worldly wisdom and experience, no maturity of age, no rank or station in the community or in the Church, no previous fidelity or attachment to princes or patrons, can secure men's continuance in their former course or connexions: for innumerable circumstances may occur, that may prompt them to some new method of gratifying their reigning inclinations. So that disgust, fear, conscious guilt, or the hope of greater authority, influence, or wealth, may speedily induce them to measures which stand in opposition to all their former lives. We ought therefore to depend on the Lord to preserve us from the deceitfulness of our own hearts, and from the fickleness and treachery of men.—Political wisdom frequently contradicts the word of God, and proves in the event the greatest folly: and crafty seducers can discern who are, and who are not, fit for their purpose; and will shun determined honest characters as their enemies and rivals.

V. 11—27.

In every age men form designs, which their own consciences condemn as contrary to the will of God; and yet they hope for success from the favour and assistance of man. But they, who are vain of their own accomplishments, often flatter themselves with the imagined attachment of numbers, that have no real esteem or affection for them.—A feast, and a sacrifice, are proper baits to draw in the sensual or the unsuspecting: and aspiring men, according to the taste of the times, have always employed one or both of these expedients to subserve their own ambitious purposes; by which numbers have been inadvertently betrayed to concur in base measures, contrary to their judgments, consciences, characters, and interests.—In these days, when kingdoms are disposed of by common providence, the ministers of God have little to do with disputed successions; and are best at a distance from the cabals, intrigues, and parties which generally surround the courts of kings: yet the welfare of the state, as well as of the

CHAP. II.

David charges Solomon to serve God: and directs him how to act towards Joab, the sons of Barzillai and Shimei, 1—9. His death, and the years of his reign, 10, 11. Solomon succeeds him, 12. Adonijah persuades Bath-sheba to ask for him Abishag to wife, and is put to death, 13—25. Abiathar's life is spared, but he is deprived of the high-priesthood, 26, 27. Joab, having fled to the altar, is there put to death, 28—34. Benaiah succeeds Joab, and Zadok Abiathar, 35. Shimei is confined to Jerusalem, but going thence, he is put to death, 36—46.

NOW ^a the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he ^b charged Solomon his son, saying,

² ^c I go the way of all the earth: ^d be thou strong therefore, and ^e shew thyself a man.

³ And ^f keep the charge of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his ^g statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his ^h testimonies, ⁱ as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest ^{*} prosper in all that thou doest, and ^k whithersoever thou turnest thyself:

¹ Sam. xviii. 5. 14. 30. 2 Chr. xxxi. 20, 21. Ps. i. 2, 3. cxix. 98—100. Prov. iii. 1—4. k 2 Sam. viii. 6. 14. 2 Kings xviii. 7.

a Gen. xlvii. 29. Deut. xxxi. 14. xxxiii. 1. 2 Tim. iv. 6. 2 Pet. i. 13—15. b Num. xxvii. 19. Deut. iii. 28. Acts xx. 28—31. 1 Tim. i. 18. vi. 12. 2 Tim. iv. 1. c Josh. xxiii. 14. Job xxx. 23. Heb. ix. 27. d Deut. xxxi. 6. Josh. i. 6, 7. 1 Chr. xxviii. 20. Eph. vi. 10. 2 Tim. ii. 1. e iii. 7. 2 Sam. x. 12. 1 Cor. xvi. 13. 1 Tim. iv. 12. f Deut. xxix. 9. Josh. i. 7. xxii. 5. 1 Chr. xxii. 12, 13. xxviii. 8, 9. xxix. 19. g Deut. vi. 1, 2. h Deut. iv. 45. Ps. cxix. 3. 138. i Deut. xvii. 18—20. Mal. iv. 4. j Or, do wisely. Prov. iii. 1—4.

Church, should lie near their hearts: and they ought to use all their influence, and embrace every opportunity, to remind the greatest men of the words of God, and to excite them to do their duty according to his revealed will. If a neighbour is in danger of being injured or murdered, without knowing it, or being able to avoid the snare; it must be the duty of any man, in any case, or at any hazard, to give him warning, or counsel, and to interpose for his preservation. When others are neglecting their duty, through inattention, or multiplied infirmities or engagements, they should be put in remembrance of it: when they are slack to do it, prudent contrivances, and quickening expostulations, may be successfully employed to incite them: and every means should be used to prevent manifest injustice, to exclude occasions of future discord, and to promote decisive measures for the glory of God, and the good of his people: for if the enemies of religion be combined, active, and daring; its friends should not be timid, supine, and disunited. The most respectful behaviour to our superiors is very consistent with plainness of speech in the great concerns of God; and, such language and behaviour will be very forcible with men of piety and integrity.

V. 28—53.

The true believer loves to review his past experience: even the recollection of his distresses, from all which the Lord hath redeemed him, increases his comfort as well as his gratitude; and inspires him with hope, and animates him to his duty, though under the decays of nature and at the approach of death. In preparation for that event, we should arrange all our domestic or more public concerns, as may best secure peace and good to the survivors; and we should lose no time before we do so useful a work; even though it somewhat interrupt our religious exercises.—Those enterprises must end well, which are conducted with piety and integrity, in simple dependence on God, and cordial acquiescence in his will. We can see no one so wise, so good, or so happy in this world, but we may well desire that others may be more wise, holy, and happy than he; and every pious man must long that it may be thus with his beloved children, both for their sakes, and for the benefit of the community. They who are engaged in a bad cause, are exposed to continual terrors: and no good man can bring other than evil tidings to those who are rebelling against God and the king. Vain confidence and sensual pleasure are the usual forerunners of temporal and eternal destruction. Combinations formed upon iniquitous principles will speedily be dissolved, when self-preservation or self-interest calls another way. But clemency becomes those in power, especially towards such as have rather injured them than the public: yet, no government can pardon or tolerate a traitor, who perseveres in his treasonable machinations. But we see here, as in a glass, Jesus, the Son of David, and the Son of God, exalted to the throne of glory, notwithstanding all the conspiracies and opposition of his enemies; (Ps. ii.) His kingdom is far greater than that of his father David; and all the true people of God most cordially rejoice in his exaltation. The prosperity of his cause and the triumphing of his servants, are the vexation and terror of his enemies: and no horns of the altar, no forms of godliness, no pretences to religion of any kind, can profit those who will not submit to his authority and accept of his salvation. He spares and readily pardons those who have most desperately rebelled against him, when they repent and do works meet for repentance. But if wickedness be afterwards found in them, discovering the hypocrisy of their professed submission, they will at length die without mercy, and perish without remedy.

NOTES.

CHAP. II. V. 2. Solomon could not at this time be more than twenty years of age; and, it is probable, was not so much: an early period for him to enter upon so weighty a charge, as the government of God's people! But he was endowed with extraordinary wisdom; and David exhorted him to show all Israel, that though he was but a child in years, he was a man in capacity and attention to business.

V. 3. (Note, Deut. vi. 1.) Testimonies, in this connexion, may signify such laws, as preserved the remembrance of great events; as the sabbaths, the passover, and others.

1 Gen. xviii. 19.
Deut. vii. 12.
1 Chr. xxviii. 9.
John xv. 9, 10.
Jude 20, 21, 24.
m 2 Sam. vii. 11—
16, 25. 1 Chr.
xviii. 11—15, xxii.
9—11, xxxiii. 5
—7. Ps. lxxxix.
23—37. cxxxii.
11, 12.
n iii. 3, 14. viii. 23.
Gen. xvii. 1.
Lev. xxvi. 3.
2 Kings xx. 3.
xxiii. 3, 25.
2 Chr. xvii. 3.
Luke i. 6.
o Deut. vi. 5, x. 12. p Heb. be cut off from thee from the throne. viii.
25. p i. 7, 19, 19.
2 Sam. iii. 39.
xviii. 5, 14, xix.
5—7.
q 2 Sam. iii. 27.
r 2 Sam. xx. 10.
s 2 Sam. xvii. 25.
t Heb. put.
t Jer. ii. 34. vi. 15.
Ec. xxiv. 7, 8.
u 9. Prov. xx. 25.
x 26—34. Gen. ix.
6. Num. xxxv.
23. Ec. viii. 11.
Is. lxxv. 20.
y Is. lvii. 21.
z 2 Sam. xvii. 27.
—29. xix. 31—38.
Prov. xvii. 10.
a 2 Sam. ix. 10.
xix. 28. Luke
xii. 37. xxii.
28—30. Rev. iii.
20, 21.

4 ¹ That the LORD may continue ^m his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way to ⁿ walk before me in truth, ^o with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not ^{*} fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

5 Moreover thou knowest also what Joab the son of Zeruiah ^p did to me, and what he did to the two captains of the host of Israel, unto ^q Abner the son of Ner, and unto ^r Amasa the son of ^s Jether, whom he slew, and ^t shed the blood of war in peace, and ^u put the blood of war upon his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet.

6 Do therefore ^v according to thy wisdom, and ^x let not his hoar head go down to the grave ^y in peace.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of ^z Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that ^a eat at thy table: for so they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

8 And, behold, thou hast with thee ^b Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, which cursed me with a [†] grievous curse in the day when I went to Ma-hanaim: but ^c he came down to meet me at Jordan, and I swore to him by the LORD, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword.

9 Now therefore ^d hold him not guiltless: for thou art ^e a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but ^f his hoar head bring thou down to the grave ^g with blood.

10 So ^h David slept with his fathers, and was buried in ⁱ the city of David.

11 And the days that David ^k reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 [†] Then ^l sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and ^m his kingdom was established greatly.

13 And ⁿ Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon. And she said, ^o Comest thou peaceably? and he said, Peaceably.

14 He said moreover, ^p I have somewhat to say unto thee. And she said, Say on.

15 And he said, ^q Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that I should reign:

ducted, as to bring him into suspicion as if privy to them. David therefore reminded his successor to expiate the guilt of these murders, by Joab's blood, "that he and his kingdom and family might be guiltless." (33.)—It is observable that David did not blame Joab for killing Absalom; being doubtless conscious that he deserved to die, and that his own desire to spare him was a weakness and a sin.

V. 8, 9. Shimei also deserved to die, though for an offence of a different kind from Joab's. Probably he retained his old enmity to the family of David, and partiality to the house of Saul. Solomon was not bound by the oath, that David had sworn not to put him to death: his punishment would indeed have been a salutary act of justice, yet David would not then consent to it; because unsuitable to his circumstances. But the case was different with Solomon; who might take occasion from some recent offence, to remember the old crimes, and to execute deserved vengeance on an irreconcilable enemy to him and the peace of his kingdom. David therefore counselled him, not to trust Shimei, but to watch him narrowly; and he would be sure to find just cause for punishing him.

V. 10. The remains of Saul and his sons were buried in the sepulchre of Kish his father: (2 Sam. xxi. 14.) but David was not buried in the sepulchre of Jesse at Bethlehem; but in that city which he had taken from the Jebusites, and made the capital of his kingdom, and the seat of his government, and that of his family.

V. 4. The continuance of the kingdom to David's posterity was sure, as it respected the Messiah and his spiritual reign: nor would every transgression forfeit the temporal kingdom entailed upon his descendants; for chastisements would be used to bring them to repentance: yet obstinate and aggravated disobedience would cut off the entail. Thus the Lord punished Solomon's idolatry by the defection of the ten tribes from his son: and at length, the family of David was deprived of all authority, until Christ came and set up his spiritual kingdom.

V. 5, 6. These dying counsels of David ought not to be imputed to personal resentment; but to a regard to justice, and a wise and pious concern for the security of Solomon's throne, which was the cause of God and of Israel. Joab had long deserved to die: and David's timidity had left blood-guiltiness upon his family and kingdom. His late conspiracy proved him to be a factious and dangerous person: and though his influence seems to have been weakened by it, yet his party was still so strong, that it was not probable Solomon would reign in peace whilst he lived.—He had not so much as attempted to conceal the base murders he had committed; but he avowed and vindicated them without shame or fear of punishment; and it was evident that he did not now repent, but would readily repeat them, to carry his purpose and secure his preferment. His murders were crimes against David, as committed upon two men who were in treaty with or commissioned by David, and because he favoured them: and yet they were so conc 2 Sam. xix. 16

—23. Jer. iv. 2.

d Ex. xx. 7, xxii.
28. Job ix. 28.
e iii. 12, 28.

f 6. Gen. xlii. 38.
xliv. 31.
g Num. xxxii. 23.

h i. 21. 1 Chr.
xxix. 28. Acta
ii. 29. xiii. 36.
i 2 Sam. vii. 7.
k 2 Sam. v. 4. 1
Chr. xxix. 28.
27.

l i. 46. 1 Chr.
xxix. 23—25. 2
Chr. i. 1. Ps.
cxxxii. 12.
m 2 Sam. vii. 12.
13, 29. Ps. lxxxix.
36, 37.

n i. 5—10. 50—53.
o 1 Sam. xvi. 4.
5. 2 Kings ix. 19
—22. 1 Chr. xii.
17, 18. Luke x.
5, 6.
p 2 Sam. xiv. 12.
Luke vii. 40.

q i. 5, 25. 2 Sam.
xv. 6. 13. xvi.
18.

b 36—46. 2 Sam.
xvi. 5—8.
† Heb. strong.

howbeit the kingdom is turned about, and is become my brother's; for ^r it was his from the LORD.

16 And now I ask one petition of thee, [†] deny me not. And she said unto him, Say on.

17 And he said, Speak, I pray thee, unto Solomon the king, (for he will not say thee nay,) that he give me ^s Abishag the Shunammite to wife.

18 And Bath-sheba said, ^t Well; I will speak for thee unto the king.

19 Bath-sheba therefore went unto king Solomon to speak unto him for Adonijah. And the king ^u rose up to meet her, and bowed himself unto her, and sat down on his throne, and caused a seat to be set for the king's mother: and ^x she sat on his right hand.

20 Then she said, ^y I desire one small petition of thee; I pray thee, say me not nay. And the king said unto her, ^z Ask on, my mother: for I will not say thee nay.

21 And she said, ^a Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah thy brother to wife.

22 And king Solomon answered and said unto his mother, And ^b why dost thou ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? ask for him ^c the kingdom also; for he is mine elder brother; even for him, and for Abiathar ^c the priest, and for Joab the son of Zeruiah.

23 Then king Solomon sware by the LORD, saying, ^d God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not spoken this word against his own life.

24 Now therefore, ^e as the LORD liveth, which hath ^f established me, and ^g set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath ^h made me an house, ⁱ as he promised, Adonijah shall be ^k put to death this day.

25 And king Solomon sent by the hand of Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; and ^l he fell upon him, that he died.

V. 15—18. It is evident that Adonijah had by no means given up his pretensions to the throne: and probable, that neither he nor Joab, nor Abiathar, expected safety, unless in success; and that they were in concert forming new schemes against Solomon. With this in view, they seem to have thought, that if Adonijah married Abishag, it would increase the number of his adherents; both by the accession of her friends and relations, and from the general notions which prevailed, concerning the wives and concubines of deceased kings. (Marg. Ref.) But they could not get possession of Abishag, without Solomon's consent; which they had no hopes of obtaining, but by the interposition of Bathsheba.—In Adonijah's speech to her, he insinuated, that the kingdom was his, by the right of primogeniture: and that he had been in possession of it, by the consent of all Israel. This, however, was totally false: for the kingdom had never been his, except in his own idea, and that of a few who abetted his usurpation; and the people generally favoured Solomon.—But he meant to induce Bathsheba to compassionate his case: and to make a merit with her of peaceably receding from his claim: and that she might not suspect any ill design, he at length conceded, "that it had been Solomon's from the LORD." But though his language was not well calculated to inspire confidence; and his request was in itself improper and highly indecorous at least; yet according to his hopes, Bathsheba suspected no ill, but considered him as entitled to compassion; and supposed his request to be the result of love, not ambition: and perhaps she thought this an easy way of satisfying Adonijah, and securing Solomon in the kingdom.—She did not look upon Abishag as the wife of David, and therefore did not consider her marriage with Adonijah as unlawful; and she readily consented to become his intercessor with Solomon.

V. 20. For I, &c. All such general promises imply the supposition, that the request is lawful and proper to be granted: for even the assurances of God's word, that whatever we ask of him, shall be given, admit of a similar limitation: i. e. if consistent with his glory, and for our real good.

V. 22. Solomon immediately saw through Adonijah's intentions, and that he was aiming to take the fortress by sap, (so to speak,) which he had failed of seizing by surprise. He perceived him still restless, aspiring, and scheming; and discerned that he considered this as one step to the throne, and that Joab and Abiathar were concerned in the project. To show the inefficacy therefore of every application in his favour; to convince Bathsheba of the impropriety and impolicy of her request; and to declare the necessity of his death, in order to the preservation of public peace, and the establishment of his authority, he spoke with great earnestness and decision.

V. 23—25. Solomon has been censured as too severe and precipitate in this execution; but there is no intimation of this in the Scripture. Adonijah's previous pardon had been conditional; he affected to tread in the steps of Absalom; and doubtless he would have created as fatal disturbances to Solomon's government, as Absalom had to David's. Nor would sound policy admit of any delay; when persons of so great authority and extensive influence were joined in the conspiracy, and had far more specious reasons for opposing Solomon, than Absalom had for rebelling against David.

m i. 7. 25.

n Josh. xxi. 19.
Is. x. 30. Jer. i.
1.† Heb. a man of death. 2 Sam. xii.
5.o 1 Sam. xxii. 20
—23. xxiii. 6—
9. 1 Chr. xv. 11,
12.p 2 Sam. xv. 24—
25. Matt. x. 42.q 1 Sam. vi. 31—
36. iii. 12—14.
Matt. xxvi. 56.
John xii. 39. xix.
24. 28. 36, 37.r Josh. xviii. 1.
Ps. lxxviii. 60.
Jer. vii. 12—14.s i. 7. 2 Sam. xviii.
2. 14, 15.

t i. 50.

a 25. 46.

x Ex. xxi. 14.
y Gen. ix. 5, 6.
Num. xxxv. 33.
Deut. xix. 12, 13.
xxi. 8, 9. 2 Kings
ix. 26. Prov.
xxviii. 17. Acts
xxviii. 4.
z 2 Sam. iii. 28.a 44 Gen. iv. 11.
Judg. ix. 24. 57.
Ps. vii. 16.
b 2 Sam. iii. 27.
xx. 10.
c 1 Sam. xv. 28.
2 Sam. iv. 11.
2 Chr. xxi. 13.
Esth. i. 19.
d 2 Sam. iii. 26. 37.

26 ¶ And unto ^m Abiathar the priest said the king, Get thee to ⁿ Anathoth, unto thine own fields; for thou [†] art [†] worthy of death: but I will not at this time put thee to death, ^o because thou barest the ark of the LORD God before David my father, and ^p because thou hast been afflicted in all wherein my father was afflicted.

27 So Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being priest unto the LORD; ^q that he might fulfil the word of the LORD, which he spake concerning the house of Eli in ^r Shiloh.

28 ¶ Then tidings came to Joab; for Joab had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD, and ^t caught hold on the horns of the altar.

29 And it was told king Solomon that Joab was fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD; and behold, he is by the altar. Then Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, ^u Go, fall upon him.

30 And Benaiah came to the tabernacle of the LORD, and said unto him, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay; but I will die here. And Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.

31 And the king said unto him, ^x Do as he hath said, and fall upon him, and bury him; that thou ^y mayest take away the innocent blood which Joab shed, from me, and ^z from the house of my father.

32 And the LORD shall ^a return his blood upon his own head, who fell upon ^b two men ^c more righteous and better than he, and slew them with the sword, ^d my father David not knowing thereof, to wit, Abner the son of Ner, captain of the host of Israel, and Amasa the son of ^e Jether, captain of the host of Judah.

33 Their blood shall therefore return ^f upon the head of Joab, and upon the head of his seed for ever: but ^g upon David, and upon his seed, and ^h upon his house, and upon his throne, shall there be peace for ever from the LORD.

34 So ⁱ Benaiah the son of Jehoiada went up, and fell upon him, and slew him: and he was buried in his own house ^k in the wilderness.

35 And the king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in his room over the host: and ^l Zadok the priest did the king put in the room of Abiathar.

36 ¶ And the king sent and called for ^m Shimei, and said unto him, ⁿ Build thee an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and go not forth thence any whither.

37 For it shall be, that on the day thou goest out and passest ^o over the brook Kidron, thou shalt know for certain that thou shalt surely die: ^p thy blood shall be upon thine own head.

38 And Shimei said unto the king, ^q The saying is good: as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days.

39 And it came to pass at the end of three years, that two of the servants of Shimei ran away unto ^r Achish son of Maachah king of Gath. And they told Shimei, saying, Behold, thy servants be in Gath.

40 And Shimei ^s arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to seek his servants; and Shimei went, and brought his servants from Gath.

V. 26, 27. Solomon's language and Abiathar's silence imply that some recent conspiracies had been formed. Abiathar had suffered much with David, and had been faithful and useful to him; so that in remembrance of his services, as well as in respect to his sacred character, Solomon resolved to spare his life: and as he had not committed murder, this clemency might properly be exercised. In deposing Abiathar from the high-priesthood, Solomon purposely intended to fulfil the word of God to Eli. (Marg. Ref.) And in confining him to his own estate in the country, he only put him under a disgrace which he justly merited.

V. 28—34. In fleeing to the altar, Joab pleaded guilty of the treason charged upon him: and Solomon, in ordering him to be slain before the altar, not for that crime alone, but for his former murders also, evinced his knowledge of, and regard for, the law of God, and his superiority to vulgar prejudices. He also showed the people, that no place, however sacred, should secure a murderer from justice.—His language, on this occasion, proves, that he considered the guilt of innocent blood as resting on his family and kingdom, so long as Joab's murders remained unpunished.

V. 35. Zadok. The high-priesthood continued, from this time, in the line of Eleazar and Phinehas, at least till long after the Babylonish captivity. (Marg. Ref.)—Nothing is further said of Jonathan the son of Abiathar.

e 5. 2 Sam. xvii.
25. *Ithra.*f 2 Sam. iii. 29.
2 Kings v. 27.
Ps. cix. 6—15.
Matt. xxvii. 25.
g 2 Sam. iii. 28.
Prov. xxv. 5.
h Ps. lxxxix. 29.
36, 37. cxxxii.
12. Is. ix. 6, 7.
xi. 1—9. Luke i.
31—34. ii. 14.
i 25. 46.k Josh. xv. 67
Matt. iii. 1.l 27. Num. xxv.
11—13. 1 Sam.
ii. 35. 1 Chr. vi.
50—53. xxiv. 3.
Ps. cix. 8. Acts
i. 20.m 8, 9. 2 Sam.
xvi. 5—9. Prov.
xx. 8. 26.
n i. 53. 2 Sam.
xiv. 24. 28.o 2 Sam. xv. 23
2 Kings xiii. 6
John xviii. 1.p Lev. xx. 9. Josh.
ii. 19. 2 Sam. i.
16. Ez. xviii. 13.q xx. 4. 2 Kings
xx. 19.

B. C. 1011.

r 1 Sam. xxi. 19.
xxvii. 2, 3.s Prov. xv. 32.
Luke xii. 15.
1 Tim. x. 6.

41 And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again.

42 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, ^t Did I not make thee to swear by the LORD, and protested unto thee, saying, Know for a certain, that on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, that thou shalt surely die? and thou saidst unto me, The word that I have heard is good.

43 ^u Why then hast thou not kept the oath of the LORD, and ^x the commandment that I have charged thee with?

44 The king said moreover to Shimei, ^y Thou knowest all the wickedness which thine heart is privy to, that thou didst to David my father: therefore the LORD shall ^z return thy wickedness upon thine own head;

45 And king Solomon shall be ^a blessed, ^b and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD for ever.

46 So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; which went out and fell upon him, that he died. And ^c the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

V. 36—46. No doubt Solomon suspected that Shimei's influence would be dangerous upon his own estate, and among his numerous dependents: and therefore he proposed to him, as the condition of his indemnity for former crimes, that he should live in Jerusalem under his eye, and by no means remove thence. These terms Shimei readily agreed to, and swore to observe them; and for three years he lived unmolested and in affluence. But growing secure, in contempt of Solomon's authority, and of the oath of God, upon an unnecessary business, he took a journey, which according to his own engagement forfeited his life. Thus the Lord left him to be infatuated, that due punishment might be inflicted upon him: in order that every ringleader of opposition to Solomon's kingdom might be crushed, and all others be intimidated by their examples; and that his throne might be established in peace, as the type of the Redeemer's kingdom of peace and righteousness.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—9.

It is desirable to be habitually and calmly expecting the approach of death; for that is the way appointed for all men to pass from this world to another: a dark and gloomy road indeed it is for the workers of iniquity, to a still more dark and dreadful place; but rendered cheerful to the righteous, by the presence of the Lord, and by the hopes of complete felicity. Whilst they are supported by these lively hopes and strong consolations, how becoming is it for them to animate their survivors and successors, to fill up their stations in the church of God and in society in a proper manner! Young men, who are called to important services, should be cautioned by their seniors, to act with gravity and prudence, that they may prevent others "from despising their youth." And they, who, in this evil world, would keep the commandments of God, and (as magistrates or ministers,) would induce others to do the same, need resolution and fortitude, as well as meekness, discretion, and zeal. "For they must keep the charge of the LORD;" and the smiles and flatteries, the reproaches and opposition, the friendship and enmity of the world, will, in different ways, impede them in the performance of their duty. We cannot prosper in our undertakings further than we make the whole word of God our rule and our hope;

nor can we finally come short of all desirable success, if we do this, however appearances may for a time be against us. —No length of time will obliterate the guilt of sin; and justice, though long delayed, will finally be executed on the impenitent. In human governments undue lenity is an evidence of imbecility, of want of wisdom, and disregard to justice. Can it then be supposed that the King of heaven will so indiscriminately exercise mercy; as not to magnify his law, and show decidedly his abhorrence of iniquity? No human authority has a right to pardon wilful murder: and the magistrate, who presumes to do so, is unfaithful to Him that hath commissioned him to execute vengeance upon evil doers; and not only exposes the peaceable subject, but brings guilt on his own soul, on his family, and on the land. They, therefore, who act "according to wisdom," will not let the murderer, though advanced in years, or exalted in rank, go down to the grave in peace. As private persons, we are not to avenge ourselves, but must return blessings and prayers for the bitterest curses and injuries of our enemies; but such offenders will not be held guiltless before God: and if their crimes be a violation of human laws, we may, out of regard to public justice, and for the sake of the peace and prosperity of the church or state, desire that they should be restrained and punished; and in our proper stations may promote the execution of the law upon them. Nay, in doing this, we "may serve our generation according to the will of God," and prepare for death, no less than when we are recompensing our benefactors, and doing acts of kindness to the distressed.

V. 10—25.

It is very happy for a nation, when the death of one good king is followed by the peaceable succession of another, equally wise and righteous. But men are not duly thankful for these blessings: and therefore the Lord permits their course to be interrupted: that public calamities, experienced or dreaded, may promote humiliation for sin, fervency in prayer, and general reformation; and make way for more lively gratitude, when they are removed or prevented. On such great emergencies, wisdom is needful to direct Christians, that they may neither neglect their present duty, nor intermeddle out of their proper sphere. Ambitious men can never rest: they must continually be aiming

CHAP. III.

Solomon marries Pharaoh's daughter, 1. The people sacrifice in high places, 2, 3. Solomon offers a thousand burnt-offerings at Gibeon; God appears to him in a dream; and he asks and obtains from God wisdom, together with riches and honour, 4—15. His judg-to disturb the settled order and public peace, that they may mount to superior authority; and when baffled with one weapon, they will make trial of another. Whatever goes beside them in providence, they deem taken from them; and if they may not domineer, they claim compassion as injured persons; under plausible pretences and soft insinuations, they conceal their aspiring purposes; and with apparent modesty and affection, address themselves to the passions of the unsuspecting, the undiscerning, and tender-hearted. These they would persuade into improper concessions, and engage to use their influence, that their moderate and equitable desires may be granted; and then they shall rest satisfied, and give nobody any further disturbance; whilst perhaps all this covers the most dangerous and subtle intentions. But they, who have the ear of princes, should be careful what requests they present to them. Compassion, generosity, or even gratitude, may induce them to ask for others, what cannot be granted consistently with the honour of the sovereign or the interest of the kingdom: and it were better to be upbraided with unkindness or ingratitude, than to make so ill a use of influence.—The duty of honouring parents is obligatory upon us in every station in life; and too much respect and gratitude cannot be shown them, provided they be not gratified by unlawful and improper compliances: but no relative affection, no engagement whatever, can bind us to do a thing that is evil, or of fatal tendency to the public. The machinations of crafty men generally entangle themselves, and involve them in mischiefs which simple upright men escape. No government can be secure, whilst they who aim to subvert it, remain unpunished: and such as have been convicted, and still persist in treasonable designs, are proper persons to be sacrificed for the public good, and for an example to others; for apparent severity to them may eventually be mercy to thousands.

V. 26—46.

They who have disgraced the sacred ministry by their crimes, are unworthy to officiate in holy things, and should be excluded from them; and wicked priests, though often spared here, will hereafter receive the deepest condemnation. Yet distinctions should be made in the punishment of the guilty; former services and sufferings in a good cause may plead for an alleviation of the sentence, where the law of God will admit of it; and in every event his word will one way or other be accomplished.—Many who slight the ordinances of God in their prosperity, flee to them in terror and affliction: but no expedients will avail to secure the impenitent from condign punishment; and the crimes, in ment between two harlots makes him celebrated for wisdom, 16—28.

AND ^a Solomon made affinity with ^a Pharaoh king of Egypt, and took ^b Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into ^b the city of David, until he had made ^c an end of building ^c his own house, and ^d the house of the LORD, and ^e the wall of Jerusalem round about.

^a vii 8. ix. 24.

^b 2 Sam. v. 7.
¹ Chr. xi. 7.
^c vii. 1.

^d vi. 37, 38.
^e ix. 15—19.

which men long glory and prosper, will at length fall with heavier vengeance on their heads. Even murder admits of degrees of criminality. The character of the persons murdered, their rank, and usefulness to society; and the malice, treachery, and boldness with which the crime was perpetrated, enhance proportionably its malignity. Different offenders ought to be treated in diverse ways, and punishments so inflicted, as may appear most equitable.—The old malignity remains in the unconverted heart, and a watchful eye should be kept on those who have manifested their enmity, but have given an evidence of their repentance: yet, it is well to show them such impartiality, as shall cause them to allow 'that the saying is good.' But no engagements or dangers can restrain worldly men from their pursuits! they will go on, though they forfeit their lives and souls! and contempt of authority, and the obligation of an oath, when their own interests are concerned, evince them to be ripe for destruction. Thus, the kingdom of Christ is established by the ruin of its obstinate opposers, and the advancement of its cordial friends. They who injure his people will be called to account perhaps long after; and all who are kind to them shall be surely recompensed. Wisdom, justice, truth, and mercy, unite in his administration: his kingdom is from the Lord; his enemies will be condemned out of their own mouths; and the wickedness, that their own hearts are privy to, will silence all their pleas. Many have incurred his wrath by a forbidden pursuit of worldly objects, and in aiming to secure some needless possession have lost their immortal souls. May we be his faithful subjects! May the Lord more and more establish and extend his kingdom, by making his foes his footstool: and may the whole earth be filled with his glory, and with the acclamations of his willing people!

NOTES.

CHAP. III. V. 1. As Rehoboam was born before the death of David, (xiv. 21;) it is plain that Solomon had before this married Naamah an Ammonitess: and at this time he married the daughter of the Egyptian king. It is supposed that both of them had embraced the religion of Israel: and as Solomon is not censured on this account, there might be special reasons inducing him to this conduct, of which we are not informed. It is also remarkable, that when Solomon's wives drew him into idolatry, the idols of Egypt are not mentioned: so that Pharaoh's daughter does not seem to have been one of his tempters. At first he brought her into the city of David: but after he had finished his other works, he built her a palace at some distance from the temple. (ix. 24. 2 Chr. viii. 11.)

† xxii. 43 Lev. xvii. 3-5 xxvii. 20. Deut. xii. 2-5. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 17. 5 v. 3. 1 Chr. xviii. 4-6 xxviii. 3-6 Acts vii. 47-49. 1 Deut. vi. 5. x. 12 xxx. 6. 16. 20. 2 Sam. xii. 24. 25 Ps. xxxi. 23. Mark xii. 29. 30. Rom. viii. 28. 1 Cor. viii. 3. Jam. i. 12. ii. 15. 1 John iv. 19. 20. v. 2. 3. 16. 14. ii. 3. 4. xi. 34. 1 Chr. xxviii. 8. 9. 2 Chr. xvii. 3-9. k xv. 14. xxii. 43. 2 Kings xii. 3. xiv. 4. xv. 4. 35. xviii. 4. 22. 1 Josh. ix. 3. x. 2. 1 Chr. xvi. 39. xxi. 29. 2 Chr. i. 3. m viii. 63. 2 Chr. i. 6. vii. 5. xxix. 32-35. xxx. 24. 1s. xl. 16. Mic. vi. 6. 7. n Gen. xxviii. 12. 13. Num. xii. 16. Job xxxiii. 14. 15. Matt. i. 20. ii. 13. 19. o 2 Chr. i. 7-12. Matt vii. 7. 8. Mark xi. 24. John xiv. 13. 14. xv. 16. xvi. 23. 24. Jam. i. 5. 6. 1 John v. 14. 15. p Num. xii. 7. 2 Sam. vii. 5. * Heb. bounty 2 Sam. vii. 8-12. xlii. 7. 8. xxii. 47-51. 1 Chr. xxix. 12-14. Ps. lxxxviii. 70-72. lxxxix. 19-57. q ii. 4. ix. 4. 2 Kings xx. 3. Ps. xv. 2. xxviii. 20 x

2 Only the people sacrificed in high places, because there ^s was no house built unto the name of the LORD until those days. 3 And Solomon ^h loved the LORD, ⁱ walking in the statutes of David his father: ^k only he sacrificed and burned incense in high places.

4 And the king went to ^l Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that ^{was} the great high place. ^m A thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

5 In Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon. ⁿ in a dream by night: and God said, ^o Ask what I shall give thee.

6 And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto ^p thy servant David my father great ^{*} mercy, ^q according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that ^r thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as ^{it is} this day.

7 And now, O LORD my God, ^s thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father; and I ^{am but} a little child: I know not ^{how} ^u to go out or come in.

8 And thy servant ^{is} in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that ^v cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

9 Give therefore thy servant an [†] understanding heart ^a to judge thy people, that I may ^b discern between good and bad; for ^c who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

10 And the speech ^d pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing.

11 And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and ^e hast not asked for thyself [‡] long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies, but hast asked for thyself understanding, to [§] discern judgment;

12 Behold, ^f I have done according to thy words: lo, ^g I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither ^h after thee shall any arise like unto thee.

13 And ⁱ I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both ^k riches and honour; so that there ^{||} shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.

14 And ^l if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, ^m as thy father David did walk, then ⁿ I will lengthen thy days.

V. 2, 3. Until the temple was builded, the irregularity of sacrificing to the God of Israel in high places, and burning incense by the priests, was in some degree connived at: but the people proceeded further in it, than in the days of David, and Solomon was censurable for countenancing them by his example. Upon high hills, especially when covered with trees, as having peculiar solemnity and being favourable to retirement, they erected altars and offered sacrifices, after the manner of the nations around them, but contrary to the law of Moses. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 4. The tabernacle made under the direction of Moses, and the altar belonging to it, were at this time stationed at Gibeon: and this was on that account, the principal high place, where no doubt, the priests and Levites officiated according to the law. It is not said how long Solomon continued at Gibeon on this occasion; or what his burnt-offerings were: but he offered a thousand of one kind or other, which the constant and vehement fire on the altar entirely consumed.

V. 5-14. We must not judge of Solomon's dream by our ordinary dreams, in which almost every thing is incoherent and irrational, though they often savour of a man's waking thoughts, pursuits, and character.—Whilst Solomon's corporeal senses were locked up in sleep, the powers of his soul were supernaturally invigorated: and he was enabled to receive the divine vision, and to make a suitable choice in the case referred to him. His pleas were cogent, and his determination wise. His father had ruled over Israel in truth and righteousness, and had been greatly favoured and prospered; he was the first of the rulers of Israel, who had been succeeded by his son; Solomon had been preferred before his elder brethren by God's own appointment; all these circumstances concurred to raise men's expectations, or to excite their enmity and envy; and thus to increase the importance and arduousness of his station. The people were very numerous, they were the chosen of God, and among them he must both judge in equity, and promote true godliness. Yet he was very young, and inexperienced as a child. His single petition therefore was, that the LORD would give his servant an understanding heart; that is, that he would enlarge and strengthen his intellectual powers, give him a ready discernment in spiritual things and a correspondent disposition; and furnish him with the peculiar talents and capacities for government; that he might administer justice and judgment, with impartial rectitude and deep penetration, for the benefit of the people and the honour of God. Doubtless these sentiments were habitually in Solomon's mind, previously to this vision: and this consciousness of his own insufficiency had led him to depend upon the LORD to y Gen. xiii. 16. xv. 5. xxi. 17. 1 Chr. xxi. 2. 5. 6. xxvii. 23. 24. 2 Chr. i. 10. Ps. cxix. 34. 73. 144. Prov. ii. 6. iii. 13-18. xvi. 16. Jam. i. 5. iii. 17. † Heb. hearing a Ps. lxxviii. 1. 2. Prov. xiv. 8. Ec. vii. 11. 19. ix. 15-18. b 1s. xi. 2-4. Eph. v. 17. Phil. i. 10. Heb. v. 14. c 2 Cor. ii. 16. iii. 5. d Prov. xv. 8. e Ps. iv. 6. Prov. xvi. 31. Jam. iv. 3. ‡ Heb. many days.

§ Heb. hear. f Ps. x. 17. 1s. lxxv. 24. Rom. viii. 26. 27. 1 John v. 14. 15. g 28. ii. 6. 9. 1v. 29-31. v. 12. x. 3-8. 2 Chr. ix. 12. ii. 11. 12. ix. 5-7. Ec. i. 16. Luke. xxi. 15. h Matt. xii. 42. Col. iii. 3. i Ps. lxxxiv. 11. 12. Matt. vi. 33. Eph. iii. 28. Phil. ii. 9-11. k iv. 21-24. x. 23. 27. Prov. iii. 16. || Or, hath not been. l ii. 3. 4. 1 Chr. xxii. 12. 13. xxviii. 9. 2 Chr. vii. 17-19. Ps. cxxxii. 12. Zech. iii. 7. m ix. 4. 5. xv. 5. 2 Chr. xvii. 3. 4. xxix. 2. xxxiv. 2. Acts xiii. 22. n Deut. v. 16. Ps. xci. 16. Prov. ii. 2. 16. 1 Tim. iii. 8.

^o Gen. xli. 7. Jer. xxxi. 26.

^p 2 Sam. vi. 17.

^q viii. 65. 2 Sam. vi. 18, 19. 2 Chr. vii. 7—10. xxx. 22—26.

^r Gen. xl. 20. Esth. i. 3. Dan. v. 1. Mark vi. 21.

^s Deut. xxiii. 17. Josh. ii. 1.

^t Ex. xviii. 13. 26.

^u Num. xxvii. 2.

^v Gen. xliii. 10.

^w Rom. xliii. 7.

15 And Solomon ^o awoke; and behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood ^p before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt-offerings, and offered ^q peace-offerings, and made ^r a feast to all his servants.

16 ¶ Then came there ^s two women, that were harlots, unto the king, and ^t stood before him.

17 And the one woman said, ^u O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house, and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

18 And it came to pass, the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

19 And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.

20 And she arose at ^v midnight, and ^w took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

21 And when I arose in the morning to ^x give my child suck, behold, it was dead; but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son which I did bear.

22 And the other woman said, Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

23 Then said the king, the one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

24 And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

25 And the king said, ^a Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other.

26 Then spake the woman, whose the living child was, unto the king, (for ^b her bowels ^{*} yearned upon her son,) and she said, O my lord, ^c give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

27 Then the king answered, and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof.

28 And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged, and they ^d feared the king; for they saw that ^e the wisdom of God was ^f in him to do judgment.

^a Prov. xxv. 2.

^b Gen. xliii. 30. Is. xlix. 15. Jer. xxxi. 20. Hos. xi. 8. Phil. i. 8. ii. 1. 1 John iii. 17.

^{*} Heb. were hot.
^c Rom. i. 31. 2 Tim. iii. 3.

^d 1 Sam. xii. 13. Prov. xxiv. 21. e 9—12. Ezra vii. 25. Ec. vii. 19. Dan. v. 11. 1 Cor. i. 24. 29. Col. ii. 3. ^f Heb. in the midst of him.

qualify him for the due discharge of the duties of his important station.—Absalom and Adonijah seem not to have been troubled with anxiety on this account, though far inferior to Solomon in capacity for ruling: but they sought the honour and power of the kingdom; he desired to discharge the duty of a king. The disposition and judgment which dictated this petition, in preference to all those alluring distinctions which carnal minds pursue, and which especially attract young persons in superior stations, was well pleasing to the Lord; and he assured him, that “he had given him a wise and an understanding heart,” and that he should receive a vast accession of wisdom: so that he should excel all the kings of Israel, who had preceded or should succeed him in all kinds of knowledge and discernment, and also in riches and honour, which he had not asked.—The promise of long life was conditionally added; and perhaps it was in part forfeited by the idolatry, and other sins, into which he was afterwards betrayed. (2 Chr. i. 1—16.)

V. 16—22. These women seem to have been harlots, who found means to evade the law.—They were alone when the child died, though probably not when the children were born. The first woman's account, though conjectural, seems to have been the truth. Perhaps the other woman feared some reproach, suspicion, or punishment, as if she had willingly or negligently occasioned the death of her child; or she hoped to make some gain by means of the living child; or perhaps she was induced by envy and malignity to claim it as her own: for her willingness to have it divided evinced that she had no true affection for it.

V. 23—28. As there was no witnesses in this transaction, and both parties were alike strenuous and positive, the cause became extremely difficult: and probably it was referred to the king's hearing, because it had puzzled the inferior judges. In many countries such cases have been decided by lot; and, which is much worse, by duels; or the parties have been tortured that they might be compelled to declare the truth. But Solomon adopted the only rational method, by making use of his acquaintance with the human heart, to discover which of them had the feelings of a mother for the living child. Yet when he called for the sword, and ordered the living child to be divided; as none of the auditors seem to have perceived his intentions, they doubtless would secretly condemn the proposal, as puerile, absurd, and inhuman. The woman, who consented to the division of the child, perhaps expected to obtain Solomon's favour by this acquiescence: but she betrayed her want of natural affection for the child, and her resentment against her competitor; whilst the other expressed all the feelings of a mother in an artless and inimitable manner.

CHAP. IV.

Solomon's princes, 1—6. Twelve officers who provided for his household, each in his month, 7—19. The prosperity and grandeur of his kingdom 20—25.

His horses and chariots, 26—28. His wisdom and reputation, 29—34.

SO king Solomon was king ^a over all Israel.

2 And these were ^b the princes which a xi. 13. 35. 36.

xii. 19, 20. 2 Sam.
v. 5.
q Ex. xviii. 21.
2 Sam. viii. 16—
18. xx. 23—25.
1 Cor. xii. 28.

And when the people saw, that by this extraordinary measure Solomon had extorted the truth beyond all further doubt; they revered, and stood in awe of him, notwithstanding his youth; perceiving “that the wisdom of God” was in him to do judgment.”

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—15.

Whatever external or intellectual accomplishments any man may possess, “to love the LORD” is the grand distinction between one man and another: and thus the meanest believer is preferred before all the wise, learned, renowned, and prosperous unbelievers on earth, and is classed among apostles, prophets, and those princes who have served God. Indeed, admiration of his perfections, gratitude for his goodness, delight in his service, and zeal for his glory, form the perfection and felicity of angels; and to this character the grace of our Redeemer renews all those, who are interested in his salvation. Such as love the Lord should copy the examples, and follow the instructions, of those who have gone before them in the same path; especially of their pious parents: but they should be careful to avoid their errors and transgressions; for even good men find it difficult to act themselves at all times as they would counsel others: therefore defects will be found in the best characters, and in the best state of the church upon earth. We should indeed watch and pray against all evil in ourselves, and use our influence to prevent it in others: yet we should expect to see many things that we disapprove, and learn to make allowances for them.—That is never wasted which is prudently spent in God’s service: and the munificence and liberality of the great should be proportioned to their affluence, that their example may edify their inferiors. To abound in the work of the Lord, upon scriptural principles, forms the proper method of waiting for the gracious communications of further knowledge, grace, and comfort. In effect, the Lord by his gospel makes this proposal to all who hear it, “Ask what I shall give thee.” He does not indeed bind himself to gratify the desires of the ambitious, the covetous, the sensual, the envious, or the revengeful: but he is ever ready to answer the petitions of those, who ask of him heavenly wisdom and spiritual blessings, how vile soever they have hitherto been. We should therefore first request the Lord to teach us what to pray for, and how to pray aright: and if we from our hearts, in the Redeemer’s name, have been taught to ask of the Lord, his favour, his image, his graces, and his comforts; with wisdom, ability, and a willing mind, to fill up our station in the church and in society, to his glory and the good of others; he hath already given us an understanding heart, and will make continual accessions to this gift. As long as we decidedly prefer these spiritual blessings to all carnal things, we may be sure that he will give us as much of outward comforts as he sees really subservient to our good. We should also honour the riches of his all-sufficiency and liberality, by multiplying and enlarging our requests, and grasping at more and more from him; for he will take it graciously, and deal with us accordingly. In every service, public and private, they are most qualified for their work, and acquit themselves the best in it, who are most sensible of its difficulty and of their own insufficiency. It bodes well, when they, whom others call wise men, deem themselves children; and as ill, when men are singular in a good opinion of their own abilities and attainments. Distinguishing favours require peculiar returns of gratitude: and a man’s being evidently called to very important and arduous services, may dictate his prayers and encourage his expectations of proportionable assistance. Such as succeed eminently wise and good men, should ask a double portion of wisdom and grace, to answer the expectations of others from them: and they who, in deviation from ordinary rules, are employed in any public service, will be more narrowly watched, and more severely censured, if they act inconsistently. Let not this hint be overlooked or taken amiss, by those who preach the gospel without an express appointment from man, in any of those ways by which ministers are ordinarily sent forth. The continued blessing of God can only be expected in the way of persevering obedience: and negligence or wickedness will always ensure loss in our temporal or spiritual comforts.

V. 16—28.

Judges, magistrates, and all concerned in trying causes, need great discernment, as well as integrity, in order to sift out the truth, when so much pains and craft are employed to conceal it: they ought therefore, in all their studies and in all their decisions, to ask wisdom of God; and we should earnestly remember them in our prayers.—Where the Lord has given abilities, and a heart disposed to improve them, he will open a way for the profitable exercise of them in his due time: and an accurate acquaintance with the human heart will be found a most profitable kind of knowledge for all, but especially for magistrates and ministers. God hath made natural affection very strong, especially in mothers, as the great mean of preserving their infants in the midst of their dangers and infirmities, notwithstanding all the trouble and fatigue which they occasion: yet human depravity, habitual wickedness, or fear and shame, can extinguish it, and even mothers are capable of becoming the murderers of their own infants! Surely this harlot will rise up in judgment against such unnatural criminals, and condemn them; and perhaps still more their brutal seducers, who have deserted them when exposed to these awful temptations! But to accommodate he had; Azariah the son of Zadok the  Or, chief officer.*  priest;*

3 Elihoreph and Ahiah, the sons of Shisha, † scribes; Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud, the ‡ recorder.

4 And † Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada was over the host; and † Zadok and Abiathar were the priests;

5 And Azariah the son of Nathan was over the officers; and Zabud the son of Nathan was principal officer, and ‡ the king's friend;

6 And Abishar was over the household: and † Adoniram the son of Abda was over the § tribute.

7 ¶ And Solomon had twelve officers over all Israel, which provided victuals for the king and his household: † each man his month in a year made provision.

8 And these are their names:  The* son of Hur, in † mount Ephraim.

9 † The son of Dekar, in Makaz, and in † Shaalbim, and † Beth-shemesh, and Elonbethshanan.

10 ‡ The son of Hesed in Aruboth; to him pertained † Sochoh, and all the land of † Hephher.

11 § The son of Abinadab, in all the region of † Dor; which had Taphath the daughter of Solomon to wife.

12 Baanah the son of Ahilud; to him pertained † Taanach and † Megiddo, and all † Beth-shean, which is by † Zartanah beneath † Jezreel, from Beth-shean to † Abel-meholah, even unto the place that is beyond Jokneam.

13 ¶ The son of Geber, in † Ramoth-gilead; to him pertained ‡ the towns of Jair the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead: to him also pertained the region of Argob, which is in † Bashan, three-score great cities with walls and brazen bars.

14 Ahinadab the son of Iddo had  Mahanaim.*

15 Ahimaaz was in † Naphtali; he also took Basmath † the daughter of Solomon to wife:

16 Baanah the son of Hushai was in † Asher and in Aloth.

17 Jehoshaphat the son of Paruah in † Issachar.

18 † Shimei the son of Elah, in † Benjamin.

19 Geber the son of Uri was in the country of Gilead, in † the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og king of Bashan; and he was the only officer which was in the land.

this transaction, may we not observe, that many professors, (like the pretended mother who consented to have the child divided,) would mutilate the sacred Scriptures, and leave out those parts that militate against their prejudices, pride, and lusts? yea, they would fain divide their hearts betwixt God and mammon. But the true believer loves the whole Scripture, and holds it fast, and values doctrines, precepts, warnings, promises, and every part, as necessary to the perfection of the inestimable whole: and this cordial affection proves the whole to be his own. He would yield his heart entirely to the Lord, and seek after his happiness from Him alone. Soon our Solomon will decide betwixt these two characters: "in him is the wisdom of God to do judgment:" let us then see to it, that our cause and title be clear; for he cannot be imposed upon by any evasions or subtrefuges; seeing he "searcheth the hearts of all the children of men," and "all things are naked and open before him, with whom we have to do."

NOTES.

CHAP. IV. V. 1. David had not at first reigned over all Israel; and none of Solomon's successors had this privilege continued to them.

V. 2—6. Most of these princes, or ministers of state, and chief officers, were either the same persons whom David had employed, or their sons. Abiathar, though deposed from the high-priesthood, and secluded from the sanctuary, retained under Zadok the title and emoluments of a priest, or one of the chief priests. Azariah the son, or grandson of Zadok, being the son of Ahimaaz; (1 Chr. vi. 8, 9;) might under his grandfather have the chief management of ecclesiastical matters. Two sons of Nathan the prophet, as it is supposed, were preferred by Solomon, and one was dignified as the king's friend.

V. 7—19. These officers were appointed to procure every kind of provision, where it was most plentiful and good: and we may suppose, that besides the monthly supply of such productions as were common to the whole land, they would purchase upon the spot those provisions which were peculiar to each district, and which could be preserved. This was a salutary and economical arrangement, and would prevent any part of the country from being improperly drained; it would also promote an equal consumption, and supply the requisite plenty upon the best terms. Two of these purveyors married daughters of Solomon. Perhaps he had more daughters, though but one son, by all his wives. But these marriages must have taken place many years after his accession, and this chapter is a general account of the state of the land in his reign. Geber seems to have had the chief management of the whole country beyond Jordan, and to have employed his son, and Abinadab, under him in that district. (13, 14. 19.)

2 Sam. xx. 25. c Shua. 1 Chr. xviii. 16. Shausha.
† Or, secretaries.
† Or, remembrancer.
d ii. 35.
e ii. 26, 27. 35.

f i. 10, &c. 2 Sam.
vii. 2. xii. 1—5.
g 2 Sam. xv. 27.
xvi. 16. John xiii. 23. xv. 14.
Jain. ii. 23.
h v. 14. xii. 18. 2
Sam. xx. 24.
Adoram.
† Or, levy.

i 1 Chr. xxvii. 1 —15.

* Or, Ben hur. k Judg. xvii. 1
xix. 1.

† Or, Ben-dekar.
l Josh. xix. 42.
Shaalabbin.
m 1 Sam. vi. 12. 20.

‡ Or, Ben-hesed.
n Josh. xv. 35.
o Josh. xii. 17.
xviii. 3.
† Or, Ben-abinadab.
p Josh. xii. 23.
xvii. 11. Judg. i.
27.

q Josh. xvi. 11.
Judg. v. 19.
r 2 Kings xxiii. 29, 30. s 1 Sam. xxxi. 10.
12.
t vii. 46. Zartham.
Josh. ii. 16.
u xviii. 46.
x xix. 16.

|| Or, Ben-geber.
y xxii. 3. 2 Kings
ix. 1. 14.
z Num. xxxii. 41.
Deut. iii. 4.

a Ps. xxii. 12.
lxviii. 15.

* Or, to Mahana-im. Gen. xxxii.
2. 2 Sam. ii. 8.
xvii. 24. 27.
b Josh. xix. 32—39.
c 11. 1 Sam. xviii.
19.

d Josh. xix. 24—31.

e Josh. xix. 17—23.

f i. 8.
g Josh. xviii. 21—28.

h Num. xxi. 21—
35. Deut. ii. 26
—37. iii. 1—17.
Josh. xiii. 9—12.

i iii. 8. Gen. xlii.
16. xv. 5. xxii.
17. Pro. xiv. 28.

k i Sam. xxx. 16.
1 Chr. xii. 39.
Job i. 18. Ps.
lxxii. 3-7. Ec.
ii. 24. Is. xxii.
13. Mic. iv. 4.
l Gen. xv. 18. Ex.
xxiii. 31. Deut.
xii. 24. Josh. i. 4.
2 Chr. ix. 26. Ps.
lxxii. 8, 9.
m 2 Kings xvii. 3.
2 Chr. xvii. 5.
xxiii. 23. Ps.
lxxviii. 29. lxxii.
10, 11.

* Heb. bread.
† Heb. cors.

n Neh. v. 17, 18.

o Gen. x. 19.
Judg. xvi. 4.
p Ps. lxxii. 8, 11.
q i Chr. xxii. 9.
Ps. lxxii. 3, 7. Is.
ix. 7. Luke ii. 14.
† Heb. confidently.
Is. lx. 18. Jer.
xxiii. 5, 6. xxxiii.
15, 16.
r 2 Kings xviii.
31. Mic. iv. 4.
Zech. iii. 10.
s Judg. xx. 1. 2
Sam. xvii. 11.
t x. 25, 26. Deut.
xvii. 16. 2 Sam.
viii. 4. 2 Chr. i.
14. ix. 25. Ps.
xx. 7.
u 7-19.

20 Judah and Israel were many, ⁱ as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, ^k eating and drinking and making merry.

21 And ^l Solomon reigned over all kingdoms, from the river unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt: they ^m brought presents, and served Solomon all the days of his life.

22 ¶ And Solomon's ^{*} provision for one day was thirty [†] measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, 23 ⁿ Ten fat oxen, and twenty oxen out of the pastures, and an hundred sheep, beside harts, and roe-bucks, and fallow deer, and fatted fowl.

24 For he had dominion over all the region on this side the river, from Tiph-sah even to ^o Azzab, over ^p all the kings on this side the river: and he ^q had peace on all sides round about him.

25 And Judah and Israel dwelt ^r safely every man under his vine, and under his fig-tree, ^s from Dan even to Beersheba all the days of Solomon.

26 And Solomon had ^t forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen.

27 And ^u those officers provided victuals for king Solomon, and for all that came unto king Solomon's table, every man in his month: they lacked nothing.

28 Barley also and straw for the horses and [†] dromedaries brought they unto the place where the officers were, every man according to his charge.

29 ¶ And ^{*} God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and ^v largeness of heart, even ^z as the sand that is on the sea shore.

30 And Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of ^a the east country, and all ^b the wisdom of Egypt.

31 For he was ^c wiser than all men; than ^d Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahal: and ^e his fame was in all nations round about.

32 And ^g he spake three thousand proverbs: and his ^h songs were a thousand and five.

33 And he spake of trees, from ⁱ the cedar-tree that is in Lebanon, even unto ^k the hyssop that springeth out of the wall: he spake also ^l of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes.

34 And ^m there came of all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, which had heard of his wisdom.

V. 20. The people were not wasted in Solomon's reign by wars, invasions, or intestine contests; and therefore they grew exceedingly numerous and prosperous, and lived in great peace and plenty. But they seem to have been too much pleased and elated with their external blessings, and to have indulged themselves too freely in the use of them.

V. 21. David had subdued all the countries from the entrance of Egypt to the river Euphrates; and Solomon reaped the fruit of his victories, by reigning peaceably over these extensive territories, and increasing his own wealth, and that of his native subjects, by the presents and tributes of the inhabitants.

V. 22, 23. The provisions here mentioned would suffice for several thousands of people. Solomon's servants and officers, and those who flocked to his court from all parts of the land, and from distant nations, with their retinues, were entertained upon them.

V. 24. Tiph-sah is supposed to have been a city, where was a bridge or ferry over the Euphrates; the name being derived from a word which signifies to pass over. Azzab is the same as Gaza of the Philistines.

V. 25. The land from one end to another was in such profound peace, and was so exempt from all oppression or terror, that the people disregarded the protection of the walled cities, and lived upon their lands, that they might enjoy their abundance upon the spot where it was produced.

V. 26. By comparing the passages referred to in the margin, it appears most probable, that Solomon had four thousand stalls, or stables, and forty thousand horses, employed in all sorts of carriages: and only fourteen hundred chariots for war, and for royal magnificence: yet he cannot be excused in thus multiplying chariots and horses.

V. 29. Largeness of heart, &c. This expression and comparison denote the unparalleled greatness of Solomon's intellectual powers; his most extensive knowledge comprising innumerable particulars; and his enlargement of heart in communicating instruction to all around him. 'A mind very comprehensive of all sorts of knowledge; and a heart to do a vast deal of good. As the sand encloses a vast body of waters; so his mind contained an ocean of knowledge, as Lord Bacon speaks.' (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 30-34. God not only gave Solomon heavenly wisdom and singular talents for government; but he super-added extraordinary capacities for the attainment of all kinds of knowledge: so that he excelled the wise men of Egypt and of Babylon, Arabia, or countries still more to the east, in astronomy, and other sciences for which they were renowned. In the knowledge of divinity he surpassed Ethan and Heman, who seem to have been men renowned

CHAP. V.

Hiram, king of Tyre, sends to congratulate Solomon; who informs him that he intended to build a temple, and desires him to furnish the timber, 1—6. Hiram blesses God for Solomon's wisdom, and engages for the timber; requiring in return food for his household, 7—9. The mutual good offices between Hiram and Solomon, 10—12. The number of Solomon's workmen and labourers, 13—18.

AND^a Hiram king of Tyre^b sent his servants unto Solomon: for he had heard that they had anointed him king in

^a 10. 18. ix. 11—14.
² Chr. ii. 3. Hu-76m.
^b 2 Sam. viii. 10. x.
1, 2. Pa. xlv. 12.

for extraordinary piety and wisdom at that time; and all others who were celebrated in Israel on the same account. (Marg. Ref.) He excelled also in morality, and economics; for he spake three thousand proverbs, of which such as were most suited for general utility have come down to us in the book of Proverbs. He likewise excelled in poetry, and wrote one thousand and five songs: but only one of these is preserved in Scripture. It may, however, be supposed, that many of the others were upon moral and religious subjects; as well as remarkable for the beauties of poetry. He was moreover deeply versed in all the branches of natural philosophy, and discoursed, in an admirable manner, upon the nature, properties, and uses of the several species of plants and animals. So that in every thing he possessed such an undisputed superiority over all men in that age, that his reputation for wisdom brought numbers from different kings and nations all around, to learn every kind of useful knowledge from him: and perhaps he possessed more accurate and extensive knowledge on a vast variety of subjects, than any mere man in any age or nation of the world besides ever did.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—28.

True wisdom will generally direct those who succeed prudent and prosperous men, in kingdoms or estates, to tread in their steps, to employ their servants, and to avail themselves of the good advice of their friends and counsellors: but folly and self-conceit delight in making many and great changes, though they commonly prove disadvantageous. (xii. 6—15.)—They who faithfully seek the good of our souls, though sometimes with sharp reproofs, are our best friends; and their memories are always entitled to grateful respect, and their children to kind regard; yet these are worthy of a wise man's confidence and friendship, only when they tread in the steps of their pious parents. The different ranks of men in society should be distinguished by a suitable attendance and provision: but "when riches increase, they are increased that eat them," and the owners have much additional encumbrance, and but little accession of solid advantage. It is also extremely difficult to possess abundance, without covetousness, luxury, or ostentation; without abusing, wasting, or burying, the goods of our common Lord, to whom every one must give an account of his stewardship: yet, prudent management and frugality are excellent appendages to liberality, and serve to support the expenses of it. Wise and righteous princes are most valuable blessings to whole kingdoms, and should be sought in prayer from that God who hath all hearts in his hands: yet all outward prosperity is precarious and transient; and too often it proves unfavourable to religion, and increases pride, sloth, and sensual indulgence; thus rendering divine judgments necessary. Wealth without wisdom, and knowledge without humility and grace, are often destructive to the possessor, and to those with whom he is connected: yet both are the gifts of God, good in themselves, and only evil as abused by man's depravity. And heavenly wisdom teaches men to give God the glory in the use of these inferior blessings, and so renders them ornamental to the Christian profession, and conducive to promote designs of extensive usefulness.

V. 29—34.

A reputation for wisdom and piety is no further desirable, than as it consists with humility, and affords a man an opportunity of communicating more extensively that useful knowledge which the Lord hath imparted. Every information, which is needful in order to our glorifying God and obtaining his salvation, is preserved to us in the sacred Scriptures: and the light of heaven will more certainly and speedily instruct us in all useful knowledge, than all the regretted records of antiquity could do if we had them. Let us then rejoice that the Lord reigneth on a mercy-seat, and that his name is Emmanuel. His kingdom was faintly shadowed forth in that of Solomon, but is of a nobler and more heavenly nature. The blessings of it consists not "in meat and drink, but in righteousness, peace, and joy in the holy Ghost." In his days the righteous flourish; their numbers have already been immensely multiplied, and future ages shall witness a more rapid and vast increase, "when all kings shall bow down before him, and all nations shall do him service:" (Psal. lxxii.) Then "shall they beat their swords into plough-shares, and war shall be learned no more:" then shall "every man call his neighbour under the vine, and under the fig-tree;" (Zech. iii. 10.) "In him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge;" his fame shall spread through all the earth, and all people shall come to him, learn of him, take upon them his easy yoke, and find rest for their souls. But whilst we look with joyful longing desires and fervent prayers for these glorious days: let us now sit at his feet, hear his word, ask of him wisdom, submit to his will, and seek his glory. Then, outward tribulation shall not break our inward peace; then we shall be satisfied with the plentifulness of his house; then we shall enjoy much liberty, and have many glimpses of his glory on earth, and shall speedily remove to yon brighter world above, where innumerable angels, and redeemed sinners, are happy in his presence, and rapturously celebrating his praises.

^c 2 Sam. v. 11. 1
Chr. xiv. 1. Am.
i. 9.

the room of his father; ^c for Hiram was ever a lover of David.

^d 2 Chr. ii. 3.

2 And ^d Solomon sent to Hiram, saying;

^e 2 Sam. vii. 5—11.
^f 1 Chr. xxii. 8.
xxviii. 3.

3 Thou knowest how that David my father ^e could not build an house unto the name of the LORD his God, ^f for the wars which were about him on every side, until the LORD ^g put them under the soles of his feet.

^g Josh. x. 24. Ps.
viii. 6. cx. 1
Mal. iv. 3. 1 Cor.
xv. 25. Eph. i.
22.
^h iv. 24. 1 Chr.
xxii. 9. Ps. lxxvii.
7. Is. ix. 7. Acts
ix. 31.

4 But now the LORD my God ^h hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary, nor evil occurrent.

ⁱ 2 Chr. ii. 1. 4.
• Heb. say.

5 And, ⁱ behold, I ^{*} purpose to build an house unto the name of the LORD my God, ^k as the LORD spake unto David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name.

^k 2 Sam. vii. 12,
13. 1 Chr. xvii.
12. xxii. 10.
xxviii. 6. 10.

6 Now therefore command thou, that they hew me ^l cedar-trees out of Lebanon, and my servants shall be with thy

^m Rom. xii. 17
Phil. iv. 8.

servants; and unto thee ^m will I give hire for thy servants; according to all that thou shalt ⁿ appoint; for thou knowest

ⁿ 1 Cor. xii. 14—21.
^o Gen. x. 15.
Ezra iiii. 7.

that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the ^o Zi-donians.

^p x. 9. 2 Chr. ii.
11, 12. ix. 7, 8.
Ps. cxxii. 6, 7.
q. 1. 46. Gen. xxxiii.
5. Is. viii. 13.
r. iii. 9.

7 And it came to pass, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly, and said, ^p Blessed be the LORD this day, ^q which hath given unto David ^r a wise son over this great people.

^s Heb. heard.

8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have ^s considered the things which thou sentest to me for: and I will do all thy desire, concerning timber of cedar, and concerning ^s timber of fir.

^t vi. 15. 24. 2
Sam. vi. 5. 2
Chr. iii. 5.

9 My servants shall bring them down from ^t Lebanon unto the sea; and ^u I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place that thou shalt ^v appoint me, and ^v Heb. send.

will cause them to be discharged there,
and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt accomplish my desire in ^x giving food for my household.

^x Ezra iii. 7. Ez.
xxvii. 17. Acts
xii. 20.
^y B. C. 1012.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar-trees, and fir-trees, according to all his desire.

^z Heb. Cors. 2
Chr. ii. 10.

11 And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand ^{||} measures of wheat for food to his household, and twenty measures of pure oil: thus gave Solomon to Hiram year by year.

^y iii. 12. iv. 23.
2 Chr. i. 12.

12 And the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, ^y as he promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and ^z they two made a league together.

^z xv. 19. Gen.
xxi. 32. Am. i.
9.
• Heb. tribute of men.
^a ix. 15.

13 ¶ And king Solomon raised a ^{*} levy out of all Israel; and the levy was ^a thirty thousand men.

^b iv. 7—19. 1 Chr.
xxvii. 1—15.
^c iv. 6.

14 And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand ^b a month by courses; a month they were in Lebanon, and two months at home: and ^c Adoniram was over the levy.

^d ix. 20. 22. 2
Chr. ii. 2. 17, 18.

15 And Solomon had ^d threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains:

^e ix. 23. 2 Chr.
ii. 2.

16 Beside the chief of Solomon's officers, which were over the work, ^e three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people that wrought in the work.

^f vi. 7. vii. 9. 1 Chr. xxii. 2. Is.
xxviii. 16. 1 Cor.
iii. 11, 12. 1 Pet.
ii. 6, 7. Rev.
xxi. 14—27.

17 And the king commanded, and they brought great stones, ^f costly stones, and hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house.

^g Or, Giblites.
Josh. xiii. 5. Ps.
lxxxiii. 7. Ez.
xxvii. 9.

18 And Solomon's builders and Hi-ram's builders did hew them, and ^g the stone-squarers: so they prepared timber and stones to build the house.

NOTES.

CHAP. V. V. 1. It is highly probable that Hiram was himself a worshipper of JEHOVAH, and loved David on account of his wisdom and piety; though his people in general seem to have continued idolaters. He sent to condole with Solomon on his father's death, and to congratulate him on his peaceful succession. Tyre and Zidon lay north of Canaan, and were not included in the grant to Israel; it was therefore lawful to form alliances with them.

V. 9. The Tyrians possessed a very small tract of land, and were employed and enriched by commerce and manufactures: and they had their provisions chiefly from the fruitful land of Canaan. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 11. Twenty thousand baths of oil are mentioned in Chronicles, which amounted at least to two thousand cors. (Marg. Read.) But as barley and wine are there spoken of, some think that the wheat, here mentioned, was intended for the use of Hiram's family, and the small quantity of very fine oil for his own use; whereas in Chronicles the provisions made for the workmen are intended.

V. 13—18. Only a small number of native Israelites were employed, in rotation, as it consisted with their convenience, and probably in the easier services: but a great number of the remains of the ancient inhabitants of the land continually assisted the Tyrians, by removing the timber, conveying it to the sea, helping to navigate the CHAP. VI.

The building of the temple began, 1. The dimensions of the house, and its porch, 2, 3. The windows, 4. The chambers, 5—10. The promise of God concerning the temple, 11—13. Its walls, ceiling, floor, and ornaments, 14—18. The Oracle and Cherubim, 19—30. The doors of the Oracle and of the house, 31—35. The inner-court, 36. The time in which the whole was completed, 37, 38.

a 2 Chr. iii. 1, 2.

AND^a it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, ^b in the month Zif, which is the second month, that he ^{*} began to ^c build the house of the LORD.

^{*} Heb. built.
Acts vii. 47.
^c Zech vi. 12, 13.
15. John ii. 21.
1 Cor. vi. 19. 2
Cor. vi. 16. Eph.
ii. 20—22. Col.
ii. 7. 1 Pet. ii. 5.
^d Ezra vi. 3, 4.
Ez. xli. 1, 3c.
Rev. xxi. 16, 17.

2 And the house which king Solomon built for the LORD, the length thereof was ^d threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits.

3 And the ^e porch before the temple of the house, twenty cubits was the length thereof, according to the breadth of the house, and ten cubits was the breadth thereof before the house.

^e Matt. iv. 5.
John x. 23. Acts
iii. 10, 11.

floats, and conveying it when landed to Jerusalem; and in preparing stones for the temple. (Marg. Ref.) These were superintended by three thousand and three hundred persons, perhaps of the same nations. Three thousand six hundred are mentioned in Chronicles: perhaps three hundred were officers over the rest; or they were supernumeraries, to supply for such as were sick and disabled from attendance. Thus the temple was chiefly built by the labour and riches of those who were originally Gentiles; which typified the calling of the Gentiles into the church: and the costly stones laid out of sight, as the foundation of the temple, typified Christ our tried and precious Foundation; and were an emblem of the hidden excellency of those who form a part of his spiritual temple.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The love of God causes men to love one another, and renders them superior to selfish jealousies and envyings: and it teaches them to rejoice in each other's prosperity, and to be glad to receive or afford mutual assistance. The most necessary and successful wars, not only produce much temporal evil, but obstruct or retard the execution of many useful designs for promoting godliness: we may then well pray, 'Send peace in our time, O Lord:' and when he "gives rest on every side, so that there is no adversary nor "evil occurrent," no time should be lost, but every one should be intent to devise, and execute, such useful undertakings as were before prevented. Different persons are qualified for different services; and whilst all harmoniously concur, in their proper places, and by improving their own talent, the common cause will prosper. It is admirable when the children rise up, and complete the wise and pious designs of their deceased parents; and all should rejoice, and bless the Lord, when they see such tokens of the prosperity of his church. God hath so constituted the earth, that every nation hath its peculiar productions, and its inhabitants their distinguished endowments: thus, their mutual intercourse is forwarded: and by an interchange of benefits, they are instructed to love one another as children of the same family. Happy would it be if commerce were generally conducted on such principles, and rendered subservient to the spread of true religion: but, alas! through man's depravity, it has often tended to diffuse wickedness and misery more rapidly through the nations of the earth! —All agreements should be made with consideration, that equity may be established, and contests precluded: and great punctuality should be observed in paying labourers their wages. Frequently, they are most ingenious in the liberal arts, who are strangers to true godliness: and many are employed about the church of God, who have no interest in its blessings. The meanest office in his service is honourable and profitable, if cordially performed: and millions of us poor Gentiles, who in ourselves were devoted to destruction, have been employed by Him. Our gracious Lord lays no intolerable burdens on any of his true people; but in every injunction consults their interest and comfort. Let us then serve him cheerfully, and mind our proper work: and after his example may we be humane and considerate in all our requisitions from our inferiors; that our service, like his, may be loved, and considered as a privilege by those employed in it.

NOTES.

CHAP. VI. V. 1. (Notes, Ex. xxv. 8, 9.) The use and typical meaning of the temple, and those of the tabernacle, were the same: but the moveable tabernacle suited the estate of Israel when wandering in the wilderness, and a magnificent temple was more proper when they were settled in Canaan. A temple was not indeed essential to the religion of Israel; and therefore the building of it was deferred till four hundred and eighty years after that people was brought out of Egypt; or four hundred and forty years after they entered Canaan: and this temple was destroyed, in less than four hundred and twenty years after it was finished.—Solomon was more than three years in making the necessary preparations: and in the fourth year of his reign, he laid the foundation. The month Zif was the second of the ecclesiastical year. Some think that the names of the months here given, were not in use before the captivity.

V. 2, 3. The temple was a very magnificent building, and immense quantities of gold and silver were used about it: yet, apart from its courts, it was but a small structure, compared with many buildings in ancient and modern times. The temple was twice as large every way as the broad within, and narrow without; or, skewed and closed Cant. ii. 9 Ez.

* Or, windous
xl. 16 xli. 26

† Or, upon; or, joining to.

He b. floors. 1
Chr. xxviii. 11.
Neh. x. 37 xii.
44 xlii. 5-9 Cant.
i. 4 Jer. xxxv.
4 Ez. xl. 44 xli.
5-11 xlii. 3-12.
16 19-21 31.
Ex. xxv. 22.
Lev. xvi. 2 Num.
vii. 89 Ps. xxviii.
2.

‡ Heb. ribs.
|| Or, narrowings, or, retatements.

4 And for the house he made * windows of narrow lights.

5 And † against the wall of the house he built ‡ chambers round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple and of the † oracle: and he made † chambers round about.

6 The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made || narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

7 And the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was ^h neither hammer, nor axe, nor any tool of iron, heard in the house while it was in building.

8 The door for the middle chamber was in the right * side of the house: and they ⁱ went up with winding stairs into the middle chamber, and out of the middle into the third.

9 So ^k he built the house, and finished it; and covered the house with † beams and boards of cedar.

10 And then he built chambers against all the house five cubits high: and they rested on the house with timber of cedar.

11 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying,

12 Concerning this house which thou art in building, ^l if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments to walk in them; ^m then will I perform my word with thee, which I spake unto David thy father:

13 And ⁿ I will dwell among the children of Israel, and ^o will not forsake my people Israel.

14 ¶ So ^p Solomon built the house, and finished it.

15 And he built the walls of the house within with boards of cedar, ‡ both the floor of the house, and the walls of the cieling: and he covered them on the inside with wood, and covered the floor of the house with planks of fir.

16 And he built twenty cubits on the sides of the house, both the floor and the walls, with boards of cedar: he even ^a built them for it within, even for the oracle, even for the most holy place.

17 And the house, that is, the temple before it, was forty cubits long.

18 And the cedar of the house within was carved with † knops and || open flowers: all was cedar: there was no stone seen.

19 ¶ And ^r the oracle he prepared in the house within, ^s to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

20 And the oracle in the forepart was l ii. 3. 4. iii. 14.

viii. 25. ix. 4, 5.
† Sam. xii. 14, 15.
1 Chr. xxviii. 9.
2 Chr. vii. 17, 19.
Ps. cxxxii. 12.
m 2 Sam. vii. 13.
1 Chr. xxii. 10.

n viii. 27. Ex. xxv.
8. Lev. xxvi. 11.
Ps. lxxvii. 19.
cxxxii. 12, 13.
Is. lviii. 15. Ez.
xxxvii. 24-28.
2 Cor. vi. 16.
Rev. xxi. 3.
o Deu. xxxi. 6 8.
1 Sam. xii. 22.
1 Chr. xxviii.
10. 20.

p 38.
† Or, from the floor of the house,
unto the wall,
&c. 16.

q 5. 19, 20. viii. 6.
Ex. xxv. 21, 22.
xxvi. 33. Lev.
xvi. 2. 2 Chr.
iii. 8. Heb. ix. 3.

‡ Or, gourds.
|| Or, openings of flowers.

r 5. 2 Chr. iv. 20.

s viii. 6-10. Ex.
xl. 20, 21. 2 Chr.
v. 7. Heb. ix. 3.
4.

g v. 10. Pro. xxiv.
27. 2 Cor. v. 5.
Col. i. 12. 1 Pet.
ii. 5.
h Is. xlii. 2. Acts
ix. 31. Jam. i. 20.
iii. 17, 18.

* Heb. shoulder.

† Ez. xli. 6, 7.

k 14. 38.

† Or, the vault- beams and the ceilings with cedar.

tabernacle. It was about a hundred feet long, thirty-three feet wide, and fifty feet high: and it had a porch, on the east end, at the entrance, which formed an ornamental steeple of about two hundred feet high. (2 Chr. iii. 4.)

V. 4. Windows, &c. The tabernacle had no light from without, and the temple had not much. These windows, which are supposed to have been wider on the inside than without, were situated in the spaces betwixt the chambers afterwards mentioned; or, as some think, above them.

V. 5, 6. These chambers accommodated the priests, when they were upon duty at the temple: and in them they laid up their clothes, the sacred vessels not in immediate use, and the other treasures belonging to the temple. For the purpose of fixing these chambers, the wall of the temple was made two cubits thicker at the bottom than at the top: and where it was made a cubit less in thickness, a rest was formed on the outside, for the beams of the second story of chambers to lodge upon, and so for the third. By this contrivance the upper stories were larger than the lower; and the wall of the temple was not weakened, either by building or by repairing the chambers. It is supposed that there was also a gallery round about, by which the priests entered the chambers; and that there were none over the entrance of the temple.

V. 7. Every stone was squared, and fitted for its place, at the quarry; so that the temple was erected without noise, or the incumbrance of useless rubbish. Several of these circumstances may shadow forth spiritual things.

V. 8. There seems to have been a door, in each of the two upper stories, into a gallery, which communicated with all the chambers; and winding stairs from one story to another.

V. 10. The chambers were five cubits high, in each story; and thus they did not go up to the top of the temple.—The beams of cedar lay on the rests in the wall.

V. 11-13. This word of the Lord was both an encouragement to Solomon to proceed; and an intimation to him, and to Israel, that neither the service performed in building the temple, nor its presence with them, could secure to them the Lord's favour, if they were not obedient to his commandments: for both king and people stood upon the same terms with God, as they did before the temple was begun.

t 2, 3.

twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and twenty cubits in the height thereof: and he overlaid it with * pure gold; and so covered ^u the altar which was of cedar.

* Heb. shut up.
u 22 vii. 48. Ex. xxx 1-3.

x Ex. xxvi 29, 32.
xxxvi. 34. 2 Chr. iii. 7-9.

y 5 Ex. xxvi 33.
2 Chr. iii 14-16.

z 20.

21 So Solomon ^x overlaid the house within with pure gold; and he made a partition ^y by the chains of gold before the oracle, and he overlaid it with gold.

22 And the whole house he overlaid with gold until he had finished all the house: ^z also the whole altar that was by the oracle he overlaid with gold.

a Gen. iii. 24. Ex. xxv. 18-22.
xxxvii. 7-9. 2 Chr. iii. 10-13.
Ps. xviii 10. Ez. x. 2. &c. Heb. i. 14. 1 Pet. i. 12.
† Or, oily. Heb. tress of oil.

23 And within the oracle he made ^a two cherubims of † olive-tree, each ten cubits high.

24 And five cubits was the one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the other wing of the cherub: from the uttermost part of the one wing unto the uttermost part of the other were ten cubits.

25 And the other cherub was ten cubits: both the cherubims were of one measure, and one size.

26 The height of the one cherub was ten cubits, and so was it of the other cherub.

b Ex. xxv 20.
xxxvii. 9. 2 Chr. v. 8.
† Or, the cherubims stretched forth their wings.
2 Chr. iii 11. Ps. lxxx. 1.

27 And he set the cherubims within the inner house: ^b and they † stretched forth the wings of the cherubims, so that the wing of the one touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house.

V. 15--22. The inside of the walls of the temple were throughout wainscotted with cedar, ornamented with exquisite workmanship; and it was floored with planks of fir, or, as some explain the word, of a very durable kind of cedar: yet both were covered with plates of solid gold. In the same manner and proportion, as the tabernacle had been, this building was divided into two parts: the oracle, or the holy of holies, from whence the Lord delivered his answers to the high-priest from above the mercy-seat, was twenty cubits square: it is also said to have been twenty cubits high, though the house was thirty: it was therefore either built or ceiled lower than the other part of the temple. The veil, which separated the holy of holies, was hung by golden chains on pillars erected for that purpose; (1 Chron. iii. 15, 16.)—"The altar, by the oracle," was the altar of incense without the veil, in the other division of the temple, which was twice as long as the most holy place.

V. 23--28. These cherubim were the emblems of the angels, as jointly worshipping God our Saviour; and as delighting to contemplate the mysteries of redemption.—They were distinct from, and much larger than, those which covered the mercy-seat, and indeed were insepara-

28 And he overlaid the cherubims with gold.

29 And he carved all the walls of the house round about with ^c carved figures of cherubims, and ^d palm-trees, and ^e open flowers, within and without.

c Ex. xxxvi. 8. 2 Chr. iii. 14. iv. 2. 5 Ps. ciii. 20. cxlviii 2. Luke ii. 13, 14. Eph. iii. 10. Rev. v. 11-14.
d Pa. xcii. 10-15.
e Heb. openings of flowers. 16. 32. e Is. liv. 11, 12. 1x. 17. Rev. xxi. 18-21.

30 And ^e the floor of the house he overlaid with gold, within and without.

31 And for the entering of the oracle he made ^f doors of olive-tree: the lintel and side posts were † a fifth part of the wall.

f John x. 9. xiv. 5. Eph. ii. 18. Heb. x. 19, 20.
† Or, five square.

32 The † two doors also were of olive-tree; and he carved upon them carvings of cherubims, and palm-trees, and ^g open flowers, and overlaid them with gold, and spread gold upon the cherubims, and upon the palm-trees.

† Or, leaves of the doors.

g Heb. openings of flowers.

33 So also made he for the door of the temple posts of olive-tree, ‖ a fourth part ^h of the wall.

h Or, four square.

34 And the two doors were of ⁱ fir-tree: the ^h two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding.

i Ex. v. 8. h Ez. xli 20-23.

35 And he carved thereon cherubims, and palm-trees, and open flowers; and covered them with gold fitted upon the carved work.

36 And he built ⁱ the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar beams.

i Ex. xxvii. 9-19. xxxvii. 9-20. 2 Chr. iv. 9. vii. Rev. xi. 2.

bly united to it; (Ex. xxv. 18-24.) They stood erect with their faces towards the wall; (2 Chron. iii. 13;) and covered with their out-stretched wings the whole breadth of the most holy place. The others were of solid gold; but these of olive-tree covered with gold.

V. 31-35. It is probable, that besides the veil, there was another partition between the holy of holies, and the sanctuary. The veil covered the whole of this: but when that was drawn aside, folding doors, of olive-tree, plated with gold, and curiously engraved, took up a fifth of the partition, or about four cubits. The doors at the entrance of the sanctuary were rather larger.

V. 36. The inner court, at the entrance of the sanctuary, in which the altar of burnt-offering stood, was principally appropriated to the priests, Levites, and those who brought the sacrifices. It was separated from the other courts by a wall of hewn stone: but it is supposed that part was built of cedar-beams, to leave openings, through which the other worshippers might see the sacrifices offered, and join in the sacred services.

V. 37, 38. The whole time was seven years and a half; but only the number of whole years is mentioned. This is frequently the case.

Ezra vi. 14, 15.

37 ¶ In the fourth year was the foundation of the house of the Lord laid in the month Zif:

Zech. iv. 9. vi. 13—15.

Or, with all the appurtenances thereof, and with all the ordinances thereof.

38 And in the eleventh year, in the month Bul, which is the eighth month, was the house¹ finished throughout all the parts thereof, and * according to all the fashion of it. So was he seven years in building it.

CHAP. VII.

Solomon builds himself a house, 1. And the house of the forest of Lebanon, 2—5. The porch of pillars, 6. The porch of judgment, 7. The house of Pharaoh's daughter, 8. The costly materials of these structures, and of the great court, 10—12. Hiram, a skilful artificer, is fetched from Tyre, 13, 14. He casts two pillars of brass, 15—22. And the brazen sea; with ten bases, and ten lavers, and other vessels for the temple, 23—47. The furniture and sacred vessels of gold made for the temple, 48—50. The dedicated treasures brought into it, 51.

BUT Solomon was building his own house^a thirteen years, and he finished all his house.

^a ix. 10, 2 Chr. vii. 1 Ec. ii. 4, 5, Matt. vi. 33.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—13.

Though God delights not in outward magnificence, but is present with and accepts the worship of poor believers, who assemble in the meanest place: yet he expects that the wealthy should devote their riches to his service. And whatever is liberally expended, out of zeal for his glory, and according to the rule of his word, shall be graciously accepted; though perhaps man may censure the expense, as needless or useless; (John xii. 3—8.)—Every good work should be done heartily and without procrastination: but it is not needless delay to consult prudent measures, to make requisite preparations, and to remove such obstructions, as might afterwards impede our progress, or divert our attention. Thus, young men, animated with a laudable design to seek the salvation of souls, and impatient to be employed in the work of the ministry, would do well to restrain their ardour, to wait for a proper opening in Providence, and to spend some time in previous study, meditation, and prayer; that they may acquire the wisdom, experience, humility, and steadiness, requisite for so important a work; and afterwards proceed in it without interruption, and to better effect: and a few years spent in this manner will no more be lost time, than those which were employed in preparations for the building of Solomon's temple.—Every thing in the church above is conducted in perfect harmony and regularity; every part of that spiritual temple being made ready for its place, before it is conveyed thither: and the more the church on earth resembles it the better.—The true church of God is most glorious within; and the true believer is chiefly employed in attending to the state of his heart.—In all religious matters convenience must be preferred to splendour; but stability must not be sacrificed even to apparent convenience. No pompous services will purchase a dispensation from obeying the least of God's commandments. All those things that men confide in, who allow themselves in sin, will be found as unavailing as the temple was to the wicked kings and people of Israel; for nothing but unreserved obedience to the precepts and statutes of God's word, can prove the sincerity of our faith, and our love to the Saviour. But, though numbers of professors apostatize, and whole nations forfeit their peculiar privileges; yet the Lord will dwell in the midst of his true people, and never forsake them; they will delight in his ordinances and commandments, and be encouraged by being told their duty, as it is a token of the Lord's favour to them.

V. 14—38.

What is begun in the fear and love of God, in dependence on him, and obedience to him, will in due time be accomplished to his glory.—God must be honoured with the best we have: but gold is only meet to be trodden under foot, in comparison with the beauty of holiness; which is the glory and ornament of his spiritual temple.—The human nature of the Redeemer, that true Temple in which God dwells with man, is immaculately holy: the Christian, as united unto Jesus, and “an habitation of God through the “Spirit,” is sanctified in his measure: and the church above, where innumerable angels unite with redeemed sinners, in ceaseless worship of God our Saviour, is perfect in this beauty. Let not then the hypocrite, or formal professor of Christianity, who is a stranger to the sanctifying influences of God's Spirit, and who lives in secret or open sin, suppose himself a part of this living Temple.—Yet let sinners come to Jesus, as the living Foundation, that they may be built on him, a part of this spiritual house, consecrated in body and soul to the glory of God.—If we have good ground to conclude that we are a part of this living Temple; let us look to it, that our inward part, which is seen by God alone, may be preserved most pure: let us be careful also of our outward conduct, that our blameless conversation may be ornamental to our profession in the sight of man: let us look to Jesus for encouragement and assistance in every service, and as the great exemplar to which we are to be conformed: and let us by faith behold that glorious company whom we hope soon to join; that we may now emulate their praises, imitate their obedience, and thus anticipate their comforts even in this world of sin and sorrow!

NOTES.

CHAP. VII. V. 1. Solomon began the temple first, and was most earnest in expediting it; and therefore it was finished in far less time than his own palace. As he employed twenty years in these buildings; (ix. 10;) it seems b ix. 19. x. 17.

xiv. 26. Cant.
vii. 4.

2 He built also ^b the house of the forest of Lebanon; the length thereof was an hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits, upon four rows of cedar-pillars, with cedar-beams upon the pillars.

* Heb. ribs.

3 And it was covered with cedar above upon the * beams, that lay on forty-five pillars, fifteen in a row.

c vi. 4.

† Heb. sight against sight.

4 And there were ^c windows in three rows, and † light was against light in three ranks.

‡ Or, spaces and pillars were square in prospect.

5 And all the ‡ doors and posts were square with the windows: and light was against light in three ranks.

§ Or, according to them.

6 And he made a porch of pillars; the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof thirty cubits: and the porch was § before them: and the other pillars and the thick beam were || before them.

|| Or, according to them.

d vi. 3.

e x. 18—20. Ps.
cxvii. 5. Is. ix.
7.

f iii. 9. 28. Prov.
xx. 8.

g Heb. from floor to floor.

7 Then he made ^d a porch ^e for the throne, where he might judge, even the porch ^f of judgment: and it was covered with cedar * from one side of the floor to the other.

g 2 Kings xx. 4.

8 And his house where he dwelt had ^g another court within the porch, which was of the like work. Solomon made also an house for Pharaoh's daughter,

^b whom he had taken to wife, like unto ^h this porch. ^h iii. 1. ix. 24.
2 Chr vii. 11.

9 All these were of ⁱ costly stones, according to the measures of hewed stones, sawed with saws, within and without, even from the foundation unto the coping, and so on the outside toward the great court.

10 And ^k the foundation was of costly stones, even great stones; stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits. ⁱ v. 17.

11 And above were costly stones, after the measures of hewed stones, and cedars. ^l Eph. ii. 20—22.
1 Pet. ii. 5.

12 And the great court round about was with ^m three rows of hewed stones, ^m vi. 36. and a row of cedar beams, both for the inner court of the house of the Lord, and for ⁿ the porch of the house. ⁿ John x. 23
Acts iii. 11. v. 12.

13 ¶ And king Solomon sent, and fetched ^o Hiram out of Tyre.

o 40. 2 Chr. ii. 13.

14 He was † a widow's son of the tribe of ^p Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass; and ^q he was filled with wisdom and understanding, and cunning to work all works in brass. And he came to king Solomon, and wrought all his work. ^q Ex. xxxi. 3—6. xxxv. 35. xxxvi. 1. Is. xxxviii. 26. Dan. i. 17.

iv. 11. Huram.

† Heb. the son of a widow woman.

p 2 Chr. ii. 14.

15 For he ‡ cast ^r two pillars of brass, of eighteen cubits high a piece: and a r 2 Kings xxxv. 16.

† Heb. fashioned.

17. 2 Chr. iii.

15—17. iv. 12.

Jer. iii. 21—33.

he finished the temple before he began his own house; though his numerous workmen might have carried on both together.

V. 2. Some have thought that this palace was built for retirement, in a beautiful situation near Mount Lebanon: but it seems rather to have been erected not far from Jerusalem; and to have been thus called, either from its airy and lofty situation, or from the cedars of Lebanon, of which it was built.—Solomon put the shields of gold in the house of the forest of Lebanon; yet when Shishak came to Jerusalem he seized on them: and when Rehoboam made brazen ones in their stead, they were carried before him when he went to the house of the Lord, and brought back with him to the great chamber. (x. 17. 2 Chron. ix. 16. xii. 9—11.)

V. 6—12. The porch of pillars is supposed to have been a covered portico, in which Solomon's guards and attendants waited: and the porch of Judgment, another portico, in which he sat to decide causes. It is not certain, whether "the porch of pillars" belonged to "the house of the forest of Lebanon," or to the palace in Jerusalem: but it is most probable that "the porch for the throne" was at Jerusalem.—The palace seems to have stood within two courts; one nearer to it than "the porch for the throne," and the other further off.—The palace for Pharaoh's daughter was placed at some distance, "out of the city of David;" (Marg. Ref.) but it was built with the same magnificence as the other palaces. The costly stones seem to have been large valuable blocks of marble, beautifully squared and polished, on every side: and the outer court was surrounded with a wall like that which separated the court of the temple; so that the people might look through the rows of the cedar-beams, which were placed at proper distances. These buildings, though magnificent, were intended for use, and not mere ostentation: and no doubt they were finished in the best style of the architecture of those days. The court round Solomon's own house was built in the same manner as the inner court of the house of the Lord.

V. 14. Hiram's mother is in Chronicles said to have been "of the daughters of Dan;" and some think that Dan was the proper name of her father: but perhaps she was originally of the tribe of Dan, and had first been married to a man of Naphtali; and being by him left a widow, had married a Tyrian, to whom she bare Hiram, or Huram, who was called by the name of the king of Tyre. This man, uniting as it were the Israelite and the Gentile in one person, and being the chief workman in making the furniture of the temple, aptly represented the union of the Jews and Gentiles in the Christian Church.

line of twelve cubits did compass either of them about.

^s Ex. xxxvi. 38. xxxviii. 17. 19. 28. 16 And he made ^s two chapiters of molten brass, to set upon the tops of the pillars: the height of the one chapter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapter was five cubits:

^t Ex. xxxviii. 14. t 22. 24. 25. xxxix. 15-18. 17 And nets of checker-work, and wreaths of chain-work, for the chapiters which were upon the top of the pillars; seven for the one chapter, and seven for the other chapter.

18 And he made the pillars, and two rows round about upon the one network, to cover the chapiters that were upon the top, with pomegranates: and so did he for the other chapter.

^u vi. 13. 12. 35. 19 And the chapiters that were upon the top of the pillars, were of ^u lily-work in the porch, four cubits.

20 And the chapiters upon the two pillars had pomegranates also above, over against the belly which was by the network: and the ^{*} pomegranates were two hundred, in rows round about upon the other chapter.

^y 2 Chr. iii. 17. Gal. ii. 9. Rev. iii. 12. z vi. 3. Ez. xl. 48, 49. 21 And ^y he set up the pillars in ^z the porch of the temple: and he set up the right pillar, and called the name thereof

^{*} He shall establish. 2 Sam. vii. 12. Is. ix. 7. † In it is strength. Ruth iv. 21. Is. xlv. 24. Matt. xvi. 18. * Jachin; and he set up the left pillar, and called the name thereof † Boaz.

22 And upon the top of the pillars was lily-work: so was the work of the pillars finished.

^a Ex. xxx. 18-21. xxxviii. 8. b 2 Kings xxv. 13. 2 Chr. iv. 2. Jer. lii. 17. 20. † Heb. his brim to his brim. 23 ¶ And ^a he made ^b a molten sea, ten cubits from † the one brim to the other: it was round all about, and his height was five cubits; and a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about.

^c vi. 18. Ex. xxv. 31-36. xxxviii. 17-22. d 2 Chr. iv. 3. 24 And under the brim of it round about there were ^c knops compassing it, ten in a cubit, ^d compassing the sea round about: the knops were cast in two rows when it was cast.

^e 2 Chr. iv. 4. Jer. lii. 20. 25 It stood upon ^e twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east: and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

^f Jer. lii. 21. 26 And it was ^f an hand-breadth thick, and the brim thereof was wrought like the brim of a cup, ^g with flowers of lilies: ^g 19. vi. 18. 35. it contained ^h two thousand baths. ^h 2 Chr. iv. 5.

27 ¶ And he made ten bases of brass: four cubits was the length of one base, and four cubits the breadth thereof, and three cubits the height of it.

28 And the work of the bases was on this manner: they had borders, and the borders were between the ledges:

29 And on the borders that were between the ledges were ⁱ lions, oxen, and cherubims: and upon the ledges there was a base above; and beneath the lions and oxen were certain additions made of thin work. ⁱ vi. 27. Ez. i. 10. x. 14. xli. 18, 19. Rev. iv. 6, 7.

30 And every base had four brazen wheels, and plates of brass; and the four corners thereof had undersetters: under the laver were undersetters molten, at the side of every addition.

31 And the mouth of it, within the chapter and above, was a cubit: but the mouth thereof was round, after the work of the base, a cubit and a half; and also upon the mouth of it were gravings with their borders, four square, not round.

32 And under the borders were four wheels: and the axletrees of the wheels were ^j joined to the base, and the height ^j Heb. in the base. of a wheel was a cubit and half a cubit.

33 And ^k the work of the wheels was ^k Ez. i. 16. 13.

V. 15-22. (Marg. Ref.) Each of these pillars being eighteen cubits in height, the two together would measure thirty-six cubits in length: but one cubit is supposed to be allowed for the bases. The chapiters are, in one place, said to have been three cubits in height: but the upper part, covered with decorations, is thought to be there mentioned separately, and to be here included. There were four hundred pomegranates in all; two hundred on each chapter, in two rows of an hundred each. Perhaps ninety-six of these might be counted on every side; being nearly one half of the whole number on each chapter: but, as some think, there were ninety-six smaller pomegranates in each row, in four divisions, towards the four quarters of the sea; and four larger pomegranates were placed between these four divisions. A writer, who completely understood such subjects, would scarcely be able, by words without plates, to convey any adequate ideas of the ornamental workmanship described in this chapter. These pillars were intended for ornament and for significancy. Jachin signifies he will establish: Boaz, in him is strength. And thus the priests and worshippers were reminded to trust only in the Lord, and not in themselves, or in their forms.

E

like the work of a chariot-wheel; their axletrees, and their naves, and their fellows, and their spokes, were all molten.

34 And there were four undersettors to the four corners of one base: and the undersettors were of the very base itself.

35 And in the top of the base was there a round compass of half a cubit high: and on the top of the base, the ledges thereof, and the borders thereof, were of the same.

36 For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on the borders thereof, he ¹graved cherubims, lions, and palm-trees, according to the * proportion of every one, and additions round about.

37 After this manner he made the ten bases: all of them had one casting, one measure, and one size.

38 Then made he ^mten lavers of brass: one laver contained forty baths; and every laver was four cubits: and upon every one of the ten bases one laver.

39 And he put five bases on the right [†]side of the house, and five on the left side of the house; and ^phe set the sea on the right side of the house eastward, over against the south.

40 ¶ And [‡]Hiram made ^othe lavers, and the shovels, and the basons: ^pso Hiram made an end of doing all the work that he made king Solomon for the house of the LORD;

41 ^aThe two pillars, and the two bowls of the chapiters that were on the top of the two pillars; and the ^rtwo networks, to cover the two bowls of the chapiters which were upon the top of the pillars;

42 And four hundred pomegranates for the two net-works, even two rows of pomegranates for one net-work, to cover the two bowls of the chapiters that were upon [§]the pillars;

43 And the ^sten bases, and ten lavers on the bases;

44 And ^tone sea, and twelve oxen under the sea;

45 And ^uthe pots, and the shovels, and the basons: and all these vessels, which Hiram made to king Solomon for the house of the LORD, were of || bright brass.

46 In ^xthe plain of Jordan did the king cast them, in ^{*}the clay ground between ^ySuccoth and ^zZarthan.

47 And Solomon left all the vessels unweighed, [†]because they were exceeding many: neither was the weight of the brass [‡]found out.

48 ¶ And Solomon made all the vessels that pertained unto the house of the LORD: ^athe altar of gold, and ^bthe table of gold, whereupon the shew-bread was.

49 And ^cthe candlesticks of pure gold, five on the right side, and five on the left, ^dbefore the oracle, with the flowers, and the lamps, and ^ethe tongs of gold,

50 And the bowls, and the snuffers, and the basons, and the ^fspoons, and the [§]censers of pure gold; and the hinges of gold, both for the doors of the inner house, the most holy place, and for the § Heb. the face of the pillars. s 27—39.

t 23—26.

u Ex. xxvii. 3. xxxviii. 3. Lev. viii. 31. 1 Sam. ii. 13, 14. 2 Chr. iv. 16. Ez. xli. 20—24. Zech. xiv. 21. || Heb. made bright, or, scour-ed.

x 2 Chr. iv. 17. * Heb. the thickness of the ground.

y Gen. xxxiii. 17. z iv. 12. Zartanah. Josh. iii. 16. Zartan.

† Heb. for the exceeding multitude. 2 Chr. iv. 18.

‡ Heb. searched. 1 Chr. xxii. 14. 16.

a Ex. xxx. 1—5. xxxvii. 25—28. xxxix. 38. xl. 26. 2 Chr. iv. 19.

b Ex. xxv. 23—30. xxxvii. 10—16. xxxix. 36. xl. 22, 23. Lev. xxiv. 5—9. 2 Chr. iv. 8. Mal. i. 12.

c Ex. xxv. 31, &c. xxxvii. 17, &c. xxxix. 37. xl. 24, 25. 2 Chr. iv. 7. Rev. i. 20. d vi. 19.

e Ex. xxv. 38. f Ex. xxv. 29. Num. vii. 86.

§ Heb. ash-pans. Lev. xvi. 12. 2 Chr. iv. 21, 22.

vi. 29. 32. 35. Ez. xl. 31. 37. xl. 18. 20. 25. 26.

* Heb. nakedness.

m Ex. xxx. 17—21. 28. xxxvii. 8. xl. 11, 12. 2 Chr. iv. 6. Zech. xiii. 1. Heb. ix. 10. x. 22. 1 John i. 7. Rev. vii. 14.

† Heb. shoulder.

n 2 Chr. iv. 6. 10.

† Heb. Hirom. 13. o 2 Kings xxv. 14, 15. 2 Chr. iv. 8. 11—16. Jer. iii. 13, 19. p Ex. xxxix. 32—43.

q 15—22. 2 Chr. iv. 12.

r 17, 19.

V. 23—39. In the tabernacle there had been one laver of brass, at which the priests were continually to wash themselves, and the sacrifices also. But now the numbers of the priests and Levites were multiplied, and the sacrifices were proportionably increased. Therefore Solomon prepared this bzen sea; and ten lavers besides, at which the sacrifices were to be washed. These were continually supplied with water by the Nethinims, or the Gibeonites who were servants to the priests. The brazen sea was a vast reservoir, capable of holding three thousand baths, or about four hundred and fifty hogsheads: though no more than two thousand baths were generally put into it. The knops are supposed to have been in the form of an ox's head, (2 Chr. iv. 3:) and some think that the water flowed out at the mouths of them; or of some of them. The oxen on which it was placed, might be intended as a protest against the absurd idolatry of worshipping God under an image in that form: though some have supposed them typical of the twelve apostles, laboriously bearing the gospel of Christ, the fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness, into all the divisions of the earth. The ten lavers, though generally placed in two rows, in the inner court of the temple, were fixed upon bases which ran on wheels, that they might be removed as convenience required. The description given of these bases, is very difficult to be understood: many of the original words are but seldom used, if at all, elsewhere: and it would be impossible to give a satisfactory explanation of each particular, without labour and prolixity disproportioned to its importance to us. The likeness of lions, oxen, &c. we shall hereafter find to be undeniably emblematic of the boldness, patience, diligence, and heavenly-mindedness of the ministers of Christ; and perhaps it had some such meaning here.

doors of the house, to wit, of the temple.

^g Ex xl. 33. Ezra vi 15 Zech. iv. 9.

^{*} Heb holy things of David 2 Sam viii. 7. 11. 1 Chr. xviii. 7. 8. 10. 11. xxvi. 26-28. xxviii. 11-13. xxix. 2-8. 2 Chr. v. 1.

51 ^g So was ended all the work that king Solomon made for the house of the LORD. And Solomon brought ^{*} in the things which David his father had dedicated; even the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, did he put among the treasures of the house of the LORD.

CHAP. VIII.

Solomon assembles the elders and princes, and the priests carry the ark into the most holy place, 1—9. The glory of the Lord fills the house, 10, 11. So-

V. 48—51. There were ten tables; but perhaps one was much larger than the rest, and the shew-bread was chiefly placed upon it. Every thing was made new for the temple, (even the altar for burnt-offering, though not here mentioned;) except the ark of the covenant, with the mercy-seat and cherubim; for this was the peculiar symbol of God's presence with his people, as reconciled in Jesus Christ, the one Mediator between God and man. Thus under the gospel dispensation, externals of worship are altogether changed, but the way of access and acceptance with God is the same. Most things were multiplied, or enlarged above what they were in the tabernacle; but there was but one altar of incense, as before. Thus the New Testament dispensation is suited to the spread of the gospel, through all nations: but the multiplication of intercessors is an antichristian departure from the faith. Solomon having plenty of materials, prepared great quantities of all requisite utensils for the service of the sanctuary, for the benefit of those who should come after him: and he deposited the remainder of the consecrated treasures in the house of the Lord, for the same purpose, in future times. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—13.

Princes and nobles may be allowed, without censure, to build their houses, and to lay out their estates, as it is suitable to their rank, conveniency, or inclinations; yet they should be reminded that they will find it all a mere vanity. They should also be cautioned, not to expend too much in that manner, lest they should be straitened in their ability of doing good to others and glorifying God; and not to suffer such cares and contrivances to take up their time, or to draw their thoughts and affections off from communion with God, and the care of their souls: for peace of conscience, joy in the Holy Ghost, and the lively hope of a heavenly inheritance, are the choicest comforts; the beauties of holiness are the most valuable ornaments; and distinguished usefulness is the most honourable and durable testimony to a man's character. When, however, men begin first with the service of God, and are not by other lomon blesses Israel; and praises God for performing his word to David, 12—21. He prays, that God would answer the supplications of Israel, and of strangers, in all ages and in all cases, in which they should call upon him towards this his holy temple, 22—53. He again blesses God and the people, 54—61. He offers numerous sacrifices, keeps the feast fourteen days, and dismisses the people, who return home joyful and thankful, 62—66.

THEN ^a Solomon ^b assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the ^{*} chief of the fathers of the

^a 2 Chr. v. 2.
^b Josh. xxiii. 2.
xxiv. 1. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 2. 2 Chr.
xxx. 1. Ezr.
iii. 1.
^{*} Heb. princes.

employments taken off from it, or rendered negligent in it, and still return to it for satisfaction; and when in all their undertakings they have an eye to the peculiar duties of their stations, as well as to general conveniency and utility: we may conclude, that the multiplicity of their engagements will not materially injure them.

V. 14—51.

It is well when great ingenuity unites with equal integrity; when entire confidence is proved to have been well placed; and when every one abounds in the work of the Lord, in proportion as his abilities are enlarged. Yet in and after all our services, we need washing from the guilt and pollution of sin, which defiles us and all we do. Let us therefore bless God for the fountain which he hath opened for sin and for uncleanness; and which, in the preached Gospel and written word, may be conveyed to every part of the earth. In him also is strength, and he will establish all who trust in him. They who depend on their own resolutions, wisdom, or works; they who trust in riches, honour, prosperity, or powerful friends; they who worship other gods, or depend on other intercessors; and they who presume upon their notions, creeds, or external forms, can never be established, but will at length sink and perish. But the power of Christ rests upon the humble believer; his arm upholds him; his grace establishes his heart in hope and love; he is his stability in every trial, and his sufficiency for every service: and is both able and willing “to keep him from falling, and to present him faultless before the presence of his glory, with exceeding joy.” He indeed is both the Temple and the Builder; the Altar and the Sacrifice; the Light of our souls and the Bread of life; and is every way adequate to the largest and most numerous wants of the millions, who have applied, and shall apply, to him. External images cannot describe, words cannot express, the heart cannot conceive, his preciousness or his love. Let us come to him, and wash away our sins in his blood; let us seek for the purifying grace of his Spirit; let us walk in the light of his instructive word, and observe his kind directions; let us feed upon him daily ‘in our hearts by faith with children of Israel, unto king Solomon in Jerusalem, ^c that they might bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord ^d out of the city of David, which is Zion.

2 And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at ^e the feast, in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month.

3 And all the elders of Israel came, and ^f the priests took up the ark.

4 And they brought up the ark of the LORD, ^g and the ^h tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, even those did the priests and the Levites bring up.

5 And king Solomon and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him, were with him before the ark, ⁱ sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

6 And ^k the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD unto ^l his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even ^m under the wings of the cherubims.

7 For the cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark, and the staves thereof, above.

8 And they ⁿ drew out the staves, that the ^{*} ends of the staves were seen out in the [†] holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are ^o unto this day.

9 There was ^p nothing ^q in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses ^r put there at Horeb, [‡] when the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 ¶ And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place, that ^s the cloud filled the house of the LORD, 11 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of the LORD.

12 ^t Then spake Solomon, ^u The LORD said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

V. 3. The Levites of Kohath's family were appointed to carry the ark; and the priests were of that family: on the most solemn occasions, therefore, the priests performed this service.

V. 4. It is probable, that both the ancient tabernacle which Moses had made, and that which David had formed at Jerusalem, were brought up to the temple, and, with all their vessels and furniture, deposited in its treasures. Thus the Mosaic dispensation afterwards resigned up all its honours to the Christian: and thus the knowledge and grace of the church on earth, will be absorbed and lost in the vision and glory of heaven.

V. 5. The altar of burnt-offering, which Solomon had prepared, seems to have been covered with sacrifices, without any fire under them: and when Solomon had ended his prayer, the fire came down from heaven and consumed them; (Note, 2 Chron. vii. 1. Lev. ix. 24.) But there might also be other sacrifices on the former altar, and likewise temporary altars erected, with all suitable preparations for so extraordinary an occasion. (Note, 63—65.)

V. 7—9. The cherubim, here mentioned, do not mean those which had been made of solid gold in the days of Moses, shadowing the ark; but those especially which Solomon had just prepared in the most holy place. The ends of the staves might be seen in the holy of holies, but not in the outer sanctuary. The ark now came to its resting place, and it continued in the same situation when this history was written. Aaron's rod, the pot of manna, and the copy of the law, were by, but not within, the ark.

^c 2 Sam. vi. 1, 2.
^d 1 Chr. xiii.
1—5. xv. 3. 25.

^e iii. 15. 2 Sam. v. d
7—9. vi. 12. 17.
1 Chr. xv. 23.
xvi. 1.

^f Lev. xxiii. 34.
Num. xxix. 12.
1 Chr. xvi. 1.

^g Deut. xvi. 16.
13. 2 Chr. v. 3.
vii. 8—10. Ezra
iii. 4. Neh. viii.
14—18. Zech.
xiv. 16—19. John
vii. 2. 37, 38.

^h Num. iv. 15.
Deut. xxxi. 9.
Josh. iii. 3. 6.
14, 15. iv. 9. vi.
6. 1 Chr. xv. 2.
11—15.

ⁱ iii. 4. 2 Chr. 13.
^j Ex. xl. 2—33.

^k 2 Chr. v. 7.

^l vi. 19. Ex. xxvi.
33, 34. xl. 20, 21.

^m vi. 27. Ex. xxv.
20—22. xxxvii.
9. Ez. i. 6. x. 5.

ⁿ Ex. xxxv. 14, 15.
xxxvii. 4, 5. xl.
20.
^o Heb. heads.
^p Or, ark. 2 Chr.
v. 9.

^q Josh. iv. 9.
Mat. xxviii. 15.
^r Ex. xxv. 21.
Deut. x. 2. 2 Chr.
v. 10.
^s Ex. xvi. 33. Num.
xxvii. 10. Heb.
ix. 4.
^t Ex. xl. 20. Deut.
x. 5.
^u Or, where. 21.
Ex. xxiv. 8.
xxxiv. 27, 28.
Deut. iv. 13.

^v Ex. xvi. 10. xxiv.
16—18. xl. 34.
35. Lev. xvi.
2. Num. ix. 15.
2 Chr. v. 13, 14.
vii. 2. Ez. x. 4.
2 Cor. iii. 18.
Rev. xv. 8.

^w 2 Chr. vi. 1, 2.
^x Lev. xvi. 2.
Deut. iv. 11. Ps.
xviii. 9. 11.
xxvii. 2.

'thanksgiving,' maintain communion with God the Father, through his intercession, and yield up ourselves and all we have to his service. Thus being "strong in the Lord, and "in the power of his might," we shall be accepted, useful, and happy; and shall be enabled to do our own work, in our proper places, with fidelity, in a manner consistent with our profession, and to the glory of his name.

NOTES.

CHAP. VIII. V. 1. The temple was in a peculiar manner the residence of JEHOVAH in the midst of Israel, when the ark of the covenant was placed in it: and the want of the ark, after the Babylonish captivity, in the temple then built, intimated that that dispensation was ready to vanish away. Solomon's undertaking therefore was incomplete, and the temple lacked its chief glory, (notwithstanding all its gold and exquisite workmanship,) until the ark was removed thither, and fixed in the most holy place. This therefore he took care to perform, according to the law, and in the most public and solemn manner.—Mount Moriah, on which the temple was built, lay near to the city of David, on mount Zion, where the ark was before placed, but was distinct from it. (1 Chr. xxi. 18—30. xxii. 1. 2 Chr. iii. 1.)

V. 2. This was about eleven months after the temple was completed. The intervening time was doubtless employed in getting every thing ready for the solemnity; and the time which was chosen coincided with the feast of tabernacles, which ensured the presence of multitudes of the most zealous and pious Israelites, along with the elders and chief persons.

x 2 Sam. vii. 13. 1.
Chr. xvii. 13. xxii.
10, 11. xxviii. 6.
11, 20. 2 Chr. vi.
2.

y Ps. cxxxii. 13,
14. John iv. 21—
23. Acts vi. 14.
Heb. vii. 5. 13. ix.
11, 12.

z 55, 56. Josh. xxii.
6. 2 Sam. vi. 18.
1 Chr. xvi. 2. 2

Chr. vi. 3. xxx.
18—20. Ps. cxviii.
26. Luke xxiv.
50, 51.

a Neh. viii. 7. Mat.
xxiii. 2.

b 1 Chr. xxix. 10.
20. 2 Chr. vi. 4.
xx. 26. Ps. ciii. 1,
2. cxv. 18. cxvii.
1, 2. Luke i. 68.

c 2 Sam. vii. 25, 28,
29. 1 Chr. xvii.
12. Is. i. 20. Luke
i. 70.

d Josh. xxi. 45.
xxiii. 15, 16. Ps.
cxxxviii. 2. Mat.
xxiv. 35. Luke i.
54, 55, 72.

e 2 Sam. vii. 6, 7. 2
Chr. vi. 5.

f 1 Chr. xvii. 5, 6.
Ps. cxxxii. 13.

g 29. Ex. xx. 24.
Dan. ix. 19.

h 1 Sam. xvii. 1. 2
Sam. vii. 8. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 4. Ps.
lxxviii. 70. lxxxix.
19, 20.

i 2 Sam. vii. 2, 3.
1 Chr. xvii. 1, 2.
xxii. 7. xxviii. 2.

k 2 Chr. vi. 7, 8. 2
Cor. viii. 12.

l v. 3—5. 2 Sam.
vii. 5, 12, 13. 1
Chr. xvii. 4, 11, 12. xxii. 8—10. xxviii. 6.

13 * I have surely built thee an house to dwell in, ^y a settled place for thee to abide in for ever.

14 And the king turned his face about, and ^z blessed all the congregation of Israel: and ^a all the congregation of Israel stood;

15 And he said, ^b Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, ^c which spake with his mouth unto David my father, and ^d hath with his hand fulfilled it, saying,

16 ^e Since the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt, ^f I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel to build an house, that ^g my name might be therein; but ^h I chose David to be over my people Israel.

17 And ⁱ it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the LORD God of Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto David my father, ^k Whereas it was in thine heart to build an house unto my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart:

19 Nevertheless ^l thou shalt not build the house; but thy son, that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.

20 And the LORD ^m hath performed ^{m 15.} his word that he spake; and I am risen up in the room of David my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built an house for the name of the LORD God of Israel.

21 And ⁿ I have set there a place for ^{n 5, 6.} the ark, wherein ^o is ^{o 9.} the covenant of the LORD, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

22 ^p And Solomon ^p stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and ^q spread forth his hands toward heaven;

23 And he said, ^r LORD God of Israel, ^r there is ^s no god like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, ^t who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants; that ^u walk before thee with all their heart;

24 Who hast kept with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him; ^x thou spakest also with thy mouth, p 2 Kings xi. 14.

xxiii. 3. 2 Chr.
vi. 12, 13.
q Ex. ix. 29. 33.
Ezra ix. 5. Job
xi. 12. Ps. xxviii.
2. lxxiii. 4. Is. i.
15. 1 Tim. ii. 8.
r Gen. xxxiii. 20.
Ex. iii. 15.

s Ex. xv. 11. 2 Sam.
vii. 22. Ps. xxxv.
10. lxxxvii. 8.
lxxxix. 8—9. Is.
xl. 18. 25. Jer. ix.
6. 16.

t Deu. vii. 9. Neh.
i. 5. Ps. lxxxix.
3—5. Dan. ix. 4.
Mic. vii. 18—20.
Luke i. 72.

u ii. 4. iii. 6. vi.
12. Gen. xvii. 1.
2 Kings xx. 3.
x 15. 2 Sam. vii.
12. 2 Chr. vi. 14.
15.

V. 10—14. All the priests and Levites attended the removal of the ark, and sang solemn praises upon the occasion, with the sound of trumpets and instruments of music. (2 Chron. v. 11—14.) But when the ark, as the symbol of God's presence, had taken possession of the temple, the cloud filled the whole of it, so that the priests could no longer continue in it. The thick darkness represented the comparative obscurity and terror of that dispensation; and the darkness which in this world rests upon all our inquiries into the things of God and of eternity. "God" indeed is Light, and with him is no darkness at all: but we sinners cannot approach or endure that light, except as seen in the person of Jesus Christ. Yet this thick darkness, whilst it terrified others, assured Solomon of the divine favour, and that this temple would be the residence of the ark, and the centre of the worship of Israel, for generations to come: and with these assurances he encouraged the people, he congratulated them on this renewed token of the Lord's former favours to Israel: and he pronounced a solemn and affectionate blessing on them.—Similar evidences of the Lord's gracious presence, and of his awful glory, had been vouchsafed, when the tabernacle was erected: and it is not easy to distinguish with accuracy between the cloud, and the glory of God which filled the house. It may, however, be observed, that at the close of Solomon's prayer, the fire burst forth from the cloud and consumed the sacrifices on the altar. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 15—21. In this introductory address, while Solomon adored and blessed God, with lively gratitude, for performing his promises; he also reminded the people of several particulars, which were well suited to affect their hearts, and prepare them to unite with understanding in the solemn services of that interesting occasion. The Lord had by Moses declared his purpose of selecting one place for his sanctuary, where he might "record his name," and meet and bless his worshippers: but hitherto no temple had been built, and the tabernacle and ark had been removed from one place to another. David, his chosen, was indeed accepted in his design of erecting a temple: yet he was not allowed to accomplish his purpose. But at length, according to the promise of God to him, his son had completed the temple, and had brought the ark into the most holy place. The tables of the law are called the covenant, because the covenant with Israel at Sinai was grounded on them. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 22. A scaffold had been prepared in the court of the temple: and on this, Solomon stood up to bless and instruct the people, and then he kneeled down upon it, to offer the following most copious and comprehensive prayer. To this reverential posture he also added the spreading forth of his hands towards heaven, as expressive of the fervour of his heart, and the largeness of his expectations, in this act of worship. (Marg. Ref.) The king of Israel never looked more glorious than on this occasion! Doubtless his personal performance of this service gave it a peculiar solemnity, and greatly affected the people: but he was also a type of Christ, who is at once our King and our Intercessor. It seems most probable, that he prayed from a full heart, without any precomposed form of words; but not without having seriously and fully considered what to pray for.

and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

25 Therefore now, LORD God of Israel, ^y keep with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him, saying, * there shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit on the throne of Israel: † so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me.

26 And now, ^z O God of Israel, ^a let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

27 But ^b will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold ^c the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded?

28 Yet ^d have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to ^e hearken unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee to-day:

V. 23, 24. Solomon, in opening his prayer, addressed the Lord, with reference to his essential perfections, and his general relations to his rational creatures; and, as the God of Israel, the sole object of their worship, the author of their peculiar mercies, a God in covenant with them, and the eternal Portion of his believing obedient people. Other nations had their imagined deities, whom they worshipped and confided in; but they were not like the God of Israel, who had evidently performed all his covenant-engagements to his servants, that walked before him with all their heart: especially in his recent dealings with David and his family.

V. 25, 26. As the Lord had thus far performed his promises to David, in placing his son on his throne, and in enabling him to build him a house; Solomon took occasion to plead for the accomplishment of those other promises, respecting the perpetuity of the succession in his posterity: but as this was conditional, his petition implied a prayer that they might be directed and inclined to walk before God, as David had done, in such a manner as might ensure that event.

V. 27. Solomon was deeply sensible, and he would have the people seriously consider, that the most magnificent temple was no meet habitation for the infinite God. The ark might abide in it, and the Lord might thence display his gracious presence with his worshippers, which, contrasting his majesty, purity, and justice, with their meanness, guilt, and pollution, was a condescension that could not be sufficiently admired: but "the heaven of heavens," the glorious mansion of angels and archangels, could not contain or circumscribe, his essential presence.

V. 28—30. Though the Lord was no more essentially present in the temple than elsewhere; and though the full 29 That ^f thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, ^g My name shall be there; that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make ^h toward this place.

30 And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, ⁱ when they shall pray ^j toward this place: and hear thou in heaven ^k thy dwelling place; and when thou hearest, ^l forgive.

31 ¶ If any man ^m trespass against his neighbour, and ⁿ an oath be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and ^o the oath come before thine altar in this house:

32 Then ^p hear thou in heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, ^q condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and ^r justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

displays of his glory were made in heaven, his throne and his dwelling-place: yet he had recorded his name in the temple; and it was a peculiar type of the human nature of Christ, in whom the divine perfections are revealed, as harmonizing in the salvation of believers, in whom, "God is reconciling the world to himself," dwelling among men, and accepting the services and answering the prayers of all true believers. The sacrifices continually offered, the incense burnt, and the whole service performed at the temple, were typical of the Redeemer's offices, oblation, and intercession: the temple therefore must be continually adverted to in all their prayers. Accordingly the Israelites, when far distant from Jerusalem, were accustomed to turn their faces towards it, as expressive of their dependence on the services there performed by the priests, and of their communion with the worshippers of JEHOVAH: and when they were near it, they resorted thither to present their supplications. Thus Solomon besought God, that in answer to the prayer which he that day offered, he would in all future ages regard the temple with his peculiar favour, and hear the prayers of all who should present them towards it, wheresoever they were, or whatever were their distresses. Under one word "forgive," he comprised all that he could ask in behalf of his people: for as all misery springs from sin; forgiveness of sin must prepare the way for the removal of every evil, and the communication of every good; and without it, no deliverance can eventually prove a blessing.

V. 31, 32. In case a man were accused of defrauding or robbing his neighbour; and decisive evidence should be wanting to prove whether he were, or were not guilty; and an appeal was made by oath, at, or towards the temple, to the heart-searching God, that he was innocent; or in any y 2 Sam. vii.

27. 29. 1 Chr.

xvii. 23—27.

Luke i. 68—70.

* Heb. There shall not be cut off

unto thee a man.

† From my sight.

‡ Heb. only if.

ii. 4. 1 Chr.

xxviii. 9. 2 Chr.

vi. 16, 17.

z Ex. xxiv. 10.

1 Sam. i. 17. Ps.

xli. 13. Is. xli.

17. xlv. 3.

a 2 Sam. vii. 25—

29. 2 Chr. i. 9.

Jer. xi. 5. Ez.

xxxvi. 36, 37.

b 2 Chr. vi. 13. Is.

lxvi. 1. Acts vii.

48, 49. xvii. 24.

c Deut. x. 14

2 Chr. ii. 6. Ps.

cxlii. 4. Jer.

xxiii. 24. 2 Cor.

xii. 2.

d 2 Chr. vi. 19. Ps.

cxli. 2. Dan. ix.

17—19. Luke

xxiii. 1. 7

e Ps. iv. 1. v. 1.

lxxxvi. 3. 6, 7.

lxxxviii. 1, 2.

f 2 Kings xix. 16.

2 Chr. vi. 20. 40.

xvi. 9. Neh. i. 6.

Ps. xxxiv. 15.

Dan. ix. 18.

g Ex. xx. 24. Deu.

xli. 11. xvi. 2. 6.

xxvi. 2. John xiv.

13, 14.

† Or, in this place

Dan. vi. 10.

h 2 Chr. xx. 8, 9

Neh. i. 5, 6.

i Or, in this place.

l 43. 2 Chr. vi. 21.

Ps. cxlii. 1. Ec.

v. 2. Is. lvii. 15.

Mat. vi. 9.

k Ps. cxxx. 3, 4.

Dan. ix. 19.

Mat. vi. 12.

l 2 Chr. vi. 22, 23.

|| Heb. he require an oath of him.

Ex. xxii. 8—11.

Lev. v. 1. Prov.

xxx. 9.

m Num. v. 16—

22

n 30. 43.

o Num. v. 27. Deu.

xxv. 1. Prov. i.

31. Is. iii. 10, 11.

Ez. xviii. 13, 30.

Rom. ii. 6—10.

p Ex. xxiii. 7.

Prov. xvii. 15.

Ez. xviii. 20.

33 ¶ When thy people Israel be smitten down before the enemy, ^a because they have sinned against thee, and shall ^s turn again to thee, and confess thy name, and ^t pray, and make supplication unto thee ^{*} in this house :

34 Then hear thou in heaven, and ^u forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land ^x which thou gavest unto their fathers.

35 ¶ When ^y heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee ; ^z if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and ^a turn from their sin, when thou afflictest them :

36 Then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, that ^b thou teach them ^c the good way wherein they should walk, and ^d give rain upon thy land which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.

37 ¶ If there be ^e in the land famine, ^f Chr. vi. 26, 27. Is. xxx. 21. Jer. vi. 16. xlii. 3. Matt. xxii. 16. —d xviii. 1. 27—40. 45. Ps. lxxviii. 9. Jer. xiv. 22. Jam. v. 17, 18. —e Lev. xxvi. 16 25, 26. Deut. xxviii. 21, 22. 25, 38—42. 52—61. 2 Kings vi. 25—29. 1 Chr. xxi. 12. 2 Chr. vi. 28—31. xx. 9. Ps. cv. 34, 35. Jer. xxxii. 2. xxxix. 1—3. Ez. xiv. 21. Joel i. 4—7. ii. 25, 26.

if there be pestilence, blasting, mildew, locust, or if there be caterpillar; if their enemy besiege them in the land of their ^{*} cities, whatsoever plague, whatsoever sickness there be ;

38 What ^t prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man ^s the plague of his own heart, and ^b spread forth his hands toward this house :

39 Then ⁱ hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and do, and ^k give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest ; (for ⁱ thou, even thou only knowest the hearts of all the children of men ;)

40 That they may ^m fear thee all the days that they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

41 Moreover, concerning ⁿ a stranger that is not of thy people Israel, but ^o cometh out of a far country for thy name's sake ;

42 (For ^p they shall hear of thy ^q great

* Or jurisdiction. f 2 Chr. xx 5—13.
Ps. i. 15. xci. 15.
Is. xxxvii. 4. 15
—21. Joel ii. 17.
Amos. vii. 1—6.
2 Chr. vi. 29.
Job vii. 11. Ps.
xxxii. 3, 4. xlii.
6. 9. 11. lxxiii.
21, 22. cxlii. 3—
5 Prov. xiv. 10.
Rom. vii. 24.
Phil. iv. 6.
b 22. Is. i. 15.
i 32.
k Ps. xviii. 20—26 xxviii. 4. Jer.
xvii. 10. xxxii.
19. Ez. xlviii. 30.
Rev. xlii. 12.
l 1 Sam. xvi. 7.
1 Chr. xviii. 9.
2 Chr. vi. 30. Ps.
xi. 4, 5. John ii.
25. xxi. 17. Acts
i. 24. Heb. iv.
13. Rev. ii. 23.
m Gen. xxii. 12.
Ex. xx. 20. Deu.
vi. 2. 13. 1 Sam.
xii. 24. Ps. cxxx.
4. Jer. xxxii. 39,
40. Hos. iii. 5.
Heb. xii. 28, 29.
n x. 1, 2. Ruth i.
16. ii. 11. 2 Chr.
vi. 32. Is. lvi. 3—
6. 7. Matt. viii.
5. 10. 11. xv. 22
—23. Luke xvii.
18. John xli. 20.
Acts x. 1—4.
o Ex. xviii. 8, 12.
2 Kings v. 1. 7.
16, 17. Is. lx. 1
—10. Matt. ii. 1.
xii. 42.
p Ex. xv. 14, 15.
Deut. iv. 6.
Josh. ii. 10, 11.
q Ex. iii. 13—16. xxxiv 5—7. Josh. vii. 9. Ps. lxxxvi. 8, 9. Ez. xx. 9.

other case in which this solemn appeal was made; Solomon prayed that the Lord would interpose, in some evident manner, to discover and punish the guilty, and to clear up the character, and recompense the integrity, of the innocent.

V. 33, 34. The Israelites would not be smitten down, or taken prisoners, by their enemies, except they sinned against God: and, notwithstanding their temple, altar, and sacrifices, they could not expect deliverance, or restoration from captivity or bondage, without repentance and turning to the Lord; without confessing their relations and obligations to him, and their sins against him; and without offering their supplications towards the temple, to him who dwelt upon a mercy-seat between the cherubim.

V. 36. That thou, &c. In addition to all the teaching of the written word, and the instructions of the priests, Levites, and prophets, Solomon entreated the Lord himself to teach the people to profit by these advantages, and by their chastisements: for this would make way for their forgiveness, and consequently for returning plenty and prosperity.—The same words are rendered in Chronicles, “when thou hast taught them the good way in which they should walk.”—The divine teaching particularly respects this good way, in which we ought to walk, and not mere notions and speculations.

V. 38. The plague, &c. Or, “his own sore, and his own grief :” (2 Chron. vi. 29.) The former petitions particularly respected public judgments and distresses; but this passage related to private afflictions and trials, and whatever should fill the heart and conscience of any individual with anguish and dismay.—This interpretation doubtless includes, though it is not confined to, that meaning which is very frequently given to the expression, “the plague of his own heart ;” namely, the prevalence of indwelling sin, which as a plague, or pestilential disease, is the grief and sore of every true believer; and, in connexion with the guilt that in consequence accumulates upon his conscience, brings him, day by day, to offer his fervent prayers and supplications before the mercy-seat of a forgiving God.

V. 39. The Lord, “who only knoweth the hearts of the children of men,” could exactly distinguish between the hypocrite, and the upright penitent believer: and would deal with each according to the covenant of mercy made with sinners through the promised Saviour, forgiving and doing all good to the one, and leaving the other under condemnation.

V. 40. That, &c. As “there is no man that sinneth not,” so no man could worship a holy God, “if there were not forgiveness with him.” Unless this was clearly revealed, that reverential fear, which unites with hope, and leads men to repent and seek the Lord, would be extinguished, when sinners became acquainted with their own character and state, and with his perfections and holy laws; and only that slavish fear would remain, which unites with enmity and despair, and drives men further and further from God and his worship.—It is very instructive to compare the several parts of this prayer with the preceding prophecies, and the subsequent history; which may in good measure be done by consulting the marginal references.

r Ex. iii. 19, 20. ix. 15, 16. xlii. 14. Deut. iii. 24. xi. 2, 3. 2 Kings xvii. 36. Ps. lxxxix. 13. cxxxvi. 12. Is. lxlii. 12. Jer. xxxi. 11. xxxii. 17. s Is. lxxv. 20. Zech. xiv. 16. Acts. viii. 27. t 1 Sam. xvii. 46. 2 Kings xix. 19. 2 Chr. vi. 33. Ps. xxii. 27. lxxvii. 2. lxxii. 10. lxxxvii. 9. Is. xi. 9. Rev. xi. 15. u Ps. cii. 15. * Heb. thy name is called upon this house.

x Deut. xx. 1-4. xxxi. 3-6. Josh. 1.2-5. 2 Chr. vi. 34. y Num. xxxi. 1. &c. Josh. vi. 2. 5. viii. 1, 2. Judg. i. 1, 2. iv. 6. vi. 14. 1 Sam. xv. 3. 18. xxx. 8. 2 Sam. v. 19. 23. 2 Chr. xiv. 9-12. xviii. 31. xx. 6-13. xxxii. 20. a Ps. lxxviii. 67-69. cxxxii. 13, 14. Dan. ix. 17-19. † Or, right. Gen. xviii. 25. Ps. ix. 4. Jer. v. 28. b 2 Chr. vi. 36. Job xiv. 4. xv. 14-16. Ps. xix. 12. cxxx. 3. cxliii. 2. Prov. xx. 9. Ec. vii. 20. Is. lii. 6. lxxiv. 6. Rom. iii. 19. Gal. iii. 22. Jam. iii. 2. 1 John i. 8-10. c Lev. xxvi. 24-41. Deut. iv. 26, 27. xxviii. 36. 64-68. xxxix. 28. 2 Kings xvii. 6. 18. 23. xxv. 21. Dan. ix. 7-14. Luke xxi. 24. d Lev. xxvi. 40-45. Deut. iv. 29-31. xxx. 1. 2 Chr. vi. 37. xxxlii. 12, 13. Ez. xvi. 61. 63. xviii. 28. Hag. i. 7. Luke xv. 17.

† Heb. bring back to their heart — e Ezra ix. 6, 7. Neh. i. 6. ix. 28-30. Ps. cvi. Is. lxxiv. 6-12. Dan. ix. 5-11. Zech. xii. 10. — f Job xxxiii. 27, 28. Jer. xxxi. 18-20. Luke xv. 18.

name, and of ^r thy strong hand, and of thy stretched-out arm;) ^s when he shall come and pray toward this house:

43 Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for; ^t that all people of the earth may know thy name, to ^u fear thee, as do thy people Israel; and that they may know that ^{*} this house, which I have builded, is called by thy name.

44 ¶ If thy people ^x go out to battle against their enemy, ^y withersoever thou shalt send them, and ^z shall pray unto the LORD toward ^a the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name:

45 Then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their [†] cause.

46 ¶ If they sin against thee, (for ^b there is no man that sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives ^c unto the land of the enemy, far or near;

47 Yet ^d if they shall [‡] bethink themselves in the land whither they were carried captives, and repent, and make supplication unto thee in the land of them that carried them captives, ^e saying, We have sinned, and have ^f done perversely, we have committed wickedness:

—† Heb. bring back to their heart — e Ezra ix. 6, 7. Neh. i. 6. ix. 28-30. Ps. cvi. Is. lxxiv. 6-12. Dan. ix. 5-11. Zech. xii. 10. — f Job xxxiii. 27, 28. Jer. xxxi. 18-20. Luke xv. 18.

48 And so ^g return unto thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies which led them away captive, and ^h pray unto thee toward their land which thou gavest unto their fathers, ⁱ the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name:

49 Then hear thou their prayer and their supplication in heaven thy dwelling-place, and maintain their [‡] cause,

50 And forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee, and ^k give them compassion before them who carried them captive, that they may have compassion on them:

51 For they be ^l thy people, and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest forth out of Egypt, from the midst of ^m the furnace of iron:

52 That ⁿ thine eyes may be open unto the supplication of thy servant, and unto the supplication of thy people Israel, to hearken unto them ^o in all that they call for unto thee.

53 For thou didst ^p separate them from among all the people of the earth, to be ^q thine inheritance, ^r as thou spakest by the hand of Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O LORD God.

54 ¶ And it was so, that, when Solomon had made an end of praying all this g Deut. xxx. 2-6. Judg. x. 15. 16. 1 Sam. vii. 3, 4. Neh. i. 9. Is. lv. 6. 7. Jer. xxxix. 12-14. Dan. ix. 13. h Dan. vi. 10. i 44.

‡ Or, right. 45. 2 Kings xix. 19. Zech. i. 15, 16. k 2 Chr. xxx. 9. Ezra vii. 6. Neh. ii. 8. Ps. cvi. 46. Prov. xvi. 7. Dan. i. 9, 10. Acts vii. 10. l Ex. xxxiii. 11, 12. Deut. ix. 26-29. 2 Chr. vi. 39. Neh. i. 10. Is. lii. 16-18. lxxiv. 9. m Deut. iv. 20. Jer. xi. 4. n 29. 2 Chr. vi. 40.

o Ps. lxxxvi. 5. cxlv. 18. p Ex. xix. 5, 6. xxxiii. 16. Num. xxxiii. 9. Deut. iv. 34. vii. 6-8. xiv. 2. xxxii. 13. 2 Cor. vi. 14-18. Tit. ii. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 9. q Deut. xxxii. 9. Jer. x. 16. Eph. i. 18. r Deut. xxxiii. 1-3. 26-29.

o Ps. lxxxvi. 5. cxlv. 18.

p Ex. xix. 5, 6. xxxiii. 16. Num. xxxiii. 9. Deut. iv. 34. vii. 6-8. xiv. 2. xxxii. 13. 2 Cor. vi. 14-18. Tit. ii. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 9.

q Deut. xxxii. 9. Jer. x. 16. Eph. i. 18. r Deut. xxxiii. 1-3. 26-29.

V. 41-43. Solomon was persuaded that the heathen nations would hear of the name, perfections, and wonderful works of ГЕHOBAH; and would come and worship him at this temple, as the God of Israel, who dwelt among his people by the ark of his strength, and was propitious to them through the sacrifices there offered. He therefore interceded for them also, that they might be accepted, and obtain the same blessings with the native Israelites: and he desired and hoped, that all the nations of the earth might know, fear, and worship the God of Israel. Accordingly we are told, that there was a court built, called the court of the Gentiles, which was appropriated to the use of those who came from other nations to worship the God of Israel, but who were not circumcised, and did not observe the ceremonial law. (Marg. Ref.)—The prejudices of the Jews, in the days of Christ, against the admission of the Gentiles into the church, arose from ignorance of the Scriptures, connected with national prejudices, pharisaical pride, and bigotry; which being early imbibed, were not easily removed even from true believers.

V. 44. Thou shalt, &c. That is, in any just and necessary war; for God did not send the Israelites, when they were actuated by selfishness, to engage in oppressive and unrighteous wars; neither could they reasonably expect his assistance in them.

V. 46-53. This part of Solomon's intercession was evidently answered in the restoration of the Jews after the Babylonish captivity. Though the temple and city lay in ruins; yet when they bethought themselves, and repented, and prayed in the land of Chaldea, towards the land of Israel; the Lord heard, forgave, and restored them to their own land. But it will hereafter receive another more remarkable answer, when the Jews shall be gathered from their present dispersion, become a part of the Christian church, and probably be reinstated in their own country.—All Solomon's arguments, in this plea for his people, were deduced from the Lord's choice of them, his separation of them from other nations to be his inheritance, and the favours he had already conferred upon them.—It appears from Chronicles, that Solomon concluded with a passage taken from one of the Psalms. (Marg. Ref.) prayer and supplication unto the LORD, he arose from before the altar of the LORD, from * kneeling on his knees^t with his hands spread up to heaven.

55 And he stood, and ^u blessed all the congregation of Israel with a loud voice, saying,

56 * Blessed be the LORD, that ^v hath given rest unto his people Israel, according to all that he promised: * there hath not * failed one word of all his good promise, which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant.

57 ^a The LORD our God be with us, as he was with our fathers: let him not leave us, nor forsake us:

58 That he may ^b incline our hearts unto him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, ^c which he commanded our fathers.

59 And let these my words, wherewith I have made supplication before the LORD, be ^d nigh unto the LORD our God day and night, that he maintain the cause of his servant, and the cause of his people Israel ^e at all times, as the matter shall require;

60 ^e That all the people of the earth may know that ^f the LORD is God, and that there is none else.

61 Let your heart therefore be ^g perfect with the LORD our God, to walk in his statutes, and to keep his commandments, as at this day.

62 ^h And ⁱ the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the LORD.

63 And Solomon offered ^j a sacrifice of peace-offerings, which he offered unto the LORD, two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the children of Israel dedicated the house of the LORD.

64 The same day did the king ^k hallow the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings: because ^l the brazen altar that was before the LORD was too little to receive the burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings.

65 And at that time Solomon ^m held a feast, and all Israel with him, ⁿ a great congregation, ^o from the entering in of Hamath unto ^p the river of Egypt, before the LORD our God, ^q seven days and seven days, even fourteen days.

66 On ^r the eighth day he sent the people away: and they ^s blessed the king, and went unto their tents, ^t joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the LORD had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

^e Ps. xcv. 9. Luke xxii. 41. 45. Acts xxi. 5. ^t 22. 2 Chr. vi. 12, 13. ^u 14. Num. vi. 23. —26. 2 Sam. vi. 18. 1 Chr. xvi. 2.

^v 15. ^y Chr. xxi. 44. 2 Chr. xiv. 6. Heb. iv. 3—9. ^z Deut. xii. 10—12. Josh. xxi. 45. xxiii. 14, 15. Luke i. 54, 55. 72, 73. xxi. 33. * Heb. fallen.

^a Deut. xxxi. 6. ^g Josh. i. 5. 1. Chr. xxviii. 20. 2 Chr. xxxii. 7. ^h Ps. xlvii. 11. Is. viii. 10. xli. 10. Matt. i. 23. xxviii. 20. Rom. viii. 31. Heb. xiii. 5. ^b Ps. cx. 3. cxix. 36. Cant. i. 4. Jer. xxxi. 33. Ez. xxxvi. 26. 27. Phil. ii. 13. Heb. xiii. 21. ^c Deut. iv. 1. vi. 1.

^d Ps. cii. 1, 2. cxlii. 2. John xvii. 9. 20—24. ^e 1 John ii. 2. ^f Heb. the thing of a day in his day. Luke xi. 3. ^g 43. Josh. iv. 24. 1 Sam. xvii. 46. ^h 2 Kings xix. 19. ⁱ xviii. 39. Deut. iv. 35. 39. Is. xlv. 6. 8. 24. xlv. 22. Jer. x. 10—12. ^j xi. 4. xv. 3. 14. Gen. xvii. 1. 2 Kings xx. 3. ^k 1 Chr. xxviii. 9. Job i. 1. 8. Ps. xxxvii. 37. 2 Cor. vii. 1. Phil. iii. 12—16.

^h 2 Sam. vi. 17—19. 2 Chr. vii. 4—7.

ⁱ 1 Chr. xxix. 21. 2 Chr. xv. 11. xxix. 32—36. xxx. 24. xxxv. 7—9. Ezra vi. 16, 17. Ez. xlv. 17. Mic. vi. 7.

^k 2 Chr. vii. 7.

^l 2 Chr. iv. 1.

^m 2. Lev. xxiii. 34—43. 2 Chr. vii. 9. ⁿ 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^o 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^p 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^q 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^r 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^s 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^t 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^u 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^v 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^w 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^x 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^y 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^z 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{aa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ab} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ac} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ad} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ae} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{af} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ag} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ah} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ai} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{aj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ak} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{al} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{am} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{an} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ao} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ap} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{aq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ar} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{as} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{at} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{au} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{av} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{aw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ax} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ay} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{az} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ba} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{be} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{br} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{by} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{bz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ca} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ce} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ch} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ci} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ck} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{co} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ct} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{cz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{da} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{db} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{de} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{df} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{di} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{do} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ds} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{du} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{dz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ea} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ec} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ed} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ee} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ef} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ei} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ej} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ek} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{el} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{em} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{en} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ep} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{er} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{es} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{et} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{eu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ev} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ew} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ex} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ey} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ez} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fe} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ff} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ft} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{fz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ga} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ge} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{go} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ha} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{he} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ho} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ht} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{hz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ia} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ib} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ic} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{id} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ie} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{if} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ig} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ih} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ⁱⁱ 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ij} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ik} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{il} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{im} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ⁱⁿ 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{io} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ip} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ir} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{is} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{it} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ix} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{iz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ja} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{je} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{js} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ju} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{gy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{jz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ka} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ke} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ki} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{km} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ko} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ks} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ku} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ky} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{kz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{la} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ld} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{le} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{li} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ll} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ln} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ls} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ly} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{lz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ma} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{md} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{me} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ml} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ms} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{my} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{mz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{na} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. nd 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ne} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ng} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ⁿⁱ 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ⁿⁿ 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{no} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{np} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ns} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ny} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{nz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ob} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{od} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oe} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{of} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{og} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ok} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ol} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{om} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{on} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{op} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{or} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{os} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ot} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ou} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ov} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ow} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ox} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{oz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pe} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ph} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{po} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ps} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{px} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{py} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{pz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qe} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ql} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{qz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ra} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. rd 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{re} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ri} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ro} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ru} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ry} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{rz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{se} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{si} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. sm 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{so} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ss} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. st 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{su} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{sz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ta} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{td} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{te} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. th 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ti} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. tm 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{to} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ts} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ty} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{tz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ua} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ub} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ud} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ue} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ug} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ui} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ul} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{um} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{un} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{up} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ur} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{us} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ut} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ux} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{uz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{va} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vd} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{ve} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vf} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vg} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vh} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vi} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vj} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vk} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vl} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vm} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vn} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vo} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vp} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vq} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vr} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vs} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vt} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vu} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vv} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vw} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vx} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vy} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{vz} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{wa} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{wb} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{wc} 2 Chr. xxx. 13. ^{wd}

CHAP. IX.

God appears again to Solomon, and makes a covenant with him, 1—9. Transactions between Solomon and Hiram, 10—14. Solomon builds divers cities, 15—19. He subjects the remnant of the Canaanites to bond-service, and employs the Israelites in more honourable offices, 20—23. Pharaoh's daughter removes to her house, 24. Solomon sacrifices thrice every year, 25. His navy fetches gold from Ophir, 26—28.

AND^a it came to pass, when Solomon^{a 2 Chr. vii. 11.} had finished the building of the^{b vii. 1. 2 Chr. viii. 1—6. Ec. ii. 4.} house of the LORD, and the king's house, ceived in a single breast, may be completed with the concurrence, and to the benefit of thousands, and perhaps millions! and what a blessed improvement is this of influence, affluence, power, and wisdom! Numbers indeed will assist on such occasions, to please their superiors, or to acquire reputation, who are not cordially attached to the cause, and who will not be profited by it themselves; yet, even they may forward such measures as conduce to the good of others. True wisdom is displayed as much in the well-timing, as in the orderly conducting, of important undertakings; and in obtaining the voluntary concurrence of others, where folly would deem it sufficient to employ superior force. Without the gracious presence of the Lord, every religious observance is an empty form: the written word, the preaching of the gospel, prayer, baptism, the Lord's supper, orthodox creeds, professions, speculations, and external order, form but a well-proportioned lifeless carcass; a temple without the ark, and without the glory; unless we in these things hold communion with a reconciled God upon a mercy-seat, through the person and work of the Redeemer, and by the influences of his sanctifying Spirit. This is the life and soul of true godliness, which infuses efficacy into every truth, ordinance, or duty; and in all things it should be chiefly attended to. For, as far as this is attained, we sinners upon earth hold fellowship with the church above; and, with all the company of angels and archangels, we worship the name of God our Saviour, with acceptance, and to his glory.

V. 11—21.

When we wait upon the Lord in the ways of his appointment, we shall surely receive tokens of his special favour; yet, his light is inaccessible to us; and the cloud with which he veils his insufferable brightness, in his discoveries of himself to us, sometimes obstructs our view of his love, and causes us to tremble for fear of his judgments. The dark dispensations of Providence, the awful declarations of God's word, the apprehensions of his purity and justice, and the consciousness of guilt and pollution, often induce the awakened sinner to say, "Depart from me, for 'I am a sinful man, O Lord,'" when such views should quicken him in fleeing for refuge to the hope of the gospel. On these occasions, they who are stronger in faith, and more advanced in knowledge and experience, should encourage their weaker brethren, and explain such things to them as needlessly alarm them: for the established believer can educe comfort and motives for thankful obedience, from that very darkness which dismays and confounds the inexperienced Christian. However, blessed be God, in the person of our Emmanuel, and in his complete redemption, the thick darkness in which JEHOVAH dwells, is greatly dispelled; the dark cloud is become bright to us; (Matt. xvii. 5:) and though compared with the beatific vision, we see through a glass darkly; yet, following him, who is "the Light of the world," "we shall not abide in darkness, but shall have the light of life." Yet in the best frames of the most eminent believers, sacred joy, gratitude, and love will be mixed with deep humility and reverential fear; and conscious guilt and pollution will mingle self-abhorrence and godly sorrow with their most fervent praises and adorations. We should all use our utmost exertion for the honour of God: yet the most zealous believer will be conscious, that he has lost opportunities of service, through infirmity, temptation, and encumbrances. But when the Lord is not pleased to employ us in any work, which we sincerely design and vigorously attempt, he will notice and recompense the intention, even as much as if it had been accomplished: let us then persevere in devising, and endeavouring to execute, plans of usefulness, though we be often baffled and unsuccessful; for it shall at last be declared, that we "did well that it was in our heart:" and let sinners remember, that they also are accountable to God, and will be punished for all the wickedness which was conceived in their hearts, though they were restrained in Providence, left destitute of the power, or deterred by the fear of man; and therefore did not actually commit it.—When the Lord's time arrives for any work to be done, all opposition will die away, all difficulties vanish, and all things concur in forwarding its completion: and whatever good work we have been employed in, and enabled to effect, we should consider it as a performance of his promises, and as an occasion afforded of celebrating his praises, to whom alone all the glory belongs.

V. 22—30.

The service of God is the highest honour of the greatest of men; and to lead others in prayer and praise, to animate and assist them in worshipping the Lord, forms the noblest employment on earth, and most resembles that of the angels in heaven. But indeed, the most exalted adorations of the noblest creatures are beneath the notice of his infinite majesty, and only accepted through his unspeakable condescension! With what internal awe and external indications of reverence, should we, worthless sinners, prostrate ourselves before his glorious and holy majesty! how should we approach his mercy-seat with admiring, adoring gratitude, and humble expectation of his invaluable and much needed benefits! and how should faith and love exalt our c Ec. ii. 10.

and ^c all Solomon's desire which he was pleased to do, d iii. 5. xi. 9.

2 Chr. xi. 12.
e 2 Kings xx. 5.
Ps x. 17. lxxvi. 19.
cxvi. 1. Dan. ix.
23. John xi. 42.
Acts x. 31.

2 That the LORD appeared to Solomon the second time, ^e as he had appeared unto him at Gibeon.

3 And the LORD said unto him, ^e I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, that thou hast made before me: ^f I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, ^e to put my name there for ever: and ^h mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually.

f viii. 10. 11. Ex.
xx. 11. Num. xvi.
33. Mat. vi. 9.
g viii. 29. Deu. xii.
5. 11. 21. xvi. 11.
h Deut. xi. 12. 2
Chr. vi. 40. vii.
15, 16 Ps. cxxxii.
13, 14.

souls above all external objects, and raise them to heaven, his dwelling place, where He displays his glory, who filleth immensity, and inhabiteth eternity!—But behold! he dwelleth in human nature, as in his temple: there sinners may see his glory and live: and when we pray, directing our faith towards that sacred residence of the Deity, he will assuredly hear, and forgive our sins.

V. 31—45.

It is a debt we owe to our brethren, neighbours, friends, and strangers, yea, to our enemies, to intercede for them as their cases may require. Having therefore such a multiplicity of persons, cases, and wants to spread before the Lord, our hearts should frequently be enlarged to pray copiously, as well as fervently: and we shall not be condemned for long prayers, if they be not formal, and rendered tedious by vain unmeaning repetitions.—It is also a comfort to the believer to reflect, how many prayers of parents, ministers, and pious friends, are laid up before God on his behalf; and how many are praying for him in one place or other. All these shall, in due time, be answered in blessings unnumbered: nay, even whole nations, through successive generations, have reaped the benefits of the fervent supplications of a single true believer. Such intercessors form the unseen strength and bulwark of kingdoms; may the Lord increase their numbers, and may we seek to be found among them!—Yet the prayers of all the subjects would be unavailing, did not the King, our Prince of Peace, the builder of the Spiritual Temple, intercede for them. His pleading is always prevalent, and gives efficacy to all the rest: yet neither the prayers of godly friends, nor even the Saviour's intercession, will benefit those who are never brought to pray earnestly for themselves. For he only intercedes for those who eventually are led to “believe in his name,” and “who come to God by him:” and the prayers of his people, for such as continue impatient and unbelieving, return into their own bosom.

V. 46—66.

Alas! we are all sinners; and sin is the cause of all calamities, public and personal; and, unless forsaken and forgiven, it must terminate in final misery. But when the vilest transgressor bethinks himself, and examines his heart and life; when he is humbled before God, and penitently confesses that he hath sinned, hath done perversely, and committed wickedness; when he returns to the Lord with his whole heart, and prays unto him, in the Saviour's name: then he hath begun to receive the benefit of his intercession, and the Father will hear in heaven his supplication, and maintain his cause. Then, whatever be his grief, his burden, and terror, the guilt of his conscience, the depravity of his heart, the force of temptation, or the pressure of affliction, he will bring it, and spread it in secret before a heart-searching and merciful God: thus he will obtain pardon and peace, and learn to love and fear the Lord all his days. In this manner the Israel of God is established and sanctified, and the backslider is recovered and healed; the stranger is brought nigh, and the mourner comforted; the name of God is glorified, and numbers are added to the church of such as shall be saved. Often did offending Israel in this way prove the mercy of God, when they sought him under their distresses; and there failed not one good word of all that he had promised them. But at length they wearied out his patience, and all his threatenings were accomplished: yet even in their present dispersion, they will at length bethink themselves, and turn to God, as dwelling in his true Temple, and then they shall be numbered amongst his people. O may they speedily be restored, that their conversion may be as life from the dead to all the Gentile nations, that all the people of the “earth” may know, and worship our God and Saviour! “May the Lord our God be again with them, as he was with their fathers, and incline their hearts unto him to walk in all his ways!”—By the example of Israel, other nations should be warned and instructed: no war should be engaged in, which cannot be conducted in a spirit of faith and prayer: princes and nobles should set the example in the worship of God, and act accordingly: public calamities should excite to national repentance, reformation, and prayer: and these things would best secure public peace and prosperity. The same should be the conduct of churches, families, and individuals.—May the Lord then incline our hearts unto him, that we may walk in all his ways, and keep his commandments and statutes: may we abound in his work, and stir up others to do the same: may we love the Lord, and do good to and pray for one another, and rejoice together for all the goodness, that the Lord hath done for us and for his people! Then shall we enjoy some of the days of heaven upon earth, and be continually preparing for that world, where the feast of holy love and joy will be unalloyed and eternal.

NOTES.

CHAP. IX. V. 1, 2. As Solomon did not finish his other buildings till above twelve years after the dedication of the temple; and as it is thought improbable that this gracious appearance of God to him was delayed so long, some expositors thus render the words of these verses, “And it was, that thus Solomon finished,” &c.—“And the LORD appeared,” &c.—The encouragement given Solomon while building the temple, (vi. 11—13.) was either sent by a prophet, or given in an answer by the high-priest: for this was only the second appearance of God to him.

i iii. 14. viii. 25.
xi. 4. 6. 38. xiv.
8. xv. 5. Deut.
xxviii. 1. 2 Chr.
vii. 17. 18. Job
xxiii. 11. 12. Ps.
xv. 2. xxvi. 11.
Pro. xx. 7. Zech.
iii. 7. Luke i. 6.
1 Thes. iv. 1, 2.

4 And ¹ if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments :

5 Then I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel for ever, ² as I promised to David thy father, saying, There shall not fail thee a man upon the throne of Israel.

6 But ¹ if ye shall at all turn from following me, ye, or your children, and will not keep my commandments and my statutes which I have set before you, but ^m go and serve other gods, and worship them :

7 Then ^a will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them ; and ^o this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight ; and ^p Israel shall be a proverb and a by-word among all people :

8 And at this house, which is high, ^a every one that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss ; and they shall say, ^r Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and to this house ?

9 And they shall answer, ^s Because they forsook the LORD their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken hold upon other gods, and have worshipped them, and served them : therefore hath the LORD brought upon them all this evil.

10 ¶ And it came to pass ^t at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD, and the king's house ;

11 (Now ^u Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar-trees and fir-trees, and with gold, according to all his desire,) that then ^x king Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee.

12 And Hiram came out from Tyre to see the cities which Solomon had given him ; and ^{*} they pleased him not.

13 And he said, What cities are these which thou hast given me, ^y my brother ? And he called them the land of [†] Cabul unto this day.

14 And Hiram ^z sent to the king six-score talents of gold.

15 ¶ And this is ^a the reason of the levy which king Solomon raised ; for ^b to build the house of the LORD, and his own house, and ^c Millo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and ^d Hazor, and ^e Megiddo, and ^f Gezer.

^t vi. 37, 38. vii. 1.
² Chr. viii. 1.

^u v. 6—10. 2 Chr.
ii. 8—10. 16.

^x 2 Chr. xiii. 2.

^{*} Heb. were not right in his eyes.

^y v. 1, 2. Am. i.
9.

[†] Displeasing, or,
dirty. Josh. xix.
27.

^z 11. x. 10. 25.

^a 21. v. 13.
^b 10. vi. 38. vii. 1.
^c 24. xi. 27. Judg.
ix. 6. 20. 2 Sam.
v. 9. 2 Kings xii.
20.
^d Josh. xi. 1. xix.
36. Judg. iv. 2.
^e Josh. xvii. 11.
Judg. v. 19.
^f Josh. xvi. 10.
Judg. i. 29.

V. 3. I have, &c. The Lord graciously accepted the temple which Solomon had built and consecrated to him ; and set it apart as holy, for the residence of his ark, the centre of his worship, the place of his altar and sacrifices, and the visible pledge of his gracious presence with Israel, so long as they adhered to his ordinances and commandments. And he promised, “ that his eyes, and his heart “ should be there perpetually : ” that is, he would regard it with peculiar attention and favour, and delight in doing good to those, who worshipped at, or towards, that holy place : (2 Chron. vii. 12—16 ;) and had not the national sins of Israel forfeited the blessing, this would uninterruptedly have been the case until the coming of Christ.

V. 6. Solomon and his posterity, and Israel in that and future ages, were alike concerned in these promises and warnings. The obedience intended in all such declarations, is the unreserved, though imperfect obedience of a penitent believing sinner ; by which he evidences his cordial acceptance of unmerited mercies, and aims to glorify the God of his salvation.—The words “ if ye shall at all turn,” &c. certainly mean, “ if ye altogether turn,” &c. : and indeed not every sin, but national idolatry or apostacy, sanctioned by the example of the prince, or tolerated by him, was intended.

V. 7—9. These denunciations were remarkably fulfilled during the Babylonish captivity ; but the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, and the state of the Jews to this very day, is the most extraordinary accomplishment of them. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 11—14. Hiram had furnished Solomon with timber, not only for building the temple, but also for his own house and his many other magnificent works : and he likewise “ had sent him an hundred and twenty talents of “ gold ; ” for that seems to be the proper construction of the fourteenth verse. Solomon therefore was indebted to Hiram, beyond the corn and wine and oil agreed upon : and he gave him these cities as a compensation. They seem to have been small towns in the vicinity of Tyre, beyond the boundaries of the land as divided by Joshua, and lately taken from the ancient inhabitants. Probably they lay in ruins.—Hiram, however, was not satisfied with them, and “ called them the land of Cabul.”—Perhaps, being accustomed to magnificence, and to acquire wealth by commerce, he had no turn for cultivating land ; and finding the roads bad, the houses mean, and the country depopulated, he was not aware of the advantage which might be made of them. Solomon afterwards rebuilt them, and the Israelites dwelt in them : and probably Hiram was satisfied with some equivalent.

V. 15. The reason, &c. That is, the occasion there was for the levy, in order to accomplish so many great, and magnificent works : or the method, in which he raised it.

16 For Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up, and taken Gezer, and burnt it with fire, and slain the Canaanites that dwelt in the city, and given it for a present unto his daughter, Solomon's wife.

17 And Solomon built Gezer, and Beth-horon the nether,

18 And Baalath, and Tadmor in the wilderness in the land,

19 And all the cities of store that Solomon had, and cities for his chariots, and cities for his horsemen, and that which Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion.

20 And all the people, that were left of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel;

21 Their children that were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel also were not able utterly to destroy, upon those did Solomon levy a tribute of bond-service unto this day.

22 But of the children of Israel did Solomon make no bondmen: but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and his captains, and rulers of his chariots, and his horsemen.

23 These were the chief of the officers that were over Solomon's work, five hundred and fifty, which bare rule over the people that wrought in the work.

24 But Pharaoh's daughter came up out of the city of David unto her house which Solomon had built for her: then did he build Millo.

25 And a three times in a year did Solomon offer burnt-offerings and peace-offerings upon the altar which he built unto the Lord, and he burnt incense upon the altar that was before the Lord. So he finished the house.

26 ¶ And king Solomon made a navy of ships in Ezion-geber, which is beside Eloth, on the shore of the Red sea, in the land of Edom.

27 And Hiram sent in the navy his servants, shipmen that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon.

28 And they came to Ophir, and fetched from thence gold, four hundred and twenty talents, and brought it to king Solomon.

g 24. iii. 1.

h Josh. xvi. 3. h
xxi. 22. 2 Chr.
viii. 5, 6.
i Josh. xi. 44.
k 2 Chr. viii. 4.

l iv. 26-28. Ex.
i. 11.

* Heb. the desire of Solomon which he desired.
† Ec. ii. 10. vi. 9.

m 2 Chr. viii. 7.
8.
n Gen. xv. 19-21 Ex. xxxiii. 23.
28-33. xxxiv.
11. 12. Deut.
vii. 1-3.

o Judg. i. 21. 27.
-35. ii. 20-23.
iii. 1-4. Ps. cvi.
34-36.

p Josh. xv. 63.
xvii. 12. 16-18.

q 15. v. 13. Judg.
i. 28. 35.

r Gen. ix. 25. 26.

s Lev. xxv. 39.
† iv. 1-27. 2 Chr.
viii. 9, 10.

u v. 16. 2 Chr. ii.
18. viii. 10.

x iii. 1. vii. 8. 2
Chr. viii. 11.
y 2 Sam. v. 9.

z 15. xi. 27. 2
Chr. xxxii. 5.
a Ex. xxxii. 14-
17. xxxiv. 23.
Deut. xvi. 16. 2
Chr. viii. 12, 13.

b Ex. xxx. 7. 1
Chr. xxxii. 13. 2
Chr. xxxvi. 11.
21. xxxix. 11.

† Heb. upon it.
c 2 Chr. viii. 17.
d 2 Chr. viii. 16.
18.

e xxii. 48. Num.
xxxiii. 35. Deut.
xxii. 48.

f 2 Kings xiv. 22.
† Heb. lip.

g v. 6. 9. xxii.
49. 2 Chr. xx.
36, 37.

h x. 11. 1 Chr.
xxix. 4. Job xxxii.
24. xxxviii. 16.
Ps. xlv. 9. 1s.
xiii. 12.
i 2 Chr. viii. 13.

V. 16. The Canaanites kept possession of Gezer in the time of Joshua and the Judges; but the inhabitants paid tribute to Israel: and it seems that they had continued in this state till Pharaoh expelled them; when, and on what account, we know not.

V. 18. Tadmor in, &c. This is supposed to have been the same with the city of Palmyra, whose magnificent ruins, in the midst of widely extended plains of barren sands, attract the attention, and excite the admiration, of modern travellers and antiquarians. But the architecture of these ruins being Grecian, does not allow us to suppose that they are the remains of buildings erected by Solomon: for they must be of much later date.

V. 20-22. It is probable that these remains of the Amorites, &c. had submitted to Israel, and renounced idolatry; and so were spared on terms not dissimilar from those formerly granted to the Gibeonites.—They and their posterity seem to have been afterwards called Solomon's servants, and thus to have been distinguished from the Nethinims.—By employing them in these laborious services, Solomon was enabled to exempt the native Israelites from all but the most honourable employments. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 23. (Note, v. 13-18.)

V. 24. (Note, 2 Chron. viii. 11.)

V. 25. Solomon observed the three great festivals with peculiar solemnity: yet he sacrificed at other times also; and burned incense, not personally, but by the priests.

V. 26-28. Solomon, possessing Ezion-geber, a sea-port upon the Red sea; which communicates with the Indian ocean, united with Hiram, whose subjects were skilled in navigation and commerce; and traded to some part of the East Indies. This is perhaps as ancient an authentic account of the East-India trade, as any there is extant. Ophir is generally, and very probably, supposed to have been the island now called Ceylon.—Four hundred and fifty talents are mentioned in Chronicles: but perhaps thirty talents were divided among the officers and seamen; so that only four hundred and twenty were paid into the treasury.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-9.

The Lord is ever ready to hear the prayers which we make before him, and to manifest his acceptance of our upright services; and when we present ourselves, in body and soul, to be consecrated as the temples of the Holy Spirit to his glory, he will hallow and sanctify us by his grace, and render us meet to be a holy habitation for himself; though before we were altogether polluted. In and through, Jesus Christ, his eyes and his heart are always upon every true believer, to watch over him, and to rejoice in doing him good; yet it is only at intervals that he manifests his presence, and lifts up the light of his countenance upon him: but in heaven we shall always behold his face, and be filled with unalloyed, uninterrupted felicity.—After all the services we can perform, we stand upon the same terms with the Lord as before: nothing can purchase for

CHAP. X.

The queen of Sheba comes to see Solomon, 1, 2. He answers her questions; and she greatly admires his piety, wisdom, and magnificence, 3—9. Their presents to each other, 10—13. Solomon's yearly revenue, 14, 15. His golden targets and shields, 16, 17. His throne of ivory, 18—20. His rich vessels, and lucrative commerce; and the presents brought him by such as came to hear his wisdom, 21—25. His chariots and horsemen, 26. The plenty of silver and cedar in his time, 27. Horses, chariots, and linen-yarn brought out of Egypt, 28, 29.

AND ^a when the queen of ^b Sheba ^c heard of the fame of Solomon ^d concerning the name of the LORD, she came ^e to prove him with hard questions.

2 And she came to Jerusalem with ^f a very great train, with camels that bare ^g spices, and very much gold, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart.

^a 2 Chr. ix. 1.
^b Matt. xii. 42.
^c Luke xi. 31.
^d Gen. x. 7. 28.
^e xxv. 3. Job vi.
^f 19. Ps. lxxii. 10.
^g 15. Is. lx. 6. Jer.
vi. 20. Ez. xxvii.
22, 23. xxxviii.
13.
^c iv. 31. 34.
^d Job xxviii. 28.
^e Prov. ii. 3—6.
^f John xvii. 3. 1
Cor. i. 20, 21.
^g 24. Judg. xiv.
12—14. Ps. xlix.
4. Prov. i. 6.
Matt. xiii. 11.
35. Mark iv. 34.
^f Esth. i. 4. Acts
xxv. 23.
^g Is. lx. 6.

us an exemption from obedience, or a dispensation to commit the least sin; nor would the true believer desire such a license. Rather, in the integrity and uprightness of his heart, he longs for the entire mortification of every lust, and the increase of grace in his soul: and in his calmest moments, would rather choose to be severely rebuked and chastened of the Lord, and thus kept from sin, or recalled from his wanderings, than be allowed to transgress with impunity and prosperity. As for mere professors, of every sect and creed, who make their forms and notions an excuse for breaking God's commandments, they will ere long be exposed to universal and everlasting contempt. For none will be so despised and miserable, either in this world or the next, as they who have continued wicked under the means of grace, who have apostatised from a religious profession, or who have made the truths and ordinances of God the cloak, or the occasion, of their iniquitous practices.—The conduct of individuals, of churches, and nations, who are exposed to great calamities, when carefully considered, will always sufficiently answer the inquiry, "Why hath the LORD done this unto them?" Even infidels and profligates frequently justify God in the punishment of unrighteous professors, though not without casting unwarrantable scoffs and insults upon them.—Parents, who set their children good examples and give them good instructions, are in the way to have their prayers for them answered, and the blessings of the covenant entailed upon them. But the examples of those whose sins are recorded in their punishment, may be equally instructive. The present dispersed and despised state of the Jews is both a demonstration of the truth of the Scriptures, and a daily lesson to us, not to trust in outward privileges, not to trifle with God's commandments, and not to neglect the salvation of the gospel. We have indeed a better covenant, founded on better promises, than that made with the nation of Israel: but let us see to it, that it is really made with us, and that the law of God is written in our hearts as the proof that our iniquities are forgiven. If this be the case, our persevering obedience, as well as our faith in the Saviour, is provided for, and the Lord "will put his fear into our hearts, that we may never depart from him."

V. 10—28.

In the world and in the church we all have need of each other, and should endeavour, according to our ability, to equal or to exceed the kindness of others to us: but we should not be surprised or discouraged, if our attempts be not acceptable even to our brethren. For men are, and will be, of different judgments and dispositions; and they may be allowed to differ in all temporal matters, and in some which pertain to the worship of God: but as all believers choose, and delight in, the same spiritual excellency of heavenly things; in that respect, they must and will be of one mind and of one judgment.—High stations furnish abundant work for men's hands and hearts; and it is wonderful, if they who fill them are not in some measure "careful and troubled about many things," to the neglect of the "one thing needful;" yet at last, all their magnificence and splendid achievements are vanity and vexation of spirit. Nothing is truly valuable, but in proportion as it is useful: and that is most valuable which promotes the salvation of souls. They, however, who begin with the service of God, regulate their worldly employments according to the precepts of his word, and still adhere to his worship and ordinances, take the best measures for obtaining all desirable success in their undertakings. Their activity and ingenuity may be beneficial to others, and they may perhaps escape material harm themselves; yet it is hard to persevere in such a course: few can resist the fascinating temptations of great prosperity; it gradually fosters pride and sensual indulgence, and eats out the life and power of godliness: and most of those, who have risen to great honour and affluence, after having given satisfactory evidence of real godliness, have evidently shown that their souls were losers in proportion. Let the rich and prosperous then "rejoice with trembling," and take heed lest they forget the Lord; and let the poor and obscure be thankful for their safer condition.

NOTES.

CHAP. X. V. 1, 2. By comparing the texts referred to in the margin, it appears, that Cush, the son of Ham, had a descendant called Sheba, and it is probable he settled in Africa, to the south of Egypt. Eber also had a descendant called Sheba; and Abraham, a grandson by Keturah, called by the same name. On these and other accounts, it has been controverted, whether the queen of Sheba came from some part of Ethiopia in Africa, or from the most remote region of Arabia, near the Indian ocean, in Asia.—Tradition favours the former opinion, but then it blends manifest falsehoods with it. Our Lord says, "the queen h 2 Chr. ix. 2.

Prov. i. 5, 6.
xiii. 20. 1 Cor.
i. 30. Col. ii. 3.
* Heb. words.
i. 12. 2 Sam.
xiv. 17-20. Dan.
ii. 21-25. Heb.
iv. 12, 13.
k iv. 29-34. 2
Chr. ix. 3, 4.
l vi. vii.
m iv. 22, 23.

† Heb. standing.

† Or, butlers.

n 2 Kings xvi. 18.
1 Chr. ix. 13. 2
Chr. xxiii. 13.
Ez. xiv. 3. xvi.
2.

q Heb. word.
2 Chr. ix. 5, 6.

3 And Solomon ^h told her all her * questions; there was not any thing ⁱ hid from the king, which he told her not.

4 And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's ^k wisdom, and ^l the house that he had built,

5 And ^m the meat of his table, and the sitting of his servants, and the [†] attendance of his ministers, and their apparel, and his [‡] cup-bearers, and his ⁿ ascent by which he went up unto the house of the LORD; there was no more spirit in her.

6 And she said to the king, It was a true ^q report that I heard in mine own land of thy ^{||} acts and of thy wisdom. ^{||} Or. sayings.

7 Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it:
and, behold, ^o the half was not told me:
* thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth
the fame which I heard.

8 ^p Happy are thy men, happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and that hear thy wisdom.

9 ^a Blessed be the LORD thy God, which ^r delighted in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel: ^s because the LORD loved Israel for ever, therefore made he thee king, ^t to do judgment and justice.

o Is. lxiv. 4. Zech.
ix. 17. John xx.
29. 1 Cor. ii. 9.
1 John iii. 2.
* Heb. thou hast added wisdom and goodness to the fame.
p 2 Chr. ix. 7, 8.
Prov. iii. 13, 14.
viii. 34. x. 21.
xiii. 20. Luke x.
39-42. xi. 28.
q v. 7. Ps. lxxii.
17-19.
r Ps. xviii. 19.
xxii. 8. Is. xlii.
1. lxii. 4.
s Deut. vii. 8. 1
Chr. xvii. 22. 2
Chr. ii. 11.
t 2 Sam. viii. 15.
xxiii. 3. Ps. lxxii.
2. Prov. viii. 15.
16. Is. ix. 7. xi.
4, 5. xxxii. 1, 2.
Jer. xxiii. 5, 6.
Rom. xiii. 3, 4.

“of the south, came from the uttermost part of the earth,
“to hear the wisdom of Solomon:” and Ethiopia is more distant from Jerusalem than any part of Arabia; but at the same time it does not so well answer the description, the uttermost part of the earth. Learned men are therefore now generally of opinion, that Sheba lay in the most southern part of Arabia Felix, between the Red Sea and the Indian ocean; that the queen of Sheba was descended from Abraham by Keturah, and retained some traditional fragments of true religion; and that she had heard the fame of Solomon from the mariners of the fleet to Ophir, which had put into some of her ports: and the more general connexion in which the name Sheba is used in the subsequent part of Scripture, powerfully confirms this conclusion. (Marg. Ref.)—Our Lord’s testimony to the motives which influenced the queen of Sheba, sufficiently refutes the disadvantageous surmises which have often been entertained and advanced. She “had heard of the fame of “Solomon, concerning the name of the LORD, and she “came to hear his wisdom.” The report of his knowledge in the truths and precepts of religion, of his piety and zeal in the worship of JEHOVAH, and of the wisdom given him, peculiarly attracted her attention; and she came to propose many questions to him, which perplexed her mind, upon those important subjects; she could meet with no one who could clear them up to her; and she desired “to prove him,” whether he could or not. This shows that she was used to reflect seriously upon religion; but for want of proper instruction, was not able to obtain satisfactory solutions of her difficulties; and considering her sex and rank, and the magnificence and indulgence in which she might have lived at home; her long journey, undertaken for these purposes, formed a strong proof of a pious and ingenuous mind, which knew the value of true wisdom, and was willing “to buy the truth” at any price.
Her train and attendance were suited to her high rank;
and many think that the treasures she brought serve to mark out the region from whence she came.

V. 3. With the books of holy Scripture, then extant, in his hand, and the wise and understanding heart that the Lord had given him, Solomon readily answered those questions which were most difficult to the queen of Sheba.
He had prayed, that “all the people of the earth might “know the name of the Lord, to fear him,” (viii. 43;)

and he doubtless instructed her fully in those truths that relate to the being and perfections, the authority, law, and worship of the one living and true God; in the nature and meaning of the temple, altar, priests, and sacrifices, at Jerusalem; and in every other subject, which was essential to the acceptable worship of JEHOVAH. Her language also indicates that she profited by his instructions; and probably carried home with her the sacred Scriptures, and much profitable knowledge of true religion for the benefit of her subjects.

V. 5. His ascent, &c. Some understand these words of a magnificent communication, which Solomon had prepared, betwixt his palace and the courts of the temple, by which he and all his attendants regularly went up to worship the Lord. Others suppose that they mean the sacrifices which he offered upon the altar: while others explain them of the cheerful and fervent solemnity with which he worshipped, showing that his heart was much engaged in the sacred service. But, however that may be, Solomon’s wealth and wisdom, his magnificence and good management of his numerous concerns, united with his exemplary piety, overpowered the queen’s mind with astonishment.—
This event probably took place about the middle of Solomon’s reign, at least before he began to turn aside to idolatry.

V. 8, 9. Solomon’s wisdom made a deeper impression upon the mind of the queen of Sheba than all his prosperity and grandeur. She congratulated, and almost seemed to envy, the felicity of his servants: she had derived such benefit from her occasional conversation with him, that she considered those persons peculiarly favoured, though her inferiors in rank, who continually enjoyed the advantage of his instructive discourse and wise counsels. She also very fervently praised God, for his love to Solomon and to Israel; in endowing him with such extraordinary wisdom, in raising him to the throne, and in blessing him with peace and prosperity, that he might rule over his people “in justice, and “in judgment.” These sentiments concerning the sovereignty and providence of God, the giver of all wisdom and prosperity; his free and unfailing love to his people; the duty of kings; and the happiness of those nations who are favoured with those that do their duty; together with her praising God for his love to his people, in which she coru. 2. ix. 14. Mat.

ii. 11.

x Gen. xliii. 11.
Ex. xxx. 34.

10 And she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices very great store, and precious stones: there came no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon.

v ix. 27. 28. 2
Chr. viii. 18. Ps.
xlv. 9.
z 2 Chr. ii. 8. ix.
10. 11. Algum.

11 And the navy also of Hiram that brought gold from ^v Ophir, brought in from Ophir great plenty of ^z almug-trees, and precious stones.

* Or, rails. Heb. a prop.
a 1 Chr. xxiii. 5.
xxv. 1, &c. Ps.
xcii. 1-3. cl. 3
-5. Rev. xiv.
2, 3.

12 And the king made of the almug-trees * pillars for the house of the Lord, and for the king's house, ^a harps also and psalteries for singers: there came no such almug-trees, nor were seen unto this day.

b 2. ix. 1. Ps. xx.
4. xxxvii. 4.
Matt. xv. 28.
John xiv. 13, 14.
Eph. iii. 20.
† Heb. according to the hand of king Solomon.

13 And king Solomon gave unto the queen of Sheba ^b all her desire, whatsoever she asked, beside that which Solomon gave her [†] of his royal bounty. So she turned and went to her own country, she and her servants.

14 ¶ Now the weight of gold, that came to Solomon in one year, was six hundred threescore and six talents of gold,

c 2 Chr. ix. 13, 14. Ps. lxxii. 10.
Is. xxi. 13. Gal.
iv. 25.
† Or, captains.

15 Beside that he had of the merchant-men, and of the traffick of the spice-merchants, and of ^c all the kings of Arabia, and of the [†] governors of the country.

16 And king Solomon made ^d two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hundred shekels of gold went to one target.

d xiv. 26-28. 2
Chr. ix. 15, 16.
xii. 9, 10.

17 And he made three hundred shields of beaten gold: three pound of gold went to one shield: and the king put them ^e in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

e vii. 2.

18 ¶ Moreover the king made ^f a great throne of ^g ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold.

f 2 Chr. ix. 17-19. Ps. xlv. 6.
cx. i. cxxii. 5.
Heb. i. 3. 8.
Rev. xx. 11.
g 22. xxii. 39. Ps.
xlv. 8. Ez. xxvii.
6. Am. vi. 4.
Rev. xviii. 12.
† Heb. on the hinder part thereof.
|| Heb. bands.

19 The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round ^h behind: and there were || stays on either side on the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the stays.

20 And twelve ^h lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps: there was not ⁱ the like made in any kingdom.

h Gen. xlix. 9.
Num. xxiii. 24.
xxiv. 9. Rev. v.
5.
* Heb. so.

21 And all king Solomon's ⁱ drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of ^k the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; [†] none were of silver: it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

i 2 Chr. ix. 20-22.
k vii. 2.

22 For the king had at sea a navy of [†] Tharshish with the navy of Hiram: once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, [†] ivory, and apes, and ^m peacocks.

† Or, there was no silver in them.
l xxii. 48. Gen. x.
4. 2 Chr. ix. 21.
xx. 36. 37. Ps.
xlviii. 7. lxxii. 10.
Is. ii. 16. xxiii. 1.
6. 10. ix. 9. lxxvi.
19. Ez. xxvii.
12. Jon. i. 3.
† Or, elephant's teeth. 18. Am.
iii. 15.
m Job xxxix. 13.

dially rejoiced, prove an understanding and pious mind, and must convince the reflecting reader that she returned home much benefited by her journey.

V. 12. It is not known what kind of wood is intended by the words almug-trees: but the specimen brought from Sheba would remain to posterity in the pillars or rails, and the musical instruments made of it.

V. 14, 15. Perhaps the kings of Arabia were induced, by the queen of Sheba's report and example, to pay court to Solomon, and send him presents.

V. 16, 17. These shields seem to have been intended principally for magnificence, and to be carried before the king on special occasions. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 18-20. Ivory is not mentioned in Scripture till the time of Solomon, who doubtless imported it from India.—We must not suppose, that the ivory was entirely covered with gold, but rather inlaid with it, so as to add to its beauty.—The lions seem not only to have been intended for ornament, but as emblems of the courage and resolution requisite in the impartial administration of justice; and they denoted that magistrates should be a terror to evil doers, and the protectors of those who peaceably submit to their authority. Judah was compared by Jacob to a young lion; and our Lord is called “the Lion of the tribe of [†] Judah.”

V. 22. Many learned men have endeavoured to prove, that Tharshish was a city in Spain called Tartessus; and some think that this navy, which Solomon had with the navy of Hiram, was distinct from that which traded to Ophir, and was fitted out from some port on the Mediterranean: and they account for the length of time taken up in each voyage, by supposing that a great part of it was employed in selling and buying, or bartering, the several articles of commerce.—But, whatever gold might be, ivory, apes, and peacocks, (or parrots, as some render the word,) do not seem to have been articles of trade in any of the countries bordering on the Mediterranean.—“Jehoshaphat made ships of Tharshish to go to Ophir for gold: but they went not, for the ships were broken at Ezion-gaber.”—“He joined himself with Ahaziah to make ships to go to Tharshish, and they made the ships in Ezion-gaber.—And the ships were broken, that they were not able to go to Tharshish.” (1 Kings xxii. 48. 2 Chr. xx. 35-37.) These passages being decisive proofs that the ships of Tharshish, ships to go to Tharshish, were built at Ezion-gaber on the Red sea, the learned Bishop Lowth, (having adopted the opinion, that Tharshish was Tartessus in Spain,) says “Tharshish is celebrated in Scripture for the trade, which Solomon carried on thither in conjunction with the Tyrians. Jehoshaphat attempted afterward to renew that trade, and from the account given of that attempt, it appears, that his fleet was to sail from Ezion-

1 iii. 12. 13. iv. 30.
31. 2 Chr. ix. 22.
23 Pa. lxxxix.
27. Col. i. 10, 19.
ii. 2, 3.

* Heb. the face of.
m iii. 23. Pro. ii.
6. Dan. i. 17. ii.
21. 23. v. 11.

n 1 Sam. x. 27. 2
Sam. viii. 2. 10.
Job xlii. 11. Ps.
lxxii. 10. 15.
Matt. ii. 17.

o iv. 26. 2 Chr. i.
14. ix. 25.

23 ¶ So king Solomon¹ exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom.

24 And all the earth sought * to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, ^m which God had put in his heart.

25 And they brought ⁿ every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, and mules, a rate year by year.

26 And ^o Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen: and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he bestowed in the cities for chariots, and with the king at Jerusalem.

27 And ^p the king * made silver to be <sup>p 2 Chr. i. 15—17
ix. 27. Job xxii.
24. 25.
* Heb. gave.</sup> in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars made he to be as the sycamore-trees that are in the vale, for abundance.

28† And Solomon had ^q horses brought out of Egypt, and ^r linen yarn: the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

29 And a chariot came up and went out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of † Heb. And the going forth of the horses which was Solomon's.

q Deut. xvii. 16.
2 Chr. i. 16, 17.
ix. 28. Is. xxxi.
1. Ez. xvii. 15.
r xxvii. 7.

gaber on the Red sea, and must therefore have designed to sail round Africa, as Solomon's fleet probably had done before: for it was a three years' voyage; and they brought gold from Ophir, probably from the coast of Arabia, silver from Tartessus, and ivory, apes, and peacocks, from Africa. It is certain, that under Pharaoh Necho, about two hundred years after, this voyage was made by the Egyptians, &c. But with all deference to so eminent a writer, it must be allowed extremely improbable, that in regular voyages, for commerce, (not discovery, for which Pharaoh Necho's extraordinary expedition doubtless was undertaken,) such a circuitous course should be chosen; when, as far as we can learn, it was not then known that Africa was a peninsula! To fit out one navy for Ophir at Ezion-gaber, whether in Arabia or the East Indies, which might coast some parts of Africa: and to fit out another navy to Spain from some Mediterranean port, would be an obvious and compendious measure: but that the same ships should attempt the whole, and after taking in the far richest part of their freight comparatively near home; should with it attempt to sail round Africa, in order to add silver and some other articles of inferior value, at Tartessus, must strike every reflecting person as a most unparalleled proceeding. To sail round Africa at that time, would be vastly more formidable, than a voyage round the world at present: and a single glance at a map must convince any person, acquainted with commerce, that no man of common prudence would ever think of such a voyage for lucrative purposes. Tharshish seems indeed, in some places, to mean Tartessus, or Tarsus, or some place connected with the Mediterranean: for Jonah embarked for Tharshish at Joppa, which is situated on the Mediterranean. Ships of Tharshish seem also sometimes to mean, any large ships fitted out for long voyages. But in this place, and some others referred to, if the text be not corrupted, Tharshish must mean some place in the East Indies, or bordering on the Indian Ocean.

V. 24—27. These particulars were recorded, to show the faithfulness of God to the promises which he had made to David and to Solomon, whose reign typified the kingdom of the Messiah, in its peace and prosperity, and in the submission and willing services of princes and nations. But Solomon was doubtless culpable in several respects, and his mind was gradually corrupted from its simplicity to overmuch luxury and ostentation, which prepared the way for the awful consequences recorded in the ensuing chapter.

VOL. II.—No. 9.

V. 23, 29. Solomon and Pharaoh seem to have traded together by their merchants, to the exclusion of other persons. The price of the linen yarn, according to its quality, was fixed by contract. The price of a good chariot-horse also was fixed at about nineteen pounds sterling, and that of a chariot at seventy-five: and in a contract there is no absurdity in supposing that, the quality being described, a certain sum should be given for each, one with another. Besides those which were brought for the king's use, numbers were sold again, at a great profit doubtless, to the neighbouring princes: for Pharaoh reserved to his son-in-law the exclusive advantage of this lucrative trade. Some indeed suppose the stipulated sums to have been an exorbitant tax laid by Pharaoh on all chariots, or horses, which were exported: but the other seems the more probable way of explaining the passage.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—13.

Wisdom and piety are exceedingly valuable, and render men truly honourable: and they, who form a due estimate of their worth, will think no expense or labour too great to obtain them. When we first attend seriously to religion, we shall meet with many hard questions, which we cannot resolve, and which will often perplex and distress our minds, especially if at a distance from proper instructions. But "then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD." By waiting and prayer, by practising what we have learned, by diligently searching the Scriptures, and by consulting wise and experienced Christians, we shall be delivered from our difficulties, and a clearer light will shine upon our path. — They, who possess wisdom and knowledge, should be courteous and accessible, and as glad to communicate them for the good of others, as the rich should be to impart their wealth. Great wisdom and piety, in the midst of singular prosperity and grandeur, are very uncommon, and therefore excite the higher admiration! A good understanding will be displayed in the orderly and prudent regulation of domestic and secular concerns; so that propriety and consistency with a man's station and circumstances, will be visible to the attentive spectator: but our greatest diligence, constancy, seriousness, and cheerfulness should be manifested, in attending on the ordinances of God; that our example may influence others to "serve him in reverence and godly fear." This gives a lustre to wisdom, learning, wealth, silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty; and so for all ^a the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, did they bring them out ^{*} by their means.

G

^a Heb. by their hand. Mal. 1. 1. Marg.

or greatness: but, alas, how few are ambitious of this honour that cometh from God!—The reports we hear concerning the achievements and excellencies of our fellow-creatures, or concerning any earthly glory, are seldom verified when we become acquainted with them. But there is a spiritual excellency in heavenly things, and in consistent Christians, to which no reports can do justice: and the better they are known the more they will be esteemed and relished.—Those who delight in the company of wise men will become wise: and they are highly favoured, who have continual opportunity of conversing with persons of this character: yet frequently such as have occasional interviews with them get more benefit, than those who are always with them.—All our comforts and prospects spring from the Lord's love to us: he delighteth in the fruits of his own Spirit: and he communicates many good gifts to magistrates, ministers, and private Christians, out of love to his people, that they may be serviceable to them; and happy are they who are governed and instructed by those in whom the Lord delighteth!—Whatever our station or endowments be, they are connected with correspondent duties: and we should take it kindly to be reminded of them, and excited to perform them with diligence and fidelity.—Reciprocal kindnesses cement friendship; and the wealthy should not willingly be outdone in generosity: but neither the company of God's people, nor the ordinances of his house, should detain us from our proper place and employments, but should send us to them, prepared and disposed to discharge them with greater wisdom and conscientiousness.

V. 14—29.

They have the most comfort in worldly things, (though seldom the largest share of them,) who expect least from them, and decidedly prefer wisdom and grace, and who devote the best of all they have to the Lord: for his largest promises, general and particular, shall surely be performed to those that trust and serve him. But, alas! what are worldly wealth and prosperity? They can only procure luxuries, embellishments, and curiosities, which add nothing to the real enjoyment of life: abundance creates satiety, and what is had in plenty is nothing accounted of. Such possessions always multiply cares and temptations; and they generally undermine humility and heavenly-mindedness, and eat out the life of religion, by leading to sensual indulgence, avarice, ostentation, or the pride of life. But the spiritual peace, riches, and abundance of the Redeemer's kingdom, are of another nature: they satisfy, but never satiate; they sanctify the soul and strengthen it to resist temptation, and to mortify every fleshly lust.—The awakened sinner, oppressed with perplexing difficulties, discouraging objections, and tormenting fears, hears the report of the Saviour's acts and wisdom, of his unsearchable riches and unfathomable love: but can scarcely believe the report. With trouble, self-denial, and forsaking many earthly things, he resorts by faith and prayer unto him, and is graciously encouraged, and entertained: the Lord's effectual teaching dispels his darkness and distress; he shows him his glory and grace, he satisfies him with the provisions of his house, and enriches him from his treasures of wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption. The rejoicing believer no longer glories in himself and his own attainments: nor is he terrified, though humbled, with the consciousness of his own guilt and pollution. The person, the character, the love of Jesus, attract and engross his admiring attention, whilst they confirm his lively hopes of salvation: and he finds by experience, that the half was not told him of his excellency and preciousness. He now congratulates the felicity of the meanest servant of the Redeemer, but especially that of those above, who always behold his face, and do his will.—He blesses the Lord for his love to Israel, in giving them such a Prince and Saviour, and yields up himself both to be ruled and saved by him; and though Jesus needeth not, and is not enriched by all that he can render to him; yet he devotes his riches and talents to his service, and they are graciously accepted, and recompensed with all that he can desire: yea, of his royal bounty, our Prince of Peace gives more than any petitioner is able to ask, or think. The believer, who has thus been with Jesus, will return to his station in society, to discharge his duty, with new alacrity, from better motives, and to nobler purposes: yet he will still look forward to the day, when being absent from the body, he shall be present with the Lord; and when his transient glimpses of the Saviour's glory, which overpower him with admiration, shall be exchanged for uninterrupted vision, with faculties enlarged, and strengthened to endure and delight in that ineffable refulgency. But who can express or conceive aright of that state of felicity? Every enraptured spirit will then confess, that the thousandth part of what is there enjoyed never reached his ear, nor was thought of in his most delightful moments upon earth.—O may the writer, and every reader of these observations aspire after, and at length rejoice together in, that unutterable felicity! Behold a greater than Solomon is here! Even upon earth he is present in his word, his ordinances, and on his throne of grace: and will be found of, and manifest himself to, all who seek him uprightly. But the queen of the south will rise up in judgment with the men of this generation also. “She came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon:” but they will not arise from their beds, or go out of their houses, or even open their Bibles, to learn the wisdom of the Son of God! they will not put themselves to the least inconvenience to receive his instructions, and seek his salvation! Yea, verily, this example shames every one of us; for we are all guilty of undervaluing our mercies, and of slackness in attending on the means of grace. Let then the careless and the infidel take warning; for evil is before them: let the negligent strive to enter in at the strait gate, lest he should be found without when the door is shut: let the drooping inquirer be encouraged, for poor sinners of the Gentiles are welcome to Christ: and let us all sit at his feet, hear his word, and wait for his salvation: and by reporting his praises, and doing his will, let us endeavour to recommend him to our fellow-sinners on every side.

CHAP. XI.

Solomon, having very many wives and concubines, even strange women, is in his old age seduced by them into idolatry, 1—8. The Lord threatens to rend the greater part of the kingdom from his family, 9—13. Solomon finds an adversary in Hadad the Edomite, who had been entertained in Egypt, 14—22. And in Rezon, who reigned in Damascus, 23—25. And in Jeroboam, to whom Ahijah foretold that he should reign over ten tribes, and whom Solomon in vain attempted to kill, 26—40. Solomon dies and is buried, and Rehoboam succeeds him, 41—43.

^a Gen. vi. 2—5.
Deut. xvii. 17.
Neh. xiii. 26, 27.
^c Or, beside. iii. 1.

^b Ex. xxxiv. 16.
Deut. vii. 3, 4.
Josh. xxiii. 12, 13.
^c xvi. 31—33.
Num. xxv. 1—3.
Judg. iii. 6, 7.
^b 2 Chr. xxi. 6.
Mal. ii. 11.
2 Cor. vi. 14—16.

BUT king Solomon ^a loved many strange women, * together with the daughter of Pharaoh, women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonians, and Hittites ;

2 Of the nations concerning which the LORD said unto the children of Israel, ^b Ye shall not go in to them, neither shall they come in unto you: for ^e surely they will turn away your heart after their gods: ^d Solomon clave unto these in love.

3 And he had ^e seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines: and his wives turned away his heart.

4 For it came to pass, when Solomon was ^f old, that ^g his wives turned away his heart after other gods: and ^h his heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, as ⁱ was the heart of David his father.

5 For Solomon went after ^j Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, and after ^k Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites.

6 And Solomon did evil in the sight of the LORD, and ^l went not fully after the LORD, as ^m did David his father.

7 Then did Solomon ⁿ build an high place for ^o Chemosh, the ^p abomination of Moab, in ^q the hill that is before Jerusalem, and for Molech, the abomination of the children of Ammon.

8 And likewise did he for ^r all his strange wives, which burnt incense, and sacrificed unto their gods.

Acts 9. 12. — p Ez. xvi. 22—29. Hos. iv. 11, 12. 1 Cor. x. 11, 12. 20—22.

d iii. 2, 3. Judg. xvi. 4, &c.
2 Chr. xix. 2.
Ps cxxxix. 31.
Rom. i. 32.
1 Cor. xv. 32.
Rev. ii. 4.
e Judg. viii. 30.
31 ix. 5. 2 Sam. iii. 2—5. v. 12—16. 2 Chr. xi. 21. Ec. vii. 28.
f vi. 1. ix. 10. xiv. 21.
g Deut. xvii. 17.
Neh. xiii. 26, 27.
h 6 38. vi. 12, 13. viii. 61. ix. 4.
xv. 3. 14. 2 Kings xx. 3. 1 Chr. xxviii. 9. xxix. 19. 2 Chr. xvii. 3. xxv. 2. xxxiv. 20, 21. xxxiv. 2.
i 33. Judg. ii. 13. x. 6. 1 Sam. vii. 3. 4. xii. 10. 2 Kings xxiii. 13. Jer. ii. 10—12.
j 7. Molech. Lev. xviii. 21. xx. 2—5. Zeph. i. 5. Malcham.
† Heb. fulfilled not after. Num. xiv. 21. Josh. xiv. 8. 14.
l Lev. xxvi. 30. Num. xxxiii. 52. 2 Kings xxi. 2, 3. xxiii. 13, 14. Ps. lxxviii. 58. Ez. xx. 23, 29.
m Num. xxi. 29. Judg. xi. 24. Jer. xviii. 13. n Deut. xiii. 14. xvii. 3, 4. xxvii. 15. Is. xlii. 19. Ez. xviii. 12. Dan. xi. 31. Rev. xvii. 4. 5. o 2 Sam. xv. 30. Zech. xiv. 4. Matt. xxvi. 30. x. 11, 12. 20—22.

NOTES.

CHAP. XI. V. 1—8. We have not a more melancholy and astonishing instance of human depravity in the sacred Scriptures, than that recorded in these verses. He, who was named Jedidiah, beloved of the LORD, and who early in life is declared to have loved the LORD: he, who had been favoured with such special tokens of God's favour, and had received such answers to his prayers: he, who had been honoured to build the temple, and was so enlarged in supplication when it was dedicated: he, who was renowned throughout the earth for his wisdom and piety, as well as his wealth and prosperity: he, who was employed as an inspired writer, whose name is affixed to a part of the oracles of God; who had given such excellent counsels and warnings to others, and was so illustrious a type of Christ: even he apostatized, and became a public and shameful worshipper of abominable idols, to the disgrace of his understanding, as well as the scandal of his profession! It is probable that his declension was gradual: he was perhaps elated with spiritual pride, as well as induced by his prosperity to indulge in luxury and ostentation: or perhaps, he deemed it unnecessary for one of his wisdom and ability, and of his rank and authority; to restrict himself by those rules, which were needful or salutary to inferior persons, as if he were secure from those evils which they were intended to prevent! He first multiplied horses, and caused the people to go down into Egypt for that purpose; then he greatly multiplied gold and silver, contrary to the law of Moses; (Deut. xvii. 16, 17;) not as his father had done, for the service of the sanctuary, but for the increase of his own splendour. Thus, the barrier was broken through, and the fervour of his piety abated. After the example of his father, he married several women, and added one to another more and more rapidly, till he had got together an immense number of wives and concubines. And he doubtless might argue, that if it was lawful to have two wives, why not many? and in his case, who could maintain them all, they might not be inexpedient, and would add to his magnificence and royal dignity. Probably Pharaoh's daughter, whom he first married, was a real convert, (for we find no temples to the gods of Egypt;) and this might induce him to take more wives of the heathens, flattering himself, that his wisdom and example would prevail with them also to embrace the worship of JEHOVAH. Thus he proceeded, till perhaps persons were employed to collect from every part of his kingdom, but especially from the subjected nations, every beautiful woman they met, without regard to her religion. Those of superior rank seem to have been numbered among his wives, and styled princesses; while the inferiors were his concubines without so many privileges. Towards the close of his life, when he was above fifty years of age, he grew more addicted to his women than before: and spending much time in their company, he doubtless neglected both the worship of God, and the affairs of his kingdom: and perhaps the enormous expense which their extravagance occasioned, rendered those burdens requisite of which the people afterwards complained; (xix. 4.) But the evil did q Ex. iv. 14. Num.

xii. 9. Deut. iii.
26 ix. 8. 20
2 Sam. vi. 7. xi.
27. 1 Chr. xxi.
7. Ps. lxxviii. 58

—60 xc. 7, 8.
r 2. 3. Deu. vii. 4.

Prov. iv. 23. Is.
xxix. 13, 14.

Hos. iv. 11. 2
Tim. iv. 10.

s iii. 5 ix. 2.
t vi. 12. 13 ix. 4.—

7. 2 Chr. vii. 17
—22

* Heb. with thee. u 31. xii. 15, 16

Num. xiv. 23. 34.
1 Sam. ii. 30—32.

xii. 13, 14. xv
26—28. 2 Sam.

xii. 9—12.
x xxi. 29. 2 Kings

xx. 19.
y Ex. xx. 5.

z 2 Sam. vii. 15,
16. 1 Chr. xvii.

13, 14. Ps.
lxxxix. 33—37.

a 35, 36. xii. 20.
b 32, 36. Deu. ix.

5. 2 Kings xiii.
23. xix. 34. Ps.

lxxxix. 49.
c xxxii. 1. 17. Is.

ix. 7 Jer. xxxiii.
17—21 Luke i.

32, 33.
d Deu. xii. 11. 2

Kings xxi. 4.
xxiii. 27. Ps.

cxix. 13, 14.
Is. xiv. 32. lxli.

1. 7. Jer. xxxiii.
15, 16.

e xxi. 15. 1 Sam.
xxvi. 19. 2 Sam.

xxiv. 1. 1 Chr.
v. 26. Is. x. 5.

f 2 Sam. vii. 14. Ps.
lxxxix. 30—34.

9 ¶ And the LORD was ^a angry with Solomon, because ^r his heart was turned from the LORD God of Israel, ^s which had appeared unto him twice ;

10 And had ^t commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods : but he kept not that which the LORD commanded.

11 Wherefore the LORD said unto Solomon, Forasmuch as this is ^u done of thee, and thou hast not kept my covenant and my statutes, which I have commanded thee, ^v I will surely rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant.

12 Notwithstanding, ^x in thy days I will not do it for David thy father's sake : but ^y I will rend it out of the hand of thy son.

13 Howbeit ^z I will not rend away all the kingdom ; but will give ^a one tribe to thy son ^b for David my servant's sake, and ^c for Jerusalem's sake which I have chosen.

14 ¶ And ^d the LORD stirred up ^e an adversary unto Solomon ; Hadad the Edomite : he was of the king's seed in Edom.

15 For it came to pass, ^f when David was in Edom, and Joab the captain of the host was gone up to bury the slain, ^g after he had smitten ^h every male in Edom ;

16 (For six months did Joab remain there with all Israel, until he had cut off every male in Edom :)

17 That Hadad fled, he and certain Edomites of his father's servants with him, to go into Egypt ; ⁱ Hadad being yet a little child.

18 And they arose out of ^k Midian, and came to ^l Paran ; and they took men with them out of Paran, and they came to Egypt, unto Pharaoh king of Egypt ; which gave him an house, and appointed him victuals, and gave him land.

19 And Hadad ^m found great favour in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him to wife the sister of his own wife, the sister of ⁿ Tahpenes the queen.

B. C. 1040.

f 2 Sam. viii. 14.

g 1 Chr. xviii. 12.

h Ps. lx. title.

c viii. 10.

i Gen. xxv. 20.

xxvii. 40. Num.

xxiv. 18, 19

Mal. i. 2, 3.

h Deut. xx. 13.

i Ex. ii. 1—4.

2 Sam. iv. 4.

2 Kings xi. 2.

Matt. ii. 13, 14.

k Gen. xxv. 2. 6.

Num. xxii. 4.

xxv. 1. 6. 14.

l Gen. xiv. 6. xxi.

21. Num. x. 12.

Deut. i. 1.

xxxiii. 1. Hab.

iii. 2.

m Gen. xxxix. 4.

21. Acts vii. 10.

21.

n Jer. xliii. 7—9.

not stop here: for his women gained still greater ascendancy over him, and gradually prevailed with him to connive at their idolatries, to humour them by building them idolatrous temples, and at length to join with them in these abominations! And when one had been thus gratified, there could be no peace, unless the others were obliged in the same manner; and therefore he did thus for all his strange wives. They who have noted in history, or in society, the effects of the influence of inveigling women over the greatest and wisest of men, will readily perceive that matters were speedily in a train, and that it was almost impossible, without an immediate divine interposition, that Solomon should stop short of this extreme folly and wickedness, when he had once suffered himself to be entangled in the fatal net. The inspired historian therefore quotes the prohibition of marrying strange women, with the annexed consequence, “Surely they will turn away your heart after their gods;” to show that no eminency of wisdom or firmness of resolution will stand any man in stead in such a situation, when in a careless or self-confident spirit he presumes to violate God’s commandments. Of this, Solomon formed a most striking proof. David had committed several sins, but he had repented, and humbled himself for them: and he had still adhered to the worship of JEHOVAH, and never in the smallest instance set the people an example of idolatry, or given any connivance to the greatest of all abominations, that open treason against the King of heaven, and violation of the national covenant with Israel. But Solomon’s heart was not thus “perfect with the LORD his God:” and “he went not fully after the LORD!”

V. 9—11. The Lord had twice appeared to Solomon, in the most condescending and encouraging manner: yet on the last occasion he had fairly warned him of the consequences of disobedience, especially of idolatry. (Marg. Ref.) This therefore aggravated his offence; and it is probable, that God sent this awful message by a prophet; as refusing to appear again to him, after his ingratitude for his former gracious visits.

V. 13. Benjamin was so connected with Judah, that it was but as one tribe, and therefore it is not here particularly mentioned. As a punishment of Solomon’s sin, the other ten tribes would be rent from him: but in performance of the promises made to David, and in a gracious recompense for his obedience, and to maintain his own worship at Jerusalem which he had chosen, the Lord would continue the tribe of Judah under the government of Solomon’s posterity. Every mitigation of the sentence was suited to humble and even mortify Solomon. Nothing was done for his sake, but all for his father’s. It is very probable, that this message brought him to himself, and led him to repentance.

V. 14. As the opposition of Hadad accorded to the Lord’s secret design of punishing Solomon, and was overruled for that purpose, he is said to have stirred him up; though it is evident Hadad was instigated by his own ambition and resentment.

V. 15, 16. These particulars do not occur in the preceding history, (2 Sam. viii. 14. 2 Chr. xviii. 12, 13.) As the Edomites afterwards continued a people, either some particular district only was treated with this severity, or numbers escaped from Joab and his men. Unless some very peculiar cause required it, this military execution cannot be justified.

20 And the sister of Tahpenes bare him Genubath his son, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house: and Genubath was in Pharaoh's household among the sons of Pharaoh.

• Gen. xxi. 7, 8.
• 1 Sam. i. 24.

21 And when Hadad^p heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab the captain of the host was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, * Let me depart, that I may go to mine own country.

B. C. 1055.
• ii. 10. 34. Ex. iv.
19. Matt. ii. 20.

* Heb. send me away.

22 Then Pharaoh said unto him, But what hast thou lacked with me, that, behold, thou seekest to go to thine own country? And he answered, † Nothing: howbeit let me go in any wise.

† Heb. Not.

23 ¶ And^a God stirred him up another adversary, Rezon the son of Eliadah, which fled from his lord^r Hadadezer king of Zobah:

q 14. 2 Sam. xvi.
11. Ezra i. 1. 5. 1s.
xiii. 17. xxxvii.
26. xiv. 5. Ez.
xxxviii. 16.
r 2 Sam. viii. 3.
x. 15-18. 1 Chr.
xviii. 3-9. xix.
9. 16-19. Ps. lx.
xiii.

24 And he gathered men unto him, and became captain over a band, when David slew them of Zobah: and they went to Damascus, and dwelt therein, and reigned in Damascus.

25 And he was an adversary to Israel all the days of Solomon, beside the mischief that Hadad^{did}: and he^t abhorred Israel, and reigned over Syria.

s v. 4. 2 Chr. xv. 8.
2.
t Deut. xxiii. 7.
2 Sam. xvi. 21.
Ps. cvi. 40.
Zech. xi. 8.
u 11. 28. xli. 2. 20.
&c. xlii. 1, &c.
x Gen. xxxv. 16.
Ruth i. 2. 1 Sam.
i. 1. xvii. 12. 1
Chr. ii. 19.
v ix. 22. 2 Chr.
xiii. 6.

26 ¶ And^u Jeroboam the son of Nebat, ^x an Ephrathite of Zereda, ^y Solomon's servant, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow-woman, even he lifted up his hand against the king.

27 And this was the cause that he lifted up his hand against the king: ^a Solomon built Millo, and^{*} repaired the breaches of the city of David his father.

a 2 Sam. xx. 21.
a ix. 15. 24.
Heb. closed.

28 And the man Jeroboam was a mighty man of valour: and Solomon seeing the young man that he[†] was industrious, he made him ruler over all the charge of the house of Joseph.

† Heb. did work.
Prov. xxii. 29.
† Heb. burden. v.
16.

29 And it came to pass at that time when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet^b Ahijah the^c Shilonite found him in the way: and he had clad himself with a new garment; and they two were alone in the field:

b xii. 15. xiv. 2.
c Josh. xviii. 1.

30 And Ahijah caught the new garment that was on him, and^d rent it in twelve pieces:

d 1 Sam. xv. 27.
28. xxiv. 5.

31 And he said to Jeroboam, Take thee ten pieces: for^e thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee:

e 11-13.

32 (But^f he shall have one tribe for my servant David's sake, and^g for Jerusalem's sake, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:)

f xii. 20.
g 13.

33^h Because that they have forsaken me, and have worshippedⁱ Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the children of Ammon, and have not walked in my ways, to do that which is right in mine eyes, and to keep my statutes and my judgments, as did David his father.

h 9 iii. 14. vi. 12.
13. ix. 5-7. xv.
4, 5. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 9. 2 Chr.
xv. 2.
i 9-8.

V. 21. After David's death, Hadad returned to Idumea, in hopes to excite disturbances before Solomon's authority was established: but he seems to have been disappointed, till after Solomon's apostacy; when he perhaps attempted to seize the kingdom of Edom, and molested Solomon all the rest of his reign.

V. 23-25. When David had defeated Hadadezer, Rezon collected a company, over whom he became a captain; and it is probable, that for a long time they lived by plunder: for "David put garrisons in Syria-Damascus:" but at length Rezon found an opportunity of seizing Damascus, and usurping the kingdom of Syria.—He had indeed abhorred Israel from the first; but did not appear as Solomon's adversary, or to do him any injury, till Solomon had provoked the Lord by his idolatries.

V. 26-28. Jeroboam, having been employed in superintending the builders, so distinguished himself by capacity and industry, that Solomon preferred him to a post of considerable authority and influence. He either placed him over the tribute collected from the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, or made him superintendant of the levy sent from them by courses to assist in his works.—This advancement, probably from a low situation, opened vast prospects to his ambitious mind: and he seems to have excited and encouraged the discontent of the people, on account of the burdens laid on them. Perhaps he was plotting an open revolt; at least he joined the disaffected party: and thus he might be said to "lift up his hand against the king;" though his designs were not executed till after Solomon's death.

V. 29-31. The meaning of the emblematical action, here recorded, seems to imply, that the new garment belonged to the prophet, not to Jeroboam; though many expositors suppose the contrary. The division of the kingdom took nothing from Jeroboam, but gave the dominion over ten tribes to him.—Some think that the rending of the garment into twelve pieces, represented also the subsequent divisions and distractions which prevailed in Israel.

V. 33. Induced by Solomon's example, and to obtain his favour, it seems that the people had generally joined in his idolatry.

k 12, 13. 31. Job
xi. 6. Ps. ciii.
10. Hab. iii. 2.

34 Howbeit ^k I will not take the whole kingdom out of his hand: but I will make him prince all the days of his life, for David my servant's sake, whom I chose, because he kept my commandments and my statutes:

l xii. 15—17. 20.

35 But I will take the kingdom out of his son's hand, and ^l will give it unto thee, even ten tribes.

m xv. 4. 2 Sam. vii. 16. 29. xxi. 17.
2 Kings viii. 19.
2 Chr. xxi. 7. Ps. cxxxiii. 17. Jer. xxxiii. 17. 21.
Am. ix. 11, 12.
Luke i. 69, 70.
78, 79. Acts xv. 16, 17.
ⁿ Heb. lamp, or candle.

36 And unto his son will I give ^m one tribe, that ^m David my servant may have ^{*} a light alway before me in Jerusalem, ⁿ the city which I have chosen me to put my name there.

n 13. Gal. iv. 25.
26. Heb. xii. 22.
Rev. xxi. 10.
o 26. Deut. xiv. 26. 2 Sam. iii. 21.
p iii. 14. vi. 12.
ix. 4, 5. Ex. xix 5. Deut. xv. 5. Zech. iii. 7.

37 And I will take thee, and thou shalt reign, ^o according to all that thy soul desireth, and shalt be king over Israel.

38 And it shall be, ^p if thou wilt harken unto all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do that is right in my sight, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did; ^q that I will be with thee, and ^r build thee a sure house, as I built for David, and will give Israel unto thee.

39 And I will for this ^s afflict the seed of David, but ^t not for ever.

40 Solomon ^u sought therefore to kill Jeroboam: and Jeroboam arose and fled into Egypt, unto ^x Shishak king of Egypt, and was in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

41 And ^y the rest of the [†] acts of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the book of the acts of Solomon?

42 And the [†] time that Solomon reignq Deut. xxxi. 6.

Josh i. 5.
r xiv 7—14. 2
Sam. vii. 11. 16.
26—29. 1 Chr.
xvii. 10. 24—27.
s xli 16. xiv. 8.
25, 26 Ps. lxxxix.
38—45. 49—51.
t Is. vii. 14. ix. 7.
xi. 1—10. Jer.
xxiii. 5, 6. Luke
i. 32, 33. ii. 4.
u 2 Chr. xvi. 10.
Prov. xxi. 39.
Is. xlv. 10. Lam.
iii 37.
x xiv. 25.

y 2 Chr. ix. 29, 30.
[†] Or, words or, things.

[†] Heb. days.

V. 36. A light, &c. It was God's purpose that David's family should still continue illustrious; and be the instruments of preserving the light of true religion in Jerusalem, as well as types of Christ the Light of the world.

V. 37. Thy soul desireth. It appears from this expression, that Jeroboam secretly aspired at the kingdom. But neither the designs of God, nor this declaration by the prophet, vindicated his ambition and rebellion. David, long after he had been anointed to the kingdom, was faithful to Saul, and was not driven by persecution to attempt aught against him; nor would he even fill the vacant throne, till called to it by the voice of the people.

V. 38. And build thee, &c. Distrusting this promise, Jeroboam endeavoured to establish his authority by disobedience; and thus he forfeited the kingdom as to his posterity, and brought ruin upon them.

V. 39. But not for ever. Three alleviations of the denounced judgments are here mentioned. They would not happen in Solomon's days; therefore Jeroboam ought by no means to have attempted any thing against him: the whole kingdom was not to be taken from Solomon's posterity; therefore Jeroboam must not expect to subject Judah and Benjamin: and the affliction was not to be for ever; which seems especially to refer to Christ and his everlasting kingdom.

V. 40. The word therefore is not in the original, which may be rendered, And Solomon, &c. It does not appear that he sought to kill Jeroboam because of Ahijah's prophecy, which would have been an instance of most infatuated rebellion against God, and utterly inconsistent with repentance; but because of Jeroboam's subsequent misconduct, who perhaps divulged and boasted of the promise, and "lifted up his hand against Solomon," which implies an attempt to raise rebellion in his life-time. It is probable that Shishak was the successor of Pharaoh, whose daughter Solomon married: but perhaps of another family and interest. He is the only king of Egypt hitherto called by his proper name; all before him being known by the general title of Pharaoh. He is also thought to have been the Sesostris of pagan history.

V. 41. In the book, &c. Some annals or records of Solomon's life and reign, more copious than the account here given; from which such extracts were made as were needful for edification. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 42, 43. Solomon was the only king, who reigned so long as forty years over all Israel: yet he was not above sixty years of age when he died, and perhaps he had injured his constitution by indulgence. We are not here informed, whether he repented before his death, or not: and this silence speaks warning to every one of us, that we yield not to temptations, lest we should leave the world in uncertainty, and be condemned as hypocrites in the consciences of God's people. But this silence in the book of kings no more proves that Solomon did not repent, than the silence of the book of Chronicles proves that he did not commit idolatry. I would not indeed decide upon so controverted a point with unhesitating confidence: yet the book of Ecclesiastes seems fully to prove that he repented, and publicly declared that repentance before his death. We are not however much interested in the solution, as some persons seem to suppose; for it is extremely nugatory to put the proof of doctrines upon examples. If he did not repent, he doubtless perished, notwithstanding all his profession and eminent endowments: for no part of Scripture gives encouragement concerning those who die in unrepented wickedness. But this supposition would, I apprehend, prove all his profession to have been hypocritical; and this does not so well accord to his name Jedidiah, and the testimony of the Holy Spirit, that he loved the Lord.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—8.

We are repeatedly reminded by the examples of the most eminent men, that no abilities or endowments; that no illustrious services, fervent affections, or vigorous resolutions; that nothing inherent in man, forms in itself any z ii. 11.

a i 21. xiv. 20. xv.
8. 24. xvi. 6.
Deut. xxxi. 16.
2 Kings xvi. 20.
xx. 21. xxi. 18.

ed in Jerusalem over all Israel was ^a forty years.

43 And Solomon ^a slept with his fathers, and was ^b buried in the city of David his father: and ^c Rehoboam his son reigned in his stead.

b ii. 10. xiv. 31.
2 Kings xxi. 18.
26. 2 Chr. xxi.
20. xxvi. 23.
xxviii. 27. Jer.
xxii. 19.
c Matt. i. 7. Roboam security against the deceitfulness and desperate wickedness of his heart, or may be depended on as sufficient to preserve him from the commission of the most atrocious crimes. Men of superior understanding find it much easier to lay down excellent rules for the conduct of others, than to reduce them to practice in the constant tenour of their own lives, (Prov. i—ix;) for, alas! they often fall into the same pit, and are caught in the same snare, against which they have repeatedly warned others; and sometimes are guilty of things as absurd and foolish as they are wicked. Nay, old age itself will not cure the heart of any evil propensity. The habit of indulgence in fleshly lusts will more than counterbalance the effect of nature's decay: and if our sinful passions are not crucified and mortified by the grace of God, they will never die of themselves, but will subsist, and rage, when every opportunity of gratification shall be taken away.—Thus we are taught to cease from man, and to watch and to be sober: for ours is a dangerous warfare in an enemy's country; whilst the worst of our foes are the traitors that occupy our own hearts.—We all naturally desire prosperity and pre-eminence; yet in general these operate as fatal poisons to the soul. And when we allow of one inordinate or inexpedient indulgence, we give energy to all our passions, and to every temptation of Satan. Not only will the same inclination grow more importunate; but others also, like humoured children, will expect to be gratified in turn; while the authority of reason and conscience over the inferior faculties is weakened by every concession. Our safety and comfort therefore consists in resolutely requiring them all to obey; and, though we cannot extinguish our passions, in rigorously confining them within the bounds of what is lawful and expedient.—Indulged luxury, or the pride of life, generally introduces greater licentiousness, where a man's affluence is equal to his inclination. But the history of the world and of the church demonstrates, that the love of women is one of the most dangerous passions of the human heart. When once the divine original appointment concerning marriage is violated, the unbridled propensity will know no bounds: nor can the wisest or the most determined say to it, "Thus far shalt thou go, and no further:" but like a descending weight, the progress is from bad to worse, with accelerated rapidity. The designing objects of a sensual and roving affection will employ, by turns, all the arts of persuasion, dalliance, flattery, or upbraidings, to prevail over a man's resolution, and to induce his compliance with the most unreasonable and pernicious requests; till shame and conscience are surmounted, reputation and interest sacrificed, every barrier is broken down, and a perfect infatuation takes place. (Judg. xvi. 2 Sam. xi.)—Parents, and those who are in reputation for piety, should be peculiarly careful what practices they sanction by their examples: for such as will not imitate them in their best actions, will be encouraged to copy, and to exceed them in their mistakes and misconduct! And they, who have made the boldest profession of godliness, and have been most serviceable to its interests, may expect to be assaulted by the strongest tempt-tations from the great enemy of souls, and should always entertain a jealous fear; lest being overcome in an unguarded hour, they should after all become a scandal to religion, a stumbling block to the prejudiced, an encouragement to hypocrites and infidels, or a snare and evil precedent to the unstable and injudicious. They should therefore be peculiarly watchful against the incursions of spiritual pride, or the fatal persuasion that they are superior to those rules and cautions that are needful for weaker persons. They should always meditate with seriousness on their danger of falling, and the wide-spreading fatal effects of their misconduct, and prefer any affliction or death to thus dishonouring God and his truth.—The fond hope, which numbers indulge who marry with ungodly persons, of being instrumental to their salvation, stands exposed throughout the Scripture, but especially in this chapter: the wisest, and best of men are more likely to be corrupted by the converse of a beloved ungodly companion, than to bring such an one to a sense of serious religion. Considering the state of human nature, the case is as desperate, as that of a healthy person associating with those that have got the plague, who is vastly more likely to be infected himself, than to recover them: and the Lord's prohibition of such marriages declares them to be means, which he doth not allow of, and will not generally use for that purpose.—The slaves of fleshly lusts are meet worshippers of abominable idols; but not of the God of Israel, who is holy, and whose worshippers must be holy too.—They, who connive at the wickedness which they ought to punish, will soon join in committing it, and in inducing others to do the same: but all this proceeds from the heart not being fully devoted to the Lord; for when the love of him occupies the affections, and the soul is satisfied with the earnest and hopes of his favour, all inferior desires will be regulated and subordinated.

V. 9—25.

The Lord is very angry even with the objects of his special love, when their hearts are for a season, or in a measure, turned from him; and the peculiar tokens of his favour, his answers to their prayers, and their comfortable communion with him in times past, will aggravate their guilt and increase his displeasure: nor can there be any peace or assurance of acceptance, without an unreserved persevering obedience to his commandments. Yet, in punishing transgressors, He will not dishonour his own faithful promises, desert the cause of true religion, or fail to honour the memories of those who have uprightly walked in his ways: and for the sake of Jesus, and his people whom he hath chosen, he will not suffer his whole displeasure to arise. It is grievous indeed to leave sore judgments for our sins to our posterity: yet it is a mercy to have peace and truth in our days. But when the Lord is become an adversary, he will give power, courage, and capacity to other adversaries, and thus render those formidable, who before appeared contemptible; and we should always ob-

CHAP. XII.

The Israelites, assembled at Shechem to make Rehoboam king, with Jeroboam now returned from Egypt at their head, demand redress of their grievances, 1—5. Rehoboam, rejecting the counsel of the old men, and following that of the young, answers them roughly, 6—15. Ten tribes revolt, stone Adoram, and make Jeroboam king, 16—20. Rehoboam raises an army to subdue them; but is forbidden by the prophet Shemaiah, 21—24. Jeroboam builds Shechem and Peniel, 25. And to establish his kingdom, he sets up the worship of the golden calves in Bethel and Dan, 26—33.

AND ^a Rehoboam went to ^b Shechem: for all Israel were come to Shechem to make him king.

2 And it came to pass, when ^c Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who was yet in Egypt, heard of it, (for he was fled from the presence of king Solomon, and Jeroboam dwelt in Egypt;)

3 That they sent and called him: and Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake unto Rehoboam, saying,

4 Thy father made ^d our yoke grievous: now therefore make thou the griev-

^a 2 Chr. x. 1—5
^b Gen. xii. 6
Shechem. xxxiii.
18, 19. Josh.
xxiv. 1. Judg.
ix. 1.
^c xi. 26. 40.

^d iv. 7. 20. 22, 23.
25. ix. 22, 23.
1 Sam. viii. 11—
18. Mat. xi. 29.
30. 1 John v. 3.

serve his righteous hand, even in those sufferings which come upon us from the wickedness of others.—Unnecessary severity may excite resentments, which may long after create us, or ours, disturbance and grief: and it is best, as far as we can, to exercise lenity to all men, and to overcome evil with good.—But, if the abundance and pleasure of a court, and the friendship of a king, could not detain Hadad from his own desolate and subjected country; what earthly prosperity should take off a believer's affections from his glorious inheritance in heaven, or make him reluctant to remove thither?—Many abhor the Israel of God, who are not permitted to hurt them: nay, when they seem to succeed in their malice, they are only the instruments of salutary chastisement to them.

V. 26—43.

We often find our worst enemies among those whom we have most befriended: especially when ingenuity, industry, and resolution, rather than piety, have recommended them to our notice. These qualifications make way for a man's preferment, and every advance enlarges the ambition of a proud unsanctified mind: and when such men come within the attraction of supreme authority, and dare to hope for that dangerous pre-eminence; to reign according to the desire of their hearts forms the grand object, and to it every tie of gratitude or duty must be sacrificed.—Providential dispensations to this day, as well as prophetic declarations of old, try men's spirits, whether they will grasp at advantages at all events; or whether they will wait patiently, and use only lawful means of obtaining them, according to the will of God.—Many so believe some parts of God's word, as perversely to take encouragement from them to commit iniquity; instead of so believing the whole, as to expect the blessings proposed in the way of conscientious obedience there prescribed! They are shown, and seem to understand, that others have forfeited their most valuable interests by sin; and yet they will seek to seize or to secure theirs by similar transgressions! so inconsistent is human nature!—The Lord will not afflict for ever the people of his covenant: but when they grievously offend, he will eclipse all their honour: he will leave obscurity and reproach upon their characters; and perhaps bring them down to the grave in disgrace, discomfort, and uncertainty; distressed concerning the state of their own souls, and about the consequences of their conduct to their families, to the church, and to the world! May God help us to walk circumspectly; to pass the time of our sojourning here in fear; and to stand with our loins girt, and our lamps burning, prepared for and expecting the coming of our Lord!

NOTES.

CHAP. XII. V. 1. We read of no son that Solomon had, except Rehoboam, and his mother was an Ammonitess: thus he was, so to speak, but half an Israelite.—This may be considered as a providential rebuke for Solomon's multiplying wives in so unprecedented a manner. Solomon seems to have been sensible that his son was not likely to prove a wise man, or to carry on his designs for the good of Israel and the establishment of his family; and to have greatly regretted it: (Eccles. ii. 18, 19.) As he was the unrivalled heir of so flourishing a kingdom, we may be sure his natural imprudence and rashness would be increased by the flattery of the young men, with whom he was brought up. The people in general, upon Solomon's death, appeared disposed to recognize his succession, and convened at Shechem for that purpose. Yet it is probable that this city, which belonged to Ephraim, was chosen rather than Jerusalem or Hebron, that the tribe of Judah might not have too great influence in the transaction: and Rehoboam was impolitic in consenting to that appointment, if he could have prevented it.

V. 2, 3. Jeroboam, hearing of the death of Solomon, delayed not to return into the land of Israel, to wait his opportunity of seizing upon the prize which had been set before his ambition. For he did not wait the Lord's direction to proceed, as David had done when Saul died.—The elders of the people, by sending for him, indicated that they meant to impose very strict limitations upon Rehoboam.

ous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said unto them, Depart yet for three days, then come again to me. And the people departed.

e 2 Sam. xvi. 20.
Job xii. 12, 13.
Prov. xxvii. 10.
Jer. xlii. 2-5.
xliii. 2.

6 And king Rehoboam * consulted with the old men that stood before Solomon his father, while he yet lived, and said, How do ye advise that I may answer this people?

f 2 Chr. x. 6, 7.
Prov. xv. 1.

7 And they spake unto him, saying, If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and will serve them, and answer them, and * speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants for ever.

h 2 Chr. xxv. 15.
16. Prov. i. 25.
[30 xix. 20 xxv.
12. Ec. x. 2, 3.

8 But ^h he forsook the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men that were grown up with him, and which stood before him:

ix xii. 6-8. 2 Sam.
xvii. 5, 6. 2 Chr.
x. 8, 9.

9 And he said unto them, ⁱ What counsel give ye, that we may answer this people who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter?

k 2 Sam. xvii. 7-13.

10 And the young men that were grown up with him, spake unto him, saying, ^k Thus shalt thou speak unto this people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it lighter unto us; thus shalt thou say unto them, ^l My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins.

l iii. 7. 2 Chr. x.
10, 11. Prov. x. 13.
xviii. 6, 7. xxviii.
25. xxix. 23.

11 And now, whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, ^m I will add to your yoke: my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with ⁿ scorpions.

m Ex. i. 13, 14. v.
5-9. 13. i Sam.
viii. 13. 2 Chr.
xvi. 10. Is lviii.
6. Jer. xxvii. 11.
xxviii. 13, 14.
n 14. Ez. ii. 6.
Rev. ix. 3. 10.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying, ^o Come to me again the third day.

o 5. 2 Chr. x. 12-14.

13 And the king answered the people * roughly, and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him;

* Heb. hardly. xx.
6-11. Gen. xlii.
7. 30. Ex. v. 2.
x. 23. Judg. xii.
1-6. 1 Sam.
xxv. 10, 11.
2 Sam. xix. 43.
Prov. xv. 1.

14 And spake to them after ^p the counsel of the young men, saying, ^q My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

p 2 Chr. xxii. 4.
Est. i. 16-27.
ii. 2-4. Ps. v.
10. Prov. xii. 5.
Is. xix. 11-13.
Dan. vi. 7.

15 Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; for ^r the cause was from the Lord, ^s that he might perform his saying, which the Lord spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

q Prov. xiii. 10.
xvi. 18. xvii. 14.
Ec. vii. 8. Sam.
iii. 14-18. iv.
1, 2.
r 24. xxii. 23.
Dent. ii. 30.
Judg. xiv. 4.
2 Chr. x. 15.
xxii. 7. xxv. 13.
20. Am. iii. 6.
Acts ii. 23.
s xi. 11. 29-33.
1 Sam. xv. 23.
2 Sam. xvii. 14.
2 Kings ix. 36.
x. 10. Is. xlvii.
10, 11. Dan. iv.
35.

V. 4. When we consider the scriptural account of Solomon's reign, and the peace, affluence, and prosperity, which Israel then enjoyed, we cannot doubt, but that this charge was either false or greatly exaggerated. Solomon had never oppressed the people with heavy taxes, nor exercised cruelty towards them: and though some hardships might have been experienced in the latter end of his reign, compared with the former years, yet they were not grievous services, or heavy burdens: but in fact, "Jeshurun waxed fat and kicked."—Whilst they complained of their own grievances and demanded redress, they were silent as to Solomon's idolatry, in which many of them had concurred: and about the more complete re-establishment of the worship of God among them.

V. 5. This delay of Rehoboam showed a reluctance to give the elders satisfaction, and afforded the malcontents time to tamper with the elders of Israel, and to render them evil-affected. It would have been far wiser, to have immediately assured them of a redress of all real grievances; and to have waited till particulars were inquired into, when the unreasonableness of exorbitant claims would have been detected.

V. 6, 7. The persons whom Rehoboam first consulted were the friends and counsellors of Solomon, firmly attached to the interests of his family, and capable of giving safe and prudent advice. Accordingly, they advised him to make all needful concessions to the assembly, to speak fair to them, and to show a readiness to pay regard to their interests and inclinations: this would have quieted the minds of the well disposed, and broken all the measures of the malcontents; and when matters were settled, the people in general would have quietly rendered all proper submission to the prince of the house of David.

V. 8-15. The wise counsel of the old men did not suit the rash, insolent, and domineering spirit of Rehoboam; and he opposed to it the advice of the companions of his youthful pleasures, who would be sure to accommodate themselves to his inclinations. They counselled him therefore to speak with authority, and to damp the spirits of the assembly by resolute language; that they might no longer dare to dictate to him in such a manner. The expressions which they suggested allowed to the utmost, and even aggravated, the injurious charge brought against Solomon; and yet avowed a resolution of greater oppression and severity! The king was advised to menace them, "that his little finger should be thicker than his father's loins:" that is, that as he was vastly more powerful than Solomon was at the beginning of his reign; so he would certainly let them feel the weight of that power, if they dared to oppose him. Perhaps he thought so, because he came to the throne at a more mature age than Solomon had done; and had not any brothers to rival him in it.—He also declared that he would "add to their yoke," by demanding heavier services and taxes of them: and, if they 16 So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, ' What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: 'a to your tents, O Israel: 'x now see to thine own house, David. 'y So Israel departed unto their tents.

17 But as for 'z the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

18 Then king Rehoboam sent 'a Adoram, who was over the tribute; and 'b all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. Therefore king Rehoboam *made speed to get him up to his chariot, to 'c flee to Jerusalem.

19 So 'd Israel † rebelled against the house of David unto this day.

20 And it came to pass, when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they sent and called him unto the congregation, 'e and made him king over all Israel: there was 'f none that followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah only.

21 ¶ And 'g when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah, with the tribe of Benjamin, 'h an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam the son of Solomon.

22 But the word of God came unto 'i Shemaiah, 'k the man of God, saying,

23 Speak unto Rehoboam the son of Solomon king of Judah, and unto all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the remnant of the people, saying,

24 Thus saith the LORD, 'l Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: return every man to his house; 'm for this thing is from me. 'n They hearkened therefore to the word of the LORD, and returned to depart, according to the word of the LORD.

† 2 Sam. xx. 1.
2 Chr. x. 16.

a xxii. 17. 35.

x xi. 13. 34. 36. 39.
2 Sam. vii. 15.
16. Ps. ii. 1-6.
lxxvi. 10. lxxxix.
29-37. cxxxii.
17. Is. vii. 2, 6, 7.
Jer. xxxiii. 15.
16. 21. Luke xix.
14. 27.

y Judg. viii. 35.
2 Sam. xv. 13.
xvi. 11.

z xi. 13. 36.
a iv 6. y 14. Adoram.
2 Sam. xx. 24. 2 Chr. x. 18. Adoram.
b 2 Chr. xxiv. 21.
Acts vii. 57, 58.
* Heb. strengthened himself.

c xx. 18-20. Pro. xxviii. 1, 2. d 2 Kings xvii. 21.
2 Chro. x. 19.
Prov. v. 12. 14.
xxii. 3.
† Heb. fell away.

e 1 Sam. x. 24.
Hos. viii. 4.
f xi. 13. 32.

g 2 Chr. xi. 1-3.

h Ps. xxxiii. 10.
cxlvi. 3. Prov. xxi. 30, 31.

i 2 Chr. xii. 5. 7.
k xlii. 1. 4, 5. 11.
xvii. 18. 24.
2 Kings iv. 16.
22. 25. 27. 1 Tim. vi. 11.

l Num. xiv. 42.
2 Chr. xi. 4. xxv. 7, 8. xxviii. 9-13.

m 15 xi. 29-38.
Hos. viii. 4.
n 2 Chr. xxv. 10. xxviii. 13-15.

hesitated to obey, he would chastise them with scorpions, severe punishments as terrible as the sting of a scorpion; or, as some think, a terrible scourge thus called. Such language as this was not very wise in Pharaoh to the poor enslaved Israelites, but it was not at all likely it should be endured by a rich, numerous, and free people. Nothing can be conceived more foolish and exasperating, than such an address in so critical a juncture: but it was adopted, because it coincided with the self-importance and tyrannical temper of Rehoboam: and we may cease to wonder at his extreme infatuation, when we are told, that "the cause was from the LORD that he might perform his word."

V. 16. Though Rehoboam was very faulty, yet perhaps he might have been brought to a better temper by proper remonstrances. The Lord had indeed promised ten tribes to Jeroboam: but he had not commanded the people to revolt from the family of David; nor had he commissioned Jeroboam to wrench them from Rehoboam. His purposes and declarations were not the motive of their conduct, and therefore formed no excuse for it. Their contempt of the memory of David, and ingratitude to him and his son, who had done so much towards advancing them to their present prosperity, were very criminal: but their language concerning his house, as if the entail of the kingdom to his family, though confirmed to him by the faithful oath and covenant of God himself, would now come to nought, was extremely profane, and discovered the infidelity of their hearts. They indeed would have nothing more to do with the house of David, and he could not see to it himself: but the Lord would take care to fulfil his engagements; and David's family could not be destroyed, though it would be corrected or weakened; for the Messiah was to descend from him. Indeed the ten tribes themselves were the chief losers by the revolt.

V. 17. The Benjamites and many of the Simeonites dwelt in Judah; and numbers of the Levites and of other tribes soon after joined them. (2 Chr. xi. 12-17.)

V. 18. It is not certain, whether Rehoboam sent Adoram to demand the taxes of the people, after their dispersion, as a feeble attempt to enforce his imprudent threats; or whether, previously to their departure from Shechem, he sent him to pacify them, with some proposals for an accommodation. But whatever his age, experience, and influence might have been, his office alone rendered him a very improper person for this embassy: for the discontents of the people were excited by the tributes over which he presided. Accordingly he lost his life in a popular tumult, and Rehoboam in a fright hastily fled to Jerusalem. All these measures seem to have been exceedingly impolitic; the result of passion, not of judgment. This is the first time that we read of the kings of Israel riding in a chariot.

V. 19, 20. The defection of Israel from Rehoboam is called rebellion against the house of David: as no misconduct of either Solomon or Rehoboam was sufficient to justify, or even excuse, it; and neither the people, nor Jeroboam, intended to obey God, though they accomplished his purposes, by pursuing their own schemes. No whole tribe, except Judah, and little Benjamin as united to it, adhered to Rehoboam.

V. 21-24. The Lord would not allow Rehoboam to recover the ten tribes, nor was it his will that he should lose Judah: and therefore he mercifully prohibited the war, and thus prevented much bloodshed; though both parties deserved punishment for their sins. It was commendable o ix. 15, 17, 18.

2 Chr. xi. 5-12.
p Judg. ix. 1. 45
-49.

q Gen. xxxii. 30, 31. Judg. viii. 17.
r Ps. xiv. 1. Mark ii. 6-8. Luke
vii. 39.
s xi. 38. 2 Chr.
xx. 20. Is. vii.
9. John xi. 47-
50. Heb. iii. 19.
1 John v. 10.
t viii. 29, 30. 44.
xi. 32. Deut.
xii 5, 6.

u Prov. xxix. 25.
1 Cor. i. 19, 20.

x 9, 9. Ex. i. 10.
Is. xxx. 1.
y Ex. xx. 4. Deut.
iv. 14-18. 2 Kings.
x. 29. xvii. 16.
2 Chr. xi. 15.
Hos. viii. 5-7.
x 5, 6.
z 2 Pet. ii. 19.
a Ex. xxxii. 4, 8.

25 Then Jeroboam ^a built ^b Shechem in mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein; and went out from thence, and built ^c Penuel.

26 And Jeroboam ^r said in his heart, ^s Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David:

27 If this people ^t go up to do sacrifice in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, then shall the heart of this people turn again unto their lord, even unto Rehoboam king of Judah, ^u and they shall kill me, and go again to Rehoboam king of Judah.

28 Whereupon the king ^x took counsel, and made ^y two calves of gold, and said unto them, ^z It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: ^a Behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

29 And he set the one in ^b Beth-el, and the other put he in ^c Dan.

30 And this thing ^d became a sin: for the people went to worship before the one, even unto Dan.

31 And he made ^e an house of high places, and made ^f priests of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sons of Levi.

32 And Jeroboam ordained a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, ^g like unto the feast that is in Judah, and he ^{*} offered upon the altar. So did he in Beth-el, [†] sacrificing unto the calves that he had made: and ^h he placed in Beth-el the priests of the high places which he had made.

b Gen. xxviii. 19.
Hos. iv. 15.
c Judg. xviii. 29
-31.
d xlii. 34. 2 Kings
x. 31. xvii. 21.

e xlii. 32. Ez. xvi.
25. Mos. xlii. 11.
f xlii. 33. Num.
iii. 10. 2 Kings
xvii. 32. 2 Chr.
xi. 14, 15. xlii.
9. Ez. xliiv. 7, 8.

g viii. 2. Lev.
xxiii. 34, &c.
Num. xxix. 12.
&c. Ez. xlii. 8.
Matt. xv. 8, 9.
* Or, went up to the altar.
† Or, to sacrifice.
h Am. vii. 13.

in Rehoboam, that he submitted to the message of the Lord by his prophet, when his loss had been so great, and his preparations were so formidable. But it is probable his more prudent counsellors opposed the war.

V. 25. Jeroboam repaired and fortified Shechem, and Penuel; and perhaps erected palaces, and other public buildings in them, that they might be the seats of his government, on each side of Jordan.

V. 26-29. The Lord had promised Jeroboam that he would give ten tribes to him, and confirm the kingdom over them to his posterity, in case he obeyed his commandments: but he either forgot, or despised, the word of the Lord; and, leaning to his own understanding, he concluded that he never could secure the obedience of the people, if they went up to Jerusalem to worship. For in case Rehoboam permitted them to come and return in safety, (as it is probable he would have done;) their friendly intercourse with their brethren, their social worship, and mutual kindness, would induce them to return to their submission to David's family, and to purchase Rehoboam's favour by killing his competitor. This might indeed seem natural and reasonable, but it contradicted the truth of God; and Jeroboam's wicked policy violated his commandments. To cover his secret intentions, he pretended, that it was too much trouble for the people to go to Jerusalem to worship; and that they might as acceptably serve God nearer home. He therefore made two golden calves, in imitation no doubt of the idolatries that he had witnessed in Egypt, or according to the idolatry of Israel in the wilderness: and he placed them at the southern and northern extremities of his kingdom; at Beth-el, afterwards called on that account Beth-aven, or the house of vanity: and at Dan, where the Danites had formerly established idolatry. These were also reputed sacred places; the one for Jacob's vision and vow, and the other for the customary idolatry which had there prevailed. Thus he made Israel to sin, and introduced the worship of the golden calves, which was perpetuated in the kingdom of Israel, without interruption, till the Assyrian captivity: and the bulk of the people readily concurred in his measures, as suited to their convenieny and inclinations; though the priests, Levites, and many Israelites, were honourable exceptions. It is evident, that Jeroboam meant this worship for JEHOVAH the God of Israel "who brought them out of the land of Egypt:" though it was directly contrary to the law of God, and infinitely dishonourable to his glorious majesty, to be thus represented. Perhaps the people would be less shocked at worshipping the God of Israel under the similitude of the golden calf, than if they had been at once invited to worship Baal: but it made way for that species of idolatry also. Thus the worship of images of Christ, and similar superstitions, in the ancient Romish church, soon introduced the worship of saints and angels. (Notes, Exod. xx. 3-6.)

V. 30. Even unto Dan. The people readily resorted to sacrifice to the appointed places; though sometimes that might occasion them longer journeys, than if they had gone to Jerusalem. Perhaps they often went even from the southern part of the land even to Dan, to maintain communion with those who worshipped there, and who would not be backward in repaying their civility.

V. 31. Temples on high places were erected for the worship of the calves, at Beth-el and Dan; which were intended to serve the purpose to the religion of the ten tribes, that the temple did to Judah. Some think there were several chapels and altars erected, for the conveniency of the worshippers; and perhaps others were added in different parts of the land. For these, he appointed and consecrated priests of the poorest and most illiterate of the people, who would on that account be the more obsequious to him, for their own interest. Or, as others explain the words, he made priests from every extremity of the land, or from every tribe and family without exception. Thus he exempted the people from paying tithes to the Levites, whom he drove out of his kingdom, because they would not concur in his idolatry: and he paid court to the other tribes by admitting them to the priesthood, of which many were ambitious: and in both respects he, no doubt, thought himself, and was considered by others, as a consummate politician.

† Or, went up to, &c.

i Num. xv. 39. Ps. cvi. 39. Is. xxix. 23. Matt. xv. 6. i Mark vii. 13.

33 So he * offered upon the altar which he had made in Beth-el the fifteenth day of the eighth month, even in the month which he had devised of his own heart; and ordained a feast unto the children of Israel: and ^k he offered upon the altar, and † burnt incense.

k xiii. 1. 1 Sam. xiii. 12. 2 Chr. xxvi. 16. † Heb. to burn incense.

V. 32, 33. This feast in the eighth month was intended as an imitation of the feast of tabernacles, which was kept in the seventh month, and it is probable it lasted as many days. But Jeroboam affected the credit of devising an entirely new system; and perhaps he hoped to draw in those who still went up to Jerusalem, by having his feast at a different time. He seems to have acted as priest, in offering sacrifice and burning incense.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—20.

Many wise and pious men have had the severe affliction of foolish and wicked children: and as the Lord alone giveth wisdom, even good instructions will not ensure their prudent and proper conduct. But bad examples generally defeat the effect of wise counsels: and they who are likely to inherit great dignity, are commonly so flattered and indulged, that it is almost a miracle if they are not intoxicated with pride and sensual lusts. Man is a discontented being; and whilst one desire remains ungratified, and one inconvenience unremoved, he is naturally more disposed to murmur, than to be thankful either to God or man, for the multiplied unmerited blessings with which he is surrounded! It is true, that rulers are often oppressive, and make their yoke grievous; and the people possess liberties and privileges, which they have a right in a regular manner to defend: but it is also true, that the people often complain without cause, and in an improper manner; that they do not make proper allowances for human infirmity, and the arduousness of government; that they expect all the advantages of it, whilst they grudge the necessary expenses; and are more anxious about their own interests, than about general equity, or the cause of truth and righteousness. Of these unreasonable dissatisfactions ambitious men are ready to take the advantage, and put themselves in the way to head any formidable opposition to the powers that be, when it can subserve their own purposes. It requires great wisdom to prevent or defeat such pernicious machinations: and if they, who have not prudence or experience adequate to such emergencies would follow the counsel of their real friends, who are older or wiser than themselves, much mischief would be prevented. But, commonly, weak men are the most obstinate, and relish no counsel but what flatters their silly pride, and humours their unreasonable prejudices: and when the companions of a prince's pleasures are his select counsellors, his inclinations, however mischievous, will be preferred to the important interests of the whole kingdom. Yet experience decides that, in general, men best mount by first stooping, prevail by yielding, and rule by becoming serviceable and giving good words: and when this consists with duty, it is in most cases our wisdom and interest. To the haughty indeed it appears degrading and mean: they delight to exert their authority, and show their courage, by boasting, hectoring, and threatening; without considering whether they have power and abilities to bear them out against the enraged opposition which such language and behaviour must excite. By domineering, men expose themselves to the contempt of the wise: their enemies are rejoiced, and their friends are grieved, by it; and they who have power to resist, will scorn to fear those who are above seeking to be loved. Thus, fatal contests are excited, and all parties are hurried on to commit many crimes: yet the Lord overrules the whole, to accomplish his own righteous purpose and holy word! We need not wonder to see those persons recompense their earthly benefactors with reproach and insult, who forget the mercies of God, and oppose his appointments with ingratitude and contempt: but the Lord will take care of the characters, families, and interests of his faithful servants, and they may safely leave their cause in his hand, though they cannot see to it themselves. But when men are left to their own infatuated counsels, they add one mistake to another: they perceive their folly, in some instances, when it is too late; yet, in attempting to rectify their errors, they the more entangle themselves, and expose their friends: and those who were most rash and daring, when danger was out of sight, are generally the most cowardly, when it seems to approach.

V. 21—33.

It is in vain to attempt to disannul the Lord's counsel: when his revealed will is contrary to our pursuits, they should be relinquished, however great our apparent loss may be; and it is his will, and should be our desire, as much as possible to prevent the effusion of human blood. Unbelieving men judge by appearances, and often conclude that safety and prosperity can only be obtained by those measures which the word of God condemns. They engage in enterprises, in which they must either succeed or be ruined; success in this case appears the grand object; and the necessity, they suppose, will warrant or excuse their deviations from general rules: and thus they regard not what wickedness they commit, nor what numbers they involve in the same guilt and condemnation. But faith waits upon God, in the path of duty, for the performance of his own promises, whatever difficulties may seem to impede it: and it perceives and aims at nobler objects, than the success of any temporal project, or even the preservation of life itself. The duplicity of politicians often consists in concealing their secret selfish purposes, under plausible ostensible pretences: but men frequently conjecture aright in such matters: and God sees, and will expose the thought of their hearts, notwithstanding all their disguises. The benefit of the public is often the plea: personal impunity for their crimes, the retaining of their places, or the increase of their own authority, are the real motives of their conduct. The people, however, are generally willing to gratify their rulers in matters of religion; provided it be easy, cheap, pompous, or sensual; and if a few scruples intervene, the revival of some old superstition,

CHAP. XIII.

A man of God from Judah prophesies, that Josiah of David's race should defile the altar at Beth-el; and gives a sign, 1—3. Jeroboam's hand, stretched forth against him, withers; and the altar is rent, 4, 5. Jeroboam's hand is restored at the prophet's prayer, 6. He refuses entertainment and a reward, and leaves Beth-el, 7—10. He is seduced, and brought back by an old prophet, who denounces the judgment of God against him for his disobedience, 11—22. A lion kills him on his way home, 23—25. The old prophet fetches his body, buries it with lamentations, and confirms his prophecy, 26—32. Jeroboam persists in his evil ways, 33, 34.

a xii. 22. 2 Kings
xvii. 23.
b xiv. 7, 8. 2
Chr. ix. 29.
c xii. 33. 2 Chr.
xxvi. 18.
* Or, offer.

AND, behold, there came ^a a man of God out of Judah ^b by the word of the LORD unto Beth-el: and ^c Jeroboam stood by the altar to * burn incense.

2 And he cried against the altar in the word of the LORD, and said, ^d O altar, altar, thus saith the LORD; Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, ^e Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee.

3 And ^f he gave a sign the same day, saying, This is the sign which the LORD hath spoken; Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out.

4 And it came to pass, when king Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, which had cried against the altar in Beth-el, that he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, ^g Lay hold on him. And ^h his hand, which he put forth against him, dried up, so that he could not pull it in again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, ⁱ according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.

6 And the king answered and said

d Deut. xxxii. 1.
Is. i. 2. lviii. 1.
Jer. xxii. 29.
Ez. xxxvi. 1. 4. xxxvii. 4. Luke
xix. 40.
e 2 Kings xxii.
1, 2. xxlii. 15—
18. Is. xlii. 28.

f Ex. iv. 3—5. 8, 9. vii. 10. Deut.
xiii. 1—3. Is. vii.
11—14. xxxviii.
6—8.

g 2 Chr. xvi. 10.
xxv. 15, 16. Jer.
xx. 2. xxvi. 8—11. 20—23.
xxxviii. 4—6.
Am. vii. 10—13.
Acts vi. 12—14.
h Gen. xix. 11. 2
Kings vi. 18—
20. Jer. xx. 4—6.
xxviii. 16, 17.
Luke iii. 19, 20.
Acts ix. 4, 5.
xiii. 8—11. Rev.
xi. 5.
i xxii. 28. 35. Ex.
ix. 18. 25. Num.
xvi. 23—35.
Deut. xviii. 22.
Jer. xxviii. 16,
17. Mark xvi.
20. Acts v. 1—10.

some plea of antiquity, of liberality of sentiment, or of agreement, in the main, with more scrupulous persons, though expedient alterations are adopted, will generally conciliate the minds of the majority to any religion that suits their conveniency, agrees with their interests, and does not disquiet their consciences, or disturb them in gratifying their lusts.—When persons in authority aim to render religion conducive to their secular purposes, they generally love to bring every thing under their own management. The ceremonies must be of their own devising, and the ministers of their own selecting: and indeed a hireling ignorant priesthood well suits with an idolatrous or superstitious worship, a usurping tyrannical prince, or a rebellious apostate people. But the pride, arrogance, and enmity of the human heart never appear more horrible, than when it presumptuously dares to change the divine appointments for those “which a man hath devised of his own heart,” and to mould the worship of God into contrariety to his will; when ministers, so called, can be found shameless enough to countenance such arrogance; and when whole nations of professing worshippers quietly submit to it: and nothing in such a case, but a torrent of ungodliness and most awful judgments, can be expected.—But alas, how soon all earthly prosperity is clouded! every remarkable prevalence of true religion on earth hath hitherto been succeeded by lamentable declensions, apostacies, or divisions. May the Lord hasten that time, when our Prince of Peace shall set up his kingdom of truth and of righteousness all over the earth, and when his cause shall finally and universally prevail!

NOTES.

CHAP. XIII. V. 1. To burn incense. Jeroboam seems on this occasion to have officiated himself: and to have burned incense at the same altar on which the burnt sacrifices had been. As the typical meaning of these institutions was not at all understood, and as the divine appointment was entirely disregarded, every kind of innovation was made without scruple.

V. 2. We are not informed of this prophet's name; but he came from Judah, in the name of JEHOVAH, whose worship at the temple Jeroboam and Israel had forsaken; and he predicted the prevalency of the house of David, whose authority they had rejected. With holy boldness and great earnestness, he cried against the altar, whilst Jeroboam and his attendants were performing their religious rites. As the destruction of this newly instituted worship was to be expressly foretold, and the stupidity of the idolaters themselves to be severely reprov'd, he addressed himself to the altar, and not to the worshippers.—This prediction was delivered above three hundred years before Josiah was born: yet during all those years no one of the house of David gave his son, or assumed himself, this name, or attempted to fulfil the prophecy, until the appointed time was arrived; and then Amon, a wicked prince, named his son Josiah!—This extraordinary prophecy was a plain declaration, that the family of David would continue, and be honoured as the supporters of true religion, when the kingdom of the ten tribes should be incapable of resisting them. The burning of men's bones upon the altar was the greatest contempt of it imaginable: and the offering of the priests themselves upon it the greatest mark of God's abhorrence of their crimes. (Marg. Ref.) k Ex. viii. 3. 28.

ix. 29. x. 17. xii.
32. Num. xxi. 7.
1 Sam. xii. 19.
Jer. xxxvii. 3.
Acts viii. 21.
l Ex. viii. 12. 13.
Num. xii. 13.
1 Sam. xii. 23.
Matt. v. 44.
Luke vi. 27. 28.
xxiii. 34. Acts
vii. 60. Rom.
xii. 14. 21. Jam.
v. 16—18.
* Heb. the face of the.
m Gen. xviii. 5.
Judg. xiii. 15.
xix. 21.
n 1 Sam. ix. 7. 8.
2 Kings v. 15.
Mat. i. 10. Acts
viii. 13—20.
1 Pet. v. 2.
o Num. xxii. 18.
xxiv. 13. Esth.
v. 3. Mark vi.
23.
p 2 Kings v. 16.
26. 27. Mark vi.
11. 2 Cor. xi.
9, 10.
q 21. 22. 1 Sam.
xv. 22. Job xxiii.
12. John xiii.
17. xv. 9, 10.
r Num. xvi. 26.
Deut. xiii. 13—
18. Ps. cxli. 4.
Rom. xvi. 17.
1 Cor. v. 11.
Eph. v. 11.
2 John 10, 11.
Rev. xviii. 4.
s 20, 21. Num.
xxiii. 4, 5. xxiv.
2. 1 Sam. x. 11.
2 Kings xxiii.
19. Ez. xiii. 2.
16. Mat. vii. 22.
2 Pet. ii. 16.
† Heb. son.
‡ 1 Tim. iii. 5.

unto the man of God, ^k Entreat now the face of the LORD thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored me again. ^l And the man of God besought ^{*} the LORD, and the king's hand was restored him again, and became as it was before.

7 And the king said unto the man of God, Come home with me, and ^m refresh thyself, and I will give thee ⁿ a reward.

8 And the man of God said unto the king, ^o If thou wilt give me half thine house, ^p I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place :

9 For ^q so was it charged me by the word of the LORD, saying, ^r Eat no bread, nor drink water, nor turn again by the same way that thou camest.

10 So he went another way, and returned not by the way that he came to Beth-el.

11 ¶ Now there dwelt ^s an old prophet in Beth-el; and his [†] sons ^t came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Beth-el: the words which he had spoken unto the king, them they told also to their father.

12 And their father said unto them,

What way went he? for his sons had seen what way the man of God went, which came from Judah.

13 And he said unto his sons, ^u Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him the ass, and he rode thereon, 14 And went after the man of God, and found him ^x sitting under an oak: and he said unto him, ^y Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah? And he said, I am.

15 Then he said unto him, Come home with me and eat bread.

16 And he said, I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee: neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place

17 For [‡] it was said to me ^z by the word of the LORD, Thou shalt eat no bread nor drink water there, nor turn again to go by the way that thou camest.

18 He said unto him, I am a prophet also as thou art; and ^a an angel spake unto me by the word of the LORD, saying, Bring him back with thee into thine house, that he may eat bread, and drink water. ^b But he lied unto him.

19 So ^c he went back with him, and did eat bread in his house, and drank water.

V. 3—6. The judgment inflicted upon Jeroboam, and the rending of the altar as it had been foretold, intimidated him, so that he durst not attempt any thing further against the man of God, whose message was thus confirmed. In this emergency he had no confidence in his idol-gods, his upstart priests, or his self-invented sacrifices, but he expected help from the prayers of the prophet. He therefore begged him to entreat the face, (or the favour,) of the Lord his God for him: but he neither acknowledged his guilt, nor desired instructions from the prophet, nor sought forgiveness of his sins, nor desisted from his idolatry. He merely desired the removal of the divine judgment, which the prophet readily prayed for and obtained.

V. 7—10. Jeroboam neither repented nor returned thanks to God for the restoration of his withered hand; but he was willing to entertain and reward the prophet for it; perhaps supposing that he was ready to do any thing for hire, like his own priests. But the Lord had prescribed to his servant a different conduct. As a solemn protestation against the idolatry of Beth-el, he was forbidden to eat or drink in that city, whatever hardship he might endure. God would not accept their most costly sacrifices: nor would he allow his servant to accept of any gift or entertainment from its inhabitants; or to do any thing which had the appearance of having fellowship with them, whose works of darkness he was sent to reprove. Nay, the more fully to express his abhorrence of their apostacy, and his determination not to make himself in any way familiar with them, or aught belonging to them, no not even with their high ways, he was ordered to return by another road! And, though solicited by the king himself, and promised some royal recompense; and though probably he was poor, as well as hungry and weary; he thus far obediently observed his instructions.

V. 11—19. This old prophet continued to reside at Beth-el, after the priests and Levites had been driven away, and after idolatry was publicly established there: yet he entered no protest against it; and his sons were present at the idolatrous sacrifice, and made no secret of it. These circumstances, joined to his conduct on this occasion, are convincing proofs, that though called a prophet, he was not a real godly man. Perhaps he had been educated in the schools of the prophets, and had been favoured with the Spirit of prophecy. This had acquired him the reputation of a prophet, and he had maintained it in the days of Solomon, when religion was respected. But when the change took place under Jeroboam, being a carnal man, he preferred his ease and interest to his religion, and made no opposition to the prevailing party: perhaps satisfying his conscience with holding his own sentiments privately, and not actually joining in the idolatry. Yet he was still desirous of the reputation of a prophet, as far as he could safely retain it: and this appears to have been his leading motive, in enticing the prophet of Judah back again; and u Num. xxii. 21.

Judg. v. 10. x.
4. 2 Sam. xix.
26.

x xix. 4. John
iv. 6. 34. 1 Cor.
iv. 11, 12. 2 Cor.
xi. 27. Phil. iv.
12, 13.
y 1.

† Heb. a word was.
z xx. 35. 1 Thes.
iv. 15.

a Num. xxii. 35
Judg. vi. 11, 12.
xiii. 3.

b Is. ix. 15. Jer.
v. 12. 31. xxiii.
14. 17. 32. xxviii.
15. 16. Ez. xiii.
9, 10. 22. Matt.
vii. 15. xxiv.
24. 2 Pet. ii. 1.
1 John iv. 1.
Rev. xx. 10.
c 9. 2 Pet. ii. 18, 19.

20 And it came to pass, as they sat at the table, that ^e the word of the LORD came unto the prophet that brought him back :

21 And he cried unto the man of God that came from Judah, saying, ^f Thus saith the LORD, Forasmuch as ^g thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the LORD, and hast not kept the commandment which the LORD thy God commanded thee ;

22 But camest back, and hast eaten bread, and drunk water in the place, of the which the LORD did say to thee, Eat no bread, and drink no water, ^h thy carcass shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, after he had eaten bread, and after he had drunk, that he saddled for him the ass, to wit, for the prophet whom he had brought back.

24 And when he was gone, ⁱ a lion met him by the way, and slew him : and his carcass was cast in the way, and the ass stood by it, the lion also stood by the carcass.

25 And, behold, men passed by, and saw the carcass cast in the way, and the lion standing by the carcass : and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt.

26 And when the prophet that brought him back from the way heard thercof, he said, It is ^k the man of God who was disobedient unto the word of the LORD : therefore the LORD hath delivered him unto the lion, which hath ^{*} torn him, and slain him, according to the word of the LORD which he spake unto him.

27 And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him.

28 And he went and found his carcass cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcass ; ^l the lion had not eaten the carcass, nor [†] torn the ass.

29 And the prophet took up the carcass of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back : and the old prophet came to the city to mourn, and to bury him.

30 And he laid his carcass in his own grave ; and they ^m mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother !

31 And it came to pass, after he had buried him, that he spake to his sons, saying, When I am dead, then bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried ; ⁿ lay my bones beside his bones :

32 ^o For the saying which he cried by the word of the LORD against the altar in Beth-el, and against all ^p the houses of the high places which are ^q in the cities of Samaria, shall surely come to pass.

^k 2 Sam. xii. 14. Ps. cxix. 120. Prov. xi. 31. 1 Cor. xi. 30. Heb. xii. 28, 29.

^{*} Heb. broken.

^f 17. Gen. iii. 6. Sc. Esth. v. 14. vi. 13. Jer. ii. 19. Gal. i. 8, 9. ^g Lev. x. 3. Num. xx. 12. 24. 1 Sam. iv. 18. 2 Sam. vi. 7. xii. 9—11. xxiv. 13. Rev. iii. 19.

^h xiv. 13. 2 Chr. xxi. 19, 20. Is. xiv. 19, 20. Jer. xxii. 19.

ⁱ xx. 36. 2 Kings ii. 24. Am. v. 19. 1 Cor. xi. 31. 32. 1 Pet. iv. 17, 18.

^l xvii. 4. 6. Lev. x. 2. 5. Job xxxviii. 11. Ps. cxlviii. 7, 8. Jer. v. 22, 23. Dan. iii. 22, 27. 28. vi. 22—24. Acts xvi. 26. [†] Heb. broken.

^m xiv. 13. Jer. xxii. 19. Acts viii. 2.

ⁿ Num. xxiii. 10. 2 Kings xxiii. 17, 18. Ps. xxvii. 9.

^o 2. 2 Kings xxiii. 16, 19.

^p xii. 29. Lev. xxvi. 30. ^q xvi. 24. John iv. 4, 5.

not kindness to him as some, or malice against him as others, have conjectured. Many would doubtless applaud the resolution and disinterestedness of the man of God, who at last was not injured by Jeroboam : and perhaps this old prophet was afraid of being censured for his cowardice, connivance, and selfishness. He might hope to avert this disgrace by showing kindness to the man of God ; and he found he might do it, without incurring Jeroboam's displeasure. He therefore followed him, and found him sitting under a tree, weary and in need of refreshment, which would add energy to his temptation : and when he perceived him decided against eating bread at Beth-el, he assured him that he also was a prophet, and came by commandment from God to bring him back ; thus imposing upon him by speaking lies in the name of the Lord ! And the other perhaps supposed that he might refresh himself at the house of a prophet in Beth-el, though not in the house of an idolater. But as the commandment of God to him had been immediate and express ; and he had only this man's own word for it that he was a prophet, or that the Lord had spoken to him ; his conduct was very criminal, and calculated to weaken the effect of his message upon the consciences of Jeroboam and his other auditors ; and doubtless his judgment was on this occasion bribed by his inclinations. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 20—22. As the Lord inspired Balaam, contrary to his intentions, to pronounce blessings, and to utter, though doubtless with the greatest reluctance, prophecies concerning Israel : so was this man constrained to pronounce sentence against the man of God, whom he had seduced into disobedience ; and thus to publish the shame of his own horrible imposture, and to read against himself a more dreadful doom, except he repented. The sentence was direct, that the prophet should not die in peace at home, to be buried in his own sepulchre : but the time and circumstances of his death were not specified.

V. 23—32. The old prophet did not accompany the prophet of Judah, perhaps apprehensive of some divine judgment overtaking him : but some think, that he supplied him with the ass on which he rode, and that he had come on foot. The lion, commissioned of God, slew the prophet, but did not devour his body ; and he neither hurt nor frightened away the ass : nay, he behaved so tamely, that travellers ventured past him, perhaps at a distance ! And r xii. 31 — 33.

2 Chr. xi. 15.

xlii. 9. Am. iv.

6—11.

* Heb. returned and made.

s Num. i. 51. iii.

10. xvii. 5. 12,

13.

† Heb. filled his hand. Ex. xxviii. 41. Judg. xvii. 12.

33 ¶ After this thing Jeroboam^r returned not from his evil way, but^{*} made again of the lowest of the people priests of the high places: ^s whosoever would, he † consecrated him, and he became one of the priests of the high places.

34 And this thing^t became sin unto the house of Jeroboam, even^u to cut it off, and to destroy it from off the face of the earth.

t xii. 30. 2 Kings

x. 31. xvii. 21

u xii. 28. xiv. 10

xv. 29, 30.

even the old prophet ventured, and was allowed, unmolested, to take away his body for burial! All these miraculous circumstances marked his death as a divine rebuke for his disobedience, in eating bread at idolatrous Beth-el;
and both counteracted the conclusion, which Jeroboam might have been tempted to draw from his death against the truth of his message, and formed a solemn proof, how God abhorred, and would have all his people abhor, this newly instituted worship.—Thus, for one offence, a faithful servant of God was punished with immediate death, being “chastened of the Lord, that he should not be con“demned with the world:” whilst the lying prophet, and the idolatrous king, escaped with impunity, being reserved to the punishments of a future state; which were in this instance loudly proclaimed! The old prophet indeed paid respect to the man of God, and expressed his conviction that his predictions would be verified, and a concern about his own bones. But he seems to have expressed no humiliation for his enormous crimes, no tokens of true repentance, no care about his soul: he did not depart from Bethel, nor enter a public protest against Jeroboam’s idolatry; nor do any thing, which many a hypocrite hath not equalled or exceeded, in attempting to bolster up his own presumption, or to impose upon others. Nay, he appears to have been desirous of gratifying his own vanity, and his claim to be considered as a prophet, when he buried the man of God in his own sepulchre, and lamented over him. —“Alas, my “brother!” He was, however, instrumental in accomplishing the Lord’s word: and the prophet of Judah being buried at Beth-el, with a monumental inscription, would tend to keep his prediction in remembrance, and be an abiding protest against the worship of the golden calves.—
The man of God from Judah appears to have spoken more prophecies than are mentioned in the beginning of the chapter: and though the city Samaria was not yet built, the historian calls the cities in that neighbourhood, The cities of Samaria; in some of which Jeroboam had built high places.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

The Lord often meets sinners in the midst of their crimes, with alarming indications of his displeasure, to show that “their way is perverse before him.”—It requires great fortitude to deliver faithfully the messages of God, especially to those in authority: for they will certainly exasperate the proud and ungodly of every description, whether profane, superstitious, or hypocritical. But the Lord will bear those out whom he sends, and who simply trust and obey him; and faith in him is sufficient to overcome the fear of man. They who are thus employed should speak and act decidedly, as men in earnest, calling upon the very inanimate creation to testify, as it were, against the crimes of presumptuous offenders, who will not regard the word of God; in order that a deeper impression may be left upon the minds of their hearers.—The Lord is peculiarily offended with those, who attempt any thing against such intrepid reprovers of sin; and they, who have most insulted his servants, are often brought by affliction to pay court to them, and to desire their prayers. Nor ought this ever to be refused: for by returning good for evil, their severity against men’s crimes is proved to be connected with compassionate love for their persons; and in answer to such prayers, God will often bestow temporal mercies upon impenitent sinners, though continuing such they cannot escape the damnation of hell.—Carnal men frequently betray their impenitency under convictions, even by their concessions: they acknowledge the true believer to be the servant of God, but they do not imitate him! they feel the vanity of their own superstitions or worldly idols, but they will not renounce them! they desire the removal of their afflictions, rather than the forgiveness of their sins, or the mortification of their lusts! and they show kindness or offer presents to the minister who prays for them, whilst they requite the Lord with base ingratitude!—When persons are living in open sins, and causing others to sin by their influence and authority, the “men of God” should manifest their abhorrence of their crimes, by refusing to accept of any favours, and by separating from all intercourse with them. And when those, who are in low circumstances, act in this manner with firmness and meekness, and plainly assign the reasons of their conduct, it will be one of the most alarming and convincing warnings which can possibly be given. Ministers and Christians must often go among ungodly people, but they ought never to make themselves familiar with them; and should show that they are so uneasy in their company, that none of their temporal good things can bribe them needlessly to prolong or repeat their visits. In order to this, they must be superior to the love of worldly pleasure and interest, inured to hardship and self-denial, and well acquainted with the commandments of God.—In the mystery of Providence false religion is permitted to be planted, and to prevail, to the deceiving of many: but the Lord keeps the times and seasons in his own power; he foresees and determines those events which are most distant, and appear most contin-gent: and he will in his appointed time destroy every species of irreligion or superstition, by one of the house of David, of nobler name and greater excellency than Josiah.—But the tokens of his displeasure on the instruments of iniquity proclaim his awful vengeance upon the sinners themselves: and none will become sacrifices to his justice with deeper detestation and contempt, than hireling ministers, who for filthy lucre have countenanced false religion, to the destruction of the souls of those who blindly followed such blind guides.

CHAP. XIV.

Jeroboam sends his wife, disguised, to Ahijah the prophet, to inquire concerning his son Abijah, who was sick, 1—4. Ahijah, forewarned by God, denounces to her the destruction of Jeroboam's family, the death of her son, and the rejection of Israel, 5—16. Abijah dies, and is buried, 17, 18. Jeroboam dies, and is succeeded by Nadab, 19, 20. Rehoboam reigns over Judah, and they provoke the Lord by their wickedness, 21—24. Shishak carries much treasure, and the golden shields, from Jerusalem, 25, 26. Rehoboam makes brazen shields in their stead, 27, 28. His acts, and wars with Jeroboam, 29, 30. He dies and is succeeded by Abijah, 31.

AT^a that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam^b fell sick.
 2 And Jeroboam said to his wife, Arise, I pray thee, and^c disguise thyself, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam; and get thee to Shiloh: behold, there is Ahijah the prophet, which^d told me that I should be king over this people.
 3 And^e take^{*} with thee ten loaves, and^f cracknels, and a[†] cruse of honey, and go to him: [‡] he shall tell thee what shall become of the child.
 4 And Jeroboam's wife did so, and arose, and went to[§] Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could

^a xiii. 33, 34.

^b 12, 13 Ex. xx.
⁵ 1 Sam. iv. 19,
 20. xxxi. 2.

^c xxii. 30. 1 Sam.
 xxviii. 8. 2 Chr.
 xviii. 29. Luke
 xii. 2. Heb. iv.
 13.

^d xi. 29—30.

^e xiii. 7. 1 Sam.
 ix. 7, 8. 2 Kings
 v. 5. 15. viii. 7
 —9.

^{*} Heb. in thing
 hand.

[†] Or, cakes.

[‡] Or, bottles.

[§] 2 Kings i. 2.
 viii. 8.
 5 xi. 29.

V. 11—19.

The cause of God does not admit of a neutrality: in times of general apostacy and increasing infidelity and ungodliness, we are especially called to bear our testimony, without yielding to fear or shame: and if any professed christian will not confess Christ in this world, Christ will not own him at the day of judgment. But if a reputed prophet, an old prophet, who appeared zealous for the truth whilst credit and advantage accrued from it, purchase security by conniving at prevailing abominations, he may justly be suspected of hypocrisy. These are indeed “dumb dogs” that cannot bark,” when the Lord is robbed of his worship and honour; and are not fit persons to be employed by him, or countenanced by his faithful people. In some cases they are even worse than the active instruments of deception: because they sin against greater light, more stumble and mislead unestablished persons, and bring the deeper disgrace upon the truths which they have professed. Such time-servers, however, are often willing to be thought the servants of God by religious people, though ashamed of him among his enemies: and for that purpose, they will covertly seek the acquaintance of, and show civility to, those ministers who are in reputation for faithfulness. But they are the most dangerous, because the most plausible and unsuspected, of all tempters to real Christians, whose candour makes them willing to hope the best of them, to credit their professions, and to return their civilities: having learned to be silent, when called to defend the truth, they will soon learn to forge lies in the name of God, when it can answer their purpose; and by various specious pretences, they obtain the esteem of the unwary, and abuse their confidence by inveigling them into disobedience. And tempters of this description often prevail, when the terrors of persecution, and the allurements of preferment, have been resolutely withstood. ‘Surely such good men would never propose an ill thing! they bring the word of God for it! they were so very kind, and could have no interest in it!’ For our own sakes, and for the credit of the gospel, let us all with one consent withdraw from such worldly professors of religion, and be upon our guard against them: let them decidedly serve God, or Baal, that we may know what they are; or let us refuse to have any acquaintance with them.

V. 20—34.

Nothing can excuse any act of wilful disobedience: the tempter hath the greater sin, but the tempted is criminal; and the offences of those who are much honoured and employed of God, are of all others the most dishonourable to him, as they rivet the prejudices and embolden the blasphemies of his enemies. Such offenders therefore shall by no means escape correction in this world: and perhaps their very tempters shall be employed to denounce, or inflict, the chastisements of the Lord upon them: or in other respects they shall be made very severe and alarming; whilst the wicked sometimes escape here, being reserved unto the day of judgment to be punished. The exact obedience of the irrational creatures to their Maker's will, forms a reproach of man's rebellion: for he can restrain or change the very nature of every creature, to render it subservient to his wise and righteous purpose. Happy are they who are habitually ready for death: even if the Lord should call them hence by some awful rebuke for an incidental transgression; whilst they are made useful warnings to others, they will be found safe and happy themselves. But many will show respect to the servants of the Lord, assent to the truth of their words, appear to lament their death, and wish to have their lot with them in another world; who yet live and die impenitent: and many are warned, convinced, and alarmed, who stifle their consciences, and practise increasing wickedness, to the utter ruin of themselves and those connected with them. Let all then fear provoking God to leave them to final hardness of heart: let us take heed and beware of hypocrisy; let us dread prospering in sinful ways; let us tremble whilst we read this chapter, and pray earnestly to be kept from every delusion and temptation, and to be enabled to walk with self-denying perseverance in the way of God's commandments!

* Heb stood for his hour. Gen. xxv. 1. xlviii. 10. Eccl. xli. 3.

not see; for his eyes * were set by reason of his age.

5 And the LORD said unto Ahijah, Behold, the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son; for he is sick: thus and thus shalt thou say unto her: for it shall be, when she cometh in, that she shall feign herself to be another woman.

6 And it was so, when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, that he said, ⁱ Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam; * why feignest thou thyself to be another? for I am sent to thee with † heavy tidings.

7 Go, tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, ¹ Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel,

8 And ^m rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it thee:

and yet thou hast not been as my servant David, ^a who kept my commandments, and who followed me with all his heart, to do that only which was right in mine eyes;

9 But ^o hast done evil above all that were before thee: for ^p thou hast gone and made thee other gods, and molten images, ^q to provoke me to anger, and hast ^r cast me behind thy back:

10 Therefore, behold, ^s I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut off from Jeroboam ^t him that pisseth against the wall, and ^u him that is shut up and left in Israel, and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, ^v as a man taketh away dung, till it be all gone.

11 ^y Him that dieth of Jeroboam in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat: for the LORD hath spoken it.

a iii. 14. xi. 33. 38. xv. 5. Acts xlii. 22. 36. o 16. xii. 23. xlii. 33. xv. 34. xvi. 31. Deut. xxxii. 21. p Deut. xxxii. 16. 17. Judg. v. 8. 2 Chr. xi. 15. Ps. cvi. 19. 20. cxv. 4-8. Is. xlv. 9-20. Jer. x. 14-16. q 22. Deut. ix. 8-16. 2 Kings xxi. 3. xxxiii. 26. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 6. Ps. lxxviii. 40. 56. Jer. vii. 9, 10. 17. 1 Cor. x. 22. r Neh. ix. 26. Ps. l. 17. Ez. xxxii. 35. s xv. 23. 30. xxi. 21. Am. iii. 6. t xvi. 11. 1 Sam. xxv. 22. 34. 2 Kings ix. 8. 9. u Deut. xxxii. 36. 1 Sam. ii. 30. x 1 Kings ix. 37. xli. 13. Job xx. 7. Ps. lxxiii. 10. Is. v. 25. xiv. 19. 23. Jer. viii. 2. Ez. xxvi. 4. Zeph. i. 17. Mal. ii. 3. Luke xiv. 34. 35. y xvi. 4. xxi. 24. Is. lxvi. 24. Jer. xv. 3. Ez. xxxix. 17-19. Rev. xix. 17, 18.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIV. V. 1-4. Henceforth, in the books of the Kings, we have the history of Judah and Israel carried on together, or with continued transitions from one to the other. But the latter part of the second book of Chronicles more fully relates the history of the kings of Judah, and drops that of the kings of Israel, except as connected with the other.—Jeroboam had taken no notice of Ahijah, either in getting possession of the kingdom, or in establishing his idolatrous worship at Dan and Beth-el; being conscious that the prophet would have opposed and condemned his whole conduct. But when his son Ahijah was dangerously ill, he wished to know from the prophet whether he would recover, or not: for he was convinced, that more dependence might be placed on his word than on that of all his priests. But he did not inquire, Wherefore the Lord corrected him? or how he might avert his displeasure? He did not desire the prophet's instructions or prayers; or even his directions what to do in order to his son's recovery: he only wished to be relieved from his anxiety, by being informed whether he would recover, or not. He would not go himself to the prophet, fearing his severe reproofs and warnings: and perhaps being unwilling that the people should discover his own private judgment concerning his calves, and their priests, &c. Nor would he confide the business to any servant, but sent his wife: yet she must go in disguise, as the wife of a husbandman, with a present suitable to one in that station, to inquire about her son, without informing the prophet of her rank! Alas, what ideas must he have had of the infinite and omniscient God, that he should expect him to reveal to his prophet, whether the son of this unknown person would recover; without revealing to him who it was that came to inquire of him!—Ahijah was infirm, and blind with age; and, not being fitted as formerly for active service, he lived retired, and probably much respected, at Shiloh; lamenting, doubtless, though he could not prevent, the sin and misery of his people.

V. 5, 6. The Lord informed his servant of the whole contrivance by immediate revelation, and instructed him what message to deliver from him. Though the wife of Jeroboam came to the prophet; yet, as he was commissioned to declare to her the purpose of God, he told her, that he was sent to her with heavy tidings: and, as she came in hypocrisy, and Jeroboam had apostatized to idolatry, he showed no manner of respect to her rank, or to that of her husband.

V. 9-11. Jeroboam intended that his calves, at Dan and Beth-el, should represent the God of Israel, who brought the nation out of the land of Egypt; and would have his subjects to think, that they were worshipping the God of their fathers. But the Lord called them, "other gods;" for as he cannot be represented by any similitude, so he abhors all image-worship as the grossest idolatry. None of the rulers or judges of Israel had acted so wickedly: Saul, who had been rejected for his rebellion, had not committed open idolatry; much less had he used his authority to promote it. Even Solomon, for whose apostacy the ten tribes had been rent from his son, had not established idolatry by a law, as Jeroboam had done; nor had any thing so atrocious been attempted by Israel since it became a nation. Such judgments therefore were denounced against Jeroboam's house, as had never before been inflicted. By "him" that is shut up and left in Israel," may be meant, "every one who has taken refuge in the most fortified cities;" and "every one that has escaped from the more general devastations;" or, in general, all, without exception, how ever secure they might suppose themselves to be: even these would be pursued and cut off. Or, an allusion may be made to those peculiar treasures, which are shut up for 12 Arise thou therefore, get thee to thine own house: and ^z when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die.

13 And all Israel ^a shall mourn for him, and bury him: for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him ^b there is found some good thing toward the LORD God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

14 Moreover ^c the LORD shall raise him up a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam that day: ^d but what? even now.

15 For ^e the LORD shall smite Israel, as a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall root up Israel ^f out of this good land which he gave to their fathers, and ^g shall scatter them beyond the river, ^h because they have made their groves, ⁱ provoking the LORD to anger.

16 And ^k he shall give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, ^l who did sin, and who made Israel to sin.

17 ¶ And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, and came to ^m Tirzah: and ⁿ when she came to the threshold of the door, the child died;

18 And they buried him: and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by the hand of his servant Abijah the prophet.

19 And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he ^o warred, and how he reigned, behold, they are written ^p in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

20 And the days which Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty years: and he ^q slept with his fathers, and Nadab his son reigned in his stead.

21 ¶ And Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. ^r Rehoboam was forty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, ^s the city which the LORD did choose out of all the tribes of Israel, ^t to put his name there. And his mother's name was ^u Naamah an Ammonitess.

security in the safest repositories, and are reserved to the last, when all else is spent; and yet must be parted with, or will be searched out and seized upon. Indeed the house of Jeroboam was become as offensive to the Lord, as dung would be in a man's habitation; and should therefore be taken away till there was none left. Nor should any of his family, save Abijah, be buried, but their dead bodies should be left above ground, till the dogs or the fowls of the air devoured them, to their deeper disgrace and abhorrence.

V. 13. Abijah was the only person of all the house of Jeroboam, that was well disposed to the worship and service of JEHOVAH: and, it is probable, he had expressed strong disapprobation of his father's idolatry, and a purpose of suppressing it, if he should ever have it in his power. His removal was therefore a judgment upon Israel, who were unworthy of so pious a prince to reign over them: and it was the earnest of the entire destruction of Jeroboam's family, and a sort of preparation for it. It seems that Israel, though generally apostate, had some sense of Abijah's worth, and of their loss by his death, and sincerely mourned for him. (18.)

V. 14. But what? even now. That is, 'Do not think that these judgments are distant events; but prepare for them, and consider what will be the consequence, if they should come immediately: for they are even now at hand!' In two years after Jeroboam's death, Baasha utterly extirpated his family. Some, however, interpret the clause to mean, that the desolation of Jeroboam's house should merely be an introduction to still greater calamities on Israel.

V. 15, 16. These verses emphatically predict the enfeebled, distracted state of Israel, until they were given up finally at the Assyrian captivity. They were punished for "willingly walking after Jeroboam's commandment" to worship the golden calves: and concurring in his revolt from the house of David, and the worship of God. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 19. The book, &c. These chronicles, or words of days, or journals, were the public records of the kingdom, from whence extracts seem to have been made by the inspired penmen, with such additions as were suited for instruction. If any one wished further to gratify his curiosity, he was referred to the original records: but these have now long since been buried in oblivion. The same may be said of The book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah, (29,) which were the records of that kingdom, and not that part of holy writ, which we call the Books of Chronicles. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 21. Rehoboam having been born one year before David's death, and having had his education in the best years of his father's reign, had abundant opportunity of becoming a wiser man than he proved to be. Naamah is supposed to have been the daughter of Shobi, the Ammonite, who was kind to David in Absalom's rebellion; (Note, 2 Sam. xvii. 27:) and Shobi having been proselyted to the religion of Israel, David married his son Solomon to his daughter, perhaps out of gratitude for his kindness. He had himself married the daughter of Talmi the king of Geshur: but the character of Absalom, his son by her, should have cautioned him against such marriages. It is very doubtful whether Naamah ever cordially embraced the true religion: and as Solomon worshipped the gods of Ammon among the rest, it has been thought that she at last became one of his seducers.

u Judg. iii. 7. 12.
iv. 1. 2 Chr. xi.
1. Jer. iii. 7-11.
x 9. Deu. iv. 24.
xxix 28. xxxii.
16-21. Ps.
lxxviii. 58. Is lxxv. 3. 4. 1 Cor.
x. 22.

y Ez. xvi. 47, 48.

z iii. 2. Deu. xii.
2. Is. lviii. 6.

2. Ez. xvi. 24, 25

* Or, standing images, or, statues.

a 2 Kings xvii. 9.

10 xxi. 3-7.

2 Chr. xxviii. 4.

b xv. 12. xxii. 46.

Gen. xix. 5.

Deut. xxiii. 17.

Judg. xix. 22.

2 Kings xxiii. 7.

Rom. i. 24-27.

1 Cor. vi. 9.

c xi. 40. 2 Chr.

xii. 2-4.

d vii. 51. xv. 18.

2 Chr. xii. 9-11.

Ps. cxxviii. 1.

e x. 16, 17. 2 Chr.

ix. 15, 16. Prov.

xxviii. 5. Ec. ii.

18, 19.

22 And ^u Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and ^x they provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they had committed, ^y above all that their fathers had done.

23 For they also ^z built them high places, and ^{*} images, and ^a groves, on every high hill, and under every green tree.

24 And ^b there were also Sodomites in the land: and they did according to all the abominations of the nations which the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

25 And it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that ^c Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem:

26 And ^d he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he even took away all: and he took away all ^e the shields of gold which Solomon had made.

27 And king Rehoboam ^f made in their stead brazen shields, and committed ^f them unto the hands of the chief of the ^{*} guard, which kept the door of the king's house.

28 And it was so, when the king went into the house of the LORD, that the guard bare them, and brought them back into the guard-chamber.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, ^g are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

30 And ^h there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days.

31 And ⁱ Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And ^k his mother's name was Naamah, an Ammonitess. And ^l Abijah his son reigned in his stead.

^f Lam. iv. 1

^{*} Heb. runners. 1.
5. xviii. 46.
1 Sam. viii. 11.
xxii. 17. 2 Sam.
xx. 1.

^g 19. xi. 41. xv.
23. xxii. 45.
2 Chr. xii. 15.

^h xii. 24. xv. 6; 7.

B. C. 958.
i 20 xi. 43. xv. 8.
24. xxii. 50.
2 Chr. xii. 16.
k 21.

l 2 Chr. xxi. 19
Abijah. Matt. L.
7. Abia.

V. 22-24. It was an extraordinary circumstance, that, after the priests and Levites, and pious persons from Israel, had settled in Judah, (2 Chr. xi. 13-17.) Rehoboam and his subjects in general should become more gross idolaters than the Israelites were. Yet this was actually the case; for they directly worshipped false gods: and the groves seem to have been temples erected in shady places, where abominable lewdness was practised in honour of their filthy idols.

V. 25-27. It is probable that Shishak was excited by Jeroboam, as well as allured by the prospect of an immense booty, in thus making war against Rehoboam. If, (as some learned men suppose,) Shishak was the Sesostris of pagan historians, he was a most powerful and formidable conqueror: and Rehoboam, perhaps intimidated by seeing the hand of God so speedily lifted up against him, seems to have tamely surrendered. Thus in less than five years from Solomon's death, the temple was plundered, as well as his royal palaces: and Shishak, having seized his booty, seems to have relinquished his conquests in Judah. Rehoboam replaced the golden shields with others made of brass: and the use he made of these, shows for what purposes those of gold had been designed; and intimates, that he still on some occasions attended the worship of God at his temple.

V. 30. Though Rehoboam was not allowed to attack Jeroboam in the beginning of his reign, and we read of no great battles fought betwixt them; yet, by mutual incursions, they molested and weakened each other all their days.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-20.

Parents often suffer, and are corrected, in the affliction of their children: and on such occasions they should examine their lives, repent of their sins, humble themselves before God, submit to his will, seek help from him, and beg that the affliction may be sanctified for the good of their souls. But sinners are more anxious to know the secret purposes of God, than to understand his revealed will and their own duty: they are often conscious, that their forms are not to be depended on: but are afraid that others should perceive their convictions, and despise them! They often secretly reverence the faithful servants of God; and having found the truth of some of their words, they have an inward persuasion, that the rest will be verified too, except as they flatter themselves with hopes of escaping the miseries denounced against them. They form indeed very erroneous judgments both of God and of his servants; yet they would be glad of help or information in times of trouble, did they not fear rebukes and warnings. They therefore either keep at a distance, or attempt to impose upon faithful ministers, by disguising their real characters, and pretending kindness to them. Indeed the wisest of men may thus be deceived; but God searcheth every heart, and he often unmasks the hypocrite before the world: but more frequently he enables his servants to see through their disguises, and to address them in their real, not their assumed characters; and at last he will expose them to universal shame and contempt before the assembled world. 'What then doth it avail thee, thou deceiver, to attempt imposing upon men? Why feignest thou thyself to be another person? In vain dost thou expect an answer of peace, whilst thou continuest in sin. The ministers of Christ are all sent to thee with heavy tidings: thy attempt to impose on them, or to bribe them by presents, does but increase thy guilt: they will not thus be diverted from giving thee faithful reproofs and awful warnings; and the event will shortly inform thee of the purpose of God concerning thee; the foreknowledge of which, would only augment thy

CHAP. XV.

Abijam's wicked reign, 1—7. He dies, and is succeeded by Asa, 8. Asa's good reign, 9—15. In his war with Baasha, he makes a league with Benhadad, king of Syria; compels Baasha to desist from building Ramah; and with the materials builds Geba and Mizpah, 16—22. He dies, and is succeeded by Jehoshaphat, 23, 24. Nadab's wicked reign over Israel, 25, 26. Baasha slays him, seizes the kingdom, and executes Ahijah's prophecy against Jeroboam's family, 27—31. Baasha's wicked reign, 33, 34.

NOW ^a in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam the son of Nebat, reigned Abijam over Judah.

2 Three years reigned he in Jerusalem: And ^b his mother's name was ^c Maachah, the daughter of ^d Abishalom.

3 And he walked in ^e all the sins of his father, which he had done before him; ^f and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father.

4 Nevertheless ^g for David's sake did

^a 2 Chr. xiii. 1, 2. Abijah.

^b 13. 2 Chr. xi. 20—22.

^c 2 Chr. xiii. 2. Michaiiah the daughter of Uriel.

^d 2 Chr. xi. 21. Absalom.

^e xiv. 22.

^f iiii. 14. xi. 4. 2 Kings xx. 3.

2 Chr. xxv. 2. xxxi. 20, 21. Ps. cxix. 80.

^g xi. 12. 32. 36. 2 Sam. vii. 12—16. 2 Chr. xxi. 7. Ps. cxxxii. 17. Is. xxxvii. 35. Jer. xxxiii. 20. 26.

misery except thou repent of all thy wickedness, and turn to the Lord in uprightness of heart.—Every providential favour demands a return of grateful obedience, and aggravates future transgression; and thus prosperous sinners accumulate guilt and wrath with a rapidity proportioned to their abused mercies.—When men have witnessed, and have even profited by, God's displeasure against the sins of other men, and yet imitate and exceed them in iniquity, they may expect to be visited with more tremendous vengeance: and as they dishonour him by their crimes, he will disgrace them in their punishment. Though a man is not affected by the indignity shown to his dead body, or even by the miseries of his posterity, yet the prospect may torment his mind whilst he lives; such judgments form a proper emblem of the punishment of the wicked after death; and they strongly express God's abhorrence and indignation, for a warning to others.—Instruments will readily be found among the depraved sons of men, for the most bloody and savage acts of inhumanity; but Providence raising them up to power, and then over-ruling their crimes to the accomplishment of his own righteous purposes, forms no excuse for their ambition and cruelty. Sinners often flatter themselves, that threatened judgments are very distant, when they are even at the door; and excuse themselves, because they were persuaded or frightened into compliance.—Awful indeed will be the doom of those who employ their abilities and authority to make others sin; for thousands will for ever execrate some of them, as the causes of their eternal perdition. They however who yield to temptation, follow bad examples, and obey sinful commands, will provoke the Lord to give them up, and cast them off, unless they deeply repent of their iniquity.—The Lord deals with men according to their habitual character: and he will not mention against the upright believer, who hath cordially followed him, those incidental sins of which he hath repented, and for which he hath patiently borne correction.—To show the power and sovereignty of his grace, he frequently reserves an individual or two out of the worst of families, in whom there is “some good thing toward the LORD GOD of Israel.” The fruits of his grace he peculiarly delights in, when they flow from the hearts of the young and the affluent, and of those who are surrounded with contagious examples and instructions. When such young persons are spared, they often prove blessings to their families and connexions: but their premature death forebodes awful judgments, and may well be mourned over as a public calamity. But they are taken away from the evil to come, and their death can never be a loss unto themselves.

V. 21—31.

No wonder that they who are at a distance from God's ordinances are hardened in iniquity: when such as are most favoured provoke him to jealousy by their crimes, and are uninfluenced by his judgments, mercies, warnings, and promises!—The perpetration of the worst crimes of the worst of the heathen, in Jerusalem, the city that the Lord had chosen for his temple and worship; and at present in this favoured land and city, demonstrates, that nothing can mend the heart of fallen man, but the special sanctifying grace of the Holy Spirit: on this alone may we depend; for this may we daily pray, in behalf of ourselves and of all around us!—But sin quickly enfeebles, impoverishes, and disgraces the most prosperous nations: and when holiness, the real glory of a religious profession, is gone, all external splendour will follow it, or become worthless. Yet many who live in gross wickedness keep up their formal attendance upon divine ordinances, and are fond of an ostentatious imitation of the usages of better times; which have lost all their intrinsic value, and retain nothing except the external glitter that amuses weak and carnal minds.—Death still marches his solemn round, and conveys monarchs from their thrones, as well as peasants from their cottages. Happy are they alone, who possess the lively hope of an incorruptible inheritance in that world, “where the wicked cease from troubling, and where the “weary are at rest!”

NOTES.

CHAP. XV. V. 2, 3. There is no ground for the opinion that Maachah was the daughter of Absalom the son of David. (Marg. Ref.)—As Abijam, though a wicked man, was a professed worshipper of JEHOVAH; he is called “the LORD his God.”

* Or, candle.

the LORD his God give him a * lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and ^b to establish Jerusalem;

h Ps. lxxxvii. 5.
Is. lxii. 7. Jer. xxxiii. 2. Mic.
ix. 1. Matt. xvi.
18. i xiv. 8. 2 Kings
xxii. 2. 2 Chr.
xxxiv. 2. Ps.
cxix. 6. Luke i.
6. Acts xiii. 22
26. k 2 Sam. xi. 4. 15
—17. xii. 9, 10.
Ps. li. title.
l xiv. 30.

5 Because ⁱ David did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, and turned not aside from any thing that he commanded him all the days of his life, ^k save only in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

6 And ^l there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of his life.

m xiv. 29. 2 Chr.
xiii. 2. 22.

7 Now ^m the rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? And ⁿ there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.

n 2 Chr. xiii. 3,
&c.

8 And ^o Abijam slept with his fathers: and they buried him in the city of David; and Asa his son reigned in his stead.

B. C. 955. o xiv. 31. 2 Chr.
xiv. 1.

9 ¶ And in the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Asa over Judah.

10 And forty and one years reigned he in Jerusalem: and his * mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom.

* grand-mother's.
2 13. 2 Chr. xi.
20, 21. xiii. 2.

11 And ^p Asa did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, as did David his father.

p 3. 2 Chr. xiv.
2 13. xv. 17.
xvi. 7—10.

12 And he took away ^q the Sodomites out of the land, and removed all ^r the idols that his fathers had made.

q xiv. 24. xxii.
26. Rom. i. 25,
27. Jude 7.
r 3 xi. 7, 8. xiv.
23. 2 Chr. xiv.
2—5. Ez. xx. 18,
19. Zech. i. 2—
6. 1 Pet. i. 18.

13 And also ^s Maachah ^t his mother, even her he removed from being queen, because she had made an idol in a grove: and Asa [†] destroyed her idol, and ^u burnt it by ^x the brook Kidron.

s 2 10. 2 Chr.
xv. 16.
t Deut. xlii. 6—11.
xxxiii. 9. Zech.
xiii. 8. Matt. x.
37. xii. 46—50.
2 Cor. v. 16.
Gal. ii. 5, 6. 14.
† Heb. cut off.
u Lev. xxvi. 30.
Deut. vii. 2.
2 Kings xviii.
4. xxiii. 12.

14 But ^v the high places were not removed: nevertheless Asa's heart ^z was perfect with the LORD all his days.

u Ex. xxxii. 20.
Deut. ix. 21.
Josh. vi. 24.
x 2 Sam. xv. 23.
John xviii. 1.
Cedron.

15 And ^y he brought in the ^z things which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, into the house of the LORD, silver, and gold, and vessels.

y xxii. 43. 2 Kings
xii. 8. xiv. 4.
xv. 4. 2 Chr.
xiv. 3. 5.
z xi. 4. 2 Chr.
xv. 17. xxv. 2.
a vii. 51. 1 Chr.
xxvi. 26—28.
2 Chr. xiv. 13.
xv. 18.

16 ¶ And ^b there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

b 6, 7. 32. xiv.
30. 2 Chr. xvi.
1, &c.

V. 4. To establish, &c. Notwithstanding the wickedness of Abijam, and others of David's race; they were continued as "a lamp in Jerusalem:" and they were useful both to establish the civil state of that city, and to maintain the true worship of God in it; when the light of divine truth was almost extinguished in all other places.

V. 5. Save only, &c. Many other parts of David's conduct were evidently faulty; but in this instance alone did he act so inconsistently with his profession, in all respects, as otherwise it could scarcely have been conceived a real godly man could have done.—They who know the human heart, and the state of a believer in this world of conflict and temptation, will never expect to see a character and conduct free from blemish and criminality; though they see many preserved from falling, or from continuing long under the power of notorious evils. David, however, deeply repented of this part of his conduct; and to the close of his life he showed himself to be the upright and devoted servant and worshipper of the Lord.

V. 6, 7. Though God vouchsafed the continuance of the royal authority over Judah in the family of David: yet, instead of ruling over Israel also, as David and Solomon had done, both Rehoboam and Abijam were harassed by perpetual wars with Jeroboam the king of Israel. Rehoboam left this unnatural war, after it had lasted all his days, to his son Abijam, who did not live to terminate it. This seems a more satisfactory interpretation, than to suppose that Rehoboam means the son of Rehoboam; when Abijam is separately mentioned in the next verse. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 9. Abijam began to reign during the eighteenth year of Jeroboam; he reigned through his nineteenth year, and he died before the close of his twentieth, when Asa succeeded. Thus Abijam is said, according to the Hebrew idiom, to have reigned three years, in the same manner that Christ is said to have risen after three days. Thus also Nadab began to reign in the second year of Asa, and reigned two years: yet Baasha succeeded him in the third year of Asa. This is one way in which the computation of the years between the two kingdoms can be made to coincide: for, in the numerous successions in the kingdom of Israel, the same year is frequently twice reckoned; both to him who reigned in the commencement, and to him who succeeded before the close of it.

V. 10—13. Maachah was Asa's grandmother, but probably his own mother was dead, and Maachah had brought him up: he however deprived her of authority, and removed her from court, for her idolatry, which he entirely suppressed.—The words translated, "from being queen," may be rendered, from the queen, namely, lest Maachah should seduce Asa's queen also into idolatry.

V. 14. Was perfect, &c. This expression is opposed to the external good behaviour, and the insincere and divided heart, of hypocrites; and signifies, that Asa was cordially devoted to the service and worship of God all his days; and that his sins arose from infirmity, not from presumptuous deliberate wickedness. He had not, however, zeal and resolution enough to suppress the high places, on which the people sacrificed to the Lord, instead of coming to the temple; though he destroyed the idols out of the land.

V. 15. It seems Abijam, in his war with Jeroboam, had made some vow of dedicating the spoil to God, which he did not live to perform. But Asa fulfilled it, as well as some similar vow of his own.

27. 2 Chr. xvi. 1.

d Jos. xviii. 25.
1 Sam. xv. 34
Jer. xxxi. 15
e xli. 27. 2 Chr.
xi. 13-17.

f 2 Kings xviii. 15,
16. 2 Chr. xv.
18. xvi. 2-6.

g xx. 1-5 33. 34.
2 Kings viii. 7-18.

h xi. 23, 24.

i 2 Chr. xix. 2.
18. xxxi. 1.

j 2 Sam. xxi. 2.
Ez. xvii. 13-16.
Rom. i. 31. iii.
3.

k Heb. go up.

l 2 Kings xv. 29.
m xli. 29 Judg.
xviii. 29

n 2 Sam. xx. 14, 15.
o Josh. xi. 2 xii.
3.

p 2 Chr. xvi. 5

q xiv. 17. xvi. 15
-18. Cant. vi. 4.
r 2 Chr. xvi. 6.

s Heb. free.

t Josh. xviii. 24.
Gaba. xxi. 17.

u Josh. xviii. 26
1 Sam. vii. 5.
Jer. xl. 6. 10.
v 7, 8. xiv. 29-31.

w 2 Chr. xvi. 12-14. Ps. xc. 10.

B. C. 914.

y xxii. 41-43.
2 Chr. xvii. 1.
Mat. i. 8. Jo-saphat.

17 And ^e Baasha king of Israel went up against Judah, and built ^d Ramah, that ^f he might not suffer any to go out or come in to Asa king of Judah.

18 Then ^f Asa took all the silver and the gold that were left in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house, and delivered them into the hand of his servants; and king Asa sent them to ^e Ben-hadad, the son of Tabrimon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, that dwelt at ^b Damascus, saying,

19 There is a ⁱ league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent unto thee a present of silver and gold; come and ^k break thy league with Baasha king of Israel, that he may ^j depart from me.

20 So Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Asa, and sent the captains of the hosts which he had against the cities of Israel, and smote ⁱ Ijon, and ^m Dan, and ⁿ Abelmeth-maachab, and all ^o Cinneroth, with all the land of Naphtali.

21 And it came to pass, ^p when Baasha heard thereof, that he left off building of Ramah, and dwelt in ^q Tirzah.

22 Then king Asa ^r made a proclamation throughout all Judah; (none was ^s exempted :) and they took away the stones of Ramah, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasha had builded; and king Asa built with them ^t Geba of Benjamin, and ^u Mizpeh.

23 ^v The rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his might, and all that he did, and the cities which he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? Nevertheless ^w in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet.

24 And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and ^y Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead.

25 ¶ And Nadab the son of Jeroboam ^{*} began to reign over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two years.

26 And ^z he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and ^a walked in the way of his father, and ^b in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

27 And ^c Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, ^d conspired against him: and Baasha smote him at ^e Gibbethon, which belongeth to the Philistines; (for Nadab and all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon;)

28 Even ^f in the third year of Asa king of Judah did Baasha slay him, and reigned in his stead.

29 And it came to pass, when he reigned, that he smote all the house of Jeroboam; ^g he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed, until he had destroyed him, according unto the saying of the LORD, which he spake by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite:

30 ^h Because of the sins of Jeroboam which he sinned, and which he made Israel sin, by his provocation wherewith he provoked the LORD God of Israel to anger.

31 Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are ⁱ they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

32 And ^k there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel, all their days.

33 In the third year of Asa king of Judah, began Baasha the son of Ahijah to reign over all Israel in Tirzah, ^l twenty and four years.

34 And ^m he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and ⁿ walked in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

B. C. 954.

* Heb. reigned.

z xvi. 25.

a xli. 28-33. xlii. 33, 34.
b 19. xiv. 16. Gen. xx. 9.

c 16.

d xvi. 9. 2 Kings xii. 20.
e xvi. 15. 17 Josh. xix. 44. xxi. 23.

f Deut. xxxii. 35.

g xiv. 10-14.
2 Kings ix. 7-10. 36, 37. x. 10, 11. 34. xix. 25.

h xiv. 9. 15.

i xiv. 19. xvi. 5. 14. 20. 27.

k 16.

l xvi. 8.

m 26.

n xli. 28, 29. xlii. 33. xiv. 16.

V. 17-23. This league with Benhadad evidently arose from unbelief, and it was criminal in itself. It was also very wrong to tempt Benhadad to break his league with the king of Israel, and still worse to hire him to it with the consecrated treasures of the temple. This occurred in the latter years of Asa's reign. Baasha's policy was not unlike the impious devices of Jeroboam; but God could have turned it into foolishness, without Asa opposing it by a policy not more justifiable. (Notes, Chron. xiv. xv. xvi.)

V. 29, 30. We may be sure, that Baasha left the dead bodies of Jeroboam's family unburied, as it had been predicted. He only sought to secure himself in the kingdom by this cruelty, and therefore he imitated Jeroboam in his idolatry and other impieties. (34.)

CHAP. XVI.

Jehu predicts the ruin of Baasha's family, 1—4. Baasha dies, and is succeeded by his son Elah, 5—7. Zimri slays Elah, succeeds him, and fulfils Jehu's prophecy, 8—14. Omri usurps the kingdom, and besieges Zimri in Tirzah, who burns himself in the palace, 15—20. Tibni opposes Omri, who prevails against him, 21, 22. Omri builds Samaria, reigns wickedly, dies, and is succeeded by Ahab, 23—28. Ahab's excessive wickedness and idolatry, as instigated by his wife Jezebel, 29—33. Joshua's curse on the building of Jericho fulfilled on Israel, 34.

THEN the word of the LORD came ^{a 7. 2 Chr. xix. 2. xx. 34.} to ^a Jehu the son of ^b Hanani ^{b 2 Chr. xvi. 7—10.} against Baasha, saying,

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—15.

A superficial acquaintance with the divine law may enable us to perceive evident defects in the conduct of eminent believers; and man's natural enmity to God disposes him to delight in severely animadverting on them: yet if the habitual conduct of the righteous towards God and man be impartially contrasted with that of unbelievers, the difference is very visible, and they appear to be of another spirit, and far more excellent than their neighbours. But when the secret desires and good works of the righteous, and the secret evils of the hearts and lives of ungodly men, shall be made manifest at the day of judgment; the glory of the divine justice and mercy will be displayed to the whole world, in the allotment of their everlasting portions of happiness or misery. The general conduct of the Lord's servants may therefore be held forth as an example for imitation: and numbers fare the better on their account, both whilst they live, and after they are gone to their rest. But, alas! even children, who have been favoured and spared for their parents' sake, often forsake their righteous ways; and but few, especially in superior stations, have hitherto served God in uprightness of heart. He hath however still taken care of his cause; whilst those who ought to have been serviceable to it have perished in their sins: and the Son of David will continue a Light to his church, to establish it in truth and righteousness, to the end of time. It is happy for nations when wicked rulers are speedily removed, and when the righteous come in their stead, and are long preserved, "to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD." They that would please him, and promote reformation, must prefer his glory to the reputation of every friend or relative: nay, they must oppose the crimes even of their own parents, though this may seem a reflection upon the memory of the deceased, or a slight put upon the characters of the living. Nor may any age, sex, or relative tie, induce such as are intrusted with authority to allow those to possess power, who abuse it to the dishonour of God, and to the spread of ungodliness: and in every situation our duty to him must have the precedency over all other duties. How absurd then is it, to be satisfied with a religion merely because our fathers professed it! for indeed that reason, if allowed to be valid, would generally prove that men ought to continue in idolatry, superstition, and immorality! Every reformation upon earth hath hitherto been defective: the utmost attainment of fallen man has been, an upright and persevering endeavour to glorify God, and this meets with his merciful acceptance, through faith in Jesus Christ.

V. 16—34.

Even believers find it hard, in times of urgent danger, "to trust in the LORD with all their heart, and not to lean to their own understanding;" and unbelief makes way for carnal policy. This has often induced Christians to call in the help of the enemies of God, in their contests with their brethren; to spend that time and substance to obtain their favour, which ought to have been devoted to the Lord's service; and to tempt others to behave deceitfully or cruelly. Such evils have frequently disgraced religious disputes: the victories thus acquired have weakened the common cause, and ended in shame and bitterness: and some, who once shone bright in the meridian of the church, have been thus covered with a dark cloud towards the close of their days. May God help us "to follow after peace, and those things, wherewith one may edify another;" that our path may shine more and more bright unto the perfect day.—But after all, how much happier are they who are connected with godly people, than such as have their lot cast among the profane and wicked!—Wretched is it for others, but most so for themselves, when children inherit the vices with the estates of their wicked parents: their temporal calamities may arise from the sins of their fathers; but the wrath to come will be the recompense of their own crimes. Ungodly men execute the just judgment of God upon each other, whilst gratifying their own ambition, avarice, or revenge; and at the same time they ripen for severer vengeance, by imitating the sins of those whom they have supplanted.—Many suffer, and many are induced to commit iniquity, by such rulers and usurpers. But in the midst of all these enormities, and this apparent confusion, the Lord is carrying on his universal plan: and when it shall be fully completed, all rational and holy creatures, and all the company of redeemed sinners, will perceive, admire, and adore the glorious justice, wisdom, truth, and mercy, displayed in every part of it, through all the ages of eternity.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVI. V. 1. Hanani, the father of Jehu, was a prophet as well as his son. Jehu was a young man at this time, and he continued for many years employed by the Lord, and useful to his people. (Marg. Ref.) Thus a suc-

^e xi. 11. xiv. 7. xxi. 20-24. 1 Sam. ii. 8. 27. 28. xv. 17-19. 2 Sam. xii. 7-11. Ps. cxlii. 7. 8. d xlii. 33. 34. xv. 34. ^e xiv. 16. Ex. xxxii. 21. 1 Sam. ii. 24. xxvi. 19.

2 Forasmuch as ^e I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel, and ^d thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and ^e hast made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins;

3 Behold, I will take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house; and ^f will make thy house like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

4 Him that dieth of Baasha in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth of his in the field shall the fowls of the air eat.

5 Now ^g the rest of the acts of Baasha, and what he did, and his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

6 So ^h Baasha slept with his fathers, and was buried in Tirzah: and ⁱ Elah his son reigned in his stead.

7 And also by ^k the hand of the prophet Jehu the son of Hanani came the word of the LORD against Baasha, and against his house, even for all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, in provoking him to anger ^l with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam; and ^m because he killed him.

8 ¶ In the twenty and sixth year of Asa king of Judah began Elah the son of Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, two years.

9 And his servant Zimri, captain of half his chariots, ⁿ conspired against him, as he was in Tirzah, ^o drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza, ^p steward of his house in Tirzah.

10 And Zimri went in, and smote him, and killed him, in the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and ^q reigned in his stead.

11 And it came to pass, when he began to reign, as soon as he sat on his throne, that ^r he slew all the house of Baasha: ^s he left him not one that piss-eth against a wall, ^t neither of his kins-folks nor of his friends.

12 Thus did Zimri destroy all the house of Baasha, ^u according to the word of the LORD, which he spake against Baasha ^v by Jehu the prophet;

13 For all the sins of Baasha, and the sins of Elah his son, by which they sinned, and by which they made Israel to sin, in provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their ^w vanities.

14 Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are ^x they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

15 ¶ In the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah did Zimri reign ^y seven days in Tirzah; and the people were ^z encamped against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines.

cession of prophets was raised up in Israel, through every generation, till the advent of Christ drew nigh.

V. 2. The conduct of Baasha in conspiring against Nadab, and murdering him and Jeroboam's family, was highly criminal. But the success of his conspiracy, and his advancement from a very low condition to the throne of Israel, were from the Lord; whose benefits aggravated the guilt of his subsequent idolatry; (Note, 2 Sam. xii. 9.) God acknowledged Israel as his people, notwithstanding their apostacy: because they professed themselves his worshippers: because there were many believers in the land; and because he intended to maintain religion among them, and not utterly to cast them off. This also was an aggravation of Baasha's sin; that being, in providence, made prince over the Lord's people, he employed his authority in causing them to sin against him. It is likely that Jehu was sent from Judah, and delivered his message to Baasha, as the old prophet did to Jeroboam.

V. 7. Killed him. 'Baasha destroyed Jeroboam in his posterity, by cruelly murdering them all!' God had not commanded him to do this, though he had predicted that it should be done. Baasha was actuated by his own ambition and other corrupt passions; and was therefore deserving of punishment, though he fulfilled the Lord's righteous purposes. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 8-14. Baasha began to reign in the third year of Asa; and he reigned twenty-four years; yet he died, and was succeeded by Elah, in the twenty-sixth year of Asa. Thus it is evident, that a part of the third year of Asa, after Baasha came to the throne, is calculated as a whole year. In like manner Elah, who began to reign in the twenty-sixth year of Asa, and was killed in the twenty-seventh, is said to have reigned two years, that is, a part of two years. —The sentence denounced against the house of Baasha greatly resembles that denounced against Jeroboam and his family: and both Jeroboam and Baasha died in peace; while Nadab and Elah, their sons, were slain within two years, and the posterity of each of them was entirely and ignominiously extirpated! but Baasha's friends likewise were involved in the same ruin.

V. 15. The death of Nadab had before prevented the prosecution of the siege of Gibbethon: and it was the second time interrupted by the murder of Elah, who staid at home to indulge himself, whilst his army was besieging

16 And the people that were encamped heard say, Zimri hath conspired, and hath also slain the king: wherefore all Israel made ^z Omri, the captain of the host, king over Israel that day in the camp.

17 And Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah.

18 And it came to pass, when Zimri saw that the city was taken, that he went into the palace of the king's house, and burnt the king's house over him with fire, and died,

19 For his sins which he sinned ^e in doing evil in the sight of the LORD, in walking in the way of Jeroboam, and ^d in his sin which he did, to make Israel sin.

20 Now ^e the rest of the acts of Zimri, and his treason that he wrought, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

21 Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts: half of the people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king; and half followed Omri.

22 But the people that followed Omri prevailed against the people that followed Tibni the son of Ginath: so Tibni died, and Omri reigned.

23 ¶ In the thirty and first year of Asa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Israel, ^g twelve years: six years reigned he in Tirzah.

24 And he bought the hill Samaria of Shemer for two talents of silver, and built on the hill, and called the name of the city which he built, after the name of Shemer, owner of the hill, ^{*} Samaria.

25 But Omri wrought evil in the eyes of the LORD, and ^h did worse than all that were before him.

26 For ⁱ he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin, to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger with ^k their vanities.

27 Now ⁱ the rest of the acts of Omri, which he did, and his might that he shewed, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

28 So Omri ^m slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria: and Ahab his son reigned in his stead.

29 ¶ And in the thirty and eighth year of Asa king of Judah began Ahab the son of Omri to reign over Israel: and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel ⁿ in Samaria twenty and two years.

30 And Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD ^o above all that were before him.

31 And it came to pass, [†] as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, that ^z Mic. vi. 16.

^a Judg. ix. 45. 50.
56, 57. 2 Kings
vi. 24, 25. xviii.
9-12. xxv. 1-
4. Luke xix.
43, 44.

^b Judg. ix. 54.
1 Sam. xxxi. 4.
5. 2 Sam. xvii.
23. Job ii. 9, 10.
Matt. xxvii. 5.
^c 7. 13. xv. 30.
Ps. ix. 16. lviii.
9-11.
^d xlii. 28. xv. 26.
34.

^e 5. 14. 27. xiv.
19. xv. 31. xxii.
33.

^f Judg. v. 8. Prov. f xxviii. 2. Is. ix.
18-21. xix. 2.

B. C. 925.

^{*} Heb. Shomeron.
xlii. 32. xviii. 2.
xx. 1. xxii. 37.
2 Kings xvii. 1.
6. 24. John iv.
4, 5. Acts viii.
5-8.
^h 30. xiv. 9. Mic.
vi. 16.
ⁱ 2. 7. 19. xii. 26
-33. xlii. 33.
34.

^k 13. Ps. xxxi. 6.
Jer. viii. 19. x.
3. 8. xiv. 22. xvi.
19. xviii. 15.
Acts xiv. 15.
Rom. i. 21-23.
15. 14. 20. xv.
31.

^m 6.

B. C. 918.

ⁿ 23, 24.

^o 25. 33. xiv. 9.
xxi. 25. 2 Kings
iii. 2.

[†] Heb. was it a light thing, &c.

that city. Gibbethon lay in the lot of Dan, but it was given to the Levites. The Philistines, however, had got possession of it during the distractions that prevailed in Israel. (Josh. xix. 44. xxi. 23.)

V. 18, 19. Zimri, finding his cause desperate; afraid of falling alive into the hands of his enemies; and perhaps envying his competitor the possession of that palace and those riches which he had coveted, burnt himself, with the palace, and all its treasures. He was driven to this extremity, and left to this desperation, for his sins: in the space of seven days he had butchered all the posterity and relations of Baasha; and had manifested his determination to support the worship of the golden calves. (Note, 1 Sam. xxxi. 4.)

V. 21, 22. The army encamped before Gibbethon, chose Omri, their commander, king: but it seems, either that some of them were afterwards disgusted by him; or that the principal persons, who were absent, disapproved of this measure, and set up Tibni against him. As the war lasted six years, numbers no doubt were cut off on both sides, before the contest ended with the death of Tibni.

V. 23. Twelve years elapsed between the death of Zimri and that of Omri; namely, from the beginning of the twenty-seventh, to the end of the thirty-eighth year of Asa's reign. But half that time had been spent in civil wars, between Omri and Tibni; and the thirty-first year of Asa was nearly concluded, when Omri obtained the undisputed possession of the throne; from which time he reigned six complete years. Thus, whilst Israel was torn to pieces by intestine commotions and continued conspiracies, massacres, and the succession of one usurper to another, who were all monsters of iniquity, Judah was quietly governed by one pious prince, who began to reign in the days of Jeroboam, survived Nadab, Baasha, Elah, Zimri, and Omri, and lived till the fourth year of Ahab. The revolt of Israel therefore proved to be mainly their own loss.

V. 24. It is probable that the burning of the palace at Tirzah by Zimri induced Omri to this measure. It is conjectured that Shemer sold this estate at a low price, upon condition of having the city to be built on it called by his name. From this city the whole surrounding country was called Samaria, and sometimes the whole kingdom of the ten tribes is thus called, after Samaria became the capital city.

p Gen vi. 2. p he took to wife ^a Jezebel the daughter Deut. vii. 3, 4. of Ethbaal king of the ^r Zidonians, and Josh xxiii. 12, 13. ^s went and served ^t Baal, and worship-q xviii. 4. 19. xix. ped him.
 1, 2. xxi. 5—14. 2 Kings ix.
 25. 30—37. Rev
 ii. 20. 32 And he reared up an altar for Baal
 r Judg. xviii. 7. in ^u the house of Baal, which he had s xi. 4—8. built in Samaria.
 xxi. 26. Judg. ii. 11. iii. 7. x. 6.
 2 Kings x. 18. 33 And Ahab ^s made a grove; and xvii. 16. Ahab ^y did more to provoke the LORD u 2 Kings x. 21. 26, 27.
 x Ex. xxxiv. 13. 2 Kings xiii. 6.
 xvii. 16. xxi. 3. Jer. xvii. 2. —y 30. xxi. 4. 19. 25. xxii. 6. 8.

V. 30—33. Omri had done worse than all that had been before him, and probably had enforced the worship of the golden calves with greater severity: but it seemed a light thing to Ahab to tread in his steps, or in those of Jeroboam; for without any political inducement he proceeded to still grosser idolatries. He had a rooted enmity to the worship of JEHOVAH, and to every thing which approached to it: and he married Jezebel, a zealous and furious worshipper of Baal, on purpose, as it seems, to have her assistance in supplanting the worship of the Lord, and even that of the golden calves; and establishing that of Baal throughout the land.

V. 34. Four hundred and forty years had passed since this word had been spoken; and the exact accomplishment of it, after so long a period, was a solemn warning to the people, to expect the fulfilment of the curses denounced against them in case of their idolatry, by Moses and Joshua. —This account illustrates the daring spirit of rebellion against God, which prevailed in those wretched times. Hiel, inured to idolatry at Beth-el, set the curse of God at defiance: and though his eldest son died when he laid the foundation of Jericho, he scorned to be intimidated, or to desist from his undertaking; till, when he completed the work, his youngest son died also; and the rest of his children, as it is supposed, in the intermediate space of time.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

Though we do not always understand the rules by which God governs nations and individuals, yet we may draw general instructive conclusions from this history. Frequently the Lord warns before he punishes: and they who are not induced to repentance, are rendered more inexcusable in their wickedness. By whatever means men are advanced to authority; their exaltation is from the Lord, they are bound to use it in his service, and are liable to severe punishment for their abuse of it: yet they must also give an account to God for the crimes committed in order to obtain the dangerous pre-eminence. The same observations hold good in respect of wealth, and every other temporal distinction. God is greatly displeased with those who tempt others to commit iniquity; but he is especially provoked by those who seduce his professing people to apostacy, or true believers to conceal or disgrace their profession: persecutors, therefore; will be answerable for all the sins to which they tempt men by the dread of punishment, as well as for all the injustice they commit, and the blood they shed. They who follow the examples of such as have been awfully punished for their sins, may expect to be

God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel that were before him.

34 In his days did Hiel the Beth-elite build Jericho: he laid the foundation thereof in Abiram his first born, and set up the gates thereof in his youngest son Segub, ^z according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by Joshua the son of Nun.

z Josh. vi. 26.
 xxiii. 14, 15.
 Zech. i. 5, 6.
 Mat. xxiv. 36.

overtaken with similar vengeance: and many very wicked men have been men of might and renown; have built cities, and perpetuated their memories in the annals of history: but they have no name in the book of life, and stand condemned in the word of God. The impunity of the principal culprits, whilst their children, relatives, or helpers suffer for their crimes, loudly declares the approaching day of judgment, and the more exact discrimination of characters, and distribution of rewards and punishments, which shall then take place. No crime more degrades and exposes a man than drunkenness: and they who sit down with the intention of “drinking themselves drunk,” or are persuaded to do so, should recollect how easily they may be murdered in such a state; in how many ways they may be hurried before the tribunal of God; and what an awful thing it would be to meet their Judge in such a situation! and when rulers and great men spend their time in intemperate indulgence, instead of attending to the duties of their station, it bodes ill to the public and to themselves.

V. 15—34.

Wicked men accomplish God's purposes without intending it; and their injustice and cruelty towards each other display his righteousness. When they are hurried on by their vile passions, and have got the power into their hands, they can perpetrate much wickedness in a little time: and thus they speedily fill up their measure, and hasten the vengeance of God upon themselves. Whether they destroy themselves, or are murdered by others, the ruin is brought upon them by sinning against the Lord: even in death they frequently show the predominancy of their pride, envy, and malice; and thus are driven away into the eternal world, not only under condemnation as sinners, but under the domineering power of their diabolical dispositions, being “vessels of wrath fitted for destruction:” from such a death, good Lord, deliver us! —In all cases the triumphing of the ungodly is short: and for the wickedness of nations many are their princes. When tyrants hastily succeed one another, with massacres, conspiracies, and civil wars; and when every one is worse than all that went before him: we may be sure that the Lord hath a controversy with the people for their sins; and they are loudly called to repentance and reformation. Indeed they who forsake God, will generally be left to plague one another: they who seek not rest in his service, will always be unsettled and uneasy; and when his professed people quarrel with each other, their enemies will always be gainers. Intermarriages with daring offenders greatly embolden men's minds in wickedness, and hurry them on to the greatest excesses. The CHAP. XVII.

Elijah foretells to Ahab a long drought; and is sent by God to the brook Cherith and fed by ravens, 1—7. He is afterwards sent to Zarephath, and sustained by a widow-woman, whose barrel of meal and cruse of oil failed not, 8—16. Her son dies, but is restored to life in answer to Elijah's prayer; whom she believes to be sent by God, 17—24.

* Heb. Elijah.
 Luke i. 17. iv.
 24. 25. ix. 30.
 33. Elias.
 a xxii. 14 2 Kings
 iii. 14 v. 16.
 Matt. vii. 29.
 Luke i. 17.
 b Deut. x. 8.

AND * Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, ^a As the LORD God of Israel liveth, ^b before whom I stand, there shall progress of iniquity must be from bad to worse; it seems a light thing to notorious sinners to walk in the steps of their predecessors; and they are often ambitious of distinguishing themselves, and of expressing their enmity and contempt of God, in ways before unheard of! Hence we hear of so many new-invented oaths, blasphemies, superstitions, and species of false religion; as well as new refinements in licentiousness and immorality!—When princes set the example of rebellion against God, their subjects will often ambitiously emulate them, and thus ungodliness becomes fashionable: and no warnings will daunt the stout spirits of presumptuous sinners, till wrath come upon them to the uttermost. But they who despise the denunciations of God's word, will certainly know his truth in them by their own dreadful experience.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVII. V. 1. The most illustrious prophet Elijah was raised up in the reign of the most wicked of the kings of Israel: and he is brought to our notice in a very abrupt manner. We are not informed either of his parentage, education, or previous manner of life. He is called the Tishbite: but it is not agreed whether this title was taken from the place where he lived; or given him because he was the reformer of Israel; for the word signifies a converter. He was of the inhabitants of Gilead, beyond Jordan, but we know not of which of the tribes. His name signifies, The LORD my God is He. This might imply that JEHOVAH, the true God, would stand by him in the perilous services to which he was called in opposing the worship of false gods. We may suppose that Elijah had previously warned Ahab to forsake his idolatry, and that he had treated his message with contempt: at length therefore he declared, and confirmed it with a solemn oath by the LORD God of Israel, before whom he stood, (as his servant acting by his authority,) that there should be neither rain nor dew for years, but according to his word; that is, until he came again, and foretold its coming, and prayed for it. The expression, "As the LORD God of Israel liveth," intimated that the idols of the heathens were not be dew nor rain ^c these years, but according to my word.

2 ^d And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,

3 Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and ^e hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

4 And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and ^f I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there.

5 So he went and ^g did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

6 And ^h the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook.

c Luke iv. 25.
 Jam. v. 17. Rev.
 xi. 6.
 d Jer. vii. 1. xi. 1.
 xviii. 1.
 e xxii. 25. Ps.
 xxvi. 20 lxxviii.
 3. Jer. xxxvi. 19.
 26. John viii. 59.
 Acts xvii. 14.
 Heb. xi. 38. Rev.
 xii. 6. 14.
 f 9. xix. 5—8.
 Num. xx. 8.
 Job xxxiv. 29.
 xxxviii. 8—13.
 41. Ps. xxxiii.
 8. 9. xxxvii. 3.
 19. lxxviii. 18.
 16. 23. cxlvii. 6.
 Am. ix. 3. 4.
 Matt. vi. 31, 32.
 xiv. 19—21.
 g xix. 9. Prov.
 iii. 5, 6. Matt.
 xvi. 24. John
 xv. 14.
 h Ex. xvi. 35.
 Num. xi. 23.
 Judg. xiv. 14.
 xv. 18. 19. Ps.
 xxxiv. 9. 10.
 Jer. xxxvii. 21.
 xl. 4. Hab. iii.
 17, 18. Mat. xix.
 26. Luke xxi.
 35. Heb. vi. 18.

lifeless stocks, and could not help their worshippers. The duration of this drought was three years and a half; and the effects must have been inexpressibly calamitous. (Marg. Ref.) One whole year without rain or dew would most terribly afflict this land, even beyond conception: but in three years and a half nearly all the cattle must be destroyed, and most of the inhabitants would be either dead or migrated into other countries. Yet the bulk of Israel continued mad upon their idols, throughout this most tremendous calamity! Rain was sent in answer to the prophet's prayer, which probably he offered in Ahab's hearing: and the judgment was intended to be a demonstration, that Baal could not defend his worshippers against the indignation of JEHOVAH. The glory of God, and the interests of true religion were therefore so greatly concerned in this decision, which was needful in order to prevent the utter apostacy and rejection of Israel, that the prophet might present this petition in wise zeal, and true benevolence; and doubtless he was immediately instructed by the Lord to do so. The benefit of the calamity would abundantly outweigh the miseries: for though many were hardened, yet doubtless numbers were eventually brought to repentance, and made to embrace and continue steadfast in the service of the true God.

V. 3: Elijah was commanded to abscond, not only to avoid the persecuting rage of Ahab as instigated by Jezebel, but as an additional judgment upon the Israelites. The Lord did not intend to shorten the term of the calamity, and he would not have his servant pray for it and be denied. He was pleased therefore to send him out of the way, that he might not be solicited and refuse: and all this time the people were deprived of the benefit of Elijah's example and instructions. Thus he was excluded from society and usefulness: but he doubtless was engaged in heavenly contemplation and communion with God; and in prayers for the reformation of his people, and for their being turned unto the Lord, though not for the present removal of the famine.—The brook Cherith ran into the river Jordan; but it seems the place was so retired, and the prophet kept so close, that neither friends nor foes knew where he was.

* Heb. at the end of days.

B. C. 909.

i Is. xl. 30, 31. liv. 10. Mark xiii. 31.

k 2. Gen. xxii. 14. 1s. xli. 17. Heb. xiii. 6.

f Ob. 20. Luke iv.

26. Sarepta.

m Matt. xv. 21, m 22.

n 4. Jude vii. 2.

4. Rom. iv. 17.

21. 2 Cor. iv. 7.

o Gen. xxi. 15.

xxiv. 17. John

iv. 7. 2 Cor. xi.

27. Heb. xi. 37.

p Gen. xxiv. 18.

19. Matt. x. 22.

xxv. 35. 40.

Heb. xiii. 2.

q Gen. xviii. 5.

r 1. 1 Sam. xxv.

26.

7 And it came to pass * after a while, that ⁱ the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

8 ¶ And the * word of the LORD came unto him saying,

9 Arise, get thee to ¹ Zarephath, which belongeth to Zidon; and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a widow-woman there to sustain thee.

10 So he arose, and went to Zarephath: and when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow-woman was there gathering of sticks: and he called to her, and said, ° Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.

11 And ^p as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, ^a a morsel of bread in thine hand.

12 And she said, ^r As the LORD thy God liveth, I have not a cake, but an handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse: and, behold, I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, ^s that we may eat it and die.

13 And Elijah said unto her, ^t Fear not; go and do as thou hast said: but ^u make me thereof a little cake ^x first, and bring it unto me, and after make for thee and for thy son.

14 For ^y thus saith the LORD God of Israel, ^z The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall the cruse of oil fail, until the day that the LORD [†] sendeth rain upon the earth.

15 And she went and ^a did according to the saying of Elijah: and she, and he, and her house, did eat [‡] many days.

16 And ^b the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail, ^c according to the word of the LORD, which he spake [§] by Elijah.

17 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that ^d the son of the woman, the s Gen. xxi. 16 Jer.

xiv. 18. Lam. iv.

9. Ez. xii. 18.

19. Joel i. 15.

16. Acts xii. 20.

t Ex. xiv. 3. 2 Kings

vi. 16. 2 Chr. xx.

17. Is. xli. 10. 17.

Matt. xxviii. 5.

Acts xxvii. 21.

u Gen. xxii. 1, 2.

Judg. vii. 5-7.

Matt. xix. 21. 22.

Heb. xi. 8. 1 Pet.

i. 7.

x Prov. iii. 9, 10.

Mal. iii. 10. Mat.

vi. 33. x. 27.

y 2 Kings iii. 16,

17. v. 1, 2. ix. 6.

z 4. 2 Kings iv. 2

-7. 42-44. Mat.

xiv. 17-20. xv.

36-38.

† Heb. gibeth.

a Gen. vi. 22. xii.

4. xxii. 3. 2 Chr.

xx. 20. Mat. xv.

28. Mark xii.

43. John xi. 40.

Rom. iv. 19, 20.

Heb. xi. 7, 8. 17.

† Or. a full year.

b Mat. ix. 28-30.

xix. 26. Luke i.

37. 45. John iv.

50, 51.

c xii. 5.

† Heb. by the hand

of. xvi. 12.

d 2 Kings iv. 10-

20. 2 Chr. xiii. 9.

John xi. 3. 4. 14.

James i. 2-4.

12. 1 Pet. i. 7.

iv. 12.

V. 4—6. Elijah was a very extraordinary person, and every circumstance relating to him was rendered equally extraordinary, in order to excite the attention of a stupid generation. Ravens, being birds of prey, were more likely to rob the prophet, than to bring him food. But God's command suspended their natural instinct, and made them act contrary to it. We need not inquire where they procured the bread and flesh, or how the food was prepared? He, who commanded them to feed his servant, had ten thousand ways of enabling them to fulfil his word. Thus Elijah was sufficiently provided for, when numbers were starving: and the consolations of the Lord would render him contented with his solitude and sustenance. Some have objected that ravens, being unclean birds, would pollute the food they brought: but this arises from a mistake. The flesh of unclean animals might not be eaten; but the touch of them when living, communicated no ceremonial uncleanness either to food or any other thing: for asses and camels were also unclean; yet in constant use, for carrying provisions, as well as for other purposes.

V. 7. Elijah seems to have continued in this situation about a year: the natural supply of water which came by common providence failed him; but the miraculous supply of food, that was ensured to him by promise, failed not.

V. 9. This woman was of Gentile extraction, a Zidonian, of the very same nation with Jezebel the patroness of the worship of Baal: yet she was acquainted with the God of Israel, and probably a spiritual worshipper of him, when the nation of Israel had in general lapsed to idolatry. That ravens first, and then a poor widow-woman, a Gentile, should be employed to feed God's prophet, in preference to the Israelites, was a severe reflection upon that people: and Elijah's being sent to Zarephath, rather than to any of the cities, or poor distressed widows, of Israel, was an illustration of God's sovereignty, and a pre-intimation of the calling of the Gentiles. (Marg. Ref.)—As the Lord commands his creatures according to their natures and capacities, perhaps this poor widow had received some intimation of Elijah's coming, and a command to entertain him, nothing doubting.

V. 10—16. The effects of the famine in the land of Israel were severely felt at Zidon, and probably in all the adjacent countries, Judah perhaps being excepted. The poor woman was gathering fuel when addressed by the prophet, who probably knew that she was the person appointed to entertain him. Notwithstanding her distress, and the scarcity that prevailed, she readily complied with the request of a stranger to fetch him a little water. But when he craved a morsel of bread also, she called "the LORD his God" to witness, that she had none baked, but was going to prepare her last provision, and then had nothing to look for, but death by hunger for herself and her son. We must suppose that she knew Elijah to be an Israelite, and he had perhaps declared himself the servant of JEHOVAH, and asked her for bread and water in his name; and for his sake, she would have been ready to help him if it had been in her power. Moreover, she doubtless perceived something venerable in his aspect, which prepossessed her in his favour: so that when he required her, "in the name of the LORD," to make him a cake first, (which, in her circumstances, was surely one of the hardest commands that ever was given,) promising her that her scanty supply should not fail; her faith surmounted all difficulties and silenced all objections: she believed his words, and did as she was directed, and thus became heir of the righteousness that is by faith. Thus having "entertained a prophet in the name of a prophet, she received a prophet's reward:" for above two years she mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore, that there was no breath left in him.

18 And she said unto Elijah, ° What have I to do with thee, † O thou man of God? ‡ art thou come unto me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son?

19 And he said unto her, Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up ^b into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.

20 And ¹ he cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, ^k hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?

21 And ¹ he * stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the LORD, and said, ^m O LORD my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come † into him again.

22 And the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he ⁿ revived.

23 And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, ° See, thy son liveth.

24 And the woman said to Elijah, ^p Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in thy mouth is truth.

e 2 Kings iii. 13.
2 Chr. xxxv.
21. Luke viii.
28. John ii. 4.
f xiii. 1.
g xviii. 9. 1 Sam.
xvi. 4. Luke
viii. 23.

h 2 Kings iv. 10.
22. 33. Mark v.
40—42. Acts ix.
37.
i xviii. 36. 37. Ex.
xvii. 4. 1 Sam.
vii. 8. 9. 2 Kings
xix. 4. 15. Ps
xcix. 6. Matt.
xxi. 22. James
v. 13—18.
k Gen. xviii. 23—
25. Josh. vii. 8.
9. Ps. lxxiii. 13.
14. Jer. xii. 1.

l 2 Kings iv. 34.
35. Acts xx. 10.
* Heb. measured.

m Acts ix. 40.

† Heb. into his inward parts.

n Deut. xxxii.
39. 2 Kings xiii.
21. Luke vii. 14.
viii. 54. 55. John
v. 28. 29. xi. 43.
44. Acts xx. 12.
Heb. xi. 35.
Rev. xi. 11.
o 2 Kings iv. 36.
37. Luke vii. 15.
Acts ix. 41.

p John ii. 11. xi.
15. 41. xvi. 22.

and her son, as well as Elijah, were fed miraculously with sufficient provision; and she lived by faith in temporal as well as spiritual things. For though the margin renders the words many days, a full year; it is evident from the continuance of the famine, that Elijah abode with her a much longer time.

V. 17. Perhaps the child died suddenly, before the prophet had had time to pray for him; because the Lord intended a greater display of his own glory, and a more distinguishing favour to the woman, than the sparing of his life: or, he was left to die without any miraculous interposition, to try the faith of his mother.

V. 18. This woman had heard that the drought had come upon Israel in answer to Elijah's prayer; and perhaps she supposed that this affliction had come upon her in the same way. She seems to have venerated his sanctity, and to have had a trembling consciousness of her own sinfulness. Perhaps this loss brought her former worship of Baal to remembrance; or she thought she was not worthy of the company of the prophet, or had not duly profited by it. But her mind was much agitated; and her words imply a mixture of unbelief and impatience, as well as self-abasement and a sense of guilt. And she seems to have thought the presence of the man of God was dangerous to such a sinner, and hastened divine judgments upon her! Yet by her own account the prophet's presence had prolonged her son's life.

V. 20. Elijah himself could not understand the mystery of this dispensation: but wondered that the Lord should bring evil upon the woman, that entertained him for His sake, as well as upon those who rejected both God and his prophet.

V. 21, 22. These actions denoted the earnestness of the prophet's desires, and the greatness of his expectations of the child's restoration to life. He would, if possible, have communicated of his own life to him, or have concurred, if any thing had been in his power, to his revival. The expression, "Let the child's soul come into him again," not only intimates the prophet's certainty that he was really dead; but it marks the distinction betwixt the rational soul and the earthly body to be as real as that betwixt the house and its inhabitants: for both the prophet and the historian, speaking "as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," used proper language. No one had yet, as far as we know, been raised from the dead, and perhaps no prayer to this effect had before been offered: Elijah's petition was no doubt dictated by immediate inspiration.

V. 24. The woman had been strongly tempted to unbelief: but she had got the victory, and was more confirmed and assured in her faith and hope than ever. She had doubted, but now she knew, that Elijah was God's servant; and she fully expected the performance of all his declarations.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—7.

The Lord will have witnesses to his truth in the worst of times: and, as he doth not immediately cast off his professing people, when they renounce his service, he employs various methods to convince them of their sin, and to bring them to repentance.—Great intrepidity and resolution are necessary for those that are employed to stop the torrent of prevailing iniquity, or to declare the message of God before persecuting tyrants: but he that sends them, will qualify them, and bear them out in such arduous and perilous services. Impenitent sinners have even the prayers of God's people against them: because, if they go on in sin, his glory requires their destruction; and every servant of the Lord seeks his glory, in preference to every other consideration. But if the severest temporal judgments are made effectual to bring men to serve God, they will have great cause to bless him for sending them. Fruitful seasons, and abundance of provisions for the body, are valuable mercies; and famine is a terrible evil: yet the liberty and opportunity of attending on divine ordinances are more valuable advantages; and a famine of the word of God is above all to be dreaded and deprecated. The Lord will provide for those who serve him faithfully: and he will teach them to be satisfied with their provisions though mean, and their situation though outwardly uncomfortable. Indeed, if we consider how much better we are dealt with

CHAP. XVIII.

Elijah is sent to meet Ahab, 1, 2. Ahab and pious Obadiah go different ways, to search the land for pasture, 3—6. Elijah meets Obadiah and sends him to call Ahab, 7—16. Ahab, at Elijah's word, convenes Israel, with the prophets of Baal, at Carmel, 17—20. Elijah proposes to decide, whether JEHOVAH or Baal be God, by proving which would answer by fire, 21—24. Baal's prophets invoke him in vain, 25—29. Elijah prepares a sacrifice, pours water upon it, and calls on JEHOVAH, who answers by fire consuming the altar with the sacrifice; the people are convinced that JEHOVAH is God, and at Elijah's word slay Baal's prophets, 30—40. Elijah gives Ahab notice of rain, which he obtains by prayer; and then runs before Ahab's chariot to Jezreel, 41—46.

AND it came to pass ^a after many days, that the word of the LORD came to Elijah in ^b the third year, saying, ^c Go, a Luke iv. 25.

Jam. v. 17. Rev.
xi 2. 6.
b xvii. 15.
c 18. &c.

than we deserve, and how many are destitute of the necessities of life; we shall see abundant reason to be contented with food and raiment of the meanest and coarsest kind; nor should we ever covet luxuries or superfluities. It is the greatest trial to the faithful and zealous minister, to be taken off from his work and usefulness, and excluded from the society of pious persons: yet, if thus circumstanced, he ought to submit to it as his cross, to wait the Lord's time to be employed again, to seek his comfort from communion with him, and diligently to prepare for future service. And if the trying dispensation did not arise from his own misconduct; the loss will not eventually be his, but that of those from whom he is banished; being frequently a judgment upon them for not profiting by their former advantages whilst they enjoyed them.—All nature shall sooner change its course, than one of God's promises fail. We do not indeed now expect to be fed by ravens literally: but the Lord often employs selfish men, contrary to their nature and general character, to support his indigent people, or to maintain his cause by their property. The thanks indeed, in this case, are due to the Lord, who sends the provision by such instruments: but we should pray, that as he has counteracted their natural disposition in one instance, he would be pleased also to change them by his renewing grace.

V. 3—16.

The Lord doth not generally provide long together for his people in the same way, or by the same means, lest they should rest in them, and expect help from them: but he permits one resource to fail; and when he hath left them nothing but his own promise to trust to, he unexpectedly opens another; that they may admire the manifold riches of his wisdom, as well as adore his power, truth, and love. Frequently he raises supplies from those who themselves need relief: "the abundance of their joy, and their deep poverty, abound unto the riches of their liberality;" (2 Cor. viii. 2:) and he supplies their wants, whilst they are encouraged to communicate of their pittance to others still more destitute. Indeed our faith must be proved by various trials in providence, as well as by our obedience to the commandments of God; and it must also grow strong by exercise; but when it is genuine, it worketh by love of him and of his people: and the desire of doing good to others for his sake, united to a firm expectation that his promises will be performed, produces obedience even to hard commands, notwithstanding all the reluctancy and objections of our distrustful selfish hearts.—They who come unto God and walk with him, must simply trust him, nay, venture their lives and souls upon his word, and at his command renounce every present interest, in expectation of future and more enduring advantages. This genuine faith induces and enables men to do, while unbelief dislikes the security, holds fast things present, and for the perishing pleasures and interests of this world, foregoes the blessings of eternal salvation.—But none can be losers in the event by giving up secular advantages at the Lord's command: and what is expended upon his people for his sake, shall be recompensed as if given to himself: so that the self-denial and liberality of faith, are the best means of excluding the fear of future want, of providing for our families, and of placing out our substance at the highest interest, and upon the most unexceptionable security. In these funds the poor may obtain property, as well as the rich: for a morsel of bread, or a cup of water, will go as far, when it is all we can give, as thousands of gold and silver when they can be spared. (2 Cor. viii. 12.)

V. 17—24.

Neither faith nor obedience, however exemplary, can exclude afflictions and death: and under severe and unexpected trials it is hard to avoid impatience, and to exercise unshaken confidence and unreserved submission. But the Lord bears with our infirmities and compassionates our sorrows; and we should pity and readily help each other, thus baring one another's burdens, according to the example and command of Christ: and though we cannot work miracles for the relief of the afflicted, we may afford much assistance to them; and in all cases we may pray in faith, that the Lord would sanctify and make up every loss, by the influences and consolations of his Spirit.—The Lord by afflictions calls our sins to remembrance; and this should quiet our spirits, and lead us to self-examination and repentance, that we may obtain forgiveness from him; and thus all shall issue in our increase of faith, assurance of hope, and joyful expectation of every promised good.—Thus when Jesus comes to communicate his blessings, the convinced trembling sinner often mistakes the meaning of those humbling lessons that he teaches, and those trials which he employs; he is ready to suspect, that he means to bring his sins to remembrance, and to slay all his hopes; and is tempted to say, "what have I to do with thee?" But the loving Saviour u 15. i. 29. ii. 24.

xvii. 1. 12. 1
Sam. xxix. 6.
x Ps. x. 2. Jer.
xxvii. 20-23.

10 ^u As the LORD thy God liveth, there is ^a no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when they said, He is not there; he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not.

v xvii. 5. 9. Ps.
vii. 7. 8. xxxi.
20. xxi. 1. Jer.
xxxvi. 26. John
viii. 59.
x 9.

11 And now thou sayest, ^z Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here!

a 2 Kings ii. 11.
16. Ez. iii. 12-
14. Matt. iv. 1.
Acts viii. 39.

12 And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that ^a the Spirit of the LORD shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, ^b he shall slay me: but I thy servant fear the LORD ^c from my youth.

b 1 Sam xxii. 11
-19. Dan. ii. 5
-13. Matt. ii.
16. Acts xii. 19.
c 1 Sam ii. 10.
26. iii. 19. 20. 2
Chr. xxxiv. 3
Luke i. 15. 2
Tim. iii. 15.
d 4. Gen. xx. 4.
5. Ps. xviii. 21
-24. Acts xx.
34. 1 Thes. ii. 9,
10.

13 Was it not told my lord ^d what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the LORD, how I hid an hundred men of the LORD's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water?

14 And now thou sayest Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here: and he shall slay me.

V. 10. No nation, &c. That is, in the neighbourhood, amongst Ahab's dependents and allies. He was so earnest to discover Elijah, that he caused the rulers of those countries to swear that they did not conceal him, and perhaps that they would deliver him up if they found him: yet Elijah lived part of the time in Ahab's kingdom, and the rest in the country of Zidon, whence Jezebel came! As Ahab offered no violence to the prophet when he met him, it has been thought that he did not seek him from a vindictive motive, but in expectation that he would terminate the judgment which he had denounced: as if the prophet could do it without the Lord, to whom no application was made. However, it is probable that resentment and enmity greatly influenced Ahab; and that Jezebel intended to have cut off Elijah also if he could have been found, at least unless he consented to remove the famine. But Ahab was overawed by his unexpected appearance and intrepidity, and did not dare to proceed against him.

V. 12-16. Obadiah in Ahab's family, had from his youth been a worshipper of God! He introduced the mention of his good services, not in ostentation, but as an evidence of his sincerity. He well knew how exceedingly Ahab would be offended, if he thought himself imposed upon, in a matter that he had so much at heart; and perhaps he concluded he would be enraged, that he had not attempted to apprehend the prophet, when he had the opportunity: he could not suppose that Elijah intended to venture into the presence of his indignant enemy, and he was persuaded, that the Spirit of the Lord could readily convey him away, and again conceal him: and therefore he desired to be excused from so perilous a service. But when the prophet solemnly assured him that he did not mean to elude Ahab, but to show himself unto him, he willingly went to inform him.

VOL. II.—No. 9.

15 And Elijah said, ^e As the LORD ^f of hosts liveth, ^g before whom I stand, I will surely shew myself unto him to-day.

e 10. Heb. vi. 16.
17.
f Gen. ii. 1. Deu.
iv. 19. Ps. xxi.
9. 10. ciii. 21.
calviii. 2. 7. 18.
vi. 3. Jer. viii.
2. Luke ii. 13.
14.
g xvii. 1. Deut.
1. 36. Luke i. 19.

16 So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him: and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that ^h troubleth Israel?

h xxi. 20. Jos.
vii. 25. Jer. xxi.
8. 9. xxxviii. 4.
Am. vii. 10. Acts
xvi. 20. xxi. 6.
xxiv. 5.
i Ez. iii. 8. Matt.
xiv. 4. Acts
xxiv. 13. 20.
k 2 Chr. xv. 2.
Prov. xi. 10.
xii. 21. Is. lii.
11. Jer. ii. 19.
Rom. ii. 8. 9.
l Josh. xix. 25.
m 2 Pet. ii. 1.
Rev. xix. 20.
n xv. 13. xvi. 33.
2 Kings xiii. 6.
o xix. 1. 2. 2 Kings
ix. 22. Rev. ii.
20.

18 And he answered, ⁱ I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, ^k in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the LORD, and thou hast followed Baalim.

19 Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto ^l mount Carmel, and ^m the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the ⁿ prophets of the groves four hundred, which ^o eat at Jezebel's table.

20 So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets together unto mount Carmel.

V. 17. Elijah was the grand opposer of Ahab's scheme for bringing Israel to unite in the worship of Baal, and so making a quiet settlement of the religious concerns of the nation: and in this sense he perhaps deemed him a troubler of Israel. But it is not easy to determine certainly what his sentiments were concerning the drought, which came at Elijah's word. If he supposed that it was caused and continued by the prophet's power, and could be removed at his will; and that therefore he troubled Israel in not removing it; he must have been disposed to credit any absurdity, rather than believe that JEHOVAH was the author of it, and that it could only be removed by his power; or be convinced, that it was his interest and duty to return to the worship of God which he had forsaken.

V. 18-20. Baalim is the plural number; for the Israelites worshipped many false gods. The boldness and authority with which the prophet charged Ahab as the troubler of Israel, intimidated the king, who had not his prompter with him. He was afraid perhaps that Elijah would execute judgment upon him at once, if he further offended him: he found the prophet would not be hectored into compliances, and he was willing to be upon terms with him, in hopes that he would procure the removal of the famine: and thus he was induced to consent to the demand which he made. It seems that an altar had been built upon mount Carmel, and sacrifices offered on it to JEHOVAH; (v. 30:) but the worship of Baal had supplanted even this irregular service of the one living and true God. There were no less than four hundred and fifty prophets or priests of Baal, and four hundred of the groves, who are supposed to have been devoted to a Zidonian goddess. These four hundred especially, were entertained at Jezebel's table, as a kind of domestic chaplains; though no doubt they too were at times sent at her expense into every part I.

21 And Elijah came unto all the people, and said,^p How long halt ye between two * opinions? ^q if the LORD be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people ^r answered him not a word.

22 Then said Elijah unto the people, I, even ^s I only, remain a prophet of the LORD; but ^t Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men.

23 Let them therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under:

24 And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the LORD: and the God that ^u answereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, ^v It is well spoken.

25 And Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, Choose you one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under.

26 And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning even until noon, saying, O Baal [†] hear us. But there was ^z no voice, nor any that [‡] answered. And they [§] leaped upon the altar which was made.

27 And it came to pass at noon, that [‡] Elijah mocked them, and said, Cry [‡] aloud; for he is a god; either [‡] he is talking, or he [‡] is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and [‡] must be awaked.

28 And they cried aloud, and [‡] cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till [‡] the blood gushed out upon them.

29 And it came to pass, when mid-day was past, and they ^b prophesied until the time of the [‡] offering of the evening-sacrifice, that there was [‡] neither voice, nor any to answer, nor any [‡] that regarded.

30 And Elijah said unto all the people, of the land to promote idolatry among the inhabitants. Elijah, however, desired to confront the whole company before all the people of Israel, and to bring the matter in dispute to a fair decision. But when JEHOVAH had called for drought, and neither Baal nor their other idols could send rain, the matter was already sufficiently plain to every reasonable person.

V. 21. Halt ye, &c.? The metaphor is taken from the unequal walk of a lame person. Many of the people wavered in judgment, and varied in practice; sometimes worshipping JEHOVAH, at others worshipping Baal, as their convictions or interests prevailed: or they endeavoured to form a coalition between them, of which Baal's prophets would probably admit; but JEHOVAH would never consent to it. Elijah therefore called upon them to determine, which of the two was the self-existent, and eternal God, the Creator, Governor, and Judge of the world; and to follow him alone, whether JEHOVAH or Baal were he, as there could be no more than one supreme God. To this the people answered nothing; being unwilling to confess their guilt and offend the king; and not being able to object to what he said: or being ashamed of their conduct.

V. 22. Elijah was the only prophet of JEHOVAH, who stood forth at this time; the prophets whom Obadiah preserved, and the sons of the prophets of whom we afterwards read, being driven into concealment.

V. 23. Elijah conceded the preference in every external circumstance to the prophets of Baal, that the victory might be the more conspicuous to the glory of God alone: for doubtless he acted by immediate direction from heaven.

V. 24. Thus Baal's prophets were constrained to comply with Elijah's proposal; or to allow Baal to be a worthless impotent idol, and JEHOVAH the only true God. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 26. O Baal, &c. The continued cry of four hundred and fifty priests for several hours, with an unmeaning repetition of the words, "O Baal, hear us," with great vehemence, must have formed a most disagreeable vociferation; whilst, like frantic men, they leaped upon, or round, their altar and sacrifice, according to the worship which they were accustomed to perform!—Some think that the sun was worshipped under the name Baal; and that this encouraged his prophets to expect an answer by fire.

V. 27—29. Elijah ironically observed, that Baal no doubt had a vast number of engagements, and therefore was taken up, or at a distance, or asleep; and therefore his votaries would not speed without greater earnestness and louder cries! The absurdity of the idolatry was worthy of being exposed to ridicule and contempt before the people, though the effects of it were very melancholy. It seems, however, that they thought Elijah in earnest in his counsel, and determined to follow it: and, still more to please the demon, they cut their flesh, and mingled their own blood with that of their sacrifice, according to the frequent custom of idolators! But all their efforts proved in vain: though they continued three hours more to prophecy, after their manner; and to show the tokens of being under a supernatural influence; and, as many suppose, to sing hymns to Baal along with their absurd and frantic devotions:—No doubt Satan could and would have sent fire, if he might: but he can do nothing more than what is permitted him.

x 2 Kings xvii.
41 Matt. vi. 24.
2 Cor. vi. 14—
16 Rev. iii. 15, 16
q Or, thoughts.
r Josh. xxiv. 15.
r Gen. xxiv. 50.
xlv. 16. Job xl
4, 5. Matt. xxii.
12. Rom. iii. 19.
vi. 21.
s xix. 10. 14.
xxii. 6, 7. Rom
xi. 3.
t 19, 20. Mat. vii.
13—15. 2 Tim.
iv. 3, 4. 2 Pet.
ii. 1—3.

u 29. Lev. ix. 24.
Judg. vi. 21.
1 Chr. xxi. 26
2 Chr. vii. 1
† Heb. The word is good. 2 Sam.
xiv. 19. 1s
xxxix. 8.

† Or, answer.
x Ps. cxv. 4—7.
Jer. x. 5. Dan.
v. 28. Hab. ii.
18. 1 Cor. viii.
4. x. 19, 20. xii.
2.
‡ Or, heard.
§ Or, leaped up and down at the altar.
Zeph. i. 9.
y xxii. 15. 2 Chr.
xxv. 8. Ec. xi.
9. Is. viii. 9, 10.
xlv. 15—17. Ez.
xx. 39. Am. iv.
4, 5. Mat. xxvi.
45.
• Heb. with a great voice.
† Or, he meditat-eth.
‡ Heb. hath a pursuit.
z Ps. xlv. 23.
cxxi. 4. Is. li. 9.
a Lev. xix. 28.
Deut. xiv. 1.
Mic. vi. 7. Mark
v. 7. ix. 22.
§ Heb. they poured out blood upon them.
b xxii. 10. 12.
1 Sam. xviii. 10.
Jer. xxvii. 5—9.
Acts xvi. 16, 17.
1 Cor. xi. 4, 5.
|| Heb. ascending.
c 26. Ps. cxxxv.
15—18. Gal. iv
8. 2 Tim. iii. 2.
9.
* Heb. attention.

Come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And ^a he repaired the altar of the LORD that was broken down.

31 And Elijah took ^a twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the LORD came, ^t saying, Israel shall be thy name:

32 And with the stones ^s he built an altar ^b in the name of the LORD: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

33 And ⁱ he put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, Fill four barrels with water, and ^k pour it on the burnt-sacrifice, and on the wood.

34 And he said, ⁱ Do it the second time. And they did it the second time. And he said, Do it the third time. And they did it the third time.

35 And the water ^{*} ran round about the altar, and he filled ^m the trench also with water.

36 And it came to pass ⁿ at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near, and said, ^o LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, ^p let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and ^q that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things at thy word.

37 ^r Hear me, O LORD, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the LORD God, and that ^s thou hast turned their heart back again.

38 Then ^t the fire of the LORD fell, and consumed the burnt-sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench.

39 And when all the people saw it, ^u they fell on their faces: and they said, ^x The LORD, he is the God; the LORD, he is the God.

40 And Elijah said unto them, [†] Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape. And they took them: and Elijah brought them down to the brook ^y Kishon, and ^z slew them there.

41 ¶ And Elijah said unto Ahab, ^a Get thee up, eat and drink; for there is a [†] sound of abundance of rain.

d xix. 10. 14. 2
Chr. xxix. 3. 18.
19.

e Ex. xxiv. 4.
Josh. iv. 20.
Ezra vi. 17. Eph.
ii. 20. iv. 4-6.
Rev. vii. 4-6.
xvi. 12.

f Gen. xxxii. 28.
xxviii. 20. xxxv.
10. 2 Kings xvii.
34. Is. xlviii. 1.

g Judg. xxi. 4.
1 Sam. vii. 9. 17.
a 1 Cor. x. 31.
Col. iii. 17.

i Gen. xxii. 9.
Lev. i. 6-8.

k Judg. vi. 20.

l 2 Cor. iv. 2. viii.
21.

m Heb. went.

n 32. 32.

o Ex. xxix. 39-41. Ezra ix. 5.
Dan. ix. 21.
Acts x. 30.

o Gen. xxvi. 24.
xxxi. 53. xlv. 3.
Ex. iii. 6. 15. 16.
1 Chr. xxix. 13.
2 Chr. xx. 6, 7.
p viii. 43. 1 Sam.
xvii. 46, 47.
2 Kings i. 3. 6.
v. 15. xix. 19.
Ps. lxxviii. 1, 2.
lxxxiii. 18.

q xxii. 29. Num.
xvi. 28-30.
r 24. 29. 36. Gen.
xxxii. 24. 26. 28.
2 Chr. xiv. 11.
xxxii. 19. 20. Is.
xxxvii. 17-20.
Dan. ix. 17-19.
Luke xi. 8. Jam.
v. 16, 17.

s Jer. xxxi. 18.
19. Ez. xxxvi.
25-27. Mal. iv.
5, 6. Luke i. 16,
17.

t Lev. ix. 24. 1
Chr. xxi. 26. 2
Chr. vii. 1.

u Judg. xiii. 20.
1 Chr. xxi. 16.
2 Chr. vii. 3.
x 24. John v. 35.
Acts ii. 12. 37.
iv. 16.

† Or. Apprehend.
2 Kings x. 25.

y Judg. v. 21.
z Deut. xiii. 5.
xviii. 20. Jer.
xlviii. 10. Rev.
xix. 20. xx. 10.
a Ec. ix. 7. Acts
xxvii. 34.

† Or. a sound of a noise of rain.
1. xvii. 1. 2
Sam. xxi. 14.

V. 30. The prophet gave his competitors the opportunity of making fair trial, what Baal could do: but when they had prophesied till almost evening, it was time that he should proceed to show them what JEHOVAH could and would do; and therefore he interrupted them by addressing the people. (Note, 18-20.)

V. 31. Elijah meant to show, that the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, notwithstanding their divisions and apostacies, were yet in some sense the people of JEHOVAH, and formed one Church and nation; and that they ought to unite in worshipping the God of their fathers, and in opposing all idolatry. The reference to the name of Israel given to Jacob, when he wrestled with God and prevailed, (28.) was suited to shame the people from their idol-worship, as well as to encourage Elijah's own heart in prayer. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 33-35. By pouring this quantity of water upon the altar and the sacrifice, Elijah excluded all possibility of suspicion that any fire had been concealed, and thus rendered the divine interposition more illustrious and convincing.

V. 36, 37. The prophet, by the time chosen for his sacrifice and prayer, avowed his communion with the worshippers of God at his temple in Jerusalem: and he briefly, but most fervently, besought JEHOVAH on this important occasion to interpose; that the people might be convinced that he was indeed the true God, the God of their fathers, and of their nation; and also that all which he, his servant, had done, concerning the famine especially, had been in obedience to God's command. This would be for his glory, and for the profit of the people; and that they might henceforth know and worship him, as that God who had thus turned their hearts back from idolatry unto himself, that they might give him the praise.

V. 38, 39. It is probable that this fire appeared as lightning; though no cloud could be seen: or it was called "the fire of God," from its extraordinary force, and its unparalleled effects; and especially as sent to plead the cause of God, and to expose his worthless rival to contempt.—It would be more emphatical to retain the original word JEHOVAH in the translation of this chapter. The people were convinced, for the time, that JEHOVAH was the only true God; and they prostrated themselves before him with terror, mixed with reverence. It has been observed, that the fire on this occasion consumed the altar as well as the sacrifice; because oblations were not there statedly to be offered: but at the dedication of the temple, the sacrifice was consumed, and the altar continued.

V. 40. Baal's prophets, as idolaters, and teachers of idolatry, were condemned by the prophet to die, according to the express injunctions of the Mosaic law. (Marg. Ref.) The people, under the present impression, readily concurred with Elijah, and Ahab allowed them to execute the condemned criminals. "The four hundred prophets of the groves," were not present on this occasion. Some learned men think, that they were Zidonians, not Israelites; and therefore their attendance had not been insisted on, or they had refused to come.

42 So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. And ^b Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; and ^c he cast himself down upon the earth, and ^d put his face between his knees,

43 And said to his servant, ^e Go up now, look toward the sea. And he went up, and looked, and said, There is no- thing. And he said, ^f Go again seven times.

44 And it came to pass at the seventh time, that he said, Behold, there ariseth ^g a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say unto Ahab, ^h Prepare thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not.

V. 41. (xvii. 1.) The idolatry of Israel having received such a check, and its chief abettors having suffered condign punishment; the prophet intimated to Ahab the approach of deliverance from that awful calamity, under which the land had so long groaned; and encouraged him to go and cheerfully refresh himself.

V. 42. In a posture of most profound reverence the prophet sought of God, by earnest prayer, the blessing of rain upon the parched land: and he continued his supplications in the same place and posture, till he had sensible evidence that his desire was granted.

V. 43, 44. As Elijah seems to have had no servant before he went to Zarephath, some have thought, that the widow's son, whom he had raised to life, had accompanied him. But, it appears from the narrative, that he was not old enough: and it is more likely, that a young person, from the schools of the prophets, attended Elijah on this occasion.—The prophet spake as one assured that his prayer would immediately be answered; and like Jacob of old, he seemed determined not to let the Lord go until he had blessed him. The servant was therefore to go seven times; and he saw no appearance till the last, when a very small cloud arose, which the prophet knew to be the forerunner of the desired blessing: and he sent word to Ahab accordingly.—We may be sure that the rain was equal to the necessities of the land; and it formed another demonstration that JEHOVAH was the only true God.

V. 46. And he, &c. The Lord directed and strengthened Elijah, though old, and weak with fasting and fatigue, to show this respect to Ahab; and to run as a footman before his chariot; in order to convince him, that his severe reproofs were consistent with affection and loyalty in secular matters: nor would the prophet fear going to Jezreel, where Jezebel was; though he did not appear in her presence.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—16.

The severest judgments will not of themselves humble or change the hearts of sinners; which often grow more hardened under them, even to desperation! The imagined fire of purgatory, therefore, or the real torments of hell, possess no purifying efficacy; and the sinner under the anguish of his sufferings will continually increase in wickedness, and accumulate wrath to all eternity. For nothing, except the atoning blood of Christ, can expiate the guilt; nothing, except the sanctifying Spirit of God, can purge away the pollution of sin: and all other expedients are satanical delusions, to keep men from this one fountain, which God hath opened for sin and for uncleanness.—The enmity of man's heart against God, expresses itself by persecuting those who bear his image and seek his glory: yet He protects them, until their testimony be finished.—It has been the common lot of his prophets and faithful servants, to be lodged in caves or dens of the earth, and fed with bread and water, (if that could be procured,) whilst the ministers of Satan have rioted in luxury. Yet he has had a remnant in all places, where any part of his word has been known, in every age of the world: and notwithstanding errors and irregularities, that faith, fear, and love of his name, which are the fruits of his Holy Spirit, are accepted through the Redeemer. And the remnant in Israel, when that nation had generally apostatized to idolatry, encourages the hope, that there are true believers, in those parts of the Christian church, where the ostensible body is most deformed by superstition and idolatry.—If men of eminent piety were found in Ahab's family, and in Nero's palace, we may conclude that the Spirit of God will keep alive the holy flame that he hath kindled, in any situation to which a believer can be called. We should therefore be very cautious about leaving, or persuading others to leave, the posts assigned in Providence, however perilous or ensnaring; whilst they can be maintained without sinful compliances, and whilst they afford opportunities of doing good.—They who begin early to serve God, are likely to be eminent in their generation: and they that “fear the Lord greatly,” will devise various methods of usefulness; for they will not shrink from trouble, danger, or expense, in promoting his cause, or protecting and relieving his oppressed and afflicted servants. Providence indeed hath often remarkably preserved those who have ventured their lives freely in his cause, in times of triumphant wickedness; yet singular activity, prudence, and fidelity in secular concerns, frequently prove the means of their security.—Many are careful to prevent the effects of sin upon their temporal interests, whilst they continue by their crimes to augment the fierce wrath of God, which is the cause of all their miseries: and ungodly rich men are commonly more careful about their own self-indulgence, than the preservation of the multitude of the poor from starving. But whilst sinners remain on earth, the Lord will afford them some respite; that his judgments and mercies may concur either to lead them to repentance, or to display his justice in their condemnation: and national calamities are often retarded or terminated, for the sake of a despised remnant of believers; for if persecutors could extirpate them all, they would open the flood-gates of divine vengeance upon themselves.—The servants of God may, in his cause, boldly face their most powerful enraged enemies; for they dare not touch them when he intimidates their hearts, and cannot when he holds their hands: and such as fear the Lord, however exalted in life, will greatly respect his faithful servants, though poor and hated by all around them.—They whose situations have h 39. Num. xxv.

e.

i Josh. xix 18.

45 And it came to pass in the meanwhile, that the heaven was black with clouds and wind, and ^b there was a great rain. And Ahab rode, and went to Jezreel.

long required them to be cautious of giving unnecessary umbrage, are apt to grow too timid, and to apprehend consequences which are not likely to follow: if, however, they be sincere, they will surmount their fears, and join with their more courageous brethren in doing the will of God.

V. 17—29.

The ministers of the Lord have generally been accounted the troublers of nations, nay, even of the Church, by ungodly rulers: because they oppose prevailing abuses though sanctioned by authority, and denounce the wrath of God against impenitent sinners. Nay, they have sometimes been treated as the authors of those calamities which have come upon men for persecuting them, and neglecting their warnings! But they are able to refute, and even to retort such charges, when urged to their faces; and to show that they who forsake the commandments of the Lord, and teach others to do so, are the real troublers of the world, of the Church, and of themselves and their own families: and when this is done with firmness and solemnity, as by the authority of God, it will often cause the proudest sinner to tremble; to desist from present purposes of violence, and comply with reasonable requirements. The condescension of the Lord in repeatedly proving the most evident truths, concerning his being, perfections, the divine authority of his word, and the nature of his worship, is as wonderful as the perverseness of men which requires such repeated demonstrations: but the fundamentals of religion stand on such manifest grounds of reason and sound argument, that they need fear no fair investigation. It is of vast importance, that we come to a decision on such subjects: for whilst we waver respecting them, we must be unstable in all our ways. But we should be equally decided in our practice, else our creed, however orthodox, will be received only by a dead faith. If the LORD be God, let us worship him, choose him for our Portion, and devote ourselves to his service: if Jesus be the divine and only Saviour, let us come to him, cleave to him, and depend on him alone for every thing; if the Bible be the word of God, let us reverence, study, and receive, the whole of it, and submit our understanding to its teaching: and let us no longer endeavour to serve God and Mammon; to reconcile religion and secret sin; or to believe revelation, to accept of salvation, or to give up ourselves to the service of our Redeemer, by halves, or with reserves. This, Satan will be content with, but the LORD abhors it. The cause of truth is not to be determined by vote, authority, or wealth: one poor prophet or minister for JEHOVAH; hundreds and thousands for Baal, even of those in reputation and favour, and who have possessed wealth and learning, has been a common cause! But God will plead his own cause, and that of his witnesses, which will countervail all disadvantages; and his truth is great, and will prevail. In confidence of his support, we may concede every external precedence to our opponents, 46 And ^k the hand of the LORD was on Elijah; and ^l he girded up his loins, and ^m ran before Ahab ^{*} to the entrance of Jezreel.

m Matt. xxii 21. 2 Pet. ii. 17.

* Heb. till thou come to Jezreel.

k 2 Kings iii. 15.
Is. viii. 11. Ez.
i. 3. iii. 14.
1 2 Kings iv. 20.
ix. 1. Job
xxxviii. 3. Jer.
i 17. 1 Pet. i.
13.

and boldly stand forth in his cause, without apprehension about the event. It however is right to state every thing in so equitable, plain, and convincing a manner, that all may be constrained to say, "It is well spoken," and that the mouths of gain-sayers may be stopped. The absurdities of superstition and false religion might excite our ridicule, did not their awful effects demand our tears. The example of Elijah, in this instance, must be imitated with great caution, and only on very peculiar occasions. The service of Satan, whether in the observations of idolatrous worship, or in the practice of immoralities, whilst it promises indulgence to men's lusts, is cruel to their persons, and tends to torment them even in this world.

V. 30—46.

All religious diligence, which runs counter to the word of God, however self-denying or plausible, is unavailing: "for he, who gathereth not with the Saviour, scattereth." Yet, when it is impracticable for us exactly to come up to the scriptural standard; or when we cannot have personal communion with God's people in his more solemn ordinances; we must come as near as we can to the one, and show our fellowship with the other by such expressions as we are capable of: and the Lord will graciously accept our upright intentions, and dispense with the unavoidable irregularity.—Hypocrites expect to be heard for their much, or their loud, speaking; but a few words uttered in assured faith, and with fervent affections of zeal for the glory of God, and love to the souls of men, or thirstings after the Lord's image and favour, often form "the effectual fervent prayer of the righteous man, which availeth much." Such principles should dictate all our prayers, and we should utterly disregard even our own reputation in the judgment of men; except when it is connected with the credit of religion, the conviction of sinners that our cause is that of God, and the establishment of believers in the faith: but for these purposes we should endeavour to obviate every occasion of suspicion, and to be careful that our good be not evil spoken of. The awful display of the divine justice and holiness may terrify and convince the sinner; extort many confessions, and dispose him to external acts of obedience, whilst the impression lasts: but the view of these attributes harmonizing with mercy, love, and truth, in Christ Jesus, is needful to draw the soul into self-abasement, affiance, and love. Yet the Spirit of God employs both methods in effecting the conversion of sinners, in order and measure, as he pleases: and in our endeavours for that same blessed purpose, it is generally adviseable to inform the understanding and convince the judgment first, and then to address the heart and conscience. When sinners are deeply impressed with divine truth, they should be earnestly exhorted without delay to set about those self-denying duties to which the Saviour calls his disciples.—Under the Christian dispensation, we must not destroy

CHAP. XIX.

Ahab shows Jezebel, that Elijah had slain Baal's prophets; she threatens Elijah's life; and he flees into the wilderness; he is weary of living: but being twice strengthened with food rought by an angel, he fasts forty days, and arrives at Horeb, 1—8. There God appears to him, preceded by a strong wind, an earthquake, and fire; and, speaking to him in a still small voice, commissions him to anoint Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha, 9—17. Elisha is informed that seven thousand worshippers of JEHOVAH still remain in Israel, 18. Elijah casts his mantle on Elisha, who takes leave of his friends, and follows him, 19—21.

a x.iii. 40.

AND Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal ^a how he had slain all the prophets with the sword.

men's lives, though they have deceived others to idolatrous worship. When, however, false teachers are removed, silenced, or put to shame, it exceedingly promotes the revival of true religion. And after effectual measures for public reformation have been used, we may hope for the merciful removal of public calamities.—Faith perceives things imperceptible to sense, and anticipates future and distant blessings: it therefore excites fervent prayers, in which reverence, humility, importunity, and perseverance, are requisite, in order to success.—The love of faithful ministers to the persons of sinners should not only be manifest to that God, who in secret hears their affectionate prayers for those whom they most severely reprove; but they should show it by every external expression, and be ready to give honour to whom honour on any account is due; and in their private conduct to become the meanest servants to those whom, speaking in God's name, they rebuke with all authority. And He will strengthen his people for every service, to which his commandments and his providence shall call them.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIX. V. 2. The Lord permitted this wicked woman to be so intoxicated by rage, that instead of sending a messenger to apprehend or kill Elijah, she gave him warning and time to make his escape! Some indeed think, that she durst not venture at once the rage of the people, and the miraculous power that the prophet evidently possessed, by attempting to slay him: but contented herself with threatening him, that he might abscond and occasion her no further interruption; while others suppose, that she had such an opinion of his intrepidity, that she concluded he would certainly wait the event. Yet her absolute language, and the imprecation upon herself if she failed, seem more like the outrageous effusion of passion, than the 2 Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, ^b So let the gods do to me, and more also, ^c if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by ^d to-morrow about this time.

3 And when he saw that, ^e he arose, and went for his life, and came to ^f Beer-sheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there.

4 But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and ^g sat down under a juniper-tree: and ^h he requested ^{*} for himself that he might die; and said, It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers.

5 And ⁱ as he lay and slept under a juniper-tree, behold, then ^k an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat.

6 And he looked, and, behold, there ^l was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his [†] head. And he b ii. 23. xx. 10. ff. Ruth. i. 17. 2 Kings vi. 31. c Ex. x. 28. xv. 9. 2 Kings xix. 10. —22. 21. 27, 28. Dan. iii. 15. d Prov. xxvii. f. Jam. iv. 14. e Gen. xii. 12, 13. Ex. ii. 15. 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. Is. ii. 12, 13. Matt. xxvi. 56. 70—74. 2 Cor. xii. 7. f iv. 25. Gen. xxi. 31.

g xiii. 14. Gen. xxi. 15, 16. h 3. Num. xi. 15. Job iii. 20—22. Jer. xx. 14—18. Jon. iv. 3. 8. * Heb. for his life.

i Gen. xxviii. 11—15. k Ps. xxxiv. 7. 10. Heb. i. 14. xiii. 5.

l xvii. 6. Ps. xxxvii. 3. 1e. xxxiii. 16. Mat. vi. 32. Mark viii. 2, 3. John xxi. 5. 9. † Heb. bolster.

effect of deliberation and design. Without reflecting that she might not live till the morrow, or not be able to find him or to prevail against him; she swore by her gods that she would put him to death, as if all events were absolutely in her own power!

V. 3, 4. It seems that Elijah fled on the very night after the sacrifice and the fire from heaven, and before he had time to refresh himself from the fatigues of the preceding day. He therefore left his servant at Beer-sheba, as unable to proceed with him through weariness: or perhaps he was unwilling to expose him to further hardship; being, as some think, purposed to end his life in the desolate wilderness, where Israel had wandered forty years.—He had passed through the kingdom of Judah, where doubtless pious Jehoshaphat would have welcomed and protected him! But he seems on this occasion to have been left to himself for his humiliation; and consequently he was seized with unreasonable terror. Instead of venturing all consequences, assured of the protection of the Almighty; and pushing his advantage, by leading the people to destroy the worship of Baal and restore that of JEHOVAH; he fled from his work, and impatiently wished and prayed for death! Thus the people, left without a leader, and intimidated by his example, would probably be too afraid of Jezebel, to reap those decisive advantages from the miracle, and the events recorded in the former chapter, which might have been hoped for.—When Elijah said, “I am no better than my fathers,” he seems to have referred to some intimations given him of his translation: but he was willing rather to die than to live in misery, and to behold, without being able to prevent, the wickedness and ruin of his people: yet he would rather die by the hand of the Lord, than by that of Baal's worshippers, lest they should blaspheme that God whose prophet they had slain.

did eat and drink, and laid him down again.

7 And the angel of the LORD came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise, and eat; ^m because the journey is too great for thee.

8 And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went ^a in the strength of that meat ^o forty days and forty nights unto ^p Horeb the mount of God.

9 And he came thither unto ^q a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said unto him, ^r What doest thou here, Elijah?

10 And he said, I have been ^s very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, ^t thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even ^u I only, am left; and ^x they seek my life, to take it away.

11 And he said, Go forth, and ^y stand upon the mount before the LORD. And, behold, ^z the LORD passed by, and ^a a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the LORD; but the LORD was not in the wind: and after the wind ^b an earthquake; but the LORD, was not in the earthquake:

12 And after the earthquake ^c a fire; but the LORD was not in the fire: and after the fire ^d a still small voice.

13 And it was so, when Elijah heard it, that ^e he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out and stood in the entering in of the cave. And, behold there came a voice unto him, and said, ^f What doest thou here, Elijah?

14 And he said, ^g I have been very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life to take it away.

^m Deut. xxxiii.
²⁵ Ps. ciii. 13, 14.

ⁿ Dan. i. 15.
² Cor. xii. 9.
^o Ex. xxiv. 18.
¹⁴ Num. xxv.
¹⁵ Ps. lxi. 9.
¹⁶ Luke iv. 2.
^p Ex. iii. 1. xix.
18.

^q Ex. xxxiii. 21,
22. Jer. ix. 2
Heb. xi. 38.

^r 13. Gen. iii. 9.
xvi. 8.
^s Ex. xxxiv. 5.
¹⁴ Num. xxv.
11. Ps. lxi. 9. cxix. 139. John
xi. 17.

^t 14. xviii. 4. 30.
Hos. v. 11. Mic.
vi. 16.

^u xviii. 22. Rom.
xi. 2, 3.
^x 2. xviii. 10. 17.
^y Ex. xix. 20.
¹⁷ Ex. xix. 20.
¹⁸ Ex. xix. 20.
¹⁹ Ex. xix. 20.
²⁰ Ex. xix. 20.
²¹ Ex. xix. 20.
²² Ex. xix. 20.
²³ Ex. xix. 20.
²⁴ Ex. xix. 20.
²⁵ Ex. xix. 20.

^z Ex. xxxiii. 21
23. xxxiv. 5.
^a Ex. xix. 16. xx.
18. Job xxxviii.
1. Ps. i. 3. Is.
xxx. 30. Ez. i.
4. Nah. i. 3. 6.
Heb. xii. 18—
21. Rev. xx. 11.

^b Ps. lxxviii. 8.
Nah. i. 5. Matt.
xxiv. 7. xxviii.
51—54. xxviii.
2. Heb. xii. 26.
Rev. xi. 19.
xvi. 18.

^c xviii. 38. Gen.
xv. 17. Ex. iii.
2. Deut. iv. 11,
12. 33. 2 Kings i.
10. ii. 11. Heb.
xii. 29.

^d Ex. xxxiv. 6.
Job. iv. 16,
xxxiii. 7. Zech.
iv. 6. Acts ii.
36, 37.
^e Ex. iii. 6. xxxiii.
23. Is. vi. 2. 5.
^f 9. Gen. xvi. 8.
John xxi. 15—
17.

^g 10. Is. lxii. i.
6, 7.

V. 5—8. The Lord intended that Elijah should visit Horeb, where Moses had fasted forty days and nights; that in him the miracle might be repeated: because, as Moses was the lawgiver, so Elijah was in some respects the chief of the prophets. God at first miraculously provided his servant with food; and then supported him without food, or any need or desire of it.—As mount Horeb was but a few days journey from Beer-sheba; the forty days here mentioned seem to include the whole of the time which passed till his return out of the wilderness.

V. 9. What doest thou, &c.? Elijah had been secretly guided to mount Horeb, rather than to another place; and probably he sought retirement for meditation and prayer. But this was not at that crisis his proper work; he ought not to have fled from the land of Israel, but there to have persevered in promoting the revival of true religion.

V. 10. The prophet pleaded in his own behalf, that “he had been very jealous for the LORD,” having had his glory exceedingly at heart, and having been deeply grieved, and even filled with holy indignation, at Israel’s apostacy. This he had long endeavoured to prevent: and he had now fled from his work, not through defect of zeal, but for want of encouragement. The whole nation, he thought, had renounced their covenant with JEHOVAH, and had concurred with their rulers in breaking down his altars which had been erected on the high places; as if they were determined to worship him no more: they had also joined in murdering the prophets; so that he stood alone to stem the torrent, and they were all ready to assist Jezebel in putting him to death also.—But he supposed matters to be worse than they really were; for probably many of the hundred prophets, whom Obadiah had protected, were living, and privately attempting to do good with some success. So that he needlessly discouraged himself: and his mind was so much embittered, that he is said to have made intercession against Israel. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 11—14. There seems to have been, in this manifestation of God to Elijah, an intended reference to that with which Moses was favoured; when the Lord caused his goodness to pass before him; and to the terrific solemnities from mount Sinai, (where Elijah now was,) compared with the mild majesty, in which he communed with Israel from above the mercy-seat. (Marg. Ref.) It was preceded by a vehement wind rending the mountains and rocks; by an earthquake, still more tremendous; and by a fire, similar perhaps to that which appeared on mount Sinai at the delivery of the law: all these effects were no doubt produced by the ministration of angels. But the Lord made known his more immediate presence, not by these terrors, but by a small still voice: and it is not said, that there was any visible appearance of glory. This intimated that miraculous judgments, and terrifying displays of the Lord’s power and indignation; though proper for the destruction or intimidation of his enemies, or to excite attention, were only preparatives for that real good intended for Israel; which must be effected by the energy of his Spirit accompanying the convincing and persuasive instructions of his word. Elijah had perhaps expected to carry all before him, with a high hand, and with continued miracles or judgments: or he had supposed that the desired reformation was to be effected by the sanction of civil authority, or the support of the people at large. Whereas, having gained their attention by the famine, and its gracious removal, in answer to his prayers, by calling for and obtaining fire from heaven to consume the sacrifice, and by the execution of Baal’s priests; he ought to have proceeded to instruct them with meekness and gentleness, publicly and from house to house, and to h Gen. xiv. 15.

i 2 Kings viii. 12.
 13. Is. xiv. 1.
 Jer. i. 10. xxvii.
 2, &c.
 k 2 Kings ix. 1—
 3. 6.

l 19—21. Luke iv.
 27. Eliseus.
 m iv. 12. Judg.
 vii. 22.

n Is. xxiv. 17, 18.
 Am. ii. 14 v. 19.
 o 2 Kings viii. 12.
 x. 32. xiii. 3.
 p 2 Kings ix. 14.
 &c. x. 6, &c.
 q Is. xi. 4. Jer. i.
 10. Hos. vi. 5.
 Rev. xix. 21.
 r Is. i. 9. x. 20—22. Rom. xi.
 4, 5.
 s Or, I will leave.
 Ex. xx. 5. Is.
 xlv. 23. Rom.
 xiv. 10—12.
 Phil. ii. 10.
 t Job xxxi. 27.
 Ps. ii. 12. Hos.
 xiii. 2.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Go, return on thy way to ^b the wilderness of Damascus: and when thou comest, anoint Hazael to be king over Syria;

16 And ^b Jehu the son of Nimshi shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel: and ¹ Elisha the son of Shaphat of ^m Abel-meholah shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room.

17 And it shall come to pass, that him that escapeth ^o the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay: and him that escapeth from ^p the sword of Jehu shall ^q Elisha slay.

18 ^r Yet ^s I have left me seven thousand in Israel, all ^s the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, and ^t every mouth which hath not kissed him.

19 ¶ So he departed thence, and found Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and ^u he with the twelfth: and Elijah passed by him, and cast ^x his mantle upon him.

20 And ^y he left the oxen, and ran after Elijah, and said, ^z Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee. And he said unto him, ^{*} Go back again: for what have I done to thee?

21 And he returned back from him, and took a yoke of oxen, and slew them, and ^a boiled their flesh with the instruments of the oxen, and ^b gave unto the people, and they did eat. Then he arose, and went after Elijah, and ^c ministered unto him.

u Ex. iii. 1. Judg. vi. 11. Ps. lxxviii. 70—72. Am. vii. 14. Zech. xiii. 6. Matt. iv. 18—22. x. 2 Kings ii. 8. 13, 14.
 y Matt. iv. 20, 22. ix. 9. xix. 27.
 z Matt. vii. 21. 22. Luke ix. 61, 62.

* Heb. Go, return.

a 2 Sam. xxiv. 22.

b Luke v. 28, 29.

c xxviii. 43. Ex. xxiv. 13. Num. xxvii. 18—20. 2 Kings ii. 3. iii. 11. Acts xiii. 5. 2 Tim. iv. 11. Philemon 13.

have excited others to assist him: and then the Lord would have blessed that still small voice, for the most important purposes, notwithstanding the persecuting rage of Ahab and Jezebel, and the general apostacy of the people. Thus miracles in the first ages of Christianity called men's attention to the Gospel, which was the power of God to salvation to thousands and millions.—Though Elijah showed tokens of humble adoration on this occasion, his repetition of his answer to the Lord's renewed inquiry, "What doest thou here!" shows that he did not fully understand the emblematic display: and that he was not properly convinced of his unbelief, in fleeing out of the land; or reconciled to going back to his work. He afterwards better understood the Lord's meaning, as appears from his subsequent conduct.

V. 15—17. As the prophet was ordered to go on the way to the wilderness of Damascus, it seems probable that he went directly towards Syria, and meeting with Hazael anointed him; though this is not recorded. Jehu was afterwards anointed by a prophet sent by Elisha; and perhaps Elisha was anointed by Elijah, when called to be his successor. Some, however, think the expression is not always to be taken literally; but merely as an intimation, that God would advance the persons spoken of to the stations assigned, and qualify them for the work to be performed by them.—Jehu executed vengeance upon Jezebel and Ahab's posterity, and the priests and worshippers of Baal: Hazael through his whole reign wasted and destroyed the people of Israel: and at Elisha's word the Lord took vengeance on those who would not attend to the instructions of his prophets. (Marg. Ref.)—God was infinitely more jealous for his own glory, than Elijah could be for it; and he would by no means desert his cause, or suffer his enemies to triumph, as the prophet feared: but before he proceeded to vengeance, he would gather in his chosen people, and separate a remnant from among the idolaters.

V. 18. The Lord "had reserved for himself" seven thousand Israelites, who had neither bowed to Baal, nor kissed his image, nor in any way been induced to worship him. (Marg. Ref.) These, though few in comparison, were a considerable number in themselves, and far more than Elijah supposed.—As Ahab and Jezebel aimed to establish the worship of Baal, we may suppose that the golden calves were neglected, and that these persons as conscientiously adhered to the worship of JEHOVAH, as the times would admit. They would therefore need further instruction and encouragement; others might be recovered from idolatry; and the rising generation rescued from its contagion. So that there was useful employment for Elijah worth living for; and a good reason why the Lord should defer his anger, though provoked to jealousy every day.

V. 19. This might occur after Elijah's return from the wilderness of Damascus, or in his journey thither.—Elisha was employed in husbandry, and his father seems to have been a man of wealth. Whilst he was employed in his labour, Elijah cast his mantle upon him, which was intended and understood as a call to him to follow and attend upon him.

V. 20, 21. It is probable that Elijah intended to discover whether Elisha was decided to renounce his temporal interests, and to venture persecution as a prophet of the Lord; and to lead him to count his cost ere he engaged. But Elisha's heart was touched by the Holy Spirit, and he was ready to leave all to attend Elijah. He asked not to tarry till the death of his parents, but only to bid them farewell: and having made a feast for his neighbours of the flesh of the oxen, prepared with their yokes, as the fuel, (in token, that he never meant to return again to that employment;) he followed Elijah, and ministered to him, that under his tuition he might be prepared to succeed him, and in the mean time be a help and comfort to him.—The prophet could now no longer complain, that he only was left, for the Lord had provided him a companion. From the ensuing history it appears, that Elijah and Elisha employed themselves, not only in privately instructing the people, but also in founding and superintending seminaries of prophets in the different parts of the land, who might

CHAP. XX.

Ben-hadad, not satisfied with Ahab's submission, wars against Samaria, 1—12. Ahab, directed by a prophet, gains a complete victory over him, 13—21. A prophet warns Ahab to prepare for another assault. The Syrians come again, the next year, with vast preparations; and are opposed by a very small company, 22—27. A prophet assures Ahab of victory, because the Syrians thought JEHOVAH the God of the hills, but not of the valleys. The Syrians are smitten with immense slaughter, and Ben-hadad flees and hides himself, 28—30. He submissively sues to Ahab, who makes a league with him, 31—34. A prophet, by a parable, leads Ahab to condemn himself, and then denounces the judgment of God against him for his unseasonable lenity, 35—43.

AND^a Ben-hadad the king of Syria gathered all his host together: and there were^b thirty and two kings with a xv. 28. 2 Kings viii. 7—15 b Gen. xiv 1, 2. Judg. i. 7. Ezra vii. 12. Is. x. 6. Ez. xxvi. 7. Dan. ii. 37.

assist them in the work of reformation, and maintain it when they were removed.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—9.

No miracles or judgments can finally stop the fury of persecutors: for though they be intimidated for a season; yet when they have respite, and leisure to confer with one another, they grow desperate in proportion as they have been baffled and mortified. Nay, such diabolic enmity can inhabit the breasts of females, and has sometimes raged there with peculiar vehemency!—Mad passions often defeat their own end, and furious threats prevent the execution of determined malice.—The most eminent believers cannot exercise even those graces which most distinguish their characters, without the immediate assistance of God: and when in danger of being exalted above measure, they are sometimes left to struggle with temptation without their wonted support. Then the boldest, who before feared no number or power of the adversaries, tremble at the distant prospect of danger; the most zealous quarrel with their work, and sit down disconsolate and desponding; nay the most resigned grow fretful, and even pray in a peevish manner, and want to die, not out of longing for heavenly glory, but from weariness of worldly tribulations! But it is shameful for a soldier to wish to be absent from his place in the day of battle, or to expect the victory without the peril and the hardship of the conflict! The Lord however bears with his faithful servants, notwithstanding their infirmities; and preserves them for every service that he has allotted them, whatever they wish or fear. As all creatures are at his command, they for whom he engages to provide, can want no good thing: and yet if he pleases he can support them without either means or instruments. His mercy and power are the same from generation to generation, whether displayed in the same way or not: and he will vouchsafe his gracious presence to his people into whatever place they are banished. Indeed when they flee from the path of duty, he will meet and rebuke them, but he will not forsake them.

V. 10—14.

No former zeal, boldness, or usefulness, will excuse present neglects: yet we are most apt to boast of what we have been and done, when most remiss in present duty! Disappointments in our sanguine expectations often sour our tempers, as well as render us discontented: and then we are ready to blame others for our failures, and to be severe in our censures and remarks.—The zealous minister often finds this heaven corrupting his services: he is sometimes tempted to think all his labour in vain, when he does not see the immediate effect; and to conclude, that he can do no good, because he cannot do all that he hoped for: and when he witnesses much evil in the church, or in that part in which he labours, he often imagines matters to be much worse than they really are.—Thus “our hands hang down, and our knees wax feeble;” and we are ingenious in discouraging and disquieting ourselves! But upon reflection, this very experience may explain to us that rebellion of others which so disconcerts us; and teach us gentleness and long-suffering, without disdaining, or despairing of the worst of sinners.—The blessing is from the Lord; and he often works most effectually when proper means are used with quiet assiduity and perseverance, without any of that bustle and vehemence which excite the public attention. Magistrates should indeed exercise their authority, according to the word of God, and for his glory; but attempts to promote reformation by the secular arm bearing all down before it, like the strong wind, the earthquake, and the fire, promise more than they effect; and, even when confined within proper bounds, in repressing immorality, and countenancing the ministers in their work, they only make way for the still small voice of the gospel, by means of which the holy Spirit performs his gracious work upon the heart. And the minister, when deprived of this protection, and driven by persecution into obscure corners, may expect great usefulness, by this power accompanying his labours. The word of God is indeed “like a fire, and a hammer, that breaketh the rock in pieces,” and the whole of it should be preached with zealous plainness and faithfulness: but the ministration of condemnation, and the awful terrors of eternal vengeance, only precede, and make way for, the ministration of righteousness, and the sweet gospel of Christ, attended by urgent persuasions, melting expostulations, and tender invitations, in which the Lord chiefly comes to seal our hearts for himself.—We shall do well often to imagine we hear the Lord inquire, “What doest thou here?” In scenes of worldly dissipation, in trifling company, in riotous feastings, or where unlawful traffic is carrying on, the Christian can have no him, and horses and chariots: and he went up and ^e besieged Samaria, and warred against it.
VOL. II.—No. 9.

2 And ^a he sent messengers to Ahab king of Israel into the city, and said unto him, Thus saith Ben-hadad,

3 ^e Thy silver and thy gold is mine; thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest, are mine.

4 And the king of Israel answered and said, My lord, O king, according to thy saying, ^f I am thine, and all that I have.

5 And the messengers came again, and said, Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, saying, Although I have sent unto thee, saying, Thou shalt deliver me thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children;

6 Yet I will send my servants unto thee to-morrow about this time, ^g and they shall search thine house, and the houses of thy servants; and it shall be, that whatsoever is ^{*} pleasant in thine eyes, they shall put it in their hand, and take it away.

7 Then the king of Israel called ^h all the elders of the land, and said, ⁱ Mark, I pray you, and see how this man ^k seeketh mischief: for he sent unto me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver, and for my gold, and I [†] denied him not.

8 And all the elders and all the people said unto him, Harken not unto him, nor consent.

9 Wherefore he said unto the messengers of Ben-hadad, Tell my lord the king, all that thou didst send for to thy servant at the first I will do: but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed, and brought him word again.

10 And Ben-hadad sent unto him, and said, ^l The gods do so unto me, and more also, ^m if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that [‡] follow me.

Lev. xxvi. 25.
Deu xxviii. 52
2 Kings vi. 24-29
xxvii. 5, 6.
1 Kings xix. 9.
Is. xxxvi. 2 &c.
xxxvii. 9, 10.

Ex. xv. 9. Is. x. 13, 14.

Lev. xxvi. 26
Deu xxviii. 48.
1 Sam. xiii. 6, 7.
2 Kings xviii. 14
—6.

1 Sam. xiii. 19-21.
2 Sam. xxiv. 14.
2 Kings xviii. 31, 32.

^{*} Heb. desirable.

good answer ready: no more can the minister, if engrossed by needless worldly business, by trifling studies, or by the pursuits of ambition, preferment, pleasure, or reputation, to the neglect of the important duties of his calling. Nay, if we be at home when we should be in the pulpit; asleep when we should be at work; or in company when we should be engaged in prayer and meditation, or reading the Scriptures; such a question must confound us. In short, every station has its proper duties, and every portion of time its proper work, and we should frequently call ourselves to account, whether we are in our place and duty as the season requires.

V. 15—21.

It is not easy to convince men of their faults, and silence their excuses or boastings: and whilst the Lord encourages his servants under their difficulties, he sends them back to their proper work, ashamed of their timidity and neglect: and then he gives them both helpers and success. He hath “a remnant according to the election of grace,” which he reserves to himself, and preserves from prevailing abominations. For their conversion and edification he waits and provides: in the mean time impenitent sinners ripen for vengeance; and he raises up instruments to execute it upon them from whom they shall by no means escape: for the word of God spoken by his despised ministers, ensures their destruction, more than the sword of any enemy. Nor will he ever desert his own cause, however it seems to be run down: he will furnish men for the most perilous and self-denying services: and they, who duly understand the importance of the sacred ministry, will renounce every other honour, pleasure, and interest for the sake of it, though called to labour in the midst of hardships, poverty, and persecution.—Zeal for the glory of God, and the salvation of souls, will subordinate, though it will not extinguish, natural affections. Generally the work of the ministry requires the whole man: and when such are employed, as have not been regularly educated for it, they are especially concerned to attend the instructions, to frequent the company, and to copy the examples of aged and approved ministers: and “no man having set his hand to “the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of “God.” In difficult times helpers of inferior abilities may be a great comfort to the discouraged servants of God: and his work is carried on to advantage, when different ministers concur from the same principles, to seek the same great end of his glory in the salvation of souls. May the Lord of the harvest send forth many such labourers into his harvest! Amen.

NOTES.

CHAP. XX. V. 1. Benhadad signifies the son of Hadad; (xi. 14—22:) yet he is said to have been “the son of Tabrimon, the son of Hezion.” (xv. 18.)—Perhaps Hadad was his father, and Tabrimon and Hezion his more remote ancestors.—The thirty and two kings were petty princes of the adjacent countries, who were either vassals or allies to the king of Syria.—Ben-hadad seems to have been induced by rapacity to wage war against Ahab: and it is probable that he had wasted the country before he besieged Samaria.—The late famine had much diminished the numbers of the Israelites, by their death and emigration: and by the righteous judgment of God, the remainder were so disaffected to Ahab, or so dismayed by Ben-hadad, that they had retired or fled; and thus they left the capital city in a very defenceless condition.

h viii. 1. Lev. iv. 15. 1 Chr. xiii. 1. xxviii. 1.
Prov. xi. 14.
i 2 Kings v. 7.
k Prov. xi. 27.
xxiv. 2 Rom. iii. 13—18.

† Heb. kept us back from him.

l xix. 2. Acts' xxi. 12.
m 2 Sam. xvii. 12.
n 13. Is. xxxvii. 24, 25.
† Heb. are at my feet. Ex. xl. 8.
Judg. iv. 10.

11 And the king of Israel answered and said, Tell him, ^a Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off.

12 And it came to pass, when Ben-hadad heard this ^{*} message, as he ^o was drinking, he and the kings in the [†] pavilions, that he said unto his servants, [‡] Set yourselves in array. And they set themselves in array against the city.

13 And, behold, there [§] came a prophet unto Ahab king of Israel, saying, Thus saith the LORD, ^p Hast thou seen all this great multitude? behold, I will deliver it into thine hand this day; ^q and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

14 And Ahab said, By whom? And he said, Thus saith the LORD, Even by ^{||} the young men of the princes of the provinces. Then he said, Who shall ^{*} order the battle? And he answered, Thou.

15 Then he numbered the young men of the princes of the provinces, and they were ^r two hundred and thirty-two: and after them he numbered all the people, even all the children of Israel, being ^s seven thousand.

16 And they went out at noon. But Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk in the pavilions, he and the kings, the thirty and two kings that helped him.

17 And the young men of the princes of the provinces went out first; and Ben-hadad sent out, and they told him, saying, There are men come out of Samaria.

18 And he said, ^u Whether they be come out for peace, take them alive; or whether they be come out for war, take them alive.

19 So these young men of the princes of the provinces came out of the city, and the army which followed them.

20 And ^x they slew every one his man: and ^y the Syrians fled; and Israel pursued them: and Ben-hadad the king of Syria ^z escaped on an horse, with the horsemen.

21 And the king of Israel ^a went out, and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter.

22 ¶ And ^b the prophet came to the n 1 Sam. xiv. 6.

12, 13. xvii. 44—
47. Prov. xxvii.
1. Ec. ix. 11. 1s.
x. 15, 16.

* Heb. word.

o 16. xvi. 9. 1
San. xxv. 36.
Prov. xxxi. 4, 5.
Dan. v. 2, 30.
Luke xxi. 34.

† Or, tents ‡ Or, Place the engines And they placed engines.

§ Heb. approached.

p 2 Kings vi. 8—
12. 33. vii. 1. xiii.
23. 1s. vii. 1—9.
Ez. xx. 14. 22.

q 28. xviii. 37.
Ex. xiv. 18. xvi.
12. Ps. lxxxiii.
18. 1s. xxxvii.

r Joel iii. 17.

|| Or, servants.
Gen. xiv. 14—16.
Judg. vii. 20.
1 Cor. i. 27—29.

* Heb. bind, or,
fre.

r Judg. vii. 7. 1s.
1 Sam. xiv. 6.
2 Chr. xiv. 11.

s xix. 18. 1 Sam.
xiv. 2. 2 Kings
xiii. 7. Ps. cvii.
40—43.
t 12. xvi. 9. Prov.
xxiii. 29—32.
Ec. x. 16, 17.

u 1 Sam. ii. 3, 4.
xiv. 11. xvii. 44.
2 Kings xiv. 8—
12. Prov. xviii.
12.

x 2 Sam. ii. 18.

y Lev. xxvi. 8.
Judg. vii. 20—22.
1 Sam. xiv. 13—
15. 2 Kings vii.
6, 7. Ps. xxxiii.
16. xlv. 4. 6.
z 2 Kings xix. 36.
a Judg. iii. 28. vii.
23—25. 1 Sam.
xiv. 20—22. xvi.
52. 2 Kings iii.
18. 24.

b 13. 38. xix. 10.
xxii. 8.

V. 2—11. Ben-hadad's first message was couched in insulting language. He not only considered Ahab's riches as already his property, but his wives and children, even the goodliest of them, as his slaves. Yet Ahab understood this only as a claim to the dominion over him and his property or kingdom, and in abject terms consented to be his vassal, and to do him homage, and pay him tribute. Ben-hadad, therefore, perhaps perceiving his terror and pusillanimity, grew more insolent, and by a second message demanded the immediate possession, and use, of them all for himself and his servants, who meant to carry away what was most valuable, whether it belonged to Ahab or to his people. To this the elders of Israel would not allow him to consent: the dominion, and the public treasures, Ben-hadad might have taken; but to plunder the city, and enslave the inhabitants, might not be granted. To this answer the king of Syria sent a blustering menace, confirmed with an oath by his idols, implying, that he would enter Samaria with such numbers, that, when the whole city was reduced to a heap of dust, it would not afford them every one a handful: but Ahab very pertinently reminded him not to triumph, till he had got the victory; as at present he was only preparing for the battle.

V. 13. Elijah had complained that he was left alone; yet the Lord had other prophets whom he could send to speak before Ahab. Probably he and Elisha were at this time well employed in some distant part of the land; and Ahab and Jezebel were too much engaged, to prevent their labours or usefulness.—JEHOVAH was pleased to predict the victory to this wicked prince, for his further conviction, that He, not Baal, was the living God; for the punishment of Ben-hadad's insolence; for the honour of his own name; and for the benefit of his true worshippers.

V. 14, 15. Ahab, sensible that the promised victory must be miraculous, inquired, By whom it was to be obtained? And he was directed to employ, not his bravest soldiers, but the servants or pages of the chief men in the different provinces; and also himself to lead on the attack. His whole army consisted only of seven thousand men; (the same number with those preserved from idolatry, but not the same persons:) and none of them were to be employed, till the first assault had been made, and the first advantage gained, by this small company of servants! And under the present impression of terror and hope, Ahab readily obeyed the uncommon orders; though in general he despised and hated both the prophets, and Him that sent them.

V. 16—18. It is probable, that Ahab chose to lead out his little troop at noon, when he supposed the Syrians would be at dinner, or reposing themselves.—Ben-hadad, despising the Israelites, was indulging to excess: and on hearing that a small company came out of Samaria, he gave orders, in his pride and intoxication, which were exactly suited to embarrass his officers and soldiers; and to prevent their attacking the assailants with spirit, lest they should slay those whom they had been ordered to take alive!

V. 20, 21. The two hundred and thirty-two servants, whom especially Ben-hadad had ordered to be taken alive, slew every one the man who attempted to seize him: and this unexpected resistance, by the secret operation of God upon the minds of the Syrians, so dismayed them, that they yielded the army an easy and extensive victory. Ben-hadad might think himself well off, after all his boasts and menaces, that he escaped with life, drunken as he then was.

king of Israel and said unto him, Go, strengthen thyself, and mark, and see what thou doest: for ^d at the return of the year the king of Syria will come up against thee.

23 And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, ^e Their gods are gods of the hills; therefore they were stronger than we: but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.

24 And do this thing; ^f Take the kings away, every man out of his place, and put captains in their rooms:

25 And number thee an army, like the army that ^g thou hast lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot: and we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. And he hearkened unto their voice, and did so.

26 And it came to pass at the return of the year, that Ben-hadad numbered the Syrians, and went up to ^h Aphek ⁱ to fight against Israel.

27 And the children of Israel were numbered, and ^j were all present, and went against them: and the children of Israel pitched before them ^k like two little flocks of kids; but the Syrians filled the country.

28 ¶ And there came ^l a man of God, and spake unto the king of Israel, and said, Thus saith the LORD, ^m Because the Syrians have said, The LORD is God of the hills, but he is not God of the valleys, ⁿ therefore will I deliver all this great multitude into thine hand, and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

29 And they pitched one over against the other ^o seven days. And so it was, that in the seventh day the battle was joined: and the children of Israel slew of the Syrians ^p an hundred thousand footmen in one day.

30 But the rest fled to Aphek, into the city: and there ^q a wall fell upon twenty and seven thousand of the men that were left. And Ben-hadad ^r fled and came into the city, ^s into an inner chamber.

31 And ^t his servants said unto him, Behold now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings: let us, I pray thee, ^u put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes upon our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; ^v peradventure he will save thy life.

32 So they girded sackcloth on their loins, and put ropes on their heads, and came to the king of Israel, and said, ^w Thy servant Ben-hadad saith, I pray thee, let me live. And he said, Is he yet alive? ^x he is my brother.

33 Now ^y the men did diligently observe whether any thing would come from him, and did hastily catch it: and they said, Thy brother Ben-hadad. Then he said, Go ye, bring him. Then Ben-hadad came forth to him; and he caused him to come up into the chariot.

c Prov. xviii. 10.
xx. 18. Is viii.
9. Joel iii. 9, 10.
Eph. vi. 10.
d 2 Sam. xi. 1.
1 Chr. xx. 1. Is.
xxvi. 11.

e xiv. 23. 2 Chr.
xxxii. 19. Ps. i.
21. 22. cxxi. 1.
2. Is. xlii. 8.

f 16. Ps. xxxiii.
10. Prov. xxi.
30.

g Heb. was fallen.

B. C. 900.

h 30. Josh. xiii. 4.
xix. 30. Judg. i.
31. Aphik.
i Heb. to the war with Israel.

j Or, were victualled. Josh. i.
11. Judg. vii. 2.

k Deut. xxxii.
30. Judg. vi. 5.
1 Sam. xiii. 5-
7. xiv. 2. 2 Chr.
xxxii. 7, 8. Ec.
ia. 11.

l 13. 22. xiii. 1.
xvii. 18. 2 Chr.
xx. 14-20.

k 23.

1 Ps. lvi. 10, 11.
Is. xxxvii. 29.
Ez. xxxvi. 21-
23. 32.
m 13. Ez. vi. 11.
xi. 12. xii. 16.

n Josh. vi. 15. 1
Sam. xvii. 3. 16.

o 2 Sam. x. 18.
2 Chr. xiii. 17-
xx. 23-25.
xxviii. 6. Is.
xxvi. 1. xxxvii.
26.

p Is. xxiv. 18. Jer.
xlviii. 44. Am.
ii. 14. v. 19. Luke
xiii. 4.
q 10. 20.

r Or, from chamber to chamber.
Heb. into a chamber within a chamber. xxii.
25. Dan. iv. 37.
1 Pet. v. 5.
r 2 Kings v. 13.

s xxi. 27-29.
Gen. xxxvii. 34.
2 Sam. xiv. 2.
Is. xxxvii. 1.
t Job ii. 4. Matt.
x. 29.

u 3-6 Job. xii.
17, 18. xl. 11.
12 Is. ii. 11, 12.
x. 12. Dan. v.
20. 23. Ob. 3, 4.

x 42. 1 Sam. xv.
8. 20.
y Prov. xxv. 13.
Luke xvi. 2.

V. 22. It does not appear that Ahab regarded this merciful and seasonable warning: or that he made any suitable return for his late unexpected deliverance!

V. 23, 24. The servants of Ben-hadad, either in flattery as if no human valour could possibly rout his army, or from present conviction, ascribed their defeat to the gods of Israel: but they supposed that Israel had many deities like the gods of other nations, to whom they ascribed a limited power, within a certain district, out of which they could do nothing.—JEHOVAH had displayed his glory from mount Sinai; the temple was built on mount Zion; Samaria was situated on a hill; and the people loved to sacrifice on high places: and therefore the Syrians concluded that the gods of Israel were powerful upon the mountains, but not in the plains: and they foolishly expected to prevail against Israel and the Lord, by changing their ground. It is, however, probable that they considered the plain country as better suited to their army, which was furnished with cavalry and chariots of war, than to the foot soldiers of Israel.—Their other advice was sensible and pertinent. The kings served rather for pomp and feasting, than for war; and it could not be expected that they would either be so hearty in the cause of Syria, or so observant of exact discipline; as Syrian captains, appointed by the king, and desirous of signaling themselves, would be.

V. 27. This small company was all that Ahab had collected upon this emergency; or, all the seven thousand before mentioned were present: but their appearance conveyed the idea of weakness and timidity.

V. 28. Ahab and Israel merited the most dreadful vengeance: but it was proper that the ignorance or blasphemy of the Syrians should be confuted; that all might know that JEHOVAH, the God of the whole earth, was almighty in every place.—Probably this man of God informed Ahab, that the Lord had devoted Ben-hadad to destruction, and would deliver him into his hands, that he might execute his vengeance upon him.

V. 30. A wall, &c. The falling of this wall, at least the immense slaughter made by it, must be ascribed to the immediate interposition of the Almighty.

34 And Ben-hadad said unto him, z ^{xv. 20.} The cities, which my father took from thy father, I will restore; and thou shalt make streets for thee in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria. Then said Ahab, I will send thee away with this covenant.
 a ^{42. Is. xxvi. 10.} So he made a covenant with him, and sent him away.

b <sup>38. 1 Sam. x.
12. 2 Kings ii. 3.
5. 7. 15. iv. 1.
35. Am. ii. 14.
c xlii. 1, 2, 17, 18
d 37. Is. viii. 18.
xx. 2; 3. Jer xxvii. 2, 3. Ez.
iv. 3. Matt. xvi.
24.
e xlii. 21—24. 28.
f 1 Sam. xv. 22,
23.</sup> 35 ¶ And a certain man ^b of the sons of the prophets said unto his neighbour
 c in the word of the LORD, ^d Smite me, I pray thee. And the man refused to smite him.

36 Then said he unto him, ^e Because thou hast not obeyed the voice of the LORD, behold, as soon as thou art departed from me, a lion shall slay thee.
 And as soon as he was departed from him, a lion found him, and slew him.

37 Then he found another man, and said, ^f Smite me, I pray thee. And the man smote him, * so that in smiting he wounded him.

38 So the prophet departed, and waited for the king by the way, and ^g disguised himself with ashes upon his face.

V. 31—34. It seems, a general opinion prevailed, that the princes of Israel, the people of God, were more generous and clement than other kings: and indeed sentiments derived from the oracles of God produce good effects, in this respect, on many who do not act habitually on religious principles. Ben-hadad's ambassadors, appearing in his name before Ahab, clothed in sackcloth, and with ropes on their heads, formed a remarkable contrast to the preceding state of affairs. Thus they acted as penitents and criminals, who were sorry that they had attacked Ahab, and confessed that they deserved to die for that offence. This was a very great mortification to Ben-hadad: and it was equally flattering to Ahab's vanity, who, seduced by it, forgot both the interests of Israel, and his own real honour and security. Indeed he ought to have given God the glory of his victory, and to have consulted his prophets in what manner to deal with Ben-hadad. But he acknowledged this wicked prince as his brother; (being more pleased with the dignity of a king, than the distinction of an Israelite:) he treated him with respect, and made a league with him upon disadvantageous terms; and sent him away, without any security, except his bare word, for the performance of the treaty. The streets of Damascus were probably allotted to the Israelites for the purposes of trade, that in them they might live unmolested according to their own laws. It is probable that the same liberty had been allowed the Syrians in Samaria; where the idolaters were at ease, when God's prophets were cut off.

V. 35, 36. This command was given by one of the sons of the prophets, in the name of the Lord, and probably to another of the same school. His refusal therefore was 39 And as the king passed by, he cried unto the king: and he said, ^h Thy servant went out into the midst of the battle; and, behold, a man turned aside and brought a man unto me, and said, Keep this man: if by any means he be missing, then shall ⁱ thy life be for his life, or else thou shalt [†] pay a talent of silver.

40 And as thy servant was busy here and there [‡] he was gone. And the king of Israel said unto him, ^k So shall thy judgment be; thyself hast decided it.

41 And he hastened, and took ^l the ashes away from his face; and the king of Israel discerned him that he was of the prophets.

42 And he said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ^m Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man, whom I appointed to utter destruction, therefore ⁿ thy life shall go for his life, and thy people for his people.

43 And the king of Israel ^o went to his house heavy and displeased, and came to Samaria.

direct disobedience to God, which he was pleased to punish with immediate death. Ahab would doubtless hear of this event: and if one, who humanely refused to smite a pious prophet at God's command, were thus punished; he might conclude, that he should not be spared who disobeyed God, by forming an alliance with a haughty idolatrous king, whom the Lord required him to destroy. It seems that the prophet intended, by being wounded, the better to personate a soldier that had been in the battle, and had deserved well of his king, though he had failed in one particular.

V. 38. The prophet appeared, either as one wounded in the face, and so covered with a bandage like a veil to disguise himself, as many understand it; or he assumed the character of a mourner, being under condemnation to die, seeing he could not pay the talent of silver.

V. 41, 42. As soon as Ahab discovered who the prophet was, he perceived that he had been drawn in to pass sentence upon himself. Ahab lost his life in fighting against Ben-hadad, who did not fulfil this treaty: and great evils came upon Israel from the Syrians, whom Ahab might at this time have subjugated and deprived of power.

V. 43. Heavy, &c. Whilst the Lord secured his own glory, and protected his people; he deprived Ahab of all satisfaction in his success, and filled him with vexation and dismay. He did not repent of his fault, but he was chagrined at the message, and enraged at the messenger. Many think it was Michaiab, which is not wholly improbable.

h Judg. ix. 7—20.
2 Sam. xii. 1—7.
xiv. 5—7. Mark
xii. 1—12.

i 2 Kings x. 25.

† Heb. weigh.

‡ Heb. he was not.

k 2 Sam. xii. 5, 6.
Joh xv. 6 Matt.
xxi. 41. xxv. 24
—28. Luke xix.
22.

l 2 Sam. xlii. 19.
Job ii. 6. Jer.
vi. 25.

m 1 Sam. xv. 9—11.

n xxii. 31—37.
2 Kings vi. 24.
viii. 12.

o xxi. 4. xxii. 8.
Job v. 2. Prov.
xix. 3.

f Ex. xxi. 12.

* Heb. smiting and wounding.

g xiv. 2. xxii. 30.

CHAP. XXI.

Ahab covets Naboth's vineyard, and is greatly vexed because Naboth refuses to part with it, 1—4. Jezebel causes Naboth to be stoned, as a blasphemer, 5—14. She excites Ahab to take possession of his vineyard, 15, 16. Elijah is sent to meet Ahab, and to denounce the judgments of God against him, and his family, and Jezebel, 17—24. Ahab's enormous wickedness, 25, 26. He humbles himself before God, and the judgments are deferred to his son's days, 27—29.

AND it came to pass ^a after these ^a Ezra ix. 13, 14 things, that Naboth the Jezreelite ^b xviii. 45 Judg. vi. 33. 1 Sam. xxix. 1. had a vineyard, which was in ^b Jezreel, PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—21.

The indignation of the Lord will surely weaken and dispirit sinners; and those nations especially, that have been favoured with the light of revelation, will be brought low for their iniquity, when they forsake the service of God.—Wicked men delight to insult over the fallen; success increases pride and insolence; and thus they too are prepared for vengeance. They who most daringly rebel against God, are often mere cowards when assaulted by their fellow-creatures: and no extremities or consolations will bring sinners, when left to themselves, to advert to the real causes of their distress. Men will part with their most pleasant things, which they most love, to save their temporal lives: and yet they lose their souls, and incur everlasting misery, rather than bestow any labour, or give up any pleasure or interest, to prevent it! Boasting and menacing language generally betrays a weak and foolish mind, exposes men to cutting rebukes, and terminates in abject meanness and disgrace. To glory in what we have done is pride and vanity; but to glory in what we will do is extreme ignorance and folly: for no capacity or management can ensure success.—Drunkards perform great things, as far as vapouring words can go; and they urge one another on to rash and foolish enterprises, which expose them in every way to detriment and to ruin. The Lord will secure his own glory, and take care of his own people, notwithstanding the wickedness of the great, or of the many: he will leave every impenitent sinner without excuse: and he delights to save by unlikely instruments, that his own power may be the more conspicuous. At some seasons the convictions of the most abandoned may get an advantage over their lusts: for a time they may be restrained from iniquity, do many things according to the command of God, and even regard the admonitions of his ministers: thus they are sometimes externally favoured; that they may experience the different effect of obedience and of disobedience, for their deeper condemnation if they relapse into their former crimes. The Lord inspires counsel and courage, or sends infatuation and dismay, as he pleases: so that the battle is not to the strong; but all calculations are strangely proved erroneous when this secret influence is not taken into the account.

V. 22—43.

Fallen man has very confused, absurd, and dishonourable apprehensions of the divine attributes. He conceives of God as if he were such an one as himself, and is thus emboldened to persist in his rebellion: And the most consummate wisdom, in worldly concerns, often unites with the most contemptible ignorance on religious subjects. To silence the blasphemies, or to expose the mistakes, of some of his enemies, the Lord sometimes gives temporary success to those who in another way despise his warnings and disobey his precepts: but he will not countenance them in their crimes, nor let them finally escape condign punishment. The whole creation is at war with those who fight against God: and he will surely render contemptible, as well as miserable, the haughtiest of them. The ambitious are pleased with abject submissions and adulation; and love the society of the most wicked men, who will stoop low enough to them. Thus they are seduced and bribed, not only to disregard the will of God, and to prefer the friendship of his enemies; but to forego the most solid temporal advantages to themselves and their connexions, for the sake of empty words and fair professions! It becomes all to be merciful; and clemency is the ornament of royalty; especially of the kings of Israel, the rulers of God's people; yet to be clement to notorious criminals, while those who love and serve God are treated with cruelty, is a strange inconsistency: to pretend to be more merciful than the Lord, by sparing those whom he commands to be put to death, is an awful presumption; and to regard those as brethren, whom he hath doomed to utter destruction, is an evidence of great impiety. In every thing the Lord demands implicit obedience; even the plea of compassion will not excuse rebellion against his will: and by severe temporal judgments on such as have committed lighter offences, he loudly speaks terror to more atrocious criminals; whom he will at length constrain to decide against themselves. And whatever prosperity they may in the mean time obtain, it will be embittered to them by what they feel, and what they fear; for “there is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.” But may we not here, by an allowable accommodation, hint some profitable instructions? The convinced sinner, not daring any longer to persist in his impotent contest against the Almighty; and unable to flee from him, or purchase his forgiveness and favour, is almost reduced to despair. Then he hears a report of mercy abounding in Christ Jesus to the chief of sinners; and in hopes of obtaining a free salvation, with penitent tears and humiliating confessions, he cries out, “God be merciful to me, a sinner.” Becoming acquainted with the gracious appellations of Father, Brother, and Friend of sinners, and the exceedingly great and precious promises contained in the scripture; he diligently observes, and eagerly catches them, as it were, from the Saviour's lips, and hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria.

2 And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, ^c Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house: and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or, if it ^{*} seem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

3 And Naboth said to Ahab, ^d The LORD forbid it me, that ^e I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

4 And Ahab came into his house ^f heavy and displeased, because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him; for he had said, ^g I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. And ^h he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

5 But ⁱ Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?

6 And he said unto her, ^k Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he answered, ^l I will not give thee ^{1, 4} my vineyard.

7 And Jezebel his wife said unto him, ^m Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? Arise and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry; ⁿ I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

8 So ^o she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto ^p the elders, and to ^q the nobles that were in the city, dwelling in Naboth.

9 And she wrote in the letters, saying, ^r Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth ^{*} on high among the people;

10 And set ^s two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, ^t Thou didst blaspheme God and pleads them in humble prayer. Thus he obtains forgiveness; the everlasting covenant is made with him, and all the blessings of the Gospel are secured to him: at the same time he yields himself to the Lord to be his servant, and love constrains him to live to his glory. But, alas! most that hear these glad tidings are busy here and there, till the day of salvation is gone; and not having wherewithal to ransom their souls, they must spend eternity in unavailing lamentations and despair. Nay, even true believers are often so taken up with trifles, as to let seasons of important usefulness glide away unimproved, to the loss both of themselves and of others. May the Lord "teach us so to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom!"

NOTES.

CHAP. XXI. V. 1, 2. Ahab had just before lost an opportunity of enlarging his dominions: and now he foolishly and sinfully coveted Naboth's vineyard, to make him an additional kitchen-garden or pleasure-garden. He seemed, however, to propose equitable terms to the possessor; but his fault lay in desiring it in an inordinate manner.

V. 3. Naboth seems to have been a conscientious man, and a worshipper of JEHOVAH, which might render Jezebel more determined on his destruction. He valued his vineyard as the inheritance of his fathers, originally assigned to them by the Lord himself. He might, if in want, have leased out, or mortgaged, his estate: but this was not the case; and he was sensible that if his vineyard became a part of the royal gardens, it would never revert to his family at the year of jubilee. The Lord had forbidden him to alienate his land from his family; and he seriously gave Ahab the true reason, why he could not comply with his desires; for he would rather seem uncourteous, or offend his prince, than transgress the law of God; whatever otherwise he might have been disposed to do. The original expression is stronger than that translated in the New Testament, "God forbid;" by which St. Paul especially marks his abhorrence of any pernicious opinion. (Marg. Ref.) It implies the idea of impiety, and Naboth seems to have started back from the proposal with aversion and alarm, as from a temptation to a heinous sin.

V. 4—6. Ahab, a victorious and prosperous king, was filled with anguish and vexation, because he met a denial in so small a matter! Such was the conflict of his passions, that he lay down, and, either through sickness or sullenness, would not taste food! He greatly desired the vineyard. His pride was intolerably offended, that one of his own subjects should peremptorily refuse to comply with his proposal: he was ashamed to yield the point in contest; and he was afraid of proceeding to extremities. The effects of these conflicting passions made him very miserable: yet it is probable he would not have attempted violence against Naboth, had not Jezebel his wife stirred him up.—It is observable that in relating the cause of his disquietude, Ahab made no mention of Naboth's conscientious reason for his refusal; but stated it as the effect of insolence and obstinacy!

V. 7. It was indeed unworthy of the king of Israel to fret himself about such a trifle. But this base woman meant to rouse her husband to gratify both his covetousness and revenge. She intimated, that he was incapable of managing a kingdom, if he hesitated to seize on Naboth's vineyard, and to punish his insolence. 'What! hast thou not power to crush such an adversary? Arise and enjoy thyself; and leave the business with me; I will speedily settle it to thy satisfaction.' This was her evident meaning, to which Ahab made no objection or opposition.

^c Ex xx. 17. Deu. v. 21. 1 Sam. viii. 14. Jer. xxii. 17. Hab. ii. 9—11. Luke xii. 15. 1 Tim. vi. 9, 10. Jam. i. 14, 15.
^{*} Heb. be good in thine eyes.

^d Gen. xli. 7, 17. Josh. xxii. 29. xxiv. 16. 1 Sam. xii. 23. xxiv. 6. xxvi. 9—11. 1 Chr. xi. 19. Job xxviii. 5. Rom. iii. 4. c. 31. vi. 2. 15. vii. 7, 13. 1 Cor. vi. 15. Gal. vi. 14.
^e Lev. xxv. 23. Num. xxxvi. 7. Ez. xlvi. 18. f xx. 43. Is. lvii. 20, 21.
^g 3.
^h Gen. iv. 5—8. 2 Sam. xiii. 2. 4. Ec. vi. 9. vii. 8. 9. Eph. iv. 27. Jam. i. 14, 15. i. 25. xvi. 31. xviii. 4. xix. 2. Gen. iii. 6.

^k Esth. v. 9—14. Prov. xiv. 30. 1 Tim. vi. 9, 10. Jam. iv. 5—7.
^l 3, 4.
^m 1 Sam. viii. 14. 2 Sam. xiii. 4. Dan. v. 19, 27.
ⁿ 15. 16. Mic. vii. 3.
^o 2 Sam. xi. 14, 15. 2 Chr. xxxii. 17. Neh. vi. 5. Esth. iii. 12—15. viii. 9—13.
^p Deut. xxi. 2. Judg. viii. 14. q. 1. 2 Kings x. 1—7, 11.
^r Gen. xxxiv. 13—17. Is. lviii. 4. Mat. ii. 8. xxlii. 14. Luke xx. 47. John xviii. 28. s Heb. in the top of the people.
^s Deut. xlii. 13. xix. 15. Matt. xxvi. 59, 60. Acts vi. 11. t Ex. xxii. 28. Lev. xxiv. 15, 16. Matt. xxvi. 65, 66. Acts vi. 13.

the king. And then carry him out, and stone him, that he may die.

11 And the men of his city, even the elders, and the nobles, who were the inhabitants in his city, ^u did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them.

12 They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people.

13 And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him: and ^x the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did ^y blaspheme God and ^z the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city, and ^a stoned him with stones, that he died.

14 Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

15 And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, ^c Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money: for Naboth is not alive, but dead.

16 And it came to pass, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that ^d Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

17 ¶ And ^e the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, 18 Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, ^f which is in Samaria: behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it.

19 And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, ^g Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, ^h In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine.

20 And Ahab said to Elijah, ⁱ Hast thou found me, O mine enemy? And he answered, I have found thee: because ^k thou hast sold thyself ^l to work evil in the sight of the LORD.

d 2 Sam. i. 13-16.
iv. 9--12. Ps. i.
18. Is. xxxiii. 15.
Obad. 12-14.
Rom. i. 32. 2
Pet. ii. 15.

e 2 Kings i. 16.
v. 26. Ps. ix. 12.
Is. xxvi. 21.

f xlii. 32. 2 Chr.
xxii. 9.

g Gen. iii. 11. iv.
9. 10. 2 Sam. xii.
9. Hab. ii. 9. 12.

h xxii. 38. Judg.
i. 7. 2 Sam. xii.
11. Ps. vii. 15.
16. ix. 16. lviii.
10, 11.

i xviii. 17. xxi. 8.
Am. v. 10. Mark
xii. 12. Gal. v.
16. Rev. xi. 10.

k 25 2 Kings xvii.
17 Is. i. l. lii. 3.
Rom. vii. 14.
12 Chr. xxxiii. 6.
Eph. iv. 19.

u Ex. i. 17. 21.
Lev. xix. 15.
1 Sam. xxii. 17.
19. xxiii. 20.
2 Kings x. 6, 7.
Prov. xxix. 12.
Mat. ii. 16. Acts
iv. 19. v. 29.

x Deu. v. 20. xix.
16--21. Pro. xix.
9. Mark xiv. 56
--59.

y Job i. 5. ii. 9.
Mat. ix. 3. John
x. 36. Acts vi.
11. 13.

z Ec. x. 20. Luke xxiii. 2. John
xix. 12. Acts
xxiv. 5. 15.

a Num. xv. 35, 36.
Jes. vii. 24, 25.
2 Kings ix. 26.

b Ec. v. 8. viii.
14.

c 7.

V. 8—14. Jezebel wrote in Ahab's name; and sealed the letters with his seal, which it seems he allowed her to use when she pleased. Thus the elders of Jezreel were required to obey her directions, as they valued the king's favour. She represented Naboth as a dangerous criminal, who must be taken off, without a particular inquiry into the nature of his offence: yet, as he bore a fair character, some charge must be brought against him, which might prevent the people from taking umbrage at his execution. A fast must therefore be proclaimed: as if some horrid wickedness had been discovered, which threatened the city with divine judgments, till solemnly expiated. This would excite general consternation: and on the day appointed, Naboth was to be seized; and men of Belial, (that is, abandoned villains,) hired, to testify that he had blasphemed God and the king: thus he would be condemned to be stoned for the blasphemy; and for the treasonable words, his estate would be confiscated; and the elders were required to see the sentence immediately executed! These infamous orders were as infamously obeyed, without hesitation or reluctance; and by elders and nobles of Israel, though in contempt of all religion, law, and justice!—It seems they stoned Naboth's sons also, that there might be none to avenge his death, or to demand his estate. When Jezebel cut off the Lord's prophets, she had, doubtless, injured the magistrates to similar practices, and rewarded their wickedness: so that she did not fear a refusal from the elders of Jezreel. They knew from whom the orders came, and reported the execution of them to Jezebel, not to Ahab. The elders of the same city, not long after, paid as implicit obedience to Jehu's orders, in putting to death seventy of Ahab's descendants. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 15, 16. Ahab proved, that he was pleased with the conduct of Jezebel and her agents, by readily going in person to take possession of the estate, for which the murder had been committed.

V. 17—19. The junior prophets were sent upon ordinary messages to Ahab: but Elijah himself was employed on this occasion, whose very presence would dismay the proud tyrant, and whose strong faith and intrepid spirit qualified him for such a service. In the very vineyard of Naboth, even whilst Ahab was seizing upon his prey, and surrounded by his officers, the prophet delivered this message to him, for his deeper mortification, and that it might be more noticed by others. He directly charged Ahab with the murder of Naboth, nor did he attempt to deny or excuse himself. The prediction that dogs should lick the blood of Ahab, certainly implied that he would be cut off by a violent death: but the expression, "In the place where, &c." occasions considerable difficulty; because Samaria was several miles distant from Jezreel. Some learned men think that the word rendered the place where, may mean, "In like manner as:" but this signification is perhaps unprecedented. Others suppose, that the word place is taken in a large sense, for all the adjacent region; and so includes Samaria, where Ahab dwelt, and where he was buried, as well as merely the city of Jezreel. But may we not say, that as dogs licked the blood of Ahab, literally, when his chariot was washed in the pool of Samaria; so they licked his blood, as flowing through the veins of his son Joram, when Joram was slain by Jehu, and his body thrown into this very spot? (Marg. Ref.)

V. 20. After the slaughter of Baal's prophets, and Elijah's flight, Ahab had returned to his wicked course of m xiv. 10 2 Kings ix. 8.

n 1 Sam. xxv. 22 34.

o Deut. xxxii. 36. 2 Kings xiv. 26.

p xv. 39. xvi. 3. 4. 11.

q xiv. 16. xv. 30. 34.

r 2 Kings ix. 10. 36.

* Or, ditch.

s xiv. 11. xvi. 4. Jer. xv. 3.

t xvi. 30—33. 2 Kings xxiii. 25.

u 20. Rom. vi. 19.

21 Behold, ^m I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity, and will cut off from Ahab ⁿ him that pisseth against the wall, and ^o him that is shut up and left in Israel.

22 And will ^p make thine house like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah, for the provocation wherewith thou hast provoked me to anger, and ^q made Israel to sin.

23 And of ^r Jezebel also spake the LORD, saying, The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the ^{*} wall of Jezreel.

24 ^s Him that dieth of Ahab in the city the dogs shall eat; and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat.

25 But ^t there was none like unto Ahab, which did ^u sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the LORD, ^x whom Jezebel his wife ^{*} stirred up.

26 And he did very ^y abominably in following idols, ^z according to all things as did the Amorites, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

27 And it came to pass, when Ahab heard those words, that ^a he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and ^b lay in sackcloth, and ^c went softly.

28 And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

29 ^d Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before me? ^e because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring ^f the evil in his days: but ^g in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

x 7. xi. 1—4. xvi. 31. xviii. 4. xix. 2. Prov. xxii. 14. Ec. vii. 26. Mark vi. 17—27.

* Or, incited.

y 2 Chr. xv. 3. Jer. xvi. 18. xlii. 4.

z Ez. viii. 10. 1. Pet. iv. 3. Rev. xxi. 6.

a Gen. xv. 16. Lev. xviii. 25—30. xx. 22, 23. Deut. xii. 31. 2 Kings xvi. 3. xxi. 2. 11. 2.

b Chr. xxxvi. 14. Ps. cvi. 35—39.

c a Gen. xxxviii. 34. 2 Kings vi. 30. 31. xviii. 37.

d John iii. 6.

e 2 Sam. xii. 17. Is. lviii. 5—8.

f c Is. xxxviii. 15. d Ps. lxxvi. 3.

g lxxviii. 34—37. Jer. xlii. 20.

e Ex. x. 3. Ps. lxxxvi. 15. Ez. xxxiii. 10, 11.

Mic. vii. 18. Rom. ii. 4. 15.

2 Pet. iii. 9.

f 21—23.

g 2 Kings ix. 25, 26. 33—37. x. 1—7. 11.

life, and he shunned the prophet as his worst enemy. Once indeed he had bestowed much pains to find him: but being now determined in his idolatry, and yet afraid of him, whose prayers had called for drought upon the land and fire and rain from heaven; and especially still feeling in his conscience the anguish of his cutting rebukes, he even trembled at the thoughts of him. Other prophets had come to him with milder messages; and he thought them more friendly: but Elijah's severity could not be mollified. His presence therefore on this occasion surprised, offended, and affrighted him: and when his enemy had found him, he expected not to go well away, but to hear some awful judgment denounced against him for his recent transgression.—Nor did Elijah deny that he was an enemy to his wickedness: so that he neither paid respect to him, nor was intimidated by his anger or power. He had found him, as a thief caught in the fact; and in the name of God he denounced the most tremendous sentence of condemnation on him and on his posterity. For Ahab had sold himself as a willing slave to his lusts; which is very different from being sold under sin; so that, through the remaining power of corrupt nature, a man who delights in the law of God, and hates all sin, yet cannot do the things that he would.

V. 21, 22. Elijah was the voice, the Lord was the speaker, whose words these evidently are. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 23. This circumstance not only declared the shocking death of Jezebel, but denoted the worst punishment of sin to be after death.

V. 25, 26. Ahab's crime was not a detached part of his conduct, contrary to the general course of his life; as David's sin in the matter of Uriah had been: but it was a specimen of his continued rebellion against God; and no worse in his sight, than the idolatry to which Jezebel had first stirred him up. But having sold himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord, as if in contempt and defiance of him, he was openly, constantly, and diligently employed in it, as a slave in his master's business: and it was requisite that his punishment should be as notorious as his crimes had been.

V. 27—29. Ahab was greatly terrified at Elijah's message, and at the severe, determined, and solemn manner in which he delivered it: but his humiliation was superficial, and productive of external observances only. He did not, that we find, so much as restore Naboth's vineyard to his heirs; much less did he put away Jezebel, or renounce idolatry and establish the worship of God. But he rent his clothes, wore and lay in sackcloth, fasted, and appeared in public with the dejected air of a penitent.—But though his humiliation was formal and hypocritical; yet it allowed the justice of God, and his own sin, and put an outward honour upon the divine law. Bad as it was, it would have been worse, if he had vindicated and gloried in his crimes, or attempted to put the prophet to death: and therefore the Lord recompensed his outward temporary repentance with a similar reward; for he granted him a respite of the judgment as far as it respected his family, and spared him the anguish of witnessing the slaughter of his children.—Jezebel was too hardened to show any symptoms of remorse on this, or any other occasion.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

It is natural to us, as fallen creatures, to hanker after those things which are withheld from us; and every accession of wealth or prosperity increases the violence of this propensity. The commandment indeed, which forbids us to covet, "is holy, just, and good," the fence of our neighbour's property, and of our own peace and integrity. But, alas! "it is weak through the flesh;" and the impetuous torrent of our lusts easily bursts the salutary barrier, and rages the more for having been opposed. Yet every violation of the precept proves its excellency; as indulged con-

CHAP. XXII.

Ahab persuades Jehoshaphat to go with him against Ramoth-gilead, 1—4. Jehoshaphat proposes to inquire of the Lord; and the false prophets assure Ahab of success, 5—7. At Jehoshaphat's request Micaiah is sent for, 8—12. The messenger's advice and Micaiah's answer, 13, 14. Micaiah, adjured by Ahab to declare the truth, predicts his death, and shows that his prophets were deceived by a lying spirit, 15—23. He is abused and sent to prison, 24—28. Jehoshaphat goes to battle in his robes, but Ahab in disguise, 29, 30. Jehoshaphat, mistaken for Ahab, narrowly escapes; Ahab is mortally wounded; and the people are dispersed by proclamation, 31—36. Ahab dies; and dogs lick his blood, 37, 38. The acts of Ahab, who is succeeded by Ahaziah, 39, 40. Jehoshaphat's good reign, and acts, 41—49. He dies, and is succeeded by Jehoram, 50. Ahaziah's wicked reign, 51—53.

AND they continued ^a three years ^{a xx. 34.} without war between Syria and Israel.

2 And it came to pass in the third year, cupiscence opens the door to temptations, makes way for the most atrocious crimes, and prepares misery and destruction for every one that stands in the way of its gratification. If fair means fail to procure the object of inordinate desires, fraud or violence must be employed. Pride cannot brook opposition: every plea of conscience is treated as mere pretence: and the best intended actions of the most blameless and excellent persons are ascribed to the worst of motives. But such passions are serpents cherished in a man's bosom, till they sting him to death with exquisite torture.—Vain indeed are earthly advantages, if the want of a trifle, or the supercilious or conscientious behaviour of an inferior, can rob a prosperous monarch of all his comfort, and render him sick with rage and vexation! This however is wholly the effect of men's lusts and passions, which, like children, are always most restless when most indulged. Providential blessings well answer the end for which they were intended, but cannot form a rational creature's felicity: and that degree of contradiction or disappointment, which would scarcely cause a humble man to heave one sigh, will break a proud man's heart. We should then beware of covetousness, pride, anger, envy, and discontent: we should watch and pray that we may not enter into temptation: we should aim to make the spiritual precept, "Thou shall not covet," the barrier in our hearts, as well as in the law of God, against the violation of the other commandments; and not allow ourselves so to desire things lawful, as not to be able to brook a denial or disappointment. Our more intimate connexions are of vast importance. In the married state we expect, and should reciprocally impart, sympathy, counsel, encouragement, and assistance: but when, instead of a prudent and pious counsellor, a man has a factor for Satan in the form of an artful, unprincipled, and beloved woman, what fatal effects may not be expected! "Be ye not therefore unequally yoked with unbelievers."—It is hard to relate facts respecting ourselves, with simplicity and impartiality; but much more difficult to restrain those within the strict limits of equity, who are able to seize on the objects of their desires, without fear of being called to account before any human tribunal. Hence rapines and oppressions have disgraced human nature, and desolated the earth, in all ages: and every resistance to the will of a superior has been condemned as rebellion; and this has occasioned assassinations, massacres, or public executions! A little acquaintance with history, and with human nature, will terminate our astonishment at such transactions; but they must ever excite our regret, our compassion, and our indignation.—The most flagrant injustice has generally been committed under the colour of legal forms; and the most horrid crimes have been perpetrated under the mask of piety; because the show of these good things hides the deformity of such transactions, as otherwise could never be endured.—Many command, and reward villany, who in their hearts despise and detest the mercenary wretches whom they employ. It is grievous that men of Belial abound even in the lower order of society: but most horrible when judges and nobles deserve this harsh appellation. Yet there will always be found those in every rank, who will prostitute their talents, influence, and conscience, to the tyrant who rewards iniquity. Let us then bless God for a limited government, and for security from such outrages of oppression: though even in Britain, men of Belial, by false testimony and perjury, may deprive us of our property, our liberty, our reputation, or our lives. We should therefore commit all that is dear to us, to the Lord's keeping; seek those good things, which cannot be taken from us; and wait with cheerful patience for that approaching judgment, when all iniquitous sentences shall be reversed. And let judges, juries, and witnesses beware of being warped in their decisions, verdicts, or testimony, by fear, affection, or interest: for they, who now are placed upon the tribunal, must shortly stand at the bar, to answer before a heart-searching impartial Judge, for their conduct in their important stations.—They who rejoice in iniquity, and gladly seize on the profit derived from the crimes of others, will be condemned equally with the perpetrators: and the triumphing of the wicked in the success of their villany resembles the flash of lightning, which leaves the night more dark and gloomy than before: for the Lord beholds and is displeased; and his tremendous threatenings are only preludes to his more tremendous vengeance.

V. 15—29.

Such ministers of God, as are most decidedly faithful, must expect to be deemed morose, and even malevolent, by sinners whose consciences have often been galled with

b 2 Kings viii. 18.
2 Chr. xviii. 1, 2.

that ^b Jehoshaphat the king of Judah came down to the king of Israel.

c iv. 13. Deu. iv.
43. Josh. xx. 8.
• Heb. silent from taking it.

3 And the king of Israel said unto his servants, Know ye, that ^c Ramoth in Gilead is ours, and we be * still, and take it not out of the hand of the king of Syria?

d 2 Kings iii. 7.
2 Chr. xviii. 3.
e 2 Chr. xix. 2.
Ps. cxxxix. 21.
22. Prov. xiii.
20. 2 Cor. vi.
15, 17. Eph. v.
31. 2 John 11.
Rev. ii. 2. 6.

4 And he said unto Jehoshaphat, ^d Wilt thou go with me to battle to Ramoth-gilead? and Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, ^e I am as thou art, my people as thy people, my horses as thy horses.

5 And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, ^f Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to-day.

6 Then the king of Israel gathered ^g the prophets together, about four hundred men, and said unto them, Shall I go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? and they said, ^h Go up; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

f Num. xxvii. 21.
Judg. i. 1. xx.
18. 23. 28. 1
Sam. xxiii. 2. 4.
9-12. xxx. 9.
2 Kings i. 3. iii.
11. 2 Chr. xviii.
4, 5. Prov. iii.
5, 6.
g xviii. 19. 2 Tim.
iv. 3.
h 15. 22. 23. 1.
Chr. xviii. 14.
Jer. vii. 10, 17.
xiv. 13, 14. xxiii.
14-17. xxviii.
1-9. Ez. xiii.
7-16. 22. Mat.
vii. 15. 2 Pet. i.
1-3. Rev. xix.
20.

their plain warnings and rebukes, but whose hearts are wedded to their lusts. Men of this character often count the very persons to be their enemies, whose hearts bleed with compassion for them, and whose secret prayers in their behalf are recorded before God, as a demonstration of their disinterested love for them. Indeed this appears in their being willing rather to incur their keenest resentment, than not endeavour to save their souls. If men allow that they hate the minister for his faithfulness, they condemn themselves; but if they dislike him for his excessive severity, and his ill-nature, they are perfectly excusable: and what sinner would not wish to stand fair with his own conscience, and with society? On the other hand, impatient sinners often account those to be their friends, who speak smooth things, and help them to deceive themselves: and are very lavish in their commendation, by way of contrasting them with those whom they deem their enemies; that it may be thought they love religion, whilst they hate its firmest friends. But the real man of God will neither desire the applause, nor fear the reproach, of those who have sold themselves to work wickedness, and evince that they are the enemies of God and holiness. His testimony will one day find out, and condemn, those who have rejected it. Terrible things may come upon the willing slaves of sin in this world; but they will surely receive its awful wages in the second death. (Rev. xx. 14, 15.) At the tribunal of God the difference will be manifest to all men, betwixt the most lamentable falls of true believers, and the habitual wickedness of ungodly men; and betwixt true repentance, and all external, partial, and temporary appearances of it. Before the searching word of God, the most stupid conscience will sometimes be disquieted, and the stoutest heart tremble; and for a season sinners will speak and act as if truly penitent: but by their fruits ye shall know them: and as the heart remains unchanged, nature will soon return to that course from which it has been violently forced: so that relapses into former iniquities, with continuance and quietness, will evince such hopeful appearances to be widely different from "that repentance, which is to salvation not to be repented of." Yet, as these concessions outwardly yield the point in contest, and are thus honourable to God, he will notice and recompense them with respites and outward benefits. So that whilst we are warned to beware of counterfeits, we are encouraged by the abounding grace of God, which he will never withhold from the upright humble soul; seeing he so delights in mercy, that he extend it even to wicked men, as far as consists with his justice, holiness, truth, and wisdom. We may also be animated to abound in the work of the Lord, assured that our labour will not be in vain; since he even recompenses in kind the formal services of his enemies. And finally, may we seek the blessings of the new covenant for the good of ourselves, and of our children after us: whilst wicked men leave their inheritances to their posterity, burdened with the curse of God; and ensure destruction to their own souls.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXII. V. 2. We shall have a better opportunity hereafter of fully considering Jehoshaphat's character. (2 Chr. xvii-xx.) He was very criminal in intermarrying with the family of idolatrous Ahab, which probably occasioned his visit at Samaria, with all its consequences.

V. 3. Ramoth, &c. This seems to have been one of the cities that Ben-hadad had engaged to restore to Ahab: but having recovered his liberty, he made no scruple of violating his word.

V. 4. I am, &c. Jehoshaphat meant nothing more than to express his readiness to afford Ahab every assistance in his power, as both he and his forces were at his command: but the language seemed to countenance all Ahab's undertakings; or at least to treat all the differences in opinion and conduct between them as unimportant! Yet surely there was an essential difference between the reformer of Judah, and the corrupter of Israel! But excessive pliability of temper was Jehoshaphat's failing, which exposed him to many temptations, and involved him, his family, and his kingdom, in many and heavy calamities.

V. 5. Jehoshaphat had been used to acknowledge God in all his ways, and not to engage in any important undertaking without inquiring of him by his prophets or high priest: and he was not satisfied for Ahab to do otherwise. But what true servant of God could bring an acceptable, or even a tolerable, message to a vile idolater and oppressor, who for twenty-two years after he came to the throne had been hardening in iniquity, amidst warnings, judgments, mercies, and conviction?

V. 6. It is most probable, that these were the prophets of the groves, who escaped, when the prophets of Baal were slain at the command of Elijah: for certainly they were false prophets. As they ate at Jezebel's table, we may be sure, that they commonly prophesied in the name of Baal: but it seems, that to serve a turn they could use the name of the Lord. In this verse indeed the word is not JEHOVAH, but Adonai, which is used with greater

12 Kings iii. 11—
13. 2 Chr. xxviii.
6, 7.

7 And Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the LORD besides, that we might inquire of him?

2 xviii. 4. xix 10.

127. xx. 43. xxi.

20. Gen. xxxviii.

8. 2 Chr. xxxvi.

16. Prov. ix. 8.

xv. 12. Jer. xviii.

18. xx. 10. xliii.

3, 4. Am. v. 10.

John vii. 7. xv.

15, 19. Gal. iv.

16.

m. Is. xxx. 10. Jer.

xxxviii. 4. Mic.

ii. 14.

d. xx. 35—42. 2

Kings ix. 22. Is.

lvii. 19—21.

e. xxi. 27—29.

Prov. v. 9—13.

xxv. 12. Mic.

ii. 7.

* Or, emuch.

p. 26, 27. 2 Chr.

xviii. 8—11.

q. 30. Esth. v. 1.

vi. 8, 9. Matt.

vi. 29. Acts xii.

21. xxv. 23.

† Heb. floor.

r. xviii. 29. Jer.

xxvii. 14—16.

Ez. xlii. 1—9.

8 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, There is^k yet one man, Micaiah the son of Imlah, by whom we may inquire of the LORD; ^lbut I hate him, for he doth not prophesy ^mgood ⁿconcerning me, but evil. And Jehoshaphat said, ^oLet not the king say so.

9 Then the king of Israel called an * officer, and said, ^pHasten hither Micaiah the son of Imlah.

10 And the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah sat each on his throne, ^qhaving put on their robes in a † void place in the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and ^rall the prophets prophesied before them.

11 And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made him ^shorns of iron: and he said, ^tThus saith the LORD, With these shalt thou push the Syrians, until thou have consumed them.

12 And all the prophets prophesied
so, saying, ^uGo up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper; for the LORD shall deliver it into the king's hand.

13 And the messenger that was gone to call Micaiah spake unto him, saying, ^xBehold now, the words of the prophets declare good unto the king with one mouth: let thy word, I pray thee, be like the word of one of them, and speak that which is good.

14 And Micaiah said, As the LORD liveth, ^ywhat the LORD saith unto me, that will I speak.

s Jer. xxvii. 2.
xxviii. 10—14.
Zech. i. 18—21.
Acts xix. 13—16.
2 Cor. xi. 13—
15. 2 Tim. iii. 8.
t Jer. xxiii. 17.
25. 31. xxviii. 2.
3. xxxix. 21. Ez.
xlii. 6. xlii. 27.
28. Mic. iii. 11.
u e. 15. 32—36.

x Job xlii. 13. Ps.
x. 11. xiv. 1. 1.
21. Is. xxx. 10.
11. Hos. vii. 3.
Am. vii. 13—17.
Mic. ii. 6, 7. 11.
1 Cor. ii. 14—16.

y Num. xxii. 38.
2 Chr. xviii. 12.
13. Jer. xxxiii. 28.
xxvi. 2, 3. xlii. 4.
Ez. ii. 4—8. iii.
17—19. Acts xx.
20. 26, 27. 2 Cor.
ii. 17. iv. 2.

latitude, but afterwards both Zedekiah and the rest of them used the word JEHOVAH. Like some modern philosophers and poets, they perhaps would argue, that it was all one, whether the Supreme Being were called Baal, or JEHOVAH, or Jupiter: to humour the matter therefore with Jehoshaphat, and to show that they were no bigots, but men of candour and liberality, they would for once prophesy in the name of the Lord. They perhaps allowed Jehoshaphat to be a good sort of a man: but he had some narrow prejudices, and would not be satisfied, if they said, 'Go up, for Baal shall deliver it into the hand of the King;' and they would scorn to disagree with him about a trifling variation, which they could make with little trouble and without expense. They perceived likewise, which way Ahab's inclinations leaned, and to please him too they assured him of success. It is however to be supposed, that the number and valour of his forces, his alliance with Jehoshaphat, and the scandalous treachery of Ben-hadad, concurred in encouraging their hopes that he would obtain the victory: for notwithstanding his idolatries, he had before been successful.

V. 7. It is probable that Jehoshaphat suspected these prophets to be mere sycophants, whose trade it was to counsel Ahab to please himself. He knew that Israel was favoured with Elijah, Elisha, and other eminent prophets, though none of them appeared at court: he felt dissatisfied; but being too afraid of giving offence, he seemed to allow that these were prophets of God, yet he wished to consult some other, if there were any to be found. Perhaps he took occasion, from their using the word Adonai, (which might mean either the God of Israel, or a false god,) to inquire after some other prophet of JEHOVAH: and this might induce them afterwards to change their language in this respect. His subsequent conduct shows, that he paid more regard to them than they deserved.

V. 8. We never read of Micaiah but in this chapter and the parallel chapter in Chronicles: yet he doubtless had several times been sent with messages of rebuke and warning to this haughty idolater; and therefore, whilst Ahab allowed that they might inquire of the LORD by him, he acknowledged that he hated him! But Jehoshaphat ventured gently to intimate that he ought not to say so: he ought neither to hate him, nor be displeased with his word, nor seek agreeable, but useful things; and he hoped on this occasion he would bring him an encouraging message.

V. 9. Ahab knew where to find Micaiah, whom he perhaps had put in prison for some of his faithful reproofs, (v. 26, 27.) Some conjecture that Micaiah was the prophet, that three years before had chagrined Ahab, and that he had kept him in prison ever since. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 11. Horns, &c. These horns of iron were intended to represent the joint forces of the two kings made successful by the power of God. The false prophets imitated the true ones in using external signs, the more deeply to impress the minds of those whom they addressed. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 13, 14. Perhaps this man meant to be friendly to Micaiah: and thought it was a pity, that he should balk his preferment, and expose himself to Ahab's resentment, for the sake of a needless scrupulousness. He advised him to show some deference to royalty; to have some respect to the other prophets; and not to affect singularity, or pretend that he alone was divinely inspired. But he must have entertained very absurd notions concerning prophecy; either considering the whole to be a mere imposition; or supposing that the truth, will, and purpose of God, could be moulded and modelled to the inclinations of man! If he thought that Micaiah, by speaking that which was good to Ahab, could promote the success of the enterprise, he must have been extremely ignorant. And it was still worse, if he advised Micaiah to humour the king, without regard to the consequences. Perhaps he thought that the unanimity and confidence, with which so great a number of prophets assured Ahab of success in the name of the LORD, proved them to be in the right; and that it would be foolish in Micaiah to oppose his single voice to such a multitude. And indeed, not only Ahab, but Jehoshaphat himself, seems to have been imposed upon by the same de-15 ¶ So he came to the king. And the king said unto him, Micaiah, shall we go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear? And he answered him, ^y Go, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

16 And the king said unto him, How many times ^z shall I adjure thee ^a that thou tell me nothing but that which is true in the name of the LORD?

17 And he said, ^b I saw all Israel ^c scattered upon the hills as sheep that have not a shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master: let them return every man to his house in peace.

18 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, ^d Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?

19 And he said, Hear thou therefore the word of the LORD: ^e I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and ^f all the host of heaven standing by him, on his right hand and on his left:

20 And the LORD said, Who shall ^{*} persuade Ahab, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one said on this manner, and another said on that manner.

21 And there came forth a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will persuade him.

22 And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith? And he said, I will go forth, and I will be ^g a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And he said, ^h Thou shalt persuade him, and prevail also: go forth, and do so.

23 Now therefore, behold, ⁱ the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these thy prophets, and ^k the LORD hath spoken evil concerning thee.

24 But ^l Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah went near, and smote ^m Micaiah on the cheek, and said, ⁿ Which way

^y xviii. 27. 2 Chr. xviii. 14. Judg. x. 14. Ec. xi. 9. Matt. xxvi. 45.

^z 1 Sam. xiv. 24. 2 Chr. xviii. 15. Matt. xxvi. 63. Jer. xliii. 3-6. Matt. xxii. 16, 17.

^a 1 Sam. ix. 9. Jer. i. 11-16. Ez. i. 4. Acts x. 11-17.

^b 34-36. Num. xxvii. 17. 2 Chr. xviii. 16, 17. Jer. xxiii. 1, 2. Ez. xxxiv. 4-6. Zech. xiii. 7. Matt. ix. 36.

^c 8. Prov. x. 24. xxvii. 22. xxix. 1. Luke xi. 45.

^d 2 Chr. xviii. 18. —22. Is. vi. 1. Dan. vii. 9, 10. Acts vii. 55, 56. Rev. iv. 2, 3.

^e Ps. ciii. 20, 21. Is. vi. 2, 3. Zech. i. 10. Mat. xviii. 10. Heb. i. 7. 14 xii. 22. Rev. v. 11.

^g Job i. 6. ii. 1. John viii. 44. 1 John iv. 6. Rev. xii. 9. xiii. 14.

^h Judg. ix. 23. Job xii. 16. Ps. cix. 17. 2 Thes. ii. 11, 12.

ⁱ Ex. iv. 21. x. 20. Deut. ii. 30. 2 Chr. xxv. 16. Is. vi. 9, 10. xlv. 20. Ez. xiv. 3-5. 9 Matt. xiii. 13 —15. xxiv. 21, 25.

^k 8. Is. iii. 11. 1. 11.

^m 2 Chr. xviii. 23. 24. Is. i. 5, 6. Lam. iii. 30.

ⁿ Mic. v. 1. Mark xiv. 65. xv. 19, 20. John xv. 18. 20. Acts xxiii. 2. n Jer. xxviii. 10, 11. xxix. 26, 27. Matt. xxvi. 68. xxvii. 42, 43.

lusive argument; which, in one form or other, has been urged as conclusive, by very able and sensible men, in every age of the church. Micaiah however at once silenced the courtier, and with a solemn oath protested, that he would deliver the Lord's message, without any alteration, whatever the king thought of it, and whatever the other prophets might agree in. A noble example!

V. 15. Go, &c. The prophet did not preface this address, with "Thus saith the Lord!" and Ahab perceived that he did not speak with his usual decision and authority. It was, as if he had said, 'You intend to go up against Ramoth-gilead, and your prophets assure you of success, and if I do not, you will disregard my warning, and treat me as an enemy. But you have my good will and good wishes, if they could profit you: and if my conscience would allow me, I too could easily seek your favour, by saying, "Go, and prosper, for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king."

V. 16. Ahab spake as if he had, on former occasions, thus adjured Micaiah to speak nothing to him but the truth; and with some intimation, that the prophet needed such adjurations. He evidently aimed to be thought, especially by Jehoshaphat, exceedingly solicitous about discovering the will of God. Perhaps Micaiah hesitated, till repeatedly urged to speak: and some think, that he did not receive his message, till the very moment before he delivered it.—The adjuring a person to speak, was equivalent to putting him upon his oath; and calling on him, as in the presence and by the authority of God, to speak all he knew. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 17. This vision exactly represented the condition of Ahab's forces, when he was slain; and showed, that Ben-hadad's malice being gratified by Ahab's death, he would allow them, when vanquished, and scattered without a leader, to return home in peace.

V. 18. Ahab wished to persuade Jehoshaphat and himself, that this warning originated from Micaiah's malignity and enmity to him: being similar to the messages he had formerly delivered; and therefore that it ought not to be put in competition with the predictions of all the other prophets.

V. 19—23. In order to leave this hardened criminal without excuse, and to give a salutary lesson to others in future ages, Micaiah received and related this vision. We need not determine what passes in that world where the Lord unveils his glory; for truths, not facts, are revealed in such representations. God had doomed Ahab to fall at Ramoth-gilead, by the army of Ben-hadad, whom he had sinfully spared. In order to bring him thither, he was pleased to give Satan leave to impose upon him with the hopes of success in that expedition. That evil spirit is always ready for such attempts; and generally uses false teachers as his ministers. This method he followed upon this occasion, and prevailed against Ahab, by inducing all his prophets to promise him victory. And by permitting him to do this, "the LORD put a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets." He neither commanded nor inclined the lying spirit to tempt Ahab's prophets; nor did he put the wickedness into their hearts, or the lies into their mouths. He likewise gave Ahab fair warning; and if he had not hated the truth, and loved a lie, he would not have gone to Ramoth-gilead: but God foresaw he would go, and would perish there. The prophet "saw the LORD sitting upon his throne," and that made him disregard Ahab upon his throne, and not fear his frown and vengeance; nor the resentment of the four hundred prophets, who must have been enraged even to madness, at being thus publicly declared to be the ministers of the devil, to entice their king to his destruction! (Marg. Ref.) went the Spirit of the Lord from me to speak unto thee?

o Num. xxxi. 8.
Jer. xxiii. 15.
xxviii. 16, 17.
xxix. 21, 22, 32.
* Or, from chamber to chamber.
Heb. a chamber to a chamber.
xx. 32.
p 8, 3.

25 And Micaiah said, ° Behold, thou shalt see in that day, when thou shalt go into * an inner chamber to hide thyself.

26 And the king of Israel said, Take Micaiah, and ^p carry him back unto Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son;

27 And say, Thus saith the king, ^q Put this fellow in the prison, and feed him with ^r bread of affliction and with water of affliction, ^s until I come in peace.

q 19, 19. 2 Chr. xvi. 10. xviii. 25.
—27. Jer. xx. 2.
xxix. 26. xxviii.
6. Mark vi. 17—
28.

r Deu. xvi. 3. Ps. lxxx. 5. cii. 9. cxxxvii. 2. Is. xxx. 20.

s Luke xii. 45, 46.

1 Thes. v. 2, 3.

Deut. xviii. 20.

—22. Is. xlv. 26.

Jer. xxviii. 8, 9.

Acts xiii. 10, 11.

u 2 Chr. xviii. 27.

Am. iii. 1. Mic. 1. 2. Mark vii. 14—16.

x 2. 2 Chr. xviii. 27.

† Or, When he was to disguise himself, and enter into the battle.

xiv. 2. xx. 38.

Prov. xxi. 30.

Jer. xxiii. 21.

y 10. Ps. xii. 2.

z 2 Chr. xviii. 29.

xxxv. 22.

28 And Micaiah said, ^t If thou return at all in peace, the LORD hath not spoken by me. And he said, ^u Hearken, O people, every one of you.

29 ¶ So ^x the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead.

30 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, [†] I will disguise myself, and enter into the battle; but ^y put thou on thy robes. And the king of Israel ^z disguised himself, and went into the battle.

V. 24, 25. Zedekiah seems to have been the principal person among Ahab's prophets: he therefore highly represented Micaiah's words, and abused him without rebuke, in the presence of the king and his nobles. As one who would appear confident that he spake by the Spirit of the LORD, he inquired, when, and how, that Spirit left him to inspire such a one as Micaiah? But the prophet answered, that the event would determine which of them spake by the Spirit of God; and he would not need information on that head, when he should conceal himself in the closest recesses, for fear of those who sought his life. Probably Zedekiah accompanied Ahab to the war, and this prediction was fulfilled when he fled from the enemy, after Ahab's death. Then he would have leisure to reflect on his own impiety, and the fatal effects of his counsels to his king, for whom he had pretended great friendship.

V. 26, 27. Ahab sent Micaiah back to prison, ordering him to be closely confined and treated with severity, till his return in peace, probably intending then to put him to death as a false prophet. He forgot his own counsel to Ben-hadad, when he spake so confidently of returning in peace. (xx. 11.)

V. 28. Micaiah thus put the difference betwixt himself and Ahab's prophets to the trial; and made his appeal to the people at large: that if the king despised the word of God, they might from his fate learn to reverence it.

V. 29. Jehoshaphat's silent connivance at Ahab's treatment of Micaiah, and his willingness to go with him to battle, after these solemn warnings, were very criminal, and almost unaccountable! Perhaps he feared personal insults; or he persuaded himself, that in Ahab's court he had no 31 But the king of Syria commanded his ^a thirty and two captains that had rule over his chariots, saying, ^b Fight neither with ^c small nor great, save only with the king of Israel.

a xx. 34. 2 Chr. xviii. 30.
b xx. 33—42.
c Jer. xvi. 6.

32 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, Surely it is the king of Israel. And they turned aside to fight against him: and ^d Jehoshaphat cried out.

d Ex. xiv. 10. 2 Chr. xviii. 31.
32. Ps. l. 15.
cxvi. 1, 2. cxxxv. 1—4.

33 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from pursuing him.

34 And a certain man drew a bow [†] at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the [‡] joints of the harness: wherefore he said unto the driver of his chariot, Turn thine hand, and carry me out of the host; for I am ^{||} wounded.

† Heb. in his simplicity. 2 Sam. xv. 11.

‡ Heb. joints and the breast-plate.

35 And the battle ^{*} increased that day: and the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Syrians, and ^e died at even: and the blood ran out of the wound into the [†] midst of the chariot.

|| Heb. made sick. 2 Chr. xviii. 33.

* xxxv. 23. Mic. vi. 13.

† Heb. ascended.

e 28. xx. 42.

† Heb. bosom.

f 17. 31. xii. 16.

2 Kings xiv. 12.

36 And ^r there went a proclamation business to intermeddle; or matters were carried with such violence and precipitation, that he had scarcely time to reflect on his own conduct.

V. 30. Perhaps Ahab was secretly alarmed by the solemnity of Micaiah's address, though he scorned to desist from his enterprise; or he was aware that he should be peculiarly aimed at by the Syrian forces. Under pretence of honouring Jehoshaphat with the chief command, he made this insidious proposal to him, that he might be exposed to the greatest danger, and so favour his own escape. Such was his friendship! But Jehoshaphat meant no harm and suspected none.

V. 31. Save, &c. Some have imagined, that Ben-hadad wished to wipe off the disgrace of his own captivity, by making Ahab prisoner in return; and to reciprocate his kindness in liberating him without ransom. But his proud heart seems to have rankled with a more malignant resentment, and Ahab's success against him had excited such hatred as no subsequent kindness could erase.

V. 32—35. Jehoshaphat in extreme danger “cried unto the LORD,” and he wonderfully preserved him: (2 Chr. xviii. 31, 32.) But Ahab, notwithstanding all his precautions, could not escape the destined blow. The captains of Ben-hadad knew not where to seek for him: but an arrow shot at random by a Syrian was directed by God to penetrate the joints of his coat of mail, and give him a mortal wound. Perhaps he did not think that it would prove fatal, and would not intimidate his forces by finally leaving the field of battle; and therefore having retired that his wound might be dressed, he returned, and remained in his chariot till he died.

throughout the host about the going down of the sun, saying, Every man to his city, and every man to his own country.

* Heb. came.

37 So the king died, and was* brought to Samaria; and they buried the king in Samaria.

38 And one washed the chariot in the pool of Samaria, and the dogs liked up his blood, and they washed his armour,

2 xxi. 19. Is. xlv. 26, 26. xlviii. 3 —5. Jer. xlv. 31—23. Zech. i. 4—6. Matt. xxiv. 35. 2 xiv. 19. xv. 23. 31. xvi. 5. 20. 27. 1 x. 18. Ps. xlv. 3. Am. iii. 15.

2 according unto the word of the LORD which he spake.

39 Now^h the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and^l the ivory-house which he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

40 So Ahab slept with his fathers; and Ahaziah his son reigned in his stead.

2 51. 2 Kings i. 17. 2. 17. B. C. 914.

41 ¶ And Jehoshaphat the son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel.

1 2 Kings i. 17. viii. 6. 2 Chr. xvii. 1. m xiv. 21. xv. 2. 10. n xv. 11. 14. 2 Chr. xiv. 2—5. 11. xv. 9. 17. o 1 Sam. xii. 20. 21. 2 Chr. xvi. 7—12. Prov. iv. 27. p 2 Chr. xvii. 3—6. xix. 3, 4. xx. 3, &c. q xiv. 23. xv. 14. 2 Kings xii. 3. xiv. 3, 4. xv. 3. 4. xviii. 22.

42 Jehoshaphat was^l thirty and five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem: and^m his mother's name was Azubah, the daughter of Shilbi.

43 And he walkedⁿ in all the ways of Asa his father, ^o he turned not aside from it, ^p doing that which was right in the eyes of the LORD: nevertheless^q the high places were not taken away; for the people offered and burnt incense yet in the high places.

44 And Jehoshaphat^r made peace with the king of Israel.

r 2. 2 Kings viii. 18. 2 Chr. xix. 2 xxi. 6. 2 Cor. vi. 14. s xi. 41. xiv. 29.

45 Now^s the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, and his might that he showed, and how he warred, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

46 And^t the remnant of the Sodomites, which remained in the days of his father Asa, he took out of the land.

t xiv. 24. xv. 12. Gen. xix. 5. Deut. xxiii. 17. Judg. xix. 22. Rom. i. 26, 27. Jude 7.

47 There was then^u no king in Edom: a deputy was king.

u Gen. xxv. 23. xxvii. 40. 2 Sam. viii. 14. 2 Kings iii. 9. viii. 20. Ps. cviii. 2. 10.

48 * Jehoshaphat[†] made^v ships of Tharshish to go^z to Ophir for gold: but^a they went not; for the ships were broken at^b Ezion-geber.

† Or, had ten ships. y x. 22. 2 Chr. ix. 21. Ps. xlviii. 7. Is. ii. 16. lx. 9. Jon. i. 3. z ix. 28. Ps. xlv. 9. a 2 Chr. xx. 37. xxv. 7. b ix. 26. Num. xxxiii. 35, 36.

49 Then said Ahaziah the son of Ahab unto Jehoshaphat, Let my servants go with thy servants in the ships: but Jehoshaphat would not.

a 2 Chr. xx. 37. xxv. 7. b ix. 26. Num. xxxiii. 35, 36.

50 And Jehoshaphat^c slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and^d Jehoram his son reigned in his stead.

B. C. 889. c ii. 10. 2 Chr. xxi. 1. d 2 Kings viii. 16 —18. 2 Chr. xxi. 5—7.

51 ¶ Ahaziah the son of Ahab^e began to reign over Israel in Samaria, the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned^f two years over Israel.

B. C. 897. e 40. f xv. 25. 2 Kings i. 17.

V. 36. When Ahab's death was known, either Jehoshaphat, or they who succeeded in command, issued this proclamation, probably with reference to Micaiah's vision.

V. 38. (Note xxi. 17—19.)

V. 39. It cannot be supposed, that this house was built of ivory: but it was so inlaid and ornamented with ivory, that it thence derived its principal elegance or magnificence. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 41—46. Perhaps this general account is here given of Jehoshaphat's reign over Judah, in order to contrast it with Ahab's wicked reign over Israel. The chief blemish in Jehoshaphat's character is hinted at, when it is said, "He made peace with the king of Israel:" not merely engaging to avoid all hostile measures; but entering into the most intimate alliance with him, and confirming the treaty by marrying his son to Ahab's daughter, which introduced much idolatry and wickedness into Judah, brought great calamities on the inhabitants, and occasioned the almost entire ruin of Jehoshaphat's family.

V. 47. David had conquered Edom; and it is probable, that till this time, the nominal king of Edom had been merely a viceroy of the kings of Judah. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 48, 49. Jehoshaphat at first joined with Ahaziah, and lost his fleet: but being reproved by a prophet, he would not consent to Ahaziah's proposals the second time. (Marg. Ref.)—These ships of Tharshish were made to go to Ophir: yet it is said in Chronicles, they were "made to go to Tharshish." Was there not therefore a Tharshish near Ophir, as well as a place of that name in Spain? (Note, 1 Kings x. 22.)

V. 51. Jehoshaphat began to reign in the fourth year of Ahab, who reigned twenty and two years, (41:) yet Ahaziah succeeded Ahab, in the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat. This occasions some difficulty; but learned men suppose, that the chronology of the kings of Israel was adjusted to that of the kings of Judah. Now Ahab began to reign, after Asa had entered on his thirty-eighth year, and Asa died before the end of his forty-first year. (xvi. 29. 2 Chr. xvi. 13.) And Jehoshaphat began to reign in the same year, which thus was reckoned both to Asa and Jehoshaphat. Ahab therefore is computed to have reigned four years in Asa's time, and eighteen in Jehoshaphat's, including a part of the year in which Asa died, and in which Jehoshaphat succeeded him: though Ahab did not live till Jehoshaphat had fully completed his seventeenth year; having died nearer the beginning of the year than Asa had done. It is difficult to make this intelligible to persons not acquainted with the Jewish method of comput-g xv. 26. xvi. 30.

—33.

h xxi. 25.

52 And ^g he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father, and ^h in the way of his mother, and in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

ing time: who, (whether in days or years,) take in both the first and last of the account, as if entire, even though only a small part of each had actually passed. Thus Ahaziah, having reigned part of the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat, and part of the eighteenth, (for he died in the eighteenth,) is said to have reigned two years.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—9.

They who neglect the word of God to rely on the promises of ungodly men, generally meet with merited disappointment: but this does not excuse the treachery and ingratitude of those who deceive and injure the very persons that have been criminally kind to them. There are certain critical seasons, when advantages are placed within our reach: but if we let the opportunity pass we shall in vain attempt to recal it, and our endeavours will only serve to increase our losses. Wicked men court the friendship of the righteous, when they can render their assistance subservient to their own purposes; but their professions of regard must be insincere. The same easiness of temper, which betrays some pious persons into amity with the declared enemies of religion, renders such connexions peculiarly dangerous to them: they are perpetually persuaded to improper compliances of every kind; and induced to connive at, and even sanction, such converse and conduct as they ought decidedly to protest against: and the fear of being deemed uncourteous, and the desire of escaping censure, ridicule, or insult for their religious peculiarities, stop their mouths, and cause them to deviate from sincerity in their expressions of civility. Yet these are the only godly people whose acquaintance the men of the world will much desire. If, however, we are necessarily placed among profane or infidel characters; we must not yield either to fear or shame, so as to conceal our dependence on God and devotedness to him; for these mark the difference betwixt those who serve him, and those that serve him not. If it were to be decided by vote, what was the true religion, we see plainly, that those abominations that God abhors would gain the election, against that worship which he hath instituted. Even in the visible church, numbers, authority, and unanimity, have repeatedly been in favour of delusions, against a single poor despised prophet of the Lord! It is, in a worldly sense, worth while, for a man of competent talents and address, to employ himself in reconciling men's consciences to their inclinations: and if great men cannot discard their religious scruples, to enable them, by help of some false system, to render them subservient to the commission of sin without remorse. In some places and at some times, such false prophets will be well paid for their delusions: and they who, from ambition, avarice, or sensuality, "turn away their ears from the truth," and "cannot endure sound doctrine," will "heap to themselves" teachers of this kind, after their own lusts: that the agreement of so many ministers may embolden them to disregard those singular unfashionable persons, who are always robbing them of their comfort, and putting them upon an unnecessary strictness.—A few individuals indeed hint, that something is wanting in their favourite instructors; nay, seem to prefer such as they dislike. But then, are not these too scrupulous? Do they not carry matters too far? Do they make proper allowances for human frailty, and peculiar situations? So that eventually smooth doctrine, united with confidence, ingenuity, and courtly manners, obtains the preference, and opens the way to the favour of the great and of the many. The faithful servants of God must therefore lay their account with hatred, contempt, and insult. They know not to give flattering words, or to call base crimes by soft names, or to buoy up the hopes of hypocrites with insinuating falsehoods: they cannot be silent, when called to speak, but must declare the counsel of God, and not keep back any thing profitable, however displeasing. Their conscientiousness will often be ascribed to pride and obstinacy; the language of their tender compassion for souls will be called severity or malevolence; and their plain-dealing will be branded as insolence and ill manners. But they must commit their cause to God: and wicked men, who hate them for the truth's sake, will at length find, that they were their own enemies in so doing, and that in opposing them they strove against the Almighty.

V. 10—28.

Unprincipled teachers are often sufficiently pliable in matters of religion: they carefully avoid the imputation of bigotry; they make great pretensions to candour, and even treat the most fundamental truths of Revelation as matters of indifference or uncertainty: but the same men are exceedingly tenacious of their own interests, and stubborn in their own concerns. Whereas we ought to be as pliant as the willow, where our own ease, credit, advantage, or indulgence, are at stake; and as firm as the sturdy oak, in standing up for the great things which relate to the glory of God and the salvation of souls.—They who are rising in the world, or possessed of wealth, are apt to counsel the ministers of Christ, what they ought to speak in the name of the Lord, though they betray their own incompetency by every word. We should indeed be accessible and teachable, and willing to take a friendly hint from any man: but when others would persuade us to consult our own ease and interest, to shun the cross, to prefer courtesy to integrity, and to bend the word of God to the humours of the rich and great; we must recognize the tempter in such counsellors, and by peremptory language stop at once their insidious proposal, by declaring our determination, whatever others do, to adhere to what we consider as the truth and will of our Lord and Judge.—In some cases however we should not be forward to speak; when men evidently do not wish to hear the truth, and appear determinately set against our testimony, it may be enough to express our compassionate good will, and our fears for them; or to show our disapprobation by silence. But if we are fairly called upon to give our sentiments, we must do it with all seriousness and firmness, without regarding personal consequences.—A believing view of the presence and glory of the King of i Judg. ii. 1—11.

k xxi. 29. Ez.
xviii. 14—18.53 Forⁱ he served Baal, and worshipped him, and^k provoked to anger theLORD God of Israel, according to all that his father had done.

Heaven, will raise us above the fear of our fellow creatures, however powerful or enraged; and will enable us to commit ourselves to his protection, in the discharge of our duty, in the midst of apparent danger. But we must not expect exemption from hardship and ill usage; and need not wonder, if we eat the bread of affliction, and are even rewarded with blows, imprisonment, and cruel mockings: and when princes, false teachers, and apostates unite against the servants of God, even the remnant of his people will often be afraid to interfere in their behalf. Alas! how should we be ashamed to complain of what we in this day call trials, when we consider what the servants of God have formerly endured! Yet it will be well, if our exemption from trouble prove not more injurious to us, than persecutions did to them: for we are more easily allured and bribed into unfaithfulness and conformity to the world, than influenced by terrors and threats. Let us then watch and pray, and prepare for temptations of every kind: and be careful that the quietness of our enemies do not arise from our making too many concessions, and going upon their ground, to meet them half way, in order to form the worst of all coalitions.—Nothing can by any means harm us, if we continue faithful, and meekly valiant for the truth: the Lord will remove every aspersion from our characters, and bear testimony to his truth, in his due time: and some will profit by our warnings, though others rush headlong on ruin.—Little do unbelievers suspect how many legions of crafty, malicious, and powerful enemies are unwearied in plotting their destruction; restrained by no hand, but that of him whom they despise and disobey. The whole multitude of those, “who privily bring in damnable “heresies,” or propagate infidelity with vast industry and ingenuity, speak and write no other things, than are suggested to them by the prompter behind the curtain. Let us then fear stifling our convictions, and returning back to sin after professions of repentance, lest Satan should thus prevail against us. For if he obtain leave to deceive, the disposition of our hearts to prefer a flattering lie, to a humbling truth that crosses our inclinations, will give him such an advantage, that every attempt of others to prevent his success, will only exasperate the mind to persecution or blasphemy.

V. 29—53.

They who are rebellious against God, and injurious to his people, will not often be very faithful or grateful to their friends. Self-love is their supreme principle, to which all other considerations must be sacrificed: and the children of God are seldom so politic as the children of the wicked one. When, however, the Lord hath rebuked his offending people, he will mark that difference betwixt them and his enemies, which they did not sufficiently observe. “His eyes are upon the righteous, “and his ears are open to their prayers: but his face “is against the workers of iniquity.” None can hide themselves in secret places from him. That which is casual to man, is the appointment of God, to fulfil his word of mercy or of wrath: so that “men shall say, “This hath God wrought, for they shall perceive that “it is his work.” The deceiver and the deceived are his, and the flatterer and flattered shall be taken in the same net, and fall into the same destruction. Alas! what will all riches, monuments, or splendid achievements avail, when God shall require the sinner’s soul? Happy are they in death, who have served him in their generation: but man’s best service is so defective and defiled, that “blessed “is he” alone “whose iniquity is forgiven, and whose “sin is covered.” Yet sincere endeavours to do good are the proper evidences and effects of saving faith: and the concurring reproofs of God’s word and rod will lead the upright believer to repent of every transgression, and to bring forth fruits meet for repentance: whilst hardened sinners rush forward, unawed and unmoved, in the ways which have led others before them into everlasting misery.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS,

COMMONLY CALLED

THE FOURTH BOOK OF THE KINGS.

THIS book is merely a continuation of the preceding, to which it is joined in the Hebrew Canon: the remarks therefore already made on that, in a great measure apply to this.—It contains the history of above three hundred years.—In Israel the kings were uniformly idolatrous and wicked: and though the labours of Elijah, Elisha, and other prophets, were prospered to preserve a considerable number of the people from the general contagion; yet the measure of their national iniquity was soon filled up; so that they were conquered and carried captive by the kings of the Assyrians, and dispersed among the Gentiles, no more, as a collected body, to be restored to their own land. Their country was after this planted by the conquerors with a mingled people; these established a corrupt and partial worship of JEHOVAH, from whom originated the nation and religion of the Samaritans. These events began to take place considerably above a hundred years before the Babylonish captivity.—In Judah indeed some remarkable revivals of religion took place, under the pious princes of David's family; and by means of the faithful labours of the prophets: but these promising appearances were of short duration: many of the kings were idolatrous and extremely wicked; the priests and Levites exceedingly neglected their important duty; and the people were generally prone to idolatry and iniquity. So that, after the death of pious Josiah, the nation became almost universally corrupt; and the melancholy account closes with the destruction of the city and temple, the desolation of the country, and the enslaving and carrying away of the inhabitants, by the Chaldeans.—As all the prophets, (commonly so called,) whose writings have been preserved, lived in the latter part of this period; (those excepted who lived during or after the captivity;) and as they continually refer to the facts recorded in this history; we may consider all their predictions as sanctioning, by their accomplishment, the divine authority of the narrative; though it does not contain any express prophecy, the completion of which extended much beyond the term of the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity.

B. C. 896.

CHAP. I.

Moab rebels, 1. Ahaziah, being sick, sends to inquire of Baal-zebul; and Elijah orders the messengers to inform him, in the name of God, that he should surely die, 2—4. Ahaziah sends to apprehend Elijah, who twice calls down fire to consume those who came against him, 5—12. The captain of the third company sues for mercy; and Elijah, encouraged by an angel, goes to Ahaziah, and assures him that he would die at that time, 13—16. Ahaziah B. C. 896, dies, and is succeeded by Jehoram, 17, 18.

THEN ^a Moab rebelled against Israel ^b after the death of Ahab. ^c 2 And Ahaziah fell down through a lattice in his upper chamber that was in Samaria, and ^c was sick: and he sent messengers, and said unto them, Go, inquire of ^d Baal-zebul the ^e god of Ekron, ^f whether I shall recover of this disease.

^a viii. 20—22.
² Sam. viii. 2.
¹ Chr. xviii. 2.
^b ix. 8.
^c iii. 4, 5.
^c 1 Kings xxii. 34.
² Chr. xxi. 14;
15.
^d Matt. x. 25 xli.
24—27. Beelzebub.
^e 1 Sam. v. 10.
^f viii. 7—9. 1
Kings xiv. 3.

NOTES.

CHAP. I. V. 1. After David had subjugated the Moabites, they continued in subjection until the division of the kingdom; when their vassalage and tribute were transferred to the kings of Israel, as those of Edom were to the kings of Judah. But after Ahab's death the Moabites revolted. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 2. Baal-zebul signifies the lord of a fly or flies. Probably the country was grievously infested with swarms of flies, and the Ekronites fancied that their idol delivered g 15. 1 Kings xix.

5. 7. Acts viii.
26. xii. 7—11.
h 1 Kings xvii. 1.

i v. 8. 15. 1 Sam.
xvii. 46. 1 Kings
xviii. 35.

k Jer. ii. 11—13. k
Jen. ii. 8.

* Heb. The bed whither thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down from it.
l Prov. xi. 19.
xiv. 32. Is. xiv.
21. Ez. xviii. 4.
12—17.

m 1 Chr. x. 13.
14.

† What was the manner of the man? Judg. vii.
16. 1 Sam.
xxviii. 14.

3 But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron?

4 Now therefore thus saith the LORD, Thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die. And Elijah departed.

5 And when the messengers turned back unto him, he said unto them, Why are ye now turned back?

6 And they said unto him, There came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, Go, turn again unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

7 And he said unto them, What manner of man was he which came up to meet you, and told you these words?

8 And they answered him, He was an hairy man, and girded with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said, It is Elijah the Tishbite.

9 ¶ Then the king sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty: and he went up to him; and, behold, he sat on the top of an hill; and he spake unto him, Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down.

10 And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, If I be a man of God, then let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

11 ¶ Again also he sent unto him another captain of fifty, with his fifty: and he answered and said unto him, O man of God, thus hath the king said, Come down quickly.

12 And Elijah answered and said unto them, If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And the fire of God came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

n Zech. xiii. 4.
Matt. iii. 4. xi.
8. Luke i. 17.

o vi. 13; 14.
1 Kings xix. 2.
Matt. xiv. 3.

p 1 Kings xviii.
42. Luke vi. 13;
12.

q Matt. xxvii.
29. 41—43. Heb.
xi. 36.

r Num. xvi. 29—
30. 1 Kings xvii.
35—38. xxii. 28.

s Chr. xxxvi. 16.
Ps. cv. 15. Matt.
xxi. 25—31.
xxiii. 34—37.

t Num. xi. 1. xvi.
35. Job i. 16.
Ps. cvi. 18.

u Luke ix. 54.
Acts v. 3—10.
Rev. xi. 5.

v Dan. iii. 22. vi.
24. Acts xii. 19.

w Num. xvi. 41.
1 Sam. vi. 9. Is.
xxvi. 11. Jer. v.

x 3. John xviii. 5.
12. Acts iv. 16, 17.

y 1 Sam. xxii. 17.
—19. Prov. xxix.
12. Is. xxxii. 7.

z Matt. ii. 16.
Luke xxii. 63;
64.

16.

16.

and preserved them from them. Beelzebub, (which is the same name,) is called in the New Testament “the prince of the devils;” and hence we learn that, under these names and images, evil spirits were actually worshipped as gods.—The Baal generally worshipped in Israel at that time, was the god of the Zidonians; but Baal-zebub was the god of Ekron in Philistia; for they “had lords many, and gods many.” It seems that this oracle was then in great repute, as that of Delphos was in Greece some ages afterwards—Ahaziah did not send to inquire what he was to do in order to his recovery, but merely to know whether he should recover or not. Perhaps he had been making preparations for reducing the Moabites, and was impatient to march against them.

V. 3. When a king of Israel sent to inquire of a heathen oracle, he proclaimed to the Gentiles his want of confidence in JEHOVAH: as if the only nation, favoured with revelation, and the knowledge of the true God, had been the only nation in which no God was known! This was peculiarly dishonourable and provoking to the Lord.

V. 4. Elijah departed. The prophet, having delivered his message, departed to his usual place of retirement, but did not conceal himself as formerly.

V. 8. Elijah was a hairy man, either in his person, or by reason of the coarseness and roughness of his garments, made perhaps of hair, and girded round him with a piece of undressed skin. In this manner he showed his mortifiedness to the world, and expressed his concern and grief for the idolatry and iniquity of his people.

V. 9. This officer called Elijah a man of God by way of derision, not out of respect, as others did.—Jezebel’s name is not mentioned in this transaction: but probably she stirred up her son, as she formerly had done her husband, against the prophets of the Lord.

V. 10. No doubt Elijah was moved to call for fire from heaven upon these men, by immediate revelation. He was influenced by a holy zeal for the honour of God, which was attacked in his person by these worshippers of Baalim; for if he had been actuated by resentment or selfish passions, the fire from heaven would not have come at his word.—He had before proved JEHOVAH to be the only true God, by fire from heaven consuming the sacrifice; yet the nation in general, and especially the rulers, adhered to the worship of Baal: it was therefore proper, that they should be convinced by a still more awful proof; and made sensible that all the enemies of the Lord would at length be destroyed. The officers and soldiers who were slain, not only deserved death as idolaters, but doubtless they had been the instruments of Ahab and Jezebel in persecution: and the example would have salutary effects upon many in Israel.

V. 11, 12. It is hard to say, which was on this occasion the more wonderful; the madness of the wounded and enfeebled Ahaziah, or the presumption of his officer and soldiers! for the second attempt was made in a more peremptory and haughty manner than the foregoing! But perhaps the former calamity was ascribed to chance. “Indeed it had so happened that terrible lightning, just at 2 Job xv. 24, 26.

Prov. xxvii. 22.
14. i. 5.

^a Heb. bowed.

^a Ex. xi. 8. Num.
xii. 11—13.
1 Kings xlii. 6.
1a. ix. 14. Rev.
xii. 9.
^b Ps. cii. 17. Jam.
iv. 7.

^c 1 Sam. xxvi. 21.
24. Matt. xvi.
25, 26. Acts xx.
24.

^d Gen. xv. 1. 1
Kings xviii. 15.
Ps. xxvii. 1. Is.
li. 12, 13. Jer.
i. 17. xv. 19.
Ez. ii. 6. Matt.
x. 28. Heb. xi.
27.

13 And ^a he sent again a captain of the third fifty with his fifty: and the third captain of fifty went up, and came and ^{*} fell on his knees before Elijah, and ^a besought him, and said unto him, O man of God, I pray thee, ^b let my life, and the life of these fifty thy servants, be precious in thy sight.

14 Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifties, with their fifties: therefore ^c let my life now be precious in thy sight.

15 And the angel of the LORD said unto Elijah, Go down with him; ^d be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went down with him unto the king.

16 And he said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ^e Forasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron, is it not because there is no God in Israel to inquire of his word? therefore thou shalt not come down off that bed, on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

17 So he died, according to the word of the LORD which Elijah had spoken: and Jehoram reigned in his stead, ^f in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah; because he had no son.

18 Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah which he did, are they not written ^g in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

^e 3. 4. Ex. iv. 22.
25. 1 Kings xiv.
6—13. xxi. 21—
24. xxii. 28.

^f iii. 1. 1 Kings
xxii. 51.

^g 2 Kings xxii.
39.

‘that moment, slew the captain and his fifty men: but ‘they were by no means convinced that JEHOVAH had ‘sent it for that purpose, in answer to the words of ‘Elijah.’

V. 13, 14. This officer had not courage to refuse obedience to the infatuated tyrant, that ordered him on this desperate service, and yet he dared not attempt any thing against Elijah: he therefore employed humble entreaties with every expression of respect and submission; and in this manner his life and the lives of his soldiers were preserved.

V. 15—17. Elijah, by putting the prophets of Baal to death, had so exasperated Jezebel and her party, that in general he lay concealed, and only went to court when specially commissioned, as he was on this occasion.—His presence, however, and authoritative boldness in delivering the solemn message, so dismayed the king, that he did not attempt any thing against him: and shortly after, Ahaziah died, according to his word, for attempting to consult a heathen oracle.—Jehoshaphat lived some time after this: it is therefore supposed that he admitted his son Jehoram to reign with him, eight or nine years before his death: and Jehoram the son of Ahab began to reign in the second year of that term, or in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—3.

Man's revolt from God is often punished by the rebellion of those who owe subjection to him. Death meets men in the most unexpected places and forms, but always under the direction of the all-wise and righteous God. If reconciled to him by faith in the Saviour, and walking in his ways, “death is ours,” and can never come in a wrong time or manner; but to the impenitent and unbelieving he is and must be “the king of terrors.”—False religion amuses men's minds, and gratifies a vain curiosity: but the Bible declares the way of acceptance, and the path of duty; and without attempting to inform us of the events of our future lives, or the time and manner of our death, it teaches us to be always ready; and instructs us how to behave under every dispensation of Providence, and thus to find comfort under all of them and derive benefit from all.—With such instructions, and access to the mercy-seat of our God and Father, we have no occasion to consult any of those oracles which pretend to unfold what God has been pleased to conceal. The believer, assured by the word of God that all things shall work together for his good, may rejoice in hope, and look forward with comfort: but the foreknowledge of the afflictions of future life, joined to the terror of final misery, would mar the little enjoyment which the unbeliever has in this world, and torment him before his time.—Men are prone to act as if there were no God; as if they were left to take care of themselves, as well as to spend their lives in following their own inclinations: hence they are so readily induced to yield to every temptation, and to make rapid progress in wickedness, when in pursuit of the objects which they idolize, or when afraid of losing them.—The conduct of some persons, as impartially recorded in the word of God, appears so infatuated, that we should scarcely be able to credit the account, did we not sometimes witness actions equally unaccountable. Often has it been observed that men upon a death-bed, and aware that they could not recover, have appeared more trifling, profane, avaricious, morose, fierce, or cruel, than at any former period: so that those around them have been tempted by their intolerable conduct, to wish them dead before the hour arrived! Some have even seemed to regret with their dying lips, that they could do no more mischief in the world before they left it! And in many other ways men are continually acting in a manner inexplicable, except upon the principles of the wise man; “The heart of the sons of men is full of “evil, and madness is in their heart whilst they live, and “after that they go to the dead.”

V. 9—18.

Haughty persecutors will always meet with wretches, ready to execute their most impious and desperate man-

CHAP. II.

Elijah in vain persuades Elisha to leave him, 1—7. With his mantle he divides Jordan, and they pass over, 8. Elijah allows conditionally of Elisha's request, and is taken to heaven in a fiery chariot, 9—11. Elisha takes up Elijah's mantle; again divides Jordan, and passes over; and is received as Elijah's successor, 12—15. The sons of the prophets in vain seek for Elijah, 16—18. Elisha heals with salt the bad waters of Jericho, 19—22. Bears destroy the children that mock him, 23—25.

dates; and when providential mercies, means of grace; warnings and corrections leave them thus desperate in enmity against God and his servants, we may be confident that vengeance slumbereth not. If the wicked face death in its most tremendous forms, to obtain or preserve the favour of an earthly prince, whose "breath goeth forth," and he returneth to his dust, and all his thoughts perish:" what danger and hardship ought not we to welcome in the service of the everlasting God, who can give us the gracious recompense of eternal life? But they that would be valiant for the truth before the great ones of the earth, must learn temperance and frugality; and evince, that they neither envy nor covet their luxuries or embellishments, but are indifferent about all other things, in comparison of the glory of God, and the salvation of immortal souls. There are proper seasons for different methods of behaving towards sinners, and we must ask wisdom of God to direct us: and, as the same action may be either right or wrong, according to the principle from which it springs, we should look well to our own spirits, and be candid in judging our brethren. It is, however, our general rule, "not to be overcome of evil, but to overcome evil with good."—The judgments of God under the Christian dispensation are commonly spiritual: and the more mildly we behave to those who insult and injure us for the Lord's sake, the more terrible punishment will he at length inflict upon them. But our God is ever ready to forgive the humble suppliant, however rebellious he has been: and the way to prevail with him is to bow before him. We therefore should be followers of him, and be ready to favour and pray for our bitterest enemies, especially when, under any alarm of conscience, they entreat us so to do. We may safely venture into the presence of our most enraged foes, when he requires us, who hath all hearts in his hand: the courage of faith hath often struck terror into the heart of the proudest sinner; how then shall any be able to stand before God, when he ariseth to execute judgment? His words will surely take effect: and whilst some sinners being long spared, increase their own condemnation; others are cut off speedily and hurried into destruction. Both are intended to warn others to seek the Lord whilst he may be found: and his servants will, one way or other, survive and witness the destruction of all his enemies.

AND it came to pass, when the LORD would ^atake up Elijah into heaven ^bby a whirlwind that Elijah went with ^cElisha from ^dGilgal.

2 And Elijah said unto Elisha, "Tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to Beth-el. And ^fElisha said unto him, ^eAs the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they went down to ^bBeth-el.

3 And ⁱthe sons of the prophets that were at Beth-el came forth to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away thy master ^kfrom thy head to-day? And he said, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

^a Gen. v. 24.
^b Acts i. 9. Heb. xi. 5. Rev. xi. 12.
^c 1 Kings xviii. 12.
^d xix. 4. 11. Job xxxviii. 1.
^e 1 Kings xix. 16.
^f 21.
^g Josh. iv. 19. v. 9.
^h Ruth i. 15. John vi. 67, 68.
ⁱ Ruth i. 16—18.
^j 2 Sam. xv. 21.
^k 1 Chr. xii. 13.
^l g. 4. 6. iv. 30.
^m 1 Sam. i. 26.
ⁿ xvii. 55. xxv. 26.
^o 1 Gen. xxviii. 19.
^p 1 Kings xii. 29.
^q 33. xiii. 1, 2.
^r 15. 7. 12. 15. iv. 1. 38. ix. 1.
^s 1 Sam. x. 12.
^t xix. 20. 1 Kings xviii. 4. xx. 35.
^u Is. viii. 18.
^v k Deut. xxxiii. 3.
^w Acts xxii. 3.

NOTES.

CHAP. II. V. 1. None, Enoch alone excepted, had ever been favoured with exemption from the general sentence denounced against sinful man, "Dust thou art, and to dust shalt thou return." But the Lord had given Elijah some intimations, that he intended thus to distinguish him, and that the day was at hand. At that time he and Elisha were at Gilgal. (Marg. Ref.) And thence Elijah went in circuit to several of the schools of the prophets in different places, to give them his parting exhortations and blessing. Doubtless most of them were established, and all of them were superintended, by him. It is not known how long Elijah lived before his translation.

V. 2. Elijah might intend by this proposal to make trial of the strength of Elisha's attachment; or perhaps he longed for retirement, and shunned ostentation. But Elisha expressed his determination to enjoy the pleasure, and reap the benefit, of his company to the last; and, if it might be, to witness his translation: and this he confirmed with a most solemn asseveration. As the life and soul of man entirely depend on God, to mention them in a solemn oath, either alone or along with him, was deemed equivalent to swearing by the name of the LORD. (Matt. v. 33—37. xxiii. 16—22.)

V. 3. 'In that place where the golden calves were worshipped, God continued the schools of the prophets! —This was a great testimony of his love to an apostate people. And it is still more remarkable, that prophets of greater excellency for miracles were raised up in Israel, than were in Judah; because they needed them more. It seems to me very probable, that these sons of the prophets were such ministers to the prophets, as the evangelists were to the apostles; whom the prophets sent to publish their prophecies and instructions to the people, where they could not go themselves.' (Bp. Patrick.)—The sons of the prophets had received a divine intimation that Elijah was on that day to be taken from them; and as Elisha was next in precedency after Elijah, sitting nearest under him, or at his feet, while he delivered his instructions; he would be considered as their superintendent, when his master was taken from his head, or from above him. —Elisha would not allow them to interrupt the compo-

11 Kings xvi. 34. 4 And Elijah said unto him, Elisha, tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to ¹ Jericho. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, ^m I will not leave thee. So they came to Jericho.

m 12. Acts ii. 42. xi. 23. 5 And the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho came to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away ⁿ thy master from thy head to-day? And he answered, ^o Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

n Josh. xxii. 14. Judg. xi. 9. 1 Chr. xxix. 11. 1 Cor. xi. 3. Eph. v. 23. o Josh. i. 1, 2. Luke xxiv. 52. John xvi. 7. Acts i. 2. 11. 6 And Elijah said unto him, Tarry, I pray thee, here; for the LORD hath sent me to Jordan. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on.

p 17. 1 Kings xviii. A. * Heb. in sight, or over against. 7 And ^p fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood ^{*} to view afar off; and they two stood by Jordan.

q 1 Kings xix. 13. 19. r 14. Ex. xiv. 21. 22. Josh. iii. 16. 17. Ps. cxiv. 5—7. 8 And Elijah took ^a his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they ^r were divided hither and thither; so that they two went over on dry ground.

9 And it came to pass when they were gone over, that Elijah said unto Elisha, Ask what I shall do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Elisha said, ^t I pray thee, let ^u a double portion of thy spirit be upon me.

10 And he said, Thou [†] hast asked a hard thing: nevertheless, ^{*} if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, as they still went on, and talked, that, behold, there appeared ^v a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up ^z by a whirlwind ^a into heaven.

12 And Elisha ^b saw it, and he cried, ^c My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. And ^d he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own clothes, and ^e rent them in two pieces.

s xiii. 14—19. Num. xxvii. 16—23. Deut. xxxiv. 9. 1 Chr. xxix. 18, 19. Ps. lxxiii. 1, 20. Luke xxiv. 45—51. John xvii. 9—13. Acts i. 8, viii. 17. xx. 25, 36. t Num. xi. 17, 25. 1 Kings iii. 9. Zech. xii. 8. Luke xii. 28. John xiv. 12—14. xvi. 7. 1 Cor. xii. 31. u Deut. xxi. 17. Jer. xvi. 18. Zech. ix. 12. 1 Tim. v. 17. Rev. xviii. 6. † Heb. done hard in asking. Mark xi. 22—24. John xvi. 24. x Acts i. 9, 10. y vi. 17. Ps. lxxviii. 17. civ. 3. d. Ez. i. 4. &c. x. 8. &c. Hab. iii. 8. Zech. vi. 5—8. Heb. i. 14. z 1. a Mark xvi. 19. b 10. c xiii. 14. Job xxii. 30. Prov. xi. 11. Ec. vii. 19. ix. 16—18. Is. xxxvii. 4, 15. 21. Acts xxvii. 24. d Job i. 9. e Job i. 20, 21. Acts viii. 2.

sure of Elijah's mind at this solemn season, by any lamentations: it is probable, that he forbade them publicly to speak of it, lest multitudes should be collected to witness the event; and he counselled them to be calm, and not to disquiet themselves, for the Lord would make up the loss.

V. 7, 8. These fifty prophets seem to have hoped to witness Elijah's translation, but this favour was granted only to Elisha. They, however, saw Jordan twice divided, first before Elijah and Elisha, and then afterwards before Elisha alone, by smiting the waters with Elijah's mantle.

V. 9, 10. Elisha was thus reminded to make his request before Elijah was taken from him: for the prophet gave not the least intimation of being prayed to, as an intercessor, after he was gone to heaven. Elisha therefore, knowing the efficacy of Elijah's prayer, desired him to ask for him a double portion of his spirit. (Notes, 1 Kings iii. 5—13.) He seems only to have meant a double portion of the Spirit of prophecy, and of wisdom, courage, faith, and grace, to what was ordinarily bestowed upon the prophets: but as he was to succeed so eminent a person, in so important a work, and in such arduous times, his desires and expectations might be enlarged by zeal for the honour of God, and for the revival of true religion; so that he was led to use words, which may signify even double the portion that Elijah had possessed: and Elijah's answer seems to imply, that this was the import of them. It appears from the history that Elisha wrought twice as many miracles as Elijah had done: and being more constantly among the people, as their example and instructor, for above sixty years from his first calling by Elijah, he seems to have been favoured with more extensive usefulness than he:

though in other respects he may be considered as his inferior. Thus our Lord said to his apostles, (referring to the extensive usefulness of their labours, compared with that of his personal ministry, and to the number and variety, and long continuance, of the miracles wrought by them,) "Greater works than these shall ye do:" yet was he infinitely greater than they.

V. 11. Elijah's translation was doubtless performed by the ministration of Angels, who caused the appearances and effects here described. The event was a distinguished honour put upon one, who had been peculiarly zealous for the honour of God, and had ventured all consequences in his cause, by opposing the idolatry of an apostate and persecuting age and nation. It was a public attestation of the doctrine of a future state of retributions, for the encouragement of God's suffering people; and a prefiguration of the Redeemer's ascension.—The prophet had once passionately wished to die; but the Lord was graciously pleased to deal with him better than his wishes. He had passed over Jordan to his native country, and was conferring with Elisha, perhaps about the joys of heaven, or the interests of true religion in Israel, when they were thus suddenly interrupted and separated.

V. 12. The manner in which Elijah was taken away, amidst his most interesting discourse, must have been exceedingly affecting to Elisha, who could not but congratulate his felicity. He had, however, lost one whom he loved and revered as a father; and Israel had lost a reformer, whose labours and prayers did more to preserve the nation from ruin, than chariots and horsemen, however numerous, could have done: and on these accounts he grieved, and expressed his regret by rending his clothes.—

f 8. 1 Kings xix.
19.

• Heb. tip.

g 8—10. Josh. i.
1—9. Mark xvi.
20. John xv. 26, 27.
12. Acts ii. 33.
12, 13.

h 7.

i Num. xi. 25—
29. xxvii. 20.
John xv. 26, 27.
Acts i. 8.
h 19. iv. 1—4.
37. vi. 1—7.

† Heb. sons of strength.

j 1 Kings xviii.
12. Ez. iii. 14.
viii. 3. Acts
viii. 39.
† Heb. one of the mountains.

k Rom. x. 2.

l Heb. xi. 5.

13 He took up also ^f the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and went back, and stood by the * bank of Jordan;

14 And he took the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and ^g smote the waters, and said, Where is the LORD God of Elijah? And when he also had smitten the waters, they parted hither and thither; and Elisha went over.

15 And when the sons of the prophets, which were ^h to view at Jericho, saw him, they said, ⁱ The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and ^k bowed themselves to the ground before him:

16 And they said unto him, Behold now, there be with thy servants fifty [†] strong men, let them go, we pray thee, and seek thy master; lest peradventure ^j the Spirit of the LORD hath taken him up, and cast him upon [†] some mountain, or into some valley. And he said, Ye shall not send.

17 And when ^m they urged him till he was ashamed, he said, Send. They sent therefore fifty men; and they sought three days, but ⁿ found him not.

18 And when they came again to him, (for he tarried at Jericho,) he said unto them, Did I not say unto you, Go not?

19 ¶ And the men of the city said unto Elisha, Behold, I pray thee, the situation of the city is pleasant, as my lord seeth: but ^o the water is naught, and the ground [†] barren.

20 And he said, Bring me a new cruse, and put ^p salt therein: and they brought it to him.

21 And he went forth unto the spring of the waters, and ^q cast the salt in there, and said, Thus saith the LORD, ^r I have healed these waters; ^s there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land.

22 So the waters were healed unto this day, according to the saying of Elisha which he spake.

23 ¶ And he went up from thence unto ^t Beth-el: and as he was going up by the way, there came forth ^u little children out of the city, and ^v mocked him, and said unto him, ^v Go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head.

24 And he turned back, and looked on them, and ^z cursed them in the name of the LORD: and there came forth ^a two she-bears out of the wood, and o Ex. vii. 19. xv.

23. Josh. vi. 17
26. 1 Kings xvi.
34.

† Heb. causing to miscarry. Deut
xxviii. 2—4. 11
15—18.

p Judg. ix. 45.
Ez. xlvii. 1:
Zeph. ii. 9.

q iv. 41. vi. 6.
Ex. xv. 25, 26.
John ix. 6.

r Josh. vi. 2—16.
1 Cor. i. 18—28.
ii. 4, 5. James
v. 14, 15.

s Ps. cvii. 34—39.
t 1 Kings xii. 28
—32. Hos. iv. 15.
x. 5. 15. Am. iii.
14. iv. 4 v. 5.
vii. 13.

u Prov. xx. 11.
xxii. 6. 15. Jer.
vii. 18.

x Gen. xxi. 9.
2 Chr. xxxvii.
13. Gal. iv. 29.

y Heb. xi. 36.
11. Mat. xxvii.
29—31. 40—43.

z i. 10—12. Gen.
ix. 25. Deut.
xxviii. 15—26.

Jer. xxviii. 16.
xxix. 21—23.
Am. vii. 17.

Mark xi. 14. 21.
Acts v. 5. 9.
viii. 20. xiii. 9—11. 2 Cor. x. 6.

a 1 Kings xiii. 24.
xix. 17. xx. 36.
Prov. xxx. 17.

Nor was he reconciled to his own and the public loss, by being left president of all the schools of the prophets, or by being assured of a double portion of Elijah's spirit.

V. 13. Though the prophet went to heaven in the body; yet as a token of the different state into which he was entered, and the change that had taken place, he dropped his mantle or upper garment. Elisha had been first called to attend Elijah, by the casting of his mantle over him: and he now received and valued this mantle, as a token of his receiving a double portion of his spirit.

V. 14. Elisha was inwardly moved to make trial, whether Elijah's words were indeed fulfilled to him; and whether the LORD God, who had wrought such miracles by Elijah, and had just before divided the waters of Jericho, when he smote them with his mantle, was with him in like manner. The original is more expressive than the translation, and may be rendered, "Where is JEHOVAH, 'the God of Elijah? Even He,' is still with me.—Though Elijah be not here, the God of Elijah is.

V. 15. These sons of the prophets had probably witnessed the two-fold division of Jordan, from whence they concluded, that the spirit of Elijah rested on Elisha; and by bowing to the ground before him, they gave him honour as their future superintendent.

V. 16—18. These young prophets might think, that even in case Elijah was finally taken from them, his soul alone was gone to heaven; and that his body might be found, and buried with due honour: but perhaps they also doubted, whether he was really removed; or had only been carried to some other place in a supernatural manner, as he seems to have been on former occasions. Elisha, however, might fear lest they would suspect, if he persisted in refusing their request, that he was influenced by an undue desire of filling Elijah's honourable place: and the event tended to establish his authority.

V. 19—22. Jericho had not long before been rebuilt, in defiance of the curse which Joshua had denounced against him who did this: and it is probable, that the pleasantness of the situation had been the inducement. But, as an evidence of God's displeasure, the water was unwholesome; and perhaps in consequence, the ground, (though it does not seem to have been otherwise deficient in fertility,) had the property of causing the cattle to cast their young; and as some think, the immature fruit to fall from the trees.—It is not unlikely that similar effects were produced on the inhabitants also. But as these had admitted a seminary of prophets among them, these tokens of the divine displeasure were miraculously removed. The new cruse, and the salt, could have no natural efficacy to heal the water, and remove the bad property of the land, but might rather have been thought likely to produce contrary effects: they were, however, mere tokens of the Lord's operation.—(Marg. Ref.)

b Ex. xx. 5.

c iv. 25. 1 Kings
xviii. 19.b tare forty and two children of them.
25 And he went from thence to^c mountCarmel; and from thence he returned to Samaria.

V. 23, 24. Several learned men have endeavoured to show, that these offenders were not children, but grown up persons: and, no doubt the word rendered children is often used in that sense. The addition, however, of the word rendered little, seems clearly to prove, that they were not men, but young boys, who had been trained up in idolatry, and taught to despise the prophets of the Lord. They had heard that Elijah was gone up to heaven, and they insultingly bade Elisha follow him, that they might be rid of him too; and they reviled him for the baldness of his head. Thus they united the crimes of abusing him for a supposed bodily infirmity, a contemptuous behaviour towards a venerable and aged person, and enmity against him as the servant of God. The sin therefore even of these children was very heinous; yet the greater guilt was chargeable upon their parents; and their fate was a severe rebuke and awful warning to them. If the Spirit of God had not dictated Elisha's solemn curse of them, Providence would not have followed it with so terrible a judgment. Most of the children of the city seem to have been present, and the insult was perhaps the effect of a pre-concerted plan, to drive the sons of the prophets from Beth-el by ill-treatment. The forty-two children which were devoured, might be only a small part of the whole company, and perhaps they were the most guilty. However, the Judge of all the earth surely did right. Had he cut them off by a fever, no one would have objected: but, while the dispensation would have been as severe towards them, it would in no proportion have been suited to make the same useful impression on the minds of the survivors, or to inculcate the same important instructions to other ages and nations, as this solemn sentence and immediate execution were. It seems that the inhabitants of Beth-el were so over-awed, that they no more ventured to molest Elisha or the sons of the prophets.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

The Lord always acts with perfect wisdom, justice, goodness, and truth; but he doth not always deign to explain to us the reasons of his conduct. In exempting sinners from merited condemnation, and in conferring unmerited blessings, he divideth to every man severally as he will. We are assured, that they who repent and believe the gospel, shall be saved; that the Lord will honour those who honour him: and if we obtain eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord, we need not greatly regret that we do not pass the same way to it, that Enoch and Elijah did; being comfortably assured, that we shall be more than conquerors in the last conflict, through him that hath loved us, and at last death will be swallowed up in victory. (Pr. Ob. Gen. v.) As we know not the time of our departure, we should endeavour to be habitually ready: and we ought to mind our proper work with greater assiduity, (if we are able,) when we perceive that the time approaches. Whether ministers or private Christians, we are called to serve our generation; and should aim to leave all around us deeply convinced of the nearness and reality of eternal things, and animated with the desire of glorifying God and doing good: and our example, exhortations, and prayers, should especially be directed to these important objects, when we approach the solemn closing scene. On the other hand, we should gladly embrace opportunities of visiting the death-beds of eminent believers, that we may learn heavenly wisdom, and catch holy fire, as it were, from their converse and behaviour. But such occasions require seriousness, calmness, and submission to the will of God; and we should learn even to repress our own feelings, rather than distract the minds, or interrupt the devotions and discourse of the departing Christian. As long as such persons are with us, we should beg an interest in their prayers; that by the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, we may be enabled to tread in their steps, and be serviceable to the church as they have been. And if, from zeal for the glory of God, and love to the souls of men, we should covet earnestly to abound still more in grace, wisdom, and usefulness; neither God, nor his dying saints, will blame the largeness of our desires. Nor is this hard in itself, however it may appear to us; for that fulness, whence prophets and apostles derived all their endowments, still remains, and we are invited to ask large supplies from it: and they, who are called to succeed eminent men in arduous and important stations, and are conscious of their own insufficiency, are peculiarly encouraged to expect a double portion of the Spirit of God, that they may not disgrace their situations, or remain useless in them.

V. 11—18.

Angels delight to be employed in removing the saints to their glorious rest, in any way that the Lord pleases: yet the event, which is so joyful to them, causes painful separations to those that are left behind: many on these occasions are bereft of such, as have been more dear and useful to them than the tenderest parent: yea, even the public has been deprived of some of its strongest bulwarks, though most men are insensible to the loss. On these accounts, it is allowable to grieve: but believers should be warned "not to sorrow as men without hope:" the separation will at length issue in a more joyful meeting, and the loss shall be made up to them. Though Elijah be removed, the Lord God of Elijah liveth. Thus, when the Saviour ascended into heaven, he left not his disciples comfortless; but he bequeathed to them his precious gospel, like Elijah's mantle, as the token of the divine power being exerted to subvert the empire of Satan, and to set up the kingdom of God in the world: and he poured out upon them his holy Spirit, both to qualify them for their work, and to render their labours abundantly successful. The same gospel still remains with us, and though the miraculous powers are withdrawn, it still is attended with a divine energy for the conversion and salvation of sinners. Oh may that energy be more abundantly experienced, wherever the word of God is truly preached! And may we all seriously inquire whether it be not suspended, retarded, or removed, through

CHAP. III.

Jehoram's wicked reign, 1—3. Mesha king of Moab revolts, 4, 5. Jehoram, Jehoshaphat, and the king of Edom, march against him; and being distressed for water, they apply to Elisha, who sharply reproves Jehoram, but shows respect to Jehoshaphat, 6—14. He promises them water, and victory, 15—19. Plenty of water is sent; the Moabites are deceived by the appearance, and are entirely defeated, 20—24. The allied kings destroy the cities, spoil the country, and besiege Kir-haraseth, 25. The king of Moab, by sacrificing his eldest son, causes them to raise the siege, 26, 27.

NOW Jehoram the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria ^{a i. 17. viii. 16. 1 Kings xxii. 51.} the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years.

2 And he ^{b vi. 31.} wrought evil in the sight of the LORD, ^c but not like his father, and ^d like his mother; for he put away the * image of Baal ^e that his father had made. ^{e 1 Kings xvi 33. xxi. 20. 25. d ix. 22. 34. * Heb statue. e x. 18. 26—28. 1 Kings xvi. 31, 32.}

3 Nevertheless ^f he cleaved unto the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, ^g which made Israel to sin; ^h he departed not therefrom. ^{f x. 29—31. 1 Kings xii. 28—33. g 1 Kings xiv. 9. 16. xv. 26. 34. xvi. 31. h 1 Kings xii. 26. 27. 1 Cor. i. 19, 20.}

some criminal cause in us? Having, however, the same exceeding great and precious promises as the primitive Christians, the same throne of grace, the same Mediator, the same powerful God and Father, as they had; if we have also the same precious faith, we need not fear breaking through all difficulties, opposing enemies, and at last passing comfortably through the Jordan of death, as on dry ground. —When we perceive men averse to conviction, and bent upon their own schemes, though vain and empty; it is sometimes best to leave them to take their own course: and their fruitless labours and inquiries often most effectually discover to them their mistakes.

V. 19—25.

The nature of man, in its best estate, and adorned with all the embellishments of which it is capable, resembles the unwholesome water and soil of Jericho. It is throughout infected with sin, and barren of real good; and man's best actions, till renewed by grace, proceed from worthless motives, are directed to unworthy purposes, and measured by a false rule. But when that remedy is applied, a blessed change takes place through all the powers of the soul: and repentance, faith, and love of God and man, produce good works, performed from the purest principles, and for the most important ends; and regulated according to the holy law of God, and the example of the Redeemer. In this way sometimes whole towns and cities have assumed a new appearance, through the preaching of the Gospel; and the curse of sin and ungodliness has been converted into the blessing of "fruitfulness in the works of righteousness, which are through Jesus Christ to the praise and glory of God." But whilst the divine blessing evidently rests on those places where his gospel is welcomed; his heaviest wrath will light on those who reject the gracious message, and insult and abuse his ministers. The words and actions even of children, yea, of little children, are noticed by him. Let then the youngest who read or hear these observations, "stand in awe, and sin not:" let them think of the terror and anguish of the children of Beth-el, when they are tempted to deride the deformed, the lame, or the infirm; when they are induced to show contempt to the aged; but especially when they are about to join those who revile or ridicule such as are in reputation for sanctity: for this is to despise the holiness of God in them. And if any have the misfortune to have parents so wicked, as to set them an example of such profaneness, or to instruct, or encourage them to behave in such a manner; let them remember that they should obey God rather than man, and that they must answer to him for their offence, whoever commands them to commit it. But words cannot express what strikes the imagination on this awful subject! We can scarcely conceive the horror which seized the parents of Beth-el, on the view of the mangled bodies of their children, whom they had taught that impiety which brought the dreadful judgment upon them! What then will be the anguish at the great decisive day, of those parents, who witness the everlasting condemnation of their offspring, occasioned by their negligence and wickedness! Let us turn from the dreadful meditation, and take warning to train up our families, with increasing earnestness, "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," hoping and praying that we should be enabled, at that important season, to appear before God, and to adopt the language of the prophet, "Behold, I and the children whom thou hast given me." — Indeed the ministers of Christ must and will continue to bless, and not curse: but the Lord is still glorious in holiness, and all creatures serve him; and whilst he protects his people, even among their enraged foes, he can soon call for instruments of his vengeance on those whom he sees to be ripe for destruction.

NOTES.

CHAP. III. V. 2, 3. Jehoram threw aside, but did not destroy the image of Baal: and if he suppressed his worship for a time, in order to please Jehoshaphat, and secure his alliance, or through terror at the awful end of his father, and brother; it was soon allowed to revive. (Marg. Ref.) But he was not so eager upon that idolatry, or so vehement a persecutor of God's worshippers, as his predecessors, preferring the more politic measures of Jeroboam. Yet it seems Jezebel retained her influence, and promoted her favourite idolatry; though for reasons of state,

4 ¶ And Mesha king of Moab was ⁱa sheep-master, and ^krendered unto the king of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and an hundred thousand rams, with the wool.

5 But it came to pass, ^lwhen Ahab was dead, that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel.

6 And king Jehoram went out of Samaria the same time, and ^mnumbered all Israel.

7 And he went and sent to Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, saying, The king of Moab hath rebelled against me: ⁿwilt thou go with me against Moab to battle? And he said, I will go up; I am as thou art, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses.

8 And he said, Which way shall we go up? And he answered, The way through ^othe wilderness of Edom.

9 So the king of Israel went, and the king of Judah, and ^pthe king of Edom; and they fetched a compass of seven days journey; and there was ^qno water for the host, and for the cattle ^rthat followed them.

10 And the king of Israel said, Alas! that ^sthe LORD hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab!

11 But Jehoshaphat said, ^tIs there not here a prophet of the LORD, ^uthat we may inquire of the LORD by him? And one of the king of Israel's servants answered and said, Here is Elisha the son of Shaphat, which ^vpoured water on the hands of Elijah.

12 And Jehoshaphat said, ^xThe word of the LORD is with him. So ^ythe king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went down to him.

13 And Elisha said unto the king of Israel, ^zWhat have I to do with thee? ^aget thee to ^bthe prophets of thy father, and to the prophets of thy mother. And the king of Israel said unto him, ^cNay: for the LORD hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab.

14 And Elisha said, ^dAs the LORD of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, surely, were it not that ^eI regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, ^fI would not look toward thee, nor see thee.

15 But now ^gbring me a minstrel. And it came to pass, when the minstrel played, that ^hthe hand of the LORD came upon him.

or being daunted by various calamities, she acquiesced in her son's measures at the beginning of his reign.

V. 7. Jehoshaphat used exactly the same words in this answer to Jehoram, as he had done to his father Ahab. But the ill success of Ahab's expedition, his own extreme danger, and the sharp reproof given him by the prophet, should have taught him a different conduct. (Marg. Ref.)—As Jehoram had renounced Baal, Jehoshaphat perhaps was in hopes of effecting a more complete reformation in Israel, by this compliance: but he thus almost entirely ruined his own family.

V. 8, 9. This way was far about, and through a part of the desert in which Israel had wanted water, when they came out of Egypt: and the same difficulty might reasonably have been expected. Jehoshaphat seems to have intended to prevent the revolt, and secure the assistance, of the deputy-king of Edom, and to attack the Moabites by surprise: but he neglected to inquire of the Lord, for which he was speedily rebuked. It is probable that the army either missed the direct road, or was hindered in its march by unforeseen impediments.

V. 10. Alas! &c. Jehoram had planned this expedition, without any divine direction, for his own interest, and had drawn the other two kings into it. Had they succeeded, he would not have given God the glory; but when calamities came upon him, through his own inadvertency, "his heart fretted against the Lord:" but he expressed neither repentance, nor faith, nor submission to the will of God.

V. 11, 12. Doubtless the prophet was divinely directed to follow the camp on this occasion. The servant of Jehoram was better acquainted with him than his master was: and he was known as having been the servant of Elijah, to assist him in washing his hands and such menial offices; yet, as appointed to be his successor. Jehoshaphat was now made sensible of his fault in neglecting to inquire of the Lord: and the three kings concurred in respect for Elisha, not ordering his attendance, but waiting upon him. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 13, 14. It is probable that Elisha meant to show Jehoshaphat the partiality and hypocrisy of Jehoram's reformation; as his heart still went after the prophets and worship of Baal; and he had no true regard for the prophets of God, though he consulted him in his distress. He would not therefore show him any honour, that he might understand how the Lord detested his iniquity: but he treated Jehoshaphat with respect, though he too was faulty.—Doubtless he was directed to act in his public character, differently from what he would have done as a private subject of Jehoram's kingdom.

V. 15. This minstrel was one skilful in playing on a harp, or some other musical instrument: and it is probable, that he sang the praises of God, accompanied with soft and sweet music. This was intended to calm the i Gen. xlii. 2.

xxvi. 13, 14.
2 Chr. xxvi. 10.
Job i. 3. xlii. 12.
k 2 Sam. viii. 2.
Is. xvi. 1.

l l. 1.

m 1 Sam. xi. 8.
xv. 4. 2 Sam.
xxiv. 1. 1 Kings
xx. 26.

n 1 Kings xxii. 4.
32, 33. 2 Chr
xxviii. 3. 29—32
xix. 2. xxi. 4—
7. xxii. 3, 4. 10
—12.

o Num. xxi. 4, 5.
Mat. i. 2, 3.

p 1 Kings xxii. 47.

q Ex. xvii. 1.
Num. xx. 2. 4.
xxi. 5.
r Heb. at their feet. Ex. xi. 8.
Judg. iv. 10.
r vi. 33. Gen. iv.
13. Ps. lxxviii.
34—46. Prov.
xix. 3. Is. viii.
21. li. 20.

s 1 Kings xxii. 7.
Am. iii. 7.
t Josh. ix. 14.
Judg. xx. 8—11.
18. 23. 26—28.

u Gen. xviii. 4.
1 Kings xix. 21.
Luke xxii. 27.
John xiii. 4, 5.
13, 14.

x ii. 14, 15. 21. 24.
1 Sam. iii. 19—21.
y v. 8, 9. 15. Is xlix. 23. lx. 14
Rev. iii. 9.

z Ez. xiv. 3—5.
Matt. viii. 29.
John ii. 4. 2 Cor
v. 16. vi. 15.
a Judg. x. 14.
Ruth i. 15. Jer.
ii. 27, 28.
b 1 Kings xviii. 19.
c Deut. xxxii. 37.
—39. Hos. vi. 1.

d v. 16. 1 Kings
xvii. 1. xviii. 15.
e 2 Chr. xvii. 3—9. xix. 3, 4. Ps.
xv. 4.

f 1 Sam. xv. 26—
31. 1 Kings xiv.
5, &c. xxi. 20.
Jer. i. 18. Dan.
v. 17—23. Matt.
xxii. 16.

g 1 Sam. x. 5. xvi.
23. xviii. 10.
1 Chr. xxv. 2, 3.
Eph. v. 18, 19.
h 1 Kings xviii. 46.
Ez. i. 3. iii. 14.
22. viii. 1. Acts
xi. 21.

16 And he said, Thus saith the LORD, ⁱ Make this valley full of ditches: ⁱ 16—18.
^k 1 Kings xviii. 36
^l 39 Ps lxxxiv.
^m 6. Is. xli 14, 18.

17 For thus saith the LORD, ^k Ye shall not see wind, neither shall ye see rain; yet that valley shall be filled with water, ^l that ye may drink, both ye, and your cattle, and your beasts.

18 And ^m this is but ⁿ a light thing in the sight of the LORD: ^o he will deliver the Moabites also into your hand.

19 And ^p ye shall smite every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall ^q fell every good tree, and stop all wells of water, and ^r mar every good piece of land with stones.

20 And it came to pass in the morning, ^r when the meat-offering was offered, that, behold, there came water by the ⁱ Num. xx. 8—11.

^m 1 Kings iii. 13.
ⁿ Eph. iii. 20.
^o xx. 10. 1 Kings xvi. 31 Is vii 13. xlix. 6. Ez. viii. 17.
^p 1 Kings xx. 13.
^q 28 Is. vii. 1—9.
^r 1 Sam. xv. 3.
^q Deut xix. 20.
^r Heb. grieve. 25.
^r Ex. xxix. 39, 40.
^s 1 Kings xviii. 36.
^t Dan. ix. 21.

way of Edom; and the country was ^s filled with water.

21 ¶ And when all the Moabites heard that the kings were come up to fight against them, they ^t gathered all that were able to ^u put on armour, and upward, and stood in the border.

22 And they arose up early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water, and the Moabites saw the water on the other side, as red as blood:

23 And they said, ^t This is blood: the kings have surely ^u slain, and they have smitten one another; ^v now therefore Moab to the spoil.

24 And when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up, and ^x smote the Moabites, so that they fled before them: but they ^y went forward

^s Ps. lxxviii. 15.
^t 16. 20. Is. xxxv.
^u 6. 7. xli. 17, 18.

^t Heb. were cried together.
^u Heb. gird himself with a girdle.
^v 1 Kings xx. 11.
^w Eph. vi. 14.

^t vi. 13—20. vii. c.

^u Heb. destroyed.

^v Ex. xv. 9. Judg. 5. 30. 2 Chr. xx. 25.

^x Josh. viii. 20—22. Judg. xx. 40—46. 1 Thes. v. 3. 14.
^y Or, smote in it even smiting.

prophet's mind, which had been discomposed with a holy indignation by recollecting the abominations of Ahab's family; and so to prepare him for those illapses of the holy Spirit, which he assuredly expected.

V. 16, 17. With this prophetic promise, a commandment was given that required considerable labour, and was a trial of the faith and obedience of the persons concerned. We need not inquire whence this water came; He that caused the rock to pour forth rivers, could never want resources. The supply, however, was evidently considered as miraculous; and those who have insinuated the contrary, must suppose that the prophet had more sagacity in matters of this kind, than these three kings and all their officers!

V. 19. Providence put it in Jehoram's power to execute that severe vengeance upon the revolted Moabites, which he meditated. But it is not certain, whether this implied a permission to do so, or was merely prophetic of the event. It is probable that the land could not be cultivated till the stones were gathered off: and these, lying in heaps upon the corners of their fields, would speedily be dispersed by a numerous army, and occasion great hinderance and difficulty in the future cultivation of the country.

V. 20. The time of the morning-sacrifice at Jerusalem was chosen by the Lord for this miracle, to intimate to the whole company that their deliverance was vouchsafed them through the sacrifices and the worship there performed. It may here very properly be noted, that neither Elijah nor Elisha seem ever to have resorted to the temple-worship, or to have required the people under the government of the Israelitish kings to do so; though that worship was appointed by God himself, and it is evident his spiritual worshippers had respect to it. The peculiar circumstances of Israel were such, that without uninterrupted miracles, or subverting the foundation of the civil establishment, the people could not exactly observe the ritual law. The prophets were therefore directed by God himself to accommodate their conduct to these circumstances, and to spend their lives in recovering, or preserving the people from idolatry, and in teaching them the grand essentials of acceptable religion. In every age hitherto, considerate and faithful ministers have found it impracticable for them to rectify every external deviation from what to them appeared most scriptural: but having adverted to the distinction betwixt what is desirable and what is attainable; and betwixt the essentials of true religion in every age, and matters more circumstantial; they have accommodated themselves to that state of things which they could not alter, and endeavoured to bring men to repentance, faith in Christ, and holiness of life, and to as scriptural and external worship as they could. And though some of their brethren have censured them, the Lord God of Elijah and Elisha has evidently pleaded their cause, by making them the instruments of numerous conversions, and great revivals of religion: whilst others scrupulously exact in external forms, and earnest to magnify them, have worn out their lives in vainly attempting to new model the church and the world, and have missed their opportunity of more essential usefulness. In due time the Lord will regulate every thing externally, as well as internally, in the best manner: meanwhile we must make the best of things: we must aim to be satisfied respecting our own conduct as in the sight of God; to be moderate in our judgment concerning those who differ from us, and patient under their censures of us; and, learning what that meaneth, “I will have mercy and not sacrifice,” to be careful not to lose sight of the great end of all religion, for the sake of some of the disputable means of attaining it.—For at last, nothing availeth in Christ Jesus, but “faith” “which worketh by love,” and “a new creature” manifested in “newness of life.”

V. 22, 23. The sun shining upon the water, in ditches probably in a red soil, caused this appearance, and deceived the Moabites who knew it to be a dry valley: and as combined armies have often quarrelled, and destroyed each other, they hastily concluded this to be the case; God permitting them to be thus infatuated for their destruction.

smiting the Moabites, even in their country.

y 19. 2 Sam. viii.
2. Is. xxxvii. 26,
27.

25 And they ^y beat down the cities, and on every good piece of land cast every man his stone, and filled it; and they stopped all the wells of water, and felled all the good trees: * only in ^z Kir-haraseth left they the stones thereof; howbeit the slingers went about it and smote it.

* Heb. until he left the stones thereof in Kir-haraseth.
z Is. xvi. 9-11.

26 And when the king of Moab saw that the battle was too sore for him, he took with him seven hundred men that drew swords to break through even unto the king of Edom: but they could not.

27 Then he took ^a his eldest son, that ^a Am. ii. 1. should have reigned in his stead, and ^b offered him for a burnt-offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation against Israel: and ^c they departed from him, and returned to their own land.

b Gen. xxii. 2 12.
Daut. xii. 13.
Judg. xi. 31. 39.
Ps cvi. 37. 38.
Ez xvi. 20 Mic.
vi. 7.
c 1 Sam. xiv. 36.
-46. 1 Kings
xx. 13. 28. 43.

V. 26. The camp of the vice-roy of Edom seems not to have been so well fortified as the camps of the other kings: and therefore the king of Moab, in his extreme danger, thought to have forced his way through in this direction; but he was not able.

V. 27. It has been imagined, that the king of Moab offered in sacrifice the eldest son of the king of Edom, whom he had taken prisoner: but the narrative does not admit of this interpretation. It is evident that he offered his own eldest son, and the heir apparent of his crown, to procure the assistance of his idols, or to avert their indignation. It has been thought, that a tradition of Abraham's offering his son Isaac; nay, that even a distorted tradition concerning the sacrifice of the Redeemer, gave occasion to those horrid human sacrifices, which have been very common in the Gentile world. But this at most could only be the occasion: the cause was two-fold; the depravity and blindness of the human heart, and the subtlety and malignity of Satan; in whose worship, as directed by him, it must be a first principle, that the more costly, painful, unnatural, and cruel the oblation is, the more acceptable the sacrifice; because it best gratifies his pride, envy, and malice. This horrid sacrifice the king of Moab offered in the sight of the combined armies, that they might see his desperate determination to endure and inflict all extremities, rather than be reduced: his remaining forces were thus fired with indignation against Israel; and perhaps Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom expressed their disapprobation of those severities, which occasioned the dreadful deed. Thus the minds of the assailants being filled with horror, and their measures disconcerted, they retired without completing their design.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—12.

Partial reformatations often originate from the hope of advantage in temporal things by the favour of godly men: and even the selfish will sometimes renounce those sins which occasion them loss and trouble; and then detect their own hypocrisy by adhering to those which promise present advantage. True piety, however, disposes men to judge favourably, and this candour is apt to carry them too far; while they indulge the hope of drawing half-converts further into the ways of God, by complying with their inclinations, and cultivating their acquaintance. We should indeed endeavour by kindness both to win upon the affections of our neighbours, and to evidence the tendency of our religion; yet our conduct in all things should be regulated by the word of God; and it is there declared that "evil communications corrupt good manners;" and we are commanded "to come out, and be separate from the ungodly." Worldly men are quick-sighted to their temporal interests, but they seek nothing further; and often seduce pious persons to forget their own principles, and to lean to their own understandings, instead of acknowledging the Lord in all their ways. But whilst the wicked in their difficulties are ready to quarrel with the Lord; the believer will be humbled before him for neglected duties, and disposed to inquire his will and seek his help. And when corrections have brought men to this temper, relief will be afforded them; and their ungodly connexions will often succeed the better on their account. They who would be eminent in the Church of the living God, must readily stoop to the meanest service and the hardest labour: for such as have thus distinguished themselves, have generally attained to singular honour and usefulness.

V. 13—27.

Many show respect unto the ministers of God under heavy trials, who despise them at other times. In that case, they might be justly left to seek help from the worldly idols, the vicious companions, the worthless forms, or infidel principles, which they have preferred to the favour and truth of God: and they should be shown, that with him there is no respect of persons. The minister may also properly let them know, that he is no stranger to their characters, and will pay no court to them, whatever he would do or suffer for their good: and he, who in private life, is the allowed inferior, and willing to be the servant of all, when speaking in the name of the Lord, is commissioned to "rebuke with all authority." In all ordinary cases, however, it should be with evident affection and respect; and it is proper so to change the voice, and regulate the conduct, as decisively to mark the difference betwixt the offending believer and the mere hypocrite.—Composure of mind favours the reception of heavenly communications: when the wickedness and misery of man have ruffled us, meditation on the glorious perfections and wonderful works of God is suited to restore the calm: and it is well when the sweet, but much abused, arts of poetry and music, are used with such caution and propriety, as to favour communion with him. The Lord will take occasion from the distresses of his offending servants to manifest the glory of his power, truth, and love:

CHAP. IV.

Elisha increases the oil of a poor prophet's widow, to enable her to pay her debts, 1—7. He is hospitably entertained by a woman of Shunem, who is rewarded by having a son in her old age, 8—17. The child dies, but it is restored to life in answer to Elisha's prayer, 18—37. Elisha heals the pottage made with poisonous herbs, 38—41. And feeds an hundred men with twenty barley-loaves, 42—44.

a 3. ii. 3. 5.
1 Kings xx. 35.
b Gen. xxii. 12.
1 Kings xviii. 3.
Neh. vii. 2. Ec.
xii. 13. Mal. iii.
16. iv. 2. Acts
xiii. 26.
c Lev. xxv. 39, 40.
Neh. v. 2—5.
Jer. xxxiv. 14.
Matt. xviii. 25.
35. James ii. 13.

NOW there cried a certain woman of the wives of the ^a sons of the prophets unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that ^b thy servant did fear the LORD: and ^c the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen.

and whilst all good gifts are from Him alone, we must show our believing expectation, and prepare for their reception, by observing the directions of his word. It is a light thing for him to preserve his people from becoming a prey to their enemies: he will make them more than conquerors over them all. Our rule is to do good and not evil to our adversaries: but we shall hereafter behold and rejoice in the destruction of all the enemies of God. And they, who are expressly commissioned by him, (as the Israelites of old, and magistrates at present,) to execute his vengeance upon the wicked, are authorized in those severities, which in others would be extremely criminal. The Lord will put honour upon his own institutions: and sinners left to themselves are speedily infatuated; for if men could not believe without proof, and in defiance of demonstration, what they wish to be true, “the fool would never have said in his heart, there is no God.” When sinners are saying peace, peace, sudden and inevitable destruction will come upon them, desperation will succeed their mad presumption; and in Satan’s service, and at his suggestion, such horrid deeds have been perpetrated, as cause even the natural feelings of humanity to recoil. We should, however, be careful not to urge the worst of men to extremities, lest we should occasion blasphemies, murder, or suicide; but ought rather to recede from our right, and leave them to the judgment of God.

NOTES.

CHAP. IV. V. 1. The prophets were ministers by selection, and not by entail, as the priests were; yet they seem in general to have married and brought up families: though Elijah and Elisha are supposed to have continued in a single state. Except the prophets had private fortunes, their incomes must have been very precarious; and would

2 And Elisha said unto her, ^d What shall I do for thee? tell me: what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thine handmaid hath not any thing in the house ^e save a pot of oil.

3 Then he said, Go, borrow the vessels abroad of all thy neighbours, even ^f empty vessels; * borrow not a few.

4 And when thou art come in, ^g thou shalt shut the door upon thee and upon thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full.

5 So ^h she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her, and she poured out.

6 And it came to pass when ⁱ the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, Bring me yet a vessel. And he said unto her, There is not a vessel more. ^k And the oil stayed.

d ii. 9. vi. 26, 27.
Matt. xvii. 27.
John vi. 5—7.
Acts iii. 6.
2 Cor. vi. 10.

e 1 Kings xvii. 12.
Jam. ii. 5.

f iii. 16. John ii. 7.

* Heb. scant not.
xiii. 18, 19. Ps.
lxxxii. 10. John
xvi. 24.
g 32, 33. 1 Kings
xvii. 19, 20.
Matt. vi. 6.
Mark v. 49.
Acts ix. 40.

h v. 11. 1 Kings
xvii. 15, 16. Luke
i. 45. Heb. xi.
7, 8.

i 43, 44. Matt.
ix. 29. xiii. 58.
xiv. 20. xv. 37.
Luke vi. 19.
2 Cor. vi. 12.

k xiii. 19. Josh. v.
12. 1 Kings xvii.
14. John vi. 12.

arise either from the donations of pious persons, or from their own manual labour. The people perhaps sometimes gave them the first-fruits, and some other of the oblations, which would have belonged to the priests and Levites, if they had not departed from among them. Many of them, however, seem to have been very scantily provided for: and this servant of God, who was of approved piety, not only left his family destitute, but involved in debt. Yet the creditor paid no more regard to the distress of the widow, than to the character of the deceased; nay, perhaps he was the more severe in his demands, because of his profession of godliness. As therefore the widow had no effects with which to discharge the debt, he proceeded to sell her sons for slaves in order to pay himself. (Marg. Ref.) Elisha had no wealth from which to assist the widow; yet it was proper, for the honour of religion, that the creditor should be satisfied: but the Lord directed him to a method of effectually answering this demand, and of supplying her future necessities.

V. 2. The woman had parted with every thing of value, to satisfy other demands, or to supply her urgent necessities. Probably this oil was a present from some friend of her deceased husband, out of the produce of his olive-yard, but it was utterly insufficient to satisfy the creditor.

V. 4. Shut, &c. This direction was given in order that she might avoid interruption and ostentation; and that in retirement, she with her sons might the more leisurely consider and adore the goodness of the Lord.

V. 6. The woman was ordered “to borrow empty vessels not a few;” and as her neighbours were willing to lend her, we may conclude, that she borrowed as many as she thought could be wanted: yet the oil stayed not till all the vessels were filled. Had her expectations been larger, the supply would have been more abundant.

7 Then she came, and told the man of God: and he said, Go, sell the oil, and ¹ pay thy * debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest.

8 ¶ And † it fell on a day, that Elisha passed to ^m Shunem, where ^{was} ⁿ a great woman: and ^o she ‡ constrained him to eat bread. And so it was, that, as oft as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread.

9 And ^p she said unto her husband, Behold now, I perceive that this is ^a an ^r holy man of God, which passeth by us continually.

10 ^s Let us make ^t a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall; and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick: and it shall be, when he cometh to us, that he shall turn in thither.

11 And it fell on a day that he came thither, and he turned into the chamber and lay there.

12 And he said to ^u Gehazi his servant, Call this Shunammite. And when he had called her, she stood before him.

13 And he said unto him, Say now unto her, Behold, ^x thou hast been careful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? wouldst thou be spoken for ^y to the king, or ^z to the captain of the host? And she answered, ^a I dwell ^b among mine own people.

14 And he said, What then is to be done for her? And Gehazi answered, ^c Verily she hath no child, and her husband is old.

15 And he said, Call her. And when he had called her, she stood in the door.

16 And he said, ^d About * this season, according to the time of life, thou shalt embrace a son. And she said, Nay, ^e my lord, thou man of God; ^f do not lie unto thine handmaid.

17 And ^g the woman conceived, and bare a son at that season that Elisha had said unto her, according to the time of life.

18 And when the child was grown, it fell on a day that he went out to his father ^h to the reapers.

19 And he said unto his father, ⁱ My head, my head. And he said to a lad, Carry him to his mother.

20 And when he had taken him, and brought him to ^k his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, ^l and then died.

21 And she went up, and laid him

Ps. xxxvii. 21.
Rom. xiii. 7, 8.
Phil. iv. 8.
1 Thes. ii. 9, 10.
iv. 6. 2 Thes.
iii. 7-12.

* Or, creditor.
† Heb. there was a day.

m Josh. xix. 18.
1 Sam. xxviii. 4.
2 Sam. xix. 32.
Job i. 3. xxxii.
9.

o Gen. xix. 3.
Prov. vii. 21.
Luke xiv. 23.
xxiv. 29. Acts
xvi. 15.

† Heb. laid hold on him.

p Prov. xxxi. 10.
11. 1 Pet. iii. 1.
q Deut. xxxiii. 1.
1 Kings xiii. 1.
xvii. 18. 24.
1 Tim. vi. 11.

r 1 Thes. ii. 10.
s Rom. xii. 13.
Heb. xlii. 3.
1 Pet. iv. 9, 10.

t 1 Kings xvii. 19.
u v. 26-27. viii.
4, 5.

x Matt. x. 40-42.
Luke ix. 3-5.
Rom. xvi. 2. 6.
Phil. iv. 18, 19.
1 Thes. v. 12, 13.
2 Tim. i. 16-18.

y iii. 15-18. viii.
3-6. Gen. xiv.
24. 2 Sam. xix.
32-38.

z vi. 22.
a 1 Tim. vi. 6-8
Heb. xlii. 5.

b viii. 1. Ruth i. 1
-4. Ps. xxxvii.
3.

c Gen. xv. 2, 3.
xvii. 17. xxv.
21. xxx. 1.
Judg. xlii. 2.
1 Sam. i. 2. 6.
Luke i. 7.

d Gen. xviii. 10.
14.
* Heb. set time.

e 9.
f 28. v. 10, 11.
Gen. xviii. 12-
15. 1 Kings xvii.
18. xviii. 9. Ps.
cxvi. 11. Luke
i. 18-20.

g Gen. xxi. 1.
1 Sam. i. 19, 20.
Ps. cxlii. 9.
Luke i. 24, 25.
Heb. xi. 11.

B. C. 889.

h Ruth ii. 4.

i Job xiv. 1, 2
Jer. iv. 19.

k Is. xlix. 15. l xvi.
15. Luke vii. 12.
1 Gen. xxii. 2.
xxxvii. 3. 35.
1 Kings xvii. 17.
Ez. xxiv. 16-
18. Luke ii. 35.
John xi. 3. 5.
14.

V. 7. The woman would not make use of the miraculous supply, till she had received the prophet's direction: and by his orders she first discharged her whole debt, and then used the remainder for the subsistence of herself and her children.

V. 8-10. Elisha seems to have generally resided at or near mount Carmel: but he went his circuits through the land, to visit the seminaries of the prophets, and to instruct the people, which was his stated employment, when not sent on some special service. At Shunem there lived a woman of wealth and piety, who invited him to come to her house, and with some difficulty prevailed. But when he became acquainted with her character, he never failed to call upon her when he journeyed that way. Her husband seems to have been a pious person, but not so zealous or active as she was; and as he confided his domestic affairs to her care, she is chiefly noticed. By his approbation she prepared for the prophet a retired lodging, perhaps perceiving that the hurry of a large family did not suit his contemplative mind. The plain simple manner in which the prophet's chamber was furnished, (though he was the patriarch, if I may so speak, of the whole church of Israel,) is worthy of our notice. There was nothing provided for ornament or indulgence, but merely for necessity, for study, and for devotion.

V. 13. Elisha had no doubt acquired considerable influence with Jehoram, or his captains, by the singular deliverance and victory obtained through him: and though he would ask nothing for himself, he was willing to show his gratitude in behalf of his kind hostess, by interposing in her behalf, if she had any petition to present. Perhaps Jehoram's soldiers or tax-gatherers might be oppressive and troublesome in the neighbourhood; and he thought she might desire to seek redress of this, or some other grievance. Or perhaps he made the proposal with an intention of manifesting her indifference to temporal interests. Accordingly she answered, that living safe and contented among her friends and relatives, and those who behaved kindly to her, she had no request to make. Having said this, she seems to have withdrawn, and Elisha talked the business over with Gehazi.

V. 14-17. Gehazi, as having more leisure to observe the affairs of the family than Elisha had, discovered what favour would be most acceptable; and he seems not to have doubted the prevalence of his master's prayers in this respect. In addressing his benefactress, Elisha used words, which, some think, implied not only the time, but the very day, on which she should embrace a son. (Marg. Ref.) Her answer reminded him of his character, and intimated that she could not suppose he would mock her with delusive expectations: especially as she had expressed no impatience under her trial, and had not so much as mentioned a desire of having children.

^m 10.1 Kings xvii. 13. on the bed of the man of God, and shut the door upon him, and went out.

22 And she called unto her husband, and said, Send me, I pray thee, one of the young men, and one of the asses, that ⁿ I may run to the man of God, and come again.

23 And he said, Wherefore wilt thou go to him to-day? It is neither ^o new moon nor sabbath. And she said, It shall be * well.

24 Then ^p she saddled an ass, and said to her servant, ^q Drive, and go forward; ^r slack not thy riding for me, except I bid thee.

25 So she went and came unto the man of God ^r to mount Carmel. And it came to pass, when the man of God saw her afar off, that he said to Gehazi his servant, Behold, yonder is that Shunammite :

26 ^s Run now, I pray thee, to meet her; and say unto her, ^t Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with the child? And she answered, It is ^u well.

27 And when she came to the man of God to the hill, she caught [†] him by the feet: but Gehazi came near to ^x thrust her away. And the man of God said, ^y Let her alone; for her soul is ^z vexed within her: and the Lord hath ^z hid it from me, and hath not told me.

28 Then she said, ^a Did I desire a son of my lord; did I not say, ^b Do not deceive me?

29 Then he said to Gehazi, ^c Gird up thy loins, and ^d take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, ^e salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and ^f lay my staff upon the face of the child.

30 And the mother of the child said, ^g As the LORD liveth, and ^h as thy soul liveth, ⁱ I will not leave thee. And he arose, and followed her.

31 And Gehazi passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but there was ^j neither voice nor ^k hearing: wherefore he went again to meet him, and told him, saying, The child is ^k not awaked.

32 And when Elisha was come into the house, behold, ^l the child was dead, and laid upon his bed.

33 He went in therefore, and ^m shut x Matt. xv. 23.

Mark x. 13.
John iv. 27.

y John xii. 7.
z Heb. bitter.
1 Sam. i. 10.
Job x. 1. Prov.
xiv. 10. xviii. 14.
z vi. 12. Gen.
xviii. 17. 2 Sam.
vii. 3. Am. iii.
7. John xv. 15.
a Gen. xxx. 1.
b 16.

c ix. 1. 1 Kings
xviii. 46.
d ii. 14. Ex. iv. 17.
Acts xix. 12.

e Luke x. 4.
f Ex. vii. 19. 20.
xiv. 16. Josh.
vi. 4. 5. Acts iii.
16. xix. 12.

g ii. 2. 4.
h Ex. xxxiii. 12—16. Ruth i. 16—
18.

i Is. xxvi. 18.
Matt. xvii. 16—
21. Mark ix. 19
—29. Acts xix.
13—17.
j Heb. attention.
1 Kings xviii. 26.
29.

k Dan. xii. 2.
John xi. 11. 43.
44. Eph. v. 14.
1 Kings xvii. 19.
Luke viii. 52.
53. John xi. 17.

m 4. Matt. vi. 6.

V. 21. On the bed, &c. This implied, that the woman had some expectations of her son's being restored to her; as he had at first been given her in so extraordinary a manner; (Heb. xi. 19;) yet, this hope was not sufficient to exclude her anguish of spirit under this unexpected and sudden affliction.

V. 23. It appears, that on the sabbaths, new moons, and other solemnities, the people were accustomed to resort to appointed places, to worship God, and to receive instruction from the prophets. It is not certain whether they assembled in synagogues or private houses; but probably it was done in most parts of the land of Israel. In Judah, pious people had the advantage of the temple-worship, and the instructions of the priests and Levites; they were generally countenanced and protected by their kings; and they thankfully availed themselves of these advantages. But in Israel, the ruling powers were against them: yet they served God according to their consciences, as their circumstances would admit. The afflicted mother would not needlessly distress her husband, by informing him of the death of the child; but merely said it would be well for her to go: and he had that confidence in her, that he required no further explanation.

V. 26. It is well. Some suppose that the woman only meant to put off Gehazi with this answer, as in part true, in respect of herself and her husband, though not the whole of the case: but it is probable that it was the language of her faith; as she was persuaded that the affliction was in mercy, and would terminate well, though her passions conflicted against her better judgment.

V. 27. It is plain, from this verse, that the prophets derived all their knowledge from immediate communication: and not from any power of discerning, habitually inherent in them.

V. 28. Doubtless the acute feelings of the Shunammite mingled some impatience in these expostulations; yet she meant them as arguments, to prevail with the prophet to come to her relief; being satisfied of the prevalency of his prayers. For as she had not impatiently desired children, she could not think that her son had been given her without solicitation, merely to become the occasion of her far deeper distress.

V. 29—31. It is difficult to determine what the prophet meant, by thus sending Gehazi. He had divided Jordan by using Elijah's mantle; and perhaps he thought his own staff in the hands of Gehazi would be as efficacious. Or perhaps he meant to make trial of the Shunammite's faith. Gehazi however was ordered to proceed as a man upon urgent business, who may not be delayed even by attention to ordinary civilities: and he seems to have observed his directions punctually, but in vain; whether through his own unbelief, or because the woman had no expectations from him, or because Elisha was faulty in attempting to perform the miracle by a substitute; or, as some think, because the prophet altered his purpose, at the importunity of the woman, and so did not pray for Gehazi's success.

n v. 11. vi. 17, 18.
20. 1 Kings xvii.
20. xviii. 25, 27.
Acts ix. 40.
Jam. v. 13-18.
o 1 Kings xvii. 21.
Acts xx. 10.

the door upon them twain, and ^a prayed unto the LORD.

34 And he went up, and ^o lay upon the child, and put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands, and he stretched himself upon the child, and the flesh of the child waxed warm.

35 Then he returned, and walked in the house ^{*} to and fro; and went up, and stretched himself upon him: and ^p the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes.

36 And he called Gehazi, and said, Call this Shunammite. So he called her: and when she was come in unto him, he said, ^a Take up thy son.

37 Then she went in, and ^r fell at his feet, and bowed herself to the ground, and took up her son, and went out.

38 ¶ And Elisha came again to ^s Gilgal; and there was ^t a dearth in the land, and the sons of the prophets were ^u sitting before him: and he said unto his servant, ^{*} Set on the great pot, and see the pottage for the sons of the prophets.

39 And one went out into the field to gather herbs, and found ^v a wild vine, and gathered thereof wild gourds his lap full, and came and shred them into the pot of pottage: for they knew them not.

40 So they poured out for the men to eat: and it came to pass, as they were eating of the pottage, that they cried out, and said, ^z O thou man of God, there is ^a death in the pot; and they could not eat thereof.

41 But he said, Then bring meal: and ^b he cast it into the pot; and he said, Pour out for the people, that they may eat: and ^c there was no [†] harm in the pot.

42 ¶ And there came a man from ^d Baal-shalisha, and brought the man of God ^e bread of the first-fruits, twenty loaves ^f of barley, and full ears of corn in [‡] the husk thereof: and he said, Give unto the people that they may eat.

43 And ^g his servitor said, ^h What! should I set this before an hundred men? He said again, Give the people, that they may eat: for thus saith the LORD, ⁱ They shall eat, and shall leave thereof.

44 So he set it before them, and they did eat, and left thereof, according to the word of the LORD.

* Heb. once hither and once thither.
p viii. 1. 5. xiii.
21. 1 Kings xvii.
22. Luke vii. 15.
viii. 55. John xi.
44. Acts ix. 40.

q 1 Kings xvii. 23.
Heb. xi. 35.
r 27. ii. 15. 1
Kings xviii. 24.
John v. 28, 29.
s ii. 1. 1 Sam. vii.
15, 17. Acts x.
38. xv. 36.

t viii. 1. Lev.
xxvii. 26. Deut.
xxviii. 22-24.
38-40. Jer. xiv.
1-6. Ez. xiv.
13.

u ii. 3. 1 Sam.
xix. 20. Prov.
viii. 34. Luke ii.
43. viii. 35. 38.
x. 39. Acts xxii.
3.

x Mark vi. 37.
viii. 2-6. Luke
xii. 30. John
xxi. 5. 9.
y Is. v. 4. Jer. ii.
21.

z Josh. xiv. 6.

a Ex. x. 17. xv.
23. Mark xvi.
18.

b ii. 21. v. 10. vi.
6. Ex. xv. 25.
John ix. 6.
1 Cor. i. 25.
c Acts xxviii. 5.
† Heb. evil thing.

d 1 Sam. ix. 4.

e 38. Ex. xxiii.
16. Deut. xii. 6.
xxvi. 2-18. 1
Chr. xi. 13, 14.
Prov. iii. 9, 10.
1 Cor. ix. 11.
Gal. vi. 6.
f Deut. viii. 8.
xxii. 14. John
vi. 9, 13.

g 12.
h Luke ix. 13.
John vi. 9.

i Matt. xiv. 20.
xv. 37. xvi. 8-10. Luke ix. 17.
John vi. 11-13.

V. 33-35. It is instructive to compare the manner in which Elijah and Elisha wrought their miracles, especially in raising the dead, with that of Jesus Christ. Every part of their conduct expressed a consciousness of inability in themselves, and an entire dependence on another, and earnest application to him for his interposition: but Jesus wrought by his own power; He spake, and it was done; "Young man, I say unto thee, arise;" Talitha cumi;" "Lazarus, come forth." On this occasion Elisha, by his great attention, showed his earnest desire of restoring the child to his afflicted mother: and the actions he employed were significant expressions of his expectation, that God by communicating life to the body, would enable each part to perform its proper office. The recovery of the child was gradual: life was communicated, and then one symptom of it and another appeared. As his disorder had been in his head, it has been observed that his sneezing might remove the cause of it, and restore him to health also.

V. 37. The joyful mother not only expressed her high respect for the prophet, but worshipped God also, giving him humble thanks for his great goodness to her: for the words may be rendered, She fell at his feet, and worshipped.

V. 39. Wild gourds. These are supposed to have been gathered from the plant called coloquintida, which is of a most nauseous bitter, and, if taken improperly, operates as a fatal poison. The sons of the prophets seem to have fared very hardly; and in this scarcity they were glad to gather what they could find, and thus ignorantly brought this noxious plant.

V. 40, 41. It is probable that these men were alarmed not only by the nauseous taste of their food, but by the effects produced on those who had begun to eat of it. Yet we may take occasion to remark the goodness of God, in giving us the senses of smelling and tasting, to be, as it were, centinels to keep watch, that nothing prejudicial may be received into the stomach. The meal cast into the pot, was only a token of the divine operation, in changing the taste and properties of the pottage, that his servants might not want a necessary refreshment.

V. 42-44. This would be a considerable present in a time of famine. 'It is probable, pious persons gave that portion to the prophets which was assigned by God to the priests, to whom they could not now carry their first-fruits, they being in the land of Judah. And I suppose the schools of the prophets might be partly maintained by this means.' (Bp. Patrick.) The loaves seem to have been small; perhaps each intended to be a meal for one man. The supply, however, was deemed greatly inadequate to the company; but the increase was small, compared with the miracles of this kind wrought by Jesus Christ. The sons of the prophets seem at this time to have become very numerous: but perhaps some of the people, who came from a distance to receive instruction, shared the repast. And this might be one reason of the CHAP. V.

Naaman, captain of the host of Syria, is leprous, 1. By the report of a captive maid, he comes to Samaria to be healed, 2—7. Elisha sends for him; he goes to him, and is ordered to wash seven times in Jordan, 8—10. He is angry; but, persuaded by his servants, he complies and is cleansed, 11—14. He acknowledges the true God; offers presents to Elisha, who refuses them; and is sent away in peace, resolving to worship the Lord alone, 15—19. Gehazi, by a lie, obtains presents from Naaman, and is punished by leprosy entailed on his descendants, 20—27.

NOW ^a Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was ^b a great man * with his master, and † honour-

^a Luke iv. 27.
^b iv 8. Ex. xi. 3.
* Heb. before.
† Or. gracious.
Heb. lifted up.
or, accepted in countenance.

servant's objection to setting out so little food before such a number of persons.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—7.

It is incumbent upon all Christians, and especially on ministers, to submit to Providence in respect of their temporal provision; and whilst they trust in God for their daily bread, not to tempt him by negligence or extravagance.—They should not contract debts (for things not absolutely necessary;) which they have not a reasonable prospect of discharging: for nothing tends more to bring reproach on the Gospel, and excite prejudice against it; nothing more distracts men's minds whilst they live, or more distresses their families when they are dead, than a burden of debt, without effects with which to pay it. Many hardships, therefore should be endured, and many pleasant things renounced, rather than such fatal consequences should be occasioned. Yet, in the mystery of Providence, this may sometimes unavoidably prove the case even of those who are eminent for piety; nor can the strictest prudence avert the calamity: besides, many good men are deficient in worldly sagacity, and their unsuspecting simplicity exposes them to the designs of the artful. But when this is rather a man's misfortune than his fault, he will have a testimony to his integrity in the consciences of all impartial persons; the Lord's people will be inclined to relieve him or his, according to their ability: and God himself will, in some way, interpose to clear up his character and to provide for his wants. He who hath all hearts in his hand, is able without a miracle, to procure as effectual a supply, as the increase of the widow's oil: and when the ability is given, the creditor, though unreasonable and severe, must first be satisfied, after which the remainder may be enjoyed with comfort. We should then be careful to perform our present duty, and to commit all our concerns to the Lord! we should study to adorn the Gospel in our life and conversation, and he will take care of us and ours: and if he bring us into distress, he will manifest his power and truth in our deliverance. He generally supplies what is requisite for honesty and charity to his people, by blessing them whilst they are occupying with a little. And the best directed benevolence of man consists in teaching and helping the poor to make the most of what they have by honest industry: but in every way we should show a readiness to relieve those in distress; and to give them our counsel and prayers, when we have nothing else. If our hearts were more prepared to receive spiritual blessings, and if we expected larger supplies, in retirement and fervent prayer, we should be more richly replenished: at length all the vessels of mercy shall be filled with the Lord's goodness; and the Redeemer's all-sufficiency will only be stayed from supplying the wants and saving the souls of sinners, when there are no more inclined to apply to him for salvation.

VOL. II.—No. 9.

V. 8—37.

The ministers of religion should not seek great things for themselves, or court the intimacy of the great, except to do good to them or by them: but they ought to be unwearied in their useful labours, like Him, “who went about doing good,” that all may “perceive that they are holy men of God,” simply dependent on him, walking with him, devoted to his service, and seeking his glory. Though backward to form connexions with their superiors, lest they should be taken off from their work and entangled in the world; they may yet find a few in that sphere, whose acquaintance may be deemed a privilege. But whilst they will not refuse their countenance and friendship, they feel, that “it is more blessed to give than to receive;” and they will endeavour to make such returns of gratitude as are in their power, and especially to seek the blessing of God upon their benefactors: nay, they will go further with man to ask favours in behalf of others, than for themselves. But it is a great happiness to know when we are well, and to be content among our friends and relatives, without coveting the splendour or pleasures of courts and public life; and when we have so learned submission to the will of God, as to express no desire for those objects, which others can perceive are wanting to our comfort. The Lord however sees the secret wish which is suppressed in obedience to his will; and will hear the prayers of his servants in behalf of their benefactors, by communicating unsolicited and unexpected mercies: nor must the promises and engagements of the men of God be deemed fallacious, like those of the men of the world. But, alas! all earthly comforts are sources of uneasiness: anxious fears counterbalance our pleasure from our beloved children when most hopeful; and their sudden sickness and death may turn all our joy into poignant anguish. On such occasions it is right to keep silence, or to say that all is well: nor must we think it hard to bring up children for the grave, or for the kingdom of heaven. We may not now expect a present resurrection of our deceased friends: but in many of our troubles we may find relief, in all of them peace and comfort, from c Prov. xxi. 31.

Q

Is. x. 5, 6.
xxvii. 5, 6. Dan.
ii. 37, 38. John
xix. 11. Rom
xv. 18.

* Or, victory.
d 27. Lev. xiii. 1
—8. Num. xii.
12. 2 Cor. xii. 7.
e vi. 23. Judg. ix.
34. 1 Sam. xiii.
17, 18.

f Ps. cxliii. 2.
† Heb. was before.
g Num. xi. 29.
Acts xxvi. 29.
1 Cor. iv. 8.
† Heb. before.
h Matt. viii. 2, 3.
xi. 8. Luke xvii.
14.
† Heb. gather in.

able; because * by him the LORD has given * deliverance unto Syria: he was also a mighty man of valour; but he was d a leper.

2 And the Syrians had gone out * by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and † she † waited on Naaman's wife.

3 And she said unto her mistress, † Would God my lord were ‡ with the prophet that is in Samaria! for ^h he would § recover him of his leprosy.

4 And one went in and told his lord, saying, ⁱ Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

5 And the king of Syria said, Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed, ^k and took || with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ^l ten changes of raiment.

6 And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying, Now when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have i vii. 9—11. Mark

v. 19. xvi. 9, 10.
John iv. 28, 29.
1 Cor. i. 26, 27.

k viii. 8, 9 Num.
xxii. 7. 1 Sam.
ix. 8. 1 Kings
xiii. 7. xiv. 3
|| Heb. in his hand.
l Gen. xlv. 22.
Judg. xiv. 12:
Jam. v. 2, 3.

the counsel and prayers of the Lord's faithful servants, who can put us in a way to turn all our losses into the richest gain. Their company, the ordinances of God, and the throne of grace, should be doubly welcome to the afflicted and bereaved. We should treat those with great tenderness whose souls are vexed in them; making allowance for improprieties in their conduct, and impatience in their expressions, and suffer them to vent their griefs, as well as be ready to attempt their consolation: and in general we should not avoid trouble, or affect state, by doing those things by others which we are able to do ourselves.—When we have used proper means with diligence and earnestness, we may expect the efficacious blessing of God, both in things temporal and spiritual; but not otherwise. The Gospel of salvation will no more effect the sinner's conversion, than the condemning law, without the presence of the Lord: and if the minister be a hypocrite, and destitute of faith, little good can be expected from the most exact external observances; the sinners are not awaked will generally be the doleful report. Not so, when the use of appointed means is accompanied by the spirit of fervent believing prayer, and persevering expectation from the Lord: then the change, which takes place in the conduct of many, shall evince that "they are quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins." As the choicest comforts occasion the severest trials, so our heaviest afflictions make way for the sweetest consolations: and notwithstanding appearances, the Lord will not tantalize his true people, by giving them blessings in order to take them away from them: but it is a comfort under temporal losses to reflect, that we did not inordinately desire the object of which we are bereft. It is happy and comely when harmony prevails in domestic life; when the husband's authority is tempered with affection and unsuspecting confidence; when the wife answers that confidence with deference and submission, as well as fidelity; and when each party consults the other's inclinations, and both unite in attendance on God's ordinances, and supporting his cause.

V. 38—44.

Whilst the servants of the Lord are contented with mean accommodations, and put their trust in him, he can make their coarsest fare pleasant to them. Let them but observe his directions, and he will not only supply their wants, but extract the death, the evil, from such things as most alarm them. When he pleases, the scantiest provisions shall suffice; and whilst he communicates to us, we should in faith impart a portion to others: and thus all will be clean and salutary to us. But to them, who feed themselves without fear, their table becomes a snare, and perdition entwines around their sensual enjoyments. Aware of this danger, let us learn to use temporal good things with caution and moderation, in dependence on him, by whose blessing alone our food is made wholesome and nutritional.

NOTES.

CHAP. V. V. 1. Though the Syrians were idolaters, and often oppressors of Israel, yet the deliverance, of which Naaman had been the instrument, is here ascribed to the operation and goodness of the Lord. Such is the rational language of the sacred writers: whilst the arguments and phraseology of those in general, who compose what is justly called profane history, too evidently show that God is not in all their thoughts. The leprosy was a loathsome and distressing distemper: and though Naaman was not under the restrictions prescribed for Israel; yet doubtless, he found it a great deduction from the satisfaction he might otherwise have found in his high preferments and honours.

V. 3, 4. This young damsel, though a captive, and a slave to Naaman, having, it is likely, been treated with kindness, entertained a cordial affection for her master, and earnestly desired the removal of his affliction. She had heard of the piety and miracles of Elisha; and though he had not cleansed any lepers, she was persuaded he would be inclined to show such kindness to a heathen as to effect his cure. Nor did Naaman despise the information as coming from such a quarter. He had doubtless tried to the utmost what the physicians could do for him, but in vain; and his earnest desire of a cure prevented him from disdaining an application to the prophet of Israel.

V. 5. Ben-hadad king of Syria, having heard, probably from Naaman himself, that there was such a prophet in Israel, seems to have supposed that he must be at the command of the king of Israel, and perform his miracles for his pleasure and advantage: and if the Israelitish maid knew so much of the prophet, the king must have him continually in his presence, or in his thoughts. He therefore concluded, that he had only to ask it as a favour of Jehoram, that Naaman might be cured, and it would be granted of course; and Naaman would prefer going in state to the king of Israel, to becoming a supplicant to a poor prophet: yet it seems he intended liberally to reward him for curing him.

therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy.

7 And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that he rent his clothes, and said ^m Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? wherefore consider, I pray you, and ⁿ see how he seeketh a quarrel against me.

8 And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had ^o rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come now to me, and he ^p shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9 So Naaman ^q came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha.

10 And Elisha ^r sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and ^s wash in Jordan ^t seven times, and ^u thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

11 But Naaman ^x was wroth, and ^y went away, and said, ^z Behold, ^{*} I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the LORD his God, and [†] strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper.

12 Are not [‡] Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? so he turned and went away in a rage.

13 And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, ^{*} My father, ^b if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldst thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean?

14 Then ^c went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, ^d according to the saying of the man of God: and ^e his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, ^f and he was clean.

directions which he sent him by a messenger. But Naaman thought that the prophet treated him with rudeness and neglect. He had also formed an idea in his mind of the manner in which the cure would be performed, and this message did not answer his expectations. He wanted to be cured as a man of consequence, who was entitled to regard; and not as a poor pensioner, who is glad of his alms, by whomsoever sent. Abana and Pharpar were larger rivers than Jordan, and Naaman thought more likely to effect a cure: but the rivers of Damascus had not been distinguished by miracles, as Jordan had been; and Naaman in his proud anger forgot that JEHOVAH was to cleanse his leprosy by means of his own appointment, and not in a way of man's devising.

V. 13, 14. This Syrian was favoured with very prudent, respectful, and affectionate servants; and probably he was in general a kind and considerate master, who could bear to be reasoned with by his inferiors. They had, it may be supposed, heard a great deal from the Israelitish maid of Elisha's miracles; and were very desirous that Naaman should make the trial. Being more calm and impartial than he, they perceived that the prophet's directions were simple, easy, and safe. Had the prophet prescribed nauseous medicines, a tedious regimen, or some painful operations, or even some burdensome religious observances; or had he demanded a large sum of money as the price of the cure, they knew that Naaman would have complied without demur: how much more then ought he in reason to go to Jordan, and wash seven times in its waters? This remonstrance was a word spoken in due season, and had its full effect: and his cure immediately followed on his obedience; so that the decayed and loathsome parts of his skin and flesh, became perfectly sound, and assumed the healthful appearance of the flesh of a child.

in Gen xxx. 2
Deut xxxiii. 39.
1 Sam ii. 6.
Dan ii. 11. Hos.
vi. 1.

n 1 Kings xx. 7.

o xix. 1. 2 Sam.
iii. 31.

p 15. 1. 6. 1 Kings
xvii. 24. xviii.
36. Hos. xii. 13.
q iii. 12. vi. 32.
Is lx. 14. Acts
xvi. 29, 30. 37
—39.

r Matt xv. 23.
26. John iv. 48.
s ii. 21. iii. 16.
iv. 41. xiii. 21.
John ix. 7. 1
Cor. vi. 11.

t Lev. xiv. 7. 16.
51. xvi. 14. 19.
Num. xix. 4.
19. Josh. vi. 4.
13—16.
u 14. Ex. iv. 6, 7.

x Matt. viii. 8.
xv. 27. 1 Cor.
xiv. 11.
y Prov. i. 33.
Heb. xii. 25.
z Prov. iii. 7. Is.
lv. 8. 9. 1 Cor.
ii. 14—16. 1.
18—20.
† Heb. I said, or,
I said with myself:
he will surely come out,
&c.
‡ Heb. move up and down.
† Or, Amana.

a ii. 12. vi. 21.
xiii. 14. Gen.
xli. 43. Mal. i.
6. Matt. xxiii.
9. 1 Cor. iv. 15.
b 3. 1 Sam. xxv.
14—17. 1 Kings
xx. 24. 31. Job
xxxii. 8. 9. Jer.
xxxviii. 7—10.
c Job xxxi. 13.
Prov. ix. 9.
xxv. 12, 13.
d 2 Chr. xx. 20.
John ii. 5. Heb.
xi. 7, 8.
e 10. Job xxxiii.
25.
f Luke iv. 27. v.
13. Eph. v. 26,
27. Tit. ii. 14.
iii. 3—7.

V. 7. Jehoram construed the ignorant language of the king of Syria into blasphemy against God, as well as malice against himself. Though an idolater, and a very wicked man, he would be thought much concerned about the honour of God, and full of abhorrence of Ben-hadad's supposed crime, and therefore he rent his clothes. He had either for the moment forgot the miracles wrought by Elisha; or he did not wish to see any more of them; or he thought this beyond his power: for it seems it was deemed as impracticable, by human skill, to cleanse a rooted leprosy, as to raise the dead. By this concession, the miracle wrought by Elijah became the more illustrious. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 8. A prophet in Israel. Naaman came into the land of Israel, expecting relief from a prophet of the God of Israel: and Elisha would by no means have him go back disappointed, lest he should conclude that JEHOVAH was like the gods of the nations, and as unable to do good or evil as they were. On the contrary he would have it known, that God had a prophet in Israel, who could perform such cures, as none of the heathen prophets, or priests, or physicians could effect; and which were far beyond all the power of the mightiest monarchs.

V. 9—12. The prophet knew how to stoop to the meanest service or person, when it was proper: but Naaman seemed to have come to him with great ideas of his own importance, as if he conferred a favour or honour upon him. Elisha was therefore directed to assume that superiority which really belonged to him; and to show Naaman that he was far from being elated by the presence of so great a man; and that he regarded not his rank, desired not his friendship, and would not accept his presents; though, for the honour of the God of Israel, his leprosy should be cleansed, if he would observe the simple

g Luke xvii. 15
—18.

h Josh ii 9—11
Is xliii. 10, 11.
xlv. 6. 8. xiv
6. Jer. x. 16.
11. Dan ii. 47.
iii. 29. iv. 34.
25. iv. 26, 27.
Rom. x. 10.

i Gen xxxiii. 11.
1 Sam. xxv. 27.
2 Cor ix. 5.
k iii. 14. 1 Kings
xvii. 1. xviii. 15.
125. Gen. xiv.
22, 23. 1 Kings
xiii. 8. Dan. v.
17. Matt. x. 8.

l Luke xlii. 18—
20. 1 Cor. vi.
12. x. 32, 33.
2 Cor xi. 9, 10
xii. 14.
m 12. Rom. xiv.
1.

n Acts xxvi. 18.
1 Thes. i. 9.
1 Pet. iv. 3.

o vii. 2. 17.

15 And ^e he returned to the man of God, he and all his company, and came and stood before him: and he said, Behold, now I know that ^h there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel; now therefore, I pray thee, take ⁱ a blessing of thy servant.

16 But he said, ^k As the LORD liveth, before whom I stand, ^l I will receive none. And he urged him to take it; but he refused.

17 And Naaman said, Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules burden ^m of earth? for thy servant ⁿ will henceforth offer neither burnt-offering, nor sacrifice, unto other gods, but unto the LORD.

18 In this thing the LORD pardon thy servant, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he ^o leaneth on my hand, and I bow myself in the house of Rimmon; when I bow down myself in the house of Rimmon, the LORD pardon thy servant in this thing.

19 And ^p he said unto him, ^q Go in peace. So he departed from him a ^r little way.

20 ¶ But ^s Gehazi the servant of Elisha the man of God said, Behold, ^t my master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, in not receiving at his hands that which he brought: but, ^u as the LORD liveth, I will run after him, ^v and take somewhat of him.

21 So Gehazi followed after Naaman: and when Naaman saw him running after him, ^w he lighted down from the chariot to meet him, and said, ^x Is all well?

22 And he said, All is well. ^y My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, even now there be come to me from mount Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets: give them, ^z I pray thee, a ^a talent of silver and two changes of garments.

23 And Naaman said, Be content, take two talents. And he urged him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and he hoped the Lord would pardon him in it: and some learned men have thought that his conduct in this respect was justifiable; because he was not an Israelite, and so not under the law of Moses. It is, however, evident that the prohibition of every kind and degree of idolatry, belongs to the moral law, which is universally obligatory. Our strict rule of duty certainly forbids such a conduct; the gospel itself grants no dispensations; and in similar circumstances a Christian would be absolutely required to renounce every advantage and preferment, that could not be retained without such communion with idolaters, and countenance of idolatry; nay, to endure the utmost effects of the persecutor's rage, rather than make such compliances, however palliated by salvos and mental reserves. The prophet however seems to have perceived, that Naaman was convinced that even bowing with the king in the house of Rimmon was not right, and he left those convictions gradually to produce their effects: if the result of regenerating grace, they would in time bring him to make a more public protest against idolatry, when his faith, judgment, and experience, were matured. But the light must be imparted to a man emerging out of heathen darkness, and circumstanced as he was, in that measure which he was able to bear; and when he had digested, and reduced to practice his present knowledge, he would be prepared for further instructions. Moreover, as the whole work was from God in so extraordinary a manner, it is probable, that the prophet declined interposing his private judgment, when he had no immediate directions from heaven respecting it.—He seems also to have been silent concerning the earth which Naaman requested; and for the same reasons.

V. 15, 16. Naaman, having received the cure, returned to Elisha, to express his gratitude, and to give glory to God: and now the prophet went out to confer with him. His confession, was very expressive and satisfactory. He not only allowed that JEHOVAH was the true God; but also, that there was “no God in all the earth, but in Israel;” the gods of all other nations being helpless worthless idols. What an awful representation doth this give us of the state of the Gentiles, “without hope, and without God in the world!”—Naaman therefore urged the prophet to take a present, or blessing, of him, as a token of his gratitude; but he most decidedly refused. He did not scruple to receive presents from pious Israelites, and he seems to have accepted Ben-hadad's gift: (viii. 8, 9:) but the case of Naaman was singular. It was of great importance what impressions he at that crisis should receive, concerning the God of Israel and his worshippers. Elisha had sent for him, to confer a benefit on him; and had he taken the present, Naaman might have imbibed prejudices: but perfect disinterestedness would have a contrary tendency.

V. 17—19. Naaman in his first impressions conceived, that there must be a peculiar sanctity in the earth of Israel, having received such benefit from washing in one of its rivers: he therefore asked permission to carry home with him enough to build an altar, on which to offer sacrifices to JEHOVAH, whom alone he was determined in future to worship. Yet, as holding a high station in Ben-hadad's court, it would be expected that he should accompany him to the temple of Rimmon: and whilst the king, leaning on his arm, should bow before his idol, Naaman could not avoid bowing also. But as he meant to do this, not as an act of worship to Rimmon, but of service to his prince; laid them upon two of his servants, and they bare them before him.

* Or, secret place.

b Josh vii. 11, 12
21. 1 Kings xxi
26. Hab. ii. 6.
Zech. v. 3, 4.
c Prov. xxx. 20.
Ez. xxxiii. 31.
Matt. xxvi. 15,
26. 21 — 25.
John xiii. 2. 26
— 30.

24 And when he came to the * tower, he took them from their hand, and bestowed them in the house; and he let the men go, and they departed.

25 But he went in, and ^c stood before his master: and Elisha said unto him, Whence comest thou, Gehazi? And he said, Thy servant went † no whither.

26 And he said unto him, ^d Went not mine heart with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? ^e Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and olive-yards, and vineyards, and sheep, and † Heb. not hither or thither. 22.

Acts v. 3, 4.
d vi. 12. Ps lxxiii.
11. Prov. xii. 19.
Acts v. 9. 1 Cor. v. 3. Col. ii. 5.
e 16. Gen. xiv. 23.
Ec. iii. 2. Jer. xx. 10. Matt. x. 8. Acts xk. 33.
35 1 Cor. ix. 12.
18. 2 Cor. xi. 8—12. 2 Thes. iii. 8, 9.

V. 20—25. It is probable that Gehazi was one of the sons of the prophets, and had long enjoyed the society of Elisha; yet he remained an avaricious and ungodly man, much worse than the servants of Naaman the Syrian! He deemed his master very foolish, to miss so fair an opportunity of enriching himself, and thought that Elisha had a right to Naaman's money in return for the cure. He was wiser in his own conceit than to be so scrupulous, and with a solemn oath, (even when speaking to himself, which in this case was peculiarly profane,) declared that he would take somewhat of him. To accomplish his covetous purposes, he soon devised a plausible lie: and Naaman's heart was so affected by the benefit he had obtained; that he treated even the prophet's servant with the greatest respect, and pressed his acceptance of a larger sum than he petitioned for. In this manner Gehazi appropriated several hundred pounds sterling in silver, which he secreted in some convenient place; and he then returned to Elisha with another direct falsehood, as if he could have deceived God, as well as his prophet. But his whole conduct was wicked in a most aggravated degree: he did what he could to disgrace the God of Israel, and to misrepresent his religion: he behaved in a manner most injurious to his master's character: and he not only robbed Naaman of his property, but he took the most effectual method imaginable to prejudice him against the prophet, and to induce him to revert to idolatry.

V. 26, 27. The Spirit of God showed Elisha what had passed, as plainly as if he had witnessed the whole transaction. Considering the distressed state of Israel by reason of the famine, and the low estate of religion, other interests and employments called for Gehazi's attention. The prophets of JEHOVAH were required to show themselves men of another spirit than the false prophets, by a disinterested indifference about the world; and the state of Naaman's mind, and the peculiarity of his case, rendered this action the most ill-timed that could be. We may suppose, that Gehazi was scheming how to lay out his money in purchasing an olive-yard, or vineyard, that he might exchange the service of Elisha for a more profitable occupation. And so he might: but it would be under the stigma and misery of a rooted leprosy, entailed upon his posterity in perpetuity, or as long as one of them remained. This was the proper emblem of the polluted state of his soul.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—7.

In whatever manner or degree a man is honoured and preferred by the princes of the earth, or made an instrument in Providence of public benefit to others; he can obtain no exemption from trouble. Some bodily infirmity, or distressing disease, or domestic affliction, will counterbalance his advantages, and embitter his enjoyments: nor can we remedy this vanity and vexation, except by humble submission to the will of God, and believing confidence in his truth, wisdom, and mercy; and by the enjoyment of that peace and consolation, which are communicated by the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ. The Lord overrules, to his own glory, those events which originate in man's wickedness: the young, or the poor, are often better acquainted with his servants and service, than the rich or aged: but as he works by mean instruments, so wise men will avail themselves of a useful hint from the lowest of their inferiors. Kind behaviour to domestics generally ensures a valuable recompense: and no injuries or hardships should indispose us to seek the welfare, or to compassionate the sorrows, of those among whom our lot is cast; especially when kind to us. We carry our knowledge of God and of true religion with us wherever we are removed; none can deprive us of these true riches and this blessed liberty; and the meanest believer will find opportunities of glorifying God, and being useful to man, if he act consistently with his character and profession: for such a conduct will attract regard from those who are ignorant or careless about religion, and dispose them to attend to his words, particularly in times of affliction.—They who know the Lord's servants, will not doubt their readiness to relieve the distressed; and such as know the Lord, are sensible, that in answer to their prayer of faith, he frequently removes calamities, and imparts temporal benefits to them that serve him not. In these concerns men have keen sensibility, and readily make trial of any probable means of relief, though expensive, troublesome, and even uncertain: it would be well if they were equally sensible of the power of God's wrath to which they are exposed, the burden of guilt with which they are chargeable, and the loathsome leprosy of unmortified sin with which they are polluted. The great ones of the earth are apt to suppose, that wealth, authority, and influence can command every thing: but when they seek those blessings, which the Lord communicates in answer to the prayers of his faithful servants, they will find that nothing can be done in this way; but that they must stoop to sue in forma pauperis, and come as beggars for a free gift, and not as lords to demand, or to purchase. For the ministers of God must obey man only so far as the will of their great Master allows them: and in his work they must not be directed or dictated to by any human authority. The ignorance of many in spiritual things is manifested by every part of their conversation; yet we should not impute that f Josh. vii 25. Mal.

ii 3, 4, 8, 9. Matt.
xxvii 3—5. Acts
v. 5 10. viii. 20. 1
Tim. vi. 10.
2 Pet. ii 3.

oxen, and men-servants, and maid-servants?

27 ^c The leprosy therefore of Naaman shall cleave unto thee, and ^e unto thy seed for ever. And he went out from his presence a ^h leper as white as snow.

g 1 Sam. ii. 30—
36. 2 Sam. iii.
29. Prov. xxviii.
22.
h xv. 5. Ex. iv.
6 Num. xii. 10.

to a blasphemous or malevolent intention, which they utter merely because they know no better. No judges are more severe towards their fellow sinners, than they who themselves have no fear of God before their eyes: and they are especially quick sighted to the atrocious conduct of those whom they suspect of intentions to injure them, and vehement in their declamations against the crimes, of which themselves are not known to be guilty.

V. 8—19.

The minister of God should seize every opportunity to evince the truth and importance of his religious principles, and to display the glorious perfections of the Lord: yet he should not appear pleased with the respect shown him by great men; and ought to be cautious lest, by his language and behaviour, he feed that pride and vanity which need to be mortified. Rather he should aim to convince them of his earnest desire to do them good; and of his indifference about those external distinctions, which others envy, covet, or are delighted with. All God's commands are suited to make trial of men's spirits; especially those which direct a sinner how to apply for the blessings of salvation. These accord not with the self-importance and self-sufficiency, the carnal prejudices and pompous ideas, of an unhumiliated heart: nor can they be cordially attended to, except by the poor in spirit, or without that implicit faith which produces as implicit obedience. The way of a sinner's acceptance and sanctification, by the blood and Spirit of Christ, through faith alone in his name, does not sufficiently gratify or employ self, to please the sinner's heart: the method seems to many futile and inadequate: human wisdom and philosophy, (like Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus,) can furnish more rational and eligible methods of cleansing: nay, the operose and austere devices of superstition appear to numbers preferable to "the fountain opened for sin, and for uncleanness;" and the very proposal shocks and affronts all the sons of pride and self-sufficiency. But the sinner, who is deeply burdened with guilt, and longs to escape the wrath to come and the service of Satan, would do great things, if required, for that purpose. If pilgrimages, mortifications, and austerities could avail, they would not be evaded: to torture his body, to part with his wealth, and lay down his life, would be deemed a low price at which to purchase forgiveness of sins and eternal salvation; but none of these things, in this use of them, can be accepted. As, however, the fountain is opened, and the access free, he will "much more wash, and be clean," as the Lord hath directed. Salvation is from the love and power of God, in the way of his appointing and revealing, for his own glory, and in the use of those means he hath instituted. In this manner the believer applies for it, not neglecting, altering, or adding to the Saviour's directions; and by repeated washings he is made clean from the guilt and pollution of sin: whilst others, neglecting this great salvation, through proud contempt, sensual indulgence, covetousness, or sloth, live and die in their leprosy; and must for ever be excluded from the presence of a holy God. But when sinners are under serious impressions, and as yet prejudiced against the Lord's method of salvation, they should be reasoned with in meekness and love, and persuaded to make trial of it in simplicity. For he will not cast out the humble supplicant, however enormous his former crimes have been, or however weak and wavering his present application may be. If masters were courteous and condescending, and servants could give salutary advice with modesty and respect, many evils might be prevented, and even the effects of hasty sallies of passion counteracted. When temporal troubles and deliverances bring us acquainted with God, and lead us to his service, they are indeed precious blessings; and gratitude to the Lord will dictate liberality to the instruments of his mercies. But different circumstances will render it necessary to adopt different measures. The man of God will never allow himself to covet any one's gold, or silver, or apparel; but be content with daily bread, and learn to trust for to-morrow. Yet sometimes he will understand that the proffered kindness is the Lord's method of supplying his necessities, that it will be fruit abounding to the benefit of the donor, and that there is a propriety in accepting it as a token of love; but at others, the gift will be looked on as a temptation; and he will perceive that the acceptance of it would degrade his character and office, dishonour God, and tend exceedingly to the injury of the giver. In this case he will refuse it with determination. This is particularly to be adverted to in the case of the great, when they first turn their thoughts to religious subjects. From their knowledge of the world, they are apt to suspect all their inferiors of mercenary designs, and naturally suppose that ministers are but carrying on a trade like other men; while the conduct of too many so called confirms them in this sentiment. There is but one way of counteracting this prejudice; and that is by evidencing a disinterested spirit, and not asking any thing, and in some cases refusing to accept favours from them, until they have attained a further establishment in the faith; and by always persevering in an indifference to every personal interest. It is not advisable violently to oppose every mistake which unites with men's first convictions, lest we should damp that earnestness which promises good fruit, when matured by experience, and duly regulated by the gradual teaching of the divine Spirit: and we should always fear losing our advantages by prematurely grasping at too much. We cannot bring men forward faster, than the Lord prepares them to receive instruction: and where he works, he will in time lead them to renounce every secular interest, and bear the cross rather than sin against him.

V. 20—27.

No outward religious advantages ensure internal renewing; and better servants are frequently found in ungodly families, than in the houses of the most eminent servants of God. 'Tis true, that the latter must, for the time,

CHAP. VI.

The sons of the prophets prepare to enlarge their dwelling; and Elisha causeth iron to swim, 1—7. He discloses to Jehoram the counsels of the Syrian king, who sends troops to apprehend him, 8—14. Elisha's servant is terrified; but is encouraged by seeing horses and chariots of fire round his master, 15—17. The Syrians, at Elisha's prayer, are blinded; and he conducts them into Samaria, where they regain their sight, and are entertained, and dismissed in peace, 18—23. Ben-hadad besieges Samaria, and reduces it to extreme famine, 24, 25. Women contest about eating their own children, and appeal to the king, who in a rage resolves to kill Elisha, 26—33.

a. v. 1.

b. iv. 38.

c. Is. xlix. 19, 20
liv 2, 3.d. John xxi. 3.
Acts xviii. 3
xx. 34, 35. 1
Cor. ix. 6. 1
Thes. ii. 9. 2
Thes. iii. 8. 1
Tim. vi. 6

AND^a the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, ^b the place where we dwell with thee is ^c too strait for us.

2 Let us go, we pray thee, unto Jordan, and take thence every man a beam, and ^d let us make us a place there, wear the hypocrite's cloak; yet under it, the covetous man, the thief, the liar, the traitor may lurk concealed; and a fair occasion will betray the secret, and his profession end in awful apostacy. Such worldly professors deem themselves wiser in their selfishness, than those who shake their hands from unlawful gain: they have the name of God in their mouths, but they have not his glory at heart; nor do they care how many stumble and perish through their wickedness: they make their advantage of those who are under serious impressions: they can never want a plausible story, when Satan is their prompter; and they care not what they say for their filthy lucre's sake. Thus they add sin to sin with rapid progress, deceiving many, but known to the heart-searching God; and they are often detected, exposed, and solemnly warned by his servants. In this world they are sometimes branded with infamy, and made awful examples, to wipe off the disgrace they have brought upon the Gospel: and everlasting misery and contempt will be their portion if they die impenitent. Alas! what a price do men pay for outward advantages, when they are connected with such consequences to themselves, and such misery entailed upon their posterity! Let us beware of hypocrisy and covetousness, and dread above all things the curse of spiritual leprosy, remaining upon our souls, living and dying, and for ever!

NOTES.

CHAP. VI. V. 1—7. Probably this event occurred either at Gilgal, or Jericho, which were near Jordan.—

where we may dwell. And he answered, Go ye.

3 And one said, Be content, I pray thee, and ^e go with thy servants. And ^e he answered, I will go. ^e Judg. iv. 8 4 So he went with them. And when they came to Jordan, they cut down wood.

5 But as one was felling a beam, the ^{} axe-head fell into the water: and he ^{} Heb. iron. cried, and said, ^f Alas, master! ^g for it was borrowed. ^f 15. iii. 10. Rev. xviii. 10. 16. 19. g. iv. 7. Ex. xxii. 14, 15. Ps. xxxvii. 21.

6 And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he showed him the place. And he ^h cut down a stick, and cast it in thither, and the iron did swim. ^h ii. 21. iv. 41. Ex. xv. 25. Mark vii. 33, 34. viii. 23—25. John ix. 6, 7. i. iv. 36.

7 Therefore said he, ⁱ Take it up to thee. And he put out his hand, and took it.

8 ¶ Then the king of Syria warred against Israel, and ^k took counsel with his servants, saying, In such and such a place shall be my ^l camp. ^k Job v. 12, 13. Prov. xxi. 30. Is. vii. 5—7. viii. 10. ^l Or, encamping.

9 And the man of God sent unto the king of Israel, saying, ^m Beware that thou pass not such a place; for ⁿ thither the Syrians are come down. ^m iiii. 17—19. i. Kings xx. 13. 28. m. iv. 27. Am. iii. 7. Rev. i. 1. n. v. 14. Ex. ix. 20, 21. i. Kings xx. 15.

10 And the king of Israel ^o sent to the Under Elisha's superintendency the schools of the prophets flourished, and doubtless true religion revived and spread in proportion: but it is not certain, whether the building intended was a place of assembly, where the prophets met for religious exercises with other pious Israelites; or whether they lived together, with their families, as a collected body separate from others. When, however, they were straitened for room, they did not depend on others to prepare them a more convenient or spacious building: but they proposed to fill up the intervals of their time in manual labour, to prepare one for themselves: and probably they were accustomed to work at other times, that the people might not be burdened. But they would not go to hew timber, for this purpose, without Elisha's permission: and they desired his company, to sanction their attempt, and to solace their toil by his edifying conversation; to which he willingly consented. Perhaps they were not very skilful about their work, and some of their tools were borrowed; so that an axe-head falling into the water proved a cause of anxiety to one of them; as it seems he was not well able to make it good, and the owner could not afford to lose it. In so small a matter the Lord was pleased to work a miracle, to compose the young prophet's mind, to put honour upon Elisha, to enable the company to proceed with their work, and to encourage their faith and hope! The stick cast into the water was the token of the Lord's operation; and it is useless to inquire in what way he made the iron to swim.

place, which the man of God told him, and warned him of, and ^o saved himself there, not once nor twice.

11 ¶ Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was ^p sore troubled for this thing; and he called his servants, and said unto them, ^q Will ye not shew me which of us is for the king of Israel?

12 And one of his servants said, * None, my lord, O king: but ^r Elisha the prophet, that is in Israel, ^s telleth the king of Israel the words that thou speakest in ^t thy bed-chamber.

13 And he said, Go and ^u spy where he is, that I may send and fetch him. And it was told him, saying, Behold, he is in ^x Dothan.

14 Therefore sent he thither ^y horses, and chariots, and a [†] great host: and they came by night, and compassed the city about.

15 And when the [‡] servant of the man of God was risen early, and gone forth, behold an host compassed the city, both with horses and chariots: and his servant said unto him, ^z Alas, my master! how shall we do?

16 And he answered, ^a Fear not, for they that be with us are more than they that be with them.

17 And Elisha ^c prayed, and said, LORD, I pray thee, ^d open his eyes, that he may see. And the LORD opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw: and, behold, the mountain was ^e full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha.

18 And when they came down to him, Elisha prayed unto the LORD, and said, Smite this people, I pray thee, ^f with blindness. And he smote them with blindness, according to the word of Elisha.

19 And Elisha said unto them, This is not the way, neither is this the city; ^g follow me, and ^h I will bring you to the man whom ye seek. But he led them to Samaria.

20 And it came to pass, when they were come into Samaria, that Elisha said, LORD, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the LORD ⁱ opened their eyes, and they saw; and ^j behold, they were in the midst of Samaria.

21 And the king of Israel said unto Elisha, when he saw them, ^k My father, ^l shall I smite them? shall I smite them?

22 And he answered, Thou shalt not smite them: ^m wouldest thou smite those whom thou hast taken captive with thy sword, and with thy bow? ⁿ Set

^c Ps. xci. 15. Jam. v. 16-18.
^d 18. 20. Acts iv. 29, 30. Eph. i. 18.

^e 11. Ps. xxxv. 7-11. 17. xci. 11. Zech. i. 9. vi. 1-7. Matt. xxvi. 53. Heb. i. 14.

^f Gen. xix. 11. Job v. 14. Mark viii. 24. John ix. 39. Acts xiii. 11.

^g Heb. come ye after me.
^h 2 Sam. xvi. 16. Luke xxiv. 16.

ⁱ Luke xxiv. 37.
^j Judg. xx. 40-42. Luke xvi. 23.

^k 12. v. 13. viii. 9. xiii. 14.
^l 1 Sam. xxiv. 2. 19. xxvi. 8.

^m Deut. xx. 11-16. 2 Chr. xxviii. 8-13.
ⁿ Prov. xxv. 21. Matt. v. 44. Rom. xii. 20, 21.

V. 11, 12. The Israelites having repeatedly avoided the ambushments which the Syrians had formed against them, Ben-hadad suspected that he had a traitor in his privy-council, though he knew not on whom to fix the charge: and this greatly perplexed his mind. The Syrians, it seems, were generally acquainted with the extraordinary powers given to Elisha by the God of Israel. Naaman's cure could not fail to increase his reputation, and good effects might be thus produced upon the minds of some individuals; though the enmity of the Syrian king against Israel still remained.

V. 13, 14. It was strange, that Ben-hadad should not perceive, that the God of Israel could as easily disclose this design to his prophet, as the plans he had formed! He had perhaps heard how fire from heaven had consumed the small companies who attempted to apprehend Elijah; and therefore he sent a large army, as if he would make sure of Elisha! A small number would have sufficed to take an unarmed man: but no force could prevail against the prophet's omnipotent Defender. The offence however was less heinous in Syrians than in Israelites; and therefore Ben-hadad's army fared better than Ahaziah's captains and soldiers had done.

V. 15-17. Elisha by strong faith perceived the invisible guard that was assigned him: but his servant, (who had newly succeeded Gehazi,) was weak in faith, and needed encouragement: and the Lord was pleased to enable him, with his bodily eyes, to perceive hosts of angels, in the form of chariots and horses of fire, encamped around the prophet, to protect him, and to fight against those who should offer him any violence.

V. 18. Elisha, secure of the divine protection, seems to have gone out to the Syrians, who, in answer to his prayer, were deprived for the time of the proper use of their eyes, so that they could not distinguish one object from another, and yet they were not sensible of their own incapacity! Thus the miracle was reversed in respect of them, from that with which the prophet's servant had been favoured.

V. 19, 20. The prophet meant to impose upon the Syrians, and it might lawfully have been done, even if he had meant to treat them as enemies, in order to his own preservation; but he intended them no harm in the deception. He was no longer in Dothan, and they in reality had no business there: but he truly informed them, that if they would follow him, he would bring them to the man whom they sought: and accordingly, when they were so infatuated as to follow a stranger, and so bewildered as to enter Samaria, he made himself known to them; and the miraculous suspension of their eye-sight being removed, they saw themselves at the mercy of the king of Israel.

bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master.

⁶² Ch. xxviii. 15. 23 And ^o he prepared great provision for them, and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. ^p So the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

B. C. 892. 24 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that Ben-hadad king of Syria ^q gathered all his host, and went up, and besieged Samaria.

^r Lev. xxvi. 26. Jer. xiv. 13—15. 25 And there was ^r a great famine in Samaria: and, behold, they besieged it, until an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of doves' dung for five pieces of silver.

^s Is. x. 3. Luke xviii. 3. 26 And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, ^s Help, my lord, O king!

^t Or. Let not the LORD save thee. 27 And he said, ^{*} If the LORD do not help thee, ^t whence shall I help thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the winepress?

^u Gen. xxi. 17. Judg. xviii. 23. 1 Sam. i. 8. 2 Sam. xiv. 5. Is. xxii. 1. 28 And the king said unto her, ^u What aileth thee? And she answered, This

V. 21—23. Jehoram was eager to smite the Syrian troops; but he was very respectful to the prophet who had put them in his power, and would not act without his permission. When Elisha therefore had shown him the impropriety of slaughtering prisoners of war whom he had taken captive, and much more that of smiting those whom God had led into that situation; he desisted from his purpose: nay, he obeyed the prophet's orders in entertaining and dismissing the whole army! Yet we soon find this very man determining to murder this same prophet! The Syrians, however, no more attempted to apprehend Elisha; and the soldiers were perhaps so won by his clemency, or afraid of his power, that they ceased from molesting the land by depredations; until Ben-hadad collected his whole force to besiege Samaria some time afterwards.

V. 25. If the pieces of silver here mentioned were shekels, the price of almost ten pounds was, on this occasion, paid for the head of an unclean animal, not generally used in food, and affording very little sustenance; whilst about twelve shillings were given for a small measure of very mean pulse, called dove's dung; or, as some think, of the undigested corn taken from the maw or gizzard of that fowl. However explained, the prices must show the extremity of this famine. It is sufficient to suppose, that each of these bargains was once actually made, in the urgency of hunger.

V. 27. If, &c. This may be rendered as the language of passion or desperation: as if Jehoram had said, The Lord will not, and I cannot help thee, but we must all perish together!

VOL. II.—No. 10.

woman said unto me, ^{*} Give thy son that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow.

29 So we boiled my son, and did eat him: and I said unto her on the [†] next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him; and ^v she hath hid her son.

30 And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the woman, that ^z he rent his clothes; and he passed by upon the wall, and the people looked, and behold, he had sackcloth within upon his flesh.

31 Then he said, ^a God do so, and more also to me, ^b if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat shall stand on him this day.

32 But Elisha sat in his house, and ^c the elders sat with him; and the king sent a man from before him: but ^d ere the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, ^e See ye how this ^f son of a murderer hath sent to take away mine head? look when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door: is not ^g the sound of his master's feet behind him?

33 And while he yet talked with them,

^x Lev. xxvi. 29. Deut. xxviii. 53. —57. Is. ix. 20. 21. Lam. iv. 10. Ez. v. 10. Matt. xxiv. 18—21.

[†] Heb. other.

^y 1 Kings iii. 26. Is. xlix. 15. lxxvi. 13.

^z v. 7. xix. 1. 1 Kings xxi. 27. Is. lviii. 5—7.

^a Ruth i. 17. 1 Kings xix. 2. ^b 1 Kings xviii. 17. xxi. 8. Jer. xxxvii. 15. 16. xxxviii. 4. John xi. 50. Acts xxiii. 12. 13. ^c Ez. viii. 1. xiv. 31. ^d 12. v. 26.

^e Luke xiii. 32. 1 Kings xviii. 4. xxi. 19.

^g 1 Kings xiv. 6.

V. 28, 29. The truth, and awful justice, of God upon the idolatrous Israelites were displayed in this most horrible transaction. The extremity of hunger inducing rage and madness, and extinguishing humanity and natural affection, prepared the way for such actions as at other times, the persons themselves would have abhorred the thoughts of. But this was repeatedly foretold as the punishment of Israel's apostasy from God; and more instances of it occur in their history, than in the records perhaps of all other nations. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 30. The king mourned his own miseries and those of the people, and he assumed the garment of a penitent: but he did not renounce his idolatries, and he grew more desperate in his rebellion through the extremities to which he was reduced.

V. 31. Either Elisha had denounced this judgment upon Jehoram for his sins, or Jehoram supposed that it was sent in answer to his prayers; or he thought the prophet could help him if he would; or he blamed him for inducing him to dismiss the Syrian army when in his power; or perhaps Elisha had counselled him in the name of the Lord to hold out the siege, and that it should be delivered. His rage however against God vented itself in menacing violence to his faithful servant.

V. 32. Elisha lodged at Samaria at this time, probably in the schools of the prophets, sharing the hardships of that city; and the elders had resorted to him to entreat his prayers, or to desire his counsel. The Lord revealed to him Jehoram's intentions: and Elisha called him the son of behold, the messenger came down unto him: and he said, Behold, ¹ this evil is of the LORD; what should I ⁱ wait for the LORD any longer?

1 Gen. iv. 13. Ex. xvi. 7. 8. 1 Sam. xxxviii. 6 — 8. xxxi. 4. Jobi. 11. ii. 5. 9. Is. viii. 21. Jer. ii. 25. Ez. xxxiii. 10. Matt. xxvii. 4, 5. 2 Cor. ii. 7, 11. Rev. xvi. 9—11.

1 Ps. xxvii. 14. lxii. 5. Is. xxvi. 3. Lam. iii. 25, 26. Hab. ii. 3. Luke xviii. 1.

a murderer, as proving himself the genuine offspring of Ahab and Jezebel, who slew the Lord's prophets and murdered Naboth. At his desire the messenger of Jehoram was shut out, till his master who followed him, perhaps to countermand his order, was arrived. And when he was entered, and perhaps exhorted to hope for deliverance, he in a blasphemous manner answered, that the calamity was from the LORD, who would not deliver them; and that it was in vain to wait for him any longer. Probably he meant to infer, that he might as well put Elisha to death, and surrender to Ben-hadad without further delay. As the messenger was excluded till the king arrived, we may be sure that the latter was the speaker of these words, and not his servant in his presence.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—7.

God hath often increased his church, by the addition of faithful ministers and true believers, in times of great persecution: for the whole glory is secured to him, when the work is performed without the aid, and notwithstanding the opposition, of human authority, by the preaching of his word and the operation of the Holy Spirit. Religion indeed always appears to advantage under the cross: when poverty and affliction are endured with cheerful meekness and patience; when hard labour and mean fare excite no complaints; and when men, honoured by the Lord as instruments of much good to souls, willingly earn their living by working at some honest calling, rather than burden the people, and yet will not entangle themselves with the affairs of the world to acquire riches for themselves or families: their conduct evidently accords to the spirit of true religion, and seldom fails to attract the attention of numbers, to persons who act upon principles that contradict the general propensities of human nature. In particular, respect to seniors or superiors becomes those who teach others to "render unto Cesar the things which are Cesar's, and to God the things that are God's:" and contentment with poor accommodations such as inculcate mortification to the things of time and sense. There is that pleasantness in the converse of the eminent servants of God, which can make men forget the pain and weariness of labour: and when condescension to the meanest unites with usefulness to the greatest, and with great eminence in the church of God, it confers a peculiar lustre on a man's character. It gives more pain to a generous mind to injure others, than to suffer personal loss; and peculiar care should be taken of things borrowed. Our heavenly Father cares for his people in their most minute concerns, sympathizes with them in their fears and sorrows; and peculiarly regards them whose tender consciences are afraid of dishonouring religion, through unavoidable poverty, and being unable to render to all their dues.

V. 8—23.

The Lord knows, and can easily defeat, the secret machinations of his enemies. And the mere profession of being his people will sometimes for a season occasion men to fare the better in outward matters, in order to the confusion of his avowed enemies, and for the sake of that remnant of true believers with whom they are connected. Even the wicked are sometimes willing to be counselled by the servants of God in their temporal concerns, and experience the advantage of so doing; but they will not take warning to flee from the wrath to come, or be persuaded to renounce their favourite sins! Waive this subject, do not trouble their consciences, and you may obtain their confidence: nay, they will give up their inclinations in other respects, by way of compromise. As prophets were not without honour save in their own country; so numbers profess to honour those, that have obtained a good report in the word of God, who would treat them with scorn or enmity, if they could again revisit the earth. For distance of time or place breaks the force of their reproofs; and they can suppose that other sinners, and not themselves, are intended: but when near, they direct the word to the conscience, with, "Thou art the man;" and except this produce repentance, it must exasperate. Such men, however, prove the insincerity of their professed esteem, by living in habitual neglect of the truths and precepts, which were delivered by the persons whom they would be thought to admire. The obstinate rebellion and blindness of fallen man often influence him to strive, and to expect to prevail, against those whom he cannot deny to be the people of God: but as no outward miracles can extirpate the malignity of the heart, so nothing can injure those whom the Lord protects. Were our eyes opened to behold the world of spirits, we should perceive more formidable preparations against us, than those which alarmed the prophet's servant; even legions of malicious, powerful, and sagacious spirits combined for our destruction: but we should also see an innumerable company of holy angels encamped around us for our defence: and the Almighty God himself our Friend and Protector. Strong faith will supply the want of sight: it realizes both the danger, and the security, and, with a clear idea of the force of the enemy, confidently answers, "Fear not, for they that be with us, are more than they that be with them." May God give us this faith, and especially strengthen it in the time of danger, and in the hour of death! But if we are "strong, we should bear the infirmities of the weak," and both encourage and pray for them. Increasing experience of the Lord's power and love, and those glimpses of heavenly things with which his people are favoured, gradually embolden them to walk by faith, and not by sight: nor is the power of prayer less than it was in those ages of miracles, though the Lord answers it in a different way.—It is a mercy to be kept from sin, even by ignorance and blindness; and we may pray, that our enemies may be so bewildered and confounded, as to fail of accomplishing their malicious purposes: but, though the gospel itself often occasions the blindness and obduracy of obstinate unbelievers to increase; yet we must pray for them, and persevere in our endeavours to win them over to be friends to us and to the Lord. We should also watch for opportunities to show our friendly disposition towards them, as well

CHAP. VII.

Elisha predicts great plenty in Samaria, and the doom of an unbelieving lord, 1, 2. Four lepers venture into the Syrian camp, and bring word that it is entirely deserted; (a terror from God having driven away the army,) 3—11. Jehoram fears a stratagem, sends spies, and finds the report true, 12—15. The people spoil the Syrian camp; the predicted plenty takes place; and the unbelieving lord, having charge of the gate, is trodden to death, 16—20.

thing be? And he said, Behold, ^g thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

3 And there were ^h four leprous men at the entering in of the gate; and they said one to another, Why sit we here until we die?

4 If we say, ⁱ we will enter into the city, then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here we die also. Now therefore come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians: ^k if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die.

5 And they rose up ^l in the twilight, to go unto the camp of the Syrians: and when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, behold, there was no man there.

6 For the Lord had made the host of the Syrians to ^m hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host: and they said one to another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired against us ⁿ the kings of the Hittites, and ^o the kings of the Egyptians to come upon us.

^g 17—20 Deut. iii. 27 Rom. iii. 3. 2 Tim. ii. 13. Heb. iii. 17—19.

^h viii. 4 Lev. xiii. 45 Num. v. 2 —4. xii. 14:

ⁱ Jer. xiv. 16.

^k Esth. iv. 16. Jer. viii. 14. Jon. iii. 9. Luke xv. 17. 19. 17. 9. Lev. xxvi. 8. 36. 1 Sam. xxx. 17.

^m iii. 23 xix. 7. 2 Sam. v. 24. Job xv. 21. Ps. xiv. 5 Jer. xx. 3, 4. Rev. vi. 15, 16.

ⁿ 1 Kings x. 29. ^o 2 Chr. xii. 3 Is. xxxi. 1. xxxvi. 9.

avi. 33.

THEN ^a Elisha said, Hear ye the word of the LORD; Thus saith the LORD, ^b To-morrow about this time, shall ^c a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures ^d of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria.

2 Then ^e a lord, on whose hand the king leaned, answered the man of God, and said, Behold, ^f if the LORD would make ^g windows in heaven, might this

^b 18, 19. Ex. xiv. 13. xiv. 12. Ps. xvi. 5. c vi. 25 Rev. vi. 6. d iv. 42 John vi. 9. ^e Or, a lord which belonged to the king, leaning on his hand. v. 18. e Gen. xviii. 12—14. Num. xi. 21 —23 Ps. lxxviii. 19—21. 41. f Gen. vii. 11. Mal. iii. 10.

as to convince them, that they will be ruined by their own iniquities if they persist in them.

V. 24—33.

The regard that wicked men pay to the servants of God, when they seem to favour them, is frequently turned into bitter enmity under their troubles. In extreme distress, if such persons recollect that their affliction is from the Lord, the rage against him, which vents itself in blasphemies, also dictates cruelty against his people. They blame any one as the cause of their calamities, rather than condemn themselves and renounce their sins. If rending their clothes, without a broken and contrite heart; and if wearing sackcloth, without being renewed in the spirit of their mind, would avail, they would not stand out against the Lord; but whilst their own impenitence alone retards the deliverance, they excuse their proceeding to still more desperate measures, by pretending, that it is in vain to “wait for the LORD any longer!”—Alas, what miseries hath sin entailed upon mankind! Little do we know what extremities we may be called to endure in this world: what then will be the everlasting wrath of God against his enemies in the world to come? But if we are reconciled to him, he will help us when all human help fails; in the time of famine we shall be satisfied, and in peril we shall be safe: whilst all the curses of God’s book will fall upon the head of presumptuous transgressors. Let us then seek first the kingdom of God: let us be thankful for our daily bread, and not contract habits of self-indulgence, nor set our affections on earthly objects: and may the whole word of God combine to increase in us reverential fear and holy hope, that we may be “steadfast and unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that our labour is not in vain in the Lord!”

NOTES.

CHAP. VII. V. 1. The measure here spoken of is supposed to have contained about a peck; and the prices specified, no doubt, were those of remarkable plenty: but that corn should be sold so cheap in Samaria on the morrow, seemed impossible to any power but that of God. Jehoram, however, notwithstanding his rage and desperation, was induced to wait one day longer, to make trial of the prophet’s words.

V. 2. This lord was one of the king’s most intimate friends, who waited on his person. It is probable that he was an idolatrous despiser of JEHOVAH and his prophet; and perhaps he wanted to persuade Jehoram, that Elisha amused him with the promise of an impossibility, to preserve himself from immediate death.

V. 3. Whilst the weightier matters of the law were generally neglected, the prescribed rule about the exclusion of lepers, seems to have been rigorously observed. These men resided in tents without the wall; but probably they were admitted within the gate, at the times when the Syrians made their assaults. Gehazi is by some supposed to have been one of them, by which means he became acquainted with the king. (Marg. Ref.)

p Job xviii. 11. Ps.
xviii. 4—6.
Prov. xxviii. 1.
q Ps. xx. 7, 8.
xxviii. 17 Am.
ii. 14—16
r Num. xxxv. 11.
12. Prov. vi. 5.
Is. ii. 20, 21.
Matt. xxiv. 16—
18. Heb. vi. 18.

7 Wherefore they ^p arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents and ^q their horses, and their asses, even the camp as it was, ^r and fled for their life.

8 And when these lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and ^s hid it; and came again and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it.

9 Then ^t they said one to another, We do not well: "this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace: if we tarry till the morning-light ^{*} some ^x mischief will come upon us: now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household.

10 So they came and called unto ^y the porter of the city: and they told him, saying, We came to the camp of the Syrians, and, behold, there was ^z no man there, neither voice of man, but horses tied, and asses tied, and the tents as they were.

11 And he called the porters; and they told it to the king's house within.

12 ¶ And the king arose in the night, and said ^a unto his servants, ^b I will now shew you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we be ^c hungry; therefore are they gone out of the camp to hide themselves in the field, saying, When they come out of the city, we shall catch them alive, and get into the city.

13 And ^d one of his servants answered and said, Let some take, I pray thee, five of the horses that remain, which are left

† in the city, (behold, they are as all the † Heb. in it. multitude of Israel that are left in it: behold, I say, ^e they are even as all the ^e 4. vi. 33. multitude of the Israelites that are consumed;) and let us send and see.

14 They took therefore two chariot-horses; and the king sent after the host of the Syrians, saying, Go and see.

15 And they went after them unto Jordan: and lo, all the way was full of garments and ^f vessels, which the Syrians ^g had cast away in their haste. And the messengers returned, and told the king.

16 And the people went out, and ^h spoiled the tents of the Syrians. So a measure of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, ⁱ according to the word of the Lord.

17 And the king appointed ^k the lord, on whose hand he leaned, to have the charge of the gate: and ^l the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died, as the man of God had said, who spake when the king came down to him.

18 And it came to pass ^m as the man ^m 1, 2. of God had spoken to the king, saying, Two measures of barley for a shekel, and a measure of fine flour for a shekel, shall be to-morrow about this time in the gate of Samaria:

19 And that lord answered the man of God, and said, Now, behold, if the Lord should make windows in heaven, might such a thing be? And he said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

20 And ⁿ so it fell out unto him: for the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died.

s y 24. Josh. vii.
21. Jer. xli. 8.
Matt. xiii. 44
xxv. 18.

t 6. Hag. i. 4, 5.

u Is. lii. 7. Luke
ii. 10. Phil. ii. 4.

* Heb. we shall find punishment.
x. v. 26, 27. Num.
xxxiii. 23. Prov.
v. 22.

y Ps. cxxvii. 1.
Mark xiii. 34, 35.

z 6, 7.

a vi. 8. Gen. xx.
8. xli. 38. 1 Kings
xx. 7. 23.
b v. 7.
c vi. 25—29.

d v. 13.

f Esth. i. 7. Is.
xxii. 24.
g Is. ii. 20. Ez.
xviii. 31. Matt.
xvi. 26. Phil. iii.
7, 8. Heb. xii. f.

h 2 Chr. xiv. 12—
15. xx. 25. Job
xxvii. 16, 17. Ps.
lxviii. 12. Is.
xxxviii. 1, 4, 23.

i 1 Is. xlii. 26.
Matt. xxiv. 25.
k 2.

l ix. 33. Judg. xx.
47. Is. xxxv. 10.
Mic. vii. 10
Heb. x. 29.

n Num. xx. 12.
2 Chr. xx. 20.
Job. xx. 23. Is.
vii. 9. Jer. xvii.
5, 6. Heb. iii.
18, 19.

V. 6, 7. The infatuation, which seized the minds of the whole Syrian army, was equal to the illusion put upon their senses: and both of them were from the Lord; but in what manner he produced them we know not. It is not known who the kings of the Hittites were, or where they reigned: and indeed the whole of the supposition was improbable; and in their trepidation the Syrians left behind them their horses, which might have accelerated their flight!

V. 9. Mischief, &c. Either some judgment from God, or some punishment from the magistrates, for prolonging the miseries of the people.

V. 12. If Jehoram had firmly expected that Elisha's words would be verified, he would have concluded that this event was the effect of a miraculous interposition in his favour; though he might properly have taken every prudent precaution against a surprisal.

V. 13, 14. This person urged in favour of his counsel, that these men and their horses would be no more exposed than those that remained in the city. Many had been already consumed, and all the rest must die with hunger in a few days, if no relief were afforded: and they might as well be cut off in examining the real state of the Syrian camp, and discovering what had become of the besiegers, as perish tamely and timidly in the city. It seems, only two horsemen were sent; perhaps no more horses being found fit for the service; or the king would venture no more out of the city.

CHAP. VIII.

The Shunammite, by Elisha's advice, to avoid a famine of seven years, sojourns in Philistia, 1, 2. On her return she applies to the king, who is conversing with Gehazi on Elisha's miracles; and he restores her land, 3—6. Elisha goes to Damascus: Hazael is sent to inquire of him about Ben-hadad's sickness: he predicts Hazael's cruelty to Israel, as destined to be king of Syria: and Hazael murders Ben-hadad and succeeds him, 7—15. Jehoram reigns wickedly in Judah, 16—19. Edom and Libnah revolt, 20—22. Jehoram is succeeded by Ahaziah, who reigns wickedly, 23—27. He assists the king of Israel against Syria, and when wounded visits him at Jezreel, 28, 29.

THEN spake Elisha unto the woman, ^{a. iv. 31—35.} whose son he had restored to life, saying, Arise, and go thou and thy house-

V. 17—20. The people being extremely hungry, and vehemently eager for food, thrust down this nobleman, whilst he attempted, perhaps in a harsh manner, to restrain them from rushing out to plunder the Syrian camp: or, as some think to regulate the market, which was held at the gate, and supplied from the camp. Thus he was trodden to death; and the truth and justice of God were clearly seen in that event.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—8.

In extreme distress unexpected relief is often preparing; and, whatever unbelievers may imagine, it is not in vain to wait for the Lord, how long soever he seems to delay his coming. No temporal deliverances and mercies will eventually profit sinners, except they are led to repentance; and in that case, "Where sin hath abounded, grace will 'much more abound.'" We are all prone to judge of the Lord's promises by human probabilities, and to bound his power of performance by our capacity of discerning how it can be done. And whatever tends to increase pride and self-confidence proportionably augments this propensity. Hence the rich, the noble, the wise, and the learned of the world, have generally been the most averse to the implicit crediting of God's testimony, and expecting promised mercies in the way of his appointment, in single dependence on his power, truth, and love, without regarding those fancied impossibilities which seem to lie in the way. But all those who persist in despising either his promised blessings, or his method of obtaining them, will see the felicity of believers without partaking of it. For though he will pardon the infirmities of his people's faith, whilst they pray "Lord I believe, help thou mine unbelief;" yet he will not spare those, who harden themselves and others in rebellion, through their infidel objections and enmity against the truth, however they may enjoy the confidence of earthly princes. Men reason justly in their secular concerns: the distant probability of preserving life is preferred to certain death, and the lowest condition is considered as better than perishing by hunger. Yet, in the concerns of their souls, they will not be so convinced, even by demonstration, as to bestow pains and put themselves to inconveniences, to escape the wrath to come and obtain eternal life. But the awakened sinner fears an evil infinitely worse than death; and under the greatest discouragements, even when tempted to despair, he learns to argue, 'If I go on in sin, or sit down in sloth, or run into worldly dissipation, or have recourse to superstitions, or attempt to establish my own righteousness, I must perish. The mercy of God in Jesus Christ is my only refuge. If I cast myself at his feet and wait his time, who knows but he may save me? And if at last he spurns me, I can but be lost. All else is comparatively worthless: if I then must perish, I will perish under the means of grace, and supplicating his mercy and salvation.' In like manner the believer, exposed to the terrors of persecution, reasons with himself: 'If I am faithful to the Lord I can but die, and he will give me the crown of life: but if I deny Christ through dread of death, he will refuse to acknowledge me another day; and I fear him who is able to destroy body and soul in hell, more than those who can only kill the body.' Thus believers venture themselves into the Saviour's hands, and cleave to him with purpose of heart; whilst others neglect or forsake him. The Lord can effect his designs by various methods: a terror from him can drive men from their purpose as effectually as the destroying sword of vengeance; and we absolutely depend upon him for the due exercise of our senses and faculties, as well as for the continuance of our lives, and the salvation of our souls. Whilst some, when life is at stake, readily relinquish all they before held dear; others, when wearing away by incurable or loathsome disease, are as rapacious of gain as if their lives were secured to them with every other requisite of enjoyment.

V. 9—20.

Natural humanity and fear of punishment are powerful checks upon the selfishness of the ungodly, and tend to preserve some order and regularity in the world. They however, who have found the unsearchable riches of Christ, will not long delay to report the good tidings to others, that they may partake of that blessedness, which is sufficient for all: and from love to him they will gladly communicate their temporal good things to their brethren. True faith consists with prudent precautions: but unbelief suggests endless and unreasonable suspicions, and puts away those blessings which are brought nigh to the soul, in the invitations and promises of God's word. The believer, on the other hand, makes trial of them, and experience confirms his faith: and a change, far more felicitating than that which is here recorded, takes place in his state, prospects, comforts, and character. But every word of God, con-

b Gen. xii. 10. hold, and ^b sojourn wheresoever thou xxvi. 1. xlvii. 4. canst sojourn: for ^c the LORD hath ^d call-Ruth i. 1. ed for a famine; and it shall also come c Gen. xli. 25— upon the land ^e seven years.
26. 32. Lev. 29—24. 38—40.
xxvi. 19. 20. 26 Deut. xxviii. 29—24. 38—40.
1 Kings xvii. 1. 2 And the woman arose, and did after xviii. 2 Ps. cv. the saying of the man of God: and she 16. cvii. 34. went with her ^f household, and sojourned Hag. i. 1. Luke xxi. 11. 22. Acts xi 28
d Jer. xxv 29. ^g in the land of the Philistines seven e Gen. xli. 27. years.
2 Sam. xxi. 1. 3 And it came to pass at the seven xxiv. 13. Luke iv. 25. years' end, that the woman returned out 1 Tim. v. 8. of the land of the Philistines: and ^h she g Judg. iii. 3. went forth to cry unto the king for her 1 Sam. xxvii. 1. house and for her land.
—5. Luke xviii. 3
B. C. 885. 4 And the king talked with ⁱ Gehazi
Ps. iv. 13. vi. 28. the servant of the man of God, saying,
2 Sam. xiv. 4. Tell me, I pray thee, ^j all the great
Ps. lxxxii. 3. 4. things that Elisha hath done.
Jer. xxii. 16. 5 And it came to pass, as he was telling Luke xviii. 3 the king how ^m he had restored a dead body
—5. to life, that, ⁿ behold, the woman, whose
iv. 9—11. 27. vii. son he had restored to life, cried to the 3. 10. king for her house and for her land.
k Luke ix. 9. And Gehazi said, My lord, O king, this xxii. 8. Acts k xxiv. 24. thing, though not formally; and it was commendable in l ii 14. 20—22. Jehoram that he was accessible to such a claimant.
24. iii. 14—16. V. 4—6. It was not unlawful to speak to a leper, pro-
iv. 3—6. 16. 17. vided it was done without touching him; and Jehoram,
v. 14. 27. vi. 6. from curiosity, was willing to converse with so mean a 9—12. 17—20. person, concerning Elisha's miracles, as Gehazi, who 32. vii 1. 16— likewise bore an infamous character, and was covered with 20. a loathsome disease: yet he did not court the prophet's m iv. 35 acquaintance, because he disliked his counsels and admonin Ruth ii. 3. Esth. tions, and dreaded his warnings and rebukes. The Lord,
v. 14. vi. 1. 2 however, thus prepared his mind to do this godly woman Prov. xvi. 9. Ec. justice; and his providence is especially to be noted in the ix. 11. Matt. x coincidence of such apparently casual events, from which 29. 30. Acts viii. most important consequences frequently follow.
27. &c. Rom. V. 7, 8. The prophet doubtless was divinely directed to viii. 31. go to Damascus. Some suppose that he went to counsel and encourage Naaman; and others, that he retired thither during the famine. And some imagine, that he went to anoint Hazael; but it is probable, that Elijah had performed that service, though Hazael, being young and destitute of power to seize upon the kingdom, seems not to have much regarded the transaction. (Marg. Ref.) Ben-hadad, however, was no longer disposed to injure Elisha.
The report of the prophet's miracles had excited his veneration, and perhaps his sickness had softened his mind;
so that he welcomed him to his capital, and, according to the fashion of the day, sent his chief minister to inquire of him concerning his recovery. He would have done better if he had desired the instruction and prayers of the man of God.

cerning judgment as well as mercy, will speedily be accomplished; and earthly honours will accelerate the ruin of the ungodly. May God help us seriously to inquire, whether we are now exposed to his awful threatenings; or interested in his exceedingly great and precious promises; that so we may profit by the warning, or by the encouragement, resulting from that knowledge of our own state and character!

NOTES.

CHAP. VIII. V. 1, 2. This famine seems to have been sent in the latter part of Jehoram's reign, as a punishment of the pertinacious idolatry of both king and people, notwithstanding the miracles they had witnessed, and the mercies they had experienced. It continued twice as long as that in the days of Ahab, but perhaps was not so extreme. Elisha was warned of its approach, and counselled his benefactress, (who seems to have been left a widow,) to remove till it was over. There was a measure of plenty in the land of the Philistines, whilst Israel was visited with famine: but either they could spare none to sell to their neighbours, or their old enmity made them unwilling to do it. They did not, however, molest such as went to sojourn among them. Had not Judah felt the effects of the famine, it is likely that this pious woman would have gone thither to sojourn.

V. 3. To cry, &c. Either the lands of the Shunammite had been seized, as forfeited to the crown by her emigration; or some of her neighbours or relations had violently seized upon them; or they, to whom she had left the management of her affairs, would neither restore her estate, nor come to any account concerning the profits of it. She had therefore at this time occasion to apply to the king, though not formally; and it was commendable in Jehoram that he was accessible to such a claimant.

6 And when the king asked the woman, she told him. So the king appointed unto her a certain * officer, saying, ^o Restore all that was her's, and all the fruits of the field since the day that she left the land even until now.

7 ¶ And Elisha came to ^p Damascus: and ^q Ben-hadad the king of Syria was sick; and it was told him, saying, ^r The man of God is come hither.

8 And the king said unto Hazael, ^s Take a present in thine hand, and go, meet the man of God, and ^t inquire of the LORD by him, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?

9 So ^u Hazael went to meet him, and took a present [†] with him, even of every good thing of Damascus, forty camels burden, and came and stood before him, and said, ^x Thy son Ben-hadad king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?

king, though not formally; and it was commendable in Jehoram that he was accessible to such a claimant.

V. 4—6. It was not unlawful to speak to a leper, provided it was done without touching him; and Jehoram, from curiosity, was willing to converse with so mean a person, concerning Elisha's miracles, as Gehazi, who likewise bore an infamous character, and was covered with a loathsome disease: yet he did not court the prophet's acquaintance, because he disliked his counsels and admonitions, and dreaded his warnings and rebukes. The Lord, however, thus prepared his mind to do this godly woman justice; and his providence is especially to be noted in the coincidence of such apparently casual events, from which most important consequences frequently follow.

V. 7, 8. The prophet doubtless was divinely directed to go to Damascus. Some suppose that he went to counsel and encourage Naaman; and others, that he retired thither during the famine. And some imagine, that he went to anoint Hazael; but it is probable, that Elijah had performed that service, though Hazael, being young and destitute of power to seize upon the kingdom, seems not to have much regarded the transaction. (Marg. Ref.) Ben-hadad, however, was no longer disposed to injure Elisha. The report of the prophet's miracles had excited his veneration, and perhaps his sickness had softened his mind; so that he welcomed him to his capital, and, according to the fashion of the day, sent his chief minister to inquire of him concerning his recovery. He would have done better if he had desired the instruction and prayers of the man of God.

V. 9. We may infer from the silence of the Scripture, that the prophet accepted of this royal present, as the provision which the Lord assigned him in a foreign country,

* Or, eunuch.

o Deut. xxii. 8.
Judg. xi. 13.
2 Sam. ix. 7.
Prov. xvi. 7.
xxi. 1.

p Gen. xiv. 15.
1 Kings xi. 24.
Is. vii. 8.
q vi. 24. 1 Kings
xv. 18. xx. 1.
34. xxii. 31.
r ii. 15. v. 3. 15.
vi. 12 vii. 18.

s v. 5. 1 Sam. ix.
7. 1 Kings xiv. 3.
t i. 2. iii. 11—13.
1 Kings xiv. 1—
4. Luke xiii. 23.
Acts xvi. 30.

u 1 Kings xix. 15.
† Heb. in his hand. v. 5.

x vi. 21. xiii. 14.

10 And Elisha said unto him, Go, say unto him, Thou mayest certainly recover: howbeit the LORD hath shewed me that ^v he shall surely die.

v 13.

11 And he settled his countenance ^{* Heb. and set it.} steadfastly, until he was ashamed: and the man of God ^z wept.

12 And Hazael said, Why ^e weepeth ^a my lord? And he answered, Because I know ^b the evil that thou wilt do unto the children of Israel: their strong-holds wilt thou set on fire, and their young men wilt thou slay with the sword, and wilt ^c dash their children, and rip up their women with child.

13 And Hazael said, But what! is thy servant a ^d dog, that ^e he should do this great thing? And Elisha answered, 'The LORD hath shewed me that thou shalt be king over Syria.

14 So he departed from Elisha, and came to his master; who said to him, What said Elisha to thee? And he answered, ^e He told me that thou shouldst surely recover.

15 And ^h it came to pass ⁱ on the morrow, that he took a thick cloth, and dipped it in water, and ^k spread it on his face, so that he died: and ^l Hazael reigned in his stead.

16 ¶ And in the fifth year of Joram the son of Ahab king of Israel, Jehoshaphat being then king of Judah, ^m Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah [†] began to reign.

17 Thirty and two years old was he when he began to reign; and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

18 And he walked ⁿ in the way of the kings of Israel, as did the house of Ahab: for ^o the daughter of Ahab was ^p his wife: and he did evil in the sight of the LORD.

19 Yet the LORD would not destroy Judah ^q for David his servant's sake, as he promised him to give him always [†] a light, and to his children.

20 In his days Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah, and ^r made a king over themselves.

21 So Joram went over to Zair, and all the chariots with him: and he rose by night, and smote the Edomites which compassed him about, and the captains k ix. 24. xv. 10-14. xxv. 30. 1 Kings xv. 28. xvi. 10. 18. 1s. xxxiii. 1. 1 Kings xix. 15.

m i. 17. 1 Kings xxii. 50. 2 Chr. xxi. 1-20.

† Heb. reigned.

n iii. 2. 3. 1 Kings xxii. 52, 53.

o 26. 1 Kings xxi. 25. 2 Chr. xxi. 6. xxii. 1-4. p Gen. vii. 1-5. Deut. vii. 3, 4. 1 Kings xi. 1-5. Neh. xiii. 25, 26.

q 2 Sam. vii. 12. 15. 1 Kings xi. 36. xv. 4, 5. 2 Chr. xxi. 7. 1s. vii. 14. Luke i. 32, 33.

† Heb. candle, or, lamp. r 2 Sam. viii. 14. 1 Kings xxii. 47. 2 Chr. xxi. 8-10.

and to enable him to assist the poor Israelites and the sons of the prophets.

V. 10. Ben-hadad's disease was not of itself mortal, though his life was near its end from another cause. But the prophet either did not know, or did not think it proper to inform Hazael, what that cause would be. The reading, however, in the text, of the original, is, Thou shalt not recover; for the, &c.: though ancient expositors, both Jews and Christians, render it as it stands in our version.

V. 11. The prophet fixed his eyes on Hazael so steadfastly and for so long a time, that Hazael was confounded; and Elisha himself, in the foresight of his wickedness and of the miseries of Israel, burst into tears.

V. 13. Hazael felt at that time no inclination to such brutal ferocity and cruelty, and wondered that the prophet should suppose him capable of tearing and devouring, like some fierce and greedy dog, rather than a rational creature. But Elisha intimated that he would soon be advanced to the throne of Syria; and being engaged in war with Israel, and exasperated by their resistance, he would be tempted to cruelties, of which at present he had no thought. Some indeed think, Hazael only meant, that he was too inconsiderable a person for such great exploits: but his high rank under Ben-hadad would have enabled him to perform them, had his passions been sufficiently excited: and he was evidently startled at the mention of the cruelties, which the prophet predicted would be perpetrated by him.

V. 14, 15. Hazael at least misreported Elisha's answer, having already formed the intention of murdering Ben-hadad, and aiming to find an opportunity of effecting his purpose. By the method that he employed, he prevented any alarm, or any marks of violence appearing on his body. Elisha's intimation might give Satan an occasion of suggesting this villany to Hazael; but it was not the cause of his crime, and formed no excuse for it. Had he been of David's disposition, he would have waited in the path of duty, till the Lord had performed his word, in that manner which pleased him. Thus he soon manifested the rapacity and cruelty of the dog, of which he desired to be thought incapable.

V. 16, 17. Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat, began to reign with his father before the death of Ahab, so that Ahaziah the son of Ahab died in the second year of his reign; or in the eighteenth of Jehoshaphat. About five years after he seems to have been more solemnly admitted to the exercise of the royal authority, within two years of his father's death. This took place when Jehoram was thirty-two years old, and from that time he reigned eight years; though he reigned only five or six as sole king, after the death of his father. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 18. The daughter, &c. Perhaps Jehoshaphat hoped by this alliance to cement a peace betwixt the two kingdoms, and to bring back the Israelites to the worship of God at Jerusalem: but it was an unhallowed measure, and produced a contrary effect. This affinity gave occasion to the same names in both families. Each had a Jehoram and an Ahaziah: but they all took after the house of Ahab.

of the chariots : and the people fled into their tents.

^y Gen. xxvii. 40.

22 ^s Yet Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day. Then ^t xix. 8. Josh.

xxi. 13 2 Chr.

xxi. 10.

^w 2 Chr. xxi. 11—

20.

Libnah revolted at the same time.

23 And the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah ?

^x 1 Kings xi. 43.

xiv. 20. 31.

24 And Joram ^{*} slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David : and ^y Ahaziah his son reigned in his stead.

^y 2 Chr. xxi. 17

xxv. 23. Jeho-ahaz. xxii. 6

^z 16. 17. ix. 29.

2 Chr. xxi. 20.

25 ¶ In the ^z twelfth year of Joram the son of Ahab king of Israel did Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah begin to reign.

^a 2 Chr. xxii. 2.

26 ^a Two and twenty years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign ; and he reigned ^b one year in Jerusa-

^b ix. 27. 1 Chr.

xxii. 5—8.

lem. And his mother's name was Athaliah, the ^{*} daughter of Omri king of Israel.

^{*} Or grand- daughter. 18.

27 And ^e he walked in the way of the house of Ahab, and did evil in the sight of the LORD, as did the house of Ahab : for he was the son in law of the house of Ahab.

^e 2 Chr. xxii. 3.
4. Ec. vii. 26.
2 Cor. vi. 14.

28 And ^d he went with Joram the son of Ahab to the war against ^e Hazael king of Syria in ^f Ramoth-gilead ; and the Syrians wounded Joram.

^d iii. 7. 1 Kings
xxii. 4. 2 Chr.
xxiii. 2. 3. 31.
xix. 2. xxii. 5.
^e 12. 13. 1 Kings
xix. 17.
^f Josh. xxi. 38.
1 Kings iv. 15.
xxii. 3.
^g ix. 15.

29 And king ^s Joram went back to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds [†] which the Syrians had given him at [‡] Ramah, when he fought against Hazael king of Syria. And ^h Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Joram the son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was [§] sick.

[†] Heb. where- with the Syrians had wounded.
[‡] Ramath 26.

^h ix. 16. 2 Chr.
xxii. 6, 7.

[§] Heb. wounded.
1 Kings xxi. 34.

V. 20—24. Notwithstanding Jehoram's victory over the Edomites, he could not re-establish his authority over them : perhaps he was hindered by the revolt of Libnah, and by fears of further insurrections in his own kingdom, where he was become extremely odious. Thus the prophecy of Isaac was fulfilled, after Edom had been subject to Israel about an hundred and fifty years : nor did the Jews again acquire the dominion over Edom till long after the Babylonish captivity. (Marg. Ref.)—Joram was buried in Jerusalem, but not in the sepulchres of the kings. (Notes, 2 Chr. xxi.)

V. 26. Perhaps Omri adopted and educated Athaliah, who was his grand-daughter, and the daughter of Ahab.

V. 28, 29. (Notes, ix. 2 Chr. xxii.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—6.

Temporal deliverances are only respites, and “sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee,” is a warning of universal application. When the Lord calls for judgments, famines, pestilences, wars, tempests, or earthquakes, obey his word : and if he contend he will overcome ; for he will prolong the affliction, and make it more and more severe, until the sinner be either humbled or destroyed. When he rendereth a fruitful land barren for the wickedness of them that dwell therein, he takes care of the remnant of his people, and abundantly recompenses their kindness to his servants for his sake ; and they will also gladly embrace opportunities of requiting their benefactors, especially by their counsels and prayers : but open enemies sometimes escape better, than hypocritical or apostate professors. Where the moral law of God is not violated, a real necessity will justify many deviations from the letter of ritual appointments : but believers will not choose to reside longer among ignorant and ungodly people than is needful, though they behave kindly to them ; but gladly return to the ordinances of God, and the communion of the saints.—We know not what changes await us : we may soon be deceived by those who have hitherto been faithful to us, and need the help of those on whom we have not heretofore had any dependence.—The love of worldly riches induces men to various methods of fraud and oppression, and breaks through the most powerful obligations or the strongest relative ties. Hence the benefit of magistracy, to preserve equity and order among mankind. Even believers may, on important occasions, avail themselves of their privileges as members of the community ; provided they are not actuated by covetousness or resentment, do not manifest a contentious spirit, and make no appeal in a doubtful or suspicious cause : and rulers should award justice without respect of persons, and compel the injurious to restitution.—But the Lord himself will plead the cause of the defenceless and the oppressed, of the fatherless and the widow : he often effects his purpose by influencing the hearts of princes in their favour, and the most casual or trivial incident, which conduces to it, may prove an occasion of exciting praise and gratitude for his providential goodness. The gratification of curiosity is more pleasing to the carnal mind, than the mortification of worldly lusts : and the vilest hypocrites, apostates, or profligates, on some occasions, will be pleased with conversing on religious topics, provided they have no reference to their own conscience, character, or conduct. Thus they countenance each other in ungodliness, or buoy up presumptuous hopes ; whilst they cannot endure the instructions, and will not imitate the example, of those teachers whom they most profess to admire.

V. 7—15.

The Lord can procure his people a welcome, and spread them a table, even amidst their enemies ; who, on some occasions, and especially in affliction, may be inclined to show them great kindness and respect. Yet few, even in

CHAP. IX.

A young prophet, by Elisha's orders, anoints Jehu, at Ramoth-gilead; and directs him to extirpate Ahab's family, 1—10. Jehu acquaints the captains, is proclaimed king, and marches in haste to Jezreel against Joram, 11—16. Joram sends messengers to Jehu, who detains them, 17—20. He and Ahaziah meet Jehu; who kills Joram, and casts him into the field of Naboth, 21—26. Ahaziah is slain at Gur, and buried at Jerusalem, 27—30. Jezebel, by Jehu's orders, is thrown out of the window, and trampled under foot, 31—33. She is eaten by dogs, as Elijah had predicted, 34—37.

AND Elisha the prophet called one of ^a the children of the prophets, and said unto him, ^b Gird up thy loins, and take this ^c box of oil in thine hand, and go to ^d Ramoth-gilead:

2 And when thou comest thither, look out there Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, and go in, and make him arise up from ^e among his brethren, and carry him to an ^{*} inner chamber:

a iv. 1. vi. 1—3.
1 Kings xx. 35.
b iv. 29. 1 Kings
xviii. 46 Jer. 1.
17. Luce. xii.
35—37. 1 Pet. 1.
13.
c 1 Sam. x. 1.
xvi. 1. 1 Kings
i. 39.
d viii. 23, 29.

e 5. 11.
* Heb. chamber in a chamber.
1 Kings xx. 39.
xxii. 25.

that case, derive real benefit from their instructions, and disposition to do them good: but some honour redounds to God, and outward advantages accrue to his servants; who may without scruple receive them, as from him, when they are not required to flatter, or in any other way to act inconsistently with their profession. They who love God and man, must often weep upon a survey of the wickedness and misery of mankind: and a particular foresight of the state of the church and of the world, would augment their sorrow. But little are men, when not exposed to temptation, aware of the desperate wickedness of their own hearts! They do not conceive themselves capable of those enormities, to which at present they feel no inducement; and it is deemed an insult upon them to suppose they are. But when the magnetic attraction of great imaginary advantages approaches the carnal mind, the latent depravity begins to move, and they will surely come into contact, unless hindered by external obstructions, or by the power of God upon the heart. Then, the greedy dog, the ravening wolf, the subtle fox, the poisonous serpent, or the filthy swine, form feeble emblems of human depravity: the persons, who before were most inoffensive, become guilty of far greater rapacity, treachery, or cruelty, than the worst of these animals; and in their cooler moments doubtless often reflect with horror and astonishment at their awful progress. Those who, as mortified limbs, are continually cut off the body politic, once no more thought of such criminality and condemnation, than any reader of these observations: and we are any of us capable, if left to ourselves, of the worst crimes perpetrated by the vilest pests and scourges of the world. This should remind us not to be high-minded, but to fear, and to trust only in the Lord to preserve us from the deceitfulness of our own hearts. As the desire of greatness is a dangerous temptation, which has induced many to perpetrate the basest crimes: so power, however obtained, generally alters men's manners for the worse; and their inclinations to vice commonly increase, in proportion as they are able to commit it without control and with impunity. We ought therefore to be content and thankful in more obscure situations; and they who are called to this dangerous pre-eminence, have need of double watchfulness. When iniquity is conceived in the heart, means will be devised for its perpetration; and flattering language often cloaks the most malignant purposes:

for sinners in general are satisfied with concealing their crimes from man, regardless of the all-seeing eye of God. But it is an awful cruelty to flatter those with the hope of life, whom we suppose to be near their dissolution: because they ought to be preparing for that important change.

V. 16—29.

When pious men choose wives for themselves, or interfere in the marriage of their children, they should remember that their remote posterity are concerned, and that an improper choice may entail misery upon them. Indulged children seldom prove wise or good men, and it is not often expedient to advance young people needlessly to authority. Our inferiors and dependents are often employed to chastise our rebellion against God, by their ill behaviour to us. He will not however break his promise nor forsake his cause: but whilst wicked men, from generation to generation, perish in their sins, the Son of David, the Light of his church, ever liveth to protect, bless, and comfort his people. May all the changes, troubles, and wickedness of the world, make us more earnest in securing an interest in his great salvation!

NOTES.

CHAP. IX. V. 1. Elijah, many years before, had been commissioned to anoint Jehu, as a king of a new family, immediately appointed by God to reign over Israel, and to execute vengeance on the family and adherents of Ahab. But a respite having been granted that prince, when he externally humbled himself before God; it seems, the anointing of Jehu was deferred likewise: so that this service now devolved on Elisha, as Elijah's successor and representative. But it required secrecy; and it was not proper he should perform it in person: as one of the sons of the prophets, who was little known, might have a far better opportunity of escaping, if suspected by Jehoram's friends. Elisha lived above forty years after this: and probably was not incapacitated by age or infirmities, for the labour and activity required on this occasion; but was for other reasons induced or directed, to send a deputy. (Marg. Ref.) When the ancients used great expedition, they girded up the skirts of their long upper garments with a girdle round their loins.

1 Kings xix. 16.

g Ps. lxxv. 7.
Dan. ii. 21. iv.
35. v. 18.
h 1 Sam. xvi. 2.
Matt. x. 16.

3 Then take the box of oil, and pour it on his head, and say, Thus saith the LORD, ^g I have anointed thee king over Israel. Then open the door, ^h and flee, and tarry not.

4 So the young man, even the young man the prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead.

4 Judg. iii. 19.

5 And when he came, behold, the captains of the host were sitting; and he said, ⁱ I have an errand to thee, O captain. And Jehu said, Unto which of all us? And he said, To thee, O captain.

k Acts xxiii. 18, 19.

6 And ^k he arose, and went into the house; and he poured the oil on his head, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, ⁱ I have anointed thee king ^m over the people of the LORD, even over Israel.

12 Chr. xxii. 7.

m 1 Kings x 9 xiv
7. 16. xvi. 2
n Deut xxxii. 35
43. Ps xciv. 1—
7. Luke xlii. 7.
8. Rom. xii. 19.
o 1. 4. Heb. xi
30. Rev. vi. 9.
10. xviii. 20.
xix. 2

7 And thou shalt smite the house of Ahab thy master, that ^a I may avenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the LORD, ^o at the hand of Jezebel.

o 33—37. 1 Kings
xviii. 4. xxi. 15.
23.

8 For the whole house of Ahab shall perish: and ^p I will cut off from Ahab him that pisseth against the wall, and ^q him that is shut up and left in Israel:

p 1 Kings xiv. 10,
11. xxi. 21, 22.

q xiv. 26. Deut.
xxii. 36.

9 And I will make the house of Ahab ^r like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like ^s the house of Baasha, the son of Ahijah:

r 1 Kings xiv. 10,
11. xv. 29. xxi.
22.
s 1 Kings xvi. 3, 4, 11, 12.

10 And ^t the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the portion of Jezreel, and there shall be none to bury her. And ^u he opened the door and fled.

t 35, 36. 1 Kings
xxi. 23. Jer.
xxii. 19.

u 3. Judg. iii. 26.

11 Then Jehu came forth to the servants of his lord: and one said unto him, ^x Is all well? wherefore came this? ^y mad fellow to thee? And he said unto them, Ye know the man, and his communication.

x 17, 19, 22.
y Jer. xxix. 26.
Hos. ix. 7. Mark
iii. 21. John x.
20. Acts xvii.
18. xxvi. 24.
1 Cor. iv. 10.
2 Cor. v. 13.

12 And they said, It is false; tell us now. And he said, Thus and thus spake

V. 2, 3. Jehoram having retired from the army, Jehu seems to have been left first in command, having been long a retainer to Ahab's family. The directions given this young prophet were explicit; especially as to the secrecy to be observed, and the measures to be adopted for his own safety. The service was indeed peculiarly perilous; and Samuel used caution, in a measure much less offensive. (1 Sam. xvi. 2.)

V. 5—10. Jehu was engaged in converse or consultation with the other captains, when thus addressed by a person, it is probable, of mean appearance: yet he readily complied with his desire, and went aside with him to learn his errand. And immediately the prophet anointed him, explained the meaning of that transaction, and gave him an express commission from God. In all this, no doubt he exactly adhered to his instructions. Israel, though generally idolatrous, was still the people of the LORD. They were called by his name, and had a remnant of his worshippers among them: and Jehu was thus warned to use his authority in obedience to God, and to promote true religion. The family and adherents of Ahab were criminals condemned by the supreme Judge; Jehu was appointed to execute this sentence; the kingdom was his recompense for the service; and as far as he acted according to his instructions, he needed not fear contracting guilt, or regard any reproach or opposition to which he might be exposed. The murder of the prophets and worshippers of God was more insisted upon in this indictment, than even the worship of Baal. Jehoram had been spared many years, but he continued impenitent; though not so vile as Ahab, who was punished in his posterity. Jezebel had retained her authority, and persisted in idolatry, and her enmity to JEHOVAH and his servants, though less spoken of in the reigns of her sons, than in that of her husband. Long space had been given her, but she had not repented; and her measure of iniquity was now full. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 11. This mad fellow. Some reference might be had in this expression to those vehement actions, which the prophets sometimes used when influenced by the Spirit of prophecy: but it seems rather to have resulted from profane contempt of religion. Without excepting him who "spoke as never man spoke," they, who have faithfully delivered the Lord's message to sinners, have in all ages been treated as mad men. (Marg. Ref.) They are so indifferent about those objects which attract the senses, and which man naturally desires and pursues; and so engaged about those things which are invisible, and therefore generally neglected as if unreal; their judgment, conversation, maxims, and conduct are so contrary to those of other men; and they venture, and endure, so much in pursuit of interests and objects of which others have no conception, that worldly men naturally conclude them to be mad, when they deem them honestly in earnest. The charge however is often brought in self-defence: for, admitting the principles and practice of the devoted servants of God to be reasonable, wise, and necessary to happiness, the inference is undeniable; that the ambitious, the sensual, the covetous, the dissipated, the worldly, and ungodly of every description, are fools and mad to all intents and purposes.

Ye know, &c. Perhaps Jehu meant, that the captains knew the man to be a prophet; and must suppose that he came to admonish and instruct him: or he might intend to evade the question, as if the prophet's errand had nothing peculiar in it; but they would not be thus satisfied, knowing that something more was communicated to him. This is the common interpretation.—It may, however, be questioned, whether Jehu did not suspect, that the young prophet acted in concert with the captains; and that they were previously acquainted with the man and his communication.

he to me, saying, Thus saith the LORD, I have anointed thee king over Israel.

² Matt. xxi. 7, 8.

13 Then they hasted, and took ² every man his garment, and put it under him on the top of the stairs, and ¹ blew with trumpets, saying, Jehu ^{*} is king.

^a 2 Sam. xv. 10.
¹ Kings i. 39. Pa.
xviii. 6.
[•] Heb. reigneth.

14 ¶ So Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi ^b conspired against Joram. (Now Joram had ^c kept Ramoth-gilead, he and all Israel, because of Hazael king of Syria.)

^b 31. viii. 12—15.
¹ Kings xv. 27.
xvi. 7, 9, 16.
^c viii. 28. ¹ Kings
xxii. 3.

15 But king [†] Joram was ^d returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds which the Syrians [‡] had given him, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria.) And Jehu said, If it be your minds, then let [§] none go forth nor escape out of the city, to go to tell it in Jezreel.

[†] Heb. Jehoram.
^d viii. 29. 2 Chr.
xxii. 6.

[‡] Heb. smote.

[§] Heb. no escaper go, &c. ¹ Sam.
xxvii. 9—11.

16 So Jehu rode in a chariot, and went to Jezreel; for Joram lay there. And ^e Ahaziah king of Judah was come down to see Joram.

^e viii. 29. 2 Chr.
xxii. 6, 7.

17 And there stood ^f a watchman on the tower in Jezreel, and he spied the company of Jehu as he came, and said, I see a company. And Joram said,

Sam. xiii. 34.
xviii. 24. Is. xxi.
6—9. 11, 12.
lvi. 10. lxii. 6.
Ez. xxxiii. 2—9.
Acts xx. 26—31.

^g vii. 14.

^h Luke x. 5, 6.

^g Take an horseman, and send to meet them, and let him say, ^h Is it peace?

18 So there went one on horseback to meet him, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu said, ⁱ What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me. And the watchman told, saying, The messenger came to them, but he cometh not again.

ⁱ John xxi. 22

19 Then he sent out a second on horseback, which came to them, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu answered, What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me.

20 And the watchman told, saying, He came even unto them, and cometh not again: and the ^{*} driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi; for he driveth [†] furiously.

^{*} Or, marching

21 And Joram said, [‡] Make ready. And his chariot was made ready. And [‡] Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah went out, each in his chariot, and they went out against Jehu, and [§] met him in ¹ the portion of Naboth the Jezreelite.

[†] Heb. in madness
x. 16. xix. 11—
13. Ec ix. 10.
Is. liv. 16.
[‡] Heb. bind.
¹ Kings xx. 14
Marg.
2 Chr. xxii. 7

22 And it came to pass, when Joram saw Jehu, that he said, ^m Is it peace, Jehu? And he answered, ⁿ What peace, so long as ^o the whoredoms of thy mo-

[§] Heb. found.
¹ Kings xxi. 1—
7. 15. 18, 19.
m 17.
n Is. lvii. 19—21.
o ¹ Kings xvi. 39
—33. xviii. 4.
xix. 1, 2. xxi.
8—10. 25. Nah.
iii. 4. Rev. ii.
20. xvii. 4, 5.
xviii. 3, 23.

V. 12, 13. When the captains urged Jehu further, he declared the business of the young prophet with a frankness and boldness which seem to have arisen from a divine energy on his mind; for, if the captains had not coincided with him, the discovery might have proved fatal. Some kind of faith in the word of God spoken by the prophet seems to have animated him to this hazardous undertaking, of which he does not appear to have had any previous intentions: and the minds of his companions also were surprisingly disposed to concur with him, by making him a kind of throne, and proclaiming him king with sound of trumpets. It is probable that this was done on the top of some edifice, from which the people were informed of such public transactions as were proper to be communicated to them. Thus the conspiracy was openly avowed. Perhaps Jehoram was unpopular in the army, through his severity or oppression.

V. 14. It is evident that Ramoth-gilead was at this time in the hands of the Israelites: but it is not certain whether they had just taken it, or whether Hazael had raised the siege of it, having attempted to retake it. Jehoram's absence from the army proved of fatal consequence to him: he escaped the sword of Hazael, but Jehu slew him: (1 Kings xix. 17.)

V. 16, 17. Jezreel lay at a considerable distance from Ramoth-gilead, with the river Jordan between. Yet Jehu concerted his plan with such prudence, and executed it with such despatch; his adherents came so cordially into his interests, and so faithfully kept his counsel; and the people in the neighbourhood were either so ignorant about his intentions, or so regardless of them; that Jehoram received no tidings of his march, till his distant approach was perceived by the watchmen! But the matter was of the Lord, and could not miscarry.

V. 18. Perhaps Jehoram feared lest the Syrians had obtained the victory: but Jehu by compelling his messengers to turn behind him, prevented his obtaining information, and increased his perplexity.

V. 20. Furiously. Some have rendered this, He driveth slowly. But Jehu was a vehement man, a fit instrument for his peculiar work. His approach might be seen at a great distance from a watch-tower, as he came with an armed force: and it is most probable that he travelled with as much celerity as he could. The original word is exactly rendered in the margin, in madness; being from the same root as that above translated, mad fellow.

V. 21. Jehoram had no sufficient force to oppose Jehu's armament, and he seems to have acted rashly in going out to meet him. But he still dreamed of peace, and was impatient to know, whether Jehu returned defeated by the Syrians, or triumphant over them. Thus Jehu's design was facilitated, and perhaps bloodshed prevented: and, according to the purpose of God, Jehoram was slain in the portion of Naboth, probably near the place, where he and his sons had been put to death.

ther Jezebel, and her witchcrafts are so many?

p xi. 14. 2 Chr. xxiii. 13.

23 And Joram turned his hands and fled, and said to Ahaziah, There is ^p treachery, O Ahaziah.

|| Heb. filled his hand with a bow. 1 Kings xxii. 34. q Job xx. 23-25. Ps. i. 22. Prov. xxi. 30. Ec. viii. 12, 13. 1 Thes. v. 3. * Heb. bowed.

24 And Jehu || drew a bow with his full strength, and ^a smote Jehoram between his arms, and the arrow went out at his heart, and he ^{*} sunk down in his chariot.

25 Then said Jehu to Bidkar his captain, Take up, and cast him in the portion of the field of Naboth the Jezreelite: for remember how that, when I and thou rode together after Ahab his father, ^r the LORD laid this burden upon him;

r 1 Kings xxi. 19. 24-29. Is xlii. 1. Jer. xxiii. 23-38. Nah i. 1. Matt. xi. 30.

26 Surely I have seen yesterday the [†] blood of Naboth, and the blood ^s of his sons, saith the LORD; and ^t I will requite thee in this [‡] plat, saith the LORD. Now therefore take and cast him into the plat of ground, according to the word of the LORD.

† Heb. bloods. s Deut. xxiv. 16. 2 Chr. xxv. 4. ‡ Ex. xx. 5. Ec. xviii. 19. † Or, portion.

27 But when ^u Ahaziah the king of Judah saw this, he fled by the way of the garden-house. And Jehu followed after him, and said, Smite him also in the chariot. And they did so, at the going up to Gur, which is by ^x Ibleam. And he fled to ^y Megiddo, and died there.

x 2 Chr. xxii. 7-9. Prov. xiii. 20. y 2 Chr. xxii. 11. Judg. i. 27. y xxi. 29, 30.

28 And ^z his servants carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the city of David.

z 2 Chr. xxii. 9.

29 And ^a in the eleventh year of Joram the son of Ahab began Ahaziah to reign over Judah.

a viii. 16. 24, 25. 2 Chr. xxi. 18, 19. xxii. 1, 2.

30 ¶ And when Jehu was come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it, and she ^{*} painted her face, and ^b tired her head, and looked out at a window.

* Heb. put her eyes in painting. Jer. iv. 30. Ez. xxiii. 40.

31 And as Jehu entered in at the gate she said, Had ^c Zimri ^d peace, who slew his master?

b Is. iii. 18-24. 1 Tim. ii. 9, 10. 1 Pet. iii. 3. c 1 Kings xvi. 12a, 19. d 22. Prov. xvi. 18.

32 And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, Who is on my side? who? And there looked out to him two or three [†] eunuchs.

† Or, chamberlains.

33 And he said, Throw her down. So they threw her down: and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses: and ^e he trode her under foot.

e 26. vii. 20. Mal. iv. 3. Heb. x. 29.

34 And when he was come in, he did eat and drink, and said, Go, see now ^f this cursed woman, and bury her: for ^g she is a king's daughter.

f 1 Kings xxi. 25. Prov. x. 7. Is. lxv. 15. Matt. xxv. 41. g 1 Kings xvi. 31. h Job xxxi. 3. Acts xii. 23.

35 And they went to bury her; ^h but they found no more of her than the scull, and the feet, and the palms of her hands.

36 Wherefore they came again, and

V. 22. Idolatry is in scripture called whoredom; and when committed by God's professed people, adultery, to denote the Lord's abhorrence of it. Jezebel's idolatries had been manifold and long continued; and, as some think, attended by prostitution, according to the shameless practices of the Gentiles in their worship. The word witchcrafts may allude to the fascinating artifices which harlots use to allure men to wickedness; by which her various methods of seducing the Israelites to idolatry seem to be intended. For this purpose she doubtless employed promises, presents, caresses, and flatteries; and on the other hand frowns, threats, and persecutions; by which vast multitudes were induced to conform to her religion, and join in her spiritual whoredom. As Jehu had been long unsuspected in the court of Ahab and his sons, he probably had never before in any way protested against the worship of Baal. Jehoram was answerable for Jezebel's crimes, because he countenanced and imitated them, instead of using his authority to repress them.

V. 25, 26. Here the body of Jehoram was left unburied, to be devoured by dogs, or beasts of prey: and the dogs, in some sense, licked the blood of Ahab, as flowing from the wounds of his son, in the vineyard of Naboth, of which it seems he had continued to keep possession. The words of the prophets were called burdens, as predicting a heavy burden of misery to the guilty party, which he could neither endure nor remove. It is probable, that Jehu had seldom reflected on Elisha's words, during the intervening years, till these events brought the substance of them fresh to his recollection.

V. 27, 28. Ahaziah was Ahab's grandson by Athaliah; and being also an idolater, he was within Jehu's commission. So that being found with Jehoram, he shared his punishment; though as son to pious Jehoshaphat, he was allowed an honourable burial. The circumstances elsewhere recorded concerning his death, render it probable that he was not slain till Jehu had inflicted vengeance on Jezebel at Jezreel. (Note, 2 Chr. xxii. 9.)

V. 29. Jehoram began to reign over Judah, in the fifth year of Jehoram king of Israel; it is probable in the very beginning of it: and he died, and was succeeded by Ahaziah, in the eleventh, or twelfth year of Jehoram; that is, the close of the eleventh, or beginning of the twelfth. This space is called eight years, as comprising six whole years, and a portion of two others, computed according to the reigns of the kings of Judah. (Marg. Ref.)

i Kings xxi. 23.

* Heb by the hand of.

told him. And he said, 'This is the word of the LORD, which he spake * by his servant Elijah the Tishbite, saying, In the portion of Jezreel shall dogs eat the flesh of Jezebel :

V. 30—37. Jezebel had no way of escaping or resisting Jehu: she therefore aimed to out-brave and intimidate him. Instead of assuming the habit of a mourner, or a suppliant, she arrayed herself in all the magnificence of royalty, and stationed herself in a conspicuous place to wait his arrival. She used the method customary in the east, of giving herself a majestic appearance, by a kind of paint, which dilates the eye-lids, and makes the eyes look large and bright. And when Jehu approached the palace, she accosted him by saying, "Had Zimri peace, who slew his "master?" Zimri had destroyed the house of Baasha, and had soon after fallen before Omri the father of Ahab: but he had had no commission for what he did: and Jehu was expressly ordered to take vengeance on the house of Ahab. He was not therefore to be thus intimidated: for finding upon inquiry that her chamberlains were ready to join him; (being either mercenary men who were willing to purchase his favour, or being weary of Jezebel's imperious and haughty disposition;) he ordered her to be thrown from the window, and thus she was dashed to pieces, and trodden under foot by the horses. Afterwards, when he thought of burying her, in honour of her royal extraction, he found himself disappointed; for her mangled body, (having probably been plundered of its costly attire,) was entirely torn in pieces and devoured by dogs. This reminded him of the word of the Lord by Elijah, which he had before forgotten: and he observed that her carcass was to become as dung upon the face of the earth. This was a dreadful and disgraceful end, worthy of one who had been such a curse to Israel and Judah, but had brought the heaviest curse upon herself; and who was a specimen, and a sort of type, of all ringleaders in idolatry, and tempters to that crime. Yet this cursed woman, the daughter of a king, was also the wife of a king, the mother of two kings, the mother-in-law of a king, and the grandmother of a king, all in her own life-time! So vain are all earthly honours and distinctions!

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

The long-suffering of God will enhance the condemnation of those who are not led to it by repentance. In his appointed time he will raise up and qualify suitable instruments for performing his purposes, whether of vengeance or of mercy. The faithful servants of God must stand prepared for arduous and perilous undertakings: and obedience to his commandments must have the precedence of all other duties. But as the written word is our only present rule of duty; it seldom happens, that we are required to act even in apparent violation of our relative obligations to princes, parents, masters, or other superiors, except in professing those truths, and attending on those ordinances, which they may disapprove, discountenance, or prohibit; or in keeping aloof from those superstitious

37 And ^k the carcase of Jezebel shall be as dung upon the face of the field in the portion of Jezreel; so that they shall not say, This is Jezebel.

Ps. lxxxiii. 10.
Ec. vi. 3. Is.
xiv. 18—20. Jer.
viii. 2. xvi. 4.
xxii. 19. xxxvi.
30.

or worldly places and practices, which they would enjoin. Yet if, after all endeavours "to render honour to whom "honour is due;" we should be reproached or ill-treated for our conscientious obedience to God, we must bear it with meekness and patience: and when in danger of persecution, we are allowed to flee from it. They, who are employed as ministers, will be the most exposed in these respects: for the message of the Lord meeting sinners in the midst of their worldly pursuits, singles them out, by an application to their hearts and conscience, as if they were addressed by name: and whilst some are thus separated from their companions, and by the unction of the Holy Spirit, prepared for the service of God, others are marked out in the midst of their prosperity, as in danger of eternal misery. Whilst, however, we adhere to our instructions, we shall be accepted and preserved.

V. 11—29.

Every man should well consider to what work the Lord calls him, and in what manner and for what ends he ought to do it. His special commission justifies the severest executions of his enemies: but our general instructions to do good, and to bless, and to overcome evil with good, point out to us a more delightful service, in which we should thankfully abound from day to day. Yet the vengeance of God will fall with peculiar weight upon the head of those, that oppress and persecute his people and ministers; who may deem themselves highly favoured, if they are only reviled, and reproached as fools and madmen. Satisfied with the testimony of their conscience, and the Lord's gracious acceptance, they may rejoice and be exceedingly glad, at being thus ranked with prophets, apostles, and the Saviour himself: and instead of resenting the opprobrious terms as an intolerable affront, may glory in them as a most honourable distinction. They should however be extremely careful to avoid all ridiculous and unreasonableness words and actions, that they may give no just occasion for such malignant and injurious charges; which, when unmerited, cannot possibly injure them, except they make them angry, contentious, discontented, or reluctant to their work. And the Lord often secretly disposes men to concur in his designs, in a manner contrary to their former conduct, and to all human probabilities: and then such events, as would otherwise have been impracticable, are speedily and easily accomplished: and, to ask advice, is often the readiest way of obtaining concurrence and assistance. Prudence, united with vigour and despatch, promises success in the most arduous designs: and a disposition to drive furiously, may sometimes fit a man for peculiar services, which would not so well suit the temper of more sedate and amiable persons: yet in general it is no commendation of a man's character, or qualification for the most desirable kinds of usefulness. Whilst sudden destruction is rapidly approaching, sinners are still saying, peace, peace: but what peace can

CHAP. X.

Jehu by letters causes Ahab's seventy sons to be slain at Samaria, and their heads to be brought to Jezreel, 1—7. He shows this to be a fulfilment of Elijah's prophecy, and destroys all Ahab's kindred in Jezreel, 8—11. In his way to Samaria he slays forty-two of Ahaziah's brethren, 12—14. Attended by Jehonadab, he slays all that remained to Ahab in Samaria, 15—17. He assembles all the worshippers of Baal by stratagem; puts them to death, and breaks down Baal's images and temple, 18—28. He follows the sins of Jeroboam; yet the kingdom to the fourth generation is promised him, for destroying the house of Ahab, 29—31. Hazael smites Israel, 32, 33. Jehu dies, and Jehoahaz succeeds him, 34—36.

AND Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria, unto ^a the rulers of Jezthere be to the workers of iniquity, and to those who have tempted others to join them in rebellion against God?—Notorious sinners entail judgment on their posterity unto the third and fourth generation, especially when these walk in the steps of their progenitors. The circumstances of temporal judgments are sometimes remarkably calculated to call to remembrance the crimes for which they are inflicted: so that the most superficial observers must perceive the justice of God in them, and acknowledge that the Scriptures are fulfilled. How will it then be in “the day of wrath, and the revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who will render unto every one according to his works?” And if we would escape the destruction of the ungodly, we must avoid their most intimate acquaintance; for “a companion of fools shall be destroyed.”

^x Deut. xvi. 18.
¹ Kings xxi. 8—14.

V. 30—37.

Some transgressors have so long domineered and prospered in their crimes, that they suppose they can out-brave all opposition, and defy even the justice of God himself. Their hearts grow more hardened and insolent, when they are evidently upon the brink of destruction: and an unhumbled heart, in alarming and humiliating circumstances, is a distinguishing mark of those that “are appointed unto wrath.” They who carefully adorn their persons by “painting the face,” “tiring the hair, and putting on of apparel,” whilst their souls are polluted with the guilt and defilement of innumerable unrepented, unpardoned, unmortified iniquities, should sometimes turn aside to view themselves in this mirror; and to contemplate the conduct and fate of Jezebel: especially they who use these arts to seduce others from the ways of truth and righteousness. Such persons, however noble, wealthy, beautiful, or successful, are emphatically accursed, under the curse of God reel, to the elders, and to * them that ^{* Heb. nourishers.} brought up Ahab's children, saying,

2 Now ^b as soon as this letter cometh ^{b v. 6.} to you, seeing your master's sons are with you, and there are with you chariots and horses, a fenced city also, and armour;

3 ^c Look even out the best and meetest of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and ^d fight for your master's house.

4 But they were exceedingly afraid, and said, ^e Behold, two kings stood not before him: how then shall we stand? ^{e ix. 24. 27. Luke xiv. 31.}

5 And he that was over the house, and he that was over the city, the elders also, and the bringers up of the children, sent to Jehu, saying, ^f We are thy servants, and will do all that thou shalt bid us; we will not make any king: do thou that which is good in thine eyes. ^{f xviii. 14. Josh. ix. 11. 24, 25. 1 Kings xx. 8. Jer. xxvii. 7, 8. 17. John xii. 26.}

6 Then he wrote a letter the second time to them, saying, If ye be [†] mine, and if ye will hearken unto my voice, [‡] take ye [†] Heb. for me.

^{ix. 32. Matt xxi. 30. Luke ix. 50.}
[‡] Deut. v. 9.
^{Josh. vii. 24, 25. Job xxi. 19. Is. xiv. 21, 22. Rev. ii. 20—23.}

themselves, and the cursed instruments of bringing others into the same condemnation. Persons of royal extraction or authority naturally annex the idea of sacred to their distinctions: yet they often pay no regard to the sacred service and honour of the King of kings: but how can they expect the conscientious obedience of their subjects, whilst they are in a state of actual rebellion against their Sovereign: and attempting to corrupt the morals and principles of the people? Indeed traitors are justly execrated, and seldom prosper: but the Lord often uses them as the instruments of his righteous vengeance against ungodly princes. Court-favourites are commonly a fickle, time-serving people. For the sake of emolument, they are very assiduous and lavish in their flatteries: but when a revolution takes place, they often betray, or even murder, the same unhappy persons, to secure themselves, or to obtain still greater preferment! This is especially to be feared by those who render themselves odious through insolence and wickedness; and who are only served out of slavish fear or mercenary hope. Let proud tyrants and oppressors study this chapter with fear and trembling: the loftiest will be brought low, and every one of them in his turn must give an account unto God, with whom is no respect of persons. The anguish of Jezebel's death, and the disgrace of her mangled limbs, faintly shadow forth the misery and contempt which, at and after death, will be the portion of those who have been “the terror of the mighty in the land of the living;” whose very memory shall rot in infamy. This the believer will foresee and expect; and at length all the world shall witness it with astonishment. May we flee from that “wrath which is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men;” and seek to secure an interest in those precious promises that will assuredly be performed in due season!

the heads of the men your master's sons, and come to me to Jezreel by to-morrow this time. Now the king's sons, being seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, which brought them up.

7 And it came to pass, when the letter came to them, that they took the king's sons, and ^hslew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent him them to Jezreel.

8 And ⁱ there came a messenger, and told him, saying, They have brought the heads of the king's sons. And he said, Lay ye them in two heaps, at the entering in of the gate, ^k until the morning.

9 And it came to pass in the morning, that he went out, and stood, and said to all the people, ^l Ye be righteous: behold, ^m I conspired against my master and slew him: but who slew all these?

10 Know now, that there shall ⁿ fall unto the earth nothing of the word of the LORD, which the LORD spake concerning the house of Ahab: for ^o the LORD hath done that which he spake ^{*} by his servant Elijah.

11 So Jehu slew all that remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, and all his great men, and his [†] kinsfolks, and ^p his priests, until ^q he left him none remaining.

12 ¶ And he arose and departed, and came to Samaria. And as he was at the [‡] shearing house in the way,

13 Jehu [§] met with ^r the brethren of Ahaziah king of Judah, and said, Who are ye? And they answered, We are the brethren of Ahaziah; and we go down to ^{||} salute the children of the king, and the children of the queen.

14 And he said, ^s Take them alive. And they took them alive, and slew them at the pit of the shearing house, even two and forty men; ^t neither left he any of them.

^o ix. 7-10. ¹ Kings xxi. 21-24. 29.

^{*} Heb. by the hand of.

[†] Or, acquaintance.
^p xxi. 20. 1 Kings xviii. 19. 40. xxi. 6.
^q 1 Kings xiv. 10. xv. 29. xvi. 11. xxi. 22.

[‡] Heb. house of shepherds binding sheep.
[§] Heb. found.
^r viii. 29. 2 Chr. xxi. 17. xxi. 1. 8.

^{||} Heb. to the peace of.

^s 6. 10, 11. 1 Kings xx. 18.

^t viii. 18. xi. 1. 1 Kings xxii. 4. 2 Chr. xix. 2.

NOTES.

CHAP. X. V. 1-7. These seventy persons were Ahab's descendants by several wives, probably including the sons of Jehoram. They resided at Samaria, as a more secure situation than Jezreel: or, as some think, they fled thither from Jezreel, when Jehoram was slain; attended by the rulers or elders of Jezreel, who might be supposed most attacked to the interests of the family; and by those who had superintended their education. Doubtless many of the elders were the same persons, who had put Naboth and his sons to death in obedience to Jezebel; and their consciences and principles having been debauched by such services, they were equally ready to murder the family of Ahab at Jehu's command. Jehu seems to have been aware of their base disposition; and he wrote letters to them, that he might save trouble, avoid odium, and prevent further bloodshed, by using their ministry in killing the young princes. He was commissioned to destroy all the house of Ahab, and he was not at all scrupulous about the means of doing it: otherwise he would have hesitated at employing men to serve him with such base treachery and murder.—But regardless of this, he by an intimidating challenge assured them, that if they attempted to protect their royal charge, the matter must be decided by the sword. He knew their strength, and he would have them to be aware of his resolution. As, however, they feared not the vengeance and power of God, but the courage and success of Jehu, which they despaired of resisting; they unreservedly submitted to him. Nor did they, when they received his second letter, so much as beg that others might be appointed to slay the young princes; but without reluctance, at the first word, beheaded them all. Doubtless they had brought them up delicately, repeatedly avowed their attachment to them, and bestowed many flattering encomiums upon them.

They probably expected a reward from Jehu, but they seem to have been slain among the other adherents of Ahab's family. Most of these princes were grown men, though some might be minors or children.

V. 8-10. The heads of Ahab's sons, having been laid in a place of public concourse, would occasion much amazement and many inquiries; which gave Jehu an opportunity of addressing the multitude on the subject. He meant to abate the odium of his own conduct towards the family of Ahab, by contrasting it with the atrocious treachery and cruelty of these professed friends. At the same time he reminded them, that the whole was a performance of the word of the Lord by Elijah, which would receive a still more exact completion; instead therefore of condemning the persons employed in this bloody work, they ought to adore the truth and justice, and submit to the will, of God in it. Thus he likewise avowed his purpose of going on with what he had begun: but, as the commission given him by the prophet was not publicly known, he did not mention it.

V. 11. Priests. These seem to have been the priests or prophets of Baal and other idols, who had eaten at Jezebel's table, and who presided over all the others. As they were retainers to Ahab's family, Jehu may be supposed to have put them to death from reasons of state, rather than from zeal against idolatry.

V. 13, 14. All the sons of Jehoram, the father of Ahaziah, had been taken captive before this; but these persons seem to have been the sons of Ahaziah's brethren, or his nephews. They belonged however to the family of Ahab, and fell within Jehu's commission. (Marg. Ref.) They supposed Jehoram and Jezebel to have been still living, and were going in a company to see them; and thus they met their fate.

^b xi. 1. 1 Kings xxi. 21. 2 Chr. xxi. 4. Matt. xiv. 8. 11.

ⁱ 1 Kings xxi. 14.

^k Deut. xxi. 23.

^l Sam. xii. 3. 1s v. 3. 2s ix. 14. 24.

^m 1 Sam. iii. 19. xv. 29. Zech. i. 6. Mark xiii. 31.

15 ¶ And when he was departed thence, he * lighted on ^u Jehonadab the son of ^x Rhechab coming to meet him: and he † saluted him, and said to him, ^y Is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart? And Jehonadab answered, It is. If it be, ^z give me thine hand. And he gave him his hand; and ^a he took him up to him into the chariot.

16 And he said, ^b Come with me, and see my zeal for the LORD. So they made him ride in his chariot.

17 And when he came to Samaria, he slew all that remained unto Ahab in Samaria, ^c till he had destroyed him, ^d according to the saying of the LORD, which he spake to Elijah.

18 And Jehu gathered all the people together, and said unto them, ^e Ahab served Baal a little; but ^f Jehu shall serve him much.

19 Now therefore call unto me ^g all the prophets of Baal, ^h all his servants, and ⁱ all his priests; let none be wanting: for I have a great sacrifice to do to Baal; whosoever shall be wanting, he shall not live. ^k But Jehu did it in subtlety to the intent that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal.

20 And Jehu said, † Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal. And they proclaimed it.

21 And Jehu sent through all Israel: and all the worshippers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left that came not. ^l And they came into ^m the house of Baal; and the house of Baal was full from one end to another.

22 And he said unto him that was over the vestry, Bring forth ⁿ vestments for all the worshippers of Baal. And he brought them forth vestments.

23 And Jehu went, and Jehonadab the son of Rechab, into the house of Baal, and said unto the worshippers of Baal, Search, and look that there be here with you none of the servants of the LORD, but the worshippers of Baal only.

24 And when they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt-offerings, Jehu appointed fourscore men without, and said, ^o If any of the men whom I have brought

V. 15, 16. (Jer. xxxv.) Jehonadab was at that time eminent for his cordial attachment to the worship of JEHOVAH, and for a life of strict piety, and deadness to the world. Having therefore heard that Jehu was executing the predicted vengeance upon the house of Ahab, he seems to have entertained hopes of a thorough reformation, and was desirous of giving his cordial support to so good a work: and he went to meet Jehu, who with apparent piety pronounced a blessing upon him, inquiring whether he met his sincere affection with reciprocal cordiality. Indeed some think, that Jehonadab first blessed Jehu as Jacob had blessed Pharaoh; and that then Jehu addressed him. Being, however, satisfied with his answers, he took him up into his chariot, secretly elated, as it seems, with the concurrence of so pious a person, and expecting by his influence to acquire the full confidence of the people. But had he intended effectually to reform religion, he would doubtless have sent for Elisha, to counsel and concur with him; and his neglect in that particular was no favourable indication of his designs. He seems to have ostentatiously boasted of his zeal for the LORD, and wanted to have it noticed; but in reality he was influenced by carnal policy, united with a temporary conviction, and not by true piety.

V. 18, 19. The kings of Israel, who had seized the throne by conspiring against their predecessors, had commonly imitated or exceeded their idolatry: and this gave plausibility to Jehu's stratagem: but it was an unjustifiable measure. It would have been sufficient, if he had destroyed the temples and images of Baal, and put to death the known abettors and ring-leaders of his worship, and every one that should afterwards attempt to revive it. But to draw them into a snare, by a direct falsehood, and to tempt them to commit idolatry that he might slay them in the very act, was "to do evil, that good may come," and resembled the abhorred maxim of those who argue, that faith is not to be kept with heretics.

V. 21. Numbers doubtless had been drawn in to bow the knee to Baal, in order to obtain the favour or escape the displeasure of their rulers, that did not cordially approve of that idolatry, though too indifferent about the worship of JEHOVAH. And these would keep away, till Jehu's intentions were more manifest: but the zealous idolaters were judicially infatuated, and universally attended. Their number must have been small, compared with the state of things in the first days of Elijah: but Jehoram was not zealous for the worship of Baal, as Ahab had been; and the incessant labours of Elisha, and the sons of the prophets, must have produced very great effects. Some expositors, however, think that by servants of Baal, (as in the original,) his worshippers are not meant, but the persons who ministered to the prophets and priests, as the Levites and Nethinims did to the sons of Aaron.

V. 22. Vestments. The prophets, priests, and servants of Baal wore distinguishing garments; in which they were accustomed to perform their religious services.

V. 23. None of, &c. This was spoken in a pretended zeal to preserve the purity of the worship of Baal: but had not the idolaters been infatuated, they must have suspected some design concealed under such a precaution.

* Heb. found.
u Jer. xxxv. 6, 8.
14—19.
x 1 Chr. ii. 55.
† Heb. blessed.
Gen. xxxi. 55.
xlvii. 7, 10.
y 1 Chr. xii. 17.
18. Gal. iv. 12.
z Ezra x. 19 Ez.
xvii. 18. Gal. ii.
9.
a Acts viii. 31.

b 31. ix. 7—9.
1 Kings xix. 10.
14. 17. Prov.
xxvii. 2. Matt.
vii. 2. Rom. x. 2.

c ix. 8. Ps. xxi.
8, 9. Mal. iv. 1.
d 1 Kings xxi. 21.

e iii. 2. 1 Kings
xvi. 31, 32. xviii.
19, 22, 40.
f Job xiii. 7.
Rom. xiii. 8.
Phil. iv. 8.
g iii. 13. 1 Kings
xxii. 6.
h 21.

i 11.

k 2 Cor. iv. 2. xi.
3. 13—15. xii.
16—19. 1 Thes.
ii. 3.

† Heb. Sanctify.
1 Kings xviii. 19, 20. xxi. 12.

l Joel iii. 2. 11—14. Rev. xvi. 19.
m 1 Kings xvi. 32.
n Or. so full that they stood mouth to mouth.

n Ex. xxviii. ii.
Matt. xxii. 11.
12. 2 Cor. xi.
14, 15.

o 1 Kings xx. 39, 40.

into your hands escape, he that letteth him go, his life shall be for the life of him.

25 And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt-offering, that Jehu said to the guard, and to the captains, Go in, and slay them; let none come forth. And they smote them with the *edge of the sword; and the guard and the captains cast them out, and went to the city of the house of Baal.

26 And they brought forth the †images out of the house of Baal, and burned them.

27 And they †brake down the image of Baal, and brake down the house of Baal, and made it †a draught-house unto this day.

28 Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel.

29 ¶ Howbeit from †the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, whomade Israel to sin, Jehu departed not from after them, to wit, †the golden calves that were †in Beth-el, and that were in Dan.

30 And the LORD said unto Jehu, Because thou hast done well in execut- ing that which is right in mine eyes, and hast done unto the house of Ahab according to all that was in mine heart, †thy children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel.

31 But Jehu †took †no heed to †walk in the law of the LORD God of Israel with all his heart: for †he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, which made Israel to sin.

32 ¶ In those days the LORD began to †cut Israel short: and †Hazeel smote them in all the coasts of Israel;

33 From Jordan †eastward, all †the land of Gilead, the Gadites, and the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, †even Gilead and Bashan.

34 Now †the rest of the acts of Jehu, and all that he did, and all his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

35 And Jehu slept with his fathers: and they buried him in Samaria. And Jehoahaz his son reigned in his stead.

36 And †the time that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty and eight years.

z 35. xiii. 10. xiv. 23. xv. 8. 10—12.

† Heb. observed not.

a Deut. iv. 13. 23. Ps. xxxix. 1.

Prov. iv. 23.

Heb. xii. 15.

b Deut. v. 33. x. 12. 13. Ez.

xxxvi. 27.

c iii. 3. 1 Kings

xiv. 16.

B. C. 880.

† Heb. cut off the ends.

d viii. 12. 1 Kings

xix. 17.

† Heb. toward the rising of the sun.

e Num. xxxii. 32

—42. Deut. iii.

12 — 17. Josh.

xiii. 9—12.

† Or, even to Gilead, &c. Am.

i. 3, 4.

f xii. 19. xiii. 2.

B. C. 856.

† Heb. the days were.

p Ez. ix. 5, 6.

q Deut. xiii. 9—11.

Ez. xxii. 21, 22.

Rev. xvi. 6, 7.

† Heb. mouth.

† Heb. statues.

† 1 Kings xiv. 23.

r Lev. xxvi. 30.

Deut. vii. 5. 25.

† 1 Kings xvi. 32.

s Ezra vi. 11. Dan.

ii. 5. iii. 29.

t 1 Kings xii. 28

—30. xiii. 34.

xiv. 16. Mark

vi. 18—20.

u Ex. xxxii. 4.

Hos. viii. 5, 6.

x. 5. xiii. 2.

x 1 Kings xii. 29.

y 1 Kings xxi. 29.

Ez. xxix. 18—

20. Hos. i. 4.

† Matt. vi. 2. 5.

V. 25. Perhaps all the servants of Baal were not collected, nor all others separated, till the sacrifice was placed upon the altar; and therefore they were permitted to go through with their worship. We may suppose that Jehonadab so much approved the substance of Jehu's service, that he was willing to allow for the informality with which it was performed: otherwise he certainly could not approve of his dissimulation, or attendance on an idolatrous sacrifice with apparent satisfaction. It seems that the buildings around the temple of Baal, for the accommodation of his priests and their attendants, were so numerous, as to form a kind of city by themselves.

V. 27. A draught-house. The citizens thenceforth made a practice of carrying all the filth and rubbish of Samaria to that place, in contempt and abhorrence of the idolatry which had been there committed.

V. 28. From this time the worship of Baal was never restored in the kingdom of Israel, though other idolatry abounded.

V. 29—31. Had Jehu acted from genuine zeal for the honour of God, in destroying the worship of Baal, he would also have put down the worship of the golden calves; that idolatry being as expressly forbidden by the second, as the other was by the first commandment. But that was a politic and profitable sin, and it appeared dangerous to attempt any thing against it. In his general conduct he took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord with all his heart; and his partiality proved his hypocrisy. The Lord, however, sent a prophet to assure him, that he had done right in executing vengeance on Ahab's family, as well as in destroying the worship of Baal; and to promise him a suitable recompense. Accordingly, his family sat on the throne of Israel longer than any other family did, either before or after; as the fourth generation reached to above one hundred years from the time when Jehu ascended the throne. Nevertheless in another respect these very actions of Jehu were deemed deserving of punishment. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 32—36. At this time Hazael committed those barbarities which Elisha had predicted, and we may suppose that the miseries of Israel were very great: but from the period when Jehu ceased to do the work of God, his actions and might are no further noticed in sacred Scripture, and the account of his reign is very compendious.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

How soon are the most flourishing families and kingdoms desolated, when God ariseth to execute his judgments!—Such as bequeath his blessing to their children in answer to their prayers, and as a gracious recompense of their faith and charity, do better for them, than those who leave estates to their descendants, burdened with the indignation of the Lord, for their injustice, oppression, and impiety. The selfishness of the human heart gives peculiar energy to those temptations, which powerfully assail our

CHAP. XI.

Athaliah murders the seed royal of Judah: but Joash, the infant son of Ahaziah, is preserved by Jehosheba in the temple, 1—3. Jehoiada, the high-priest, in the seventh year, having taken proper measures, anoints and crowns him, 4—12. Athaliah, pressing into the temple, is seized and slain, 13—16.

Jehoiada makes a covenant between the LORD, the king, and the people; and destroys the worship of Baal, 17, 18. Joash reigns in peace, and the people rejoice, 19—21.

AND when ^{a 2 Chr. xxli. 10.} Athaliah ^{b viii. 26. ix. 27.} the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose, and destroyed all the ^{* Heb. seed of the kingdom.} seed royal.

hopes and fears. Where this principle has the ascendancy, men may be induced to such treachery and cruelty as before they never thought of: and they who influence their inferiors to practise iniquity for them, need not to be surprised if they commit similar crimes against them. But nothing, except faith, fear of God, and love to his name, and the hope of eternal life, can give a decided victory over all temptations; and enable us to obey the Lord, and venture all consequences in his service. Such as have done things really or apparently evil, are often disposed to draw in others to do worse; and then to conclude, that they shall be acquitted by righteous judges, not being themselves so atrociously criminal. Yet the law of God, and not any conduct of man, is the rule by which our actions are to be judged: and, though tempters generally prove accusers, yet a moiety of the guilt properly belongs to them.—We readily perceive the propriety of submitting where we are unable to withstand, and of taking warning by the examples of those who have in vain opposed the will of earthly princes; at least we are disposed at any price to pacify their displeasure. But are not sinners sensible that they cannot stand against the indignation of the Almighty? And yet they persist in rebellion against him, and will not take proper measures, or make proper submissions, to avert his wrath and recover his favour! If we call ourselves the servants of earthly potentates, they expect that our obedience to their mandates should evince the sincerity of our professions: and if we are the Lord's, we must show that we are devoted to him by doing his will; and he never did, nor can, command any thing unjust or unreasonable. We should dread and abhor the man that had murdered our parents or children, the wife of our bosom, or our beloved friend; and who had aimed a dagger at our hearts, and having repeatedly wounded us, still avowed his purpose of taking away our lives. But when we look back upon our deceased relatives, or forward to our own dissolution: when we reflect on the sufferings that we or ours endure or fear, or on those miseries which render the earth like one great hospital: when we consider the innumerable millions of human bodies, which have been consigned to the tomb, and are reverted to the dust; and the vast multitudes daily following: yea, when our believing thoughts make excursions into the invisible world, and survey the miseries of fallen angels and departed souls, consigned to the place of torment: or when we look forward to the resurrection and the final judgment, and view the immense numbers of the wicked, appalled with horror and despair, attending to the awful sentence, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels:"

in short, when the aggregate of all the misery in the whole creation, through eternal ages, hath been considered, and the question occurs, "Who slew all these?" The answer will be, SIN; TRANSGRESSION OF GOD'S LAW has made all this havock, and introduced all this misery into his most perfect creation; and worse than all, that SIN hath crucified the LORD OF GLORY. Shall we then lodge this viper in our bosom, and madly seek for happiness from the cause of all possible misery? Rather we should abhor and dread it with that complete detestation, which would render its distant approach more formidable to us than any temporal pain or affliction. In the most awful transactions, even though attended by the basest villanies, the truth and justice of God ought to be acknowledged; nay, true faith assures us of them, even when to us imperceptible: for no word of God can fall to the ground, but all will be performed, and then his glory will be conspicuous to the whole world.

V. 15—36.

Men of eminent godliness should countenance every work of public reformation; and wise men will value their presence and assistance. But they are frequently too hasty in concurrence, and too sanguine in their expectations, when those in exalted stations stand forth the professed friends of religion: and thus they are drawn in to sanction those wrong measures which they are unable to prevent, to the discredit of the common cause. Unsound professors of religion are often ready to say to godly persons, "Come and see our zeal for the LORD," when they are only aiming, by the assistance of a party, to establish their own authority and reputation, or other secular interests. And when men's professions are very strong, their progress very rapid, and their zeal tarnished with ostentation, or leavened with subtlety and a fickle or fierce demeanour; they may justly be suspected, and need to be watched and admonished by those who would avoid subsequent painful reflections. Though vehemency and severity were in some measure consistent with the awful executions which a righteous God commanded formerly: yet the manner in which such orders were performed might indicate a very improper spirit. Our zeal however is worthless, except it be tempered with humility, meekness, kindness, and a peaceable frame of mind: as furious contentions and bitter recriminations cannot adorn the Gospel, or meet the divine acceptance; for neither the wrath nor the falsehood of man can "work the righteousness of God." Hypocrites betray themselves by their earnestness about one part of religion, and their indifference about others: and generally profitable or plauc2 Chr. xxii. 11.

Jehoshaphat.

d xli. 1, 2. Jeho-ash.

e viii. 19. Prov.
xxi. 30. Is. vii.
6, 7. xxxvii. 35.
f 1 Kings vi. 6. 8.
Jer. xxxv. 2.
Ez. xl. 45.

g 2 Chr. xxii. 12. s
Ps. xii. 8. Mal.
iii. 15.
B. C. 878.
h 2 Chr. xxiii. 1.
i 9. 1 Chr. ix. 13.
k Acts v. 24. 36.

2 But ^c Jehosheba, the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons which were slain; and ^e they hid him, even him, and his nurse, ^f in the bed-chamber from Athaliah, so that he was not slain.

3 And he was with her hid in the house of the LORD six years. And Athaliah did reign over the land.

4 And ^h the seventh year Jehoiada sent and fetched the ⁱ rulers over hundreds, with ^k the captains and the guard, and brought them to him into the house of the LORD, and ^l made a covenant with them, and took an oath of them in the house of the LORD, and shewed them the king's son.

5 And he commanded them, saying, This is the thing that ye shall do; A third part of you ^m that enter in on the sabbath, shall even be keepers of ⁿ the watch of the king's house;

6 And a third part shall be at ^o the gate of Sur; and a third part at the gate behind the guard: so shall ye keep the l 17. 1 Sam. xviii. 3. xxiii. 18.

2 Chr. xv. 12.
xxix. 10. xxxiv. 31, 32. Neh. ix. 38.

m 1 Chr. ix. 25.
xxii. 3-6. 32.
xxiv. 3-6.
Luke i. 8, 9.
n 19. xvi. 18.
1 Kings x. 5.
Jer. xxvi. 10.
Ez. xlv. 2, 3.
o 1 Chr. xxvi. 13.
— 19. 2 Chr. xxiii. 4, 5.

sible sins are spared, whilst those which would injure them with their party are cast off. Yet the church and the world may often reap advantage from their partial obedience: and God will not remain as it were indebted to them, but will recompense their external services with external rewards, and at the same time visit their sins with deserved punishments. Much more then will he recompense the upright services of his believing people, who may be encouraged to abound in his work. The servants of Satan are often open enough in avowing what master they serve; therefore it is shameful and deplorable, when the servants of the Lord are unwilling men should know that they are employed by him. If the wicked could so separate God's people from their company, as to let none remain in it; we might be sure that destruction was preparing for them: but what blessed ordinances should we have, if no servants of sin and Satan crept in amongst the worshippers of the LORD! generally, if not always, we must say, "Ye are clean, but not all." Nay, many are useful to the souls of others, who themselves prove apostates and cast-aways. The Lord grant that this may not be the case with the writer, or any of the readers, of these observations!

NOTES.

CHAP. XI. V. 1, 2. It is probable that Athaliah was left in authority, when Ahaziah went to visit Jehoram: and being informed that he was slain, she proceeded to destroy all the seed royal, or the seed of the kingdom; that is, all who could claim the kingdom, as descended of David's royal race. This seems to include all whom Athaliah knew to belong to that family, especially in the line of Solomon and Rehoboam, without excepting even her own grand-children by Ahaziah. Some think an impious revenge actuated her: and that as God had ordered the family of Ahab, (whose daughters she was,) to be destroyed; so she was determined to extirpate that family which he especially favoured. But it is more certain that she was influenced by ambition, and desired to reign without a competitor; and to be able to defend herself against Jehu, by whom she might think herself marked for destruction. By this concurrence of events, Jehoshaphat's alliance with the house of Ahab proved almost the total ruin of his family; and of the house of David, from whence the Messiah was to descend! To appearance, and in Athaliah's intention, it was exterminated: and indeed that branch which descended from Jehoshaphat, was so interwoven with Ahab's devoted family, that without a favourable construction of the sentence, none of them could have been spared: for Jehoshaphat's other sons had been slain by Jehoram, as soon as he had gotten possession of the throne; (2 Chron. xxi. 4.) But by an act of grace, as it were, Joash, being both a branch of the house of David, and of that of Ahab, was considered as belonging to the former family, and snatched as a brand from the burning. Some think that he was left for dead among the other victims of Athaliah's ambition; but being taken away, he revived and was recovered: or else he was removed when they were slaying the others, and either was not sought for or could not be found. Jehosheba, though the daughter of Jehoram, (whether by Athaliah, or some other wife, is not certain,) had been married some time before to Jehoiada the high-priest; God thus preparing for the protection of Joash, before the danger became apparent.—Jehosheba concealed Joash in some of the chambers set apart for the use of the priests, where he remained in safety; Athaliah not suspecting that any of the family survived.

V. 3. It seems that the degenerate men of Judah did not oppose this usurpation! We are informed of nothing respecting Athaliah's conduct during her continuance in authority; but that she established the worship of Baal, as a genuine daughter of Jezebel.

V. 4. Jehoiada, as high-priest, and as having the lawful heir to the crown under his care, was fully authorized to act on this occasion. Indeed Jehosheba had a far better right to the throne than Athaliah. All the persons whom Jehoiada first employed seem to have been Levites; though others, by their means, were afterwards brought to concur. For the Levites were numbered, and arranged in companies under their several heads, called captains or leaders; and they attended upon the service of the temple, in rotation, by weekly courses. (Marg. Ref.) These were first informed by Jehoiada, that the king's son was in the temple, and that he intended to place him on the throne: and he proposed to make a solemn agreement with them before God, to which they readily acceded, and bound themselves by oath to fidelity. Perhaps Athaliah's government had grown intolerably oppressive; or Jehoiada perceived that its continuance threatened the destruction of religion: and therefore the priests, and the chief of the Levites, as most immediately engaged for the support of that cause, went among their brethren, to prepare their minds to attempt a deliverance.

* Or. from breaking up.

† Or. companies.
Heb. hands.
p 5. 2 Chr. xxiii.
6.

watch of the house, * that it be not broken down.

7 And two † parts of all you that go forth on the sabbath, even they shall keep the watch of the house of the LORD about the king.

8 And ye shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand: and ^a he that cometh within the ranges, let him be slain: and be ye with the king as he goeth out, and as he cometh in.

9 And ^r the captains over the hundreds did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest commanded: and they took every man his men that were to come in on the sabbath, with them that should go out on the sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest.

10 And to the captains over hundreds did the priest give ^s king David's spears and shields, that were in the temple of the LORD.

11 And the guard stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, round about the king, from the right † corner of the temple to the left corner of the temple, along ^t by the altar and the temple.

† Sam. xxi. 9
2 Sam. viii. 7.
1 Chr. xxvi. 26.
27. 2 Chr. v. 1.
xxiii. 9, 10.

† Heb. shoulder.

† Ex. xl. 6. 2 Chr.
vi. 12. Matt.
xxviii. 35.

V. 5—9. The Levites attended in their courses every week; one company coming in on the morning of the sabbath, and another going out in the evening. But Jehoiada employed both companies on this occasion; such only excepted as were necessary to perform their ordinary services. By the king's house some understand the chamber in which Joash resided; others the royal palace, from which there was an entrance into the court of the temple. This was guarded by one division to prevent a surprise: another was set to guard the gate of Sur, or the foundation; and another to protect the temple and courts from injury; or, as the original may mean, to guard the breach, which had been made in the temple, or its out-buildings. (2 Chr. xxiv. 7.) Others of the Levites, who came in on the sabbath, were stationed to guard the king himself, with orders to slay any one who attempted to come within their ranks. These arrangements no doubt were supposed suitable, and sufficient to secure the temple from being polluted by the partisans of Athaliah, whilst Jehoiada and his sons were engaged in crowning and anointing Joash. (2 Chr. xxiii.) By employing the Levites almost exclusively, all suspicion was precluded: and as the throne belonged to the family of David, not only by hereditary succession, but by the special appointment of God; and as these rights, and all the interests of the kingdom of Judah, and even the worship of God, were basely trampled upon by a murderous idolatrous woman, of the devoted house of Ahab; they were fully justified in these decided measures 12 And he brought forth the king's son, and ^x put the crown upon him, and gave him ^y the testimony: and they made him king, and ^z anointed him; and they ^a clapped their hands, and said, † God save the king!

13 ¶ And ^b when Athaliah heard the noise of the guard, and of the people, she came to the people into the temple of the LORD.

14 And when she looked, behold, the king stood by ^c a pillar, as the manner was, and ^d the princes and the trumpeters by the king; and ^e all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew with trumpets: and Athaliah rent her clothes, and cried, 'Treason, treason!

15 But Jehoiada the priest commanded the ^f captains of the hundreds, the officers of the host, and said unto them, Have her forth without the ranges; and him that ^h followeth her kill with the sword. For the priest had said, 'Let her not be slain in the house of the LORD.

16 And they laid hands on her: and she went by the way ^k by the which the horses came into the king's house: and ^l there was she slain.

against her. Perhaps they were likewise assured of the concurrence of the people at large, when matters were ripe for their interposition.

V. 10. It is probable that these were arms which David had taken from his conquered enemies, and dedicated to the Lord, by way of ascribing the honour of his success to him. This tends to confirm the interpretation before given, concerning these captains; namely, that they were not military officers, as some suppose; but the leaders of the several courses and companies of the Levites, who had no arms of their own.

V. 12. The ceremony of coronation is not before this expressly mentioned, in the appointment of any king, either in Judah or Israel; but it seems to have become customary. No doubt, the testimony signifies the book of the law; and Joash was instructed by this significant action, that he received his authority from God, and was accountable to him for it, according to the rule of his word. He was also anointed, in token of his divine appointment to the kingdom; as Athaliah's usurpation had interrupted the succession. (Marg. Ref.) When this had been done, not only the priests and Levites, but the people who had witnessed the transaction, shouted for joy, and wished their king life and prosperity.

V. 13—16. Athaliah, after the manner of her mother Jezebel, instead of fleeing with feminine timidity, when she heard the noise and suspected the occasion, went directly into the temple, unattended by a guard, as if she u 4. 2 Chr. xxiii.

11.
x 2 Sam. i. 10.
xii. 30. Esth. ii.
17. vi. 8. Ps.
xxi. 3. lxxxi.
39. Heb. ii. 9.
Rev. xix. 12.
y Ex. xxv. 16.
xxxi. 18. Deut.
xxvii. 18—20. Ps.
lxxviii. 5. 16.
viii. 16. 20.

z 1 Sam. x. i. xvi.
13. 2 Sam. ii. 4.
v 3. 1 Kings i.
39. Lam. iv. 20.
a Ps. xlvii. 1.
xxviii. 8. Is. lv.
12.

† Heb. Let the king live 1 Sam.
x. 21. 2 Sam.
xvi. 16. 1 Kings
i. 34. Ps. lxxii.
15—17. Matt.
xxi. 9.

b 2 Chr. xxiii. 12
—15. c xxiii. 3. 2 Chr.
xxxiv. 31.
d 10. 11. Num. x.
1—10.

e 1 Kings i. 39. 40.
1 Chr. xii. 40.
Prov. xxix. 2.
f 1. 2. ix. 23.
1 Kings xviii. 17.
18.
g 4. 9. 10. 2 Chr.
xxiii. 9. 14.

h 8. x. 25.
i Ez. ix. 7.

k 2 Chr. xxiii. 15.

l 1. Judg. i. 7.
Matt. vii. 2.
Jam. ii. 13.
Rev. xvi. 5—7.

m 4. Deut. v. 2.
3. xxix. 1-15.
Josh. xxiv. 25.
2 Chr. xv. 12-14.
xxix. 10.
xxiv. 31. Ezra
x. 3. Neh. v. 12.
13. ix. 38.

n 1 Sam. x. 25.
2 Sam. v. 3.
2 Chr. xxiii. 10.
Rom. xvi. 1-6.
o x. 25-28. xviii.
4. xxiii. 4-6.
10-14. 2 Chr.
xxiii. 17. xxiv.
4. 7.

p Deut. xlii. 3. Is.
ii. 18. Zech.
xlii. 2.

q Deut. xlii. 5. 9.
1 Kings xviii.
40.

r 2 Chr. xxiii. 18.
20.
* Heb. offices.

17 ¶ And Jehoiada ^m made a covenant between the LORD and the king and the people, that they should be the LORD's people; ⁿ between the king also and the people.

18 And all the people of the land ^o went into the house of Baal, and brake it down; his altars and his images ^p brake they in pieces thoroughly, and ^q slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars: and the priest ^r appointed officers over the house of the LORD.

19 And he took the rulers over hundreds, and the captains, and the guard, and all the people of the land; and they brought down the king from the house of the LORD, and came ^s by the way of the gate of the guard to the king's house: and he sat on the throne of the kings.

20 And all the people of the land ^t rejoiced, and the city was in quiet; and they slew Athaliah with the sword ^u beside the king's house.

21 ^v Seven years old was Jehoash when he began to reign.

s 5. 2 Chr. xxiii.
5. 19.

t 14. 2 Chr. xxiii.
21. Prov. xi. 10.

u 4. xxiii. 12. Chr.
xxiv. 1.

could by her presence overawe and confound the conspirators: but by this rashness she rushed upon her fate. The people, it seems, were assembled, perhaps to celebrate some of their solemn feasts, and they with their princes or magistrates, cordially united with Jehoiada, and the priests and Levites. When Athaliah saw Joash stand in the place appropriated to the king's use, she was aware of what had taken place; and expressed her abhorrence of the supposed treason by word or deed, in hopes of inducing the people to take her part. But her conduct had been so odious and unnatural, that none favoured her; and at the word of Jehoiada she suffered the punishment due to her complicated crimes. We may be sure, that Jehoiada acted in all this business, by the direction and according to the will of God. The Levites seem to have executed the sentence, and great care was taken not to pollute with blood the court of the temple.

V. 17-20. Jehoiada embraced this opportunity of engaging the young king and the people, in the most solemn manner, to renew their national covenant with the Lord, that they would worship and serve him alone; as well as perform their reciprocal duties to each other in the fear of God. As the protector and near relation of Joash, he was authorized to act for him, and the whole compact was deliberately ratified, as in the presence of God. When this was concluded, they proceeded to destroy the worship of Baal, which Athaliah had established in Judah: but they contented themselves with breaking down the idolatrous temple and images, and slaying the priest of Baal at his altars; without imitating or emulating Jehu's subtlety in detecting his worshippers. The people were greatly rejoiced at this happy revolution, and matters were soon brought to a quiet settlement.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-12.

When the thirst of dominion predominates, it extinguishes both common humanity and natural affections, and steels the hearts of parents, yea, of mothers, against their own children or descendants. Nor can the most humane conceive how they should act, if brought within the magnetic influence of powerful temptations, through opening prospects of gratifying a vast ambition, united with fear, envy, resentment, or other vehement passions. We should therefore repress the first emotions of this aspiring temper, and pray without ceasing to be kept out of the way of temptation. And we may also learn to be thankful to God for restraining others and ourselves, from acting forth all the desperate wickedness of our hearts, which otherwise would produce effects unspeakably horrid. What fatal consequences flow from matrimonial connexions, or intimate acquaintance with atrocious sinners! The mischiefs which may thus be entailed upon children and remote posterity, cannot be ascertained; and may extend even to the ruin of the interests of true religion, in those places where before it flourished! These reflections should add energy to the Lord's prohibition of such incongruous alliances. Yet, he mixes his severest judgments upon his professed people and offending servants, with mercy: in the midst of opposition he provides for the performance of his promises: and the extremities to which his cause may be reduced, are permitted, to illustrate the glory of his power and truth, in preserving and recovering it. The most successful villany will be short-lived: and though in that little time dreadful havock may be made in society, and irreligion or false religion may apparently be established upon the ruins of true godliness; yet, the cause of God cannot be kept down, but, like the fabled Phenix, it will revive from its ashes with renewed youth and vigour. One pious man may, on some emergencies, become an instrument of most extensive good; especially when regard to the glory and worship of God are united with prudent contrivance and well concerted measures. In urgent cases, general rules of external propriety may be dispensed with: and ministers ought always to lead the way in opposing the prevalence of wickedness, and in promoting equity, and submission to lawful governors, as well as in spreading true religion.—To what peculiar dangers are those in exalted stations exposed, through the ambition, treachery, and cruelty of men! We may therefore be thankful to be placed with our families in an obscure situation, beneath envy or jealousy. Princes should be reminded, when intrusted with authority, of their accountableness to God for the use of it: and every opportunity should be embraced to enforce a conscientious regard to his word.

V. 13-21.

Evil will hunt out the wicked to destroy them; and they are often hardened and infatuated to rush upon their own destruction. The most abandoned will on some occasions

CHAP. XII.

Jehoash reigns well so long as Jehoiada lives, 1—3. He gives orders that the temple should be repaired; the priests neglect the service; but he provides for the expense and completes the work, 4—16. He gives the consecrated treasures to Hazael, to divert him from assaulting Jerusalem, 17, 18. He is slain by his servants, and succeeded by his son Amaziah, 19 —21.

axi. 3. 4. 21. 2 Cor.
xxiv. 1.
b xi. 2. 1 Chr. iii.
11. Joash.

c 2 Chr. xxiv. 2.
17—22. xxv. 2.
xxvi. 4.

d xiv. 4. 1 Kings
xv. 14. xxii. 43.
2 Chr. xxxi. 1.

e xxii. 4.
* Or, holy things.
Heb. holinesses.
Lev. v. 15, 16.
xxvii. 12—27. 31.

IN ^a the seventh year of Jehu, ^b Jeho-ash began to reign; and forty years reigned he in Jerusalem: and his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.

2 And ^c Jehoash did that which was right in the sight of the LORD all his days, wherein Jehoia^da the priest instructed him.

3 But ^d the high places were not taken away: the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

4 ¶ And Jehoash said to the priests,
* All the money of the * dedicated things that is brought into the house of the LORD, even ^f the money of every one that passeth the account, the money [†] that every man is set at, and all the money that [‡] cometh into any man's heart to bring into the house of the LORD,

5 Let [§] the priests take it to them, every man of his acquaintance; and [‡] let them repair the breaches of the house, wheresoever any breach shall be found.

6 But it was so, that in the [§] three and twentieth year of king Jehoash [†] the priests had not repaired the breaches of the house.

7 Then ^k king Jehoash called for [†] Jehoiada the priest, and the other priests, and said unto them, Why repair ye not the breaches of the house? now therefore receive no more money of your acquaintance, but deliver it for the breaches of the house.

8 And the priests consented to receive no more money of the people, neither to repair the breaches of the house.

9 But Jehoia^da the priest ^m took a chest, and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it ⁿ beside the altar, on the right side as one cometh into the house of the f Ex. xxx. 12—16.

2 Chr. xxiv. 9,
10.
† Heb. of the souls of his estimation.
Lev. xxvii. 2—8.
‡ Heb. ascendeth upon the heart of a man. Ex. xxv.
1, 2. xxxv. 3.
1 Chr. xxix. 8
—9. 17. Ezra i.
6. ii. 69. vii. 16.
viii. 25 — 29.
Luke xxi. 1—4.
g 2 Chr. xxiv. 5.
h 12. xxii. 5, 6.
1 Kings xi. 27.
2 Chr. xxiv. 7.
Is. lviii. 12.
B. C. 866.
§ Heb. twentieth year and third year.
i 1 Sam. ii. 29, 30.
2 Chron. xxix.
34. Is. lvi. 10—
12. Mal. i. 10.
Phil. ii. 21.
1 Pet. v. 2.
k 2 Chr. xxiv. 5, 6.
l 1 Chr. xxi. 3.

express abhorrence at the supposed crimes of others, especially when committed against themselves: but it is neither treason nor cruelty to execute vengeance upon usurpers and parricides, and to restore the authority to its rightful possessor. As “one sinner destroyeth much good;” so the removal of one ringleader in iniquity may prepare the way for great reformation. It is our duty to engage ourselves and each other, in as firm and solemn a manner as possible, to be the Lord's people: and when we begin with a due regard to religion, relative duties will be the better understood and performed. Yet they should be plainly declared and enforced, without the exception of those which subsist betwixt the prince and people. The rectifying of scandalous abuses, and the punishment of notorious criminals, form an introduction to the revival of true godliness. External regularity will afterwards more easily be re-established; and the effectual blessing of God may be expected. The way for a people to be joyful and at peace, is to engage cordially in the service of God; for “the “voice of joy and thanksgiving, is in the dwellings of “the righteous:” but “There is no peace, saith my God, “to the wicked.”

NOTES.

CHAP. XII. V. 2, 3. Jehoia^da acquired such influence over Joash, or Jehoash, by his services and counsels, in his younger years, as retained him in good behaviour, as long as he lived to give him advice. But the latter part of his life, after Jehoia^da's death was extremely wicked:
and all the good of his best days, was of that kind which hypocrites do to be seen of men. His reign however is not to be numbered with those of the worst kings of Judah:

for he repressed idolatry, and maintained the worship at the temple; though he had not influence or zeal sufficient to abolish the irregular worship of God in the high places; which indeed was never done till the days of Hezekiah.

V. 4, 5. The temple had been suffered to go to decay, during the reigns of Jehoram and Ahaziah, and the usurpation of Athaliah: and her sons, doubtless encouraged by her, had impiously broken down some part of the buildings, to adorn the house of Baal with the most costly materials of the temple: as well as spoiled its consecrated treasures to enrich those of their idols. But Jeho-ash, having had his life preserved in the precincts of the temple, seems to have had a strong desire of seeing it restored to its ancient splendour; whilst Jehoia^da perhaps was more intent to promote the internal part of true religion. The money which he ordered the priests to collect from the people, seems to have arisen from the sale of such firstlings as were not fit for sacrifice; from the half shekel a-piece levied of all the people; from the redemption of things dedicated; from the redemption of those who were vowed to the Lord by a singular vow; and from voluntary contributions. (Marg. Ref.) As some of these were the dues of the priests, whose income must have been greatly diminished by the defection of the ten tribes; that circumstance might render them more disaffected to the business, and negligent in its discharge.

LORD: and the priests that kept the * door put therein all the money that was brought into the house of the LORD.

10 And it was so, when they saw that there was much money in the chest, that the king's † scribe and the high-priest came up, and they ‡ put up in bags, and told the money that was found in the house of the LORD;

11 And they ^p gave the money, being told, into the hands of them that did the work, that had the oversight of the house of the LORD: and they § laid it out to the carpenters and builders, that wrought upon the house of the LORD;

12 And to masons and hewers of stone, and to buy timber and hewed stone to repair the breaches of the house of the LORD, and for all that || was laid out, for the house to repair it.

13 Howbeit ^q there were not made for the house of the LORD ^r bowls of silver, snuffers, basons, ^s trumpets, any vessels of gold, or vessels of silver, of the money that was brought into the house of the LORD:

14 But they gave that to the workmen, and repaired therewith the house of the LORD.

15 Moreover ^t they reckoned not with the men, into whose hand they delivered the money to be bestowed on workmen: ^u for they dealt faithfully.

16 ^x The trespass-money and sin-money was not brought into the house of the LORD: it was the priests'.

17 ¶ Then ^y Hazael king of Syria went up, and fought ^z against Gath, and took it: and Hazael ^a set his face ^b to go up to Jerusalem.

18 And Jehoash king of Judah ^c took all the hallowed things that Jehoshaphat, and Jehoram, and Ahaziah, his fathers, kings of Judah, had dedicated, and his own hallowed things, and all the gold that was found in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and in the king's house, and sent it to Hazael king of Syria: and he ^e went away from Jeru-

19 And ^d the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

20 And ^e his servants arose, and made a conspiracy, and slew Joash, in ^f the house of Millo, which goeth down to Silla.

21 For ^f Jozachar the son of Shimeath, and Jehozabad the son of ^g Shomer, his servants, smote him, and he died; and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David: and ^h Amaziah his son reigned in his stead.

u Neh. vii. 2.
Matt. xxiv. 45.
Luke xvi. 1. 10, 11.
x Lev. v. 15-18.
vii. 7. Num. v.
3-10. xviii. 6.
Hos. iv. 6.

y viii. 12-15.
z 1 Sam. xxviii. 4.
1 Kings ii. 39.
40. 1 Chr. viii.
13. xviii. 1.
a Jer. xlii. 15.
Luke ix. 51. 53.
b 2 Chr. xxiv. 23, 24.
c xviii. 15. 16.
1 Kings xv. 18.
2 Chr. xvi. 8.

e Heb. went up.

d viii. 23. 1 Kings
xi. 41.

e xiv. 5. 2 Chr.
xxiv. 24. 25.
xxv. 27. xxxiii.
24.
f Or, Beth-millo.
Judg. ix. 6.
2 Sam. v. 9.
1 Kings xi. 27.
g 2 Chr. xxiv. 26.
Zabad
h 2 Chr. xxiv. 26.
Shimrith.

h 2 Chr. xiv. 27

V. 6—12. Jehoash's orders must have been long neglected; for nothing was done effectually, till the twenty-third year of his reign, or the thirtieth of his life. It is probable that the priests appropriated considerable sums to their own use which they received for the repair of the temple, till the people lost all confidence in them, and would give them no more money on that account. Jehoiada himself appears to have been remiss in this affair; but his great age would necessarily render him less vigilant and active. The priests, however, readily consented to the alteration proposed by Jehoash; and a proclamation having been made for the collection of a half shekel from each male above twenty years of age; and a chest so placed, that the money might be either put in by those that brought it, or by the priests in their presence; large sums were soon collected, and applied by Jehoiada and the king's secretary to the repairs of the temple. (Marg. Ref.)—As the chest is said in Chronicles to have been "set without at the gate" so that the princes and people cast the money into it: it has been thought that the chest was at first placed in the inner court, so that the money still generally passed through the hands of the priests; but that not being satisfactory, it was removed to a situation where all had ready access to it.

V. 13—15. It seems that orders were given to the workmen, that the repairs of the temple should first be completed before any vessels were made; though it is probable they were much wanted: but when the workmen had set the temple "in its state," they punctually brought the surplus of the money to the king and Jehoiada, without requiring to be called to an account; and then such vessels were made as had been taken away by Athaliah and her sons. (2 Chron. xxiv. 14.)

V. 16. (Marg. Ref.) Besides the money paid as amends to the priests, for trespasses committed in holy things; it is thought that persons, living at a distance, sent money to the priests to purchase and sacrifice for them trespass-offerings and sin-offerings. And as they commonly sent more than the sacrifice cost, the surplus became a perquisite, under the name of trespass-money and sin-money.

V. 17, 18. It is not certain whether the expedition of Hazael, here intended, be the same as that of the Syrians, which is recorded in Chronicles: but if it be, the success of it, and the calamities brought on Judah by it, were vastly greater, than appears from this short account. It however took place after Jehoash's apostacy; and he made no scruple then of spoiling the temple of the remains of its treasures, to purchase Hazael's departure.

V. 20, 21. The Syrians left Jehoash "in great dis-

CHAP. XIII.

Jehoahaz reigns wickedly over Israel, 1,

2. Israel is oppressed by Hazael, but relieved in answer to Jehoahaz's prayer, 3—7. Jehoahaz dies, and is succeeded by his son Joash, 8, 9 ; who reigns wickedly, dies, and is succeeded by his son Jeroboam, 10—13. An account of a visit paid by Joash to Elisha on his death-bed, who by a sign assured him of three victories over the Syrians, 14—19. Elisha dies ; the Moabites invade the land ; and a dead man is raised to life, on touching his bones, 20, 21. Hazael, who had oppressed Israel, dies, and Joash gains three victories over his son Ben-hadad, 22—25.

B. C. 836.

* Heb. twentieth year, and third year viii 26. x. 36. xi. 4. 21.

IN the * three and twentieth year of Joash, the son of Ahaziah king of Judah, Jehoahaz the son of Jehu began to

"eases;" and his servants, (probably some relations or friends of Jehoiada, who deeply resented the murder of his son Zachariah,) took that opportunity of slaying him.—Millo seems to have been a general name of public buildings for convening the people ; and this Millo in the way to Sillah, was a distinct place from Millo in the city of David. (Notes, 2 Chron. xxiv.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Wise and pious instructors and counsellors are a singular benefit to young persons, especially when called to fill up important stations : and it is a happy case, when they acquire a proper influence, and make an unexceptionable use of it. Indeed, restraining men from outward crimes, and inducing them to external good actions, does not imply conversion of the heart to the love of God and delight in his holy service ; yet it prevents much mischief, and occasions extensive benefit to the community, and often precedes, and is made the means of, men's internal renovation.—Partiality to customary abuses, and the fear of consequences in making innovations, often influence pious men to slip the favourable opportunity of effecting still greater good ; nay, mere formalists have frequently exceeded true and eminent believers, in their active earnestness about some of the externals of religion : for, in old age especially, they are apt to yield to the love of ease and peace, or to discouragement through reiterated disappointments, and so to become remiss.—The building or repairing of convenient places for God's worship falls peculiarly within the sphere of princes and nobles ; and, if done from a proper principle, it is a good work which will not lose its reward : yet many abound in such useful services, whose hearts are not right in the sight of God.—Too often have nominal ministers been convicted of seeking their own interests, rather than those of religion. As a body, they reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned ^a seventeen years.

a 19.

2 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, ^b and [†] followed the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, which made Israel to sin ; he departed not therefrom.

b 11. x. 29. 1 Kings xii. 26—33. xiv. 16. [†] Heb. walked after.

3 And ^c the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of ^d Hazael king of Syria, and into the hand of ^e Ben-hadad the son of Hazael, all their days.

B. C. 849. c Lev. xxvi. 17. Dent iv 24—27. xxviii. 25. Judge ii. 14. iii 8. x. 7—14. Is. x. 5, 6. Heb. xii 29. d 22. viii 12. 1 Kings xix. 17. e 24. 25.

4 And ^f Jehoahaz besought the LORD, and ^g the LORD hearkened unto him : for ^h he saw the oppression of Israel, ⁱ because the king of Syria oppressed them.

f Num. xxi. 7. Judge. vi 6, 7. x. 10. Is lxxvii. 34. Is xxvi. 16. g Gen. xxi 17. Ex. iii. 7. Judge. x 15. 16. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 12. 13. 19. Ps. 1. 15. cvi. 43, 44. Jer xxxiii. 5.

5 (And the LORD gave Israel ^k a saviour, so that they went out from under the hand of the Syrians : and the children of Israel dwelt in their tents, as [†] beforetime.

h Gen. xxxi. 42. Ex. iii. 9. 1b lxii 9. i 22. xiv. 26. k 25. xiv. 25. 27. Neh ix 27. Is. xix 20. Ob. 21. Luke ii. 11.

[†] Heb. yesterday and third day.

must be suspected ; and therefore should carefully avoid the appearance of this evil, lest they lose the confidence of the people, and become useless and contemptible. It is most grievous that the disinterested fidelity and punctuality of tradesmen and mechanics should shame the mercenary conduct of priests ! Or that the activity and zeal of lay-men should expose the lukewarmness and indifference of the clergy ! These things are not the fault of the ministerial office, but of human nature, which that office will not mend. The collective body is placed in a conspicuous station, and their faults are not easily concealed : and as more is expected from them than from others, they meet with less allowance, and indeed their misconduct admits of less excuse. It is therefore most for their own credit and comfort, and for the honour of their profession, to stand aloof from those concerns in which large sums of money are employed. At least all works of piety and charity should be so managed, that they who contribute to them, may be assured their money is honestly and prudently expended : and they deserve commendation, who are faithful in such matters.—May the Lord preserve us from the disgraceful and wretched doom of the hypocrite and apostate ! May our hearts be sound in his statutes ; and may our " path shine " more and more unto the perfect day !"

NOTES.

CHAP. XIII. V. 1. Joash of Judah began to reign in the seventh year of Jehu, (xii. 1 :) but it was probably in the beginning of that year : and if Jehu reigned a little above twenty eight years, Joash might have entered on his twenty-third year, when Jehu died and was succeeded by Jehoahaz.

V. 3. All their days. Or, all his days ; for the word their is not in the original : and Joash the son of Jehoahaz delivered Israel from Ben-hadad, (22—25.)

1 xvii. 20 — 25.
Deut. xxxii. 15
— 18.

* Heb. he walked.

m Deut. vii. 5.
1 Kings xvi. 33.
† Heb. stood.

n 1 Sam. xiii. 6, 7.
15. 19 — 23. 1
Kings xx. 15, 27.
Is xxxvi. 8.
o viii. 12. x. 32.

p Is. xli. 15, 16.
Am. i. 3.

q x. 34, 35,

r 1 Kings xiv. 13.

s 19. Jehosh.

t 2. III. 3. x. 29.

u 14. 25.

x xiv. 8—16. 2
Chr. xxv. 17—
24.

6 Nevertheless they ¹ departed not from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, who made Israel sin, but * walked therein: ^m and there † remained the grove also in Samaria.)

7 Neither did he leave of the people to Jehoahaz, but ⁿ fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen; for the king of Syria had ^o destroyed them, and had made them ^p like the dust by threshing.

8 Now ^q the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz, and all that he did, and his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

9 And Jehoahaz slept with his fathers; and they ^r buried him in Samaria: and ^s Joash his son reigned in his stead.

10 In the thirty and seventh year of Joash king of Judah, began Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned sixteen years.

11 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD; ^t he departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel sin: but he walked therein.

12 And ^u the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, and ^x his might wherewith he fought against Amaziah king of Judah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

13 And Joash slept with his fathers; ^{B. C. 825.} and ^v Jeroboam sat upon his throne: ^y xiv. 23—29. and Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

14 ¶ Now Elisha was ^z fallen sick of his sickness whereof ^a he died. And Joash the king of Israel came down unto him, and wept over his face, and said, ^b O my father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

15 And Elisha said unto him, Take bow and arrows, And he took unto him bow and arrows.

16 And he said to the king of Israel, † Put thine hand upon the bow. And he put his hand upon it: and ^c Elisha put his hands upon the king's hands.

17 And he said, ^d Open the window eastward. And he opened it. Then Elisha said, Shoot: and he shot. And he said, ^e The arrow of the LORD's deliverance, and the arrow of deliverance from Syria: for thou shalt smite the Syrians in ^f Aphek, till thou have consumed them.

18 And he said, Take the arrows. And he took them. And he said unto the

B. C. 839. z xx. 1. Gen.
xlviii. 1. Johu
xi. 3. Phil. ii.
26, 27.
a Ps. xii. 1. Is.
lvii. 1. Zech. i.
5. Acts xiii. 36.
b ii. 12. vi. 21. Pro.
xi. 11. Ez. xiv.
14. xxii. 30.
Mark vi. 20.

† Heb. Make thine hand to ride.
c iv. 34. Gen.
xlix. 24. Ps.
cxliv. 1.

d v. 10—14. Johu
ii. 5—8. xi. 39
— 41.

e Ex. v. 2. 17.
Judg. vii. 9—
20. 2 Sam. v.
24.

f 1 Sam. iv. 1.
1 Kings xx. 26.
30.

V. 4, 5. Jehoahaz, while he deprecated the wrath of God, and entreated the removal of his heavy judgments, seems not to have attempted any reformation; but if this took place towards the conclusion of his life, his faith and repentance might not have time to produce their genuine fruits: and this is the more probable, as the deliverance, in answer to his prayer, was not granted till the reign of his son Joash, the saviour or deliverer, here spoken of; as appears from the subsequent narration. Yet some think he began to deliver Israel during the life of his father.

V. 6. Either the grove, which Ahab had dedicated to Baal, was still used in that idolatry, or another was planted for that purpose.

V. 8. Jehoahaz seems to have defended himself valiantly against Hazael, though without success: and this might provoke the cruelty that Elisha had foretold; and it eventually increased the miseries of Israel, (viii. 12.)

V. 10. The seventeen years of Jehoahaz reach to the thirty-ninth or fortieth year of Joash of Judah; but Joash of Israel began to reign in his thirty-seventh year: he must therefore have reigned some time along with his father.

V. 12. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 14. If Elisha was called to follow Elijah no more than seven years before the death of Ahab; and if he died as soon as Joash mounted the throne, he prophesied at least sixty-six years! From the beginning of the reign of Jehu to Elisha's sickness and death, that is, for more than forty-five years, his name is never once mentioned: but we may be sure, that he was very usefully employed, especially in superintending the schools of the prophets. Doubtless great numbers were converted to God by his labours; though the bulk of the nation conformed to the idolatry established by authority. Neither Jehu nor Jehoahaz paid any attention to the prophet: yet they were not persecutors; and probably they respected his character. Being, however, employed in state affairs, and determined to maintain the idolatry of the golden calves, they were not disposed to hearken to his admonitions: and he expressed his disapprobation of their conduct by keeping at a distance. But when Joash heard that he was apparently near death, at a time when Israel was brought very low by their iniquity, he seems to have considered the dispensation as a divine rebuke; and under the prevalency of present convictions, he visited and lamented over him, in the words which Elisha had used when Elijah was removed, acknowledging him to be the chief defence of Israel, whose death would more expose them to ruin than all Hazael's successes. Yet we read of nothing in the character or conduct of Joash, to warrant a conclusion, that this was more than a transient impression upon his mind, which soon wore off without producing any abiding good effect.

g Is. xx. 2-4. king of Israel, & smite upon the ground.
 Ez. iv. 1-10. v.
 1-4. xii. 1-7. h And he smote thrice, and stayed.
 h Ex. xviii. 11.

19 And the man of God was wroth with him, and said, Thou shouldest have smitten five or six times; then hadst thou smitten Syria till thou hadst consumed it: whereas now thou shalt smite Syria but ⁱ thrice.

125. Mark vi. 5.

k Acts viii. 2.

114.
 m v. 2 vi. 23. xxiv.

2. n iii. 5. 24-27.
 Judg. iii. 12. vi.
 3-6.

20 ¶ And Elisha died, and they ^k buried him. ^l And ^m the bands of ⁿ the Moabites invaded the land at the coming in of the year.

21 And it came to pass, as they were burying a man, that, behold, they spied a band of men; and they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elisha; and when the man ^{*} was let down, and ^o touched the bones of Elisha, he revived, and stood up on his feet.

* Heb. went down.

o Ez. xxxvii. 1-10. Matt. xxvii. 52-53. John v. 25-28. 29 xi. 44. Acts v. 15. xix. 12. Rev. xi. 11.

V. 15-19. In this prophetic transaction, the use of the bow and arrows denoted, that Joash was to be the instrument of Israel's deliverance, by military valour and enterprise: the prophet's directing the king in shooting, and laying his hands upon his, implied that he was to follow the directions of the prophets, and that God would give him success. The arrow shot eastward, marked the situation of the place where the deliverance was to be wrought, and intimated that the eastern coasts of the land of Israel would be rescued from the king of Syria; though his dominions, which lay chiefly to the north of Canaan, would not be taken from him: and the smiting of the arrows upon the ground, was significant of the use that Joash would make of his first victory, by which his enemies were cast down to the ground before him; whether he would effectually crush their power, or imitate the impolitic lenity of Ahab. (1 Kings xx.) Probably Joash was not informed that his victories would equal the times which he smote with the arrows: and perhaps considering the action as trivial and unmeaning, he smote but thrice, which displeased the prophet, and, as it were, limited the king's successes. His conduct expressed the state of his mind, as not firmly believing the words of the prophet, or not duly valuing the promised deliverance.

V. 20, 21. This extraordinary miracle, wrought by the dead body of Elisha, declared that he was as much beloved as Elijah, though he had not been translated, and that the Lord was his God after death as well as before; and thus intimated both the immortality of the soul, and the final resurrection of the body. It might also intimate, that many mercies were reserved for Israel, in answer to Elisha's prayers, and in consequence of his labours for them in his lifetime.

V. 23. The reason here assigned, for the deliverance granted to Israel, seems to imply that there was nothing either in Joash or his subjects, (except their miseries,) to induce the Lord thus to favour them. Nor was the success of Joash any thing more, than a respite for 22 ¶ But ^p Hazael king of Syria oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz.

p 3-7. viii. 12.
 Ps. cvi. 40-42.

23 And ^q the Lord was gracious unto them, and had compassion on them, and ^r had respect unto them, ^s because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would not destroy them, neither cast he them from his [†] presence as yet.

q xiv. 27. Ex. xxxiv. 6, 7. Judg. x. 16. Neh. ix. 31. Ps. lxxxvi. 15. Mic. vii. 18, 19. r Ex. ii. 24, 25. s Gen. xiii. 16. 17 Ex. iii. 6, 7. xxxii. 13, 14. Lev. xxvi. 42. Deut. xxxii. 36. Ps. cv. 8. Mic. vii. 20. Luke i. 54, 55, 72, 73. B. C. 839. † Heb. face xvii. 18. Ps. li. 11. t Ps. cxxxv. 3. Luke xvii. 7, 8. B. C. 839.

24 So ^t Hazael the king of Syria died; and Ben-hadad his son reigned in his stead.

25 And Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz [‡] took again out of the hand of Ben-hadad the son of Hazael the cities which he had taken out of the hand of Jehoahaz his father by war. ^u Three times did Joash beat him, and recovered the cities of Israel.

‡ Heb. returned and took.

u 18, 19.

the present from the judgments which impended over them.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Though the Lord is slow to anger and of great mercy, yet he will by no means acquit obstinate transgressors; and his just anger is the cause of all human misery. When deep affliction excites a cry for deliverance, he will hearken; for he is gracious, and compassionate, and delighteth in mercy, and can speedily give a deliverer out of every trouble. But if he answers the mere cry of distress for temporal relief, much more will he regard the prayer of faith for spiritual blessings: and as he so long remembered his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and spared their posterity for their sakes, notwithstanding their manifold provocations; much more will he remember Jesus and the covenant that he mediated, and for his sake pardon the abundant transgressions of all who by true faith stand in a spiritual relation to him. All other privileges and distinctions can only avail to retard the deserved vengeance; the Lord may not destroy sinners, or cast them from his presence as yet, but without an interest in the Saviour they must at length perish. The true believer, though chastened for his transgression, shall not be left to perish for ever: but being “delivered from the hand of his enemies, he shall serve him, “without fear, in righteousness and true holiness, before “him all his days.” Wicked men prosper in their schemes, till the Lord's purposes respecting them are accomplished; and then they are removed, or ruined, without any difficulty. There is such excellency in true and eminent godliness, that it often excites the esteem and respect of those who cleave to their sins. Persons even of this character while under convictions, will feel and acknowledge, that the servants of God are their best friends, and the most valuable part of society. But this language of conscience is soon silenced by the clamorous voice of their lusts. Some parts of the lives of eminent believers are more

CHAP. XIV.

Amaziah's good reign, 1—4. He justly punishes his father's murderers, 5, 6. He gains a victory over Edom, 7. He rashly challenges Jehoash king of Israel, and, obstinately persisting, is vanquished and taken prisoner by him; the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and the treasures of the temple spoiled, 8—14. Jehoash dies, and is succeeded by Jeroboam, 15, 16. Amaziah is slain by conspirators, 17—20. His son Azariah is made king, and builds Elath, 21, 22. Jeroboam's bad reign, 23, 24. He restores the coast of Israel, 25—27. He dies and is succeeded by his son Zachariah, 28, 29.

a xlii. 10. 1 Chr.
iii. 12. 2 Chr.
xxv. 1.

IN ^a the second year of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel, reigned Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah.

2 He was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem.

3 And ^b he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not like David his father: ^c he did according to all things as Joash his father did.

4 Howbeit ^d the high places were not taken away: as yet the people did sacrifice and burnt incense on the high places.

5 And it came to pass, as soon as the kingdom was confirmed in his hand, ^e that he slew ^f his servants which had slain the king his father.

6 But the children of the murderers he slew not: according unto that which is written in the book of the law of Moses, wherein the LORD commanded, saying, ^g The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

7 He slew of ^h Edom in ⁱ the valley of salt ten thousand, and took ^j * Selah by war, and called the name of it ^k Joktheel unto this day.

b xlii. 2. 1 Kings
xi. 4. xv. 3 2 Chr. xxv. 2, 3

c 2 Chr. xxiv. 2.
17, 18. xxv. 14
—16.

d xlii. 3. xv. 4, 25

e Gen. ix. 6. Ex.
xxi. 12 — 14
Num. xxxv. 33.
f xlii. 20, 21. 2 Chr.
xxv. 3, 4.

g Deut. xxiv. 16.
Ez. xviii. 4. 20

B. C. 825.
h viii. 20 — 22.
2 Chr. xxv. 11,
12.
i 2 Sam. viii. 13.
1 Chr. xviii. 12.
Ps. lx title.
* Or, the rock.
k Josh. xv. 38.

conspicuous than others, but in the general tenour of them they aim to glorify God and do good to man. Yet the most devoted will be ashamed, that they have not been more in earnest; and the most useful must regret, that the world has received so little benefit from them. Indeed the reflection on the prevalence of wickedness and misery on every side, with the prospect of still worse judgments upon the workers of iniquity, must fill the heart of every pious and benevolent man with deep concern. Yet the good seed which faithful ministers sow in their life-time may spring up after their death; and they may often take encouragement from the prospect of their prayers being answered, after they are removed: and yet their removal is frequently the signal for calamities to break forth; as the recal of an ambassador precedes a declaration of war. However, living or dying, God's true people are blessed, and blessings to others: and they who, like the Saviour, pass through death and the grave to glory, are not less favoured than if they were immediately received up to heaven in the body. But the death and burial of Jesus alone hath efficacy to disarm the king of terrors of his power to harm; and to sanctify the tomb, as a safe repository for the believer's body, till the general resurrection. Through him all blessings come from a reconciled God to believing sinners: if we use his appointed means in the obedience of faith, and be not straitened in our desires and expectations of help from him through unbelief, we shall not be straitened in him, but shall be "able to do all things through Christ strengthening us." Then shall we beat down our enemies, and trample them as the mire in the streets, till our deliverance be complete, and our rejoicing in the Lord abundant. May he give us strong faith, that our hearts may be established and comforted: and that we may greatly glorify his name, and be serviceable to his people on earth, in our way to the heavenly inheritance!

NOTES.

CHAP. XIV. V. 1. Joash king of Israel began to reign about four years before Amaziah: but Joash is supposed to have reigned part of the time with his father; and Amaziah succeeded to the throne in the second year after the death of Jehoahaz. (Note, xlii. 10.) Yet as Amaziah survived Joash only fifteen years (17;) either the sixteen years of Joash's reign must be reckoned from his father's death; or, as some think, Amaziah's reign is computed from the time that his father Joash became incapable of managing public affairs.

V. 3, 4. Amaziah, like his father Joash, began apparently well, and ended very ill. He attended the worship of JEHOVAH, but he did not destroy the high places; where probably priests and Levites officiated in sacrificing and burning incense. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 5, 6. Amaziah did not at first venture to punish the conspirators who had slain his father: and it seems they continued at court, as if they had done no wrong, and feared no danger; having only avenged the death of Jehoiaada's son on Jehoash, without attempting to injure Amaziah, or deprive him of the kingdom. But when he found himself sufficiently established in authority, he very properly punished them. These references to the very words of the law, as they now stand in the books of Moses, should not be unnoticed. Undoubtedly these books were extant and well known when this history was written.

V. 7. (Notes, 2 Chr. xxv. 5—16.) The name which

B. C. 826.

12 Chr. xxv. 17—24.

m 11. 2 Sam. ii. 14—17. Prov. xlii. 10. xvii. 14. xviii. 6. xx. 18. xxv. 8.

n Judg. ix. 8—15. 2 Sam. xii. 1—4. 1 Kings iv. 33.

o Deut. viii. 14. 2 Chr. xxvi. 16. xxxii. 25. Prov. xvi. 18. Ez. xxxiii. 2. 3. 17. Dan. v. 20—23. Hab. ii. 4. Jam. iv. 6.

p Heb. thy house. q 2 Chr. xxxv. 21. Prov. xx. 3. xxvi. 17. Luke xiv. 31. r 2 Chr. xxv. 16. 20.

s Josh. xxi. 16. 1 Sam. vi. 9.

† Heb. smitten.

t 1 Sam. iv. 10. 2 Sam. xviii. 17. 1 Kings xxii. 36.

u xxv. 6. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 11. xxxvi. 6. 10. Job xl. 11. 12. Prov. xvi. 18. xxix. 23. Is. ii. 11, 12. Dan. iv. 37. Luke xiv. 11.

8 ¶ Then ¹ Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoash, the son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu king of Israel, saying, ^m Come, let us look one another in the face.

9 And Jehoash the king of Israel sent to Amaziah king of Judah, saying, ⁿ The thistle that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and there passed by a wild beast that was in Lebanon, and trode down the thistle.

10 Thou hast indeed smitten Edom, and ^o thine heart hath lifted thee up: glory of this, and tarry at ^{*} home; for ^p why shouldst thou ^q meddle to thy hurt, that thou shouldst fall, even thou, and Judah with thee?

11 But ^r Amaziah would not hear: therefore Jehoash king of Israel went up; and he and Amaziah king of Judah looked one another in the face at ^s Bethshemesh, which belongeth to Judah.

12 And Judah was [†] put to the worse before Israel, and ^t they fled every man to their tents.

13 And Jehoash king of Israel ^u took Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Jehoash, the son of Ahaziah, at Bethshemesh, and came to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem from

^{*} the gate of Ephraim unto ^y the corner-gate, four hundred cubits.

14 And he took ^z all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the king's house, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

15 ¶ Now ^a the rest of the acts of Jehoash which he did, and his might, and how he fought with Amaziah king of Judah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

16 And Jehoash slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel; and ^b Jeroboam his son reigned in his stead.

17 ¶ And ^c Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah lived, after the death of Jehoash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel fifteen years.

18 And the rest of the acts of Amaziah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

19 Now ^d they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem: and he fled to ^e Lachish; but they sent after him to Lachish, and slew him there.

20 And they brought him on horses; and ^f he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David.

x 2 Chr. xxv. 23. 24. Neh. viii. 16. xii. 39. y Jer. xxxi. 39. Zech. xiv. 10. z xiv. 13. xv. 15. 1 Kings vii. 51. xiv. 26. xv. 18.

a x. 34. 35. 1 Kings xiv. 19, 20. B. C. 825.

b xlii. 13. Hos. i. 1. Am i. vii. 9.

c 1. 2. 23. xlii. 10. 2 Chr. xxv. 25. B. C. 810.

d xii. 20, 21. xv. 10. 14. 25. 36. xxi. 23. 2 Chr. xxv. 27, 28. e Josh. x. 31. Mic. i. 13. f vii. 24. ix. 28. xii. 21. 1 Kings ii. 10. xi. 43. 2 Chr. xxi. 20. xxxvi. 23. xxxiii. 20.

Amaziah gave to Selah, signifies obedience to God; in which it is probable, he referred to his conduct in dismissing the auxiliaries of Israel at the Lord's command: but his behaviour, in the whole transaction and afterwards, very little agreed with this name.

V. 8. There had for a long time been peace betwixt Judah and Israel: and though the connexion with the house of Ahab had been of fatal consequence to the royal family of Judah; yet on the whole that peace had been far preferable to the ruinous wars which preceded and ensued.—Perhaps Amaziah bore resentment against the family of Jehu, for the slaughter of his relations: he had also received provocations from some Israelites, whom he had engaged in his service and sent back, having been forbidden to employ them: (2 Chr. xxv. 6—10, 13:) and perhaps he hoped to reduce Israel again under the dominion of the family of David. But if he had not been actuated by a vain ambition, he would have made his complaints, and demanded satisfaction, and not have sent this foolish challenge. In effect, he informed Joash, that he scorned to attack him at a disadvantage: but wished him to bring forth all his forces, and make a fair trial of their military skill and valour in a pitched battle.

V. 9, 10. Joash rebuked Amaziah's pride, with an arrogance equally unreasonable. The thistle, the meanest weed which the mountains produce, but which may by chance wound the foot of the incautious passenger, was made the emblem of the kingdom of Judah, and of the ancient and honourable house of David, whilst the house of Jehu was represented as a stately cedar! Joash intimated, that if Amaziah, upon his casual success against the Edomites, had presumed to solicit an alliance with him, he would have considered his proposals in the same light as if the thistle should aspire to unite families with the cedar; and the meanest of his soldiers should have chastised his insolence, and crushed him, as easily as a wild beast of the forest could trample down the thistle: how much more then, when Amaziah dared to challenge him to battle, would he bring destruction upon himself! There was, however, much good sense in Joash's counsel. Let Amaziah rest satisfied with the reputation he had acquired, and not meddle without occasion with his neighbour, who was disposed to peace, lest it should issue in the ruin and disgrace of himself and his kingdom.

V. 11—14. As Amaziah prepared for war, it became necessary for Joash to oppose him: in consequence Amaziah's army was completely routed, many lives were thrown away, Amaziah was made prisoner, Jerusalem was taken, and its fortification demolished, and the very temple plundered by the rapacious and profane conqueror.

V. 17—20. Joash, it seems, set Amaziah at liberty; and he survived him fifteen years: but the ill success of 21 And all the people of Judah took Azariah, (which was sixteen years old) and ^b made him king instead of his father Amaziah.

22 He built ⁱ Elath, and restored it to Judah, after that the king slept with his fathers.

23 ¶ In ^k the fifteenth year of Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah, Jeroboam, the son of Joash king of Israel, began to reign in Samaria, and reigned forty and one years.

24 And he did that which was evil ^l in the sight of the LORD: ^m he departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin

25 He restored the coast of Israel ⁿ from the entering of Hamath ^o unto the sea of the plain, according to the word of the LORD God of Israel, which he spake by the hand of his servant ^p Jonah, the son of Amittai, the prophet, which was of ^q Gath-hepher.

26 For the LORD ^r saw the affliction of Israel that it was very bitter: for there was ^s not any shut up, nor any left, nor any helper for Israel.

27 And the LORD said not that ^t he would ^u blot out the name of Israel from under heaven: but ^x he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam the son of Joash.

28 Now ^y the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did, and his might, how he warred, and how he recovered ^z Damascus, and Hamath, which belonged to Judah, for Israel, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

29 And Jeroboam slept with his fathers, even with the kings of Israel; and ^a Zachariah his son reigned in his stead.

his rash expedition, rendered his people disaffected to him, which at length produced a conspiracy or open revolt: so that when the insurgents had slain him, either they brought him themselves, or suffered him to be brought to Jerusalem to be buried. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 21. Azariah, or Uzziah, (words of similar meaning, the one signifying the help of the Lord, and the other, the strength of the Lord;) is thought by some to have been very young, not more than four years of age, when his father was slain; and they suppose that he was not made king till about twelve years afterwards. Thus, he began to reign in the twenty-seventh year of Jeroboam; though his father was slain in the fifteenth year of Jeroboam, (23. xv. 1.) But the years of Azariah's reign are reckoned from his father's death: and therefore others suppose, that Jeroboam reigned along with his father Joash eleven or twelve years; so that, reckoning his reign from this time, Azariah began to reign in his twenty-seventh year, though only fifteen or sixteen years after he began to reign alone. (23.)

V. 22. Elath. This was a town upon the Red sea, convenient for commerce, which the Edomites, or Syrians, had taken away from the kings of Judah. It is supposed that Amaziah had taken it, when he conquered the Edomites; but had not been able to derive much advantage from it, because of subsequent troubles: and that Azariah, after Amaziah's death, rebuilt and fortified it.

V. 25. The various enemies of Israel had encroached on their borders, from the northern to the southern extremity of the country belonging to the ten tribes; from Lebanon to the dead or salt sea, which had been the plain of Sodom: but, Jeroboam, encouraged by the predictions of Jonah, drove back their enemies, and recovered their country.

V. 26, 27. Joash had been successful, both against the Syrians and Judah. But probably the Syrians, not being totally subdued, still carried on destructive hostilities against Israel: and the neighbouring nations, as the Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites, made continual incursions, and plundered whatever they could seize upon; so that their most valuable treasures were pillaged, they who seemed to have taken refuge in the safest places were destroyed, and there were none to help them. But as the time for their final dispersion was not yet come, the Lord saved them by the hand of Jeroboam, notwithstanding his idolatries.

V. 28. Damascus and Hamath belonged to Judah in the reigns of David and Solomon, and Jeroboam so effectually subdued the Syrians, that he obtained possession of them for Israel; which is called recovering them, because, though divided in government, Judah and Israel were still to be considered as one people.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

Many appear righteous unto men, whose inward parts are very wickedness, and whose conduct at length betrays their hypocrisy. Yet the Lord gives due commendation to the actions, which accord to his law, because thus far they honour him. Where his judgments are most evidently righteous, the wickedness of the instruments may deserve punishment by the sword of the magistrate: and the judge of all the earth may do many things consistently with his justice, which would not become short-sighted feeble mortals. It will appear, however, in the day of final retributions, that no one has suffered who did not deserve it, and that none perish but for their own sins. —Unsanctified success increases pride; pride excites contentions; and these are the sources of trouble and iniquity in private life: but when they arise between princes, they become the misery of whole kingdoms; and the blood of thousands is lightly esteemed by vain-glorious mortals

g xv. 13. 2 Chr
xxvi. 1. Uzziah.
Matt 1. 8, 9.
Ozias
h xxi. 24 1 Chr
iii 12.
i xvi. 6 Deut ii.
3. 1 Kings ix.
26. 2 Chr. xxvi.
2. Eloth.

B. C. 825.
17.

p xxi. 6. Gen.
xxxviii 7. Deut
ix. 18. 1 Kings
xxi. 25.
q xiii. 2. 11.

n Num. xiii. 21.
xxxiv. 7, 8. Ez.
xlviii. 16, 19.
Am vi. 14
o Gen. xv. 3.
Deut iii. 17.
p Jon. i. 1. Matt.
xii. 39, 40. xvi.
4. Jonas.

q Josh xix. 13.
Gittah-hepher.
r xiii. 4. Ez. iii.
7. 9 Judg x. 16.
Ps. cvi. 43—45.
Is. lxiii. 9.

s Deut. xxxii. 36.

t xiii. 23. Hos.
i 6
u Ex. xxxii. 32.
33. Deut ix. 14
xxv. 19. xxix.
20. Ps. lxxix. 28.
Rev iii 5.
x v. 1. xiii 5.
Hos. i 7. Tit.
iii 4—6.
y 15.

z Sam. viii 6.
1 Kings xi. 24.
1 Chr. xviii. 5.
6. 2 Chr. viii.
3, 4.

a xv 8.
B. C. 794.

CHAP. XV.

Azariah's good reign, 1—4. He is smitten with leprosy; and Jotham, his son, governs for him, and succeeds him at his death, 5—7. Zachariah reigns ill, and is slain by Shallum; in which events the promise of God to Jehu is fulfilled, 8—12. After one month, Shallum is slain, and succeeded by Menahem; who cruelly uses his opposers; reigns wickedly; becomes tributary to Pul, king of Assyria; dies, and is succeeded by his son Pekahiah, 13—22. Pekahiah reigns ill, and is slain and succeeded by Pekah, 23—26. Pekah imitates the sins of his predecessor; Tiglath-pileser of Assyria carries captive part of Israel; and Hoshea kills and succeeds Pekah, 27—31. Jotham reigns well in Judah, 32—35. He dies and is succeeded by his son Ahaz, 36—38.

^a 8. xiv. 16, 17. IN ^a the twenty and seventh year of Jeroboam king of Israel began Azariah son of Amaziah king of Judah to reign.

who seek to be admired and extolled by men as foolish and worthless as themselves. The effects of pride in others are often insufferable, even to those who are proud themselves; and all naturally delight in expressing contempt for such, as avowedly aim to outshine their neighbours. We might smile at the ridiculous methods, which proud worms take to vaunt themselves, and to vilify their rivals for fame; did not the fatal effects of such competitions call for our lamentations: and the vain boastings of those who follow peace, are most tolerable, because most harmless. But did men consider from whom, and for what, their talents and successes were given, and how prone they are to abuse them; and did they understand how mean, guilty, and polluted man is, at his best estate, their boastings must needs be excluded. In reality, all the distinctions betwixt one sinful worm and another would not be worth noting, except for the sake of relative obligations, and the peace of society: but what images can shadow forth the absurdity and madness of those, who by their daring crimes seem to challenge the Almighty to the conflict, and to rush upon the thick bosses of his buckler? Or who could have conceived such an amity and union, as the Lord invites us worthless sinners to enter into with himself, through the mysterious union of the divine and human nature in our Emmanuel? In all our undertakings we should previously consider our ability to accomplish them; and rather rest satisfied with moderate advantages, or inferior reputation, than risk the consequences of beginning what we are not able to finish, which is indeed to meddle to our hurt; but caution is especially needful, when if we fail of success,

2 ^b Sixteen years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jecholiah of Jerusalem.

3 And ^c he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Amaziah had done;

4 Save that ^d the high places were not removed: the people sacrificed and burnt incense still on the high places.

5 And ^e the LORD smote the king, ^f so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, ^g and dwelt in a several house: and ^h Jotham the king's son was over the house, ⁱ judging the people of the land.

6 And the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are ^k they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

7 So ^l Azariah slept with his fathers; and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David: and Jotham his son reigned in his stead.

8 ¶ In ^m the thirty and eighth year of ^b xiv. 21. 2 Chr. xxvi. 1. 3.

^c xii. 3. 3. xiv. 3. 4. 2 Chr. xxvi. 4.

^d xiv. 4. xviii. 4.

^e 2 Chr. xxvi. 16. —20 Job xxxiv. 19.

^f v. 27. Num. xii. 10.

^g vii. 3. Lev. xlii. 46.

^h Num. xii. 14. Deut. xxiv. 8, 9.

ⁱ 2 Chr. xxvi. 21.

^j Sam. viii. 15.

^k xv. 2—4. 1 Kings iii. 9. 23. Ps. lxxii. 1. 2.

^l 2 Chr. xv. 5.

^m xiv. 18. 2 Chr. xxvi. 5—15.

¹ 2 Chr. xxvi. 23.

^{Is} vi. 1.

^{B. C.} 758.

^m 1. xiv. 16, 17.

^{21.}

^{B. C.} 772.

we cannot suffer alone, but must involve many in our calamities: and they who will not take fair warning and good advice, even from an insulting enemy, may too late wish they had.

V. 15—29.

Wicked princes and nations are frequently successful, because opposed by others more guilty than themselves. The proud are often visited with most humiliating providences; and if not humbled by them, their destruction is inevitable. Yet even in those places where ungodliness is generally prevalent, the Lord takes notice of the extreme bitterness under which men groan, and spares them from time to time, that his goodness may lead them to repentance. Especially, is he thus long-suffering to those nations, where he hath a remnant of true believers. But the lives and successes of wicked men are contracted within narrow limits, and they are soon driven away in their wickedness, one after another. And though the Lord will never blot out the name of his true Israel from under heaven, but will always raise them up helpers, that the enemy may never prevail against his cause on earth: yet there is an appointed period to his patience and long-suffering; beyond which he will no longer bear with impenitent sinners, corrupt professing churches, or wicked nations; but will proceed to deal with them according to the most awful denunciations of his holy word.

NOTES.

CHAP. XV. V. 1—7. (Notes, xiv. 21. 2 Chr. xxvi.)

n xiv. 29.

Azariah king of Judah did ⁿ Zachariah the son of Jeroboam reign over Israel in Samaria six months.

o x. 29. 31. xiii. 2. 11. xiv. 24.

9 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, ^o as his fathers had done: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

p Am. vii. 9. q 14. 25. 30. 1 Kings xv. 28. xvi. 9, 10. Hos. 4, 5.

10 And Shallum the son of Jabesh conspired against him, and ^p smote him before the people, and ^q slew him, and reigned in his stead.

r xiv. 28.

11 And ^r the rest of the acts of Zachariah, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

s x. 30. Num. xxiii. 19. t xiii. i. 10. 13. xiv. 29.

12 This was ^s the word of the LORD which he spake unto Jehu, saying, ^t Thy son shall sit on the throne of Israel unto the fourth generation. And so it came to pass.

u 1. Azariah. Matt. i. 8, 9. Ozias. * Heb. a month of days. x 1 Kings xvi. 15. Job xx. 15. Ps. Iv. 23. Prov. xxviii. 2. 17. y 1 Kings xiv. 17. z 10.

13 ¶ Shallum the son of Jabesh began to reign in the nine and thirtieth year of ^u Uzziah king of Judah; and he reigned ^{*} a full ^x month in Samaria.

14 For Menahem the son of Gadi went up from ^y Tirzah, and came to Samaria, ^z and smote Shallum the son of Jabesh in Samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.

15 And the rest of the acts of Shallum, and his conspiracy which he made, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

16 Then Menahem smote ^a Tiphshah, ^a 1 Kings iv. 24. and all that were therein, and the coasts thereof from Tirzah: because they opened not to him, therefore he smote it; and ^b all the women therein that ^b viii. 21. Am. i. 13. were with child he ripped up.

17 ¶ In the nine and thirtieth year of Azariah king of Judah, began Menahem the son of Gadi to reign over Israel, and reigned ten years in Samaria.

18 And he did that which was ^c evil ^c s. in the sight of the LORD: he departed not all his days from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

19 And ^d Pul the king of Assyria came against the land; and ^e Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver, that his hand might be with him, ^f to confirm the kingdom in his hand. d 1 Chr. v. 25, 2. Is. ix. 1. e xii. 16. 18. xvi. 8. xvii. 3. 4. Hos. iv. 13. viii. 9. 10. x. 6. f xiv. 5. Jer. xvii. 5.

20 And Menahem ^g exacted the money of Israel, even of all ^h the mighty men of wealth, of each man fifty shekels of silver, to give to the king of Assyria: so the king of Assyria turned back, and ^h stayed not there in the land. g Ruth ii. 1. h 29. xvii. 3, 4. xviii. 14—17.

V. 8. Amaziah reigned fifteen years after Jeroboam came to the crown of Israel; so that the death of Jeroboam, who reigned forty-one years, coincided with the twenty-sixth or twenty-seventh year of Azariah. An interregnum of about eleven years must therefore be allowed for, in the kingdom of Israel, between the death of Jeroboam, and the succession of his son; either because of his youth, or through the factious temper of the people.

V. 12. Notwithstanding the wickedness of Israel, and the persevering idolatry of Jehu and his descendants, the Lord would not proceed to execute vengeance upon them until the predicted period: and bad as Jehu's family was, the times during which they reigned were by far the best that Israel experienced, from their separation from the family of David to their final dispersion.

V. 16. This barbarity was exercised by Menahem against such as would not immediately submit to his usurped authority. Things were now hastening to a fatal crisis in the kingdom of the ten tribes. After the death of Elisha true religion evidently began to decline; and neither the labours nor the writings of the succeeding prophets could stop the rapid increase of immorality, idolatry, or profaneness, which inundated that people. This chapter gives such an account of their public affairs, as will afford the attentive reader great assistance in understanding the writings of those prophets, who lived during that period, viz.; Isaiah, Hoshea, Micah, and Amos. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 19. 20. The king of Assyria coming to invade Israel, seems to have found the people much disaffected to Menahem, who must have been odious for his cruelties: but he, having made submission to Pul, and engaged for the payment of one thousand talents of silver, (near four hundred thousand pounds;) obtained his assistance in subjugating the Israelites, and was thus confirmed in the kingdom; and then by force he extorted the money from his richer subjects. Thus the kingdom was impoverished, and the people exasperated; and that powerful prince, having been so well paid for invading the land, left an example to his successors, which they followed until they had totally desolated the country. The kingdom of Assyria is here mentioned, for the first time, after the building of Nineveh by Nimrod. And this shows that the history given by some writers of a very prosperous and vast monarchy lasting for much above a thousand years previous to this time, is in great measure a romance. David and Solomon met with no opposition from the kings of Assyria, in establishing their kingdom to the Euphrates. A small tribe indeed, called Assur, helped the Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites, on some occasion. (Ps. lxxxiii. 8.) But it seems that Nineveh had afterwards become a very great city, and 21 And the rest of the acts of Menahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

22 And Menahem slept with his fathers: and Pekahiah his son reigned in his stead.

23 ¶ In the fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah, Pekahiah the son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria, *and reigned*¹ two years.

24 And he did that which was^k evil in the sight of the LORD; he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

25 But¹ Pekah the son of Remaliah, ^ma captain of his, ⁿconspired against him, and smote him in Samaria, in the palace of the king's house, with Argob and Arieih, and with him fifty men of the Gileadites: and he killed him, and reigned in his room.

26 And^o the rest of the acts of Pekahiah, and all that he did, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

27 ¶ In the two and fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah, ^pPekah the son of Remaliah began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned twenty years.

28 And he did that which was^q evil in the sight of the LORD; he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

29 In the days of Pekah king of Israel, came ^rTiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and took ^sIjon, and ^tAbel-beth-maachah, and Janoah, and ^uKedesh, and ^xHazor, and ^yGilead, and ^zGalilee, all the land of Naphtali, and ^acarried them captive to Assyria.

30 And Hosea the son of Elah ^bmade a conspiracy against Pekah the son of Remaliah, and smote him, and slew him, and reigned in his stead, ^cin the twentieth year of Jotham the son of Uzziah.

31 And the rest of the acts of Pekah, and all that he did, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

32 In the second year of Pekah the son of Remaliah king of Israel, began ^dJotham the son of ^eUzziah king of Judah to reign.

33 Five and twenty years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was^f Jerusha the daughter of Zadok.

34 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD; he did ^gaccording to all that his father Uzziah had done.

35 ^hHowbeit the high places were not removed: the people sacrificed and burnt incense still in the high places.

ⁱHe built the higher gate of the house of the LORD.

36 Now ^kthe rest of the acts of Jotham, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

^s 1 Kings xv. 29.
^t 2 Chr. xvi. 4.
^u 2 Sam. xx. 14, 15.
^x Josh. xix. 36, 37.
^y Josh. xi. 1. 10.
^z 13. xii. 19. Judg. iv. 2.
^a Num. xxxii. 1.
^b 40. Deut. iii. 15.
^c Am. i. 3. 13.
^d 1 Kings ix. 11.
^e Is. ix. 1, 2. Matt. iv. 15, 16.
^f xxvii. 6. 23. Lev. xxvi. 32, 38, 39.
^g Deut. iv. 26, 27.
^h xxviii. 25. 64.
ⁱ 65. Is. i. 7. vii. 20.
^j B. C. 739.
^k 25.
^l c 33. xvii. 1. Hos. x. 4. 7. 15.

^d 2 Chr. xxvii. 1.
^e Matt. i. 9. Jotham.
^f 1 Chr. iii. 12. Azariah.
^g B. C. 738.

^f 2 Chr. xxvii. 1. Jerushah.

^g 3. 4. 2 Chron. xxvi. 4, 5. xxvii. 2.

^h 4. xviii. 4. 2 Chr. xxxii. 12.

ⁱ 2 Chr. xxvii. 3. &c.

^k 6. 7. 2 Chr. xxvii. 4-9.

1. xxi. 19. 1 Kings xv. 25. xvi. 2. xxii. 51. Job xx. 5.
B. 18.

B. C. 759.
12 Chr. xxxvii. 6.
in ix. 5. 1 Kings xvi. 9.
u 10. 30. ix. 14.

33.

p Is. vii. 1. 2.

p xxi. 2.

B. C. 740.
r 1 Chr. v. 26.
Tiglath-pileser.
Is. ix. 1.

no doubt the king of Nineveh had a considerable territory. (Jon. i. 2. iii. 3, 4. iv. 11.) And it is not improbably supposed, that Pul was king when Jonah prophesied against Nineveh. It is not however agreed, whether he was one of the ancient line of the Assyrian kings; or whether he was one of those who effected that revolution which all allow took place about this time, and so the father of Tiglath-pileser. The latter indeed seems most probable: but such darkness and uncertainty rest on this part of ancient history, that the most learned men differ exceedingly in their opinions on the subject.

V. 25. It does not clearly appear, whether Argob, Arieih, and the fifty Gileadites, were slain with the king: or whether they were conspirators with Pekah.

V. 27. In the days of Jotham, those designs of Rezin and Pekah were formed, and in some degree carried into effect; which became more formidable during the reign of Ahaz. (Notes, 2 Chron. xxvii.)

V. 29. Pul seems to have carried captive some of the people that dwelt to the east of Jordan, (1 Chr. v. 26:) and Tiglath-pileser, who is, with great probability, thought to have been his son and successor, carried captive a considerable number of the inhabitants of the northern parts of the land, as well as of the districts to the east of Jordan. Thus the prophecies in this respect had a gradual accomplishment.

V. 30. In the twentieth, &c. That is, the twentieth year from Jotham's accession; for he reigned only sixteen years, and Hoshea succeeded Pekah in the fourth year of Ahaz; though he was not established in the kingdom, till the twelfth year of that king. In respect of many of these difficulties in settling the chronology, (which infidels vainly magnify into objections against the sacred history;) it may be proper to observe, that no writer wilfully contradicts himself within a few lines; and therefore some solution of the difficulty should be sought, and must exist, whether our information enables us to solve it or not. (xvii. 1.)

11 Sam. iii. 12.

m Is. x. 5-7.
 m xvi. 5. 2 Chr.
 xxviii. 6. Is.
 vii. 1. ix. 21.
 Hos. v. 12, 13.
 o 27.

37 (In those days the LORD ¹ began m to send against Judah ^a Rezin, the king of Syria, and ^o Pekah the son of Remaliah.)

38 And Jotham slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and ^p Ahaz his son reigned in his stead.

B. C. 742.

p xvi. 1. 1 Chr.
 iii. 13. 2 Chr.
 xxviii. 1. Matt.
 i. 9. Ahaz.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-12.

The study of history has a tendency to render the reflecting person thankful even for a mediocrity of character, in those placed in authority: and to dispose him to bear patiently many evident faults in the administration of public affairs. For as every thing may be estimated by comparison, and as the history of the world exhibits by far the greater part of princes desperately wicked, and their people exposed to every kind of misery, in consequence of their ambition, cruelty, and tyranny, or the contests betwixt rivals for power: so, we may repress our murmurs under slighter grievances, by reflecting with grateful satisfaction upon our exemption from flagrant oppressions. In this view, we seem to congratulate Judah under the peaceful reigns of Azariah and Jotham, as that kingdom was very highly favoured, compared with the distracted state of Israel, under so many bloody murderers, usurpers, and tyrants. And if the inhabitants of our land of liberty and peace can read this narration, without forgetting their imaginary or trivial causes for complaint, or without blessing God for their mercies, and praying for their rulers, and the continuance of our distinguishing privileges, they cannot be acquitted from the charge of base ingratitude. But with regret we must observe, that such is the depraved tendency of human nature to evil, that revivals in religion are commonly transient: whereas abuses endure from age to age, and few good men have at once power and courage effectually to remove them. For great defects are found in godly persons: and though they are graciously accepted, as to their eternal state, they are often in this world marked with the tokens of God's displeasure for particular offences, by which they have dishonoured him; nor can any situation prevent these effects of sin. When persons in authority are incapacitated from the duties of their high station, it is peculiarly happy, for them and for the public, when they have children who, like Jotham, are disposed and qualified to fill up their places, and to enter into their views of serving God and doing good to their people; and who can give satisfaction both to them and to the community. The imperfections of true believers are very different from the allowed, habitual, and pertinacious wickedness of ungodly men. In the former the remains indeed of depravity are visible, and occasionally break forth into evident evil: but in the latter case, when restraints of conscience, regard to reputation, fear of human laws, and want of power, are surmounted, the desperate wickedness of the heart, like an impetuous torrent that hath burst its banks, bears down all opposition, and spreads devastation around.

V. 13-38.

The repetition so often made concerning Jeroboam, for ages after his death, that "he made Israel to sin," should impress our minds with dread and horror, at the thought of tempting others to wickedness; as it can never be known how extensively or durably the mischief may spread. For, however ungodly men may disagree in all other things, they perfectly accord in either utterly neglecting religion, or in making it a state-engine, or in some way subservient to their selfish projects: and the most notorious and detestable idolatries and superstitions have, in many kingdoms, been supported by authority from generation to generation, through successive revolutions in the government, by those who in their hearts despised the whole system that they patronized. When the gratification of ambition, avarice, revenge, or lust, requires, there is no conceivable kind or degree of treachery and barbarity, which men may not be tempted to commit; yet the madness of such persons equals their wickedness: for repeated examples of the fatal ends of those who through blood have waded to a throne, will not deter them from pressing forward in the same way, and mounting the slippery pre-eminence, to be thence hurried by a violent death to a premature grave! We should then be thankful for external restraints, and for being kept out of temptation; and beg of God incessantly to "create in us a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within us:" and may He help us to seek that honour which cometh from him to those who do good in their generation; and to dread that greatness, which is obtained and secured by doing mischief and diffusing misery. Yet in these horrid scenes, the truth and justice of God are manifest: they perfectly accord to the character of human nature given in the Scriptures, and form a confirmation of their divine original. "For the wickedness of the land many are the princes thereof:" whose crimes and sufferings are the punishment of the sins both of the governors and governed. "He that doth violence to the blood of any man, shall flee to the pit; let no man stay him." For a time, wicked men may prosper to execute the vengeance of God on other sinners, and then others will be raised up to execute vengeance on them; as criminals, or the refuse of society, have often been employed for public executioners. The most innocent sufferers from man's wickedness must plead guilty before God, and may often read his just displeasure in the injustice and cruelty of their oppressors. Proud men cannot endure contradiction, and the ambitious are exasperated by opposition: yet often, in aiming at independence and supreme authority, they crouch with the basest submissions, and bring themselves into the most abject dependence on strangers and enemies, who from mercenary motives at first assist and then enslave them. Death in various forms hurries men to God's judgment-seat: the righteous are then taken from the evil to come, and enter into rest; and it is a mercy to be spared the anguish of witnessing the miseries that are coming on corrupted churches and nations. But the wicked are stopped in their career, that they may do no more mischief, and their lamp is put out in utter darkness. May we live the life of faith and holiness, and die the death of the righteous, that "an entrance may be ministered to us abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ!"

CHAP. XVI.

Ahaz reigns very wickedly, 1—4. Rezin and Pekah war against him; and Rezin takes Elath, 5, 6. Ahaz hires Tiglath-pileser against them, who takes Damascus and slays Rezin, 7—9. Ahaz sends a pattern of an altar from Damascus; and Urijah, the high-priest, makes one like it for burnt-offerings; reserving the brazen altar for Ahaz to inquire by, 10—16. Ahaz spoils the temple for the king of Assyria, 17, 18. He dies, and is succeeded by his son Hezekiah, 19, 20.

a. xv. 27—30. 32, 33. 38.
b 2 Chr. xxviii. 1.

IN the ^a seventeenth year of Pekah the son of Remaliah, ^b Ahaz the son of Jotham king of Judah began to reign.

2 Twenty years old was Ahaz when he began to reign, and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem, and ^c did not that which was right in the sight of the LORD his God, like David his father.

3 But ^d he walked in the way of the kings of Israel; yea, and ^e made his son to pass through the fire, ^f according to the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out from before the children of Israel.

4 And he sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places, and ^g on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 Then ^h Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem to war: and they besieged Ahaz, ⁱ but could not overcome him.

6 At that time Rezin king of Syria ^k recovered Elath to Syria, and drove the Jews from ^{*} Elath: and the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelt there unto this day.

7 So Ahaz sent messengers ^l to [†] Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, saying, ^m I am thy servant, and thy son: come up and save me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and out of the hand of the king of Israel, which rise up against me.

8 And Ahaz took ⁿ the silver and gold that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house, and sent it for a present to the king of Assyria.

9 And the king of Assyria hearkened unto him; for the king of Assyria went up against [‡] Damascus, ^o and took it, and carried the people of it captive to ^p Kir, and ^q slew Rezin.

10 [†] And king Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, ^r and saw an altar that was at Damascus: and king Ahaz sent to Urijah the priest the fashion of the altar, and ^s the pattern of it, according to all the workmanship thereof.

11 And Urijah the priest ^t built an altar according to all that king Ahaz had sent from Damascus: so ^u Urijah the priest made it against king Ahaz came from Damascus.

12 And when the king was come from Damascus, the king saw the altar; and 1 Kings xi. 34. Is. vii. 4—6, 14. viii. 6, 9, 10, ix. 6, 7.

k xiv. 22. Deut. ii. 8.
* Heb. Elath.
1 Kings ix. 26.
2 Chr. xxvi. 2.

l xv. 29.
† Heb. Tiglath-pileser.
1 Chr. v. 26. 2 Chr. xxviii. 20. Tiglath-pileser.
m 1 Kings xx. 4. 32, 33 Jer. xvii. 5.

n 17, 18. xii. 17, 18. 2 Chr. xvi. 2. xxviii. 20, 21. Ps. vii. 15, 16. Is. vii. 17. viii. 7, 8.

† Heb. Damascus.
2 Chr. xxviii. 5. o Am. i. 5.
p Is. xxii. 6 Am. ix. 7.
q Is. ix. 11.

r 2 Chr. xxviii. 22. —25. Ec. xi. 9.

s Ex. xxiv. 4. xxxix. 43. 1 Chr. xxviii. 11, 12, 19. Ps. cvi. 39. Ez. xliii. 8, 11. Matt. xv. 6, 9.
t 2 Chr. xxvi. 17, 18. Jer. xxiii. 11. Ez. xxii. 26. Hos. iv. 6. Mal. ii. 7—9. Gal. i. 10. u Is. viii. 2.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVI. V. 3, 4. Ahaz imitated the kings of Israel, in worshipping idols, and rebelling against the Lord. It is said in Chronicles that he 'burnt his children in the 'fire; and here that he caused 'his son to pass through the 'fire, to consecrate him to the demon that he worshipped. In short, he copied the crimes of the Canaanites, whom God had destroyed by Israel; and not only allowed, but set the people an example, of a variety of idolatrous practices. Hezekiah was born some years before the death of Jotham; if he was the son here intended, he was past his infancy at the time. He however proved an eminently pious prince, and an entire contrast to his most wicked father. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 5. (Notes, 2 Chr. xxviii. 5—19. Is. vii. 1—9.) The Lord brought these enemies against Ahaz for his crimes: their successes, and the miseries of Israel were very great, immense numbers being slain and taken prisoners; and Ahaz was extremely terrified. But they could not take Jerusalem, dethrone Ahaz, and destroy the family of David, as they intended: for this was contrary to the purpose, the promises, and the prophecies of God.

V. 6 (Note, xiv. 22.) The word Jews is here first used. It is literally the Judeans; that is, the men of Judah, as all those who adhered to the family of David, were called, to distinguish them from the subjects of the Israelitish kings.

V. 7—9. As the king of Assyria brought Ahaz into abject dependence on him, and both weakened him and drained his treasury, he is said not to have helped him, though he averted the present storm. From this time, Syria ceased to be a kingdom: and for a long time it formed successively a part of the kingdom of Assyria, of Chaldea, or of Persia.

^x 1 Kings xlii. 1. ^x the king approached to the altar, and ² Chr. xxvi. 16 offered thereon.
 —19. xxviii. 23. ^y

^y Num. xviii. 4—7. ^z Lev. i. ii. iii.
 13 And ^z he burnt his burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and poured his drink-offering, and sprinkled the blood ^{*} of his peace-offerings upon the altar.

^{*} Heb. which were his.
^a Ex. xl. 6. 29. ^b 9—12.
^c 9—12.
^d Ex. xxix. 39—41.
^e Lev. iv. 22. Ez. xlv. 4—7. 12—14.
 14 And he brought also ^a the brazen altar which was before the LORD, from the forefront of the house, from between the altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of ^b the altar.

15 And king Ahaz commanded Urijah the priest, saying, Upon ^c the great altar burn ^d the morning burnt-offering, and the evening meat-offering, and ^e the king's burnt-sacrifice, and his meat-offering, with the burnt-offering of all the people of the land, and their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings; and sprinkle upon it all the blood of the burnt-offering, and all the blood of the sacrifice: and the brazen altar shall be for me ^f to inquire by.

V. 10—16. (2 Chr. xxviii. 23—25.) Ahaz sacrificed to the gods of the vanquished Syrians, perhaps when he went to Damascus to congratulate Tiglath-pileser on his success. There he saw an altar, in the temple of some of their idols, which appeared to him more magnificent or convenient, than that which Solomon had made according to the will of God. At the command of Ahaz, with which he sent a model of the altar from Damascus, probably adorned by many figures of idols, the wretched high-priest, without scruple or hesitation, prepared one like it, with which he profaned the court of the temple; and when Ahab returned, the altar of God was removed to make way for it. It is uncertain whether the gods of Damascus were sacrificed to on this altar, or whether the oblations were presented to JEHOVAH. It seems however that Ahaz pretended to convert the former altar into an oracle, at which he might inquire: as the church of Rome, by adoring the host, have converted the Lord's Supper into the most absurd and detestable idolatry, under the pretence of honouring it. Some however think, that Ahaz only meant that he would take advice what to do with the altar: and tradition reports that he demolished it, and made a sun-dial, (called the sun-dial of Ahaz,) of the brass. In the whole business the high-priest was willing to oblige the king by servile compliance; and did not, as far as it appears, need either menaces or promises, or even bribes, to procure his concurrence!

V. 17, 18. Ahaz pillaged and defaced the temple and its courts, and sacred utensils, in various ways, either to supply his necessities with the plunder, or to express his enmity against the worship of the Lord. The covert of the sabbath, and the entry, seem to have been accommodations for the king and his attendants to repair to the temple-service. To please the king of Assyria, who it is probable paid him a visit, he turned these another way, or to other uses.

16 ^g Thus did Urijah the priest, according to all that king Ahaz commanded.

17 And king Ahaz ^h cut off ⁱ the borders of the bases, and removed the laver from off them; and took down ^k the sea from off the brazen oxen that were under it, and put it upon a pavement of stones:

18 And ^l the covert for the sabbath that they had built in the house, and the king's entry without, turned he from the house of the LORD, for the king of Assyria.

19 Now ^m the rest of the acts of Ahaz, which he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

20 And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and ⁿ was buried with his fathers in the city of David: and ^o Hezekiah his son reigned in his stead.

V. 20. Ahaz died young; and it has been observed that no king of Judah reached David's age of seventy years, though some of them reigned longer than he had done: but the age of Asa is not recorded.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The word of God affords abundant encouragement to pious parents to give their children good instructions, enforced by good examples, and to pray for them: and these means are generally rendered effectual, so as sufficiently to verify the proverb, "train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Yet there are exceptions recorded in the Scriptures, to remind us, that every man is born in sin, and that the grace of God alone can change the heart; in order that we may expect the blessing from him alone. On the other hand, some who have been, as it were, early dedicated to Satan, and initiated into his service, have, by the victorious grace of God, been made eminent examples of faith and piety: and every accurate observer of mankind, in places favoured with the light of the gospel, has remarked instances of both. The infatuated slaves of sin heedlessly proceed in those paths, whence others have been hurried into destruction. But we need not wonder that men violate the law of God, in the indulgence of their natural passions, when they cannot be restrained from disobeying him in the most unnatural cruelty to themselves and their own children; nor should the insolence and obstinacy of prosperous sinners excite astonishment; seeing so many sin more and more, whilst severely suffering under the effects of former crimes! Such is man's carnal enmity against God, that he will have recourse to any expedient, or make the most abject submission to his fellow worms, rather than humble himself before him, and seek help from

CHAP. XVII.

Hoshea becomes tributary to Shalmaneser, conspires with the king of Egypt against him, and is shut up in prison, 1—4. Shalmaneser besieges Samaria, after three years takes it, and carries Israel captive into Assyria and Media, 5, 6. The crimes which brought this punishment from God on his people, 7—23. The strange nations, planted in Israel are plagued by lions, 24, 25; but instructed by a priest of Israel, in the worship of the Lord, they serve him with their own idols, 26—41.

him! But the relief thus obtained, tends to enfeeble and enslave men the more; and it often accelerates, as well as increases, that ruin which it seemed to retard. Our natural propensity to some sort of religion is not easily extinguished: but except it be regulated according to the word, and by the Spirit, of God, it produces the most absurd superstitions, or the most detestable idolatries; or at best quiets the sinner's conscience, and amuses his mind with a round of unmeaning ceremonies, frequently connected with the most immoral practices. Even infidels have been remarkable for credulity; and the capacity of believing, when not exercised on the truth, has often been known to embrace the most ridiculous falsehoods. But whether kings are impious, or superstitious, or infidel, or sacrilegious, they generally meet with priests of their own stamp, who court their favour by assisting their iniquities or idolatries! Yet such mercenary time-servers and men-pleasers, who bear the name and wear the garb of ministers, are guilty of a greater breach of trust, and the prostitution of a more sacred character, than even the wicked princes whom they flatter and embolden in their sins: as their conduct is in the highest degree, dishonourable to God and ruinous to man, they merit the deepest contempt and detestation; and assuredly they will receive the greater damnation, except by a miracle of grace they are brought to repentance. The arrogant self-wisdom, which induces men to new-model divine ordinances after their own vain imaginations, is unsufferably provoking to that "God who resisteth the proud:" and that external magnificence, which carnal minds affect in his worship, obscures the real glory of heavenly things, excites false ideas of the divine character, and turns men aside from that spiritual service which alone the Lord accepts and delights in. Thus, new ways of worshipping God very speciously introduce gross idolatries; as the church of Israel, and that of Rome, among other examples, have abundantly evinced. But when men forsake God, they forsake their own mercies: and if they, that have been trained up in the ways of God, forsake his house and ordinances; and, affecting to be wiser than their pious parents, turn things into another channel; associate with more fashionable companies; and seek to acquire the favour, assistance, or commendation of

IN the twelfth year of Ahaz king of Judah, began ^a Hoshea the son of Elah ^{a xv. 30. xviii. 9.} to reign in Samaria over Israel nine years.

2 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, ^b but not as the kings of Israel that were before him.

3 Against him came up ^c Shalmaneser ^{c xviii. 9. Hos x. 14. Shalman.} a king of Assyria; and Hoshea became ^d his servant, and ^e gave him ^f presents.

4 And the king of Assyria ^g found a conspiracy in Hoshea: for he had sent messengers to So ^h King of Egypt, and ⁱ brought no present to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year; therefore the king of Assyria shut him up, and ^j bound him in prison.

ungodly men; there is reason to fear that sudden destruction is coming upon them, from which they shall by no means escape.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVII. V. 1. (Note, xv. 30.) During more than eight years after the slaughter of Pekah, Hoshea was kept out of possession of the kingdom, or was unsettled in it: and the years of his reign are reckoned from his establishment on the throne, and not from the death of his predecessor.

V. 2. We are told by the Jewish writers, that the golden calf had before this been carried away from Dan; that Hoshea did not enforce that idolatry as his predecessors had done; and that he allowed the Israelites, who were so disposed, to go up to Jerusalem to worship. He, however, did evil in the sight of the Lord; though not in all respects so vile as his predecessors. Whether he was an idolater or not, he was not a godly man; and his murder of Pekah, and usurpation of the kingdom, merited the punishment he endured: whilst the people were fully ripe for destruction; and the guilt, which had been accumulating for ages, was punished in that generation. In finally destroying the kingdom of Israel, during the time of that king, who was less wicked than the rest; the Lord showed that he punished them for the crimes of the people at large, and not for those of their princes only, as many were ready to imagine.

V. 3. It is most probable that Shalmaneser was the son of Tiglath-pileser. Menahem had given his predecessor Pul footing in the land, and encouragement to come again, by raising a large sum of money for him, and by rendering his kingdom dependent on him. Ahaz king of Judah likewise, by purchasing the help of Tiglath-pileser, had procured the destruction of the kingdom of Syria, which was of small extent and force, compared with that of Assyria: and thus every rampart was broken down, which could exclude the Assyrians from the land of Israel and Judah.

V. 4. So, is supposed to be the same person as is called Sabacus, or Sabacon, in pagan writers. He was king of Ethiopia; but he invaded Egypt, took possession of the kingdom, and reigned there for a long term of years.—About this time, or rather earlier, the rivalry began i xviii. 9. xxv. 1—3. k xviii. 10, 11.

Hos. i. 6. 9.
xiii. 16.
B. C. 721.

l Lev. xxvi. 32, 33. 38. Deut. iv. 25—28.
xxviii. 36. 64.
xxix. 18. xxx.
18. 1 Kings xiv. 15, 16.
m xix. 12. 1 Chr. v. 26.

n Is. xlii. 17. xxi. 2 Dan. v. 28.

o Deut. xxxi. 16, 17. 29. xxi. 15, 30. Josh. xlii. 16. Judg. ii. 14—17. 2 Chr. xxxv. 14—16.

p Neh. ix. 26. Ps. cvi. 35—41. Ez. xlii. 2, 8c. Hos. iv. 1—3.

q Ex. xiv. 30, 31. xx. 2.

r 35. Jer. x. 5. xvi. 3. xxi. 2. Lev. xviii. 3.

s 27—30. Deut. xii. 30, 31. xviii. 9. 1 Kings xii. 28. xvi. 31—33.

t xxi. 26. Jer. x. 2.

u Hos. v. 11. Mic. vi. 16.

5 Then ¹ the king of Assyria came up throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria, and besieged it three years.

6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, ^k the king of Assyria took Samaria, and ^l carried Israel away into Assyria, and placed them in ^m Halah and in Habor ^{by} the river of Gozan, and in the cities of ⁿ the Medes.

7 For so it was, that the children of Israel had ^o sinned against ^p the LORD their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and had ^q feared other gods,

8 And ^r walked in the statutes of the heathen, (whom the LORD cast out from before the children of Israel,) ^s of the kings of Israel, which they had made.

9 And the children of Israel did ^t secretly those things that were not right against the LORD their God, and they built them high places in all their cities, ^u from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

10 ^x And they set them up ^{*} images and ^y groves ^z in every high hill, and under every green tree:

11 And there they ^a burnt incense in all the high places, as did the heathen whom the LORD carried away before them; and wrought wicked things ^b to provoke the LORD to anger.

12 For they served idols, ^c whereof the LORD had said unto them, ^d Ye shall not do this thing.

13 Yet the LORD ^e testified against Israel, and ^f against Judah, ^g by [†] all the prophets, and by all the ^h seers, say-

Jer. v. 29—31. Zech. i. 3—6.—† Heb. the hand of.—h 1 Sam. ix. 9. 1 Chr. xxxix. 29.

† Deut. xxvii. 15. Ez. viii. 12. u xviii. 8. Jer. lili. 2. Ez. ix. 9. Hos. xii. 11. x xvi. 4. Ex. xxxiv. 13. Lev. xxvi. 1. 1 Kings xiv. 23. Is. lviii. 5.

* Heb. statues. y Deut. xvi. 12. Mic. v. 14.

z Deut. xii. 2, 3. a 1 Kings xlii. 1. 2 Chr. xxviii. 25. Jer. xlii. 17.

b xxi. 6. Ps. lxxviii. 56—58. c Ex. xx. 3—5.

xxxiv. 14. Deut. v. 7—9.

d Deut. xv. 15—19. 23—25. xii. 4.

e Deut. viii. 19. xxxi. 21. Neh. ix. 29, 30. Ps. l. 7. lxxxi. 8, 9.

f 2 Chr. xxxvi. 15, 16. Jer. lili. 8—11. Hos. iv. 15.

g Deut. iv. 26. Judg. xlii. 16. Judg. vi. 10. x. 11—14. 1 Sam. xii. 7—15. Is. i. 5—15. 21—24.

betwixt the kings of Egypt, and the monarchs of different nations, who successively became powerful in Asia, to the north or north-east of Canaan; which, lying betwixt the contending powers, was for many ages brought into dependence on the one or the other of them. But the people, contrary to the commands of God, were more disposed to unite with the Egyptians than with any of their opponents. Had Hoshea endeavoured to effect a thorough reformation in Israel; and then in dependence on God, had he openly attempted to shake off every foreign yoke, he might possibly have succeeded. But the manner in which he attempted to change one yoke for another, without returning to the Lord, or seeking his assistance, formed a mixture of perfidy, impolicy, and ungodliness; and proved the immediate occasion of his ruin and that of his people. It seems probable that Shalmaneser, by some means, took Hoshea prisoner, before he laid siege to Samaria: and that Hoshea ended his days in a prison. His name is the same with that by which Joshua was at first called: so that the settlement of Israel in Canaan, and their expulsion from it, occurred under the government of persons originally of the same name!

V. 5, 6. The inhabitants of Samaria doubtless endured great extremities, in the long siege and terrible destruction of the city: but the brevity of the sacred penman seems significantly to intimate, that the Lord did not now notice their affliction, as he had done before the measure of their iniquities was filled. When Shalmaneser had taken Samaria, and become absolute master of the whole land, he formed the project of changing the inhabitants, and in part accomplished it; but it was more fully completed by Esarhaddon, his grandson, several years afterwards; (Ezra iv. 2.) It is, however, here spoken of by anticipation. Yet at the last it seems that some of the poorer Israelites were left in the land, many of whom were incorporated with the new inhabitants. (2 Chr. xxxiv. 6, 7.) But as the northern part of the country called Galilee was, in the time of Christ, inhabited by persons acknowledged to be of the seed of Israel, who went up to Jerusalem to worship; whilst the middle of the country was occupied by the Samaritans, who were of another origin and religion; it is probable that the new inhabitants did not so fully occupy the northern, as the middle, parts of the land. The Israelites, who were carried captive to a great distance, in the dominions of the conqueror, were chiefly incorporated among the nations: yet some of them seem to have retained the knowledge of their original, and of part of their religion; and either to have returned with their brethren after the Babylonish captivity, or to have united with those Jews, who were afterwards dispersed in many different countries of the world.

V. 7—11. The iniquities of Israel were many and aggravated: but their apostasy from God to Idolatry formed their violation of the national covenant. The Lord had, as it were, graciously espoused them to himself; but this spiritual adultery excited his jealousy; and by persisting in it, they provoked him to give them a writing of divorcement, and to put them away. They had, as a nation, experienced his power and love in delivering them from Egypt, and giving them Canaan; and they had witnessed, and executed his vengeance upon the idolatrous Canaanites: yet in disobedience to express and repeated commandments, they had ungratefully and absurdly worshipped their idols. They had also willingly obeyed the orders of idolatrous kings to worship the golden calves and Baalim; they had committed much secret idolatry, in addition to that which was established by law; and especially they had worshipped the sun, moon, and stars, which as the hosts or armies of God, stationed in the visible heavens, are employed to fulfil his will: and finally they so multiplied their temples, or altars, that they were found in every village, and at every shepherd's cot, as well as in the fenced and more populous cities; so that at length the predicted and denounced judgments came upon them. (Marg. Ref.) ing, ¹ Turn ye from your evil ways, and ² keep my commandments, and my statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by my servants the prophets.

14 Notwithstanding they would not hear, but ¹ hardened their necks, like to the neck of their fathers, that ^m did not believe in the LORD their God.

15 And they rejected his statutes, and ⁿ his covenant that he made with their fathers, and ^o his testimonies which he testified against them, and they followed ^p vanity, and became vain, and went after the heathen that were round about them, concerning ^q whom the LORD had charged them, that they should not do like them.

16 And they left all the commandments of the LORD their God, and made them ^r molten images, even two calves, and made ^s a grove, and ^t worshipped all the host of heaven, and served ^u Baal.

17 And ^x they caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire, and ^y used divination and enchantments, and ^z sold themselves to do evil ^a in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

18 Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel, and ^b removed them out of his sight; there was none left but ^c the tribe of Judah only.

19 Also ^d Judah kept not the commandments of the LORD their God, but ^e walked in the statutes of Israel which they made.

20 And the LORD ^f rejected all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and ^g delivered them into the hand of spoilers, ^h until he had cast them out of his sight.

21 For ⁱ he rent Israel from the house of David; and ^k they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king: and ^l Jeroboam drave Israel from following the LORD, and made them sin a great sin.

22 For the children of Israel ^m walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did: they departed not from them;

23 Until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, ⁿ as he had said by all his servants the prophets: So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day.

24 ¶ And ^p the king of Assyria brought men from ^q Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from ^r Ava, and from ^s Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria, instead of the children of Israel: and they ^t possessed Sa-

25 And so it was, at the beginning of

V. 14. The people rejected the testimonies of God, which he testified against them, and they did not believe in him, or depend on him for protection, according to his promises. Thus they hoped to sin with impunity, and concluded that the service of the Lord would be unprofitable. "To harden the neck," is a metaphor taken from the stiffness of the neck of an ox, when with his full strength he resists the attempts of the husbandman to put the yoke upon him. or to bring him to draw in it: and it aptly represents the self-will, earnestness, and stubbornness, with which the presumptuous sinner sets himself to rebel against God, in the midst of warnings, convictions, judgments, and mercies.

V. 15. By making and worshipping lifeless images, the people became senseless and stupid, like unto them: and by worshipping false and imagined deities under these images, they learned to imitate all the vices ascribed to those demons. Thus among the Greeks and Romans, the worshippers of Bacchus revelled in intemperance, those of Venus rioted in licentiousness, and those of Mars delighted in shedding human blood. Finally, by worshipping Satan under all these names, they were conformed to the very nature, and imbibed all the hateful qualities, of that arch-apostate and rebel.

V. 16. It is evident that the word, rendered a grove and groves, means some kind of image set up in the temples originally built in groves; and not the trees which formed the grove. (10.)

V. 17. To provoke, &c. The people acted, as if their express intention had been to provoke the Lord to anger: they had sold themselves as slaves to Satan, to work evil in the sight of God, that they might in every thing displease him as much as possible.

V. 18. The tribe, &c. That is, the tribe of Judah, with the Benjamites, Levites, and others, who were incorporated along with Judah into one people.

V. 24. Shalmaneser seems to have carried away all the chief men, and the bulk of the nation; but to have left some poor remains of the Israelites, who dwelt in the land, during the remainder of his reign and the busy reign of Sennacherib. But Esarhaddon more entirely removed the old inhabitants, and peopled the country from different parts of his dominions: and by that time Babylon, which had formed a distinct kingdom, was brought under the government of the king of Assyria, and some of these new inhabitants were removed from thence. The cities had not been destroyed, but reserved for the new inhabitants which it was meant to place there.

1 Is. i. 16-20. Iv. 6, 7. Jer. vii. 3. -7. xviii. 11. xxv. 4, 5. xxxv. 15. Hos. xiv. 1. Jer. vii. 22, 23. xxvi. 4-6. I Deut. xxxi. 27. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 13. Prov. xxi. 1. Is. xlviii. 4. Jer. vii. 26. Rom. ii. 4. 5. Heb. iii. 7, 8. m Deut. i. 32 Ps. lxxviii. 22, 32. cvi. 24. Heb. iii. 12. n Ex. xxiv. 6. 10. Deut. xxiv. 10. -15. 25. Jer. xxi. 32. o 2 Chr. xxxi. 15. 16. Neh. x. 29. 29, 30. Jer. xlv. 4. p Deut. xxxii. 31. 1 Sam. xii. 21. 1 Kings xvi. 13. Ps. cxv. 8. Jer. x. 8. 15. Jon. ii. 8. Rom. i. 21. 1 Cor. viii. 4. q 8. 11, 12. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 2, 9. r Ex. xxxii. 8. 1 Kings xii. 28. Ps. cvi. 16-20. Is. xlv. 8, 9. s 1 Kings xiv. 15. 23. xv. 13. xvi. 33. t Deut. iv. 19. Jer. viii. 2. u x. 18. 28. xi. 118. 1 Kings xvi. 31. xxii. 53. x xvi. 3. xxi. 6. Lev. xviii. 21. 2 Chr. xxviii. 3. Ez. xx. 26. 31. xxlii. 37. 39. y xxi. 6. Deut. xviii. 10-12. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 6. Is. viii. 19. xlviii. 9. 12. Jer. xvii. 9. Mic. v. 12. Acts xvi. 16. Gal. v. 20. z 1 Kings xxi. 20. 25. Is. i. 1. a xxi. 6. b xlii. 23. Deut. xxix. 20-23. xxxii. 21-26. Josh. xxiii. 13. 15. Hos. ix. 3.

c 1 Kings xi. 19. 32. 36. xii. 20. Hos. xi. 12. d Jer. iii. 8-11. Ez. xvi. 51, 52. xxii. 2-16. xxxiii. 4-13. e viii. 10. 27. f 15. 1 Sam. xv. 23. 26. xvi. 1. Jer. vi. 30. Rom. xi. 1, 2. 6. g xlii. 3. 7. xv. 18. -20. 23. xviii. 9. 2 Chr. xxviii. 5, 6. h 18. Deut. xi. 12. Jon. i. 3. 10. Matt. xxv. 41. 2 Thes. i. 9. i 1 Kings xi. 11. 31. k 1 Kings xii. 19. 20. l 1 Kings xii. 23. -30. xiv. 16. m iii. 3. x. 29. 31. xlii. 2. 11. xv. 9. n 6. viii. 10. 1 Kings xiii. 2. xiv. 16. Hos. i. 4-9. Am. v. 27. Mic. i. 6. o 6. xviii. 11, 12. p Ezra iv. 2-10. q 30. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 11. r 31. xviii. 34. Is. i. 6. s x. 13. Is. x. 9. xxxvi. 19. t 6. Matt. x. 5.

u 28. 32. 34. 41. their dwelling there, that^u they feared Josh. xxii. 25. not the LORD; therefore, ^{*} the LORD Jer. x. 7 Dan. vi. 26. Jer. i. 9. sent lions among them, which slew some x ii. 24. 1 Kings xiii. 24. xx. 36. of them.
Jer. xv. 3. Ez. xiv. 15.

26 Wherefore they spake to the king of Assyria, saying, The nations which thou hast removed, and placed in the cities of Samaria, ^v know not the manner of the God of the land; therefore he hath sent lions among them, and behold, they slay them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land.

y 1 Sam. viii. 9.
x 25. Am. viii. 14.

27 Then the king of Assyria commanded, saying, Carry thither ^z one of the priests whom ye brought from thence, and let them go and dwell there, and let him teach them the manner of the God of the land.

z Judg. xvii. 13.
1 Kings xii. 31.
xiii. 2. 2 Chr. xi. 15.

28 Then one of the priests, whom they had carried away from Samaria, came and dwelt ^a in Beth-el, and ^b taught them how they should fear the LORD.

a 1 Kings xii. 29—32.
b Is. xlix. 13.

29 Howbeit every nation made ^c gods of their own, and put them in the houses of the high places which the Samaritans had made, every nation in their cities wherein they dwelt.

c Ps. cxv. 4—8.
Is. xlv. 9—20.
Jer. x. 3—5. Hos. viii. 5, 6. Rom. i. 23.

30 And the men of Babylon made Succoth-benoth, and the men of Cuth made Nergal, and the men of Hamath made Ashima, 31 And ^d the Avites made Nibhaz^d 21. and Tartak; and the Sepharvites ^e burnt^e 17. their children in fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech the gods of Sepharvaim.

32 So they feared the LORD, and made unto themselves of ^f the lowest of them priests of the high places, which sacrificed for them in the houses of the high places.

f 1 Kings xii. 34.
xiii. 33.

33 ^g They feared the LORD, and served their own gods, after the manner of the nations ^{*} whom they carried away from thence.

g Hos. x. 2. Zeph. i. 5. Matt. vi. 24.

* Or, who carried them away.

34 Unto this day they do after the former manners: they ^b fear not the LORD, neither do they after their statutes, or after their ordinances, or after the law and commandment which the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, ⁱ whom he named Israel;

b 25. 27. 28. 29.

35 ^{*} With whom the LORD had made a covenant, and ⁱ charged them, saying, Ye shall not ^m fear other gods, nor bow yourselves to them, nor serve them, nor sacrifice to them:

i Gen. xxxii. 23.
xxxiii. 20. xxxv. 10. 1 Kings xviii. 31. Is. xlviii. 1. k Ex. xix. 5, 6. xxiv. 6—8. Deute. xxxix. 10—15. Jer. xxxi. 31—34. Heb. viii. 6. —13.

36 But the LORD who brought you up out of the land of Egypt with great power, and ⁿ a stretched out arm, ^o him shall ye fear, and him shall ye worship, and to him shall ye do sacrifice.

l Ex. xx. 4. 5. xxxiv. 12—17. Deut. iv. 23—27. xiii. 1, &c. Josh. xxiii. 7. 16. Judg. vi. 10. m Jer. x. 5. n Ex. vi. 6. ix. 1. 5. Deut. v. 15. Jer. xxxii. 21. Act. iv. 30. o Lev. xix. 32. Deut. vi. 13. x. 20. xii. 5, 6. 11, 12.

V. 25. These colonists had met with no remarkable judgments, when they served idols in their own countries; but they now possessed the land which the Lord had called by his own name; and he was pleased to show them, that Israel had not been dispossessed because he was not able to defend them, but because he had given them up to ruin for their sins. It was also proper they should be convinced that they had no right to their new possessions, except by JEHOVAH's allowance; and that he expected that they should do him homage for their estates: and therefore a number of lions were let loose upon them, as soon as they entered the land. The desolations of war would naturally make way for the increase of wild beasts; but these lions assaulted the people after so remarkable a manner, that they concluded, according to truth, they were sent by the God of the land to punish them for not serving him.

V. 27, 28. It is not at all probable that this instructor was a priest of the family of Aaron, or that he taught the people from the book of the law, as some have thought. It can hardly be doubted, but he had been one of the priests, either of the golden calf at Beth-el, or of some high place in that neighbourhood. And accordingly he resorted to Beth-el as his residence, when sent to teach the people to worship the God of the land, having doubtless assistants in the business. It is, however, probable that he did not teach them to worship JEHOVAH by images; though we can only know what he taught by the result: and it is evident, they were led to consider JEHOVAH as the local tutelary god of the land, one among a group of other deities; instead of worshipping him as the one, true, eternal, almighty, and glorious Creator, Governor, and Judge of the world. They probably learned to offer sacrifices, with some external regard to the Mosaic law, but without understanding the meaning and use of that sacred ordinance. Along with these, and such like observances, they were allowed, or they assumed, the liberty of serving their own idols, according to the customs of their several tribes.

V. 29—31. The critics have framed many conjectures concerning the meaning of the names here made use of, and the idols and idolatries signified by them. But such obsolete abominations, with which every thing brutal, cruel, and licentious was connected, are not much worth understanding.

V. 32. After the example of Jeroboam, these men chose the priests of JEHOVAH from the lowest of the people; whilst probably the chief nobles were ambitious of the honour of being priests to their favourite idols!

Lev. xix. 37.
Deut. iv. 44, 45.
v. 31—33. vi. 1.
2. xii. 32. 1 Chr.
xxix. 19. Ps.
xix. 8—11. cv.
44, 45.
Deut. xxxi. 9.
11. Neh. ix. 13.
14.

Deut. iv. 23, vi.
12. viii. 14. 19.
1 Sam. xii. 21.
Is. viii. 12. 14.
Jer. x. 7. Matt.
x. 28. Luke i.
50.

37 And ^p the statutes, and the ordinances, and the law, and the commandment, which he ^a wrote for you, ye shall observe to do for evermore; and ye shall not fear other gods.

38 And the covenant that I have made with you ^r ye shall not forget, neither shall ye fear other gods.

39 But the LORD your God ^s ye shall fear; and ^t he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.

Neh. ix. 27.
Luke i. 71. 74,
75.

40 Howbeit they did not hearken, ^u but they did after their former manner.

u 8. 12. 34. Deut.
iv. 28.
x. 22, 33. Josh.
xxiv. 14—20.
1 Kings xviii. 21.
Zeph. i. 5. Matt.
vi. 24. Rev. iii.
15, 16.

41 So ^x these nations feared the LORD, and served their graven images, both their children and their children's children: as did their fathers, so do they ^y unto this day.

y Ezra iv. 1—3.

V. 33—40. The new inhabitants of the land imitated the idolatrous Israelites, by associating their idols with JEHOVAH, as the objects of worship. The remainder, however, of the verses seem to relate to the Israelites after they were carried captive. They still persevered in idolatry and disobedience; and not being purified, were left to be consumed in the furnace. It is said, that the Israelites did not fear the LORD (34); yet the heathens, who followed their example, are said, to have feared the LORD. The Israelites did not so much as fear the wrath of the almighty God: but on the other hand the poor Pagans feared the power of his wrath, and to avert it paid him some ignorant worship, according to the wretched instructions given them. As this was an external acknowledgment of his power and Godhead, and a homage paid to him, he was pleased in consequence to withdraw his judgments from them.

V. 41. Some ascribe these words to Jeremiah, the supposed penman of this part of the history, others to Ezra after the captivity. However, these Cutheans, (as the Jews call them from Cuthah,) maintained this mongrel religion till after that latter period, and so were proper successors of idolatrous Israel, the professed people of God. About four hundred years before Christ, a temple was built by them, in competition with the temple at Jerusalem: for, having been joined by a number of apostate Jews, and a priest of Aaron's, they renounced their idols, and became schismatical worshippers of JEHOVAH, receiving some parts and rejecting others of the Jewish scriptures. We need not decide, whether there was any true godliness among them: but, as a people, "they knew not what they worshipped, for salvation was of the Jews;" (John iv. 22.) Christ commanded his disciples, whom he sent forth in his life-time, not to enter into any city of the Samaritans: yet he himself spent two days at Sychar one of their cities; and the apostles after the day of Pentecost do not seem to have regarded the Samaritans as Gentiles; for they preached in their cities before the conversion of Cornelius: (Acts viii. 1—25.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—6.

The long-suffering of God, instead of leading sinners to repentance, often renders them more secure: for having long transgressed with impunity, they conclude that there is no danger; and thus they "treasure up wrath against the day of wrath."—Ungodly men are not all alike abandoned to flagrant enormities: but the least criminal deserves worse than the most severe temporal calamities; and consequently have no right to complain, if a sovereign

God shall see good, in their days, to execute upon a guilty people the accumulated vengeance of many generations. For when the appointed measure of iniquity is filled up, the Lord will forbear no longer: then kings and people reciprocally suffer on account of each other's crimes; and their causes and interests are no more separable, in the great concerns of national judgments and mercies, than those of the head, or heart, and the several members of the human body. When the service of God, which is perfect freedom, is renounced, men become slaves to the vilest and most tyrannical of masters: and sinners, left to themselves, never attempt more than a change of one tyrant for another; not having any idea or expectation of complete liberty. The extravagant profligate sometimes in advancing years exchanges the bondage of his sensual lusts, for the yoke of avarice or ambition: and the immoral and profane may commence Pharisees, or hypocrites: but mere nature can advance little further than this. Yet the gospel calls us not only to break our league with every lust, and to renounce every sinful connexion, however formed, confirmed, or palliated by specious pretences; but to refuse obedience to every superior who would require us to sin against God; which, if we would do, we must seek the assistance of his special grace. In all other cases the Lord marks with disapprobation men's violation of agreements, and refusal of obedience to those whom his providence has placed over them: and perfidious attempts for deliverance from trouble or thralldom, commonly issue in deeper misery and ruin.

V. 7—23.

When God arises to judgment, all opposition is fruitless, and only tends to prolong or increase misery. He keeps an exact register of our advantages, as well as of our sins and their aggravations: and when the day of retribution arrives, he will produce the whole account; that all the world may see he hath not done without cause, all that he hath done against the workers of iniquity: for the day of his wrath will be the revelation of his righteous judgment; and indeed his justice in the temporal sufferings of guilty nations is frequently evidenced in the same manner. No authority or example can bear men out in breaking the commandments of God: but the judgment they have known executed upon sinners; the favours conferred on themselves; and the testimony of the Lord's ministers, warning, exhorting, and inviting them to repent and to turn to God, will aggravate the guilt of those who harden their hearts in disobedience. Enormous as the outward wickedness of the world evidently is, the secret crimes, and sinful thoughts, desires, and purposes of mankind are immensely worse.

CHAP. XVIII.

Hezekiah reigns well, abolishes idolatry, and prospers, 1—8. In his time Samaria is taken, and Israel carried captive, 9—12. Sennacherib invades Judah, and Hezekiah pays him tribute, 13—16. Rabshakeh, sent by Sennacherib, in an insulting and blasphemous speech, aims to induce the people to revolt, 17—35. Hezekiah's servants hold their peace, and rend their clothes, 36, 37.

NOW it came to pass ^a in the third ^{a 9. xvi. 2 xvii. 1.} year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that ^b Hezekiah the son of Ahaz ^{b xvi. 20 1 Chr. iii. 13 Matt. i. 9, 10.} king of Judah began to reign.

Murders, rapines, adulteries, and treachery are horrid evils, which, for the good of society, are marked with a black brand of infamy: yet, in the balance of unbiassed reason, as well as in holy writ, ingratitude and enmity to God, proud rebellion against him, and contempt, neglect, or defiance of him; with all the idolatry, or impiety, which result from these propensities, are far more malignant violations of still higher obligations, and spring from the worst state of the heart imaginable. These will therefore be peculiarly considered in the condemnation of the wicked: especially of such as have been favoured with revelation, and the ordinances of God, and been his professed people, outwardly dedicated to him, and in covenant with him.—Without turning from every evil way, and keeping God's commandments and statutes, there can be no true godliness: yet this conversion must spring from a belief of his testimony, both concerning his wrath revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men; and concerning his mercy in Jesus Christ to all who repent and embrace this salvation. The rejection of his statutes and covenant is always the effect of unbelief; through which sinners harden their hearts against the fear of God, exclude the desire of his favour, and obstinately set themselves to break his commandment; and thus following lying vanities, become worthless and vile like unto their worldly idols.—When sinners have resolutely turned away from God, they will not only commit those sins which promise present advantage or gratification; but they transgress without any conceivable temptation, as if they purposely devised to provoke the Lord to anger: and having sold themselves to do evil, they serve Satan, with greater self-denial and violence done to their most rational natural affections, than ever could be required of them in the service of God. He peculiarly abhors those, who seduce or drive others, by any means, from following him, and cause them to sin against him: and generations yet unborn may curse the inventors of any false religion, or plausible system of infidelity, as the occasions of their everlasting perdition; nay, bad examples alone may render men chargeable with this tremendous guilt of murdering the souls of others; for human nature is far more ready to copy the evil than the good, and to listen to tempters than to monitors. How circumspectly should we then walk, seeing such dreadful consequences, for so long a time, may ensue in various ways from our misconduct!

V. 24—41.

When the Lord casts off his professing people, or delivers them into the hands of their enemies, he will take care of his own glory: and he can let their insulting conquerors know, that they have not prevailed against them for their own righteousness, or by their own power; but that he hath been provoked by the sins of those who were called by his name, to give their enemies such power against them.—All rational creatures ought to serve their Creator: and the very heathen who honour not his eternal power and Godhead, and are not thankful for his goodness, are left without excuse: yet that ignorance which springs from a comparative want of the means of instruction, is an alleviation of the sinner's guilt, and will plead effectually for the mitigation of his punishment; and the nearer we approach to "the valley of vision," the more inexcusable shall we be, if we continue irreligious or attached to vile superstitions. The terror of the Almighty sometimes induces unconverted sinners to a forced or a feigned submission: but where instructed by ignorant, formal, or hypocritical teachers, they form very unworthy thoughts of God, expect to please him by an outside form and a lip-labour; and endeavour to reconcile his service with that of Mammon, the love of the world, and the indulgence of their darling lusts. Thus slavish fear, united with ignorance, produces an unwilling worship, with the worthless dregs of their time and spirits, when the prime of them have been spent and exhausted in pursuits and pleasures more agreeable to their carnal minds; and they stop short of true repentance, faith, and devotedness to God. This kind of religion abounds from age to age, being congenial to the human heart, meeting with little disquietude from the natural conscience, and exciting no opposition from the world, or Satan, who willingly compounds to give up a part for a time, that he may at length engross the whole. Yet even such a worthless form of godliness is less dishonourable to the Lord, than the confident presumption of bold hypocrites and apostates. These come short even of this fear of God; and in opposition to the knowledge that they have acquired, they cast his law behind their back, set his threatenings, his power, and justice at defiance, and despise or abuse his mercies and his promises: if severe afflictions fail to bring such men to repentance, (an effect they seldom have,) their ruin is unavoidable, and will be most tremendous. But may that "fear of the Lord which is the beginning of wisdom," possess our hearts and influence our conduct, that we may be ready for every change! Our worldly settlements are precarious; we know not whither we may be driven before we die; and we must soon leave the world: then the wicked will be driven away in his wickedness; but the righteous hath "chosen that good part, which will never be taken from him."
VOL. II—No. 10.

Y

^c 2 Chr. xxix. 1.

^d Ahaz.

^e xx. 3. xxii. 2.

^f Kings. xv. 5. 11.

^g 2 Chr. xxix. 2.

^h xxi. 20. 21.

ⁱ xii. 3. xiv. 4.

^j xv. 4. 35. Lev.

^k xvi. 30. 1 Kings

^l iii. 2. 3. xv. 14.

^m xii. 43. Ps.

ⁿ lxxviii. 58. Ez.

^o xx. 28. 29.

^p xxiii. 4. &c.

^q Deut. vii. 5. xii.

^r 2. 3. Judg. vi.

^s 25. 28. 1 Kings

^t xv. 12. 13. 2 Chr.

^u xix. 3. xxxi. 1.

^v xxxiii. 3.

^w Heb. statues.

^x Num. xxi. 8. 9.

^y John iii. 14. 15.

^z h xvi. 15.

2 Twenty and five years old was he when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was ^c Abi the daughter of Zechariah.

3 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, ^d according to all that David his father did.

4 ^e He removed the high places, and ^f brake the * images, and cut down the groves, and brake in pieces ^g the brazen serpent that Moses had made: for ^h unto those days the children of Israel did burn incense to it; and he called it ⁱ Nehushtan.

5 He ^j trusted in the LORD God of Israel; so that ^k after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor ^l any that were before him.

6 For ^m he clave to the LORD and departed not ⁿ from following him, but ^o kept his commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses.

7 And ^p the LORD was with him, and ^q Matt xxviii 20. Acts vii. 9. 10.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVIII. V. 1. Hoshea seems to have been placed on the throne above four years before the death of Ahaz, (Marg. Ref.) but his establishment in quiet possession of the kingdom might take place some time after, from which the third year here mentioned was reckoned. For it is not likely that Hezekiah reigned a year along with his father.

V. 2. Twenty and five, &c. If we suppose that Ahaz at his death had nearly completed his thirty-seventh year, and Hezekiah was only entering on his twenty-fifth when he began to reign, Ahaz must have been under thirteen years of age, when his son was born! But there are on record well attested instances, especially in those climates, of men having children at as early a period: and there seems to have been a peculiar wisdom of Providence displayed in this uncommon circumstance; for thus Ahaz had a son of mature age to succeed him, when he had filled up so speedily the measure of his iniquities. And as Hezekiah was about nine years of age at the death of Jotham his grandfather, perhaps some good seed, which that pious prince had sown in his tender mind, might conduce to the excellency of his character.

V. 3. After the example of David, Hezekiah was sincerely and inwardly devoted to God; he delighted in his service, and persevered in promoting the cause of true religion to the end of his days: and, whilst preserved from scandalous offences such as David had been betrayed into, he emulated the strength of his faith, the vigour of his love, and the fervency of his piety.

V. 4. We shall hereafter meet with a fuller account of Hezekiah's reformation; (2 Chr. xxix. xxx. xxxi.) His father had set him a very bad example, and probably had given him as bad an education; yet he came to the throne, a confirmed servant of God, full of zeal for his glory, and confidence in his protection and assistance. Perhaps he had previously formed an acquaintance with Isaiah, who was at this time very eminent and useful. The prophet had occasionally been sent to Ahaz; but he was the friend and counsellor of Hezekiah. In this reformation he not only removed the monuments of idolatry, which abounded through the wickedness of Ahaz his predecessor; but he suppressed the irregular worship upon the high places, which had subsisted for many ages: and in doing this he must have risked much opposition from his own subjects. One instance of Judah's idolatry, and of Hezekiah's reformation, is mentioned in this place alone. The brazen serpent had been preserved by Israel, as a monument of the miracles wrought by means of it in behalf of their forefathers; in order to excite their gratitude, and encourage their faith and hope. We are not informed where it was: but it seems that after a time the people stupidly and wickedly made an idol of it, and burnt incense to it; as if it had wrought the cures, instead of being the external sign of God's operation. Hezekiah finding this idolatry deeply rooted, destroyed the brazen serpent, and called it Nehushtan, or the piece of brass; by way of exposing the folly of those who worshipped it, when it was of no more value or efficacy than any other piece of brass. The superstitious veneration paid to sacred relics in the Christian church, and especially the adoration paid to the form of the cross, and even in express words to the wood and nails of the cross, with all the impostures that have arisen from that absurd idolatry, have been exactly parallel to the worship of the brazen serpent; and Hezekiah's example fully authorizes the total abolition or disuse of every thing of that kind in religious worship. There were no relics under the Old Testament-church, except the pot of manna, Aaron's rod, and this brazen serpent. The two former were preserved by God's own appointment, but they were concealed in the holy of holies from popular inspection: the other was preserved by human contrivance, and it became an occasion of idolatry; until a pious king, who doubtless recollected with reverence and gratitude the event commemorated by it, destroyed it with decided abhorrence. And there never were any relics preserved in the Christian church, however good the intention of the preserver might be, that did not issue in abuses, superstitions, and impositions, which must cause all judicious friends to the gospel to unite in wishing their extirpation. Yet true piety, and fervent affection for holy things and holy men, naturally lead this way; unless sound judgment, and considerable acquaintance with human nature and the history of superstition, counteract the tendency.

V. 5, 6. None of the kings of Judah, from the time of the division of the kingdom, equalled Hezekiah, in the vigour and simplicity of his dependence upon the Lord; in which he aspired to an equality with his progenitor David, who had reigned over the whole land. Even Asa, through weakness of faith, sought the assistance of a heathen prince; and Jehoshaphat formed an alliance with idolatrous Ahab; but Hezekiah clave to the Lord in entire confidence to the end of his life.

^o 1 Sam. xviii. 5. ^o he prospered whithersoever he went forth: and he rebelled against the king of Assyria, and served him not.

^q 2 Chr. xxviii. 18. ^{Is. xiv. 29.} [•] Heb. Assah, [†] xvii. 9. 8 He smote ^q the Philistines, even unto * Gaza, and the borders thereof, ^r from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

[•] xvii. 3. 9 ¶ And it came to pass in ^s the fourth year of king Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria, and besieged it.

^{B. C. 720.} [†] xvii. 6. Hos. xiii. 16. Am. iii. 11—15. iv. 1—3. vi. 7. ix. 1—4. Mic. i. 6—9. vi. 16. vii. 13. 10 And at the end of three years they took it, even in the sixth year of Hezekiah, (that is the ninth year of Hoshea king of Israel,) Samaria was taken.

^u xix. 11. 1 Chr. v. 26. Is. vii. 8. viii. 4. ix. 9—21. x. 5. 11. Hos. viii. 8. 9. ix. 3. Am. v. 1—3. 6. 25—27. Acts vii. 43. ^x xvii. 7—23. Dan. ix. 6—11. Mic. iii. 4. 11 And the king of Assyria did carry away Israel unto Assyria, and ^u put them in Halah, and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes;

^x xvii. 7—23. Dan. ix. 6—11. Mic. iii. 4. 12 * Because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD their God, but transgressed his covenant, and all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded, and would not hear them, nor do them.

^{B. C. 713.} ^y 2 Chr. xxxii. 1. ^{Is. xxxvi. 1.} [†] Heb. Sannherib. 13 ¶ Now in ^r the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah did [†] Sennacherib king of Assyria ^r come up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took them.

14 And Hezekiah king of Judah sent to the king of Assyria to Lachish, saying, ^a I have offended; return from me: that which thou puttest on me I will bear. And the king of Assyria appointed unto Hezekiah king of Judah three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold.

15 And Hezekiah ^b gave him all the silver that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house.

16 At that time did Hezekiah cut off the ^c gold from the doors of the temple of the LORD, and from the pillars which Hezekiah king of Judah had overlaid, and gave it ^d to the king of Assyria.

17 ¶ And ^d the king of Assyria sent Tartan and Rabsaris and Rabshakeh from Lachish to king Hezekiah, with a ^{||} great host against Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem. And when they were come up, they came and stood ^e by ^e the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the highway of the fuller's field.

V. 7. (Note, xvii. 4.) Ahaz had basely made the land tributary to the king of Assyria, to purchase his assistance against the Israelites and Syrians: but Hezekiah, who was under no personal engagements to that prince, would not stand to the agreement that his father had formed. Having set about a thorough reformation, and confiding in the Lord's assistance, he refused submission to any foreign potentate: and, as the king of Assyria would call this rebel-ling against him, that term is here used. But it does not appear that Hezekiah violated any treaties: and the king of Assyria could have no just claim to domineer over the king of Judah. Some however think, that he was too precipitate in this measure; being rather elated by his prosperity in his other transactions.

V. 8. The Philistines seem to have recovered strength, in the late unsettled state of affairs in Israel and Judah; but Hezekiah again reduced them to subjection. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 9, 10. Shalmaneser began the siege of Samaria, in the beginning of the fourth year of Hezekiah, and the seventh of Hoshea; so that the three years siege was concluded by the end of the sixth of the former, and the ninth of the latter prince. The desolations of Israel would dispose the Jews to concur with Hezekiah, and thus facilitate his endeavours for reformation, as well as quicken him in them.

V. 13. A few years after the reduction of Samaria, Shalmaneser died, and was succeeded by his son Sennacherib. Shalmaneser doubtless would have attempted to subjugate Hezekiah, but he was otherwise employed, and thus leisure was given Hezekiah to effect his reformation without interruption. Sennacherib, as soon as he mounted the throne, emulated his father's military honours, and imitated his example. He therefore purposed to treat Jerusalem and Judah, as Shalmaneser had done Samaria and Israel: and it pleased God to chastise the lukewarmness, hypocrisy, or reluctancy, with which many of the Jews concurred in Hezekiah's reformation, and to try his faith, and that of other believers, by permitting this potent monarch to reduce all the other strong holds, and to threaten Jerusalem with a siege.

V. 14—16. Some expositors charge Hezekiah with criminality in revolting from the king of Assyria; but he seems rather to have sinned by yielding to him in so timid a manner. He evidently distrusted God's protection: and by confessing to the haughty conqueror, that he had offended, and was ready to submit to any imposition that he laid upon him; and by hiring his departure with his own treasures, and the gold of the temple, he invited and encouraged his further impositions. The event shows, that if he had boldly stood out, and committed his cause to God, he would have been protected. But though Hezekiah's conduct might perhaps be reprehensible; yet it served to render Sennacherib's subsequent violence more inexcusable. Ahaz had cut off the gold from the doors and pillars of the temple, and Hezekiah had replaced it: yet he too in this emergency cut it off to purchase peace.

18 And when they had called to the king, there came out to them Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the * scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the recorder.

19 And Rabshakeh said unto them, Speak ye now to Hezekiah, ^h Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this wherein thou trustest?

20 Thou † sayest, (but they are but † vain words,) † I have counsel and strength for the war. Now on whom dost thou trust, that thou * rebellest against me?

21 Now, behold, thou || trustest upon the staff of this bruised reed, even upon Egypt, on which if a man lean, it will go into his hand and pierce it: ⁿ so is Pharaoh king of Egypt unto all that trust on him.

22 But if ye say unto me, ^o We trust ^o 5. in the LORD our God: is not that he, whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and hath said to Judah and Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem?

23 Now therefore, I pray thee, give * pledges to my lord the king of Assyria, and ^a I will deliver thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them.

24 ^r How then wilt thou turn away the face of one captain of the least of my master's servants, and ^s put thy trust on Egypt for ^t chariots, and for horsemen!

25 ^u Am I now come up without the LORD against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.

f Is xxii. 20-24.
xxxvi. 3, 22.
g Is xxii. 15-19.
Or, secretary.

h 2 Chr. xxxii. 10.
Is. x. 8-14.
xxxvi. 4. xxxvii.
13. Dan. iv. 30.
i xix. 10. 2 Chr. i
xxxii. 7, 8, 10,
11, 14-16.

† Or, talkest.

† Heb. word of the lips.

† Or, but counsel and strength are for the war.

Prov. xxi. 30, 31.

k 14.

|| Heb. trustest thee.

l Is. xxxvi. 6. Ez. i

xxix. 6, 7.

m Is. xxx. 2, 7.

xxxii. 1-3.

n xvii. 4.

p 4. 2 Chr. xxxi.
1. xxxii. 12. Is.
xxxvi. 7.

* Heb. hostages.

q 1 Sam. xvii. 42.

— 44. 1 Kings

xx. 10. 18. Neh.

iv. 2-5. Ps.

cxliii. 3, 4. Is.

x. 13, 14. xxxvi.

8, 9.

r Is. x. 8. Dan.

ii. 37, 38. iv. 22.

37.

s 21. Deut. xvii.

16. Is. xxxi. 1.

3. xxxvi. 6, 9.

Jer. xxxvii. 7.

xlii. 14-18. Ez.

xvii. 15, 17.

t Ps. xx. 7, 8.

u xix. 6, 22. Sc.

1 Kings xli. 18.

2 Chr. xxxv. 21.

Is. x. 6.

V. 17. This second invasion is computed by some learned men to have been three years after the former agreement; during which time Sennacherib was occupied, and victorious, in other wars. But it seems more probable from the narrative, that he returned the ensuing year. Having, however, accomplished his other projects, and being lifted up with pride, he was determined, without any provocation, to reduce Jerusalem, and to treat its inhabitants as his father had done those of Samaria. He therefore sent his commanders with a large army to encamp against that city; being himself engaged in besieging Lachish; (2 Chr. xxxii. 9:) and they were instructed to summons Hezekiah to surrender at discretion, having doubtless particular orders what to say to him or his envoys, on that subject.

V. 18. Hezekiah, though summoned to a personal conference, did not choose to trust himself with his perfidious and domineering invaders; and therefore he appointed commissioners, or deputies, to attend in his name. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 19. Rabshakeh, &c. This man is reported by tradition to have been an apostate Jew; which supposition, if well grounded, may account both for his fluency in speaking in the Hebrew tongue and about the God of Israel, and for his embittered enmity against true religion.

V. 20, 21. It does not appear that Hezekiah, after the preceding agreement, had refused to pay tribute to the king of Assyria, or had attempted to shake off his yoke: but when he found him determined to destroy Jerusalem and enslave its inhabitants, he refused to surrender at discretion, and prepared to stand a siege; and this was rebellion, and the most unreasonable presumption! Rabshakeh supposed that Hezekiah had neither counsel nor strength, for such a war; and indeed he did not place his dependence on his own wisdom, or on the number and valour of his troops. Hoshea had indeed confided in the king of Egypt, and had been deceived and ruined by that confidence: and if Hezekiah had done the same, he might have proved to him like a bruised cane, which deceives those who lean on it, and not only lets them fall, but runs into their hands. But he had not put his trust in Egypt for chariots and horsemen: though probably many of his nobles were disposed to that measure, and some engagements of that kind had before been attempted. (Isaiah xxx. 1-7.)

V. 22. The Assyrians had learned that Hezekiah professed to confide in God: and Rabshakeh combated that confidence, by inquiring how he could presume to expect assistance from him, whose altars and high places he had destroyed? For he ignorantly supposed that the Lord would be pleased, and deem himself honoured, in proportion to the number of the temples and altars dedicated to him, though erected in direct contradiction to his command; and therefore he concluded that Hezekiah had forfeited God's protection by that very reformation which ensured it.

V. 23, 24. If Hezekiah would give security, that he would submit in case of failure, Rabshakeh vaunted that he would send him two thousand horses, provided he could find men to ride them. By this he meant to insult and expose Hezekiah's inability to resist the immense army of Sennacherib; or even a small detachment of it, under the command of the least of his captains. But the Israelites were forbidden to multiply chariots and horses, and Hezekiah, had learned to depend upon a firmer support.

V. 25. Rabshakeh intended to discourage the people, and to induce them to a revolt. Samaria had been destroyed according to the denunciations of God's word, and Sennacherib had been considered as his instrument in that destruction. The Jews also were menaced with judgments for their sins, and Rabshakeh affected to believe, that Sennacherib was commissioned to execute similar vengeance on 26 Then said Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rabshakeh, Speak, I pray thee, to thy servants ^x in the Syrian language; for we understand it: and talk not with us in the Jews' language in the ears of the people that are on the wall.

27 But Rabshakeh said unto them, Hath my master sent me to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words? hath he not sent me to the men which sit on the wall, that they may ^y eat their own dung, and drink ^{*} their own piss with you?

28 Then ^z Rabshakeh stood and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and spake, saying, Hear the word of ^a the great king, the king of Assyria:

29 Thus saith the king, ^b Let not Hezekiah deceive you: for he shall not be able to deliver you out of his hand:

30 Neither let Hezekiah ^c make you trust in the LORD, saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and ^d this city shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

31 Harken not unto Hezekiah: for thus saith the king of Assyria, [†] Make an agreement with me by a present, and come out to me, and then ^e eat ye every man of his own vine, and every one of his fig-tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his [†] cistern:

32 Until ^f I come and take you away to a land ^g like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of oil-olive and of honey, that ye may live, and not die: and hearken not unto Hezekiah, when he [†] persuadeth you, saying, The LORD will deliver us.

33 ^h Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered at all his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

34 Where are ⁱ the gods of Hamath, and of Arpad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and ^k Ivah? [†] have they delivered Samaria out of mine hand?

35 Who are they, among all the gods of the countries, that have delivered their country out of mine hand, ^m that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of mine hand?

36 But the people ⁿ held their peace, and answered him not a word: for the

[†] Or, Seek my favour. Heb. Make with me a blessing. Gen. xxxii. 20, xxxiii. 11. Prov. xviii. 16. e [†] Kingsiv. 20, 25. 2ech. iii. 10.

[†] Or, pit.

f [†] xvii. 6. 23. xxiv. 14—16. xxv. 11. g Ex. iii. 8. Deut. viii. 7—9. xi. 12. xxxii. 13, 14.

[†] Or, deceiveth. 29.

h xix. 12, 17, 18. 2 Chr. xxxii. 14. —17, 19. Is x. 10, 11. xxxvi. 18. —20.

i xix. 13. Num. xiii. 21. 2 Sam. viii. 9. Jer. xlix. 23. k xvii. 24. Ava. l xvii. 6, 23, 24. 30, 31. xix. 12, 13.

m Ex. v. 2. 2Chr. xxxii. 15. Job xv. 25, 26. Is. x. 15. xxxvii. 23—29. Dan. iii. 15.

n Ps. xxxviii. 13, 14. xxxix. 1. Prov. ix. 7. xvi. 4. Am. v. 13. Matt. vii. 6.

x Ezra iv. 7. Is. xxxvi. 11, 12.

y vi. 25. Deut. xxviii. 53—57. Ps. lxxlii. 8. ^y Heb. the water of their feet.

z 2 Chr. xxxii. 18. Is. xxxvi. 13—18.

a 19. Is. x. 8—13. Ez. xxix. 3. xxxi. 3—10.

b 2 Chr. xxxii. 11. 15. Dan. iii. 15. —17. vi. 16. John. xix. 10. 11. 2 Thes. ii. 4.

c 22. xix. 10. 22. Ps. iv. 2. x. 12. xxii. 7, 8. lxxii. 9. 11. Matt. xxvii. 43. d xix. 32—34.

Jerusalem. But there was no truth in his assertion, which the late effectual reformation might inspire the people with confidence to disregard; and the impiety of pretending that Sennacherib came by God's command, when he was entirely instigated by ambition, resentment, and rapacity, and when he treated God himself in the most blasphemous manner, was very horrible.

V. 26. The ambassadors understood the drift of Rabshakeh's discourse, and reasonably and mildly required him to make his proposals to them in the Syrian language; and not to address himself to the people, who were not proper judges in such matters.

V. 27. These were hyperbolical expressions, denoting the utmost extremities of famine, which the people must expect to endure, in case they dared to resist the king of Assyria.

V. 29—35. Rabshakeh supposed the Assyrian monarchs had overpowered the gods, as well as the kings, of all the nations which they had subjugated; and that JEHOVAH was no more powerful than the rest of them: and therefore, if the Jews regarded Hezekiah's persuasions, and expected help from the LORD, they would certainly be deceived, for he would never be able to deliver them. What mean thoughts of the infinite God, and what arrogant thoughts of himself, must have possessed the mind of Sennacherib, who doubtless had instructed his servant to speak of him in this style! The gods of Hamath, &c. were mere idols, not able to do good or evil. The people of Samaria had provoked the Lord to sell them into the hands of their enemies; and the idols, which they had chosen were indeed unable to defend them; but, soon after, the new inhabitants experienced to their loss, that the God of the land could, if he had so pleased, have delivered Samaria out of the hand of the king of Assyria. Surely, if this proud worm had not been intoxicated with success, he must have admitted, that somewhere in the universe there was a power superior to that of mortal man! and if so, it must be highly irrational to set thus at defiance all that was called God, or worshipped! But by this blasphemy the Lord was expressly engaged in the cause; and his honour required him to crush the self-important wretch that dared to exalt himself against him: and the greatest kindness imaginable was done to the king and people of Judah, by this language of impiety and defiance. The proposal made to the people was not very alluring, unless they could be previously terrified with the dread of impending destruction: but Rabshakeh avowed the intention of extorting more money from them; and only of permitting them to continue in their own land till the king had leisure to remove them to another; and the fertility of that other country was not likely to be very useful to those, who were to be captives and slaves in it. But who could have depended upon the word of such a man, if he had made more equitable proposals?

king's commandment was, saying, Answer him not.

37 Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the recorder, to Hezekiah, with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rabshakeh.

o Is. xxxiii. 7.
xxxvi. 21, 22.

V. 36, 37. Hezekiah was aware what language Rabshakeh would employ, and had wisely counselled his envoys, and commanded the people, to hold their peace; lest they should get engaged in a reviling contention, or provoke him to further impiety. In abhorrence, however, of his blasphemy, and in grief for the afflicted estate of the nation, they rent their clothes, and returned to the king.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—8.

In times of increasing impiety we should not despond, as if things must necessarily proceed from bad to worse; for the Lord is able to give them an unexpected and effectual turn. From the most abandoned families he sometimes raises up the brightest ornaments and most useful friends of true religion, to illustrate the sovereignty and power of his grace: and when parents have been notoriously profane and wicked, their children ought not to hesitate to express, by an opposite conduct, a decided disapprobation of their crimes, and to counteract to the utmost the effects of them upon others; whether they have occupied a public or a more private station in society: for when the honour of God is concerned, the reputation of the nearest relatives is entitled to a very subordinate regard. It is not enough, that we do not imitate the conduct of atrocious offenders, or that we tread in the steps of those who have upon the whole served God sincerely: but we should aim high; and in aspiring at that eminency which the Scripture proposes, we should set before our eyes the most approved patterns, whose actions are there recorded; that we may follow those who have most nearly followed Christ, and most effectually served God and their generation; and thus become good examples for others to copy. (1 Thes. i. 6, 7.) In attempting personal or public reformation, those things should be removed or avoided, which have proved occasions of evil, though not sinful in themselves. Human depravity is prone to pervert the bounty of Providence into fuel for sinful lusts; and in some circumstances, is equally propense to abuse the peculiar mercies of God into occasions of superstition and idolatry. It is natural to fallen man to put the creature in the place of the Creator, and to regard the instrument rather than the author, of our comforts: and though this is more absurd when the instrument is irrational or inanimate; it is equally idolatrous, when the most exalted of intelligent agents are thus unduly honoured. However excellent or useful, or deserving of honour such creatures have been: when they are thus idolized, their comparative meanness and worthlessness ought to be exposed, and the abuse of them treated with the deepest indignation and abhorrence: nay, it were better that the most exalted creature should perish, than that God should be dishonoured by having the least of his glory given unto another. Much more then should every monument of his former mercies be extirpated, when it becomes the occasion of such fatal delusions; and the abuse cannot otherwise effectually be prevented: but the propriety of such a measure is still more conspicuous, when the relic, or the custom, was originally the creature of superstition, a mere human invention, perhaps the result of fraud and imposture. True faith needs not such aids to devotion: the word of God, daily meditated upon, leads the mind to realize past, future, and invisible things, as if present; and thus every good end proposed by other expedients is answered, without the danger to which they expose us: and the simple scriptural use of the sacramental signs and pledges of heavenly things, may effectually be preserved from such abuse, and answer every purpose, which can be obtained by presenting the objects of our faith to our bodily senses, in any way not warranted by the word of God; which only tends to distract the mind, to interrupt the simple exercise of faith, to excite spurious affections, to deprave the imagination with gross and false notions of heavenly things, and to introduce either absurd superstition or wild enthusiasm. They who most entirely trust in God, will feel themselves most effectually emancipated from other dependences, and from the dominion of every other master; and will be encouraged to resist every enemy and rival, "that they may cleave to the LORD, and not depart from following him, and keeping his commandments."

V. 9—16.

Whilst the interests of religion decline or are run down in one place, the Lord takes care that they shall revive and flourish in another: the judgments which desolate degenerate churches and nations, instead of injuring his cause, tend to warn, animate, and embolden others in personal religion, and in attempting public reformation; nay, they often facilitate the work of active instruments in religious revivals, by intimidating opposers, and stirring up those who were indifferent, or reluctant to assist. Yet the believer, when pursuing heavenly things, and seeking the glory of God with the greatest simplicity and most vigorous affections, must stand prepared for trouble. For a time he may enjoy the sunshine of peace and prosperity to encourage him in his work, and to enable him to bring it to some establishment; and whatsoever he doeth shall eventually prosper. But when the Almighty is pleased to remove his restraining hand, Satan and wicked men will assault him with rancour and vehemency proportioned to his zeal and success: and the Lord will often permit them to do this; for he regards not so much the present feelings of his beloved servants, as the final happy and glorious event of their trials and conflicts. Nations also may meet with public calamities, when true religion is most vigorously and successfully promoted by the general concurrence of all orders of men. The secret dislike, the hypocrisy, and the lukewarmness of numbers require correction: and such trials tend to purify the faith and hope of upright persons; to bring them to greater simplicity in their zeal for the honour of God, and dependence on his help; and to increase

CHAP. XIX.

Hezekiah in distress sends to desire Isaiah's prayers, and receives an encouraging answer, 1—7. Sennacherib, going to oppose the king of Ethiopia, sends a blasphemous letter to Hezekiah, 8—13. His prayer on the receipt of it, 14—19. Isaiah, in the name of God, rebuking the proud blasphemies of Sennacherib, foretels his overthrow, and the prosperity of Zion, 20—34. An angel destroys the Assyrian army, 35. Sennacherib is slain by his own sons, in the temple of his idol, 36, 37.

a Is. xxxvii. 1.
h v. 7. xviii. 37.
1 Sam. iv. 19.
Ezra ix. 3. Jer.
xxxvi. 24. Matt.
xxvi. 65.
c vi. 30. Gen.
xxxvii. 34.
1 Kings xxi. 27.
29 Esth. iv. 1—
4. Is. xxxv. 12.
Jon. iii. 8. Matt.
xi. 21.

AND it came to pass, ^a when king Hezekiah heard it, that ^b he rent his clothes, and ^c covered himself with sack-the fervency of their addresses at the throne of grace: and thus they make way for the fuller display of his glory in their deliverance. Yet in such trying situations the strongest believers are apt to waver or make improper concessions, and to speak and act unadvisedly. Whatever is withheld or withdrawn from God, that has been or ought to be devoted to him, in order to purchase exemption from trouble, or peace with the enemies of his church, will eventually occasion our shame, and involve us in greater difficulties.

V. 17—37.

No dependence can be placed upon the engagements of the covetous or ambitious: all attempts to purchase their favour, or to soothe them into peace, are vain. When it is in their power, they will find some pretence for seizing upon those possessions which they covet: while every acquisition increases their insatiable rapacity. Success in wickedness swells them with pride and insolence; they forget that they are men, or have any superior: and treat all as enemies or rebels, who do not implicitly comply with their exorbitant demands. Our only safety then consists in committing our persons, property, connexions, reputations, liberty, and every thing that we value, into God's powerful keeping, in the exercise of faith, and in adhering to the path of duty. "The tongue, is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison; it setteth on fire the whole course of nature, and is set on fire of hell!" What pride, reproaches, lies, impiety, atheism, and blasphemy have, in all ages, been vented by it, to the dishonour of God, and the unutterable prejudice of mankind! And we may form some estimate of the desperate wickedness of the human heart, from the horrible language which is uttered by the lips of men; "for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." May the Lord replenish our hearts with his grace, that out of that good treasure we may speak such things, and such only, as may "minister grace unto the hearers." If indeed, "as the fool hath said in his heart, there were no God," it would in general be vain and presumptuous for the weaker to resist the stronger: but as "the Lord doeth what he will in the armies of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth;" so "the race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong." All confidence in man may indeed justly be exploded, as leaning upon a broken staff, which will not only fail, but also wound: and dependence on our own counsel and might, whatever proportion they may bear to those of our opponents, is equally vain and fallacious. But our God never faileth those who trust in him:

in this confidence the believer, when more conscious of his own extreme debility than his insulting foes can conceive, may boldly defy the most potent of them; and if they deride this dependence on the omnipotent God, they only engage him, for his own name's sake, the more decisively to fight against them; and to turn their vauntings and threatenings into confusion, dismay, and ruin. When they who have lorded it over their fellow worms presume to assault those whom the God of heaven protects, they will soon feel their inability to resist his power, or to endure the weight of his indignation. Yet many, who atheistically or impiously deny his existence, blaspheme his truths, or condemn his authority; inconsistently, upon other occasions, advance claims to his favour, and express their expectations that he will prosper their wicked devices! Because they have succeeded in exposing or seducing hypocritical and degenerate professors of Christianity; they triumph as if they had, or soon should, run down the cause of vital godliness, and prevail against the house of David and his kingdom, which is founded upon an immoveable foundation. Numbers also ignorantly and absurdly suppose those things to be pleasing to God which he most abhors; because they form their judgment upon the deductions of their own understandings, and not upon the plain testimonies of his word: "For the things of the spirit of God are foolishness to the natural man." Hence they embolden themselves, and endeavour to discourage the scriptural worshipper, upon the most false and preposterous grounds. Such cavils, objections, and arguments have no weight with the established believer: and therefore these men pretend to despise them, that they may address the prejudices and passions of the ignorant, unstable, and unthinking multitude, with whom their specious declamations go further than either solid arguments or scriptural testimonies. They endeavour to insinuate, that the persons who labour to prevail with them to trust and serve God, according to the plain meaning of his holy word, are deceivers, to whom they cannot safely attend: and whilst they are only aiming at the gratification of their own ambition or avarice, they pretend great compassion and kindness for them, are lavish of good words, and set before them alluring prospects of felicity. But it is often best to leave such persons to rail and blaspheme, without directly answering: because such attempts ordinarily increase their self-importance, and tend to disseminate still wider the effect of their poisonous tennets; while a decided expression of abhorrence of their guilt generally forms the best testimony against them. The matter must be left to the Lord, who hath all hearts in his hands: he will plead his own cause, and that of his truth

d iii. 11. 2 Chr.
vii. 15, 16.

exviii. 18. xxii. 13.
14. Is. xxxvii.
2-5.

f Matt. iv. 14.
Luke iii. 4.

g Is. i. 1.

h xviii. 29. Ps
xxxix. 11. cxlii.

i Is. xxvi. 17, 18.
lxvi. 9. Hos.
xiii. 13.

k Gen. xxii. 14.
Deut. xxxii. 36

l Ps. xiv. 12.
1 Sam. xiv. 6.

m 2 Sam. xvi. 12.
lxviii. 17. 35.

n 22. Ps. 1. 21.
2 Chr. xxxii. 20.

o Ps. 1. 15. Jer.
xxxiii. 3. Ez.
xxxvi. 37. Jam.
v. 16, 17.

cloth and ^d went into the house of the LORD.

2 And ^e he sent Eliakim, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, ^f to Isaiah the prophet ^g the son of Amoz.

3 And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, ^h This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, ^{*} and blasphemy: ⁱ for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 ^k It may be the LORD thy God will hear all the words of Rabshakeh, ^l whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to reproach the living God; and will ^m reprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore ⁿ lift up thy prayer for ^o the remnant that are [†] left.

5 So the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

6 And ^p Isaiah said unto them; Thus shall ye say to your master, Thus saith the LORD, ^q Be not afraid of the words which thou hast heard, with which ^r the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will send ^s a blast upon him, and he shall ^t hear a rumour, and shall return to his own land; and ^u I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 [†] So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against ^x Libnah: for he had heard ^y that he was departed ^z from Lachish.

o xvii. 5, 6. xviii.
13. 2 Chr. xxxviii.
5, 6. Is. viii. 7, 8.
x. 6.

† Heb. found.

p Is. xxxvii. 6, 7.
q vi. 16. Ex. xiv.

r 13. Lev. xxvi. 8.
Deut. xx. 1, 3, 4.

s Josh. xi. 6.
2 Chr. xx. 15.

t 17. Is. xxxviii. 6, 7 xli. 10-14. li.
7. 12, 13.

u xviii. 35. Ps.
lxxiv. 18. 28.
Rev. xiii. 6.

s 35. 37. Job iv. 8.
p xi. 6. xviii.

t 14. 15. 1. 3. Is.
x. 16-18. xi. 4.

u Jer. li. 1.
t vii. 6. Job xv.

u 21. Jer. xlix. 14.
li. 46. Ob. 1.

u 36, 37. 2 Chr.
xxxii. 21

x xviii. 22. Jos. 8.
29. xii. 15.

y xviii. 14. Is.
xxxvii. 8, 9.
Mic. i. 13.

and people; and our business is to commit ourselves into his hands, in the exercise of humble submission, believing hope, and fervent prayer.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIX. V. 1. By these actions Hezekiah expressed his abhorrence of Rabshakeh's blasphemy, his grief for the afflictions of his people; and his humble consciousness of his own and his people's unworthiness, and need of pardoning mercy; whilst he wholly depended upon God for protection.

V. 2. Isaiah, &c. Isaiah had at this time prophesied almost fifty years, if he entered upon that office only a short time before the death of Uzziah; (Is. vi. 1.) We must suppose that Hezekiah had often consulted him: and the nature of this message implies a previous acquaintance, and a mutual confidence. Isaiah's visits to Hezekiah, at and after his sickness, are thought by some to have taken place before this, though recorded afterwards: (xx:) and many parts of his prophecy evidently refer to these events. In this emergency therefore Hezekiah sent to Isaiah the prophet, rather than to the high-priest; though he had employed the priests and Levites in his reformation. Perhaps Urijah was still living, or some other too much resembling him in character: there seems however to have been an intended slight upon the high-priest. Some learned men indeed think, that the appointed method of inquiring of God by the high-priests, was disused from the time that the temple was built: but this can only be collected from the silence of Scripture, as no express declaration to that effect is recorded. Shebna, who was employed on this occasion, as well as in receiving the message of Rabshakeh, is elsewhere represented in an unfavourable light. (Is. xxii. 15-19.) For pious princes cannot always employ such persons, and such only as they approve. The elders of the priests accompanied the chief officers of the king, in going to the prophet.

V. 3. It was not only a season of great distress to Israel: but the confidence of the king, in the protection of God, was rebuked as a groundless presumption, and the name of JEHOVAH was blasphemed on that account. Indeed matters were come to a crisis: every thing valuable was at stake: as the woman in travail, who hath not strength to bring forth, must die, if she be not speedily assisted; so Hezekiah and his people, in their pressing necessity, were utterly unable to do any thing effectual to extricate themselves, and must perish without immediate help from God.

V. 4. Will hear, &c. Hezekiah's confidence in God was in some respect encouraged by the blasphemy of the Assyrians. For though he and his people were unworthy of the divine favour; yet it was proper for the Lord to rebuke and silence the reproachful words that had been spoken. In this hope therefore he entreated the prophet to lift up his prayer, with earnestness and importunity, for the remnant that was left, that the whole professing people of God might not be swallowed up and extirpated. Israel had been carried into captivity and dispersed; and Judah was reduced to extremities: and would God suffer his blasphemers finally to prevail against his worshippers, and entirely to destroy his holy religion?

V. 7. A blast, &c. Some have supposed that this expression related to the manner in which the Assyrian army was destroyed: viz. by exciting one of those scorching winds, which in those countries have been known to destroy great numbers in a moment. But this is uncertain: and perhaps it only means, that the Lord would destroy all his prosperity, as easily as the pinching gale of wind blastst the tender vegetables: whilst the death of his numerous forces, perhaps attended by a report that Tirhakah and the Ethiopians were marching to assault him, as a terrifying rumour in his ears, would hurry him home with dismay and disgrace. As the word, rendered blast, is often translated spirit; some explain this expression to mean, that God would send an angel, or spirit, to destroy Sennacherib's army; but others think it signifies, that God would fill his heart with terror by some supernatural agent. "I will infuse a spirit into him." "The words never signify any thing but putting a spirit into a person. This was a spirit of fear." (Bp. Lowth.)

z 1 Sam. xxiii. 27, 28.

a xviii. 17.

b xviii. 5, 29, 30.
2 Chr xxxii. 15—
19. Is. xxxvii.
10—14.c 17, 19. xviii. 33,
34. 2 Chr xxxii.
13, 14.d xvii. 6. 1 Chr. v.
26. e Gen. xi. 31.
xxix. 4.
f Gen. ii. 8. Ez.
xxvii. 21.
g. xviii. 34.h Is. xxxvii. 13
Arphad.

i Is. xxxvii. 14.

k 1 Kings viii. 29
—30. Ps lxxiv.
10, 11. xci. 1, 2.
cixiii. 1—4.

9 And ^z when he heard say of Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, Behold, he is come out to fight against thee: ^a he sent messengers again unto Hezekiah saying,

10 Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah, king of Judah, saying, ^b Let not thy God in whom thou trustest deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Behold, ^c thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, by destroying them utterly: and shalt thou be delivered?

12 Have the gods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have destroyed; as ^d Gozan, and ^e Haran, and Rezep, and the children of ^f Eden which were in Thelasar?

13 ^g Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of ^h Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Hena, and Ivah?

14 And ⁱ Hezekiah received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah went up into the house of the LORD, and ^k spread it before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah ^l prayed before the LORD, and said, ^m O LORD God of Israel, which ⁿ dwellest between the cherubims, ^o thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; ^p thou hast made heaven and earth.

16 LORD, ^q bow down thine ear, and hear: ^r open, LORD, thine eyes, and see; and hear the words of Sennacherib, ^s which hath sent him to reproach the living God.

17 Of a truth, LORD, ^t the kings of Assyria have destroyed ^u the nations and their lands.

18 And have ^v cast their gods into the fire: ^w for they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore they have destroyed them.

19 Now therefore, ^y O LORD our God, I beseech thee, save thou us out of his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the LORD God, even thou only.

20 ¶ Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, That which thou hast prayed to me, ^z against Sennache-

1 2 Sam. vii. 16,
8c. 2 Chr. xiv.
11. xx. 6. Dan.
ix. 3, 4.
m Gen. xxii. 28.
xxiii. 20.
p Ex. xxxv. 22.
1 Sam. iv. 4. Ps.
lxxx. 1.
o v. 15. 1 Kings
xviii. 39. Is.
xliii. 10. xlv. 6.
8. xlv. 22. Dan.
iv. 34, 35.
p Gen. i. 1, ii. 4.
Ps. xxxiii. 9.
cxlvi. 6. Jer. x.
10—12. John i. 3.
q Ps. xxxi. 2. Is.
xxxvii. 17.
r 2 Chr. vi. 49.
s 4.

t xvi. 9. xvii. 6.
24. 1 Chr. v. 26.
Is. vii. 17, 19. x.
9—11.
u 2 Sam. v. 21. Is.
xlv. 1, 2.
v Heb. given.
x Ps. cxv. 4—6. Is.
xxxvii. 18, 19.
xlv. 9—20. Jer.
x. 2—9. 14—16.

y Ex. ix. 15, 16:
Josh. vii. 9.
1 Sam. xvii. 45
—47. 1 Kings
viii. 43. xlviii. 36.
37. Ps. lxxvii. 1, 2.
lxxxiii. 18. Dan.
iv. 34, 38.

z 2 Sam. xv. 31.

V. 8. It seems probable that Rabshakeh marched the army back from Jerusalem to join Sennacherib, when he found that Hezekiah would neither surrender, nor return any answer to his insulting message. For Jerusalem was so advantageously situated, and so well fortified, that with a moderate garrison it might have made a stout resistance against the Assyrian army: though it must probably at length have shared the fate of Samaria, if the Lord had not effectually interposed. The siege however was postponed, or not carried on with vigour, till Sennacherib had leisure to come against it in person. In the mean time he had withdrawn from Lachish, (it is not known whether he had taken it or not;) and was besieging Libnah, another city which refused to open its gates to the conqueror.

V. 9. When Sennacherib had the first time levied contributions upon Hezekiah, he marched his army into Egypt; probably in resentment against the king, for forming alliances with the vassals of the Assyrians, as he regarded the Jews and the Samaritans to be. After several successes there, whilst he was besieging Pelusium, an important fortress in that country, he heard that Tirhakah king of Ethiopia was marching against him with a great army: and not choosing to wait his approach, he raised the siege; and, returning into Judea, began to commit hostilities there, as hath been before related. But finding that Tirhakah pursued him as a fugitive, he marched back to encounter him; and having totally routed his army, he returned to wreak his vengeance on Hezekiah and Jerusalem. This gave the Jews some respite for preparation, and for prayer: and afforded Sennacherib an occasion of more deliberately uttering his blasphemies, by a letter sent to Hezekiah, when detained for a time from marching against him. Learned men differ in opinion concerning Tirhakah; whether he was king of Ethiopia, or Cush, to the south of Egypt in Africa, or of the Cushites in Asia. He was however an ally of the king of Egypt.

V. 14. And spread it, &c. By this action Hezekiah referred the matter entirely to God, intimating that as His honour was immediately assaulted, he was chiefly concerned to defend it: and that by this appeal, he meant to shelter himself and his people under the shadow of the Almighty, that whilst the Lord pleaded his own cause, he might also deliver them from their enraged enemies.

V. 16. Him, &c. That is, Rabshakeh, who perhaps was sent with this letter also.

V. 19. It would have been comparatively a small matter for Hezekiah and his people to perish: but it would be an evil of infinite magnitude, for all the nations to conclude, that JEHOVAH was no more powerful than their worthless idols: and it would be unspeakably honourable to the name of God, to show the difference betwixt the Creator of the world, and these his puny rivals; and to prove that he only was the LORD, able to save and to destroy. Sennacherib's blasphemous challenge gave a fair opportunity of publicly demonstrating this most important truth: and a plea grounded so directly on the honour of God could not but prevail. (Marg. Ref.) rib king of Assyria, ^a I have heard. ^b This is the word that the Lord hath spoken concerning him; ^c The virgin the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath ^d shaken her head at thee. ^e Whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed? and against whom hast thou ^f exalted thy voice, and lifted up thine eyes on high? even against ^g the Holy One of Israel. ^h By ⁱ thy messengers thou hast reproached the Lord, and hast said, ^j With the multitude of my chariots I am come a xx. 5. 2 Chr. xxxii. 20. 21. Job xxii. 27. Ps. 1. 15. lxxv. 2. Is. lvi. 9. lxxv. 24. Jer. xxxiii. 3. Dan. ix. 20. —23. John xi. 42. Acts x. 4. 31. 1 John v. 14, 15. b Is. xxxiii. 12. xxxvii. 22. xlvii. 1. Jer. xiv. 17. xlviii. 13. xxxi. 4. Lam. i. 15. ii. 13. Am. v. 2. c Ps. ix. 14. cxxxvii. 8. Is. i. 8. xxxiii. 10. xlvii. 5. Jer. xlvii. 11. Lam. ii. 13. iv. 21. Mic. iv. 3. Zech. ix. 9. d Job xvi. 4. Ps. xxii. 7, 8. Is. xxxvii. 22. Lam. ii. 15. Matt. xxvii. 39. —e xxviii. 28—35. Ex. v. 2. Ps. lxxiii. 9. lxxiv. 22, 23. —f Ex. ix. 17. Prov. xxx. 13. Is. x. 15. xiv. 13, 14. Ez. xxviii. 2—9. Dan. v. 20—23. Luke xiv. 11. 2 Cor. x. 5, 2. Thes. ii. 4. —g Ps. lxxi. 22. Is. v. 24. xxx. 11, 12. 15. Jer. li. 5. —h Heb. the hand of. h xlviii. 17. —i xlviii. 23. 33, 34. Ps. xx. 7. Is. x. 7—11. 14. xxxvii. 24, 25. Ez. xxxi. 3, &c.

V. 21. The virgin, &c. The inhabitants of Jerusalem, as forming or representing the visible church of God, having his temple and instituted worship among them, are called in one body the daughter of Zion, or of Jerusalem. They were safe under his protection and care, as a virgin-daughter in the house of her wise and tender parent: and though now the Assyrian attempted brutal violence, they might treat his efforts with disdain and defiance; might despise them and laugh them to scorn, and menace his destruction by shaking their heads at him. Perhaps the term virgin, might refer to the state of Jerusalem, as free from idolatry, and reserved for the Lord alone; (2 Cor. xi. 1, 2;) or as having never been exposed to the ravages of an enraged victor. The city of David, or Zion, seems never to have been taken by any assailant, from the time when David got possession of it, till the Babylonish captivity. The former part of this message is addressed, not to Hezekiah, but to Sennacherib, as if present; first by the daughter of Zion, and then by the Lord himself.

V. 22. Sennacherib had not only exalted his voice, in reproach and blasphemy against God; but he had lifted up his eyes in pride and ambition, as if he even aspired to his throne, and affected an equality with him, or even superiority above him. But he did not consider whom he had thus affronted: not the idols of the heathens, which being wood and stone he had easily cast into the fire; but Israel's holy Protector, who would execute vengeance upon him for his bold presumption; and being the Creator of heaven and earth, he could crush as a moth the feeble worm that had set him at defiance.

V. 23. The Assyrian monarch, elated by his successes, and on account of the number and valour of his troops, his chariots, and other military preparations, supposed that nothing would be too hard for him to accomplish. He is here introduced as glorying in what he had done, and would do. No mountain so inaccessible but he could drive his chariots over it; no forest so impervious, but he could level it with the ground; no place so fortified, but he would force his way into it! Some suppose he meant that he had marched his army through the defiles, or over the craggy summits, of mount Lebanon: but others think that by these expressions, the temple on mount Zion is intended; up to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon, and will cut down the tall cedar-trees thereof, and the choice fir-trees thereof: and I will enter into the lodgings of his borders, and into the forest of his Carmel.

24 I have digged and drunk strange waters, and ^k with the sole of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of ^l besieged places.

25 || Hast thou not heard long ago how ^m I have done, it, and of ancient times that I have formed it? now have I brought it to pass, that thou shouldst be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps.

[†] Heb. tallness, &c.

¹ Or, the forest, and his fruitful field Is. x. 18 k Ex. xv. 9 2 Sam. xvii. 13 1 Kings xx. 16 Dan. iv. 30.

^l Or, fenced. || Or, Hast thou not heard how I have made it long ago, and formed it of ancient times? Should I now bring it to be laid waste, and fenced cities to be ruinous heaps? 1 Is. x. 5, 6, 15. xxxviii. 26, 27. xlv. 7. xlvii. 10, 11. liv. 16. Acts iv. 27, 28.

and that he gloried, as already indisputably master of the whole land, and as if he had marched his army, and driven his chariots, into the mountain of the Lord's house, and dispossessed him of his habitation. The temple may be called Lebanon, either because difficult of access, or because it was built with cedars of Lebanon: the removal of all obstructions by slaying the bravest of Hezekiah's captains, may be denoted, by cutting down the cedars and choice fir-trees: and "the lodgings of his borders, and the forest of his Carmel," may mean the strong-holds upon the borders of the land: and the fruitful fields, which would come into the possession of the conqueror. For Carmel being situated in a very fruitful part of the land, every fruitful spot seems to have been called by that name.

V. 24. Hezekiah had before taken measures to prevent the Assyrians from finding water near Jerusalem, (2 Chron. xxxii. 2—4:) But this haughty conqueror boasted, that wherever his army marched to besiege cities, they dried up all the rivers by which they were defended, either by the numbers that drank of them, or by diverting their course into other channels: also that by digging wells, he found water where none was ever found before: as if he had been capable of dividing the rivers, that his army might march over; and of bringing waters from the rock as JEHOVAH had done for his people! The cities of Egypt, where Sennacherib had been very successful, were chiefly defended by rivers or deep moats.

V. 25. When the Lord had declared the vain-glorious thoughts of Sennacherib's heart, who affected to be thought invincible and omnipotent; he addressed him as in person, and interrogated him, whether he had never heard that these were the peculiar works of Israel's God? In ancient times, long before Sennacherib, or the ancestors of whom he boasted, were born, JEHOVAH (for the deliverance of his people, and to form them into a nation worshipping him,) had, as it were, levelled mountains, and literally dried up rivers and seas to afford them a passage, and caused them to drink strange waters flowing from the rock of flint. Nay, Sennacherib, in what he had done, had only fulfilled the purposes and predictions of JEHOVAH, as his instrument in his least honourable work of executing ven-

m Num. xiv. 9.
Pa. cxxvii. 1.
Jer. xxxvii. 10.
* Heb. short of
hand.
n Ps xcii. 7. cii.
11. Is. xl. 6-8.
James i. 10, 11.
1 Pet. i. 24.
o Ps cxxix. 6-8.

p Ps. cxxxix 2-11. Jer. xxiii.
23, 24.
† Or, sitting.

q Deut. xxviii. 6.
19. Ps. cxxi. 8.
Is. xxxvii. 28, 29.

r Ps. li. 1, 2. vii.

s. x. 13, 14.

xlvi. 6. xciii. 3.

4 Luke vi. 11.

John xv. 18, 23.

24. Acts vii. 64.

† Ps. lxxv. 7. lxxiv.

d. 23. lxxxiii. 32.

† Job xli. 2. Ps.

xxxii. 9. Ez.

xxix. 4. xxxviii.

4. Am. iv. 2.

u 33. 36, 37.

x 21. 31-34. xx.

9. Ex. iii. 12.

Is. vii. 11-14.

Luke ii. 12.

v Lev. xxv. 4, 5.

20-22. Is.

xxxvii. 30.

z 4. 2 Chr. xxxii.

22, 23. Is. i. 9.

x. 20-23.

† Heb. the escaping of the house of Judah that remaineth.

26 Therefore their inhabitants ^m were * of small power, they were dismayed and confounded; ⁿ they were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb, as ^o the grass on the house-tops, and as corn blasted before it be grown up.

27 But ^p I know thy [†] abode, and ^q thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy rage against me.

28 Because ^r thy rage against me, and ^s thy tumult is come up into mine ears, therefore I will put ^t my hook in thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back ^u by the way by which thou camest.

29 And this shall be ^x a sign unto thee, ^y Ye shall eat this year such things as grow of themselves, and in the second year that which springeth of the same;
and in the third year sow ye and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruits thereof.

30 ^z And [†] the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah ^a shall yet again take root downward, and bear fruit upward.

31 For ^b out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and ^c they that escape out of mount Zion; ^e the zeal of the LORD of hosts shall do this.

32 Therefore thus saith the LORD, concerning the king of Assyria, ^d He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with a shield, ^e nor cast a bank against it.

33 By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the LORD.

34 For ^f I will defend this city, to save it, ^g for mine own sake, and for ^h my servant David's sake.

35 ¶ And it came to pass ⁱ that night,
that ^k the angel of the LORD went out, ^l and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand:
and ^m when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses.

a Ps. lxxx. 9. Is.
xxviii. 6. xxxvii.
31, 32.

b Jer. xlii. 14.
Rom. ix. 27. xi.
5.

c Heb. the escaping.
e Is. ix. 7. Ez. xx.
9. Zech. i. 14.

d Is. viii. 7-10.
k. 24, 25. 28-
32. xxxvii. 33-35.

e Ez. xxi. 22.
Luke xix. 43, 44.

f Is. xxxi. 5.
xxxviii. 6.

g Deut. xxxii. 27.
Is. xliii. 25.

h Ez. xliii. 9. 11. Ez.
xxxvi. 22. Eph.
i. 6. 14.

i 1 Kings xi. 12.
13. xv. 4. Is. ix.
7. Jer. xlii. 5.

k 6. xxxii. 21. 26.
l Ex. xii. 29. Dan.
v. 30. 1 Thes.
v. 2, 3.

m Ex. xii. 30. Ps.
lxxvi. 5-7. 10.

geance: and this without intending it, and instigated only by his own ambition, rage, and insatiable rapacity. God in righteousness had allotted him the service of "laying waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps," which he performed in a most iniquitous manner. Isaiah's prophecies concerning the Assyrians may also be intended. (Marg.
Ref.)

V. 26. The Lord had been pleased to enfeeble and intimidate all the enemies with whom Sennacherib had hitherto encountered; so that they fell before him as the grass before the scythe; nay, they withered of themselves, "as grass on the house-tops, or as corn blasted before it be grown up." So that his success was no decided proof that he possessed any extraordinary power, courage, or conduct; and he had no reason thus to vaunt, as if he only had done wonderful things.

V. 27, 28. The Lord knew Sennacherib's secret thoughts, as well as his undertakings; and that he was actuated by implacable enmity against his perfections, authority, worship, and worshippers; especially since Hezekiah, trusting in the Lord, had dared to disregard his menaces and resist his will. This rage had vented itself in blasphemies and reproaches against God; and had also occasioned insolent threatenings and tumultuous preparations against Jerusalem. But the Lord was about to deal with him by force, as with some savage beast, or untractable horse or mule: he would fasten an hook in his nose, and a bridle in his mouth, and let him know his master, and send him home baffled and disgraced.

V. 29. The Lord here addressed Hezekiah. The devastations of the Assyrians had probably prevented the land from being sown that year; and the next is supposed to have been the sabbatical year; (though this is the only intimation, in all the history of Israel, that any regard was paid to that institution;) but the Lord here engaged, that the spontaneous produce of the land, from the corn shaken out in gathering in the preceding harvest, should be sufficient for the support of the people, during those two years, and till a supply was obtained in the ordinary way. As the performance of this promise was evidently subsequent to the destruction of Sennacherib's army, it was a sign to Hezekiah's faith, that the present deliverance would be an earnest of the Lord's persevering care of the kingdom of Judah; and of the accomplishment of that part of the promise which related to events still more remote. (Note, Exod. iii. 12.)

V. 30, 31. The ten tribes were already carried captive; Judah was brought very low; Jerusalem alone withstood the victor's arms, and it was menaced with a siege. The professed worshippers of God were a very small remnant, and seemed devoted to ruin. But that remnant would be as seed-corn; which, striking root in a fruitful soil, springs up and yields a large increase. They were destined to go forth from mount Zion, to possess the land, and to spread into distant countries; and were a typical resemblance of the apostles and primitive Christians, who from Jerusalem carried the Gospel into all the nations of the earth, in order to produce an immense increase of true believers, who are all the children of Abraham, and heirs according to the promise. This the Lord himself undertook to perform; not because of their righteousness, but out of zeal for his own glory; to make known his perfections, to magnify his law and authority, and to promote his worship.

V. 34. For my servant, &c. That is, from a gracious regard to David's faith and piety, to perform the promises made to his family, and to make way for the coming of the Messiah who was to descend from him.

V. 35. Rabshakeh seems to have rejoined the king Z 2

n 7. 23. 38.
o Gen. x. 11, 12.
Jon. i. 2. Nah.
1. 1. ii. 6. Matt.
xii. 41.
B. C. 709.
p 10. xviii. 5. 30.
2 Chr. xxxii. 14.
19. Is. xxxvii.
37, 38.

36 So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed, and went and ^a returned, and dwelt at ^b Nineveh.

37 And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of ^c Nisroch his god, that Adrammelech and Sharezer ^d his sons smote him with the sword: and they escaped into the land of * Armenia. And ^e Esar-haddon his son reigned in his stead.

q 2 Chr. xxxii. 2)

* Heb. Aradad.
Gen. viii. 4.
Jer. li. 27.
r Ezra iv. 2.

with his detachment; and after the victory gained over Tirhakah, Sennacherib marched directly to besiege Jerusalem: and was just arrived and encamped near that city, but had not made any assault upon it. And this happened the very night after Hezekiah had spread the letter before God, and sought his help by prayer. The devastation was made with such profound silence, that the survivors were not aware of the blow, till they arose in the morning, and found one hundred and eighty-five thousand of their comrades dead in the camp. Probably Rabshakeh perished among the rest; but Sennacherib was preserved to still deeper disgrace, and a more dreadful end. The angels excel in strength; and this angel was commissioned by divine authority, and armed with proportionable power; and it is not requisite for us to determine in what manner he effected this tremendous slaughter.—‘Herodotus reports from the Egyptians, that their king, being also a priest, by his prayers to his God, brought this destruction on the Assyrians, as they lay before Pelusium: a great army of rats coming in the night, and gnawing all their bowstrings in pieces, so that they could not fight. So studious were they to pervert the truth and corrupt the sacred story!’ (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 36, 37. Sennacherib is supposed to have survived this catastrophe for some time; and to have lived in great contempt, but exercising the most odious cruelty towards his subjects. And though he had had such awful demonstration of the power of JEHOVAH, and the impotence of his own idols; yet he adhered to the latter, and died in an act of idolatrous worship; a striking example of the difference between the God in whom Hezekiah trusted, to whom he prayed, and by whom he was miraculously delivered in the most urgent extremity; and the god of Sennacherib, who could not defend him in his own capital, during profound peace, from the sword of his sons, even while employed in acts of religious worship!—Some have conjectured, that Sennacherib had vowed to sacrifice his sons to his idol; and that they murdered him in self-defence. Esar-haddon seems to have been a man of much better character than his father. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

In times of great distress and prevailing impiety, strong expressions of poignant sorrow and deep humiliation are peculiarly seasonable: for “the Lord calls to weeping” and mourning, and girding with sackcloth,” and the contrary spirit and conduct are irrational, offensive, and tokens of a profane, sensual, and selfish heart. They who best know the efficacy of fervent believing prayer, will most desire the supplications of others for them; and especially of those who have long been eminent for piety and simplicity. Alas! few kings are very earnest to form such alliances against their hostile invaders; yet they are of more real utility, than increasing numbers of brave and disciplined troops; and whenever princes, prophets, and people unite in prayer, in real dependence upon God, and a disposition to give him the praise, a prosperous event may be confidently expected, notwithstanding their own weakness, and the rebukes and insults of haughty enemies.—The Lord resisteth the proud, and will vindicate his own cause against those who reproach, defy, or blaspheme his name; or who rival him and rob him of his glory. The more we are humbly conscious that we cannot help ourselves, but must be miserable and perish without his aid; the more simple will be our dependence, and the more fervent our applications to him, whether in temporal or spiritual exigencies. Man’s extremity is therefore God’s opportunity: and whilst his servants can speak nothing but terror to the proud, the profane, and the hypocritical; they have comfortable words to say to the discouraged believer. ‘Be not afraid, thine enemies are God’s enemies, and thy cause is his cause; in glorifying himself he must protect and save those who trust in him. He delighteth in giving the very blessings for which thy soul is athirst: and with the breath of his mouth he can slay the wicked, and blast all the machinations of earth and hell against his church.’ The Lord finds wicked men other work, when he would give his servants a respite from conflict and persecution: and even those projects that are in themselves most trifling or most detestable, often so engross the minds, occupy the time, and fill the hands of the ungodly, as to detain them from attempting that mischief to the cause of God, to which otherwise they would be disposed. But their pursuits of wealth, of honour, of pleasure, or of learning, do not prevent their discovering the enmity of their hearts, or filling up the measure of their sins: and when this is done, they are taken away, and their place knoweth them no more. The blasphemies, which many utter, are not unmeaning words as they pretend, but the natural produce of their depraved hearts; and therefore they reiterate them, and grow more outrageous in them, when recent occasions are afforded. Absurd as it appears, men really think that they who trust in God will be deceived; and presume upon success, whilst they despise him, and set him at defiance! Impunity and prosperity inspire confidence and arrogance; and they expect to prevail against all that resist them, because in some instances they have been successful!

V. 15—22.

We can easily say, “If God be for us, who can be against us?” but in the crisis of danger, when the eye of sense perceives no way of escape without removing mountains, and effecting apparent impossibilities, faith is constrained to maintain a severe conflict against unbelief, even in the experience of the most established believers. But

CHAP. XX.

Hezekiah, when sick, is warned by Isaiah to prepare for death; but praying, receives the promise of fifteen years added to his life, and of deliverance from the Assyrians, 1—7. In confirmation, the shadow on Ahaz's dial goes back ten degrees, 8—11. The king of Babylon sends to congratulate Hezekiah, who shows the ambassadors all his treasure, 12, 13. Isaiah reproves this, and foretels the Babylonish captivity, 14—19. Hezekiah dies, and is succeeded by Manasseh, 20, 21.

IN those days^a was Hezekiah sick unto death. And^b the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz came to him, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, * Set thine house in order; for^c thou shalt die, and not live.

a 2 Chr. xxxii. 24.
Is. xxviii. 1.
John xi. 1—5.
Phil. ii. 27. 30.
b xix. 2. 20.
* Heb. Give charge concerning thy house.
c 2 Sam. xvii. 2.
Jer. xlviii. 7—10.
Jon. iii. 4—10.

prayer is the never failing resource of the tempted Christian; whether he be called to struggle with outward difficulties, or to engage in the more distressing warfare with his inward enemies. At the mercy-seat of his Almighty Friend he opens his heart, before him he particularly spreads the case, to him he makes his appeal; and when he can discern, that the glory of God is engaged on his side, his faith gains the victory, and he again exults in the assurance that he never shall be moved. He knows the difference betwixt JEHOVAH, whose mysterious nature and harmonious perfections are revealed in the sacred Scriptures; and all those idols which are the work of men's hands, or the creatures of their imaginations. Infidels may indeed triumph over superstition, hypocrisy, and every form of worthless profession: and they may vaunt and boast, as if they could, with equal ease and certainty, prevail against the truths and spiritual worship of God our Saviour. But whether they employ the terrors of persecution, or the more specious armour of blasphemous reproaches, sarcastic wit, or proud reasonings; their assaults are vain against the faith, and prayers, and holy lives, and scriptural preaching of the Lord's true servants. The weapons of our warfare are mighty through God, not only to repel the assaults of Satan and his ministers, whether they assume the form of the roaring lion, the subtle serpent, or the angel of light; but to subvert his strong holds, and "to cast down imaginations," or reasonings, "and every high thing, that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and the obedience of Christ:" (2 Cor. x. 3—5.) No weapons that is formed against the church can prosper: and the daughter of Zion, whilst untainted with idolatry or hypocrisy, and faithfully reserving herself for him who hath espoused her in righteousness, and faithfulness, and loving kindness, may despise and defy the puny efforts of all assailants, and confidently predict their speedy and terrible destruction. Oh, that such persons would consider, whom they have reproached and blasphemed! Whom they have opposed and attempted to run down: against whom they have exalted their voice, and lifted up their eyes on high! They may think, that he is only a man like themselves: but they will find, that he is "the Holy One of Israel." He sees their inmost thoughts; he discerns the rage and enmity of their hearts, as well as hears the stout and arrogant words, which they instigate each other to speak against him: and what will they do, when from his awful tribunal he shall give the mandate, "These mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring forth, and slay before me?"

V. 23—37.

In reality the greatest exploits of men are unworthy of notice, compared with the most ordinary works of God: they all undesignedly accomplish his secret purposes, or express predictions: and the most successful only prosper, till they have filled up their part of his universal plan. Some the Lord employs, contrary to their own intentions, as executioners of his vengeance, "to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps;" and therefore their opposers have proved weak, timid, or infatuated: but when they have accomplished their work, (perhaps with hearts full of rage against him, who had exalted and prospered them;) their turn comes next, and others execute vengeance upon them: or he deals with them by his own hand, as with some great Behemoth, and restrains, confines, or enfeebles them as he sees good. But his believing people, safe under his protection, and living upon his grace and providential bounty, are employed as willing instruments to perform his works of goodness and mercy, which when finished shall meet a sure reward. Whilst all creatures here below subserve their good, and nature itself is made to transcend her usual limits, or alter her settled course, to supply their wants; and whilst his mighty angels are all ministering spirits, sent forth to protect them, or avenge them on their enemies; they, in their places, would imitate that prompt obedience, and delight to do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his words." But all creatures, yea, the holy angels, and the Lord of angels himself, fight against those who fight against his church: nay, those objects on which they chiefly depend, and those persons from whom they expect the greatest kindness, will concur in effecting their destruction, and every respite will finally add to their infamy and misery. The cause of God, however reduced, will surely revive: the remnant of every generation will yield an increase to that which succeeds; and at length "Israel shall blossom, and bud, and fill the face of the earth with fruit." The zeal of the Lord of hosts, which appointed and sent the mighty Saviour, is engaged to apply and spread his salvation, and to fill the earth with the knowledge of his glory: not now for his servant David's sake, but for the sake of his beloved Son, in whom he is well pleased. May our hearts be prepared as good ground, that his word may strike root in them, and bring forth fruit in our lives! then we shall witness the full completion of all those prophecies, of which he hath already given us so many signs and earnest, whilst with exulting millions we shall sing, d 1 Kings viii. 30.

Ps. i. 15. 1s.
xxxviii. 2, 3.
Matt vi. 6.
e Gen. viii. 1.
Neh. v. 19. xiii.
14. 22. 31. Ps.
xxv. 7. lxxxix.
47. 50. cxix. 49.
Is. lxiii. 11.
f Gen. v. 22. 24.
xvi. 1. 1 Kings
ii. 4. iii. 6. Job
i. 1. 8. Luke i. 6.
g 2 Chr. xxxi. 20.
21. Ps. xxxii. 2.
cxlv. 13. Jer. iv.
2. John i. 47.
3. Cor. i. 12.
1 John iii. 21.
22.
h 1 Kings viii. 61.
xi. 4. xv. 14.
2 Chr. xvi. 9.
i 2 Sam. xii. 21.
22. Ps. vi. 6. cii. 9. Is. xxxviii. 14. Heb. v. 7. — * Heb. with a great weeping.
† Or, city.

2 Then ^ahe turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto the LORD, saying,
3 I beseech thee, O LORD, ^eremember now how ^fI have walked before thee ^gin truth, and with ^ha perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah ⁱwept ^jsore.

4 And it came to pass, afore Isaiah was gone out into the middle [†]court, that the word of the LORD came to him, saying,

5 ^kTurn again, and tell Hezekiah, ^lthe captain of my people, Thus saith the LORD, ^mthe God of David thy father, ⁿI have heard thy prayer, ^oI have seen thy tears: behold, ^pI will heal thee; on the third day ^qthou shalt go up unto the house of the LORD,

6 And ^rI will add unto thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; and ^sI will defend this city for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake.

k 2 Sam. vii. 3—5.
l 1 Chr. xvii. 2—4.
m 1 Josh. v. 14. 15.
n 1 Sam. ix. 16.
o 1. 2 Sam. v. 2.
p 2 Chr. xii. 12.
q Heb. ii. 10.
r m 2 Chr. xxxiv. 3.
s Is. xxxviii. 5. 1v.
t 3 Matt. xxii. 32.
u Ps. xix. 20. Ps. lxxv.
v 2. Luke i. 13.
w o Ps. xxxix. 12.
x lvi. 8. cxlvii. 3.
y Rev. vii. 17.
z p 7. Ex. xv. 26.
aa Job xxxiii. 19—
ab 26. Jam. v. 14. 15.
ac q 8 Ps. lxxv. 13—
ad 15. 19. 20. cxvi.
ae 12—13. Is.
af xxxviii. 22.
ag John v. 14.
ah r Ps. cxvi. 15.
ai Acts xxvii. 24.
aj s xix. 34. 2 Chr.
ak xxxii. 22. Is. x.
al 24.

"Hallelujah, the Lord God omnipotent reigneth, and the kingdoms of the earth are become the kingdoms of the Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever. Amen, and amen."

NOTES.

CHAP. XX. V. 1. Hezekiah reigned twenty-nine years, and he lived fifteen after this sickness: therefore it must have happened in the fourteenth year of his reign; about, or perhaps before, Sennacherib's first invasion of Judea. It is not likely that all the events recorded in the two preceding chapters were crowded within a part of one year; yet this must have been the case, if Hezekiah's sickness was subsequent the destruction of the Assyrian army. The expression, "Set thine house in order," or, command concerning thine house, was a direction to Hezekiah, to make without delay a full and final settlement of his domestic and civil concerns, that nothing might interrupt his mind, or take it off from the exercises of devotion, in the nearer approaches of death; and yet that nothing might be neglected, which related to the interests of survivors. Hezekiah's disorder was in itself mortal, and must have terminated in death, without a miracle: and the prophet spoke according to the natural tendency of the disorder; and not according to the Lord's secret purposes. Hezekiah's prayer showed, that he did not consider the sentence to be irreversible.

V. 2. It is probable, that Hezekiah turned his face to the wall of his chamber, (which might perhaps be towards the temple,) merely that he might have more freedom and privacy in pouring out his heart before God.

V. 3. The grand purport of Hezekiah's prayer was, that he might recover, though he expressed himself with submission to the will of God: for it is evident that he was very unwilling to die at that time. To account for this, it has been said that believers under the Old Testament, having darker views of the eternal world, might be expected to die with more regret, than those under the New: but facts do not support this supposition; for Abraham, Jacob, Aaron, Moses, Joshua, David, and others, seem to have left the world with as much joyfulness as Paul himself. We must therefore ascribe Hezekiah's reluctance to die, either to the state of his mind, or to the circumstances of his family, and the nation. Nothing appears peculiarly to have distressed him, in the view of immediate death, as to the state of his own soul. But the state of affairs in Israel seems to solve all the difficulty. Probably at that time Hezekiah had no son; for Manasseh, who succeeded him, was not born till three years after, (xxi. 1.) By his death therefore that branch of David's family would have been extinct, and the succession must have been continued in a more remote and obscure branch of that family: and this would have been a discouraging rebuke to him, as if he had forfeited the covenant of royalty. It is a general and probable opinion, that the nation was at this time threatened with an assault by the whole force of the king of Assyria; they therefore needed a commander, who united wisdom, courage, and faith, to head them in such an emergency: and if he were removed, and they were left to a disputed succession, and the weakness of an usurped or opposed government, there could be little prospect but that Jerusalem would share the fate of Samaria. With great earnestness and perseverance Hezekiah had brought his reformation to a hopeful establishment: but he foresaw, or feared, that the instability of the people, and the dissensions of the nobles, would subvert all if he were taken away. He therefore desired to live, not for his own sake so much as for that of his family and people; and especially for the interests of true religion, and he prayed to that effect, with many tears, as well as with great fervency. He pleaded that the Lord knew, and he could appeal to him, that he had walked before him in sincerity and uprightness of heart; having used his authority to suppress idolatry and wickedness, and by every means to promote the worship and service of God; and that he had done what was good in his sight, being an example to his people. The consciousness of his integrity gave him confidence; and he begged the Lord to remember the fruits of grace that had been produced, and to spare him, that he might be yet more fruitful and useful. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 5. The captain, &c. This title implies that Hezekiah was spared, that he might lead the people to victory, by the prevailing weapons of faith and prayer. The Lord knew his heart, and saw that he would be disposed, in the first place after his recovery, to go up to his courts to return thanks for the mercy; and therefore he suited the message to his secret desires and intentions, (8.)

V. 6. Hezekiah was the only person, that we read of, who was previously informed exactly how long he was to live. Such information would be of very bad tendency to ungodly men; and it would not be either comfortable or useful to a believer, unless animated with a vigorous faith, t iv. 41 Is.

xxxviii. 21.

7 And Isaiah said, 'take a lump of figs: and they took and laid it on the boil, and he recovered.

u xix. 29. Judg.
vi. 17 37-40.
Is vii. 11. 14
xxxviii. 22

8 And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I shall go up into the house of the Lord the third day?

x Is. xxxviii. 7, 9.

9 And Isaiah said, *This sign shalt thou have of the Lord, that the Lord will do the thing that he hath spoken:

y Matt. xvi. 1.

Shall the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go back ten degrees?

z ii. 10 iii. 19.
Mark ix. 28, 29.
John xiv. 12.

10 And Hezekiah answered, *It is a light thing for the shadow to go down ten degrees: nay, but let the shadow return backward ten degrees.

a Ex. xiv. 15.
1 Kings xvii. 20,
21. xviii. 36-
38. Acts ix. 40.
b Josh. x. 12-14. 2 Chr. xxxii.
24-31.
c Heb. degrees
d Is. xxxix. 1.
Merodach-bala-dan e 2 Chr. xxxiii. 31
f Gen. x. 10 xi.
9. Is. xlii. 1. 19.
xiv. 4
g 2 Sam. viii. 10.
a. 2.

11 And Isaiah the prophet, a cried unto the Lord; and b he brought the shadow ten degrees backward, by which it had gone down in the * dial of Ahaz.

12 ¶ At that time c Berodach-baldan, the son of Baladan, d king of e Babylon, f sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah: for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick.

13 And Hezekiah hearkened unto them, and g shewed them all the house of his h precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and all the house of his i armour, and all that was found in his treasures: j there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not.

g 2 Chr. xxxii. 27.
Is. xxxix. 2.
h Or, spicery.
i 1 Kings x. 2. 10.
15. 25.
j Or, jewels. Heb. vessels k 2 Chr. xxxii. 25.
26. Ec. vii. 20.

14 Then l came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, l Is. xxxix. 3-8.

What said these men? and from whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from m a far country, even from Babylon.

k v. 25. 26. 2 Chr. xvi. 7-10. xxv. 7-9. 15, 16.

15 And he said, What have they seen in thine house? And Hezekiah answered, n All the things that are in mine house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them.

l Josh. ix. 6. 9. 15.

16 And Isaiah said unto Hezekiah, Hear the word of the Lord.

17 Behold, the days come, that all that is in thine house, and that which thy m 13. Josh. vii. 19.

Job xxxi. 33.
Prov. xxviii. 13.
1 John i. 8-10.

and glowing zeal for the honour of God. Doubtless this good king made a good use of this knowledge, and waited the appointed period of his days with calm resignation: but we need not envy him this peculiar privilege. He was not more than fifty-four years old when he died.

V. 7. It seems that Hezekiah's sickness was a species of the plague, accompanied with a boil of fatal tendency: whether this application were medicinally proper, or not, we may be sure it was supernaturally prospered beyond its ordinary efficacy, and was a token of the divine operation by which he was healed.

V. 8. What, &c.? As the Lord was graciously pleased, frequently to confirm his promises by signs, Hezekiah desired one in this case; not in unbelief, but for the confirmation of his wavering faith.

V. 9-11. We suppose the dial to have been placed full in Hezekiah's view, and the sun shining upon it: and he was allowed to choose, whether the shadow should go forward or backward ten degrees; (that is, half our lines, as it is conjectured.) The progression of the shadow with accelerated speed, though evidently miraculous, seemed not so extraordinary as its retrograde motion, which Hezekiah preferred, and which accordingly took place. We are not concerned to determine how God produced this effect; if he saw good, he was able to cause a temporary change in the motion of the earth and heavenly bodies; (Note, Josh. x. 12-14:) and some think that the same effect was produced in other places, especially at Babylon; (2 Chron. xxxii. 31.) It appears from Herodotus, that the Egyptians had observed some few instances in which the course of the sun and moon was very different from what was usual; though their traditions of them were greatly distorted, and unlike the real facts, as recorded in Scripture.

V. 12, 13. The king of Babylon seems at this time to have reigned independent; but he was in danger of being reduced under the power of the Assyrian monarch: yet, in process of time, Babylon acquired the pre-eminence, and swallowed up the Assyrian empire. This prince, having heard of Hezekiah's sickness and the miraculous circumstances of his recovery, and knowing that he had refused submission to the Assyrians, seems to have wished to enter into a confederacy with him against that potent nation. Hezekiah was too well pleased with the flattering embassy; and in order to convince the ambassadors who brought the letters, that he was a desirable ally, he showed them all his treasures, and armour of every kind. This resulted from pride and ostentation, and might have led to an alliance with an idolatrous prince. He seems likewise to have missed the opportunity of instructing the Chaldeans, concerning the perfections of JEHOVAH, who had wrought the miracles which had excited their attention, and concerning his authority, law, and worship; and of showing them the absurdity and evil of idolatry, especially their worship of the sun, which was evidently the creature and servant of the God of Israel. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 14, 15. Hezekiah, though faulty, did not resent the prophet's interference in state-affairs: for he revered his person, confided in his prudence and affection, and desired to hear the will of God from him. In his answer, he intimated, that he counted it an honour to receive ambassadors from a far country. Perhaps he was not at first conscious of having done wrong: yet in reviewing and relating his conduct, he seems to have been made sensible of his sin and folly.

fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the LORD. 18 And of thy sons that shall issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

19 Then said Hezekiah unto Isaiah, Good is the word of the LORD which thou hast spoken. And he said, * Is it not good, if peace and truth be in my days?

20 And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought water into the city, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

21 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers: and Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

r 2 Chr. xxxii. 4.
30. 32. Neh. ii.
16. Is. xxii. 9-11.

B. C. 699.

V. 17, 18. Considering the small power of the king of Babylon, at this time, compared with that of the Assyrian kings, who seemed about to establish a permanent dominion over all the adjacent countries; nothing could well be more unlikely than the accomplishment of this prediction: yet in somewhat more than a hundred years it was exactly fulfilled!—All the remaining treasures of the temple, palace, and city were carried to Babylon: and Daniel and his companions, some of whom were descended from Hezekiah, became eunuchs, in the king of Babylon's palace! (Marg. Ref.)—It seems to have been soon after this that Hezekiah exhausted his treasures, hoping to pacify Sennacherib. He dreaded his power: but he was more disposed to expect help than to fear ruin from the king of Babylon.

V. 19. Hezekiah humbly and submissively allowed the justice of the sentence, and the goodness of God in the respite: and gratefully acknowledged his unmerited kindness, in the peace, prosperity, and continuance of true religion in his days. Yet the prospect respecting his family and nation, must have occasioned him many painful sensations.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—11.

“In the midst of life we are in death:”—happy then are they, and they alone, who are habitually prepared for that event. Yet even to them it is desirable to be apprised of its immediate approach, that they may settle all their temporal concerns for the peace and benefit of their survivors: and then meet the separating stroke with that calmness, and in that frame of spirit, which may most impress and edify surrounding friends.—If the Lord seem to bid us “set our house in order, for we must die, and not live;” and yet afterwards unexpectedly prolong our days; our preparation in that case will neither mar the comfort, nor lessen the usefulness, of our future lives.—It is sometimes required of ministers to intimate to sick persons the probability of their approaching dissolution: as well as to assist them in improving the visitation, and preparing for the event: and should such intimations afterwards prove erroneous, they ought not to be censured; for they can only speak according to their judgment, and deliver that message from God, which appears to them suited to the case of those whom they address.—Though miracles, properly so called, are ceased: yet the Lord hears the prayer of faith for the sick, and sometimes remarkably prospers simple means, used in dependence on his blessing. And though physicians, (for prophets are not now sent from God to inform us in these matters;) should give little encouragement respecting the recovery of beloved and useful persons; we may still continue to pray for them: for “with God all things are possible;” and the most sagacious are often found mistaken. In respect of ourselves, it is generally best to be willing to depart; and to pray especially for spiritual blessings in behalf of ourselves and others. Yet there may be cases in which men may with propriety be importunate for the continuance of life and health, to complete designs of public and allowed utility, and which appear likely to be frustrated if they should be removed: or when in any way the important interests of families, churches, or nations appear to them connected with their lives. Yet as we are all liable to mistake in these concerns, submission to the divine will should invariably unite with such petitions: and nothing else should make him desire to live in this wretched world, who knows that he is ready for a better. The mercy of our God, and the merits of our heavenly Advocate, form the sinner's never-failing plea at the throne of grace: yet the consciousness of sincerity in our professed faith and piety, gives confidence in times of trial; and may, on some occasions, be pleaded before him without the imputation of pride or self-righteousness.

—Secret earnest prayer is the approved and never-failing method of obtaining relief and comfort in seasons of the deepest distress: and sometimes the Lord immediately turns the mourning of the humble supplicant into joy and thanksgiving. He always hears the prayers and sees the tears of the broken in heart; and will give health, length of days, and temporal deliverances, as much, and as long as they are truly beneficial. The minister of Christ must deliver his Lord's message, when it contains alarms and rebukes; but he delights to be the vehicle of joy and consolation to those whom his word hath previously wounded. If we would have promised mercies, we must observe the instituted means; for these being connected with the end by the express promises of God, are far more certainly efficacious, when used properly, than any of those means which produce their effect in the ordinary course of Providence: and yet the latter ought not to be neglected, lest we tempt rather than trust the Lord. Recovery from sickness should always be publicly acknowledged, by first going up to the house of the Lord, to render the sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving if it can be done: yet, alas! few observe this rule, and many of those few do it as a formal task; whilst re-established health is employed in scenes of diversion or

CHAP. XXI.

Manasseh reigns very wickedly and idolatrously, 1—9. Prophecies against Judah because of his wickedness, 10—16. He dies, and is succeeded by Amon, 17, 18. Amon reigns wickedly, 19—22. He is slain by his servants; the people put the conspirators to death; and make his son Josiah king, 23, 24. Amon's acts and burial, 25, 26.

a 1 Chr. iii. 13.
2 Chr xxxiii. 1.
Matt. i. 10. Manasseh.

MANASSEH ^awas twelve years old when he began to reign, and reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem. And business, if not more directly devoted to the service of Satan by licentious pleasures. But the true believer values the ability and opportunity of attending on God's ordinances, and will go up with a glad and thankful heart. (Psalm cxviii. 17—19;) and value that more than any other privilege of health.—True faith is not without its misgivings, so that the strongest believers desire to have their's more strengthened: and in their experience, the Lord is pleased sometimes to give those evidences of his power, truth, and love to them, which establish their hearts as effectually as miraculous signs did of old. All creatures are his servants, to minister to the good of his children: and in answer to their prayers he can, in innumerable ways, render them subservient even to their spiritual benefit.

V. 12—21.

Alas! how seldom do we make suitable returns to the Lord for his condescending mercies to us! Ambition and ostentation too generally intrude, where thankfulness alone should occupy the heart; and we are often chargeable with pride, vanity, and carnal confidence, when we do not suspect ourselves. It is very difficult to possess distinctions in rank, wealth, elegant furniture, or any thing valued by men, without a secret self-preference, and a desire that others should admire the possessor's ingenuity, taste, magnificence, or felicity! This foolish pride the Lord will rebuke and correct in those whom he loves; and especially when they idolize the opinion of ungodly men, and court their acquaintance, because they profess to esteem and admire them. But it is hopeful, when persons in superior rank will endure to be reasoned with and reproved by those who, in outward circumstances, are greatly their inferiors; for generally such interference, however well meant and prudently conducted, excites resentment.—If we could look into futurity, it would damp our joy in present prosperity: and we may expect vexation from every object, in proportion as we have been inordinately pleased with it.—Our regard to posterity, and our grief for the gloomy prospects before us in the church or the world, must not render us unmindful of our present mercies, or induce impatient murmurs. Our God hath wise and righteous reasons for all he doeth, or permitteth to be done; and if we enjoy peace and the advantages of true religion in our days, we should be very thankful. Shortly our trials and services will end

VOL. II.—No. 10.

his mother's name was ^b Hephzi-bah.

2 And ^c he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, ^d after the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

3 For he built up again ^e the high places which Hezekiah his father had destroyed; and ^f he reared up altars for Baal, and made a grove, as did Ahab king of Israel; ^g and worshipped all the host of heaven, and served them.

4 And ^h he built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD said, ⁱ In Jerusalem will I put my name.

b Is. lxii. 4.
k 7. 16 xvi. 2—4.
xxii. 17. 2 Chr.
xxxiii. 2—4.
d Lev. xvlii. 24—
25. Deut. xii.
31.
e xviii. 4.
f viii. 18. 27
1 Kings xvi. 31
—33.
g xvii. 16. Deut.
iv. 19. xvii. 3.
2 Chr. xxxiii. 3
—5.
h vii. 10—16. Jer.
xxxiii. 34.
i Ex. xx 24 Deut.
xii. 5. 2 Sam.
vii. 13. 1 Kings
viii. 29. ix. 3. Ps.
lxxviii. 68, 69.
cxxxiii. 13, 14.

together. Our space is limited, though its limits are unknown to us, and then we shall sleep with our fathers. And "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; for they rest from their labours, and their works do follow them!"

NOTES.

CHAP. XXI. V. 1, 2. It is uncertain whether Hezekiah had any other children than Manasseh, or any other wives than Hephzi-bah, (whose name signifies, my delight is in her.) Doubtless Manasseh had been properly educated during the lifetime of his father; and the rudiments of religious knowledge which he then imbibed, though they aggravated the guilt of his enormous impiety, might prove the seeds of his subsequent repentance; at least we may be sure that his pious father offered many prayers for him, which at length were answered. It would be pleasing to his youthful mind to inherit a prosperous kingdom so early in life; but this circumstance proved extremely prejudicial to him, and was still more ruinous to his people. The event, as well as the testimony of the prophets, evinces, that Hezekiah's reformation had been complied with in a reluctant and hypocritical manner, especially by the chief men; and that the nation was ripening fast for destruction: the nobles, upon whom the regency, or the counselling of the young king, must necessarily devolve, seem to have been disposed to idolatry; and by humouring and flattering Manasseh, they trained him up to concur with their wishes, and probably to go beyond them; (Matt. xxiii. 15.) Soon after Hezekiah's death, his reformation seems to have been subverted; and the king proceeded from bad to worse, till he was carried captive to Babylon. Thus Hezekiah, though a prince of eminent piety and excellency, was the son of a very wicked father, and the father of a more wicked son! (Marg. Ref.)

V. 3. It is probable that Manasseh was taught to consider his father's attachment to the temple as the effect of a weak and bigoted mind. It appeared to the nobles more convenient, liberal, and magnificent, to have a variety of temples and altars, than to be confined to meet with the poorest of the people, from all parts of the land, at Solomon's temple. In contempt therefore of his father's memory, the king rebuilt the high places, which had been piously destroyed. Yet this seemed but a light thing, and he soon proceeded to copy Ahab's idolatry, and even to exceed it.

2 A

CHAP. XXII.

Josiah reigns well, 1, 2. He provides for the repairs of the temple, 3—7. Huldah finds the book of the law, which is read to the king; who is alarmed, and sends to inquire of God, by Huldah the prophetess, 8—14. She foretells the destruction of Jerusalem, but speaks peace to Josiah, 15—20.

cannot have quietness in vice, till by desperate courses they have effectually stupified their consciences: and in every case, the greater the obstacles which are surmounted, before men attain to the undisturbed indulgence of their lusts, the more lost they are afterwards to all sense of shame or decency. But the Lord will put his fear into the hearts of his true people, that they shall not finally depart from him: yet in the reformation of collective bodies, numbers are mere time-servers, who in temptation fall away. And as the mind of man is disposed to vibrate from one extreme to another; as the descending stone falls with a force proportioned to the height to which it was raised; so, times of remarkable revival in religion have often been succeeded by those of as notorious infidelity, impiety, and profligacy. The ambition of excelling prompts sinners to aspire after pre-eminence even in crimes; and men are capable of glorying in having gone beyond all their predecessors in iniquity, and in refining upon the blasphemy and sensuality of former times, or of contemporary rivals in vice! An infidel neglect of true religion is often connected with the most absurd credulity, and ridiculous superstitions! Some daring sinners not only seek to gratify their lusts, but seem desirous of forcing their crimes upon the notice of the Almighty: as if ambitious of provoking his indignation by every token of contempt and defiance! and they peculiarly delight in seducing others to commit the same wickedness, as if ambitious also of promoting the ruin of their souls! The vain-glory of young persons often appears, in affecting to be wiser than their prudent and pious parents, by reversing all their plans, and especially by treating with contempt their religious singularities, as they suppose them to be. But these are the ways in which men expose their own folly, and bring ruin upon themselves: thus they forfeit the Lord's favour and protection, and fall under his dreadful indignation; and all the mischief they have done to others, will recoil upon themselves, to their increasing guilt and condemnation, except a timely repentance prevent the fatal consequences.

V. 10—26.

If temporal judgments are so dreadful when foreseen or reported; what will be the horror of that day, when "the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain?" Yet in the severest vengeance, the Lord proceeds by rule and measure, and does not punish either nations or individuals beyond their deserts. External privileges, instead of benefiting those who neglect the obedi-

^a JOSIAH ^b was ^c eight years old when ^d he began to reign, and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of ^e Boscath.

2 And he did that which was ^d right in the sight of the LORD, and ^e walked in all the way of David his father, and ^f turned not aside to the right hand or to the left.

^a 1 Kings xlii. 2.
^b 2 Chr. xxxiv. 1.
^c 2 Jer. i. 2.
^d Zeph. i. 1. Mal. i. 10. Josias.
^e xi. 21. xxi. 1. Ps. viii. 2. Eccl. x. 16.
18. iii. 4.

^e Josh. xv. 33. Boscath.
^d xvi. 2. xviii. 2.
^e 2 Chr. xvii. 3. xxix. 2. Prov. xx. 11.
^e 1 Kings iii. 6: xi. 38. xv. 5.
^f Deut. v. 32. Josh. i. 7. Prov. iv. 27. Ez. xviii. 14—17.

ence of faith, will immensely enhance their guilt and punishment. The Lord will cast off any professing people, who dishonour him by their crimes, and who persecute his servants: but he will never desert his cause on earth. When sinners disregard the invitations and exhortations of God's ministers, they are constrained to denounce his awful vengeance. Then will resentment be awakened in the hearts of the proud and rebellious; and faith and patience will be peculiarly requisite: but the servants of the Lord will overcome all, by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony. It is inconceivable what wickedness some men have lived to commit, who yet have not only been spared, but pardoned: such transgressors cannot forgive themselves, but would live and die covered with shame and self-abhorrence for all their crimes. Whether the Lord bear long with presumptuous offenders, or whether he more speedily cut them off in their sins: all those who persist in forsaking him, and in refusing to walk in his ways, must perish: and the parent's wickedness often occasions the children's destruction. It is well, however, when the removal of the ungodly makes way for better characters: yet they who, instigated by their lusts, execute deserved vengeance upon wicked men, will bring deserved vengeance upon themselves also.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXII. V. 1, 2. Josiah was seated on the throne by those who brought his father's murderers to justice, and who doubtless were friends to the family of David. We may therefore suppose that the persons, intrusted with his education, were at least averse to idolatry, and favourable to the worship of JEHOVAH. Perhaps his mother was a pious person, and instilled good principles into his tender mind. By the blessing of God, however, on the means used, he was very early brought under religious impressions, and set about the work of public reformation: and the event of his early succession was widely different from that of Manasseh. For his character was most excellent: he copied the faith, zeal, and piety of his ancestor David, and kept the middle path, without diverging to any of those extremes to which human nature is prone. And had the people as cordially concurred in his reformation, as he entered upon and persevered in it, blessed effects would have followed: but they were given up to the most infatuated idolatry and wickedness, and his efforts only served to evince the incurable degeneracy of that generation, (Jer. vi. 28—30. Ez. xxiv. 13.) We can obtain but a superficial knowledge of the state of Judah from U. C. 624. f 2 Chr. xxxiv. 3

—8

3 ¶ And it came to pass in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, that the king sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, the son of Meshullam, the scribe, to the house of the LORD, saying,

g 1 Chr. vi. 13. ix.
11. 2 Chr. xxxiv.
9—13.

h xii. 4. 9—11.

i 2 Chr. viii. 14.
Ps. lxxxiv. 10.
* Heb. threshold

k xii. 12—14.

4 Go up to ^g Hilkiath the high-priest, that he may sum the silver which is ^h brought into the house of the LORD, which ⁱ the keepers of the * door have gathered of the people :

l xii. 5. 2 Chr.
xxxiv. 7. 12, 13.
17.

5 And let them ^k deliver it into the hand of the doers of the work, that have the oversight of the house of the LORD : and let them give it to the doers of the work, which ⁱ is in the house of the LORD, ^l to repair the breaches of the house,

6 Unto carpenters, and builders, and masons, and to buy timber and hewn stone to repair the house.

m xii. 15.

7 Howbeit ^m there was no reckoning made with them of the money that was delivered into their hand, because ⁿ they dealt faithfully.

8 ¶ And Hilkiath the high-priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, ^o I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD. And Hilkiath gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it.

9 And Shaphan the scribe came to the king, and brought the king word again, and said, Thy servants have [†] gathered the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of them that do the work, that have the oversight of the house of the LORD.

10 And Shaphan the scribe shewed the king, saying, Hilkiath the priest hath delivered me a book. And ^p Shaphan read it before ^q the king.

11 And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the book of the law, ^r that he rent his clothes.

n Ex. xxxvi. 5. 6.
Neh. vii. 2. Prov.
xxviii. 20. Luke
xvi. 10—12.
1 Cor. iv. 2.
2 Cor. viii. 20.
21. 2 Tim. ii. 2.
3 John 5.
o Deut. xxxi. 24.
—26. 2 Chr.
xxxiv. 14, 15.

† Heb. melted.

p Deut. xxxi. 9—
13. 2 Chr. xxxiv.
18. Jer. xxxvi. 20.
q Deut. xvii. 18—20.

r 2 Chr. xxxiv. 19.
Jer. xxxvi. 24.
Joel ii. 13.

these compendious historical records, unless we compare them with the writings of the contemporary prophets.

V. 3—7. Josiah began to seek the LORD in the eighth year of his reign, and to attempt a public reformation in the twelfth; so that considerable progress had been already made in destroying the idols which filled Judah and Jerusalem to an almost inconceivable degree: but in his eighteenth year he proceeded to reinstate the temple and its worship in their former splendour, and the principal reformation in his reign was effected at this time. The money was collected by voluntary contributions, as in the time of Jehoash: but the Levites proved more active and faithful, than the priests had then done; and the workmen were no less worthy of confidence. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 8—11. The inquiries and controversies, which this account of finding the book of the law has occasioned, seem to have been quite unnecessary. If it were conceded, that no complete copy existed in all the world, at the time this book was found, it would not in the smallest degree invalidate the authenticity of that part of holy writ: because all the succeeding penmen of the Scriptures, with Christ himself and his apostles, have given the sanction of their testimony to its divine original. All the cavils and objections therefore of infidels grounded upon this circumstance, mean nothing; except they are intended to demonstrate their embittered enmity to the sacred Scriptures.—It is very probable that copies of the law were at that time very scarce, through the idolatry of the former reigns and the lamentable ungodliness of the people. It may also be reasonably conjectured, that the priests had made abstracts from it of the outlines of their worship, without specifying particulars, or inserting the solemn sanctions annexed to each of them. This would spare them the trouble of transcribing, or studying, or reading to the people, the whole book; and as these abstracts would come into common use, few people would look any further. But had not an universal traditional recollection of the law, and in general of its contents, prevailed in the nation; how could the book, when found, have obtained prompt and implicit credit as the word of God by Moses? In the dark ages of popery this was precisely the case: the liturgies and rituals contained a few selected portions of Scripture; and not only were the people kept in the dark as to its entire contents, but few even of the priests had ever read the Bible through, and numbers had never seen a complete copy of it. The same naturally becomes the case still, (notwithstanding the multiplication of copies of the Bible by the art of printing, and its public allowance in the vulgar tongue, and the commendable pains bestowed by pious persons to disperse them;) whenever any set of men become strenuous for one part of religion in preference to the rest. They who are the oracles of each party, insert in their writings those portions of Scripture which are supposed to inculcate the doctrines for which they contend; but keep out of sight, perhaps without design, those passages that as strongly declare, what they undervalue, overlook, or are prejudiced against. And these writings form the religion of the zealous friends of that party, and the rest of the Scripture is comparatively neglected or forgotten. Indeed we all, without great care, are disposed to have our favourite passages of Scripture, to which we are more attentive than to the rest. And may it not be hinted with propriety, that some text-books which were well designed, are yet capable of a dangerous abuse? I mean those books which give a text of Scripture for every day, with pious observations upon it. Many read these in family-worship, instead of the Bible itself; and others, it is likely, do the same in their closets: but some will thus undesignedly be led to substitute a part for the whole; the abstract with an exposition, instead of the book of the law: whereas “all Scripture is given by in-

xix. 2, 3.
 Jer. xxvii. 23.
 24. u 20. Chr. xxxiv.
 20. Adon.
 * Or, Hilkiah.

12 And ^athe king commanded Hilkiah the priest, and ^bAhikam the son of Shaphan, and ^cAchbor the son of ^d* Michaiah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asahiah a servant of the king's, saying,

x. iii. 11. 1 Kings
 xxii. 7, 8. Ps.
 xxv. 14. Prov.
 iii. 6. Jer. xxi.
 1, 2 - xxvii. 17.
 Ez. xiv. 3, 4 xx.
 1-3. Am. iii. 7.
 y Ex. xx 5 Deut.
 iv. 23-27. xxix.
 23-28. xxxi. 17.
 18. Neh. viii. 8.
 9. ix. 3. Dan.
 ix. 5. 6. Rom.
 iii. 20. iv. 15.
 1 Cor. xi. 30.

13 Go ye, ^ainquire of the LORD for me, and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that is found: for ^bgreat is the wrath of the LORD that is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according unto all that which is written concerning us.

z Ex. xx. 20 Judg.
 iv. 4. Mic. vi. 4.
 Luke i. 41. &c.
 ii. 36. Acts xxi.
 9. 1 Cor. xi. 5.
 a 2 Chr. xxxiv. 22.
 Tikvah-Hasrah.
 f Heb. garments
 Neu. vii. 72
 t Or, second part.

14 So Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asahiah, went unto Huldah ^athe prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of ^b* Tikvah, the son of Harhas, keeper of the ^c† wardrobe; (Now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the ^d‡ college;) and they communed with her.

i. 6. 16 Jer.
 xxiii. 23.

15 And she said unto them, ^bThus saith the LORD God of Israel, Tell the man that sent you to me,

16 Thus saith the LORD, ^cBehold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even ^dall the words of the book which the king of Judah hath read:

17 ^aBecause they have forsaken me, and have burnt incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all ^bthe works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and ^cshall not be quenched.

18 But to ^bthe king of Judah, which sent you to inquire of the LORD, ^cthus shall ye say to him, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, As touching the words which thou hast heard;

19 Because ^kthine heart was tender, and thou hast ^lhumbled thyself before the LORD, when thou heardest what I spake against this place, and against the inhabitants thereof, that they should become ^ma desolation, and a curse, and hast rent thy clothes, and wept before

2 Chr. xxxiii. 12. 19. 23. Mic. vi. 8. 1 Pet. v. 5, 6. — in Lev. xxvi. 31, 32 Deut. xxxii. 23. Jer. xxvi. 5. xlv. 22. — n Num. xxv. 6. Judg. ii. 4, 5 xx. 26. Ezra ix. 3, 4. x. 1. Nehg. viii. 9. Ps. cxix. 136. Jer. ix. 1. xlii. 17. xiv. 17. Luke xix. 41. Rom. ix. 2, 3.

c xx. 17. xxi. 12.
 13 2 Chr. xxxiv.
 24, 25.
 d xxv. 1-4 Lev.
 xxvi. 15, &c.
 Deut. xxviii. 15,
 &c. xxix. 18-
 23. xxx. 17, 19.
 xxxi. 16 - 18.
 xxxii. 15. 26.
 Josh. xliii. 13.
 15 Dan. ix. 11-14.
 e Ex. xxxii. 34.
 Deut. xxxix. 24-
 28. xxxii. 15-
 19. Judg. ii. 12
 -14 iii. 7, 8.
 x. 6, 7. 10-14.
 1 Kings ix. 6-9.
 Ps. cv. 135-42.
 Jer. ii. 11-13.
 27, 28.
 f Ps. cxv. 4-3. Is.
 ii. 8, 9. xlv. 17.
 -20 xlv. 5-8.
 Mic. v. 13.
 g Deut. xxxii. 22.
 2 Chr. xxxvi. 16.
 Is. xxxiii. 14.
 Jer. vii. 20. xvii.
 27. Ez. xx. 47.
 48. Zeph. i. 18.
 h 2 Chr. xxxiv. 26
 -28.
 i Is. iii. 10. Mal.
 iii. 16.
 k 1 Sam. xxiv. 6.
 Ps. li. 17. cxix.
 120. Is. xli. 12.
 lvii. 15. lxvi. 2.
 5 Jer. xxxvi. 24.
 29-32. Ez. ix.
 4. Rom. ii. 4, 5.
 i am. iv. 6-10.
 Ez. x. 3. Lev.
 xxvi. 40. 41.
 1 Kings xxi. 29.

"spiration of God, and is profitable to furnish the "man of God for every good work." The proper use of such books is to suggest subjects for pious meditations and ejaculations, in the intervals of conversation and business. The book, which Hilkiah found, seems to have been the original book of the law, deposited by Moses at the side of the ark: but which in those distracted times had been removed, either for concealment lest it should be destroyed by the idolaters, or in contempt by those who were turning every thing into confusion. Some argue that this circumstance occasioned Josiah's consternation: but he certainly acted like a man that had never seen the law before; and this most likely was the case, though there might be copies dispersed among his subjects. It is probable his reformation had hitherto been conducted by such abstracts as have been mentioned, or by traditional knowledge. If the kings of Judah had observed the rule of transcribing the law with their own hands, very salutary effects might have been produced; but it seems to have been entirely neglected, as well as the command to read the law publicly to the people, every year at the feast of tabernacles. It is supposed that the portion, which was first read to Josiah, was the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth chapters of Deuteronomy: and these were doubtless well suited to convince him, that the guilt and danger of his people was much greater than he had apprehended, and to induce the expressions of fear, sorrow, and humiliation, which he showed. We may conclude, that he afterwards conducted his reformation with more exactness; as he now wrought by rule, and was aware of the imminent danger to which he and his subjects were exposed. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 12, 13. Very little is recorded concerning the high-priests, as active instruments in reformation, and reviving true religion. Hilkiah indeed seems to have been a man of good character; though it is likely not well acquainted with the divine law. Josiah, however, never proposed inquiring of the Lord by him and the breast-plate of judgment; nor did Hilkiah object, when sent with others to inquire of a prophetess. Either he was ignorant, that to inquire of God was one distinguishing part of his office; or he humbly thought himself unworthy to perform it: or this method of inquiry was considered as obsolete; having fallen into disuse, perhaps from the too general want of true piety in the high priests, who had been superseded in this respect by the prophets raised up in constant succession.

V. 14. Huldah, &c. Jeremiah and Zephaniah prophesied at this time; but perhaps being young, and newly entered on their work, they were of inferior note; or they were elsewhere employed. The ordinary ministry, both under the Old and New Testament, is confined to men: but the Lord is not bound by those restrictions which he imposes upon us; and he has often conferred on women the Spirit of prophecy. (Marg. Ref.) Huldah was doubtless a person of eminent piety, and well known to be a prophetess. She was a married woman, and her husband being keeper of the wardrobe, might make her better known to Josiah, who perhaps had before this consulted her.—Whether the word rendered the college means an institution at Jerusalem, in some respects similar to the schools of the prophets in Israel; or whether it only denotes, according to the marginal reading, the part of the city in which she lived, is not agreed. The latter opinion, however, seems most probable, as the same word is in the next chapter translated of the second order. (xxiii. 4.)

• xix 20. xx 5 me; • I also have heard thee, saith the LORD.

p Gen. xxv. 8.
q xxiii. 29, 30. Ps.
xxxvii. 37. Is.
lvi. 1, 2. Jer.
xxii. 10, 15, 16.

20 Behold therefore, ^p I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt ^q be gathered into thy grave in peace; and thine eyes shall not see all the evil which I will bring upon this place. And they brought the king word again.

V. 15—20. The sentence denounced concerning the desolations of Jerusalem was irrevocable: but as Josiah was proved to be of a broken heart and a tender conscience, a true penitent, and a real believer, he was spared the anguish of witnessing those dire calamities. Though he was slain in battle, yet he died in peace with God, and went to glory. As he was not forty years old when he died, and the total destruction of Jerusalem took place within twenty-three years after, he might have lived to that time, according to the ordinary course of nature. But as his piety and zeal could not avail to prevent that catastrophe, he was mercifully taken away from the evil to come.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—11.

They who have been favoured, in their tender years, with prudent and pious instructors, have very great cause for gratitude: for that circumstance is immediately ordered in Providence, without their even appearing to choose it for themselves, and frequently in opposition to their inclinations; yet it commonly proves the means of determining both the comfort and usefulness of their future lives. The Lord frequently demonstrates the sovereignty of his grace, by raising up the brightest ornaments of his church from the most degenerate families. It is a peculiar favour to be brought to seek and serve God in early life, and to be led to copy closely the best examples. It is incumbent on us to keep the narrow way, and to avoid the extremes, which are found on the right and on the left: and great watchfulness is requisite so to shun self-righteous pride, as to keep clear of antinomian abuse of the gospel. In escaping from superstition, we are in danger of running into inexpedient indulgence, or irreverence to things sacred. Fierce and contentious zeal in some men leads others to soothe themselves in lukewarmness, indolence, and timidity: and in numberless ways, when avoiding one evil, we are prone to run into another; or so to attend to one part of religion, as to neglect others, and thus to mar that proportion and symmetry which is its peculiar ornament. But if, with all our circumspection, we are kept from such mistakes and dangers, we must give all the praise to him who leads his people “in the midst of the paths of judgment.”—The interests and passions of men raise up so many obstructions, that public reformatiions commonly move heavily; and can only be effected by perseverance, gradually, and as the zealous reformers obtain influence, and establish their characters by patient continuance in well-doing. Yet, in the worst of times, we meet with examples of liberality, fidelity, and integrity, which are worthy of praise and imitation. The prevalence of impiety, infidelity, superstition, or licentiousness, renders the word of God a neglected book; and that neglect reciprocally augments these evils. And when professed ministers grow careless, selfish, or superstitious, the people of course become generally ignorant of the sacred oracles. But whenever the clergy make it their great business, to call the attention of the people to the Scriptures, and to bring them acquainted with the whole of them; their conduct will have a most extensive effect, in preventing the influx of vice, and in promoting true knowledge and genuine piety. “For the word of God is quick and powerful;” and, being “sharper than any two-edged sword,” penetrates the heart and conscience with irresistible energy. By the holy law is the knowledge of sin, and by the blessed gospel is the knowledge of salvation. When the former is understood in its strictness, extent, excellency, and awful sanction, the sinner perceives his guilt, is convinced that the great wrath of the Lord is kindled against him for his transgressions; and begins to inquire, “What must I do to “be saved?” This excites his attentive regard to the ministry, and ministers of the gospel; who point out to him “Jesus Christ as the end of the law for righteousness, “unto every one that believeth.” And when the sinner has been taught to trust and love the Saviour, he will thenceforth walk in newness of life. The scarcity of the written word did not excuse Israel’s degeneracy and idolatry; because it was the effect of it; “the people loved “to have it so:” but the abundance of Bibles, with which this land is favoured, will exceedingly aggravate the guilt of our national impiety, infidelity, and licentiousness; for what greater contempt of God can we show, than to refuse to read his word, when put into our hands; or reading it, to refuse to believe and obey it?

V. 12—20.

The ministers of religion must communicate to the people whatever they have learned respecting the will of God, whether alarming or encouraging: otherwise they do not declare his whole counsel, nor keep themselves pure from the blood of all men. Kings and rulers, being personally as much concerned as their subjects to humble themselves before God, to know his will, and to seek his salvation; and their conduct being of still greater importance to others, they who minister before them in sacred things, should instruct them in the whole of divine revelation: and they are guilty of the basest and most cruel unfaithfulness to them, and to millions, if, from regard to their own safety or emolument, they keep back offensive truths. Those princes who are acquainted with able and faithful servants of God, and who are not deterred by evil counsel from consulting them, and encouraging them without needless ceremony to speak the whole truth, best consult their own good and that of their subjects. It is also becoming, when superior stated pastors and rulers of the church discard prejudice and jealousy, respecting those among their inferiors, or of other orders in society, whom God endows with peculiar spiritual gifts for the edifying of his people; when, instead of standing upon character and precedence, and hindering others from regarding their

CHAP. XXIII.

Josiah causes the law to be read in a solemn assembly, 1, 2. He enters into covenant with God; and abolishes idolatry in Judah, 3—14. He burns men's bones on the altar of Bethel; fulfils the prediction of the prophet sent to Jeroboam: destroys the high places in Samaria, and slays the priests, 15—20. He celebrates a solemn passover, 21—23. He puts away wizards, &c.; and excels all his predecessors, 24, 25. The wrath of God against Judah is yet unappeased, 26, 28. Josiah is slain in battle by Pharaoh-necho, and succeeded by Jehoahaz, 29, 30. He reigns wickedly three months, is led away prisoner by Pharaoh into Egypt, and succeeded by Jehoiakim, 31—34; who taxes the land for Pharaoh's tribute, and reigns wickedly, 35—37.

advice, they take the lead in honouring the grace of God in them, and gladly receive their profitable instructions. Such are wise men, and will daily grow wiser; because they are conscious that they have not attained, but need continual accessions to their measure of divine knowledge and grace: but they who are too great or too proud to learn even from their inferiors, are likely to live and to die without true wisdom. In communicating his special blessings, the Lord does not restrict himself to age, or sex, or order, or condition in society; but "divideth severally to every one, as he will:" and true sanctity consists in separation from sin, and devotedness to God; and not in seclusion from society, or from that state which he hath pronounced honourable. There are kinds and degrees of guilt which the Lord will not pardon, either in individuals or nations; and the discovery of men's iniquities will fully demonstrate the justice of his most tremendous vengeance on them. But a tender, broken, and contrite heart; a humble consciousness of having deserved wrath, and an earnest application for mercy, are things which accompany salvation, and will never be rejected by our gracious God. Whatever persons of this character fear, or suffer, or witness, or in what way soever they are removed out of the world, they shall be gathered to the grave in peace, and shall enter into the rest reserved for his people.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIII. V. 2. The Prophets. We may suppose that Jeremiah, Zephaniah, Huldah, and others, were present on this occasion, encouraging and assisting the king in his pious undertaking: yet it is probable that the king neither employed them nor the priests in reading the law to the elders of the people, at least not exclusively; but that he performed the service personally. The opinion that he

AND^a the king sent, and they gathered unto him all the elders of Judah and of Jerusalem.

2 And the king went up into the house of the LORD, and all the men of Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, * both small and great: and^b he read in their ears all the words of^c the book of the covenant which was found in the house of the LORD,

3 And the king^d stood by a pillar, and^e made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, ^h with all their heart and all their soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. ⁱ And all the people stood to the covenant.

4 And the king commanded Hilkiah the high-priest, and the ^k priests of the a Deut. xxxi. 28.

2 Sam. vi. 1.
2 Chr. xxix. 20.
xxx. 2
xxxiv.
29, 30.

* Heb. from small even unto great.
Gen. xix. 11. 1
Sam. v. 9. xxx.
2, 2 Chr. xv. 13.
Esth. i. 5. Job
iii. 19. Ps. cxv.
13. Acts xxvi.
22. Rev. xx. 12.
b Deut. xxxi. 10
—13. 2 Chr. xvii.
9. Neh. viii. 1—
8. ix. 3 xiii. 1.
c xxii. 8 Deut.
xxxii. 26. 1 Kings
viii. 9.
d xi. 14—17. 2
Chr. xxiii. 13.
xxxiv. 31, 32.
e Ex. xxiv. 7, 8.
Deut. v. 1—3.
xxix. 1. 10—15.
Josh. xxiv. 25.
2 Chr. xv. 12—
14. xxiii. 16.
xxix. 10. Ezra
x. 3 Neh. ix.
28. x. 23 &c.
Jer. i. 5. Heb.
viii. 3—13. xii.
24. xiii. 20.
f Deut. viii. 19
g Deut. iv. 45.
v. 1. vi. 1 Ps.
xix. 7—9.
h Deut. vi. 5. x.
12. xi. 13. Matt.
xxii. 36, 37.
i Ex. xxiv. 3.
Josh. xxiv. 24.
2 Chr. xxxiv. 32.
33. Ec. vii. 3.

Jer. iv. 2.—k 1 Chr. xxiv. 4—26. Matt. xxvi. 3. xxvii. 1.

only engaged others to read the law, seems to be taken from modern refinements and sentiments of royal dignity, and not from facts, good sense, or the examples of pious princes in those days: (2 Sam. vi. 12—22. 1 Kings viii. 12—61.) For such is human nature, that so trivial a circumstance, as the rank of the reader or speaker, will frequently excite greater attention, than matters of acknowledged superior importance. Though Josiah was assured that no reformation could prevent the desolations of Jerusalem; yet he would do what he could to prolong her state, to rescue a remnant as brands out of the burning, and to sow good seed, which might afterwards produce a reformation even among dispersed captives.

V. 3. The prophets, priests, and elders, and through them the whole nation by their representatives, bound themselves in the most solemn manner, to renounce and abolish every species of idolatry, to re-establish the worship of God according to the law, and to serve him in righteousness and true holiness. We learn from the event, that the most of those present who "stood to the covenant," were hypocritical in this transaction; being induced to concur, to please the king, or to avoid his displeasure, and the reproach of singularity, or by some transient impression upon their minds. Yet Josiah did well in requiring them thus to engage, as far as they could be prevailed on without compulsion. A great deal of outward wickedness would be prevented; many individuals would receive essential benefit; and in every way the name, worship, and law of God were honoured: whilst they who acted hypocritically, and violated their engagements by apostacy, were accountable to God for their conduct. Indeed no effectual means can be used of doing extensive good, which will not eventually prove an occasion of deeper guilt and condemnation to many. (2 Cor. ii. 15, 16.)

11 Chr. xxvi. 1—19.
 2 Ch. xxiii. 3—7.
 xxiii. 3. 7.
 xxiv. 3, 4.
 a xxi. 3, 7.
 o 2 Sam. xv. 23.
 John xviii. 1.
 Cedron.
 p 1 Kings xii. 29.
 Hos. iv. 15. Am.
 iv. 4.
 * Heb. caused to cease † Heb. Chemarim.
 Hos. x. 5. Zeph.
 i. 4, 5.

second order, and ¹ the keepers of the door ^m to bring forth out of the temple of the LORD all the vessels that were made for ⁿ Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven: and he burnt them without Jerusalem in ^o the fields of Kidron, and carried the ashes of them unto ^p Beth-el.

5 And he * put down † the idolatrous priests, whom the kings of Judah had ordained to burn incense in the high places, in the cities of Judah, and in the places round about Jerusalem; them also that burnt incense unto Baal, to the sun, and to the moon, and to the ‡ planets, and to ^q all the host of heaven.

6 And he brought out ^r the grove from the house of the LORD, without Jerusalem, unto the brook Kidron, and ^s burned it at the brook Kidron, and stamped it small to powder, and cast the powder thereof upon ^t the graves of the children of the people.

7 And he brake down the houses of ^u the Sodomites, that were by the house of the LORD, ^x where the women wove hangings for the grove.

8 And he brought all the priests out of the cities of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had burnt incense, from ^y Geba to ^z Beer-sheba, and brake down the high places of the gates that were in the entering in of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on a man's left hand at the gate of the city.

9 Nevertheless ^a the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem, ^b but they did eat of the unleavened bread among their brethren.

10 And he defiled ^c Topheth, which is in ^d the valley of the children of Hinnom, that no man ^e might make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire to Molech.

11 And he took away the horses that the kings of Judah had given to ^f the sun, at the entering in at the house of the LORD, by the chamber of Nathan-melech || the chamberlain, which was in the suburbs, and burnt the chariots of the sun with fire.

12 And the altars that were ^g on the y 1 Kings xv. 22.

 z Gen. xxi. 21.

a Ez. xlv. 10—14.
 Mal. ii. 8, 9.

b 1 Sam. ii. 36.
 Ez. xlv. 23—31.

c Is. xxx. 33. Jer.
 vii. 31, 32 xix.
 6.11—13. Tophet.
 d Josh. xv. 8.
 e xvi. 3 xxi. 6.
 Lev. xviii. 21.
 Deut. xviii. 10.
 Ez. xxiii. 37—39.

f 5 Ez. viii. 16.

|| Or, eunuch, or,
 officer.

g Deut. xxii. 8.
 Jer. xix. 13.
 Zeph. i. 5.

V. 4. "The priests of the second order," seem to have been the heads of the several courses, which served in rotation under the person next in succession to the high-priesthood; who acted upon emergencies as deputy to the high-priest. These were the chief priests mentioned so often in the New Testament. (Marg. Ref.) Josiah, in his former well-meant attempts for reformation, had probably removed the idols, and abolished the worship of them in Jerusalem: but perhaps, through ignorance, he had supposed that the vessels and other valuables might be reserved for the use of the temple. Being, however, now more fully instructed in the law of God, he destroyed all these by fire: and in his progress through the land, he carried the ashes to Beth-el, the beginning of idolatry to Israel, as established by public authority; in order to render both the place and these ashes contemptible or abominable to the people.

V. 5. Chemarim, the name of these priests of Baal and other idols, is supposed to be derived from the black garments which they wore, and by which they were distinguished from the Lord's priests, who wore garments of white linen. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 6. The graves, &c. Perhaps the graves of the worshippers of these idols are meant: this was another expedient to render them and the idolaters alike vile and abominable to the spectators.

V. 7. Hangings, &c. It is supposed that these hangings were intended for tents, in which the devotees of the demons perpetrated the most detestable species of lewdness, as a part of their religion, and as near as possible to the house of the Lord itself! This was far worse than making that holy place a den of thieves.

V. 8. It is probable, that these high places were defiled by casting the bones, or dead bodies of men into them. Thus the people in general would be preserved from going thither, when they had so expressly been declared abominable; though presumptuous persons should rebuild them. Josiah showed his impartiality, when he destroyed the high places at the gates of the city, which seem to have been erected under the patronage of a considerable person, entitled the governor of the city.

V. 9. These priests do not seem to have been guilty of idolatry, but of irregularly and illegally worshipping JEHOVAH in the high places, instead of at the temple. To deter others from this inveterate practice, they were excluded from their sacred functions; but not put to death, or deprived of their maintenance, though it is uncertain what portions were allotted them.

V. 10. Topheth, &c. This place is said to have derived its name from a word which signifies a drum: because they used to drown the cries of the children, that there passed through the fire, or were burnt in it, by the sound of beating drums.

V. 11. The worshippers of the sun represented that luminary by a man seated in a chariot drawn by swift and furious horses; and therefore they dedicated to him horses and chariots. The kings of Judah had imitated this custom, and kept the horses of the sun at the entrance of the temple: and a person who, as it seems, was very honourably provided for, was employed to take care of them!

top of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars ^h which Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the LORD, did the king beat down, and ^{*} brake them down from thence, and cast the dust of them into the brook Kidron.

13 And the high places that were before Jerusalem, which were on the right hand of the mount of corruption, which ¹ Solomon the king of Israel had builded for ² Ashtoreth the abomination of the Zidonians, and for ³ Chemosh the abomination of the Moabites, and for ⁴ Milcom the abomination of the children of Ammon, did the king defile.

14 And ⁵ he brake in pieces the [†] images, and cut down the groves, and filled their places with [°] the bones of men.

15 [¶] Moreover ⁷ the altar that was at Beth-el, and the high place which Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin, had made, both that altar and the high place he brake down, and burnt the high place, and ⁹ stamped it small to powder, and burnt the grove.

16 And as Josiah turned himself, he spied the sepulchres that were there in the mount, and sent, and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and ¹ burnt them upon the altar, and polluted it, according to the word of the LORD, which the man of God proclaimed, who proclaimed these words.

17 Then he said, What title is that that I see? And the men of the city told him, ² it is the sepulchre of the man of God which came from Judah, and ³ proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar of Beth-el.

18 And he said, Let him alone; let no man move his bones. So they let his bones [†] alone, with the bones [†] of ¹ the prophet that came out of Samaria.

19 And all ² the houses also of the high places that were in ³ the cities of Samaria; which the kings of Israel had made ⁴ to provoke the LORD to anger, Josiah took away, and did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Beth-el.

20 And ² he slew all the priests of the high places that were there upon the altars, and burnt men's bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

21 [†] And the king commanded all the people, saying, ² Keep the passover unto the LORD your God, ³ as it is written in the book of this covenant.

22 Surely ¹ there was not holden such a passover from the days of the judges that judged Israel, nor in all the days ² of the kings of Israel, nor of the kings of Judah;

23 But in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, wherein this passover was holden to the LORD in Jerusalem.

¹ 2 Chr. xxxiii. 5.
² 1 Kings xiii. 1-2.

³ Or, ran from thence.

¹ 1 Kings xi. 7, 8.
² Neh. xiii. 26.
³ Judg. ii. 13.
⁴ G. 1 Sam. vii. 4.
⁵ xii. 10.
⁶ 1 Kings xi. 5, 33.
⁷ 1 Num. xxi. 29.
⁸ Judg. xi. 24.
⁹ Jer. xlviii. 7, 13, 46.
¹⁰ Zeph. i. 5. Malcham.

¹¹ Ex. xxxiii. 24.
¹² Num. xxxiii. 52.
¹³ Deut. vii. 5, 25, 28.
¹⁴ Heb. statues.
¹⁵ O. Num. xix. 16, 18.
¹⁶ Jer. viii. 1, 2.
¹⁷ Ez. xxxix. 12-16.
¹⁸ Matt. xxiii. 27, 28.
¹⁹ 1 Kings xii. 28-30.

²⁰ q. 6.

²¹ 1 Kings xiii. 1, 2.

V. 12, 13. Manasseh, after his repentance, had removed the altars from the courts of the Lord: but it is probable that Amon had replaced or rebuilt them, and they retained the name of their original deviser. The high places which Solomon had built, had doubtless been in part at least demolished: but the idolatrous kings had rebuilt or repaired them, and dedicated them to the same idols, and called them by Solomon's name; perhaps glorying that they copied so illustrious a prince's example. The sacred writer seems to call the hill on which these high places were erected, and which is supposed to have been the mount of Olives, the mount of corruption, because of the abominations there committed.

V. 15-20. Josiah had evidently some authority in the country which the ten tribes had occupied; (2 Chron. xxxiv. 6;) but it is not certain whether this was by grant from the king of Assyria, or by the willing subjection of the inhabitants: the former however appears the more probable. On this occasion he exactly accomplished the prediction of the man of God concerning him about three hundred and sixty years before; and though he may be supposed to have designed that accomplishment; yet so wicked a man as his father could have had no such intentions, in giving his son the name of Josiah. It seems that many Israelites had collected together in several parts of the land; and especially that the idolatrous priests had resorted to Beth-el to renew their old idolatry. These Josiah put to death, perhaps with others from the land of Judah that were notoriously guilty. By burning men's bones upon their altars he endeavoured to render their idolatry detestable to all the inhabitants; that they might be induced to join themselves to the Jews in the worship of God at Jerusalem: for nothing was so polluting by the ceremonial law, as a dead human body, or any part of one. (Marg. Ref.) It has been justly observed, that if Josiah had entertained the same notions of the sanctity of relics, which have so long prevailed among professed christians; he would have bestowed at least as much pains in honouring the bones of the old prophet from Judah, as he did in disgracing those of the idolatrous priests. But he thought it enough to let the bones of the man of God lie still in his grave.

V. 21-23. Having made all necessary preparation,

¹ 1 Kings xiii. 1-2.

² Heb. escape.
³ 1 Kings xiii. 1-2.

⁴ u. xvii. 9. 1 Kings vii. 31. xiii. 32.
⁵ 2 Chr. xxxiv. 6, 7.

⁶ y. xvii. 16-18.
⁷ xxi. 6. Ps. lxxviii. 58.
⁸ Jer. vii. 13.
⁹ 19. Ez. viii. 17, 18.

¹⁰ z. x. 25. xi. 18.
¹¹ Ex. xxvii. 20.
¹² Deut. xiii. 5.
¹³ 1 Kings xviii. 40.
¹⁴ Zech. xiii. 2, 3.
¹⁵ Or, sacrificed.
¹⁶ 1 Kings xiii. 2.
¹⁷ Is. xxxiv. 6.

¹⁸ a. 2 Chr. xxxv. 1, &c.
¹⁹ b. Ex. xii. 3, &c.
²⁰ Lev. xxiii. 5-8.
²¹ Num. ix. 2-5.
²² xxviii. 16-25.
²³ Deut. xvi. 1-3.
²⁴ c. 2 Chr. xxxv. 18, 19.

²⁵ d. 2 Chr. xxx. 1-3.
²⁶ 13-20. xxxv. 3-17.

e xxi. 3. 6. xxii.
8. 1 Sam xxviii.
3—7. 18. viii.
19. xix. 3. Acts
xvi. 16—18.
* Or. teraphim.
Gen. xxxi. 19.
Judg. xvii. 5.
xxviii. 17, 18.

f Lev. xix. 31. xx.
27. Deut. xviii.
10—12. Rom.
xxx 2. Jam. i.
25.
g xxii. 8—13.

h xviii. 5.

i3. Deut. iv. 29.
1 Kings ii. 4.
xv. 5. Jer. xxi.
13.

k Mal iv. 4.

l xxi. 11—13.
xxii. 16, 17.
xxiv. 3, 4.
2 Chr. xxxvi.
16. Jer. iii. 7—
10. xv. 1—4.

† Heb. angels.
m xvii. 18. 20.
xviii. 11. xxiv.
3. xxv. 11.
Deut. xxix. 27.
28. Ez. xxiii.
32—35.

24 Moreover ^e the workers with familiar spirits, and the wizards, and ^{*} the images, and the idols, and all the abominations that were spied in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, did Josiah put away, ^f that he might perform the words of the law, which were written in ^g the book that Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD.

25 And ^h like unto him was there no king before him, ⁱ that turned to the LORD with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, ^k according to all the law of Moses; neither after him arose there any like him.

26 ^l Notwithstanding the LORD turned not from the fierceness of his great wrath, wherewith his anger was kindled against Judah, because of all the [†] provocations that Manasseh had provoked him withal.

27 And the LORD said, ^m I will remove Judah also ⁿ out of my sight, as I have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I said, ^o My name shall be there.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

29 [†] In his days ^p Pharaoh-nechoh king of Egypt went up against the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates: and king Josiah went against him: and he ^q slew him at ^r Megiddo when ^s he had seen him.

30 And ^t his servants carried him in a chariot dead from Megiddo, and brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre. And ^u the people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah, and anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead.

ⁿ Ps. li. 11.

^o xxi. 4. 7. 1 Kings vii. 29. ix. 3.

B. C. 610.

^p 2 Chr. xxxv. 20—24.

^q Ec. viii. 14. ix. 1, 2. Is. lvii. 1, 2. Rom. xi. 33.
^r Ze. h. xii. 11.
^s Megiddon.
^t xiv. 8. 11.
^u ix. 28.

^u xiv. 21. xxi. 23.
^v 2 Chr. xxxv. 1, 2.

Josiah proceeded to lead the attention of the people to their solemn feasts: and this first passover was celebrated with extraordinary zeal and exactness, and by immense multitudes. (Notes, 2 Chron. xxxv.)

V. 24. The whole narrative marks the care with which this pious prince had studied the book of the law, after it was found; the diligent investigation which he made to detect and destroy every thing forbidden in it; and the exactness, as well as earnestness, with which his reformation was conducted. Had the princes and people been as sincere and zealous as their king, the happiest effects would have followed.

V. 25. Hezekiah excelled all the kings of Judah for entire confidence in God: and Josiah surpassed all others in zeal for reformation, and in an unblemished life, being attentive to obey the precepts, and promote the glory of God, with his whole heart and soul.

V. 26, 27. Josiah lived above thirteen years after this great reformation, and to the end retained the people in the external worship of God, (2 Chron. xxxiv. 33:) but we may be sure that in general they relapsed secretly into many of their former idolatries and iniquities; and as a collective body they were not much amended in the sight of a heart-searching God. They had heartily concurred in the idolatries and crimes of Manasseh, but they had not imitated his repentance: on the other hand, they had hypocritically joined in Josiah's reformation, and were ripe, upon his removal, to join the apostacy of his sons. Manasseh's wickedness therefore was accounted national, and filled up their measure of iniquity; whereas Josiah's piety was personal, and the hypocrisy and apostacy of the people aggravated their guilt and hastened their ruin. We need not wonder that the righteousness of Josiah, and of the small remnant of pious persons amongst them, would not prevent the punishment of an impenitent nation: for even the Saviour's obedience unto death will not profit one finally impenitent sinner. But though the Lord turned not from the fierceness of his great wrath, so as to spare Jerusalem from desolation, and the Jews from captivity: yet this event proved a kind of crisis to their disease, and whilst the wicked perished in vast numbers, the remnant was purified; and Josiah's reformation probably had a happy effect in raising up many persons to join this small remnant, which proved the precious seed of their future church and nation.

V. 29, 30. Nabopolazar king of Babylon, assisted by the Medes, is supposed, before this time, to have conquered the Assyrians and destroyed Nineveh. Thus he became king of Assyria also: and some learned men are of opinion, that after Manasseh was freed from captivity, the kings of Judah reigned over the country formerly possessed by the ten tribes, as tributaries and allies to the kings of Babylon. Josiah might therefore consider himself as under engagements to the king of Assyria, as well as unwilling that the contending parties should march their armies through his country: he however lost his life in the attempt. Megiddo was situated in the northern part of the land of Israel, but at this time it seems to have been under Josiah's government. It is probable that Josiah disguised himself, that the king of Egypt might not know him; but he, having discovered him, singled him out for slaughter. When he had received his mortal wound, he was carried out of the battle, and he died by the way to Jerusalem. (Note, 2 Chr. xxxv. 20—24.) It has commonly been observed that our young king Edward VI. greatly resembled Josiah. He gave indeed singular evidence of wisdom and piety far beyond his years: but he was taken away at the age when Josiah first began to seek the Lord, and we can only conjecture what he would have been and done, if he had been spared to n 1 Chr. iii. 15.

Jer. xxii. 11.
Shallum.

x xxiv. 18.

y xxi. 2—7 21, 22.

z 2 Chr. xxxvi. 3.
4. Ez. xix. 3, 4.
a xxv. 6. Jer. lli.
11.
† Or, because he reigned.
† Heb set a mulct
upon the land.
xviii. 14.

b xxiv. 17. Dan.
i. 7.
c Matt i. 11 Jakim, some copies.

31 ^u Jehoahaz was twenty and three years old when he began to reign; and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was ^x Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

32 And ^y he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his fathers had done.

33 And Pharaoh-nechoh ^z put him in bands at ^a Riblah, in the land of Hamath, [†] that he might not reign in Jerusalem; and [†] put the land to a tribute of an hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold.

34 And Pharaoh-nechoh made Eliakim the son of Josiah king, in the room of Josiah his father, and ^b turned his name to ^c Jehoiakim, and took Jehoahaz away:

and ^d he came to Egypt, and died there. ^d Jer. xxii. 11, 12.
Ez. xix. 3, 4.

35 And Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh; but ^e he taxed the land to give the money according to the commandment of Pharaoh: he exacted the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every one according to his taxation, to give it unto Pharaoh-nechoh.

36 ^f Jehoiakim was twenty and five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Zebudah, the daughter of Pedaiah of Rumah.

37 And ^g he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to ^h all that his fathers had done.

f 1 Chr. iii. 15.
2 Chr. xxxvi. 5.
Jer. i. 8.

g Jer. xxii. 13—17.
xxvi. 20—26.
xxxvi. 23—26.
31. Ez. xix. 5
—9

h Chr. xxviii.
22—25. xxxiii.
1—10. 22, 23.

have reached the age at which Josiah was slain. The people of the land placed the second son of Josiah on the throne in preference to his elder brother; probably because he was deemed to be of a more active and martial temper. And to confirm their irregular proceedings, they anointed him, as if he had been immediately appointed of God: but, alas! the season of the Lord's graciously giving them pious kings to reign over them was elapsed, and all Josiah's sons proved wicked, impolitic, and unsuccessful.

V. 33. Jehoahaz had assumed the regal authority without Pharaoh's consent, and perhaps attempted to continue the war against him: but by some means he took him prisoner, deposed him, and sent him bound into Egypt, where he ended his days; and the land was put under tribute, in token of its subjection to Pharaoh. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 34. Jehoiakim means the same as Eliakim; except that the latter is compounded with the word translated God, the former with a part of the name JEHOVAH. Pharaoh seems not to have wished Jehoiakim to renounce his religion; but chose to distinguish him as the ruler of that people who professed to worship JEHOVAH. Hitherto the kingdom had descended in a direct line from father to son; and this is the first instance of one brother succeeding another.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—14.

Nothing ought to discourage our endeavours to promote a revival of true religion. If declining churches and nations cannot be rescued from impending judgments, a few individuals may be snatched as brands from the burning: and if ministers, in their several stations, fail of general or abiding usefulness, and have continually the prospect of being removed; many a one may, in the mean time, receive important benefit, and prove the seed of a future revival, even in that very place. As sinners cannot be preserved from eternal destruction, without repentance; so degenerate nations cannot be rescued from public calamities, without general reformation. To effect this, it is the interest of princes to promote the knowledge of God in their dominions: and it is no degradation of their dignity, personally to take an active part in such attempts; which will induce numbers of every order in the community to concur. All external obligations to the service of God may be entered into with a hypocritical, or self-righteous spirit: yet this should not make us object to such engagements ourselves, or averse to propose them; but only make us cautious in what manner we do it, and careful to inculcate this upon others. It is safe to bind ourselves solemnly to walk after the Lord, and to keep his commandments; because these are previous indispensable duties; (Notes, Num. xxx.) and some are thus rendered more earnest in attending to them; but the word of God must be the rule and standard in every thing; not only as to the duty itself, but also as to the motive and manner of doing it. In those nations which profess to worship God, and are favoured with the light of revelation, we need only to investigate with diligence, and compare our observations with the word of truth, to discover such enormous and multiplied abominations, as could never have been conceived upon a distant and superficial view, or a judgment formed by other rules. Even in worshipping congregations, an exact scrutiny would commonly bring to light such evils as before were never suspected: but the most humiliating discoveries will be made, by an exact inquiry into our own hearts and conduct. That man, who previously deemed his behaviour unexceptionable and his heart good, if he can be engaged in diligent self-examination and watchfulness, daily beholding himself in the mirror of God's word, and for a long time comparing with it his thoughts, intentions, dispositions, words, and actions; will experience increasing convictions of the deceitfulness and desperate wickedness of his heart, and of the exceeding sinfulness of his whole life. And if he set about amendment, in dependence on the mercy and grace of God in Jesus Christ, and according to the rule of the Bible, he will, as he proceeds, find still more and more to be done; and to the end of his life per-

CHAP. XXIV.

Jehoiakim submits to Nebuchadnezzar, but afterwards rebels, 1. God hastens the fulfilment of his predictions against Judah, 2—4. Jehoiakim dies, and is succeeded by Jehoiachin, 5, 6. The king of Babylon prevails against the king of Egypt, 7. Jehoiachin reigns wickedly, 8, 9. Jerusalem is taken; and the king, (with his family and treasures, and the sacred vessels, and chief persons of Judah,) is carried captive to Babylon, 10—16. Zedekiah is made king, reigns wickedly, and rebels against the king of Babylon, 17—20.

IN^a his days Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up, and Jehoiakim became his servant three years; then he turned and rebelled against him.

a xvii. 5. 2 Chr
xxxvi 6. Jer
xxv. 1 9 xlv.
2. Dan. i. 1.
B. C. 603.

ceive, that he is very far off from the perfect righteousness of the holy law. Nor are any persons disposed to object to this unfavourable statement, but such as are either unacquainted with the rule, or strangers to a serious examination of their conduct by it. Imperfection is stamped upon all human goodness, and the greatest reformations hitherto seen on earth, have left many things unreformed. The scriptural history may well excite the hatred and disgust of the proud admirers of the human heart and understanding; as it presents to our view a very mortifying picture of the blindness of man's mind, as well as of the perverseness of his will and the depravity of his affections. But suppose the appeal made to other histories, or to universal observation and experience: if the records of Greece and Rome were presented to our view, as a detail of facts, without the varnish of declamation and panegyric; if the conduct of these celebrated nations, in public and private life, throughout their term of notoriety, were impartially compared with the just and holy law of God; would not their idolatries and immoralities be found to exceed even those of Israel? Would they not picture human nature as blind and depraved as the Bible does? And do not all the encomiums bestowed on them, arise from man's disposition to "call good evil, and evil good, "to put darkness for light, and light for darkness?" Pride, ambition, rapacity, cruelty, and revenge, have even been canonized by poets and historians: and idolatry, impiety, brutal excess, and unnatural lusts, have been called by soft names, and excused, if not vindicated, by these elegant and ingenious ancients. Otherwise the conclusion is as irrefragable from the study of profane history, as from the records of God's word, that "the imagination "of man's heart is only evil from his youth:" and that all the real godliness or goodness which hath ever been found on earth, hath been derived from the new creating Spirit of Jesus Christ. Persons of eminency, of whatever kind, have need to be very careful what they sanction; for numbers, in distant ages or nations, may be emboldened to transgress, by acceding to their sentiments, or by imitating their examples: and the reflection, of doing extensive mischief for generations to come, would, in that case, be a painful prerogative of superior talents, rank, or reputation. In using all our influence decidedly to suppress abuses, and to oppose iniquity, we should show all allowable tenderness to the persons of men: yet man must not pretend to more mercy than his Maker, by sparing those whom he orders to be punished. In reducing our conduct, or that of others, to the standard of Scripture in evident and important matters, no allowance must be made for customary, reputable, ancient, or fashionable abuses: difficulties also must be encountered, hardships endured, self-denial exercised, and opposition and every worldly interest disregarded: no man must be known after the flesh; nor any attention paid to persuasions, complaints, remonstrances, or reproaches; nor even to prejudices, except in matters of subordinate consequence. Therefore courage, constancy, and patience, are requisite for such attempts; and these, when genuine, can only spring from faith, and be given in answer to prayer, without which every undertaking of this kind will be fruitless. Not only should gross abominations be precluded; but every temptation or occasion of sin should be removed, whatever be the secular loss or expense, if we would effectually glorify God, and do good: and every method should be adopted to fill men's minds with abhorrence of iniquity, and to show plausible abuses in a contemptible and detestable light: especially where godly people are liable to be seduced into pernicious compliances.

V. 15—37.

The predictions of Scripture may be so long ere they are accomplished, that the expectation of such events may seem to expire; but they will all be punctually fulfilled in their seasons: and it must give singular encouragement to the pious, when they find themselves evidently employed in bringing about that accomplishment. Ungodly persons may, even after death, be more respected for their connexion with the servants of God: but the Judge of all will not regard such distinctions. When gross iniquities are renounced, and a credible profession of faith, repentance, and devotedness to God are made, men may be deemed prepared for the most solemn ordinances of his worship; though no human care or penetration can exclude formal hypocrites: such attendance on the worship of God is externally honourable to him, and useful to numbers: and as he will know how at last to separate betwixt the tares and the wheat, we must leave them to grow together till the harvest. The scrutinizing eye of the zealous servant of God will continually find many abuses to be rectified; and we must still press forward both in personal and public reformation. They who attempt this with their whole heart, in humility and simplicity, may hope to be useful to others, and shall certainly be accepted themselves: and as there are degrees of excellency amongst true believers, so they will receive a proportionable recompense. But when the sins of a collective body are come to a crisis, no human c Deut. xxviii. 49,

50 2 Chr. xxxiii.
11. Is. vii. 17.
xxiii. 5 Jer.
xxxv. 11

d xx. 17. xxi. 12—
14. Is. vi. 11, 12.
Jer. xxv. 9. xxvi.
6 20. xxxii. 28.
Mic. iii. 12.
* Heb. the hand of.

e xviii. 25, 2 Chr.
xxiv. 24 xxv. 16.
Is. x. 5, 6 xlv.
7. Am. iii. 6.

f xxiii. 26, 27.
Lev. xxvi. 33—
35. Deut. iv. 26,
27. xxviii. 63.
xxix. 28. Josh.
xxiii. 15. Jer. xv.
1—4. Mic. ii. 10.

g xxi. 2—11.
h xxi. 16 Num.
xxxv. 33.

2 And *the LORD sent against him bands of the Chaldees, and bands of the Syrians, and bands of the Moabites, and bands of the children of Ammon, and sent them against Judah, to destroy it, ^d according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by *his servants the prophets.

3 Surely ^e at the commandment of the LORD came this upon Judah, to ^f remove them out of his sight, ^g for the sins of Manasseh, according to all that he did;

4 And also ^h for the innocent blood that he shed: for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, which the LORD would not pardon.

5 Now ⁱ the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

6 So Jehoiakim ^k slept with his fathers: and Jehoiachin his son reigned in his stead.

7 And ^l the king of Egypt came not again any more out of his land: for the king of Babylon had taken, from the river of Egypt unto the river Euphrates, all that pertained to the king of Egypt.

ⁱ 2 Chr. xxxvi. 4.
Jer. xxii. 13—
17.

B. C. 599.

^k Jer. xxii. 18, 19.
xxxvi. 30

^l Jer. xxxvii. 5—
7. xlv. 2.

endeavours can avert the wrath of God: and when eminent and useful persons are prematurely taken away, it forebodes public calamities. The best of men may be misled into unadvised meddling with matters not properly belonging to them: but if we are habitually living by faith, and walking with God, even should we be taken away in consequence of any indiscretion, it will not prevent our dying in peace, and being received to glory. Piety is personal. The children even of the most pious parents inherit original depravity; nor can education, instruction, or example prevent its effects, without converting grace. When they that have stood in the gap are removed, judgments often follow like an inundation: and a little time and slender abilities will often suffice to undo all the external good, which pious men of excellent capacities, have been labouring with unremitting endeavours, for a course of years to effect. Blessed be God, that good work, which he begins by his regenerating Spirit, cannot be disannulled; but, notwithstanding all changes and temptations, shall be perfected unto the day of Jesus Christ.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIV. V. 1. Pharaoh-nechoh, after Josiah's death, obtained a victory over the king of Babylon, and for some time retained Judea and Syria in subjection.—But not long after Nabopolassar seems to have associated his son Nebuchadnezzar with him in the kingdom, that by him the war with the Egyptians might be conducted with greater vigour: (Dan. i. 1. 5. ii. 1.) For when Daniel had been three years under tuition at Babylon, and had afterwards been introduced to Nebuchadnezzar, he interpreted his dream in the second year of his reign: yet Daniel had been carried captive by Nebuchadnezzar the king. Two distinct dates respecting the beginning of his reign must be admitted; and it appears that he was made king two or three years before his father died. Nebuchadnezzar, having obtained decisive advantages against the Egyptians, attacked Jehoiakim as an ally of Nechoh, and having taken him prisoner, he “put him in chains to carry him to Babylon;” but upon his submission he released him, and carried away some of the gold and silver vessels of the temple, and some of the most considerable persons of the land: among the latter were Daniel and his companions: (Dan. i. 1—7.) This is the first epoch of the seventy years of the Babylonish captivity. Nebuchadnezzar left Babylon in the third year of Jehoiakim, and he reduced that prince in his fourth year. After this Jehoiakim served the king of Babylon three years, and then in his eighth year he rebelled against him, about three years before his death. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 2. These nations seem to have all been subject to the king of Babylon; and they were probably encouraged by him to attack the revolted Jews, whilst he was otherwise employed. But the Lord's secret disposal of their hearts to these attempts is alone noticed. It is probable, that Jehoiakim was harassed by them the remainder of his days; and perhaps he was at last slain in some sally against them, when they approached Jerusalem; and so left unburied, or otherwise very disgracefully treated: (Marg. Ref.) But some think, that after the transactions here recorded, Nebuchadnezzar carried him to Babylon, and at length put him to death, and treated his dead body most ignominiously.

V. 3, 4. Manasseh's idolatry became a national sin, as publicly enforced by persecution, which filled Jerusalem with the innocent blood of those who refused compliance. The chief men of Judah were involved in this guilt, and had neither repented nor been brought to justice for it: thus, accumulated and atrocious murders remained unpunished, as a load of guilt upon the land; and both the princes and people were in general more disposed to imitate Manasseh's idolatries and persecutions, than his repentance. Therefore, though the Lord had pardoned the personal wickedness of penitent Manasseh, he would not pardon the unrepented national guilt of which he had been the occasion, and in some sense the author: (Note, xxiii. 26—28.)

V. 6. As Jehoiakim was “buried with the burial of an ass;” the expression, “slept with his fathers,” can only mean that he died; without determining what became either of his soul or body. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 7. The king of Egypt having been driven back into his own land, and confined there; the kings of Judah were left entirely at the mercy of Nebuchadnezzar: so that policy, as well as their most solemn engagements, demanded their peaceable submission, and their resignation to the correcting hand of God in that dispensation: (Ezekiel xvii. 1—20.)

m 1 Chr. iii. 16.
Jer. xiv. 1.
Jeconiah. Jer.
xxii. 24. 28
xxxvii. Coniah.
Matt. i. 11, 12.
Jehonias
n 2 Chr. xxxvi. 9.

8 ¶ ^m Jehoiachin was ⁿ eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months. And his mother's name was Nehushta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem.

9 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father had done.

10 At that time the servants of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up against Jerusalem, and the city ^{*} was besieged.

11 And Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came against the city, and his servants did besiege it.

12 And ^o Jehoiachin the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon, he, and his mother, and his servants, and his princes, and his [†] officers: and the king of Babylon ^p took him in the eighth year of [‡] his reign.

13 And ^q he carried out thence all the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house, and ^r cut in pieces all the vessels of gold ^s which Solomon king of Israel had made in the temple of the LORD, as the LORD had said.

14 And he carried away all ^t Jerusalem and all the princes, and all the mighty men of valour, even ten thousand captives, and all the ^u craftsmen and smiths: none remained save ^x the poorest sort of the people of the land.

15 And ^y he carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his [‡] officers, and the mighty of the land, those carried he into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon.

16 And all the men of might, even ^z seven thousand, and craftsmen and smiths a thousand, all that were strong and apt for war, even them the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon.

17 ¶ And ^a the king of Babylon made Mattaniah ^b his father's brother king in his stead, and ^c changed his name to Zedekiah.

18 Zedekiah was twenty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was ^d Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

19 And ^e he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

20 For ^f through the anger of the LORD it came to pass in Jerusalem and Judah, until he had cast them out from his presence, that ^g Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

u 1 Sam. xiii. 19.
—22
x xxxv. 12 Jer.
xxxix. 10. xl. 7.
iii. 16. Ez. xvii.
14.
y Esth. ii. 6. Jer.
xxii. 24—28.

‡ Or, eunuchs.

z Jer. xxix. 2.
iii. 28. 1 Sam.
xiii. 19—21.

a 2 Chr. xxxvi. 10.
11. Jer. xxxvii.
1 [lit. 1].
b 1 Chr. iii. 15.
c xxiii. 34. 2 Chr.
xxxvi. 4.

d xxiii. 31.

e xxiii. 37. 2 Chr.
xxxvi. 12. Jer.
xxiv. 8. xxxviii.
5, 6. Ez. xxi. 21.

f xxii. 17. Ex. ix.
14—17. Deut.
ii. 30. Is. xix.
11—14. 1 Cor.
i. 20. 2 Thes. ii.
9—11.
g 2 Chr. xxxvi. 13.
Jer. xxvii. 12—
15. xxxviii. 17—
21. Ez. xii. 15.

o 2 Chr. xxxvi.
10. Jer. xxiv. 1.
xxix. 1. 2.
xxxviii. 17. 18.
Ez. xvii. 12.

† Or, eunuchs.

p xxv. 27 Jer. li.
31.

‡ Nebuchadnezzar's. Jer. xxv.
1 iii. 28.
q xx 17 Is xxxix.
6. Jer. xx. 5.

r xxv. 13—15
Ezra i. 7—11.
Jer. xxvii. 16—
21. xxviii. 3, 4.
6. Dan. v. 2, 3.
s 1 Kings vii. 48—
50.

t Jer. xxiv. 1—5.
iii. 28. Ez. i. 1, 2.

V 8—16. Jehoiachin, or Jeconiah, seems to have mounted the throne on the death of his father, without waiting for the king of Babylon's consent: but it was like going on board a sinking ship. He had just time enough to discover his evil disposition, and was then attacked by the king of Babylon: and either by surrender, or upon some deceitful engagement, he went forth to him, and was carried captive to Babylon. After all the depredations to which the temple had been exposed, some of the vessels that Solomon had made, remained in the treasuries of the temple: but all, except what were in immediate use, seem to have been seized, cut in pieces, and sent to Babylon. And those, which we shall hereafter read of, might be such as had been before this carried away, or such as were found at the total destruction of the temple and city. This event took place in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, (12,) and forms a second epoch to be regarded in computing the duration of the captivity. The chief and the most useful of the people were carried to Babylon, that the land might be reduced to an absolute dependence on Nebuchadnezzar. Seven thousand soldiers, one thousand craftsmen and smiths, and two thousand persons of superior rank, may make up the sum total ten thousand. Some learned men, however, suppose, that there were ten thousand carried captive from Jerusalem alone, besides a thousand craftsmen and smiths; and also seven thousand from the rest of the land. Jeremiah speaks of three thousand and twenty-three, who seem to have been carried away the year before out of the open country. Amongst the rest Ezekiel seems to have been at this time a made captive. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 17. Jehoiachin was succeeded by his uncle, the youngest son of Josiah. Mattaniah signifies, the gift of JEHOVAH: Zedekiah, the righteousness of JEHOVAH: and the king of Babylon, by giving him this name, seems either to have intended an appeal to the justice of God against him, if he violated his engagement; or to have referred to the judgments which he might have heard were denounced against Jerusalem by a righteous God.

V. 20. 'God was so highly displeased with this wicked people, that he permitted Zedekiah to break his faith with Nebuchadnezzar, and to rebel against him, forgetting for what cause he had changed his name.' (Bp. Patrick.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS

V. 1—9.

When the Lord leaves men to the blindness of their own minds, and the lusts of their own hearts; some are infatuated to adopt and obstinately persist in the most destructive

CHAP. XXV.

Jerusalem is besieged and taken, Zedekiah flees, and is made prisoner; his sons are slain, his eyes are put out, and he is carried in chains to Babylon, 1—7. The temple, palaces, and city are burned, the walls are broken down, and the remnant of the people led captive, except a small number of the poor, 8—12. The residue of the sacred vessels and treasures are spoiled, 13—17. The nobles are slain at Riblah, 18—21. Gedaliah, who is left governor, being treacherously slain, the rest flee into Egypt, 22—26. Evil-merodach is kind to Jehoiachin, 27—30.

a2 Ch. xxxvi. 17.
Jer. xxxiv. 2, 3.
xxxix. 1. lii. 4.
5. Ez. xxiv. 1.
2.

AND it came to pass ^a in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and ^b pitched against it; and they built forts against it round about.

b Jer. xxxii. 24.
Ez. iv. 1—5,
xxi. 22—24.

B. C. 533.

2 And the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

3 And on ^c the ninth day of the fourth month ^d the famine prevailed in the city, and ^e there was no bread for the people of the land.

c Jer. xxxix. 2.
lii. 6. Zech. viii. 19.
d Lev. xxvi. 26.
Deut. xxviii. 52.
53. Lam. iv. 4—
10. Ez. iv. 9—
17. v. 10. 12.
vii. 15. xiv. 21.
e Jer. xxxvii. 21.
xxxviii. 2.

4 And ^f the city was broken up, and all the men of war ^g fled by night, by the way of the gate, between two walls, which is by the king's garden: now the Chaldees were against the city round about; ^h and the king went the way toward the plain.

f Jer. v. 10.
xxxix. 2, 3. lii. 6, 7. Ez. xxxiii. 21.
g Lev. xxvi. 17.
36. Deut. xxxviii. 26. xxxii. 24, 25.
30. Jer. xxxix. 4—7.
h 1 Sam. xii. 25.
Ez. xii. 12.

5 And the army of the Chaldees pursued after the king ⁱ and overtook him in the plains of Jericho: and all his army were scattered from him.

i Is. lxxx. 16. Jer. xxiv. 8. lii. 8.
Am. ii. 14—16

measures, and others are hurried on by ambition, avarice, or resentment, to execute upon them the vengeance which had been predicted. Multiplied murders, sanctioned by authority, and persevered in with impunity, form a species of national wickedness which the Lord will not pardon: especially when false religion is established by law, and persecuting statutes are enacted or revived and executed against his true worshippers: and when this is not merely the act of a few oppressors, but the people in general love to have it so. Yet even this may be endured by the long-suffering of the Lord for many generations; till the whole accumulated load fall upon a devoted people, with direful destruction. Blessed be God, there is no degree or kind of personal guilt, which he will not pardon to the true penitent: for it is impossible to renew unto repentance such as have committed the sin unto death. But it is very distressing for those who have obtained forgiveness of their own transgressions, to reflect that they have been the guilty occasions to others, by their examples, influence, or persuasions, of those sins which, being continued in, the Lord will not pardon; and of which they have no power to bring them to repent. The good Lord preserve us from sin and temptation, and above all from being tempters to others! And may this reflection stir up young persons to seek and serve God without delay, lest they should do that mischief which, if they themselves should live to repent, they will never be able to undo. When God arises to judgment, all resistance will be ineffectual; and the folly, as well as the wickedness, of every worldly dependence will be manifest: but his justice will never appear in its full glory, till that day when “he will bring to light the hidden things of “darkness, and make known the secrets of all hearts.” In the mean time, we are incompetent judges of the divine procedure; and ought to wait with silent patience.—Wicked men soon discover the temper of their hearts, and give evidence of what they would do if they were spared:

therefore the Lord often cuts them off, to prevent their further mischief; and thus hinders them from “treasuring up “wrath against the day of wrath.” But when their power is taken away, and their lives are spared, though in poverty and misery, it may be an infinite mercy to their souls: (Jer. xxiv. 5—7.)

V. 10—20.

The gradual approach of divine judgment affords sinners space for repentance, and believers leisure to prepare for properly meeting the calamity; but it only evinces the desperate obduracy and obstinacy of those who are not deterred from their sins by all they witness or experience.—God delighteth in his ordinances, whilst they prove means of grace to those who are favoured with them; but he abhors them when they degenerate unto a lifeless form; and that which to the carnal eye appears most glorious in religious worship, is often in God's account a vile abomination.—Wicked men become curses to each other; and the nearer their intimacy or relation, the greater will be the anguish of those that sin and perish together.—External pre-eminence in times of public calamity often gives the precedence in suffering; but riches, dignity, authority, and superior abilities, will assuredly increase the sinner's condemnation: for to whom much is given, of him will the more be required. Let us then neither envy nor covet such precarious advantages, but be warned to improve every talent intrusted to us. Let us in these awful events contemplate the truth of God's word, and flee from the wrath to come; embrace and plead his precious promises; and by patient continuance in well doing, wait for the Saviour's mercy unto eternal life!

NOTES.

CHAP. XXV. V. 1—5. Jerusalem was so fortified by nature and art, that notwithstanding the enfeebled state

E 2 Chr. xxxiii. 11. Jer. xxi. 7. xxxiv. 21, 22. xxxviii. 23. Lam. iv. 19, 20. Ez. xvii. 20, 21. xxi. 25—27. 1. xxi. 33. [†] Heb. spake judgment with him. [‡] Gen. xxi. 16. xlii. 34. Deut. xxxiii. 34. Jer. xxxii. 39. xxxix. 6, 7. lii. 10, 11. [‡] Jer. xxxii. 4, 5. xxxiv. 3. Ez. xii. 13. [†] Heb. made blind. [‡] Ps. cvii. 10, 11. Ez. vii. 27. xvii. 16—20. [‡] Jer. lii. 12—14. Zech. viii. 19. [‡] xxiv. 12. [‡] Jer. xxxix. 9. Lam. iv. 12. [†] Or, chief marshal.

6 So ^k they took the king, and brought him up to the king of Babylon to [†] Riblah; and they ^{*} gave judgment upon him.

7 And ^m they slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, ⁿ and [†] put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and ^o bound him with fetters of brass, and carried him to Babylon.

8 ¶ And ^p in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which is ^q the nineteenth year of king Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, came ^r Nebuzar-adan [†] captain of the guard, a servant of the king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem:

9 And ^s he burnt the house of the LORD, and ^t the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great man's house burnt he with fire.

10 And all the army of the Chaldees, that were with the captain of the guard, ^u brake down the walls of Jerusalem round about.

11 Now ^x the rest of the people that were left in the city, and the ^y fugitives that fell away to the king of Babylon, with the remnant of the multitude, did Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carry away.

12 But the captain of the guard left ^z of the poor of the land to be vine-dressers and husbandmen.

13 ¶ And ^a the ^b pillars of brass that were in the house of the LORD, and the bases, and the brazen sea that was in the house of the LORD, did the Chaldees break in pieces, and carried the brass of them to Babylon.

14 And ^b the pots, and the shovels, and the snuffers, and the spoons, and all the vessels of brass, wherewith they ministered, took they away.

15 And the fire-pans, and the bowls, ^c and such things as were of gold, in gold, and of silver, in silver, the captain of the guard took away.

16 The two pillars, one ^d sea, and the bases, which Solomon had made for the house of the LORD; ^e the brass of all these vessels was without weight.

17 The height of the ^f one pillar was eighteen cubits, and the chapter upon it was brass; and the height of the chapter three cubits; and the wreathen work, and pomegranates upon the chapter round about, all of brass: and like unto these had the second pillar with wreathen work.

18 ¶ And the captain of the guard took ^g Seraiah the chief priest, and ^h Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the ⁱ door.

19 And out of the city he took an ^j officer that was set over the men of war, and ^k five men of them that ^l were in the king's presence, which were found in the city, and the ^m principal scribe of the host, which mustered the people of the land, and threescore men of the people

^b Ex. xxvii. 8. xxviii. 3.

^c Ex. xxxvii. 27. Num. vii. 13, 14. 1 Kings vii. 43—51. 2 Chr. xxiv. 14. Ezra i. 9—11. Dan. v. 2, 3.

^d Heb. the one sea.

^e 1 Kings vii. 47.

^f 1 Kings vii. 15. Jer. lii. 21—23.

^g 1 Chr. vi. 4. Ezra vii. 1. Jer. lii. 24.

^h Jer. xxi. 1. xxxix. 25, 29. ⁱ Heb. threshold.

^j Gr. eunuch.

^k Jer. lii. 25. ^l Heb. saw the king's face. Esth i. 14.

^m Or, scribe of the captain of the host.

of the inhabitants, of Nebuchadnezzar's great power and military skill, it could not be taken, till the besieged were incapacitated by famine to make any further resistance. In the Prophecy and Lamentations of Jeremiah, we shall have an opportunity of more fully considering the circumstances of this catastrophe, and indeed the whole of this compendious history: it suffices in this place to observe, that the obstinacy, impiety, and misery of the besieged were alike great, and almost unparalleled.—The king and his remaining forces endeavoured to escape by some private gate, which the enemy had not observed, or did not guard: but his attendants were dispersed and he was taken prisoner.

V. 6, 7. Nebuchadnezzar, having placed Zedekiah on the throne, and made him engage to be faithful to him, tried and condemned him as a traitor in the presence of his ministers and counsellors: and having slain his children before him, as the last sight he should behold, and which might ever after haunt his affrighted imagination, he put out his eyes, and sent him in chains to Babylon. Here he ended his life, probably not long after; for we read no more of him. (Marg. Ref.)

VOL. II.—No. 10.

V. 8—10. Nebuzar-adan seems to have arrived at Jerusalem on the seventh day of the month, but he began to execute his commission on the tenth. (Jer. lii. 12.) The king of Babylon, enraged at the long and obstinate defence which the Jews had made, determined that this city should be no more inhabited, to cause him or his successors so much trouble and expense in future. He therefore gave orders to level the city with the ground, without sparing even the temple, either for its sanctity, antiquity, or magnificence. Thus he performed the words both of the later prophets, and likewise the predictions of Moses. This is computed to have been four hundred and twenty-four years, from the time when Solomon laid the foundations of the temple. Josephus informs us that the second temple was destroyed by the Romans on the same day of the same month. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 16. Without weight. The quantity of brass was so great, that its weight was not ascertained: (Notes, 1 Kings vii.) It is not known what became of the ark at this time: but it was not afterwards found.

of the land that were found in the city:

20 And Nebuzar-adan captain of the guard took these, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah.

Jer. lii. 27.

21 And the king of Babylon ¹ smote them, and slew them at Riblah in the land of Hamath. ² So Judah was carried away out of their land.

k xvii. 20. xxiii. 27. Lev. xxvi. 33-35. Deut. iv. 26. xxviii. 36-64. Jer. xxiv. 9, 10. xxv. 9-11. Am. v. 27. 1 Jer. xl. 5-9.

22 ¶ And as for ¹ the people that remained in the land of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had left, even over them he made ² Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, ruler.

2 Jer. xxxix. 14.

23 And when all the captains of the armies, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah governor, there came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, even Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan the son of Careah, and Seriah the son Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaanaziah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men.

2 Sam. xiv. 11. xix. 23.

24 And Gedaliah ¹ sware to them, and to their men, and said unto them, Fear not to be the servants of the Chaldees: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

25 But it came to pass ^o in the seventh month, that ^p Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed ^q royal, came, and ten men with him, and smote Gedaliah, that he died, and the Jews and the Chaldees that were with him at Mizpah.

o Zech. vii. 5. viii. 19. p Jer. xl. 1-4.

q Heb. of the kingdom. xl. 1.

26 And all the people, both small and great, and the captains of the armies, arose, and ¹ came to Egypt: for they were afraid of the Chaldees.

q Jer. xli. 17, 18. xlii. 14. xliii. 1-7.

27 ¶ And ¹ it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach ² king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, did ³ lift up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah out of prison;

r Jer. lii. 21-24.

28 And he spake. [†] kindly to him, and set his throne above ^u the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon;

† Heb. good thing; with him. u Jer. xxvii. 6-11. Dan. ii. 27. v. 18, 19.

29 And ² changed his prison-garments: and ^v he did eat bread continually before him all the days of his life.

x xxxiv. 12. Gen. xli. 14. 42. Esth. iv. 4. viii. 15. 19. lxi. 3. Zech. iiii. 4. y 2 Sam. ix. 7.

V. 19—21. Seven men are mentioned in the parallel passage by Jeremiah: but perhaps five were of superior rank to the others; or were more distinguished as the favourites and counsellors of Zedekiah. All these persons were put to death as accessories to his rebellion.

V. 22—26. (Notes, Jer. xxxix.—xliii.) Nebuchadnezzar intended to preserve some inhabitants in the land; but it was the Lord's purpose that it should be desolated.—Ishmael, being of the royal family, could not endure to see any shadow of authority possessed by another, while he was excluded; and therefore he murdered Gedaliah, who seems to have been a wise and good man. His father Ahikam had been Jeremiah's protector; and the prophet had by choice joined his company.—After this event the Jews, rejecting the word of the Lord by Jeremiah, fled into Egypt, for fear of the resentment of the king of Babylon; and there they either miserably perished, or were lost among the natives: and thus God performed his purpose and predictions of desolating the country, contrary to the intentions of the instruments which he had hitherto employed. The small numbers, mentioned in all the accounts of these events, lead the mind to a melancholy reflection on the multitudes which must have perished, and been driven into other lands, by the distresses of the Jews, previous to this catastrophe. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 27—30. It is related, that Nebuchadnezzar, after his recovery from the miraculous insanity he had endured, committed his son to prison for mal-administration during ¹ period; and that there he contracted an acquaintance with Jehoiachin. Many captive or tributary kings abode at Babylon, but Jehoiachin was treated with greater kindness and respect than any of them, either out of personal affection, or from regard to the ancient race of the kings of Judah. As Evil-merodach reigned but two years; it is probable Jehoiachin did not live long after this.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—21.

If repeated warnings and afflictions leave the sinner's heart more obdurate, it is an evidence that his ruin is at hand. (Prov. xxix. 1.) Those advantages, which inspire confidence in the ways of wickedness, will eventually aggravate the possessor's misery: for no power can resist, no craftiness can elude, those whom God appoints to be the executioners of his vengeance. If rebellion against earthly princes deserve such severe penalties as by common consent have, in all ages and nations, been inflicted upon those who were guilty of that crime; who can estimate what or how much punishment is due to rebellion against our Creator, Benefactor, and Sovereign?—Precious as our eyes are to us, they may possibly be reserved to witness such scenes, as may make us wish, they had been previously closed in darkness or in death. But surely no sight can be so distressing, as the misery of our children, when occasioned by our own misconduct.—God over-rules, and imperceptibly guides, the resentment of men, to execute his righteous purposes for his own glory. In the day of his indigna-

30 And his allowance was a conti- daily rate for every day, all the days of nual allowance given him of the king, ^{2a} his life.

nation he utterly disregards populous cities, magnificent palaces, and fertile countries : nay, he permits his avowed enemies to destroy his sanctuaries, to prevent the administration of his ordinances, and even to extinguish the very light of his Gospel, in those places where these inestimable advantages have long been despised, neglected, and abused. But he will still preserve his true religion, though perhaps among the poor and despised alone. As the Lord "spared not the angels, that sinned;" as he hath doomed the whole race of fallen men to the grave, and all unbelievers to hell; and as "he spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all:" we need not wonder at any desolation or miseries, which for sin he may see good to bring upon guilty nations and churches.

V. 22—30.

The secret working of God's providence disappoints the politic or humane purposes of his instruments, to spare those that he intends to destroy: and while some are left to their vile passions, and others to their groundless fears and infatuated devices, "his counsel shall stand, and he will do all his pleasure."—No state of misery on earth can be called absolutely hopeless or comfortless. In hell alone this blackness of darkness is to be found for ever.—During our most dismal and tedious nights of adversity, we may hope for the cheerful dawning of prosperous days; especially if our afflictions lead us to repentance: for God hath all hearts in his hands, and, as he sees good, can incline them to kindness. The believer in this world is, as it were, imprisoned with sins, temptations, and tribulations, sometimes for many a tedious year: but death, as the servant of Jesus Christ, comes for his enlargement.—Then, the prison-door is opened, his fetters are loosed, his prison-garments changed for robes of salvation and glory: his head is lifted up, and his throne advanced above the chief of the kings of the earth; and he shall be eternally feasted upon the fulness of joy, which is to be found in the presence and favour of the Almighty. Indeed, even here, the Saviour brings to the trembling, distressed, and enslaved sinner, that comes and trusts in him, a blessed release from condemnation and bondage: he bestows on him liberty, change of raiment, royal immunities, and heavenly provisions, day by day; and these are intended as earnest and foretastes of those pleasures, which are at his right hand for evermore. In short, sin alone can hurt us, and Jesus alone can do good to sinners. May God help us to believe; and to wait, in patient hope, for the blessed season, when, being made more than conquerors by his grace, we shall "sit down with the Saviour upon his throne, even as he hath overcome, and hath sat down with the Father upon his throne!"

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE CHRONICLES.

It is generally agreed that the books of the Chronicles were compiled by Ezra, after the Babylonish captivity; and that they consist of extracts from the public records of the Jews, and the writings of preceding prophets. Some passages appear to have been inserted in the very words of the original record, which was penned before the captivity; and a few names seem to have been added to the genealogies, after the death of Ezra. The original name is, The words of days, which signifies journals, or annals; and it is not improperly rendered the chronicles, or records of the times. Anciently, the whole formed but one book in the Hebrew Bible: but the Septuagint divides it into two, and calls them The Books of things which had been left out: but this is less proper than the original name; for there are many repetitions of facts before recorded, as well as further historical information. These repetitions however, must not be deemed superfluous; for most of them in some degree, and some of them exceedingly, elucidate the preceding history: and the few, that seem not wanted in this respect, are suited to connect the whole into one narration, without referring to other books; which would be peculiarly useful, when copies of the whole Scriptures were both scarce and expensive. In the genealogies there are several literal or verbal variations, from those found in other parts of Scripture; but it is evident that many persons had more than one name, and were called by one or another indiscriminately; and the spelling and pronunciation, in most languages, change considerably in a course of years. Some variations in the numerals have already been noted; and we are sometimes constrained to allow, that, probably, a trivial error of the transcriber had taken place: but there is no variation which in the least interferes with our faith or practice, or weakens the external or internal evidence of the divine inspiration of the Scripture in general, or of these books in particular.—It was evidently one design of the sacred writer, in these records, to bring into one view, and comprise in a narrow compass, whatever immediately related to the nation of Israel, to each of the twelve tribes, and to the family of David, with reference to the settlement in the land after the captivity; and to ascertain the descent of the promised Messiah; and in both these respects, the genealogies would be very useful. Until Christ came, all the genealogies of that nation were preserved correct and authentic: but since that period, they have none that can be depended on. The types were then fulfilled in the great Antitype; the kingdom and priesthood were permanently united in his person; and the nation soon forfeited their peculiar temporal advantages, by rejecting their king: and so their genealogies were no further needful, and were left to be involved in oblivion and uncertainty.—Many things might be very plain and useful to the ancient Jews, which appear obscure and uninteresting to us: if any part of the Scripture were profitable to the church only in some ages, and places, and not at all to others, it would be no impeachment of the divine wisdom and goodness: and if we could not understand, or get any benefit from, certain portions, it would be more reasonable to blame our own dulness, than so much as in thought to censure them as useless.—The first book commences with genealogies from Adam, till long after the captivity; many of which are collected from other parts of Scripture. The advancement of David to the throne, upon Saul's death, is next related: and a much fuller account is given of his internal government of the kingdom; especially, in the regulation of the priests and Levites, in the service of the sanctuary; in the preparation that he made for the building of the temple; and in the exhortations to Solomon his successor and to the elders of Israel, with which he closed his days. And the sacred writer seems to have dwelt on these subjects the more fully, in order to stir up a holy emulation in his contemporaries, in restoring the worship at the temple to its ancient order and purity. So that in this book the man after God's own heart shines much brighter, than in the second book of Samuel, and the beginning of the first of Kings.—The genealogies, given by St. Matthew and St. Luke, may be supposed to refer in many respects to those in this book. And when it is said that Zacharias was “of the course of Abia,” the reference is still more indisputable. (xxiv. 10. Luke i. 5.)—The prophecies contained in it coincide indeed with those in the second of Samuel and in the Psalms; and therefore cannot be adduced as full proofs of its divine inspiration: but the sentiments which pervade it are perfectly scriptural; and we are sure it formed a part of the Jewish Scriptures, when our Saviour and his apostles appealed to them, as “The oracles of God.”

CHAP. I.

The genealogy from Adam to Noah and his sons, 1—4. The sons of Japheth, 5—7. Of Ham, 8—16. Of Shem, 17—23. A genealogy from Shem to Abraham and his sons, 24—28. The sons of Ishmael, 29—31. And of Keturah, 32, 33. The posterity of Abraham by Esau, 34—37. The sons of Seir, 38—42. The kings and dukes of Edom, 43—54.

A DAM, ^a Sheth, ^b Enosh, ^c 2 ^c Kenan, ^d Mahalaleel, ^e Jered, ^f 3 ^f Henoch, ^g Methuselah, ^h Lamech, ⁱ 4 ⁱ Noah, ^k Shem, Ham, and Japheth. ^j 5 ¶ The sons of ^j Japheth; Gomer, and Migog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras. ^k 6 And the sons of Gomer; ^m Ashchenaz, and ⁿ Riphath, and Togarmah. ^l 7 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and ^o Tarshish, ^p Kittim, and ^q Dodanim. ^m 8 ¶ The ^p sons of Ham; Cush, and Mizraim, ^r Put, and Canaan. ⁿ 9 And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabta, and Raamah, and Sabtecha. And the sons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

10 And ^r Cush begat Nimrod; he began to be mighty upon the earth.

11 And ^s Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtulin, 12 And Pathrusim, and Casluhim, (of whom came the Philistines,) and Caphthorim.

13 And ^t Canaan begat Zidon his first-born, and ^u Heth,

14 The ^v Jebusite also, and ^w the Amorite, and ^x the Girgashite,

15 And ^y the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite,

16 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the ^z Hamathite.

17 ¶ The ^d sons of Shem; ^e Elam, and ^f Ashur, and Arphaxad, and ^g Lud, and ^h Aram, and Uz, and Hul, and Gether, and ⁱ Meshech.

18 And Arphaxad begat ^k Shelah, and Shelah begat Eber.

19 And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of the one was ^l Peleg, (because in his days the earth was divided,) and his brother's name was Joktan.

20 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and ^m Hazermaveth, and Jerah, 21 Hadoram also, and Uzal, and Diklah,

22 And ⁿ Ebal, and Abimael, and Sheba,

23 And ^o Ophir, and ^p Havilah, and Jobab. All these were the sons of Joktan.

24 ¶ ^q Shem, Arphaxad, ^r Shelah, ^s 25 ^r Eber, ^t Peleg, ^u Reu, 26 ^v Serug, ^w Nahor, ^x Terah, ^y 27 ^z Abram, the same is Abraham.

28 ¶ The sons of Abraham; ^a Isaac, and ^b Ishmael.

29 ¶ These are their generations: ^c The first-born of Ishmael, ^d Nebaioth; then ^e Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam,

30 Mishma, and Dumah, Massa, ^f Hadad, and Tema,

31 Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah. These are the sons of Ishmael.

32 ¶ Now ^g the sons of Keturah, Abraham's concubine: she bare Zimran, and Jockshan, and Medan, and ^h Midian, and Ishbak, and Shua. And the sons of Jokshan; ⁱ Sheba, and ^j Dedan.

33 And the sons of Midian; ^k Ephah, and Ephraim, and Henoch, and Abida, and Eldaah. All these are the sons of Keturah.

34 ¶ And ^l Abraham begat Isaac. ^m The sons of Isaac; Esau, and ⁿ Israel.

35 The sons of Esau; ^o Eliphaz,

^a Gen. iv. 25, 26.
^v 3. 8. Luke
iii. 38. Seth.
^b Gen. v. 9—11.
Luke iii. 38.
Enos.
^c Gen. v. 12—14.
Luke iii. 37.
Cainan.
^d Gen. v. 15—17.
^e Gen. v. 18—20.
Luke iii. 37.
Jared.
^f Gen. v. 21—24.
Heb. xi. 5. Jude
14. Enoch.
^g Gen. v. 25—27.
Methuselah.
Luke iii. 37.
Methusala.
^h Gen. v. 28—31.
B. C. 2348.
ⁱ Gen. v. 32. Ez.
xiv. 14. Matt.
xxiv. 37. 38.
Luke iii. 36. Noe.
Heb. xi. 7.
^j 2 Pet. ii. 5.
^k Gen. vi. 10.
^l Gen. x. 1—5.
Ez. xxvii. 13.
xxviii. 2, 3, 6.
xxxix. 1.
^m Gen. x. 3.
Ashkenaz.
ⁿ Or, Diphath.
^o Ps. lxxii. 10.
Is. lxvi. 19.
^p Num. xxiv. 24.
Ez. xxvii. 6.
Chittim.
^q Or, Rodanim.
^r Gen. x. 6, 7.
^s Gen. x. 6. Phut.
^t Gen. x. 8—12.
^u Gen. x. 13, 14.
^v Deut. ii. 23.
Jer. xlvii. 4.
Am. ix. 7.
^w Gen. ix. 22, 25.
26. x. 15—19.
^x Gen. xxxiii. 3, 5.
20. xxvii. 46.
xlix. 30—32.
Ex. xxiii. 28.
Josh. ix. 1, 2.
Sam. xi. 6.
^y Gen. xv. 21.
Ex. xxxiii. 2.
xxxiv. 11. Judge.
i. 21. xxi. 11.
2 Sam. xxiv. 16.
Zech. ix. 7.
^z Gen. xlviii. 22.
Num. xxi. 21—
22. Deut. xx.
17. Josh. iii. 10.
xxiv. 15. 2 Sam.
xxi. 2. 2 Kings
xxi. 11. Am.
ii. 9.
^a Gen. xv. 21.
Deut. vii. 1.
Josh. iii. 10.
Neh. ix. 8.
^b Ex. iii. 8. 17.
xiii. 5. 1 Kings
ix. 20.
^c Num. xxxiv. 8.
1 Kings viii. 65.

^d Gen. x. 22—32.
xi. 10.
^e Gen. xiv. 1. Is.
xi. 11. xxi. 2.
xxii. 6. Jer.
xxv. 25. Ez.
xxii. 24. Dan.
viii. 2.
^f Num. xxiv. 22.
—24. Ezra iv. 2.
Ps. lxxxi. 8.
Ez. xxvii. 23.
xxii. 22. Hos.
xiv. 3.
B. C. 2247.
^g Is. lxvi. 10. Ez.
xxvii. 10.
^h Num. xxiii. 7.
ⁱ Gen. x. 23.
Mash.
^k Gen. x. 24. xi.
13—15. Salah.
^l Division. Gen.
x. 25. xi. 16, 17.
^m Gen. x. 26. Hazarmaveth.
ⁿ Gen. x. 28.
Obal.
^o 1 Kings ix. 28.
x. 11. 1 Chr.
xxix. 4. Job.
xxii. 24. Ps.
xiv. 9. Is. xlii.
12.
^p Gen. ii. 11.
^q Gen. xi. 10—26.
^r Luke iii. 35.
Sala.
^s Luke iii. 35.
Heber.
^t Luke iii. 35.
Phalec.
^u Luke iii. 35.
Ragau.
^v Luke iii. 35.
Saruch.
^w Luke iii. 34.
Nahor.
^x Luke iii. 34.
Thara.
^y Gen. xi. 27—
32. xvii. 5. Josh.
xxiv. 2. Neh.
ix. 7.
^a Gen. xvii. 19—
21. xxi. 3—5.
^b Gen. xvi. 11—
16. xxi. 9, 10.
^c Gen. xxv. 12—
15.
^d Gen. xxviii. 9.
Is. lx. 7.
^e Ps. cxx. 5.
Cant. i. 5. Is.
xxi. 16.
^f Or, Hadar.
^g Gen. xxv. 1—4.
B. C. 1853.
^h Gen. xxxvii. 28.
Ex. ii. 15, 16.
Num. xxi. 4. 7.
xxv. 6. xxi. 2.
Judge vi. 1—6.
ⁱ 1 Kings x. 1.
Job vi. 19. Ps.
lxxii. 10. 15. Is.
lx. 6.
^j Is. xxi. 13. Jer.
xxv. 23. xlix.
8. Ez. xiv. 13.
xxvii. 20.
^k Is. lx. 6.
^l Gen. xxi. 2, 3.
Matt. i. 2. Luke
iii. 34. Acts. i. 8.
^m Gen. xxv. 24—
28. Mal. i. 2—4.
Rom. ix. 10—13.
ⁿ Gen. xxxii. 28.
^o Gen. xxxvi. 4.
5. 9, 10.

NOTES.

CHAP. I. V. 1—4. This chapter consists wholly of extracts and abridgments of genealogies from the book of Genesis: though several names are spelt differently, and some are changed. (Marg. Ref.) The original of Israel, and indeed of the whole human race, is in these verses derived from the first man, whom God created; and this rational account may be considered as an intended refutation of all the fabulous, obscure, and absurd pretensions, advanced, in this respect, by many pagan nations.

V. 5—23. (Notes, Gen. x.) This short review of the peopling of the earth by the sons of Noah might be intended to intimate, that we are all of one blood and nature, though of different families.

V. 24—27. (Notes, Gen. xi. 10—32.)

Reuel, and Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

^p 53. Gen. xxxvi.

11-15.

^q Gen. xxxvi. 15.

^{Zepho.}

36 The sons of Eliphaz; ^p Teman, and Omar, ^q Zephi, and Gatam, Kenaz, and Timna, and Amalek.

37 The sons of Reuel; Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.

^r Gen. xxxvi. 20.

29, 30.

38 ¶ And ^r the sons of Seir; Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, and Dishon, and ^s Ezar, and Dishan.

^s Gen. xxxvi. 21.

^{Ezer.}

39 And the sons of Lotan; Hori, and ^t Gen. xxxvi. 22.

^{Heman.}

^t Homam: and Timna was Lotan's sister.

^u Gen. xxxvi. 23.

^{Alvan-Shepho.}

40 The sons of Shobal; ^u Alian, and Manahath, and Ebal, Shephi, and Onam.

^x Gen. xxxvi.

24. ^{Aiah.}

And the sons of Zibeon; ^x Aiah, and Anah.

^y Gen. xxxvi.

25.

^z Gen. xxxvi. 26.

^{Hemdan.}

41 The sons of Anah; ^y Dishon. And the sons of Dishon; ^z Amram, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran.

42 The sons of Ezer; Bilhan, and ^a Zavan, and Jakan. ^b The sons of Dishan, Uz; and Aran.

^a Gen. xxxvi. 27.

^{Zaavan. — A-}

^{chan.}

^b Gen. xxxvi. 28.

^{Gen. xxxvi. 31}

^{— 29.}

43 ¶ Now these are ^c the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before any king reigned over the children of Israel; Bela the son of Beor; and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

44 And when Bela was dead, Jobab the son of Zerah of ^d Bozrah reigned in his stead.

^d Is. xxxiv. 6.

^{Isai. 1.}

45 And when Jobab was dead, Husham of the land of the Temanites reigned in his stead.

46 And when Husham was dead, Hadad the son of Bedad, which smote Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Avith.

47 And when Hadad was dead, Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.

48 And when Samlah was dead, ^e Shaul of Rehoboth by the river reigned in his stead.

^e Gen. xxxvi. 32.

^{Saul.}

49 And when Shaul was dead, Baalhanan the son of Achbor reigned in his stead.

50 And when Baalhanan was dead, Hadad reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was ^f Pai; and his wife's name was Mehetabel the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.

^f Gen. xxxvi. 35.

^{Pau.}

51 Hadad died also. And the dukes of Edom were; Duke Timnah, duke ^g Aliah, duke Jetheth, ^g Gen. xxxvi. 40.

^{Alvah.}

52 Duke Aholibamah, duke Elah, duke Pinon,

53 Duke Kenaz, duke Teman, duke Mibzar,

54 Duke Magdiel, duke Iram. ^h These are the dukes of Edom.

^h Gen. xxxvi. 41.

^{— 43.}

V. 36. Timna was concubine to Eliphaz, and mother of Amalek, (Gen. xxxvi. 12.) The words here, therefore, seem to mean, Of Timna, Amalek. (39.)

V. 54. (Notes, Gen. xxxvi.) When the sacred historian had given the genealogy of Abraham, the father of the faithful; he briefly mentions Abraham's descendants by Ishmael, by Keturah, and by Esau, with some coincident matters: but he speedily leaves these subjects, to confine himself to the chosen people of God, and the line of the Saviour; in comparison with whom, the nations most renowned for arts or arms, seem entirely disregarded.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

As we are descended from that "one man by whom sin and death entered into the world;" so we all resemble and imitate him: and this should remind us how vile and frail we are: and excite us to repent, to value the Saviour, to despair of happiness in this miserable world, to seek those things which are above, and habitually to prepare to meet death, who is to all unbelievers, "the king of terrors." For, as an invincible conqueror, he has already transmitted the bodies of innumerable millions to the grave, and their souls to the tribunal of God and to the eternal world; and is even now ready to deal with us in like manner. But whilst we are spared, we should regard every human being as a brother, a fellow-sinner, and a fellow-sufferer, without respect to climate, complexion, party, character, or even personal injuries: and, with expanded benevolence and compassion, we should aim to alleviate misery, to increase comfort, to promote peace, and to be instrumental to the salvation of men; by our example, prayers, and the improvement of our several talents. Short is our passage through time into eternity! we are no sooner born, than we begin to die: and all earthly distinctions will speedily be reduced to a level, as the rough weed, the green blade, and the gaudy flower, fall before the indiscriminating scythe! May we then be distinguished as the Lord's people, who are his portion, and whom he delighteth to honour and bless. The inconceivable multitudes of the human race, which have peopled, or shall people, the earth through successive generations, will ere long assemble before the judgment seat of Christ, and be divided as easily, and as certainly, "as the shepherd divideth the sheep from the goats:" then the wicked "shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal." May we then, so "look for these things, as to give diligence that we may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless!"

CHAP. II.

The sons of Israel, 1, 2. Of Judah, 3—12. Of Jesse, 13—17. Of Caleb the son of Hezron, 18—20. Of Hezron by the daughter of Machir, 21—24. Of Jerahmeel Hezron's son, 25—33. The posterity of Sheshan, by his daughter, 34—41. Another branch of Caleb's posterity, 42—49. The sons of Caleb, the sons of Hur, 50—54. The families of the Kenites, 55.

* Gen. Jacob. Gen. xxxii. 28 xlix. 2. b Gen. xxix. 32—35. xxx. 5—24. xxxv. 18. 22—26. xli. 8, &c. Ex. i. 2—4.

c Gen. xxxviii. 2—10. xli. 12. Num. xxvi. 19.

d Josh. xxxviii. 2—30. Matt. i. 1. Tamar. Num. xxvii. 21. Ruth. iv. 18. Matt. i. 3. Luke iii. 33. Pharez. Num. xxvi. 20. Matt. i. 3. Zarah. Gen. xli. 12. Num. xxvi. 21. Matt. i. 3. Luke iii. 33. Esrom. Josh. vii. 1. 17. 18. Zabdi. 1 Kings iv. 31. Dara. xiv. 1. Josh. vii. 1. Achan. Josh. vi. 18.

THESE are the sons of * Israel; ^b Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun,

2 Dan, Joseph, and Benjamin; Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

3 The sons of Judah; ^c Er, and Onan, and Shelah: which three were born unto him of the daughter of Shua the Canaanitess. And Er the first-born of Judah was evil in the sight of the LORD, and he slew him.

4 And ^d Tamar his daughter-in-law bare him ^e Pharez and ^f Zerah. All the sons of Judah were five.

5 The sons of Pharez; ^g Hezron, and Hamul.

6 And the sons of Zerah; ^h Zimri, and Ethan, and Heman, and Calcol, and ⁱ Dara: five of them in all.

7 And the sons of ^k Carmi; ^l Achar the troubler of Israel, who transgressed in the thing ^m accursed.

8 And the sons of Ethan; Azariah.

9 The sons also of Hezron, that were born unto him; Jerahmeel, and ⁿ Ram, and ^o Chelubai.

10 And Ram begat ^p Amminadab, and Amminadab begat ^q Nahshon, prince of the children of Judah;

11 And Nahshon begat ^r Salma, and Salma begat Boaz, 12 And Boaz Begat Obed, and Obed begat ^s Jesse.

13 ¶ And Jesse begat ^t his first-born ^u Eliab, and Abinadab the second, and ^x Shimma the third,

14 Nathaneel the fourth, Raddai the fifth,

15 Ozem the sixth, David the seventh:

16 Whose sisters were Zeruiab, and Abigail. And ^y the sons of Zeruiab; Abishai, and Joab, and Asabel, three.

17 And Abigail bare ^z Amasa: and the father of Amasa was ^a Jether the Ishmaelite.

18 ¶ And ^b Caleb the son of Hezron begat children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth: her sons are these; Jeshur, and Shobab, and Ardon.

19 And when Azubah was dead, Caleb took unto him ^c Ephrath, which bare him Hur.

20 And Hur begat Uri, and Uri begat ^d Bazaleel.

21 And afterwards Hezron went in to the daughter of ^e Machir, the father of Gilead, whom he ^f married when he was threescore years old, and she bare him Segub.

22 And Segub begat ^g Jair, who had three and twenty cities in the land of Gilead.

n Ruth iv. 19. Matt. i. 3. Luke iii. 33. Aram. o 18. 42. Caleb. p Ruth iv. 20. Matt. i. 4. Luke iii. 33. Amminadab. q Num. i. 7. ii. 3. vii. 12. Ruth iv. 20. Matt. i. 4. Luke iii. 32. Naasson. r Ruth iv. 21. Matt. i. 4. Luke iii. 32. Salmon. s Ruth iv. 22. 1 Sam. xvi. 1. Is. xi. 1. 10. Matt. i. 5. Luke iii. 32. t 1 Sam. xvi. 6. xvii. 13. 28. B. C. 1090. u xxvii. 18. Eithu. xx 7 Shimca. 1 Sam. xvi. 9. Shammah.

y 1 Sam. xxvi. 6. 2 Sam. iii. 18. xvi. 10. xix. 22.

z 2 Sam. xx. 4—10. 2 Sam. xvii. 25. Ithra an Israelite.

B. C. 1475
b 3.

c 50. Ephrath.

d Ex. xxxi. 9. xxxviii. 22.

e Num. xxvi. 29. xxvii. 1.

* Heb. took.

f Num. xxxli. 41. Deut. iii. 14. Josh. xiii. 30.

NOTES.

CHAP. II. V. 3, 4. (Notes, Gen. xxxviii.)

V. 6. It is uncertain, whether Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara, the sons of Mahol, of whom we read in Kings, were remote and eminent descendants of Zerah; or whether different persons, bearing nearly the same names, are there intended. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 7. Achan, who sinned in the accursed thing, is here called Achar, or the troubler; with reference to Joshua's words to him. (Marg. Ref.) The genealogies of Judah are very copious: because David the progenitor of the Messiah was of that tribe; and the whole nation of the Jews is composed of such as either descended from Judah, or incorporated with them that did.

V. 8. Sons here signifies descendants, who might be numerous, though but one son is mentioned.

V. 15. Jesse had eight sons; but it is probable, that one died before David came to the throne. (1 Sam. xvi. 10, 11.)

V. 17. Jether is generally supposed to have been an Ishmaelite by birth, but an Israelite by religion.

V. 18. It is not probable, that this Caleb or Chelubai, was the same with Caleb the son of Jephunneh, whose posterity is afterwards mentioned: (iv. 15.)

V. 20. Caleb, the father of Hur, must have lived before Israel left Egypt; as Bezaleel, who was the principal person employed in constructing the tabernacle, seems to have been his grandson. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 21. The father of Gilead means the prince of Gilead, or the father of a large proportion of the inhabitants. The term occurs frequently in this sense, throughout the subsequent genealogies; as the reader will readily perceive by consulting the marginal references.

g Josh. xlii. 13.

23 And he took ^s Geshur, and Aram, with the towns of Jair, from them, with Kenath and the towns thereof, even three-score cities: all these belonged to the sons of Machir the father of Gilead.

h 1 Sam. xxx. 14.

i iv. 5.

k Sam. xiv

24 And after that Hezron was dead in Caleb-ephraiah, then Abiah, Hezron's wife, bare him ⁱ Ashur, the father of ^k Tekoa.

25 ¶ And the sons of Jerahmeel, the first-born of Hezron, were Ram, the first born, and Bunah, and Oren, and Ozem, and Abijah.

26 Jerahmeel had also another wife, whose name was Atarah, she was the mother of Onam.

27 And the sons of Ram, the first-born of Jerahmeel, were Maas and Jamin, and Eker.

28 And the sons of Onam were Shammai, and Jada. And the sons of Shammai; Nadab, and Abishur.

29 And the name of the wife of Abishur was Abihail, and she bare him Ahban, and Molid.

30 And the sons of Nadab; Seled, and Appaim: but Seled died without children.

l 34, 36.

31 And the sons of Appaim; Ishi. And the sons of Ishi; Sheshan. And ^l the children of Sheshan, Ahlai.

32 And the sons of Jada, the brother of Shammai; Jethur, and Jonathan: and Jethur died without children.

33 And the sons of Jonathan; Peleth, and Zaza. These were the sons of Jerahmeel.

34 ¶ Now Sheshan had no sons, but daughters: and Sheshan had a servant, an Egyptian, whose name was Jarha.

35 And Sheshan gave his ^m daughter to Jarha his servant to wife, and she bare him Attai.

36 And Attai begat Nathan, and Nathan begat ⁿ Zabad, n xi. 41.

37 And Zabad begat Ephlal, and Ephlal begat Obed,

38 And Obed begat Jehu, and Jehu begat Azariah,

39 And Azariah begat Helez, and Helez begat Eleasah.

40 And Eleasah begat Sisamai, and Sisamai begat Shallum, 41 And Shallum begat Jekamiah, and Jekamiah begat Elishama.

o 9. Chelubai.

42 ¶ Now the sons of ^o Caleb, the brother of Jerahmeel, were Mesha ^p his first-born, which was the father of ^q Ziph: and the sons of Mareshah, the father of Hebron.

p Gen. xlix. 5.
Ex. iv. 22, 23.
Rem. viii. 29.
Heb. xii. 23.
q Josh. xv. 24.
1 Sam. xxiii. 19.

43 And the sons of Hebron; Korah, and Tappuah, and Rekem, and Shema.

44 And Shema begat Raham, the father of Jorkoam; and Rekem begat Shammai.

45 And the son of Shammai was Maon: and Maon was the father of ^r Beth-zur.

r Josh. xv. 59.

46 And Ephah, Caleb's concubine, bare Haran, and Moza, and Gazez: and Haran begat Gazez.

47 And the sons of Jahdai; Regem, and Jotham, and Geshan, and Pelet, and Ephah, and Shaaph.

s Gen. xxv. 5, 6

48 Maachah, Caleb's ^s concubine, bare Sheber, and Tirhanah.

49 She bare also Shaaph the father of ^t Madmannah, Sheva the father of Machbenah, and the father of Gibeaz: and the daughter of Caleb was ^u Achsa.

t Josh. xv. 31, Is. x. 31.

u Josh. xv. 17.

V. 22. Jair was descended by his father from Judah, and properly belonged to that tribe: but Hezron, his grandfather, having several wives and children, married a wife of the tribe of Manasseh; and Jair, as descended from her, united himself to that tribe, and at length inherited among them. (Num. xxxii. 41.)

V. 23. Jair seems to have taken by conquest Geshur, Aram, and some other places, from those who before possessed them.

V. 24. Ashur was the posthumous son of Hezron: but he became a man of consequence; and his descendants principally peopled, or ruled over Tekoa. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 34, 35. It does not appear that Sheshan had more than one daughter, whom he gave in marriage to his servant an Egyptian; who, it is probable, was a proselyte to the true religion, and had been faithful to him. But as a numerous progeny might spring from this one daughter, the plural number is used, as it was before observed to be in the case of sons.

V. 42. This Caleb, being the brother of Jerahmeel, was the same person of whom we read before. (18. 24.) His children by Azubah, and by Ephrath, had been enumerated: (18—20:) so that "Mesha, his first-born, seems to have been born to him by another wife, whom he married before either Azubah, or Ephrath. The Jews, when they returned from the captivity, were principally of the tribe of Judah: and so these genealogies might be exceedingly useful to them." No doubt they were extracted from ancient public records of allowed authenticity.

50 ¶ These were the sons of Caleb the son of Hur, the first-born of ^a Ephratah; Shobal the father of ^b Kirjath-jearim, 51 Salma the father of ^c Beth-lehem, Hareph the father of Beth-gader.

52 And Shobal the father of Kirjath-jearim had sons: ^d Haroeh, and ^e half of the Manahethites.

53 And the families of Kirjath-jearim; the ^f Ithrites, and the Puhites, and the Shumathites, and the Mishraites: of them came ^g the Zareathites, and the Eshtaulites.

54 The sons of Salma; ^h Beth-lehem, and the ⁱ Netophathites, ^j Ataroth, the house of Joab, and half of the Manahethites, the Zorites.

55 And the families of ^k the scribes which dwelt at ^l Jabez; the ^m Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and Suchathites. These are ⁿ the Kenites that came of Hemath, the father of the house of ^o Rechab.

CHAP. III.

The sons of David, 1—9. His line to Zedekiah, 10—16. The sons and successors of Jeconiah, 17—24.

V. 49. The cities, of which these persons are said to have been fathers, were all situated in Judah: and this confirms the preceding interpretation. (Note 21.) This Caleb had a daughter called Achsa, and so had Caleb the son of Jephunneh: yet it is not likely that the same person is meant. (Note 18.)

V. 50. Caleb, here spoken of, was the grandson of him before mentioned, and brother to Uri, the father of Bezaleel; probably, the same who erected the tabernacle. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 52, 53. The inhabitants of these cities consisted in general of Shobal's descendants; or they were the principal persons among them. This seems to be equivalent to the phrase, "the father of Ziph, of Beth-lehem," &c.

V. 54. The word, rendered the house of Joab, seems to be a proper name; Beth-joab: for a place, not family, is evidently meant.

V. 55. The Kenites, &c. It seems that some of the Kenites the posterity of Hobab incorporated with Judah, and became expert in writing, and eminent in their knowledge of the law of God.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

No length of time will expunge the guilt, or infamy, of those who do evil in the sight of the Lord, are troublers of his people, and die in their sins. But, as the Saviour was NOW these were ^a the sons of David, which were born unto him in Hebron; the first-born, ^b Amnon of ^c Abinoam the ^d Jezreelitess; the second ^e Daniel, ^f of Abigail the Carmelitess;

2 The third ^g Absalom the son of Maachab, the daughter of ^h Talmai king of Geshur; the fourth ⁱ Adonijah the son of Haggith;

3 The fifth Shephatiah, of Abital; the sixth Ithream, by ^j Eglah his wife.

4 These six were born unto him in Hebron; and ^k there he reigned seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years.

5 And these were born unto him in Jerusalem; ^l Shimea, and Shobab, and ^m Nathan, and ⁿ Solomon, four, of ^o Bathshua the daughter of ^p Ammiel:

6 Ithar also, and ^q Elishama, and ^r Eliphelet,

7 ^s And Nogah, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

8 And Elishama, and ^t Eliada, and ^u Eliphelet, nine.

9 These were all the sons of David, beside the sons ^v of the concubines, and ^w Tamar their sister.

pleased to assume human nature by descent through so many notorious transgressors, and thus to be made in the likeness of sinful flesh, as well as a sacrifice for sin, all manner of wickedness shall be purged away from those who believe in his name. Frequently the last become first, and the first last; and atrocious sinners have in every age been transformed into the most eminent believers. Difficulties, blemishes, and disgraces in the beginnings of life, or on the entrance of our undertakings, and remarkable blots in the origin of families, have often proved as foils to the lustre, success, or eminence, with which they were afterwards favoured. In the same wise, righteous, and merciful sovereignty, the Lord advances or depresses the branches of families, prospers or crosses our temporal pursuits, replenishes or diminishes our households, and renders them a comfort, or a trial to us. Submission to his will is our duty and wisdom: but it is the privilege of the true believer alone to maintain this happy frame of mind. In Christ, however, there is neither bond nor free, neither male nor female, neither Jew nor Gentile: all are equally welcome to his salvation who come to him; all are equally privileged, in proportion to their faith, love, and devotedness to him: and it is a peculiar favour for poor strangers to be made scribes well instructed in the kingdom of God, and to be fitted also for usefulness to others. In short, the whole that is truly valuable consists in the favour, peace, and image of God; and a life spent to his glory, in promoting the welfare of our fellow-creatures.

2 Kings xi. 43. xiv. 31. Matt. i. 7. Roboam.
 a 1 Kings xv. 1. Abijam. 2 Chr. xiii. 1. Abijah.
 b 1 Kings xv. 8. 2 Chr. xiv. 1.
 c 1 Kings xv. 34. 2 Chr. xvii. 1. Matt. i. 8. Josaphat.
 d 2 Kings iii. 1. 2 Chr. xxi. 1. Jehoram.
 e 2 Kings viii. 24. 2 Chr. xxi. 17. Jehoa-haz. xxii. 1. 6. Azariah.
 f 2 Kings xi. 21. 2 Chr. xxiv. 1.
 g 2 Kings xv. 1. 2 Chr. xxv. 1.
 h 2 Kings xiv. 21. 2 Chr. xxvi. 1. Joziah. Matt. i. 8, 9. Ozias.
 i 2 Kings xv. 5. 2 Chr. xxvii. 1. Matt. i. 9. Jotham.
 k 2 Kings xvi. 1. 2 Chr. xxviii. 1. —g. Matt. i. 9. Achaz.
 l 2 Kings xviii. 1. u 2 Chr. xxix. 1. Matt. i. 9. Ezekias.
 m 2 Kings xxi. 1. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 1. Matt. i. 10. Manasseh. —n 2 Kings xxi. 19. 2 Chr. xxxiii. 21. —o 2 Kings xxii. 1. 2 Chr. xxxiv. 1. Matt. i. 10, 11. Josias. —p 2 Kings xxxiii. 34. Eliakim. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 5. Jer. xxii. 18. —q 2 Kings xxiv. 17, 18. Mattaniah. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 11. —r 2 Kings xxiii. 30. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 1. Jehoa-haz. Jer. xxii. 11.
 s 2 Kings xxiv. 8. xxv. 27. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 9. Jehoiachin. Jer. xxii. 22. 28. Coniah. Matt. i. 11. Jechonias. —t 15. 2 Kings xxiv. 17. —u Ezra iii. 2. 8. v. 2. Shealtiel. Matt. i. 12.

10 ¶ And Solomon's son was ^a Rehoboam; ^b Abia his son, ^c Asa his son, ^d Jehoshaphat his son,

11 ^d Joram his son, ^e Ahaziah his son, ^f Joash his son,

12 ^e Amaziah his son, ^h Azariah his son, ⁱ Jotham his son,

13 ^k Ahaz his son, ^l Hezekiah his son, ^m Manasseh his son, 14 ⁿ Amon his son, ^o Josiah his son.

15 And the sons of Josiah were, the first-born Johanan, the second ^p Jehoiakim, the third ^q Zedekiah, the fourth ^r Shallum.

16 And the sons of Jehoiakim; ^s Jeconiah his son, ^t Zedekiah his son.

17 And the sons of Jeconiah, Assir; ^u Salathiel his son,

18 Malchiram also, and Pedaiah, and Shenazar, Jecamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah.

19 And the sons of Pedaiah were ^x Zerubbabel, and Shimei: and the sons of Zerubbabel; Meshullam, and Hananiah, and Shelomith their sister:

20 And Hashubah, and Obel, and Berechiah, and Hesadiah, Jushab-hesed, five.

21 And the sons of Hananiah; Pelatiah, and Jesaiah: the sons of Rephaiah, the sons of Arnon, the sons of Obadiah, the sons of Shechaniah.

22 And the sons of Shechaniah; She-maiah: and the sons of Shemaiah; ^y Hat-tush, and Igeal, and Bariah, and Neariah, and Shaphat, six.

23 And the sons of Neariah; Elioenai, and ^z Hezekiah, and Azrikam, three.

24 And the sons of Elioenai, were Hodaiah, and Eliashib, and Pelaiah, and Akkub, and Johanan, and Delaiah, and Anani, seven.

x Ezra ii. 2. iii. 2. Hag. i. 12—14. ii. 2. 4. Zech. iv. 6—9. Matt. i. 12, 13. Zerubbabel.

B. C. 430.
 y Ezra viii. 2.

* Or, Hiskijahu.

NOTES.

CHAP. III. V. 1—9. David's other sons by Bathshua, or Bath-sheba, are mentioned before Solomon, though younger than he, because the genealogy is resumed from him. Probably David called one of them Nathan, out of respect to the prophet of that name, whom he loved the better for his faithful reproof. Mary the mother of Jesus was descended from Nathan, not from Solomon. (Luke iii.) —The two sons, which are here mentioned more than in Samuel, probably died young: as there are two called Elishama, and two Eliphelet. (Marg. Ref.) It seems that David had children by his concubines, whose names are now where recorded.

V. 15. Johanan seems to have died young. Shallum is also called Jehoa-haz. He was older than Zedekiah, though mentioned after him.

V. 16. Zedekiah his son, &c. Perhaps Jeconiah had a son called Zedekiah, though not elsewhere named: or his successor, who was in fact his uncle, may be meant.

V. 17. Many commentators take it for granted, that Salathiel, or Shealtiel, actually descended from Nathan, and was only the adoptive son of Jeconiah; that Solomon's line was extinct, and that Joseph the husband of Mary sprang from Nathan as well as she. They ground this sentiment on these reasons. Jeremiah is supposed to have pronounced Jeconiah childless; but perhaps a satisfactory solution of that difficulty may in due time be adduced. — (Note, Jer. xxii. 30.) Luke mentions a Zerobabel, the son of Salathiel, in the genealogy of Mary: but it is scarcely the shadow of an argument to say, because a father and son were of the same name in one line as they were in another, therefore they were the same persons, when no other part of the genealogy supports, or can accord with, the conclusion. Matthew says, Jeconiah begat Salathiel, and it will be harsh to interpret this of mere adoption, or of less than being his progenitor: and here are several other sons or descendants of Jeconiah mentioned, who cannot all have been adopted. Upon the whole, it is highly probable that the line from Solomon to Joseph was uninterrupted; and that the two families met in Jesus, the real son of Mary, and the supposed and legal son of Joseph.

V. 19. Perhaps Pedaiah was Salathiel's son, Jeconiah's grandson, and Zerubbabel's father, but being of small note, his name is omitted in the genealogies; which is a common case. We know nothing but the names of the persons afterwards mentioned; but several of them must have lived a long time after the captivity. St. Matthew deduces the line of Joseph from a different branch of the same stock.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

In the large families of wise, eminent, and pious men, many persons prove too insignificant to attract our notice, and others so vicious as to excite our grief and indignation. They, therefore, who have no children, may hence learn submission to the will of God; for if, by that appointment, they are destitute of some comforts, they are also exempted from a variety of anxieties and trials. And they, to whom God hath given children, may learn to bring up their offspring for him to the best of their power, recommending them to his care and blessing: nor should they indulge the hope of much comfort from them, any more than seek great things for them in this vain and vexatious world. — Yet, upon the whole, the attentive and accurate observer will perceive, that the posterity of the righteous enjoy advantages, sometimes for many generations, in consequence of the piety of their progenitors: so that this is the best way of laying up an inheritance for our beloved offspring. Nothing more distinguishes the real believer from the slave of sin, than the manner in which each of

CHAP. IV.

The posterity of Judah, in the line of Hezron, Carmi, and Hur, 1—4. The posterity of Ashur, Hezron's son, 5—8. Jabez, and his prayer, 9, 10. Other descendants of Judah by Pharez, 11—20. The posterity of Shelah, Judah's son, 21—23. The sons of Simeon, and their cities, 24—38. They conquer Gedor, and the Amalekites, 39—43.

a Gen. xxxviii. 29. xlv. 12. Num. xxvi. 20. 21. Ruth iv. 18. Matt. i. 3. Luke iii. 33.—Phares Esrom.
b C. 1500.
c ii. 9. Chelubai. ii. 18. Caleb.
d ii. 52. Harosh.
e Josh. xv. 33. Judg. xiii. 25.

THE sons of Judah; ^a Pharez, Hezron, and ^b Carmi, and Hur, and Shobal. 2 And ^c Reaiah the son of Shobal begat Jahath, and Jahath begat Ahumai and Lahad. These are the families of the ^d Zorathites.

3 And these were of the father of ^e Etam; Jezreel, and Ishma, and Idbash: and the name of their sister was Hazeleponi.

4 And ^f Fael the father of ^g Gedor, and Ezer the father of Hushah. These are the sons of ^h Hur, the first-born of Ephratah, the father of Beth-lehem.

5 ¶ And ⁱ Ashur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah.

e Judg. xv. 11. 2 Chr. xi. 6.

f 18. 29. Josh. xv. 36.

g ii. 50.

h ii. 24.

them behaves towards their faithful reprovers; the former, upon reflection, will love and revere them as his best friends, the latter will habitually hate them as his enemies; (1 Kings xxi. 20. xxii. 8. Psalm cxli. 5.) But all our gratitude to the instruments of our mercies should be ultimately directed to the glory of God: and all the prosperity of ourselves and our families will eventually terminate in misery, unless it centre in union with the son of David, the king of Israel and the Saviour of sinners.

NOTES.

CHAP. IV. V. 1. Carmi seems to mean the same person before called Chalubai, and Caleb. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 2. The Zorathites were the inhabitants of Zorah, but in general descended from Shobal, or were subject to him. "The father of Etam," seems to imply, that the persons spoken of were the sons of one who was lord of Etam, and progenitor of its principal inhabitants. Hur appears to have been the grandfather of Salma, who before was called the father of Bethlehem. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 9, 10. We know nothing of the parentage or family of this remarkable person: but as he was eminent for wealth, valour, success, wisdom, or piety, the Jews might not want information concerning him. It is not, however, improbable, that he lived soon after Israel took possession of Canaan; and when they were greatly straitened by the remains of the ancient inhabitants. His mother having suffered much in her pregnancy or travail, called

6 And Naarah bare him Ahuzam, and Hephher, and Temeni, and Haahashtari. These were the sons of Naarah.

7 And the sons of Helah were Zereth, and Jezoar, and Ethnan,

8 And Coz begat Anub, and Zobebah, and the families of Aharhel the son of Harum.

9 ¶ And Jabez was ¹ more honourable than his brethren: and his mother called his name ^{*} Jabez, saying, Because ^k I bare him with sorrow.

10 And Jabez ^l called on ^m the God of Israel, saying, † Oh that thou wouldest ⁿ bless me indeed, and ^o enlarge my coast, and that thine hand might be with me, and that ^p thou wouldest ‡ keep me from evil, ^q that it may not grieve me! And ^r God granted him that which he requested.

11 ¶ And Chelub the brother of Shuah begat Mehir, which was the father of Eshton.

12 And Eshton begat Beth-rapha, and Paseah, and Tehinnah, the father of [†] Ir-nahash. These are the men of Rechab.

13 And the sons of Kenaz; ^s Othniel,

B. C. 1409.
i Gen. xxxiv. 16. Is. xliii. 4. Acts xvii. 11.
* Sorrowful.
k vii. 23. Gen. iii. 16. xxxv. 18. l Sam. iv. 21. m Ps. lv. 16. cxvi. 2-4. Jer. xxxiii. 3. Rom. x. 12-14. 1 Cor. i. 2. n Gen. xxxii. 28. xxxiii. 29. 1 Sam. i. 17. Is. xli. 17.
† If thou wilt, &c. n Gen. xii. 2. xxxii. 26. Ps. lxxii. 17. Acts iii. 26. Eph. i. 3. o Josh. xvii. 14-18. Judg. i. 27-36. Prov. x. 22. p Gen. xlviii. 16. Prov. xxx. 8, 9. Matt. vi. 13. Rom. xii. 9. xvi. 19. 2 Tim. iv. 18.
† Heb. do me.
q Ps. xxxii. 3, 4. li. 8. 12. Matt. xxvi. 75. John xxi. 17. 2 Cor. ii. 1-5. Eph. iv. 30. Rev. iii. 19.
r Job. xxii. 27. 28. Ps. xxi. 4. lxxv. 2. Matt. vii. 7-11. Eph. iii. 20.
s Or, the city of Nahash.
s Josh. xv. 17. Judg. i. 13. iii. 9-11.

him Jabez, or the Sorrowful; but her sorrow was emphatically turned into joy, if she lived to see how eminent and excellent a man he proved. His achievements are not recorded; but his prayers are, for our instruction and imitation. He was a genuine son of Jacob, who wrestled, and prevailed with God, and on that account was surnamed Israel, and refused to depart without the blessing. From a full heart he earnestly entreated the God of Israel to bless him indeed; and neither to send him away without a blessing nor merely to bless him, like Esau, with temporal blessings. He seems to have been constrained to fight against the Canaanites: but he conducted the war with faith and prayer; and he entreated the Lord to be with him, and both to enlarge his coast and to preserve him from disastrous events, which might occasion grief unto him. In the land of Canaan ancient believers saw a type of heaven; in their wars was represented the conflict of God's people with their enemies: and every clause of his prayer may be applied to, and probably was intended for, more noble and spiritual blessings. Accordingly the Lord heard and granted his requests, and thus he became honourable, as well as prosperous in Israel. This instructive example, in the midst of genealogies to us so abstruse, seems like the fragrant rose surrounded by thorns; or to refreshing streams in the desert: and it appears a recompense intended for the careful student of God's word, who diligently and reverently examines the whole, comparing one part with another without disregarding or undervaluing any.

and Seraiah: and the sons of Othniel; ^g Or, Hathath and Meonothai, ^h Hathath.

14 And Meonothai begat Ophrah: and Seraiah begat Joab, the father of ⁱ the valley of * Charashim; for they were craftsmen.

15 And the sons of ^t Caleb the son of Jephunneh; Iru, Elah, and Naam: and the sons of Elah, even [†] Kenaz.

16 And the sons of Jehaleleel; Ziph, and Ziphah, Tiria, and Asareel.

17 And the sons of Ezra were Jether, and Mered, and Ephraim, and Jalon: and she bare Miriam, and Shammai, and Ishbah the father of ^u Eshtemoa.

18 And his wife [‡] Jehudijah bare Jered ^x the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of ^y Socho, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, which Mered took.

19 And the sons of his wife [§] Hodiah the sister of Naham, the father of ^z Keilah the Garmite, and Eshtemoa the Maachathite.

20 And the sons of Shimon were Amnon, and Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon. And the sons of Ishi were Zotheth, and Ben-zotheth.

21 ¶ The sons of ^a Shelah the son of Judah were, Er the father of Lecah, and Laadah the father of Mareshah, and the families of the house of them that wrought fine linen, of the house of Ashbea, 22 And Jokim, and the men of Chozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who had the dominion in Moab, and Jashubi-lehem. And these are ancient things.

23 These were ^b the potters, and ^b ¹⁴ those that dwelt amongst plants and hedges: there they dwelt with the king for his work.

24 ¶ The sons of Simeon were, ^c Nemuel, and Jamin, ^d Jarib, ^e Zerah, and Shaul:

25 Shallum his son, Mibsam his son, Mishma is son.

26 And the sons of Mishma; Hamuel his son, Zacchur his son, Shimei his son

27 And Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brethren had not many children, neither did all their family multiply ^{||} like to the children of Judah.

28 And they dwelt at Beer-sheba, and Moladah, and Hazar-shual,

29 And at ^f Bilhah, and at Ezem, and at ^g Tolad,

30 And at ^h Bethuel, and at Harmah, and at Ziklag,

31 And at Beth-marcaboth, and ⁱ Hazarsusim, and at Beth-birei, and at Shaaraim. These were their cities unto the reign of David.

32 And their villages were, ^k Etam, and Ain, Rimmon, and Tochen, and Ashan, five cities:

33 And all their villages that were round about the same cities, unto ^l Baal. These were their habitations, and * their genealogy.

34 And Meshobab, and Jamlech, and Joshah the son of Amaziah;

35 And Joel, and Jehu the son of Josibiah, the son of Seraiah, the son of Asiel.

V. 17. Ezra seems to have been the same person before called Asareel. (16.)

She bare. That is, Bithiah bare to Mered: (18.) for these appear to have been Ezra's grandsons.

V. 18. Many think that Pharaoh was the name of an Israelite; yet it is not impossible but Mered might marry the daughter of some Egyptian king.

V. 20. Shimon is supposed to have been another son of Mered, by Hodiah or Jehudijah. As this name signifies a Jewess, it rather favours the opinion, that Beriah was not a Jewess, but an Egyptian.

V. 21. The sacred historian had mentioned the descendants of Judah by Zerah; and having more copiously given the genealogies of his posterity by Pharez, here mentions briefly a few of the line of Shelah, Judah's eldest son by the Canaanitish woman whom he married. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 22, 23. Perhaps these families in the time of David or Solomon, when Moab was subjected, had dominion there: but in process of time they were so reduced, as to be glad to subsist by the meanest employments. Their honour and dignity "were ancient things;" for at the time when this was penned, they were brought very low. Some think, that they remained near Babylon, after the return of Judah from the captivity, amongst the plants and hedges, for the sake of doing the work of the Persian kings. It was common in those ages, and still is in many places, for particular trades and professions to be continued in families through successive generations.

V. 24. The families of Simeon are mentioned next to those of Judah, because their inheritances adjoined to each other.

^g Or, Hathath and Meonothai, into begat.

ⁱ Or, inhabitants of the valley.
^h Or, craftsmen. Neh. xi. 35.

^t Num. xiii. 6.
30. xiv. 6-10. 24.
30. Josh. xiv. 6
-14. xv. 13-18.
Judg. i. 12-14.
[†] Or, Uznaz.

^u vi. 57.

[‡] Or, the Jewess.

^x 4. 39.

^y Josh. xv. 34, 35.

[§] Jehudijah. 13.

^z Josh. xv. 44.
[†] Sam. xxiii. 1.
[‡] &c.

^a Gen. xxxviii.
5. xlv. 12 Num.
xxvi. 20.

^c Ex. vi. 15.
Jemuel
^d Num. xxvi. 12.
Jachin
^e Gen. xlv. 10.
Zohar.

^{||} Heb. unto.
Num. ii. 4. 13
xxvi. 14. 22.

^f Josh. xix. 2, 3.
Be'ah Azem.
^g Josh. xix. 4.
Ettolad.
^h Josh. xix. 4.
Bethul.

ⁱ Josh. xix. 5, 6.
Hazar-susah.
Beth-labaath.
Sharuben.

^k Josh. xix. 7.
Ether.

^l Josh. xix. 6.
Baalath-beer.
^{*} Or, as they divided themselves by nations among them.

36 And Elioenai, and Jaakobah, and Jeshohaiah, and Asaiah, and Adiel, and Jesimiel, and Benaiah.

37 And Ziza the son of Shiphi, the son of Allon, the son of Jedaiah, the son of Shimri, the son of Shemaiah; † Heb. coming by names. v. 24.

Gen. vi. 4.

38 These † mentioned by their names were princes in their families: and the house of their fathers increased greatly.

m 4. 13. Josh. xv. 36.

39 ¶ And they went to the entrance of Gedor, even unto the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks.

n Judg. xviii. 7—10.

o Gen. ix. 22, &c.
Ps. lxxviii. 51.

40 And they found fat pasture and good, and ^a the land was wide, and quiet, and peaceable; for they of ^o Ham had dwelt there of old.

41 And these written by name came in the days of ^p Hezekiah king of Judah, ^{p 2 Kings xviii. 8.} and smote their tents, and the habitations that were found there, and destroyed them utterly unto this day, and dwelt in their rooms: because there was pasture there for their flocks.

42 And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to ^q mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Neariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi.

q Gen. xxxvi. 8.
Deut. i. 2.

43 And they smote ^r the rest of the Amalekites that were escaped, and dwelt there unto this day.

r Ex. xvii. 14—16. Deut. xxv. 17—19. 1 Sam. xv. 7, 8. xxx. 17. 2 Sam. viii. 12.

V. 39—43. Part of the Simeonites adhered to the house of David; and being greatly increased in the time of Hezekiah, they dispossessed some of the ancient Canaanites, who in that neighbourhood yet kept possession of a plentiful and peaceful country, fit for the feeding of cattle.—Perhaps this tract belonged to the Simeonites in the division of the land, and at length they got possession of it. It seems, that the remains of the Amalekites, after the general destruction of them made by Saul and David, had settled near to the Edomites, in mount Seir: but this remnant was extirpated by a small company of Simeonites. Some think, that the kings of Babylon permitted this part of Simeon to remain unmolested in their possessions, through the captivity, even to the time of Ezra: but perhaps Ezra extracted the words, to this day, from the ancient records, without altering them.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Children should consider how much their parents, especially their mothers, have suffered for them before they became capable of reflection; and they should endeavour by every means to requite them as much as possible, by their kindness, and by desiring and aiming to be a comfort to them, in their whole conduct. But it is basely ungrateful, though very common, willingly to cause them still more exquisite and durable anguish, by ill behaviour.—Those events, which at first occasion most sorrow, often terminate in the greatest comfort: we should not therefore yield to despondency, but hope to the end, and expect to extract good from every apparent evil. But it is natural for us to record our sorrows rather than our mercies; though we may reasonably wonder that the latter are so many, and the former so few. The honour which cometh from God is introduced by the gifts of wisdom, faith, and piety; and when these are bestowed, men will at length be honourable, whether or not renowned and prosperous. We go about our proper work in a right manner, when we use the means for success with all assiduity, and seek a blessing upon them by fervent prayer. A confluence of all earthly good things cannot “bless us indeed:” the true felicity, which our hearts should eagerly desire, consists in the favour, image, and presence of God; and we should pray for this, as resolved not to depart without it. The pardon of sin, the gift of righteousness, and the first-fruits of the Spirit, form the beginning of this happiness: but the world, Satan, and indwelling sin, crowd and straiten us on every side, and keep us from the possession of our inheritance. We should then beg of Israel’s God to enlarge our coast, that we may attain to greater holiness, liberty, comfort, and usefulness; and acquire a more decisive victory over our enemies. And if his hand be with us, if his power be exerted in our cause, we shall be protected, upheld, and enabled to withstand, and to gain ground against, the confederated forces of the world, the flesh, and the devil. We may indeed very properly, with resignation, pray to be kept from the evil of suffering, which is grievous to nature: but the evil of sinning most affrights and disquiets the spiritually minded man; this extorts the bitterest groans and complaints; against this he most earnestly prays, “Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.” And being kept from the burden of a guilty conscience, and the anguish of having dishonoured and offended the God of his salvation, he can the better bear up under other trials, as supported by that peace which passeth all understanding. Blessed be the Lord, he is ever ready to grant, and to exceed our prayers for promised blessings: and we are our own enemies, if we do not ask and expect great things from him, through the Saviour’s name. In this checkered world, indeed, there is nothing durable or substantial: but possessing the hope of unchangeable felicity, we may cheerfully acquiesce in the Lord’s allotment of our worldly settlements and occupations. Nor is it desirable to advance our children much above our own rank; for they, who at one time have dominion, may at another become dependent on the worst of men for a penurious maintenance: whereas honest labour, in some regular and useful calling, best preserves that mediocrity which is most comfortable and most advantageous to our spiritual concerns. Let us then adhere to the kingdom of the Son of David: for this prince of Peace will supply our temporal wants with every thing truly desirable, and make us happy for ever; whilst his curse will pursue all his enemies to their utter destruction.

CHAP. V.

Judah and Joseph preferred before Reuben, who forfeited his birthright, 1, 2. His descendants, some of whom vanquish the Hagarites, 3—10. The chief men of Gad, and their habitations, 11—17. Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh, obtain a victory over the Hagarites, 18—22. The habitations and chief men of that half of Manasseh, 23, 24. The captivity of the two tribes and half, for their sins, 25, 26.

NOW the sons of Reuben the first-born of Israel, (for ^a he was the first-born; but, ^b forasmuch as he defiled his father's bed, ^c his birthright was given unto the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel: ^d and the genealogy is not to be reckoned after the birthright.

2 For ^e Judah prevailed above his brethren, and of him came ^f the * chief ruler; but the birthright was Joseph's:)

3 The ^g sons, I say, of Reuben, the first-born of Israel, were, Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.

4 The sons of Joel; Shemaiah his son, Gog his son, Shimei his son,

5 Micah his son, Reaia his son, Baal his son,

6 Beerah his son, whom ^h Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria carried away captive: he was prince of the Reubenites.

7 And his brethren by their families, ^k when the genealogy of their generations was reckoned, were the chief, Jeiel, and Zechariah,

8 And Bela the son of Azaz, the son of ^l Shema, the son of Joel, who dwelt in ^m Aroer, even unto ⁿ Nebo, and Baal-meon.

9 And eastward he inhabited unto the entering in of the wilderness from the river Euphrates: ^o because their cattle were multiplied in the land of Gilead.

10 And in the days of Saul they made war with ^p the Hagarites, who fell by their hand: and they dwelt in their tents ^q throughout all the east land of Gilead.

11 ¶ And the children of Gad dwelt over against them, ^r in the land of Bashan unto Salcah:

12 Joel the chief, and Shapham the next, and Jaanai, and Shaphat in Bashan.

13 And their brethren, of the house of their fathers were, Michael, and Meshullam, and Sheba, and Jorai, and Jachan, and Zia, and Heber, seven.

14 These are the children of Abihail the son of Huri, the son of Jaroah, the son of Gilead, the son of Michael, the son of Jeshishai, the son of Jahdo, the son of Buz;

15 Ahi the son of Abdiel, the son of Guni, chief of the house of their fathers.

16 And they dwelt in Gilead in Bashan, and in her towns, and in all the suburbs of ^s Sharon, upon their ^t borders.

17 All these were ^u reckoned by genealogies in the days of ^v Jotham king of Judah, and in the days of ^w Jeroboam king of Israel.

18 ¶ The sons of Reuben, and the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, of ^x valiant men, men able to bare buckler and sword, and to shoot with bow,

^a Gen. xxix. 32. xli. 3. xlix. 3. Ex. vi. 14. Num. xxvi. 5. ^b Gen. xxxv. 22. xlix. 4. Lev. xviii. 8. xx. 11. Deut. xxvii. 20. ^c 1 Cor. v. 1. ^d Gen. xlviii. 15. —22. Deut. xxi. 17. ^e Gen. xxv. 23. ^f 1 Sam. xvi. 6—11. ^g Gen. xlix. 8—10. Num. ii. 3. vii. 12. Ps. lx. 7. cviii. 9. ^h 2 Sam. viii. 15. Ps. lxxviii. 68—71. Jer. xxlii. 5. ⁱ Mic. v. 2. Matt. ii. 6. Heb. vii. 14. ^j Or, prince. ^k Gen. xlv. 9. Ex. vi. 14. Num. xxvi. 5. —9. ^l Gen. xlv. 9. Phallu. B. C. 740. ^m 2 Kings xv. 29. xvi. 7. Tiglath-pileser.

^k 17.

^l 4. Shemaiah. ^m Josh. xiii. 15—20. ⁿ Num. xxxii. 38. ^o Josh. xxii. 8, 9. ^p 19, 20. Gen. xxi. 9. xxv. 12. ^q Heb. upon all the face of the east. ^r Num. xxxii. 34—36. Deut. xiii. 10—17. Josh. xiii. 11. 24—28.

^s xxvii. 29. Cant. ii. 1. Is. xxxv. 12. ^t Heb. going forth. B. C. 750. ^u 2 Kings xv. 5. 32. 2 Chr. xxvii. 1. ^v B. C. 780. ^w 2 Kings xiv. 16. 23. 28.

^x Heb. sons of valour.

NOTES.

CHAP. V. V. 1, 2. (Notes, Gen. xlviii. xlix.) The double portion, which belonged to the first-born, having been forfeited by Reuben, Jacob's eldest son by Leah, was given to Joseph, his eldest son by Rachel, whose descendants had a double portion in Canaan; Jacob having adopted Ephraim and Manasseh, to be, as his own sons, heads of two distinct tribes. Yet, as the chief Ruler or Prince, even the Messiah, of whom David and his royal race were progenitors and types, was to descend from Judah, the genealogy began with him, and not with either Reuben or Joseph.

V. 4, 5. Very brief extracts are made from the registers of Reuben, and of several other tribes; because, it is probable but few persons of these tribes returned from the captivity to settle in Canaan: and therefore but few of them were concerned in the genealogies, compared with the numbers of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi, of whom the Jews after that event principally consisted. It may be supposed, that Ezra's contemporaries would see the reason, why the persons selected should be named, and not others; though we can assign none. This chapter contains all that relates to the two tribes and a half, which settled to the east of Jordan.

V. 9. The inheritance of Reuben extended to the borders of the desert, which reached even to the Euphrates.

V. 10. (Note, 18—22.)

V. 17. Part of the genealogies of Gad, whence these extracts were taken, seems to have been made during the time that Jeroboam the second reigned over Israel, and the rest when Jotham reigned in Judah.

x Josh. iv. 12, 13.

and skilful in war, were ^x four and forty thousand seven hundred and threescore, that went out to the war.

y 10.

z i. 31. Gen xxv 15 Naphish.

19 And they ^y made war with the Hagarites, with Jetur, and ^z Nephish, and Nodab.

a 22. Ex. xvii 11.
Josh. x. 14. 42
1 Sam vii. 12
xix. 5 Ps. xlv
1. cxlvi. 5, 6.

20 And ^a they were helped against them, and the Hagarites were delivered into their hand, and all that were with them: for ^b they cried to God in the battle, and he was entreated of them; ^c because they put their trust in him.

c Ps ix. 10. xx 7.
8. xxii. 4. 5.
lxxiv. 11. 12.
* Heb. led captive.

21 And they ^{*} took away their cattle; of their camels fifty thousand, and of sheep two hundred and fifty thousand, and of asses two thousand, and of [†] men an hundred thousand.

† Heb. souls of men. Num. xxxi.
35.

22 For there fell down many slain, because the war was ^d of God. And they dwelt in their steads ^e until the captivity.

d 2 Chr xxxii. 8.
Rom vii. 31.
e 26 2 Kings xv.
29. xvii. 6.

23 ¶ And the children of the half tribe of Manasseh dwelt in the land:

they increased from Bashan, unto ^f Baal-hermon and Senir, and unto mount Hermon.

f Deut. iii. 8. 9
Josh. xiii. 29-31.

24 And these were the heads of the house of their fathers, even Ephraim, and Ishi, and Eliel, and Azriel, and Jeremiah, and Hodaviah, and Jahdiel, mighty men of valour, [‡] famous men, and [†] heads of the house of their fathers.

† Heb. men of names. iv. 38

25 And they transgressed against the God of their fathers, and ^{*} went a whoring after the gods of the people of the land, whom God destroyed before them.

g 2 Kings xvii. 7.
8. Hos. i. 2.
ix. 1. Rev. xvii.
5.

26 And the God of Israel ^b stirred up the spirit of ⁱ Pul king of Assyria, and the spirit of ^k Tilgath-pileser king of Assyria, and he carried them away, (even the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh) ^l and brought them unto Halah, and Habor, and Hara, and to the river Gozan, unto this day.

h 2 Sam. xxiv. 1.
2 Chr. xxxiii. 11.
Ezra i. 5. Is.
x. 5, 6. xlii. 2-5.
i 2 Kings xv. 19.
B. C. 740.
k 6. 2 Kings xv.
59. xvi. 7.l 2 Kings xvii. 6.
xviii. 11.

V. 18—22. The Hagarites were the descendants of Hagar, or the Ishmaelites, properly so called; and being a nation of plunderers, they could not fail to give their neighbours just cause of making war upon them; (Note, Gen. xvi. 12.) But indeed “the war was of God,” undertaken in his fear, and in dependence on him, and it was approved and succeeded by him. If this was the same war that was before mentioned, (10;) the Israelites beyond Jordan might be left, during a part of Saul’s reign, to defend themselves: but some think, that these tribes were numbered by genealogies, in the days of Jeroboam and Jotham; in order to make war against the Hagarites. They, however, acted in concert and with vigour, and with faith and prayer, against these formidable enemies. But especially it is noted, that they trusted in God, and called upon him in the battle; and their success accorded to their faith.—The multitude of the prisoners may give us an idea of the superiority in numbers of the enemy, and of the slaughter which was made. The Ishmaelites have always been remarkable for the numbers of camels which they take with them in their expeditions. When we read of this conduct and success of these Israelites, we are ready to say, ‘Oh, that there had always been such an heart in them!’ But the conclusion of the chapter gives us a different view of their character and condition.

V. 25, 26. Not only the Manassites, with the Reubenites and Gadites, forsook God, to worship idols; but the nation of Israel generally did the same; yet the two tribes and a half seem to have been more early and entirely corrupted than the other tribes. Their progenitors had hastily desired a settlement to the east of Jordan; and now these tribes were carried captive before the rest of Israel. But they were placed in the same regions by Pul and Tilgath-pileser, to which Shalmanezzer afterwards carried the other tribes. (Marg. Ref.)—Hara is supposed to be the same as Media, or a part of it.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

It is profitable to be frequently reminded, that sin degrades men from their excellency, stamps indelible disgrace on their characters, forfeits their advantages, and entails manifold losses on their posterity. But the Lord punishes none above their deserts; and as he sees good confers unmerited favours on mankind. They who are related to, and interested in, our chief Ruler of the tribe of Judah, are far more favoured than those who have a two-fold or a ten-fold portion of perishing riches. Let us seek and choose this better portion, and leave the children of this world to contend about their gilded baubles, without envying, coveting, or interfering. We need not in that case fear wanting any thing truly good for us, “for our Father knoweth what things we have need of:” when our families increase, he will increase our provision: and it is our privilege to cast our care on him, and to keep in the path of duty. Happy are that people, who live together in harmony, who readily assist each other, who strenuously oppose the common enemies of their souls, and who acknowledge God in all their ways, but are especially earnest in times of trial and temptation. Such persons will assuredly be heard and helped; their warfare is of God, their enemies will be trodden down, their victory is certain, and their triumphs will be glorious. And let it be carefully noticed, that all genuine and warranted trust in God will be expressed by earnest prayer; and this in part distinguishes it from a presumptuous confidence, and an indolent reliance, which often subsist without application to God, or habitual prayer; and are especially maintained by lifeless forms,

CHAP. VI.

The sons of Levi, by Aaron, to Eleazar, 1—3. The line of Eleazar to the captivity, 4—15. The families of Levi, 16—19. The sons of Gershom, 20, 21. Of Kohath, 22—28. Of Merari, 29, 30. The singers appointed by David, 31—48. The office of Aaron and his sons, 49. Aaron's line to Ahimaaz, 50—53. The cities of the priests and Levites, 54—81.

B. C. 1700.

a xviii. 6. Gen.
xvi. 11 Ex. vi.
16. Num. xxvi.
57.

b 16. 17. Gershom.
c xxiii. 12. Ex. vi.
18.

d 22 Amminadab.
e xxiii. 13 Ex. vi.
20.

f Ex. ii. 4, 7. xv.
20. Mic. vi. 4.

g xxiv. 1, 2. Ex.
vi. 23 xxiv. 1.
xxviii. 1. Lev.
x. 1, 12.

h ix. 20. Ex. vi.
25 Num. xv. 6.
—11 xxi. 6.

i Josh. xxii. 13.
30—32. xxiv. 33.
Judges xx. 28.

j Ezra viii. 2. 1's.
civ. 30.

k Ezra vii. 1—5.

B. C. 1100.

l 2 Sam. vii. 17.
12 Sam. xv. 35.

m xvii. 15. xx. 29.
1 Kings i. 8. 34.
44. ii. 35.

n 2 Sam. xv. 27.
36 xvii. 17. 20.
xviii. 19. 22. 27.

o 20.

p B. C. 760.

q 2 Chr. xxvi. 17.
—20.

THE ^a sons of Levi; ^b Gershom, Kohath, and Merari.

2 And ^c the sons of Kohath; Amram, ^d Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel.

3 And the children of Amram; ^e Aaron, and Moses, and ^f Miriam. The sons also of Aaron; ^g Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

4 Eleazar begat ^h Phinehas, Phinehas begat ⁱ Abishua,

5 And Abishua begat Bukki, and Bukki begat Uzzi,

6 And Uzzi begat Zerariah, and Zerariah begat Meraioth,

7 Meraioth begat Amariah, and Amariah begat Ahitub,

8 And ^k Ahitub begat ^l Zadok, and Zadok begat ^m Ahimaaz,

9 And Ahimaaz begat Azariah, and Azariah begat Johanan,

10 And Johanan begat Azariah, (he ⁿ it is that ^o executed the priest's office in * the temple, that ^p Solomon built in ^q Jerusalem,) ^r Heb. the house. 1 Kings vi. vii. 2 Chr. iii. iv.

11 Azariah begat ^p Amariah, and Amariah begat Ahitub, ^p Ezra vii. 3.

12 And Ahitub begat Zadok, and Zadok begat ^q Shallum,

13 And Shallum begat ^r Hilkiah, and Hilkiah begat Azariah,

14 And Azariah begat ^s Seraiah, and Seraiah begat Jehozadak.

15 And ^t Jehozadak went into captivity, ^u when the Lord carried away Judah and Jerusalem ^v by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.

16 ¶ The sons of Levi; ^y Gershom, Kohath, and Merari.

17 And these ^z be the names of ^a the sons of Gershom: Libni, and ^b Shimei.

18 And the sons of Kohath ^c were Amram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel.

19 The sons of Merari; ^d Mahli, and Mushi. And these ^e are the families of the Levites, according to their fathers.

20 Of Gershom; ^f Libni his son, Jahath his son, Zimmah his son.

21 ^g Joah his son, Iddo his son, ^h Zerah his son, ⁱ Jeaterai his son.

22 The sons of Kohath; ^j Amminadab his son, Korah his son, Assir his son,

23 Elkanah his son, and Ebiasaph his son, and Assir his son, 24 Tahath his son, ^k Uriel his son, Uziah his son, and Shaul his son.

25 And the sons of ^l Elkanah; Amasai, and Ahimoth.

q ix. 11. Neh. xii. 11. Meshullam.

r 2 Kings xx. 13. —14. Chron. xxiv. 14. —20.

s xxv. 8. B. C. 563.

t 2 Kings xxv. 13. Ezra vii. 1. Neh. xi. 11.

u Ezra v. 2. Josadak. Hag. i. 1. 12. 14. ii. 2. Jo-v 2 Kings xxv. 21. 2 Chr. xxxvi. 17. —21. Jer. xxxix. 9. lii. 12. —15.

w 28.

B. C. 1700.

x Acts xiv. 27. xix. 11. Rom. xv. 18.

y 1. Ex. vi. 16. Gershom.

z xxiii. 7. Num. iii. 18. 21.

a Ex. vi. 17. Shimi.

b 2, 3. xxiii. 12.

c xxiii. 21. xxiv. 16. Ex. vi. 19.

d Mahli. Num. iii. 20. xxvi. 57, 58.

e 17.

f 42. Ethan.

g 41. Adaiah.

h 21. 24. Ex. vi. 21. 24. Ishar.

i 35. Zephaniah.

Asariah. Joel.

B. C. 1100.

k 35, 36. Ex. vi. 24.

NOTES.

CHAP. VI. V. 4—15. These verses contain the line of Eleazar, Aaron's eldest surviving son after the death of Nadab and Abihu, to the Babylonish captivity: but all the persons mentioned were not high-priests; for Ithamar's posterity enjoyed that dignity for some time.—“He that executed the priest's office in the temple that Solomon built,” (an intimation that the writer lived when the second temple was built, or building;) is supposed to have been Azariah, who vigorously opposed Uziah's presumptuous attempt to burn incense. His father Johanan is thought by some to have been the same with Jehoiada, the firm friend to religion and the family of David, during Athaliah's usurpation. Otherwise he is not mentioned.—Urijah, who basely obeyed idolatrous Ahaz, is not named in this catalogue, and perhaps several others are omitted, (Marg. Ref.)—It is wonderful, that so little is recorded of the high-priests, when the office is represented in the law as of peculiar sanctity and importance!

and inefficacious notions. They, who rebel against the Lord, and apostatize from him, must eventually be ruined: especially such as desert his worship and reject his salvation, for the sake of those idols which are either set up in temples, or in the hearts of the avaricious, the sensual, or the ambitious. It will little avail them, to have their names inserted in the genealogies of honourable families, or recorded as famous in the page of history, whilst they are rejected of God, and excluded from his kingdom.—We should consider that those actions, which are vain, foolish, and wicked in man, may be permitted and made use of by the Lord in justice, wisdom, and goodness. From him the renowned ravagers of the earth derive their power and courage: and they are employed as his executioners, and classed with pestilences, earthquakes, and famines; being equally dreadful and fatal to mankind. Nor should we forget, that they, whose inordinate desire of earthly objects draws them to a distance from God's ordinances, are assuredly preparing for their own correction or destruction.

26 As for Elkanah: the sons of Elkanah; ¹Zophai his son, and ^mNahath his son, 27 ^a Eliab his son, Jeroham his son, o 1 Sam. i. 1. 20. ^o Elkanah his son.

28 And the sons of Samuel; the first-born ^p Vashni, and Abiah.

29 The sons of Merari; ^a Mahli, Libni his son, Shimei his son, Uzza his son,

30 Shimea his son, Haggiah his son, Asaiah his son.

p xxv. 1, &c.
 B. C. 1047.

31 ¶ And these are they, ^r whom David set over the service of song in the house of the LORD, ^s after that the ark had rest.

s xvi. 1 2 Sam.
 vi. 17. Ps.
 cxxii. p. 14.

32 And ^t they ministered before the dwelling-place of the tabernacle of the congregation with singing, ^u until Solomon had built the house of the LORD in Jerusalem: and then they * waited on their office according to their order.

33 And these are they that waited, with their children. Of the sons of the Kohathites: ^x Heman a singer, the son of ^y Joel, the son of ^z Shemuel.

26. Vashti.
28. Samuel.
27. Eliab.
26. Nahath.

34 The son of Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of ^aEliel, the son of ^bToah,

35 The son of ^cZuph, the son of Elkanah, the son of Mahath, the son of Amasai,

36 The son of Elkanah, the son of a 24. Shaul, Uz- d Joel, the son of Azariah, the son of riah, Uriel.
 e Ex vi. 21-24. Zephaniah,

37 The son of Tahath, the son of Assir, the son of Ephasaph, the son of Korah,

38 The son of ^g Izhar, the son of Ko- ^{g Num. iii}
hath, the son of Levi, the son of Israel. ^{Izhar.}

V. 16—30. The principal persons who presided over the three families of Levi, till the time of David, seem to be mentioned in these verses. The marginal references contain the variation in the names given to the same persons, in different parts of sacred history, (as far as it can be ascertained;) and nearly the whole, that is at present known concerning them, may be learned by carefully consulting them. Samuel was not a priest, but descended from Izhar, Aaron's uncle: yet, as a prophet, he seems to have sacrificed personally, and not by the ministration of the priests, as some have conjectured.

V. 31, 32. After the tabernacle had been made stationary, and the Levites had greatly multiplied; David, at length, formed arrangements for their regular ministering by rotation; especially a large number of them were employed as singers and musicians, in celebrating the praises of God.

VOL. II.—No. 10.

(Notes, xxv. xxvi.) This was settled before the building of the temple, but it was continued afterwards.

V. 33. Heman was grandson to Samuel or Shemuel, the prophet and judge of Israel; and probably he was advanced to this office, in honour of his illustrious ancestor. The genealogies of Heman, and Asaph, and Ethan, are carried back to Levi: whence we may infer that their station, as preceptors, was considered as both important and honourable.

V. 39. As Asaph was of the same tribe with Heman, he is called his brother, though descended from a different family of that tribe.

V. 48. 'It is observable, that in all the genealogies of the Levites, there is not a word said of the sons of Moses and their posterity; he having no ambition to prefer them to any office, either in church or state!' (Bp. Patrick's)

51 Bukki his son, Uzzi his son, Zerahiah his son,

52 Meraioth his son, Amariah his son, Ahitub his son,

53 Zadok his son, Ahimaaz his son.

54 ¶ Now ^x these are their dwelling places, throughout their ^y castles in their coasts, of the sons of Aaron, ^z of the families of the Kohathites : for their's was the lot.

55 And they gave them ^a Hebron in the land of Judah, and the suburbs thereof round about it.

56 But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

57 And to the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of Judah, namely, Hebron, the city ^b of refuge, and ^c Libnah with her suburbs, and Jattir, and Eshtemoa, with their suburbs,

58 And ^d Hilen with her suburbs, Debir with her suburbs,

59 And ^e Ashan with her suburbs, and Beth-shemeth with her suburbs :

60 And out of the tribe of Benjamin ; ^f Geba with her suburbs, and ^g Alemeth with her suburbs, and Anathoth with her suburbs. All their cities throughout their families were thirteen cities.

61 And unto the sons of Kohath, which were ^b left of the family of that tribe, were cities given out of the half tribe, namely, out of the half tribe of Manasseh, by lot, ten cities.

62 And to the sons of ⁱ Gershom throughout their families out of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

63 Unto the sons of ^k Merari were given by lot, throughout their families, out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

64 And ^l the children of Israel gave to the Levites these cities with their suburbs

65 And they gave by lot out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, and out of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, ^m these cities which are called by their names.

66 ⁿ And the residue of the families of the sons of Kohath had cities of their coasts out of the tribe of Ephraim.

67 And they gave unto them, of the cities of refuge, ^o Shechem in mount Ephraim with her suburbs ; they gave also Gezer with her suburbs,

68 And ^p Jokmeam with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs, 69 And ^q Aijalon with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs :

70 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh ; ^r Aner with her suburbs, and ^{*} Bileam with her suburbs, for the family of the remnant of the sons of Kohath.

71 Unto the sons of Gershom were given out of the family of the half tribe of Manasseh, ^s Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, and ^t Ashtaroth with her suburbs :

72 And out of the tribe of Issachar ; ^u Kedesh with her suburbs, Daberath with her suburbs,

73 And Ramoth with her suburbs, and Anem with her suburbs :

74 And out of the tribe of Asher ; ^x Mashal with her suburbs, and Abdon with her suburbs,

75 And ^y Hukok with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs :

76 And out of the tribe of Naphtali ; ^z Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, and ^a Hammon with her suburbs, and Kirjathaim with her suburbs.

77 Unto the rest of the children of Merari were given out of the tribe of Zebulun, ^b Rimmon with her suburbs, Tabor with her suburbs :

78 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho, on the east side of Jordan, were given them out of the tribe of Reuben, ^c Bezer in the wilderness with her suburbs, and ^d Jahzah with her suburbs,

79 Kedemoth also with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs :

80 And out of the tribe of Gad ; ^e Ra-

V. 54—60. Juttah and Gibeon are here omitted ; perhaps they lay in ruins when the book was written : so that only eleven cities are enumerated ; though thirteen were allotted to the priests in the days of Joshua. (Marg. Ref.)

moth in Gilead with her suburbs, and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 81 And Heshbon with her suburbs, and Jazer with her suburbs.

CHAP. VII.

The sons of Issachar, 1—5. Of Benjamin, 6—12. Of Naphtali, 13. Of Manasseh, 14—19. The sons of Ephraim, of whom some were slain by the men of Gath, 20—22. His sons by Beriah, 23—27. Their habitations, 28, 29. The sons of Asher, 30—40.

B. C. 1760.

^a Gen. xlv. 13.
^{Phuah.} Job.
Num xxvi 23,
24. ^{Pua.}

NOW the sons of Issachar were, Tola, and ^a Puah, Jashub, and Shimon, four.

2 And the sons of Tola; Uzzi, and Rephaiah, and Jeriel, and Jahmai, and Jibsam, and Shemuel, heads of their father's house, to wit, of Tola: they were valiant men of might in their generations; ^b whose number was in the days of David two and twenty thousand and six hundred.

^b xxi. 1—5 xxvii.
1. 23, 24. 2 Sam.
xxiv. 1—9

3 And the sons of Uzzi; Izrahiah: and the sons of Izrahiah; Michael, and Obadiah, and Joel, Ishiah, five: all of them chief men.

4 And ^c with them, by their generations, after the house of their fathers, were bands of soldiers for war, six and thirty thousand men: for they had many wives and sons.

^c xii. 32.

5 And their brethren, among all the families of Issachar were valiant men of might, reckoned in all by their genealogies fourscore and seven thousand.

6 ¶ The sons ^d of Benjamin; Bela, and Becher, and ^e Jediael, three.

^{B. C. 1760.}
^d viii. 1, &c. Gen.
xvi. 21. Num.
xxvi. 38—41.

7 And the sons of Bela, Ezbon, and Uzzi, and Uzziel, and Jerimoth, and Iri, five; heads of the house of their fathers, mighty men of valour; and ^f were

^e 10, 11. 7
^{B. C. 1017.}
^f xxi. 1—5. 2 Chr.
xvii 17, 18.

V. 67—81. Either some of these cities, or their names, had been changed since the time of Joshua: but, as Mr. Henry observes, Salop and Shrewsbury, Saram and Salisbury, are as different names for the same places, as any in these catalogues; yet they, who live in their vicinity, are no ways confused by them. Some cities also are here mentioned as having belonged to Ephraim, which in Joshua are spoken of as cities of Dan: but various changes in such matters would occur in a course of ages.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

In the judgment of God, none of the human race are more honourable or valuable, than they who consistently minister in holy things. And though many, nominally bearing this sacred character, render themselves insignificant by their indolence, contemptible by their covetousness, or odious by their profligacy, or bring the divine vengeance upon themselves by offering strange fire before the Lord: yet, instead of that order being despised on these accounts, they, who are singularly humble, diligent, disinterested, zealous, and valiant for the truth, ought to be treated with the greater respect; and of this God himself hath condescended to set the example in his holy word. None of the Lord's people, and especially of his ministers, should be unemployed: they who, through want of ability or change of circumstances, are precluded from one method of glorifying God, should set themselves to devise another. And if they deem nothing, which may conduce to the advancement of true godliness, too laborious, mean, disgusting, or discouraging; if they be disposed to be "instant in season" and out of season;" to instruct or encourage one, ten, or ten thousand, in public or in private, in a cottage, an hospital, a prison, or a palace; in safe and easy, or in difficult and perilous circumstances; if they consider nothing too little to be attended to, and nothing too arduous to be attempted; and if they do all in sincerity, humility, and simplicity of spirit, they cannot long be unoccupied or useless. But nothing can be a more pleasant and honourable work, than to excite or assist the devotions of the pious, and to lead them to abound in many thanksgivings and praises to the Lord. If a rich inheritance, or the important station of a magistrate or civil governor, could with propriety be quitted for such a service, the enlightened understanding must perceive it to be an honourable and advantageous exchange; for this is the delightful employment of those above, who are arrived at their eternal rest. They that have shown themselves peculiarly disinterested in the cause of God and his people, should be peculiarly considered by their brethren, and their families respected for their sakes. But, though Christians and ministers may be very useful to the church, whilst "they wait in their offices," none, but our great High-Priest can make atonement for sin, nor can any be accepted save through his atonement. Whilst the ministers are bound to wait on their ministering, according to the work of their place; the people are equally bound, in their several stations, to strengthen their hands, and to contribute without grudging to their comfortable maintenance: and in every good work, equality and unanimity will render the burthen light, and conduce to the comfort of all concerned, as also to render their endeavours more generally useful.

NOTES.

CHAP. VII. V. 2. When David numbered Israel, this was the number of men, fit for war, in Issachar. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 3. Izrahiah, and his four sons, are here spoken of, as five sons of Uzzi.

reckoned by their genealogies twenty and two thousand and thirty and four.

8 And the sons of Becher; Zemira, and Joash, and Eliezer, and Elioenai, and Omri, and Jerimoth, and Abiah, and Anathoth, and Alameth. All these are the sons of Becher.

9 And the number of them, after their genealogy by their generations, heads of the house of their fathers, mighty men of valour, was twenty thousand and two hundred.

10 The sons also of Jediahel; Bilhan: and the sons of Bilhan; Jeush, and Benjamin, and ^s Ehud, and Che-naanan, and Zethan, and Tharshish, and Abishahar.

11 All these the sons of Jediahel, by the heads of their fathers, mighty men of valour, were seventeen thousand and two hundred soldiers, fit to go out for war and battle.

12 ^h Shuppim also, and Huppim, the children of ⁱ Ir, and Hushim, the sons of ^k Aher.

13 ^l The sons of Naphtali; ⁱ Jahziel, and Guni, and Jezer, and ^m Shallum, the sons of Biihah.

14 ⁿ The sons of Manasseh; Ashriel, whom she bare: (but his concubine the Aramitess bare ^o Machir the father of Gilead:

15 And Machir took to wife the sister of ^p Huppim and Shuppim, whose sister's name was Maachah;) and the name of the second was Zelophehad: and ^q Zelophehad had daughters.

16 And Maachah the wife of Machir bare a son, and she called his name Peresh; and the name of his brother was Sheresh; and his sons were Ulam and Rakem.

17 And the sons of Ulam; ^r Bedan. These were the sons of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh.

18 And his sister Hammoleketh bare Ishod, and ^s Abiezer, and Mahalah.

19 And the sons of Shemida were Ahian, and Shechem, and Likhi, and Aniam.

20 ^t And ^u the sons of Ephraim; Shuthelah, and Bered his son, and Tahath his son, and Eladah his son, and Tahath his son.

21 And Zabad his son, and Shuthelah his son, and Ezer, and Elead, whom the men of Gath that were born in that land slew, because they came down to take away their cattle.

22 And Ephraim their father ^u mourned many days, and his brethren came to comfort him.

23 And when he went in to his wife, she conceived, and bare a son, and ^x he called his name ^{*} Beriah, because it went evil with his house.

24 (And his daughter was Sherah, who built ^y Beth-horon the nether, and the upper, and Uzen-sherah.)

25 And Rephah was his son, also Req Num. xxvi. 33.

xxvii. 1—11.
xxxvi. 1—12.

r 1 Sam. xii. 12.

s Num. xxvi. 30.
Jezer Judg. vi.
11 24. 34. viii. 2.
B. C. 1600.

t Num. xxvi. 25.
36.

B. C. 1660.

u Gen. xxxvii. 34.

x iv. 9 Gen. xxxv.
18. 1 Sam. iv.
21.
* In evil.

y Josh. xvi. 3. 5.
1 Kings ix. 17.
2 Chr. viii. 5.

g Judg. iii. 15, &c.

h 15. Gen. xvi.
21. Muppim.
Huppim. Num.
xxvi. 39. Shupham. Hupham.
i. 7. Iri.
k Num. xxvi. 38.
Ahiram.
l Gen. xvi. 24.
Num. xxvi. 48.
Jahzeel.
m Gen. xlv. 24.
Num. xxvi. 49.
Shiltem.
B. C. 1670.
n Num. xxvi. 29.
—34. xxvii. 1.
o ii. 21. 23 Num.
xxxii. 39. 49.
Josh. xvii. 1.

p 12.

V. 7—11. These seem not, strictly speaking, to have been the sons of Bela and Bechel, but renowned persons among their descendants, or such as were progenitors of those who returned from Babylon.

V. 12. Aher. Aher signifies another, and it hath been conjectured, that these were Danites; especially as Hushim is named as the only son of Dan. (Gen. xvi. 23.) And they suppose, that the name of Dan was not mentioned, because his descendants first established idolatry. But Zebulun also is here omitted: perhaps because none of either of these tribes returned at first from Babylon. Though the Benjamites had been almost destroyed in the first days of the judges, they were become numerous and powerful by the time of David.

V. 14, 15. Ashriel was Manasseh's son by his wife, who is not named: but a Syrian concubine was the mother of Machir, from whom the whole of that numerous tribe seems to have descended: for Ashriel as the son of Manasseh is not mentioned elsewhere; and Zelophehad was a descendant of Machir, two generations having intervened betwixt them. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 18. Hammoleketh seems to have been the sister of Gilead: though some think she was the sister of Bedan.

V. 21, 22. Ezer and Elead seem to have been the sons or grandsons of Ephraim, and not his more remote descendants: for it is evident he was living when they were slain. Some think, that they supposed the time was arrived for their possessing Canaan; and so made an unsuccessful invasion of it. But it is more likely, that some inhabitants of Gath, who had been natives of Egypt, made an incursion into Goshen, to make depredations on the cattle of Israel, and slew those who defended them. Thus Ephraim, that was intended to be a very numerous and prosperous tribe, was at first diminished.

V. 24. Some female descendant of Ephraim had affluence, influence, and liberality to rebuild three cities for her brethren. (Marg. Ref.)

sheph, and Telah his son, and Tahan his son,

26 Laadan his son, Ammihud his son, Elishama his son,

27 ^a Non his son, ^b Jehoshua his son.

28 And their possessions and habitations were, Beth-el and the towns thereof, and eastward ^c Naaran, and westward Gazer with the ^{*} towns thereof; Shechem also and the towns thereof, unto Gaza and the towns thereof:

29 And by the borders of the children of ^d Manasseh, Beth-shean and her towns, Taanach and her towns, Megiddo and her towns, Dor and her towns. ^e In these dwelt the children of Joseph the son of Israel.

30 ¶ The sons of Asher; ^f Imnah, and Isuai, and ^g Ishuai, and Beriah, and Serah their sister.

31 And the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel, who is the father of Birzavith.

32 And Heber begat Japhlet, and ^h Shomer, and Hotham, and Shuah their sister.

33 And the sons of Japhlet; Pasach, and Bimhal, and Ashvath: these are the children of Japhlet.

34 And the sons of ⁱ Shamer; Ahi, and Rohgah, Jehubbah, and Aram.

35 And the sons of his brother Helem; Zophah, and Imna, and Shelesh, and Amal.

36 The sons of Zophah; Suah, and Harnepher, and Shual, and Beri, and Imrah,

37 Bezer, and Hod, and Shamma, and Shilshah, and ^k Ithran, and Becra.

38 And the sons of Jether; Jephunneh, and Pispah, and Ara.

39 And the sons of Ulla; Arah, and Haniel, and Rezia.

40 All these were the children of Asher, heads of their father's house, choice and mighty men of valour, chief of the princes. And the number throughout the genealogy of them that were apt to the war and to battle was twenty and six thousand men.

CHAP. VIII.

The sons and chief men of Benjamin, 1—32. The family of Saul and his descendants by Jonathan, 33—40.

NOW Benjamin begat ^a Bela his first-born, Ashbel the second, and ^b Aharah the third,

2 Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth.

3 And the sons of Bela were, ^c Addar, and Gera, and Abihud,

4 And Abishua, and Naaman, and Aboah,

5 And ^d Gera, and ^e Shephuphan, and Huram.

6 And these are the sons of ^f Ehud: these are the heads of the fathers of the

V. 25—40. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Events frequently occur entirely beyond our expectations, and contrary to probabilities: the dispensations of Providence seem to run counter to the promises, in order that their performance may be more observed and admired; and often a good cause is run down, whilst the wicked triumph in the success of their villany: but the day of judgment will clear up, and rectify, all such apparent obliquities in the divine administration.—They, who live long, often become like the decaying tree, which stands till all its branches are withered, or broken off one after another. But, though the premature death of our children must necessarily be afflictive, and it behoves us all mutually to comfort each other: yet, we should not mourn as men without hope; for the Lord is able to make up all our losses. Considering our state on earth, we may properly call all our children Beriah; for “man is born to trouble, as the “sparks fly upwards.” But the supports, consolations, and prospects, which the Gospel brings to believers, are sufficient to counterbalance every evil, and to render both life and death tolerable, if not joyful.—If men venture their lives to preserve their cattle; surely we should be willing to renounce, venture, and suffer any thing for the sake of Jesus Christ and his precious salvation.

NOTES.

CHAP. VIII. V. 1. The tribe of Benjamin adhered to Judah in the division of the kingdom, and returned with the Jews from Babylon: and as the history is about to open with the translation of the kingdom from Saul, of that tribe, to David of Judah; we have here a more copious account given of it than of several other tribes: but either some of the sons of Benjamin had several names; or those called his sons were his more remote descendants: so that we cannot extricate the genealogy from the obscurity, in which to us it is involved.

inhabitants of Geba, and they removed them to ^g Manahath :

^c ii. 30. 31.

7 Naaman, and Ahiah, and Gera, he removed them, and begat Uzza, and Abihud.

^h Ruth i. 1.

ⁱ Gen. xxv. 6.

8 And Shaharaim begat children ^h in the country of Moab, after ⁱ he had sent them away ; Hushim and Baara were his wives.

9 And he begat of Hodesh his wife, Jobab, and Zibia, Mesha, and Malcham, 10 And Jeuz, and Shachia, and Mirma. These were his sons, heads of the fathers.

11 And of Hushim he begat Abitub, and Elpaal.

^k Ezra ii. 33.
Neh. vi. 2. vii.
37. xi. 35.

121. Shimhi.

^m ii. 49, 50. 52.
iv. 4.
ⁿ Josh. xix. 42.
Aijalon.

12 The sons of Elpaal ; Eber, and Misham, and Shamed, who built ^k Ono, and Lod, with the towns thereof :

13 Beriah also, and ⁱ Shema, who were heads of ^m the fathers of the inhabitants of ⁿ Aijalon, who drove away the inhabitants of Gath.

14 And Ahio, Shashak, and Jerimoth,

15 And Zebadiah, and Arad, and Ader,

16 And Michael, and Ispah, and Joha, the sons of ^o Beriah ;

^o 13.

17 And Zebadiah, and Meshullam, and Hezeki, and Heber, 18 Ishmerai also, and Jeziah, and Jobab, the sons of Elpaal ;

19 And Jakim, and Zichri, and Zabdi,

20 And Elienai, and Zilthai, and Eliel,

21 And Adaiah, and Beraiah, and Shimrath, the sons of ^p Shimhi ;

^p 13. Shema.
B. C. 1300.

22 And Ishpan, and Heber, and Eliel,

23 And Abdon, and Zichri, and Hanan,

24 And Hananiah, and Elam, and An-tothijah ;

25 And Iphdeiah, and Penuel, the sons of Shashak ;

26 And Shamsherai, and Shehariah, and Athaliah,

27 And Jaresiah and Eliah, and Zichri, the sons of Jeroham.

28 These were heads of the fathers, by their generations, chief men. These ^q dwelt in Jerusalem.

^q Josh. xv. 68.
xviii. 28. Judg.
i. 21.
^r ix. 35. Jehiel.

29 And at Gibeon dwelt ^r the father of Gibeon ; whose wife's name was Maachah :

30 And his first-born son Abdon, and Zur, and Kish, and Baal, and Nadab, 31 And Gedor, and Ahio, and ^s Zacher.

^s ix. 37. Zech-riah.
^t ix. 38. Shimeam.
B. C. 1200.

32 And Mikloth begat ^t Shimeah. And these also dwelt with their brethren in Jerusalem, over against them.

33 And ^u Ner begat ^x Kish, and Kish begat Saul, and ^v Saul begat Jonathan, and Malchishua, and ^z Abinadab, and ^a Esh-baal.

^u 1 Sam. ix. 7.
xiv. 50, 51.
^x Acts xiii. 21.
Ct.
^y 1 Sam. xiv. 49.
xxxi 2.
^z 1 Sam. xiv. 49.
Ishui.

34 And the son of Jonathan was ^b Merib-baal ; and Merib-baal begat ^c Micah.

^a 2 Sam ii 8. iv.
12. Ish-bosheth.
^b 2 Sam iv 4. ix.
6. Mephibosheth.
^c 2 Sam. ix. 12.

35 And the sons of Micah were, Pithon, and Melech, and ^d Tarea, and Ahaz.

^d ix. 41. Tarea.
B. C. 1000.

36 Ahaz begat ^e Jehoadah ; and Jehoadah begat Alemeth, and Azmaveth, and Zimri ; and Zimri begat Moza, ^e ix. 42. Jeraiah.

37 And Mosa begat Binea : ^f Rapha was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son :

^f ix. 43. Rephaiah.

38 And Azel had six sons, whose names are these, Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and Sheariah, and Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Azel.

39 And the sons of Eshek his brother were, Ulam his first-born, Jehush the second, and Eliphelet the third.

40 And the sons of Ulam were mighty men of valour, ^g archers, and had ^h many sons, and sons' sons, an hundred and fifty. All these are of the sons of Benjamin.

B. C. 900.

^g xii. 2. 2 Chr.
xiv. 8.
^h Ps cxxvii. 3—
6. cxxviii. 3—6.

V. 6—10. Ehud was that judge of Israel who slew Eglon king of Moab. And perhaps in consequence he acquired dominion among the Moabites, and lived among them ; and having many children, he removed some of them from him, and settled them in different places in his life-time.

V. 11—39. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 40. There are no remaining genealogies of any of the kings of Israel, after the division of the kingdom. But we have here an account of Saul's descendants by Jonathan, and Merib-baal, or Mephibosheth, and his son Micah for several generations. Perhaps David took care to record what passed in his days, and his descendants recorded what came after, in honour of Jonathan, David's covenanted generous friend.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord delighteth to exalt those who have been abased ; and to honour those who adhere to him, and to the king whom he hath placed upon his holy hill of Zion, to his

CHAP. IX.

The original of the genealogies of Israel and Judah, 1. The first settlers in the land after the captivity, 2. The first who dwell at Jerusalem, of the other tribes, 3—9. And of the priests and Levites, with their charge and service, 10—34. A repeated account of Saul's family, 35—44.

^a Ezra ii. 59, 62, 63.

^b 2 Chr. xxxiii. 11, xxxvi. 9, 10, 18 —20. Jer. li. 14, 15. Dan. i. 2. ^c Ezra ii. 70. Neh. vii. 73. xi. 3.

^d Josh. ix. 21—27. Ezra ii. 58. viii. 20. ^e Neh. xi. 1, &c.

^f 2 Chro. xi. 16. xxx. 11, 18.

^g Gen. xlii. 12. Num. xxvi. 20.

^h Num. xxvi. 20. Shelanites.

SO^a all Israel were reckoned by genealogies; and, behold, they were written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah, who were ^bcarried away to Babylon for their transgression.

2 ¶ Now ^cthe first inhabitants, that dwelt in their possessions in their cities, were, the Israelites, the priests, Levites, and ^dthe Nethinims.

3 And ^ein Jerusalem dwelt of the children of Judah, and of the children of Benjamin, and ^fof the children of Ephraim, and Manasseh;

4 Uthai the son of Ammihud, the son of Omri, the son of Imri, the son of Bani, of the children of ^gPharez the son of Judah.

5 And of the ^hSblonites; Asaiah the first-born, and his sons.

6 And of the sons of Zera; Jeuel, and their brethren, six hundred and ninety.

7 And of the sons of Benjamin; ⁱSallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Hodaviah, the son of Hasenuah, ⁱNeh. xi. 7.

8 And Ibneiah the son of Jeroham, and Elah the son of Uzzi, the son of Michri, and Meshullam the son of Shephatiah, the son of Reuel, the son of Ibniyah, 9 And their brethren, according to their generations, nine hundred and fifty and six. All these men were chief of the fathers in the house of their fathers.

10 ¶ And of the priests; Jedaiah, and ^kJehoiarib, and Jachin, ^kNeh. xi. 10. ^lJoiarib.

11 And ^lAzariah the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zedok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, ^mthe ruler of the house of God; ^lNeh. xi. 11. ^oSeraiah.

12 And Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchijah, ^mxxiv. 5. Num. iv. 15, 16. 28. 33. ⁿ2 Kings xxiii. 4. ^oxxv. 18. Neh. xi. 11. Acts v. 24. 26.

and Maasiah the son of Adiel, the son of Jahzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of ⁿMeshillemith, the son of Immer, ⁿNeh. xi. 12, 13. ^oMeshillemoth.

13 And their brethren, heads of the house of their fathers, a thousand and seven hundred and threescore; * very ^pHeb. mighty men of valour. xxxvi. 6. 30. 32. Neh. xi. 14.

chosen people, and his instituted worship. Numbers of renowned names are now buried in oblivion; but God honours some of those, who have been faithful and useful in their generation, by recording their names in the sacred Scriptures; and he writes the names of all his people in the book of life. May this be our privilege, however unnoticed in the partial histories of mankind! Alas, what will it avail to those who perish in an unequal contest with the Almighty, to have been admired as men of valour and activity by their fellow-creatures? Let us seek to make our peace with God; and for his sake, and after his example, to forgive our enemies, and show a decent respect to their memories: and still more to express affection for, and gratitude to, those who have been kind and useful to us, not neglecting the credit and interests of their posterity.

NOTES.

CHAP. IX. V. 1. This verse seems to be the sacred writer's account of the source from which he had transcribed the preceding genealogies. Both Israel and Judah had been thus reckoned or registered: and he had made extracts from the books of the two kingdoms, before the captivity. The ten tribes had been carried into regions at a considerable distance from Babylon; but they were at the time when this was written, in general, subject to the kings of Babylon.

V. 2. The persons that first after the captivity regained possession of their cities and lands, contained among them not only Jews, properly so called, but many Israelites from the other tribes; and also a number of priests, and Levites, and Nethinims. The Nethinims were the remainder of the Gibeonites, with others perhaps joined with them, who were given as servants to the priests and Levites. The word signifies given ones. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 3—9. From the subsequent names of the priests and Levites, it is probable, that the sacred writer is speaking of the transactions recorded by Nehemiah: (Marg. Ref.) yet the names here mentioned so differ from those recorded in the parallel passage, that it can hardly be supposed the same persons in general are meant. But in these matters there are difficulties, which are perhaps incapable of a satisfactory solution at this distance of time, though the whole might be plain to those for whose use it was principally intended.

V. 11. "The ruler of the house of God," does not signify the high-priest, but the second priest, who officiated for him when incapacitated, or one of the chief priests, who superintended the affairs of the temple in all ordinary cases. (Marg. Ref.) able men for the work of the service of the house of God.

^o Neh. xi. 15. 14 ¶ And of the Levites ; ^o Shemaiah the son of Hashub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, ^p of the sons of Merari ;

^q xxv. 2. Zaccar. Neh. xi. 17. 15 And Bakbakkar, Heresh, and Galal, and Mattaniah the son of Micah, the son of ^a Zichri, the son of Asaph ;

^r Neh. xi. 17. 16 And ^r Obadiah the son of Shemaiah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun ; and Berechiah the son of Asa, the son of Elkanah, that dwelt in the villages of the ^s Netophathites.

^s ii. 54. Neh. xi. 28-30. 17 And ^t he porters were Shallum, and Akkub, and Talmon, and Ahiman, and their brethren : Shallum was the chief ;

^u 1 Kings x. 5. 2. 18 Who hitherto waited in ^u the king's gate eastward : ^x they were porters in the companies of the children of Levi.

^y vi. 22, 23. 19 And Shallum the son of Kore, the son of ^y Ebiasaph, the son of ^z Korah, and his brethren, of the house of his father, the Korahites, were over the work of the service, keepers of the [†] Heb. thresholds. 20 And ^o Phinehas the son of Eleazar was the ruler over them in time past, and ^d the LORD was with him.

^a 2 Kings xi. 9, 15. 21 And ^e Zechariah the son of Meshelemiah was porter of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 All these which were chosen to be porters in the gates were two hundred and twelve. These were reckoned by their genealogy ^f in their villages, whom ^z David and ^b Samuel the seer ^{*} did ordain in their [†] set office.

23 So they and their children had the oversight of the gates of the house of the LORD, namely, the house of the tabernacle, by wards.

24 In ⁱ four quarters were the porters, toward the east, west, north, and south.

25 And their brethren, which were in their villages, were to come after ^k seven days from time to time with them.

26 For these Levites, the four chief porters, were in their set [‡] office, and were over the [§] chambers and treasures of the house of God

27 And they lodged round about the house of God, because ¹ the charge was upon them, and ^m the opening thereof every morning pertained to them.

28 And certain of them had ⁿ the charge of the ministering vessels, that they should ^{||} bring them in and out by tale.

29 Some of them also were appointed to oversee the vessels, and all the ^{*} instruments of the sanctuary, and the fine flour, and the wine, and ^o the oil, and ^p the frankincense, and the spices.

^f 16. Neh. xi. 25-30.
^g xxiii. xxv. xxvi. xxviii. 13. 21.
^h 1 Sam ix. 9.
^{*} Heb. founder.
[†] Or. trust 26. 2.

ⁱ xxvi. 14-18.

^k 2 Kings xi. 5. 2.
² Chr. xxiii. 9.

[‡] Or. trust. 22. 31.

[§] Or. storehouses.
² Chr. xxxi. 5-12. Neh. x. 38, 39. xiii. 5.

¹ xxiii. 32. Rom. xii. 7.
^m 1 Sam. xii. 15. Mal. i. 10.

ⁿ xxvi. 22-25. Num. iii. 25-35. Ezra viii. 25-30. Neh. xii. 44. xiii. 4, 5.
^{||} Heb. bring them in by tale, and carry them out by tale.
^{*} Or. vessels.

^o Ex. xxvii. 20.
^p Ex. xxx. 23-28.

V. 12-13. Several names may be omitted, in the genealogies of these persons ; and others introduced, which are elsewhere omitted : but the names are so far the same, as to show that the transactions recorded by Nehemiah are intended. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 19, 20. It has been conjectured, that the Jews, upon their return from Babylon, prepared a tabernacle for the worship of the Lord, before they had courage or ability to rebuild the temple. But it appears, that the inspired historian spoke of the times of Nehemiah : and the temple had been finished many years before. The word tabernacle may therefore refer to the sanctuary erected by Moses, which the temple, built after the captivity, more resembled, than it did Solomon's magnificent edifice. Indeed the sanctuary was only a tent or tabernacle, when Phinehas superintended it, in times past : yet " the LORD was with him." This seems to have been mentioned, as an instruction, and encouragement, to the priests and Levites, in the times of Ezra and Nehemiah : for there can be no reasonable doubt but that this Phinehas was intended. Among numerous instances in which the WORD of the LORD is used by the Jewish paraphrasts personally for the LORD, the following may be adduced : " In the Targum,

" the WORD of the LORD was his helper. If he who was with Phinehas was JEHOVAH the true God, and this WORD was with Phinehas ; then the WORD, in the opinion of this paraphrast, was JEHOVAH the true God." (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 22. Samuel seems to have made some regulations respecting the attendance of the Levites, before those which David afterwards established : indeed some think, David received those instructions from Samuel, according to which he regulated the courses of the priests and Levites. (Marg. Ref.) And when the Jews returned from Babylon, they ordered these matters with respect to those appointments.

V. 23. The expression here used, " the house of the tabernacle," is considered by many as confirming the opinion before mentioned ; that a tabernacle was erected, after the captivity, till the temple was finished. No doubt can, I suppose, be made as to the fact : but if the sacred historian wrote of Nehemiah's time, whatever allusion he might make to that fact, it is certain, that the temple was then finished. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 27-29. The gold and silver vessels, and other treasures appropriated to the service of God, were depo-

30 And some of the sons of the priests made the ointment of the spices.

31 And Mattithiah, one of the Levites, who was the first-born of † Shallum the Korathite, had the † set office over the things that were made ‡ in the pans.

32 And other of their brethren, of ^s the sons of the Kohathites, were over the [§]shew-bread, to prepare it every sabbath

33 And these are ^t the singers, chief of the fathers of the Levites, who remaining in the chambers were free: for || they were employed in that work day and night.

34 ^u These chief fathers of the Levites were chief throughout their generations; these ^u dwelt at Jerusalem.

35 † And in Gibeon dwelt ^x the father of Gibeon, Jebiel, whose wife's name was Maachah:

36 And his first-born son Abdon, then Zur, and Kish, and Baal, and Ner, and Nadab, 37 And Gedor, and Ahio, and ^y Zechariah, and Mikloth.

38 And Mikloth begat Shimeam. And they also dwelt with their brethren at Jerusalem, over against their brethren.

39 And Ner begat Kish, and Kish begat Saul, and Saul begat Jonathan, and Malchishua and Abinadab, and Esh-baal.

40 And the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal: and Merib-baal begat Micah.

41 And the sons of Micah were Pithon, and Melech, and Tahrea, and Ahaz.

42 And Ahaz begat ^z Jarah, and Jarah ^z begat Alemeth, and Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begat Moza, 43 And Moza begat Binea; and ^a Re-phaiah his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son.

44 And Azel had six sons, whose names are these, Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and Sheariah, and Obadiah, and Hanan: these were the sons of Azel.

CHAP. X.

Saul's defeat and death, 1—7. The Philistines abuse his dead body, 8—10. The men of Jabesh-gilead rescue it, with the bodies of his sons, 11, 12. Saul's sin, for which he died, and the kingdom was transferred to David, 13, 14.

NOW ^a the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down ^{*} slain in mount ^b Gilboa.

B. C. 1056.
a 1 Sam. xxviii. 1.
4. xxix. 1, 2.
xxxi. 1, 2.

* Heb. wounded.
b 2 Sam. i. 6. 21.
xxi. 12.

sited in the tabernacle; and the Levites lodged around it, as the appointed guard of them, as well as to be ready for their work.

V. 30. The Levites kept guard over the deposit of spices and frankincense, as well as over the other treasures: but the priests alone might compound the holy oil and incense.

V. 33. A number of the Levites were employed, by rotation, in singing praises to the LORD; and they seem to have continued the service night and day; and consequently were exempted from other employments. Moses commanded nothing concerning singers or musicians: and he forbade any to add to his words: but this could only mean uninspired persons; for no doubt God, by his prophets, might add, or diminish, or alter, as he saw good.

V. 35—44. (Marg. Ref.) This repetition seems to have been intended merely as an introduction to the ensuing history.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

In remembering the miseries of man, we should be careful not to lose sight of his transgressions, that the justice of God in them may be noticed. When sinners repent, and forsake their sins, they are in a fair way of being extricated from their trouble: and the affairs of church and state are likely to be well ordered, when men of all ranks and orders in the community concur in endeavours for that purpose.—

Whatever politicians may suppose, no description of men are more essential to the real welfare of the state, than conscientious ministers of religion; and that service requires very able men, of clear heads and steadfast minds. God will raise up such persons in those nations which he peculiarly favours: and qualify some for rulers in his church, and others for subordinate services; and it is well, when every one knows, and diligently attends to, his proper work, without envying or contemning any of his brethren. To be a door-keeper in the house of the Lord is an honourable employment: and if He be with us, it will both be comfortable to us, and profitable to others; but without this, our services will be formal, and our souls miserable. If employed in the service of the sanctuary, we have a charge to keep, as well as a work to do; and those, who “watch for men's souls, as they that must give account,” are intrusted with that which is far more valuable than the richest treasures of silver and gold. They should therefore reside upon the spot, as much as possible, in order to be near, and ready for their work, at every hour, as occasion may require. To prepare bread for the sanctuary, in their stated public preaching, may perhaps be only expected from them every sabbath: but some parts of their work must be needful every day; and they should generally be exempted from other cares and employments, that they may give themselves wholly to the word of God and prayer. Blessed be his name! if believers, we shall for ever, (not in rotation, but all together;) without interruption or cessation, praise him night and day, in his temple above.

2 And the Philistines followed hard after Saul, and after his sons; and the Philistines slew ^c Jonathan, and ^d Abinadab, and Malchishua, ^e the sons of Saul.

c viii. 33. ix. 39.
1 Sam. xiv.
39, 40. 2 Kings
xxiii. 39.
d 1 Sam. xiv. 49.
Ishui.

3 And the battle ^f went sore against Saul, and the ^{*} archers [†] hit him, and he was wounded of the archers.

e Ex. xx. 5. 2 Kings xxv. 7.
f 1 Sam. xxxi. 3
—6. 2 Sam. i. 4
—10. Am. ii. 14.
g Heb. shooters with bows.

4 Then said Saul to his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these ⁱ uncircumcised come and [‡] abuse me. But his armour-bearer would not; for ^k he was sore afraid. So ^l Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.

† Heb. found.
g Gen. xlix. 23, h 24.
h Judg. ix. 54.
i 1 Sam. xvii. 26.
36.
j Or, mock. Judg.
xvi. 21. 25.
k 2 Sam. i. 14—16.
l 2 Sam. i. 9, 10.
xvii. 23. 1 Kings
xvi. 18. Matt.
xxvii. 4, 5. Acts
i. 18. xvi. 27.

5 And when his armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise on the sword, and died.

m 1 Sam. iv. 16,
11. 18. xii. 25.
Ec. ix. 1, 2
Hos. xiii. 10, 11.

6 So ⁿ Saul died, and his three sons, and all his house died together.

7 And when all the men of Israel that were in the valley saw that they fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, ⁿ then they forsook their cities and fled: and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

n Lev. xxvi. 32.
36. Deu. xxviii.
33—43. Judg. vi.
2. 1 Sam. xiii.
6. xxxi. 7.

8 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came ^o to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his sons fallen in mount Gilboa.

o 1 Sam. xxxi. 8
2 Kings iii. 23.
2 Chr. xx. 25.

9 And when they had stripped him, they ^p took his head, and his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to carry ^q tidings unto their idols, and to the people.

p 4. 2 Sam. i. 20.
Matt. xiv. 11.

q Judg. xvi. 23, 24. Dan. v. 2—4.
23.

10 And they put his armour in the house of ^r their gods, and fastened his head ^s in the temple of Dagon.

r 1 Sam. xxxi. 16.
Ashtaroth.
s 1 Sam. v. 2—7.

11 And when ^t all Jabesh-gilead heard all that the Philistines had done to Saul, t 1 Sam. xi. 1—

11. xxxi. 11—
13. 2 Sam. ii. 4
—7.

12 They arose, all the valiant men, and took away the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh, and buried their bones under ^u the oak in Jabesh, and ^x fasted seven days.

u Gen. xxxv. 6.
2 Sam. xxi. 12
—14.
x Gen. i. 10. 2
Sam. iii. 35.

13 ¶ So Saul died for his transgression, which he ^y committed against the LORD, ^z even against the word of the LORD, which he kept not, and also ^z for asking counsel of one that had ^a a familiar spirit, to inquire of it.

y Heb. transgressed.
y 1 Sam. xiii. 17.
xv. 3. 23.
z 1 Sam. xxviii. 7
—20.
a Ex. xxii. 18.
Lev. xix. 31.
xx. 6. Deut.
xviii. 10—14.
2 Kings xxi. 6.
Is. viii. 19. Acts
viii. 9. 11. xvi.
16—18.

14 And ^b inquired not of the LORD: therefore ^c he slew him, and ^d turned the kingdom unto David the son of || Jesse.

b Judg. x. 11. 16.
1 Sam. xxviii. 15.
Ec. xiv. 3—6.
c Ps. xvii. 13. Is.
x. 7. 15.
d 1 Sam. xiii. 14.
xv. 28. xxviii.
17. 2 Sam. iii.
9, 10. v. 3.
|| Heb. Itai.

CHAP. XI.

David, by general consent, is made king over all Israel, at Hebron, 1—3. He takes Zion from the Jebusites; dwells there, and prospers, 4—9. The names, and achievements of his principal warriors, 10—47.

a xii. 23—40. 2
Sam. v. 1.
b 2 Sam. ii. 1. xv.
10.

¶ THEN ^a all Israel gathered themselves to David unto ^b Hebron, saying, ^c Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

c Gen. xxix. 14.
Deut. xvii. 15.
Judg. ix. 2. 9
Sam. xix. 13.
Eph. v. 30.
d Heb. both yesterday and the third day.

2 And moreover ^{*} in time past, even when Saul was king, thou wast he ^d that d Num. xxvii. 17.

1 Sam. xviii. 13.
Is. lv. 4. John
x. 4.

NOTES.

CHAP. X. V. 1—12. (Notes, &c. 1 Sam. xxxi.) (Marg. Ref.)

V. 13, 14. This history is repeated as an introduction to that of the kingdom of David. The Lord is said to have slain Saul, because he sentenced him to death, and gave Satan leave to tempt him to be his own executioner. Is it possible more strongly to mark the excessive criminality of consulting witches, conjurers, fortune-tellers, or sorcerers of any kind, real or pretended, than by representing Saul's conduct in this respect, as one principal reason of his rejection and awful end? (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord punishes only sinners; and none of them can escape, who do not humbly cast themselves upon his mercy: but when transgressors inquire of the Lord, and earnestly seek deliverance in his appointed way, they will certainly prevail; and if they be involved in domestic or national calamities in this world, they will be saved from the wrath to come. Alas! many “reject his counsel, and will none of his reproof,” till he leaves them to “eat of the fruit of their own ways, and to be filled with their own devices:” and numbers, who pretend to seek the Lord, are so superficial in doing it, so soon weary of it, and so ready to listen to Satan's temptations, that God accounts it no inquiry at all. May we seek the Lord whilst he is to be found, and till we have obtained pardon, peace, and sanctifying grace! Until we are enabled to renounce all fellowship with the works, and prince of darkness! And may the good Lord deliver us from unbelief, impatience, and despair, and teach us to trust in him, to obey and submit to his will; and to render due honour and kindness to all, whatever their behaviour may have been! Thus waiting on him, we shall obtain a kingdom that cannot be moved, being beyond the reach of the incessant changes and revolutions of sublunary things.

leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the LORD thy God said unto thee, ^eThou shalt * feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be ^fruler over my people Israel.

3 Therefore came all ^gthe elders of Israel to the king to Hebron; and ^hDavid made a covenant with them in Hebron ⁱbefore the LORD; and they ^kanointed David king over Israel, according ^lto the word of the LORD [†]by Samuel.

4 ¶ And ^mDavid and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is ⁿJebus; where the Jebusites were, ^othe inhabitants of the land.

5 And the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, ^pThou shalt not come hither. Nevertheless David took ^qthe castle of Zion, which is ^rthe city of David.

6 And David said, ^sWhosoever smiteth the Jebusites first shall be [†]chief and captain. ^tSo Joab the son of Zerui-ah went first up, and was chief.

7 And ^uDavid dwelt in the castle; therefore they called [‡]it, The city of David.

8 And he built the city round about, even from ^xMillo round about: and Joab ^{||}repaired the rest of the city.

9 So David ^{*}waxed greater and greater: ^yfor the LORD of hosts was with him.

10 ¶ ^zThese also are the chief of the mighty men whom David had, who [†]strengthened [†]themselves with him in his kingdom, and with all Israel, to make him king, ^aaccording to the word of the LORD concerning Israel.

11 And this is the number of the mighty men whom David had; Jashobeam [‡]an Hachmonite, the chief of the captains: he lifted up his spear against three hundred slain by him at one time.

12 And after him was ^bEleazar the son of Dodo the ^cAhohite, who was one of the three mighties.

13 He was with David at ^dPas-dammim, and there the Philistines were gathered together to battle, where was a parcel of ground full of barley; and the people fled from before the Philistines.

14 And they [§]set themselves in the midst of that parcel, and delivered it, and slew the Philistines; and ^ethe LORD saved them by a great ^{||}deliverance.

15 ¶ Now three ^{*}of the thirty captains went down to the rock to David, into ^fthe cave of Adullam; and the host of the Philistines encamped [§]in the valley of ^hRephaim.

16 And David was then ⁱin the hold, and ^kthe Philistines' garrison was then at Bethlehem.

17 And David ^llonged, and said, Oh that one would give me drink ^mof the water of the well of Beth-lehem, that is at the gate!

18 And the three ⁿbrake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David: but David would not drink of it, but ^opoured it out to the LORD,

19 And said, ^pMy God forbid it me, that I should do this thing: ^qshall I drink the blood of these men [†]that have put their lives ^rin jeopardy? for with the jeopardy of their lives they brought it: therefore he would not drink it. These things did these three mightiest.

20 ¶ And ^sAbishai the brother of Joab, he was chief of the three: for lifting up his spear against three hundred, he slew them, and had a name among the three.

21 Of the three, he was more honourable than the two; for he was their captain: ^thowbeit he attained not unto the first three.

22 ^uBenaiah the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man of ^xKabzeel, [‡]who had done many acts; he slew two lion-like men of Moab: also he went down and slew a lion in a pit in a snowy day.

23 And he slew an Egyptian, a [§]man of great stature, ^yfive cubits; and in the Egyptian's hand was ^za spear like a e 1 Sam. xix. 5.

§ Or, stood.

2 Sam. xxiii. 10.
2 Kings v. 1. Ps.
xxiii. 50. xlviii.
10.

|| Or, salvation.
Prov. xxi. 31.
* Or, complaint
over the thirty.
2 Sam. xxiii. 13.
† 1 Sam. xxii. 1.
Mic. i. 15.

g xiv. 9. 2 Sam.
v. 18. 22. 15.
xvii. 5.

h Josh. xv. 8.
giant.

i 1 Sam. xxii. 1.
xxiii. 25. Ps.
cxlii. title.

k 1 Sam. x. 5. xiii.
4. 28.
l Num. xi. 4. 5
2 Sam. xxiii. 15
16. Ps. cxliii. 6.
m Is. xlii. 3. John
iv. 10. 14.

n 1 Sam. xix. 5.
Cant. viii. 6.
Acts xx. 24. xxi.
13. 2 Cor. v. 14.
15.

o 1 Sam. vii. 5.

p 2 Sam. xxiii. 17.
1 Kings xxi. 3.
Rom. vi. 11. 2.
q Lev. xvii. 10.
11. Job xxxi. 31.
Ps. lxxii. 14.
† Heb. with their lives. Rom. xvi.
4. 2 Cor. xii. 15.
r Judg. v. 18.
1 Cor. xv. 30.

B. C. 1047.
s ii. 16. 1 Sam.
xxvi. 6. 2 Sam.
ii. 13. xviii. 2.
xxi. 17. xxiii.
18, 19.

t Matt. xiii. 8. 23.
1 Cor. xv. 41.

u 2 Sam. viii. 18.
xx. 23. xxiii. 20.
—23. 1 Kings i.
8. 38. ii. 35.
x Josh. xv. 21.
† Heb. great of deeds.

§ Heb. a man of measure.
y Deut. iii. 11.
1 Sam. xvii. 4
—7.
z xxx. 5.

NOTES.

CHAP. XI. V. 6. It is evident, that Joab was, before this, high in authority under David; but he was, as a reward of his courage and conduct on this occasion, established as commander in chief over the whole army.—The variations, between this chapter, and the parallel passages referred to, are not so material, as to need any further exposition; (Notes, 2 Sam. v. 1—10.)

weaver's beam; and he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and ^a slew him with his own spear.

24 These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and had a name among the three mighties.

25 Behold, he was honourable among the thirty, ^b but attained not to the first three: and ^c David set him over his guard.

26 ¶ Also the valiant men of the armies were.^d Asabel the brother of Joab, ^e Elhanan the son of Dodo of Bethlehem,

27 ^f Shammoth the Harorite, Helez the ^g Pelonite,

28 Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite, Abiezer the Antothite,

29 ^h Sibbecai the Hushathite, Ilai the Ahohite,

30 Maharai the Netophathite, ⁱ Heled the son of Baanah the Netophathite, 31 ^k Ithi the son of Ribai of Gibeah, that pertained to the children of Benjamin, Benaiah the Pirathonite,

32 ^l Hurai of the brooks of Gaash, ^m Abiel the Arbathite,

33 Azmaveth the ⁿ Baharumite, Eliabba the Shaalbonite,

34 The sons of ^o Hashem the Gizonite, Jonathan the son of Shage the Hararite, 35 Ahiam the son of ^p Sacar the Hararite, ^q Eliphal the son of Ur, 36 Hephher the Mecherathite, Ahijah the Pelonite,

37 ^r Hezro the Carmelite, Naarai the son of Ezbai,

38 ^s Joel the brother of Nathan, Mibhar ^t the son of Haggeri,

39 Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai the Berothite, the armour-bearer of Joab the son of Zeruiah,

40 Ira the ^u Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite,

41 ^v Uriah the Hittite, Zabab the son of Ahlai.

42 Adina the son of Shiza the Reubenite, a captain of the Reubenites, and thirty with him,

43 Hanan the son of Maacah, and Joshaphat the Mithnite,

44 Uzzia the Ashterathite, Shama and Jehiel the sons of Hothan the Aroerite, 45 Jedaiel [†] the son of Shimri, and [†] Or. Shimrite. Joha his brother, the Tizite, 46 Eliel the Mahavite, and Jeribai, and Joshavia, the sons of Elnaam, and Ithmah the Moabite, 47 Eliel, and Obed, and Jasiel the Meshobabite.

CHAP. XII.

The companies which came to David at Ziklag, 1—22. The armed troops that came to him at Hebron, 23—40.

NOW ^a these are they that came to David to Ziklag, ^b while he yet kept himself close because ^c Saul the son of

V. 10—47. (Notes, 2 Sam. xxiii. 8—39.) The marginal references and readings, show the principal differences between this part of the chapter, and the passages referred to. Several names are added to the catalogue of worthies; which, it is probable, were something less famous than those mentioned in the second book of Samuel.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

When the time arrives for the performance of God's word, those persons who before were the most averse to the things predicted, will concur to accomplish them.—Kings are not advanced for their own aggrandizement or self-indulgence; but that they should, with activity and vigour, provide for the defence and welfare of the nation.—The desire of applause and pre-eminence seems to be the highest motive, of which carnal men are capable: but they, who are born from above, are actuated by purer and nobler principles. Yet, in seeking the glory of God and the good of man by endeavouring to advance the kingdom of Jesus the Lord's anointed; they most effectually secure their own honour and exaltation. He will surely wax greater and greater, the Lord of hosts being with him, till all his enemies are put under his feet, and all his friends placed with him upon his throne. Thus, the way to be truly great is to be really useful; and to give the use and glory of all our talents and services to the Lord; and if we are at length preserved from the destruction of the wicked, we shall perceive that the Lord hath saved us with a great deliverance. May he teach us to repress all our earthly desires, to govern our appetites, to acknowledge candidly our mistakes, and completely to rectify them, when discovered; and to be gentle to and tender of others, and only severe against our own sins. Attached to the person and cause, and obedient to the orders, of our King and Captain, may we endure hardship, be valiant for the truth, and so fight the good fight of faith, that we may lay hold on eternal life, and have our names enrolled with honour in the records of the heavenly Jerusalem!

Kish ; and they were among the mighty men, helpers of the war.

2 They were armed with bows, and could use both the right hand and the left ^c in hurling stones, and shooting arrows out of a bow, even of Saul's brethren of Benjamin.

3 The chief was Ahiezer, then Joash, the sons of † Sheemaah the ^d Gibeathite ; and Jeziel, and Pelet, the sons of ^e Azmaveth ; and Berachah, and Jehu the Antothite,

4 And Ismaiah the ^f Gibeonite ^g a mighty man among the thirty, and over the thirty ; and Jeremiah, and Jahaziel, and Johanan, and Josabad the ^h Gederathite,

5 Eluzai, and Jerimoth, and Bealiah, and Shemariah, and Shephatiah the Haruphite,

6 Elkanah, and Jesiah, and Azareel, and Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korhites,

7 And Joelah, and Zebadiah, the sons of Jeroham of ⁱ Gedôr.

8 And of the Gadites there separated themselves unto David ^k into the hold to the wilderness, men of might, and men of war, fit for the battle, that could handle shield and buckler, ^l whose faces were like the faces of lions, and were as ^m swift as the roes upon the mountains ;

9 Ezer the first, Obadiah the second, Eliah the third,

10 Mishmanah the fourth, Jeremiah the fifth,

11 Attai the sixth, Eliel the seventh,

12 Johanan the eighth, Elzabad the ninth,

13 Jeremiah the tenth, Machbanai the eleventh.

14 These were of the sons of Gad, captains of the host : one of the least was || over an hundred, and the greatest over a thousand.

15 These are they that went over Jordan in the first month, when ⁿ it had ^o overflowed all his banks ; and they put to flight all them of the valleys, both toward the east, and toward the west.

16 And there came of the children of Benjamin, and Judah to the hold unto David.

17 And David went out † to meet them, and answered and said unto them, ^p If ye be come peaceably unto me to help me, mine heart shall be ‡ knit unto you : but if ye be come to betray me to mine enemies, seeing there is no ^q wrong in mine hands, ^r the God of our fathers look thereon, and ^s rebuke it.

18 Then the Spirit || came upon ^t Amasai, who was chief of the captains, and he said, ^u Thine are we, David, ^v and on thy side, thou son of Jesse : ^w peace, peace be unto thee, and peace be to thine helpers ; for ^x thy God helpeth thee. Then David m Josh. iii. 15. n Josh. xii. 15. o Jer. xii. 5. xlix. 19. * Heb. filled over.

|| Or, could resist an hundred, and the greatest a thousand Lev. xxvi. 8. Deut. xxxii. 30.

† Heb. before them n 2 Sam. iii. 24. 25 1 Kings ii. 13 Ps. xii. 1, 2.

† Heb. one 1 Sam. xviii. 1. 3. 2 Kings x. 15. 1 Cor. i. 10. 2 Cor. viii. 11. Phil. i. 27.

Or, violence o Gen. xxxi. 42. —53 1 Sam. xxiv. 11-17 xxvi. 23, 24. Ps. vii. 6 1 Pet. ii. 23. p Zech. iii. 2. Jude 9.

|| Heb. clothed. Amasai. Judg. vi. 34 xlii. 25. q ii. 17 2 Sam. xvii. 25 xix. 13. xx. 4, &c. Amasai.

r 2 Kings x. 6. s Ruth i. 16. 2 Sam. xiv. 21. Matt. xii. 30. t Gal. vi. 16 Eph. vi. 24.

u 1 Sam. xxv. 28. v 2 Sam. v. 2. Zech. viii. 23. John vi. 67, 68.

NOTES.

CHAP. XII. V. 1, 2. The sacred writer here goes back in the history, to the times which preceded the death of Saul, and records some particulars not mentioned in the books of Samuel, respecting David's advancement to the throne.—Several considerable persons resorted to him at Ziklag, and either joined his small troop, or assured him of assistance when it became necessary. Some of these were Benjamites, who were either induced by a firm belief of the word of God by Samuel respecting him ; or by indignation at the base treatment which he met with from Saul, to the disgrace of their tribe ; or because they perceived, that the Lord was departed from Saul, and was with David of a truth. The hand of God was however very conspicuous, in raising him up friends from this tribe, whence he might have expected the most determined opposition. (Note, Judg. xx. 16.)

V. 4. Perhaps Saul had conferred some honourable distinction on thirty of his most valiant captains ; (as David afterwards did on the same number of his :) and Ismaiah was placed over this illustrious company. For Ahiezer,

(3) seems to have been the chief of those who came to David at this time.

V. 8. Into the hold, &c. Either to Ziklag, or to some of those natural fortresses in which David secured himself, before he went into the land of the Philistines.

V. 14. Either these persons had the command, some over a hundred men, and others over a thousand, before they came to David ; or he preferred them afterwards, in consideration of their services ; or the passage may be understood according to the marginal reading.

V. 15. The lot of Gad was to the east of Jordan ; and it is probable, that these men crossed the river towards the west, or into the land of Canaan properly so called. It seems also, that some great emergency required their immediate interposition : but it is not stated what enemies they opposed.—Perhaps, during some part of Saul's reign, the Philistines, and other tribes, made incursions into the land of Israel ; and these resolute Gadites hastened to assist their brethren : or perhaps they were coming to join David, in his extreme danger ; and being opposed by Saul's adherents, they put them to flight, and pursued them in every direction. (8) received them, and made them captains of the band,

19 And there fell some of Manasseh to David, (* when he came with the Philistines against Saul to battle: but they helped them not: for the lords of the Philistines upon advisement sent him away, saying, He will fall to his master Saul * to the jeopardy of our heads.)

20 As he ^y went to Ziklag, there fell to him of Manasseh, Adnah, and Jozabad, and Jediah, and Michael, and Jozabad, and Elihu, and Zilthai, ^z captains of the thousands that were of Manasseh.

21 And they helped David [†] against the band of the rovers: for they were all mighty men of valour, and were captains in the host.

22 For at that time, ^e day by day, there came to David to help him, until it was a great host, like ^d the host of God.

23 ¶ And these are ^e the numbers of the [‡] bands that were ready armed to the war, and came to David to Hebron, ^f to turn the kingdom of Saul to him, according to the word of the LORD.

24 The children of Judah, that bare shield and spear, were six thousand and eight hundred, ready [§] armed to the war.

25 Of the children of Simeon, mighty men of valour for the war, seven thousand and one hundred.

26 Of the children of Levi four thousand and six hundred.

27 And Jehoiada was ^h the leader of the ⁱ Aaronites, and with him were three thousand and seven hundred.

28 And ^k Zadok, a young man mighty of valour, and of his father's house twenty and two captains.

29 And of the children of Benjamin, || the kindred of Saul, three thousand: for hitherto * the greatest part of them had kept the ward of the house of Saul.

30 And of the children of Ephraim twenty thousand and eight hundred, mighty men of valour, [†] famous throughout the house of their fathers.

31 And of ¹ the half tribe of Manasse eighteen thousand, which were expressed by name, to come and make David king.

32 And of the children of Issachar, which were men that had ^m understanding of the times, ⁿ to know what Israel ought to do; the heads of them were two hundred; and ^o all their brethren were at their commandment.

33 Of Zebulun, such as went forth to battle, [‡] expert in war, with all instruments of war, fifty thousand, which could [§] keep rank; they were || not of double heart.

34 And of Naphtali a thousand captains, and with them, with shield and spear, thirty and seven thousand.

35 And of the Danites expert in war twenty and eight thousand and six hundred.

36 And of Asher, such as went forth to battle, * expert in war, forty thousand.

37 And on ^p the other side of Jordan, of the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and of the half tribe of Manasseh, with all manner of instruments of war for the battle, an hundred and twenty thousand.

|| Heb. brethren. Gen. xxxi. 23.
* Heb. a multitude of them. 2 Sam. ii. 8, 9.

† Heb. men of names. Gen. vi. 64.

1 Jesh. xvii.

m Gen. xlix. 15.
Esth. i. 13. Is. xxii. 12-14.
Mic. vi. 9. Matt. xvi. 3. Luke xii. 56, 27.
n Prov. xiv. 8. Eph. v. 17.
o Prov. xxiv. 5. Ec. vii. 19. ix: 18.

† Or rangers of battle, or ranged in battle.
§ Or, set the battle in array.
|| Heb. without a heart and a heart. Ps. xii. 2. John i. 46.

* Or, keeping their rank. p v. 1, &c.

V. 17, 18. David had experienced much treachery even from those of his own tribe, and was therefore upon his guard: but he very frankly avowed his suspicions, and appealed to the consciences of those concerned. If they came peaceably to assist him, he would cordially unite with them; and the time would come when he should be able to recompense them; but, as he was conscious, he had not injured either Saul or his country, he reminded them, that if they came to betray him, the God of their fathers would surely avenge his cause upon them. Then Amasai, their leader, animated by a special impulse of the Spirit of God, answered him in the name of all the rest. He declared, that they were entirely attached to his person and interest; and cordially desired the prosperity of him, and all who helped him; not only as his cause was just, but as they were persuaded that it was the cause of God, and would prevail; and they desired to share the conflicts, and the successes of David and his friends. It is not certain, whether Amasai was or was not the same with Amasa, elsewhere mentioned. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 20, 21. These captains of Manasseh seem to have met David, as he was returning from the army of the Philistines to Ziklag: and though it is probable that they did not bring their companies with them; yet they both assured him of future assistance, and very seasonably helped him against the Amalekites who had spoiled Ziklag. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 22. Such numbers resorted to David, after Saul's defeat and death, and they were so loyally attached to David, so united with each other, and so powerfully illustrious and valiant; that they resembled the host of God, that is, his legions of angels.

q 1 Kings viii. 61.
xi 4 2 Kings
xx. 3. Ps. ci. 2.

r Gen. xlix. 8-- 10. Ps. cx. 3.

s Gen. xxvi. 30.
xxxii. 54. 2 Sam.
vi. 19. xix. 42.

38 All these men of war that could keep rank, came with ^a a perfect heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel: and ^r all the rest also of Israel were of one heart to make David king.

39 And there they were with David three days, ^s eating and drinking: for their brethren had prepared for them.

40 Moreover, they that were nigh them, even unto Issachar, and Zebulun, and Naphtali, brought ^t bread on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen, and meat, ^u meal, ^v cakes of figs, and bunches of raisins, and wine, and oil, and oxen, and sheep abundantly: for ^x there was joy in Israel.

t 2 Sam. xvi. 1
xvii. 27-29.
* Or, victual of meal
u 1 Sam. xxv. 18.
x 1 Kings i. 40.
2 Kings xi. 10.
Prov. xi. 10.
xxix. 2. Jer.
xxiii. 5, 6. Luke
xix. 37, 38. Rev.
xix. 5-7

V. 23—40. Some learned men understand this passage, or at least a part of it, as relating to the time when David was made king over Judah, on his first coming to Hebron: but it seems entirely to refer to his being made king over all Israel, after the death of Ish-bosheth. At that time vast numbers came to David from each of the tribes of Israel: but in different proportions, according to the degree of the cordiality and zeal of each tribe. It is probable that so small a number of Judah was present, in order that David's own tribe, over which he had now reigned seven years, might not appear to impose a king on their brethren. There was a considerable number of Levites assembled; but not at all in proportion to the multitude of the priests, the descendants of Aaron, who appeared on this occasion under a leader, perhaps appointed by the high priest: whilst Zadok who was afterwards high priest, being now a young man, headed a company of chief men, perhaps of the line of Eleazar. So greatly had that family increased, notwithstanding the slaughter which Saul had not long before made of them! The Benjamites in general had favoured the house of Saul; and numbers of them still waited for an opportunity of reviving the claim of that family, in some of its branches: for so the latter part of the twenty-ninth verse may be interpreted. The leaders of Issachar were intelligent men, who understood the signs of the times; and perceived that it was both the duty and political interest of Israel to advance David to the throne: and having great authority in their tribe, they induced them to an unanimous concurrence in this measure; though they do not seem to have brought them to Hebron.— Besides the numbers, who doubtless on various accounts were kept away, though cordially attached to David, there were three hundred and fifty thousand armed men, all heartily devoted to his service; who placed him upon the throne of Israel, with every expression of joy and affection.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—18.

Earthly princes are accustomed to honour peculiarly such persons, as have faithfully adhered to them in seasons of difficulty and danger: and in like manner, Jesus Christ will confer peculiar honour upon those, who embrace and adhere to his Gospel, in times of persecution and distress; who deny themselves, renounce their worldly interests, break through difficulties, and bear the cross, for his sake and after his example. Courage, strength, agility, ingenuity, or superior mental endowments, are only valuable to the possessors, and to the community, when, being considered as talents committed to them by the great Lord of all, they are conscientiously improved in promoting the glory of God, and the welfare of mankind; for, when abused or neglected, they prove occasions of increasing condemnation.—Long experience of the deceitfulness of mankind will teach caution to every reflecting person; but we should be afraid of growing unreasonably suspicious: and if we have a clear conscience, and use moderate precautions, we may trust in God to defend us from the effects of secret treachery, as well as of open violence; whilst we should readily forgive former injuries, and unite with those, who profess a disposition to be at peace with us, and to help us. But when we cannot but suspect men's intentions in courting our friendship; it is best, in some cases, frankly to remonstrate with them as in the sight of God. This may sometimes intimidate the insincere, and give the upright an opportunity of clearing up their characters: whilst suspicions, harboured in secret, or only whispered among friends, are often injurious to the suspected person, and always troublesome to ourselves. Integrity and affection will often, when the case requires it, dictate such frank, unreserved, and energetic language, as to afford full satisfaction: and then, cordial union in promoting one common cause, succeeds jealousies, distance, and the debility of distrust.—Peace or victory, prosperity and felicity, are ensured to those whom God helpeth, and to all who concur with them. If under the influence of his Spirit, we shall, on that account, desire to have our lot among them, and declare on their side: and if we uprightly embrace the cause of Christ, his heart will be knit unto us, and he will receive and advance us.

V. 19—40.

The cause of our king appears to a carnal eye weak and obscure, and his subjects have been hitherto comparatively few: but his kingdom and glory will, ere long, rapidly advance; and his host become, like the host of God, innumerable and invincible. The advancement of wise and good men to authority is justly considered as a cause of great and general joy; and joy naturally enlarges the heart in cheerful liberality. Thus the Saviour's exaltation to the throne of glory filled the hearts of his people with gladness: nay, the sinner's willing submission to him, ushers in a day of joy and gladness, in which his brethren share, and to which they contribute. But what a joyful time will that be, "when all kings shall fall down before him, all nations shall serve him!" Every individual, in the innumerable throng, will participate and add to the joy of all the rest: and nothing short of the perfect purity and harmony of heaven, can give us a higher idea of true happiness. Mean while, happy are they "who have understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do;" who wisely perceive it to be their duty and interest, to submit to, and

CHAP. XIII.

David, with great solemnity, fetches the ark from Kirjath-jearim, 1—8. Uzza is smitten, David is disconcerted, and the ark is left at the house of Obed-edom, 9—14.

a xii. 14. 20. 32.
2 Kings xxiii. 1.

AND David ^a consulted with the captains of thousands and hundreds, and with every leader.

b Prov. xv. 22.
1 Kings xii. 7.
2 Kings ix. 15.
c Ex. xviii. 23.
2 Sam. vii. 2.
—5.

* Heb. break forth and send.
d x. 7. Is. xxxvii. 4.

e xv. 2—14 Num. iv. 4. &c. 2 Chr. xxxii. 4. &c.
† Heb. the cities of their suburbs
vi. 54—80

† Heb. bring about.

f 1 Sam. vii. 1, 2.
Ps. cxxxii. 6.
g 1 Sam. xiv. 18.
36, 37. xxii. 10.
15. xxiii. 2. 4.
9—12

h 2 Sam. iii. 26

i 2 Sam. vi. 1.

k Num. xxxiv. 5.
—5. Joshua xvi. 3—6. 1 Kings iv. 21.

l 2 Kings xxv. 21. H. math.

m 1 Sam. vi. 2.

n Josh. xv. 9. 60.
2 Sam. vi. 2.
Baal.

o Ex. xxv. 22.
1 Sam. iv. 4.
2 Kings xix. 15.
Ps. lxxx. 1.

2 And David said unto all the congregation of Israel, ^b If it seem good unto you, ^c and that it be of the LORD our God, let us ^{*} send abroad unto our brethren every where, that are ^d left in all the land of Israel, and with them also to ^e the priest and Levites which are in [†] their cities and suburbs, that they may gather themselves unto us:

3 And let us [‡] bring again [†] the ark of our God to us: for [§] we inquired not at it in the days of Saul.

4 And all the congregation said that they would do so; for ^h the thing was right in the eyes of all the people.

5 So ⁱ David gathered all Israel together, from ^k Shihor of Egypt even unto the entering of ^l Hemath, to bring the ark of God from ^m Kirjath-jearim.

6 And David went up, and all Israel, to ⁿ Baalah, that is, to Kirjath-jearim, which belonged to Judah, to bring up thence the ark of God the LORD, ^o that dwelleth between the cherubims, ^p whose name is called on it.

7 And they ^q carried the ark of God ^a in a new cart ^r out of the house of Abinadab; and Uzza and Ahio drove the cart.

8 And ^s David and all Israel played before God with all their might, and with ^{||} singing, and ^t with harps, and with psalteries, and with timbrels, and with cymbals, and with trumpets.

9 [¶] And when they came unto the threshing-floor of ^u Chidon, Uzza put forth his hand to hold the ark; for the oxen ^{*} stumbled.

10 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzza, and he smote him, because ^v he put his hand to the ark: and ^y there he died before God.

11 And David was ^z displeased, because the LORD had made a breach upon Uzza: wherefore that place is called [†] Perez-uzza ^a to this day.

12 And David was ^b afraid of God that day, saying, ^c How shall I bring the ark of God home to me?

13 So David [‡] brought not the ark home to himself to the city of David, but carried it aside into the house of ^d Obed-edom ^e the Gittite.

14 And the ark of God remained with the family of Obed-edom in his house three months. And ^f the LORD blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that he had.

p Ex. xx. 24.
xxiii. 21. Num.
vi. 27. 1 Kings
viii. 16.
q Heb. made the ark to ride. r xv. 2. 13. Num.
iv. 15. 1 Sam.
vi. 7. 8. 2 Sam.
vi. 3.
s 1 Sam. vii. 1, 2.

t xv. 10—24.
1 Sam. x. 5.
2 Sam. vi. 5.
2 Kings iii. 15.
Ps. xlviii. 5.
lxviii. 25—27.
cl. 3—5.
¶ Heb. songs.
† Dan. iii. 5—7.
Am. v. 23. vi. 6.

u 2 Sam. vi. 6.
Nachon.

* Or, shook it.

x xv. 13. 15. Num.
iv. 15. Josh.
vi. 6.

y Lev. x. 1—3.
Num. xvi. 35.
1 Sam. vi. 19.

z Chr. xxvi.
16—20. 1 Cor.
xi. 30—32.

† 2 Sam. vi. 7—
9. Jon. iv. 1. 9.

† The breach of Uzza.

a Gen. xxxii. 32.
Deut. xxxiv. 6.
Josh. iv. 9.

b Num. xvii. 12.
13. 1 Sam. v. 10.
11. vi. 20. Ps.
cxix. 120. Is.
vi. 5. Luke. v.
8, 9.

c 1 Kings viii. 27.
Jon. xxi. 5, 6.
Matt. xxv. 24.

† Heb. removed.

d xv. 18. xvi. 5.

e xvii. 4. 5. 2
Sam. vi. 10, 11.

f 2 Sam. iv. 3.
G. Gen. xxx. 27.
xxxix. 5. Prov.
xii. 9, 10. Mal.
iii. 10, 11.

trust in, Jesus Christ the Son of David; who renounce all inconsistent connexions, pursuits, and employments for his sake; and unreservedly employ all their influence and ability to promote his cause, from love to him and to their brethren; whose love also abounds in knowledge and in all judgment: so that their beneficent endeavours are directed by heavenly wisdom, through an acquaintance with the word of God, and a maturity of experience and observation; and they consequently know how to attempt every thing in that manner, and at those seasons, which are suited to give it the greatest effect. This is to unite “the wisdom of the serpent with the harmlessness of the dove;” and if “any man lack this wisdom, let him ask it of God, who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him.”

NOTES.

CHAP. XIII. V. 1—4. It is probable, that David consulted with his principal friends and officers, about bringing back the ark, immediately after he had got possession of mount Zion, and had fixed his residence there: yet it appears, from comparing the different parts of the narrative, that he did not accomplish his design till some time after, being retarded by the incursions of the Philistines, and by other hinderances. He did not think it best, to act merely by authority, in so important a concern: but by consulting his friends, he ensured their ready concurrence, and that of their several connexions, and also of the priests and Levites. During Saul's reign, or the latter part of it at least, the ark had been neglected, and even David had inquired of God by the high-priest at a distance from it, while Saul concerned himself very little in any way about religion. Thus the regular way of inquiring the will of God, by the high priest, with the breast-plate of Judgment before the ark in the sanctuary, had been long neglected.

V. 5—14. (Notes, 2 Sam. vi. 1—11.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

When we set out in life, or obtain any temporal advancement, we should first inquire, how we may honour

CHAP. XIV.

Hiram sends timber and builders to build David a house, 1. He prospers in his kingdom, takes more wives, and has several children, 2, 3. The names of his sons, 4—7. He gains two signal victories over the Philistines, 8—17.

a 2 Sam. v. 11, 12.
1 Kings v. 1. 8.
3.

NOW ^a Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and timber of cedars, with masons and carpenters, ^b to build him an house.

b xvii. 1. 1 Kings
vii. 1—12
c xvii. 17. Ps.
lxxxix. 20—37.

2 And David perceived that ^c the LORD had confirmed him king over Israel, for ^d his kingdom was lifted up on high, ^e because of his people Israel.

d Num. xxiv. 7.
2 Sam. vii. 8, 9
e 1 Kings x. 9.
2 Chr. ii. 11.
Esth iv. 14. Is.
i. 25—27 Dan
ii. 30
f iii. 1—4. Deut
xvii. 17. 2 Sam.
v. 13.
• Heb. yet.

3 And David ^f took ^{*} more wives at Jerusalem: and David begat more sons and daughters.

4 Now these are the names of his children which he had in Jerusalem, ^g Shammua, and Shobab, ^h and Nathan, and ⁱ Solomon, g iii. 5. Shimea.

h 2 Sam. xii. 1.
i Luke iii. 31.
j 2 Sam. xii. 24.
k ii. 6. Elishama

5 And Ibhar, and ^k Elishua, and Elpalet,

6 And Nogah, and Nepheg, and Japhia, l iii. 8. Eliphelet.

2 Sam. v. 16.
Eliada.

7 And Elishama, and ⁱ Beeliada, and Eliphalet:

B. C. 1047.
m 2 Sam. v. 17—21 n xi. 3. 2 Sam. v.
3.
• Ps. ii. 1—6.
Rev. xi. 15—18.

8 ¶ And ^m when the Philistines heard that David was ⁿ anointed king over all Israel, ^o all the Philistines went up to seek David. And David heard of it, and went out against them.

p xi. 15.

9 And the Philistines came and spread themselves in ^p the valley of Rephaim.

10 And David ^{*} inquired of God, saying, ^r Shall I go up against the Philistines? and wilt thou deliver them into mine hand? And the LORD said unto him, ^s Go up; for I will deliver them into thine hand.

q xiii. 3. 2 Sam.
ii. 1.
r 1 Sam. xxx. 8.
Prov. iii. 6.

11 So they came up to ^t Baal-perazim; and David smote them there. Then David said, God hath broken in upon mine enemies by mine hand like the breaking forth of waters: therefore they called the name of that place [†] Baal-perazim.

s 1 Kings xxii. 6.
15—17.

t Is. xxxviii. 21.

12 And when they had left their gods there, David gave a commandment, and they ^{*} were burned with fire.

u Ps. xviii. 13—15. xlv. 3. cxliv.
1. 10.

† A place of breaches, or,
the lord of breaches.

13 And the Philistines ^v yet again spread themselves abroad in the valley.

x Ex. xxxii. 29.
Deut. vii. 5. 25.
1 Sam. v. 2—6.
2 Kings xix. 18.
B. C. 1046
y 2 Sam. v. 22—
25. 1 Kings xx.
22.
z 10.

14 Therefore David ^z inquired again of God; and God said unto him, Go not up after them; ^a turn away from them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees.

a Josh. viii. 2—7.
John ix. 6, 7.

15 And it shall be, when thou shalt hear ^b a sound of going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that ^c then thou shalt go out to battle: for God is gone forth before thee to smite the host of the Philistines.

b Lev. xxvi. 36.
2 Kings vii. 6.
xix. 7. Acts ii. 2.
c Judg. iv. 14.
vii. 9. 15. 1 Sam.
xiv. 9—12. Phil.
ii. 12, 13.

16 David therefore ^d did as God commanded him: and they smote the host of the Philistines from ^e Gibeon even to ^f Gazer.

d Gen. vi. 22. Ex.
xxxix. 42, 43.
John ii. 5. xiii.
17. xv. 14.
e 2 Sam. v. 25.
Geba.
f Josh. xvi. 10.
Geser.

17 And the ^g fame of David went out into all lands; and the LORD brought ^h the fear of him upon all nations.

g Josh. vi. 27.
2 Chr. xxvi. 8.

h Deut. ii. 25, xi.
25.

God and do good, and enjoy the divine blessing, in our several situations, and in the use of our possessions! Princes especially, ought to devise the most useful measures they can, to promote true religion by their example and authority; that they may have the Lord nigh unto them in all they undertake. This can only be done by consulting with others, and engaging them to concur in measures of acknowledged utility, and evidently consistent with the word of God; and by reminding, encouraging, and charging ministers to attend to their important duties in their several situations, that good examples and good instructions may abound throughout the land. When such things, being mildly proposed, seem good to the leading men, we may hope that it is from the Lord, and expect that many others, being called upon, will voluntarily assist; and that thus, the Gospel will excite general attention, without any of the antichristian weapons of compulsion. In rectifying abuses it is generally best to shun personal reflections and severe accusations: they appear malevolent, and excite opposition. Suffice it to show, that things needful have been neglected, and that it is proper for us to attend to them: and in public transgressions, humility will teach a man, to consider himself as, in some measure, guilty, and more readily to condemn himself than others. Even good men, in doing their duty, are liable to mistakes, and to act in an improper spirit: and rebukes, though merited and needed, often excite murmurs, discouragements, and hard thoughts of God. May we then, with redoubled diligence, seek to become acquainted with the whole word of God, and to make it the lantern of our paths: may we walk humbly and circumspectly, avoid rashness and presumption, rejoice in our privileges with trembling, be patient under divine rebukes, persevere in well doing without discouragement, and seek the forgiveness and acceptance of every service, from the mercy of God in Christ Jesus! Thus will the Gospel, which is to many the savour of death, become to us the savour of life, and the source of all blessings in time and to eternity.

CHAP. XV.

David prepares a place for the ark, and gives orders to the priests and Levites about bringing it from the house of Obed-edom, 1—24. He and all the chiefs of Israel attend its removal, with sacrifices and songs of praise, 25—28. Michal despises David for dancing before the ark, 29.

AND David made him ^a houses in the city of David, and prepared a place for the ark of God, and ^b pitched for it a tent.

2 Then David said, * None ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites: for ^c them hath the LORD chosen to carry the ark of God, and ^d to minister unto him for ever.

3 And David ^e gathered all Israel together to Jerusalem, ^f to bring up the ark of the LORD unto his place, which he had prepared for it.

4 And David assembled ^g the children of Aaron, and the Levites:

5 Of the sons of Kohath; ^h Uriel the chief, and his ⁱ brethren an hundred and twenty.

6 Of the sons of Merari; ^j Asaiah the chief, and his brethren two hundred and twenty:

7 Of the sons of Gershon; ^k Joel the chief, and his brethren an hundred and thirty:

8 Of the sons of ^l Elizaphan; ^m She-maiah the chief, and his brethren two hundred:

9 Of the sons of ⁿ Hebron; Eliel the chief, and his brethren fourscore:

10 Of the sons of ^o Uzziel; Amminadab the chief, and his brethren an hundred and twelve.

11 And David called for ^p Zadok and Abiathar the priests, and for the Levites, for ^q Uriel, Asaiah, and Joel, She-maiah, and Eliel, and Amminadab, 12 And said unto them, Ye are the chief of the fathers of the Levites: ^r sanctify yourselves, both ye and your brethren, that ye may bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel unto the place, that I have prepared for it.

13 For because ^s ye did it not at the first, ^t the LORD our God made a breach upon us, ^u for that we sought him not after the due order.

14 So the priests and the Levites ^x sanctified themselves, to bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIV. V. 1—7. (Notes, 2 Sam. v. 11—25.) The events, recorded in this chapter, are supposed to have taken place in the order assigned to them in the second book of Samuel; and before David attempted to bring the ark to mount Zion. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord hath so arranged matters in his providence, that all have reciprocally need of each other's assistance. Thus they learn to feel their own insufficiency, and to unite in society for common benefit. But all our advantages are from God, by whatever means or instruments they are derived to us: and we should recollect, that we possess them for the good of others, and especially for the benefit of his people. To repress that disposition to carnal security, and self-indulgence, which gathers strength by prosperity, we must expect successive conflicts and troubles. But, if we inquire of the Lord in all our difficulties, and trust in him simply; if we use the appointed means with diligence, and obey his orders without reserve; if we break every league with sin, give no quarter to our lusts, and neither spare our idols, nor covet those of others; and if we be disposed to give all the glory to the Lord: we shall not only be conquerors, but every conflict will increase our felicity, and add lustre to our eternal triumphs. Yet all the praise and honour will ultimately be ascribed to the Saviour: his kingdom is confirmed and made very high, for the benefit of all his believing people: may his fame go forth into all lands; and may all nations fear his indignation, trust his mercy, submit to his authority, and unite in glorifying his name!

NOTES.

CHAP. XV. V. 1. As David had many wives and children, he had occasion to build several houses for them. Some think that the tabernacle made by Moses was become ruinous from time and neglect. (Notes, xvi. 37—43.)

V. 4—11. The priests and Levites had been before sent to, (xiii. 2;) but it is probable, that only a few of them attended: at least, at this time greater numbers were collected, and they were arranged with more exact regularity. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 12—14. It appears from David's language to the priests and Levites, that they had before neglected to sanctify themselves, by carefully avoiding, or seeking to be cleansed from, all ceremonial pollutions; by abstraction from outward satisfactions; and by repentance, faith, prayer, and meditating on the law of God. The ark had been long stationary, and they had, through negligence,

^a 2 Sam. xiii. 7.
^b 8. xiv. 24.

^c xvi. 1. xvii. 1—
^d 5. Acts vii. 46.

* Heb. It is not to carry the ark of God, but for the Levites.

^e Num. iv. 2—15
^f 19. 20. vii. 9.
^g Deut. x. 8. xxxi.
^h 9. Josh. iii. 3
ⁱ vi. 6. 2 Chr.
^j xxxv. 3.

^k Num. viii. 13.
^l 14. 24—26. xviii.
^m 1—8. Is. lxvi.
ⁿ 21. Jer. xxxiii.
^o 17—22.
^p e xlii. 5. 1 Kings
^q viii. 1.
^r 2 Sam. vi. 12.

^s vi. 16—20. 49.
^t 50. xii. 26—28.
^u Ex. vi. 16—22.
^v Num. iii. 4.
^w h vi. 24.

^x Or, hizmen.

^y i vi. 30.

^k ii. 17. vi. 23
^l xlii. 8. 1 Sam.
viii. 2.

^m 1 Ex. vi. 22
in 11.

ⁿ xxiii. 12. 19.

^o Ex. vi. 18—22.

^p xlii. 28. xviii. 16.
^q 2 Sam. xv. 24—
29. 35. xx. 26.
^r 1 Kings ii. 35.
^s q 5—9.

^t 14. Ex. xix. 14.
^u 15. 2 Chr. xxix.
^v 4, 5. xxx. 15
^w John xvii. 17.
^x Rom. xii. 1, 2.

^y xlii. 7. 2 Sam.

^z vi. 3.

^{aa} t xlii. 10, 11.

^{ab} 2 Sam. vi. 7, 8.

^{ac} u Num. iv. 15 vi.

^{ad} 9. Deut. xxxi. 9.

^{ae} 2 Chr. xxx. 17

^{af} — 20. Prov.

^{ag} xxviii. 13. 1 John

^{ah} i. 8—10.

^{ai} x Lev. x. 3. 2 Chr.

^{aj} xxix. 15. 34.

^{ak} Joel ii. 16, 17.

15 And the children of the Levites bare the ark of God upon their shoulders with the staves thereon, as Moses commanded, according to the word of the LORD.

16 And David spake to the ^v chief of the Levites ^z to appoint their brethren to be ^a the singers with instruments of musick, psalteries, and harps, and cymbals, sounding, by ^b lifting up the voice with joy.

17 So the Levites appointed ^c Heman the son of Joel; and of his brethren, ^d Asaph the son of Berechiah; and of the sons of Merari their brethren, ^e Ethan the son of Kushaiah;

18 And with them their brethren of ^f the second degree, ^g Zechariah, Ben, and ^h Jaaziel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, Eliab, and Benaiah, and Maaseiah, and Mattithiah, and Eliphele, and Mikneiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, the porters.

19 So the singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, were appointed to sound with ⁱ cymbals of brass;

20 And Zechariah, and ^k Aziel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, and Eliab, and Maaseiah, and Benaiah, with psalteries on ^l Alamoth;

21 And Mattithiah, and Eliphele, and Mikneiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, and Azariah, with ^m harps on the ⁿ Sheminith to excel.

22 And Chenaniah, chief of the Levites, was ^o for ^p song: he instructed about the song, because he was skilful.

23 And Berechiah and Elkanah were ^q door-keepers for the ark.

24 And Shebaniah, and Jehoshaphat, and Nethaneel, and Amasai, and Zechariah, and Benaiah, and Eliezer, ^r the priests, did blow with the trumpets before the ark of God: and ^s Obed-edom and Jehiah were door-keepers for the ark.

25 ¶ So ^t David, and the elders of Israel, and the captains over thousands, went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of ^u the house of Obed-edom ^v with joy.

26 And it came to pass, when ^w God helped the Levites that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, that ^x they offered seven bullocks and seven rams.

27 And David was clothed with ^y a robe of fine linen, and all the Levites that bare the ark, and the singers, and Chenaniah the master of the ^z song with the singers: David also had upon him an ephod of linen.

28 Thus all Israel ^a brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD ^b with

^v 12.

^z Ezra vii. 24-27.
^a xlii. 8. xxv. 6.
^{Ps.} lxxxvii. 7.
^{cxlix.} cl. 3, 4.

^b 2 Chr. v. 13.
^{Ezra} iii. 11. Neh.
^{xli.} 43. ^{Ps.} lxxxvi.
^{1.} xcl. 1-3.

^c Rev. i. 3. 1.
^d 11. vi. 33. xxv.
^{1.} 1 Sam. viii.
^{2.} ^{Ps.} lxxxviii.
^{title.}

^d vi. 29. ^{Ps.} l.
^{title.}
^e vi. 44. ^{son of} ^{Kishi} ^{Ps.} lxxxix.
^{title.}

^f xxxv. 2-6. 0-31.
^g xvi. 5, 6.
^h 20. ^{Aziel.}

ⁱ xxxv. 1. ^{Ps.} cl. 5.
^k 18. ^{Jaaziel.}

^l ^{Ps.} xli. ^{title.}

^m xxv. 6, 7. ^{Ps.}
^{xxxiii.} 2. lxxxvi.
^{1.} 2. xcl. 3.

ⁿ Or, eighth to ^{oversee.} ^{Ps.} vi.
^{title.}

^o Or, for the carriage: he instructed about the carriage.

^p Heb. lifting up.
^{16.} 27.
^q ix. 21-23.

^r xvi. 6. ^{Num.} x.
^{8.} 2 Chr. v. 12.
^{13.} ^{Ps.} lxxxix. 3.

^s ^{Ps.} 13.

^t 2 Sam. vi. 12.
^{13.} 1 Kings viii. 1.

^u xlii. 14.

^v xlii. 11, 12. ^{Deu.}
^{xlii.} 7. 18. xvi.
^{11-15.} 2 Chr.

^w xx 27, 28. ^{Ezra} ^{vi.} 16. ^{Ps.} xcv.
^{1.} 2. c. 1, 2.

^x xxix. 14. 1 Sam.
^{vi.} 12. ^{Act.}
^{xxvi.} 22. 2 Cor.

^y ii. 16. ^{iii.} 5.
^u 2 Sam. vi. 13.
^{Job.} xlii. 8. ^{Ps.}

^z lxxi. 13-15.
^x 1 Sam. ii. 10.
² Sam. vi. 14.

^a Or, carriage. 22.

^b 2 Sam. vi. 15.
^z 16. xlii. 8. 2 Chr.

^c vi. 12, 13. ^{Ezra} ^{iii.} 10, 11. ^{Ps.}
^{xlii.} 1-5.

^d xlviii. 25. ^{xcviii.}
^{4-6.} cl. 3-5.

forgotten how it ought to be removed; so that the king himself first discovered the error which had been committed, and pointed it out to them: and though he joined himself with them, as "not having sought the LORD after the due order;" yet it is plain that a large proportion of the blame belonged to the priests and Levites, especially the chief persons among them. It seems, however, that they were at this time made sensible of their guilt and danger; and very seriously and reverently prepared for the solemn service.

V. 15. The Levites of the family of Kohath were appointed to carry the ark, and the priests were of that family; so that, on some occasions the priests, and on others the ordinary Levites descended from Kohath, performed this service.

V. 16. David, as a prophet, was appointed to order the several particulars concerning the solemn worship at the sanctuary, especially in respect of psalmody and music; and he seems first to have begun this arrangement when he removed the ark, though he afterwards more entirely completed it. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 18. It is doubted whether Ben be a proper name, or an appellative; in which case, the words must read, the son of Jaaziel.

V. 20, 21. Alamoth and Sheminith are musical terms, which either signify treble and bass, or some particular tunes, or the construction of the instruments to which the compositions were adapted.

V. 22. Chenaniah seems to have been the precentor, and the principal instructor of all the company in singing: though Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, had the chief authority over the singers and musicians of the three families of Levites. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 23, 24. Perhaps Berechiah and Elkanah were stationed on mount Zion, to open the doors of the tent, when the ark approached to it; and when the singers called on them for admission. (Notes, Ps. xxiv. 7-10.) And Obed-edom and Jehiah were afterwards appointed steadily to guard the door of the tent, that none might enter, but according to the law. The blowing of the trumpets was exclusively the office of the priests.

V. 26. The Levites offered these sacrifices on their own account, besides those which David offered. Thus they acknowledged the unmerited goodness of God, in enabling them with safety to perform the service allotted them; being probably conscious, that Uzziah had been smitten as much through their fault, as for his own. Some think they rested seven times, and offered a bullock and a ram each time. (Marg. Ref.) shouting, and with sound of the cornet, and with trumpets, and with cymbals, making a noise with psalteries and harps.

a 2 Sam. vi. 16.

29 And it came to pass, as ^a the ark of the covenant of the LORD came to the city of David, that ^b Michal the daughter of Saul, looking out at a window, saw king David ^c dancing and playing: and ^d she despised him in her heart.

b 1 Sam. xviii. 27, 28. xix. 11—17. xxv. 44.
2 Sam. iii. 13, 14.
c Ex. xv. 20 Ps. xxx. 11. cxlix. 3 cl 4.
d 2 Sam. vi. 20—23. Ps. lxxix. 7—9. Acts ii. 13. 1 Cor. ii. 14. 2 Cor. v. 13.

CHAP. XVI.

The ark being placed in its tent, David offers sacrifices, and liberally feasts the people, 1—3. He appoints singers and musicians to praise the Lord, 4—6. The psalm of thanksgiving then used, 7—36. The priests, singers, and porters, appointed to minister continually before the ark, 37—42. David dismisses the people, 43.

a 2 Sam. vi. 17—19. 1 Kings viii. 6. b xv. 1. 2 Chr. i. 4. Ps. cxxxii. 6.
c Ezra vi. 16—18.

SO ^a they brought the ark of God, and set it ^b in the midst of the tent that David had pitched for it: and ^c they offered burnt-sacrifices and peace-offerings before God.

2 And when David had made an end of offering ^d the burnt-offerings, and the peace-offerings, ^e he blessed the people in the name of the LORD.

d Lev. i. iii.

e 1 Kings viii. 55, 56. 2 Chr. xxix. 29. xxx. 18—20. 27.

3 And he dealt to every one of Israel, both man and woman, ^f to every one a loaf of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine.

f 2 Chr. xxx. 24. xxxv. 7, 8. Neh. viii. 10. Ez. xiv. 17. 1 Pet. iv. 9.

4 And he appointed certain of the Levites to ^g minister before the ark of the LORD, and ^h to record, and to thank and praise ⁱ the LORD God of Israel;

g 37—42. xxiii. 27—32. Num. xviii. 1—6.
h 8. Ps. cxxxviii. lxx. titles. ciii. 2. cv. 5. Ia. lxii. 6, 7.
i Gen. xvil. 7. 1 Kings viii. 15. Ps. cvi. 48. k vi. 39. xv. 16—24. xxv. 1—6.

5 ^k Asaph the chief, and next to him Zechariah, Jeiel and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mattithiah, and Eliab, and Benaiah, and Obed-edom: and Jeiel with ^l psalteries and with harps; but Asaph made a sound with cymbals;

*Heb. instrument of psalteries and harps xv. 20, 21. 2 Chr. xxix. 25

6 Banaiah also and Jahaziel the priests, ^m with trumpets continually before the ark of the covenant of God.

l Num. v. 8. 2 Chr. v. 12, 13. xxix. 26—28.

V. 27—29. (Notes, 2 Sam. vi. 12—23.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The most zealous and useful reformers have in all ages been left to make mistakes, which very inferior persons could easily discern; and especially, before their judgments were matured by experience and observation. Satan avails himself of these errors to prejudice the minds of men against their whole character and work: and the artifice readily takes with those, who are in quest of some specious pretence for despising and opposing the humbling truths and the holy service of God. But we should hence infer, that nothing perfect can be expected from mere man; and neither be offended at the miscarriages blended with laudable and useful endeavours, nor yet vindicate or adopt every sentiment and practice, which have been sanctioned by respectable and eminent men: but we should compare all, as well as we can, with the word of God, and by that criterion distinguish between the precious and the vile. Wise and good men, however, will profit by rebukes, and having discovered, they will honestly confess their mistakes, and acknowledge that they did not seek the Lord after the due order: and, upon recollection, they will both justify him in his sharpest corrections, and proceed with their work with greater circumspection. It indeed, seems one of the greatest attainments of human nature, to search out, confess, rectify, and profit by, our own mistakes and miscarriages. The Lord's choice of us, in every sense implies our being chosen to services as well as privileges; and plain and serious admonitions, from those who lead the way by good example, and whose rank and character give weight and authority to their words, will often excite the remiss-to diligence, and the ignorant and heedless to learn and attend to their duty. But, alas! pre-eminence is generally privileged with supineness and indulgence: and too often examples of avarice, pride, and licentiousness, become infamously conspicuous, through the rank of those who set them; and diffuse their baleful influence, like a destructive pestilence, among the subordinate members of the community. We have all, however, our proper place, work, and talent: every servant should know well his own business, and punctually execute it; and this cannot be done without attention to the Scriptures, and preparation of heart by the sanctification of the Spirit, vouchsafed in answer to our prayers. Every thing we engage in, must be done in dependence on the mercy and grace of God through the sacrifice of the Redeemer: and, as "it is of the LORD's mercy, that we are not consumed;" so, if we go successfully and comfortably through any service, we must remember that he hath helped us, and give him the glory; for without him we can do nothing. When God accepts our persons and our works, and makes our hearts joyful in him, and renders our services beneficial to his church; we may indeed expect, but need not regard, the scoffs and reproaches of unbelievers; and we must learn to bear them with patience, and to persevere in our compassionate prayers for those, who are thus enemies to their own souls, by opposing the cause of God which we are honoured to promote.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVI. V. 1—3. (Notes, 2 Sam. vi. 17—19.)

V. 4—6. The Levites were appointed "to record," or to put the people in remembrance of the wonderful works of God for Israel, as well as to thank and praise his name.

7 ¶ Then ^m on that day David delivered first this psalm to thank the LORD, ⁿ into the hand of Asaph and his brethren.

8 ° Give thanks unto the LORD, ^p call upon his name, ^q make known his deeds among the people.

9 ^r Sing unto him, sing ^s psalms unto him, ^t talk ye of all his wondrous works.

10 ^u Glory ye in his holy name: ^v let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD.

11 ^y Seek the LORD and ^z his strength: seek his face continually.

m & Sam. xxiii. 1, 2. 2 Chr. xxix. 30. Neh. xii. 24. d Ps. xii. xviii. titles. o Ps. cv. 1-15. p Is. xlii. 4. Acts ix. 14. 1 Cor. i. 2. q 1 Kings viii. 43. 2 Kings xix. 19. Ps. lxxvii. 2-4. lxxviii. 3-6. cxlv. 5, 6. r Ps. lxxv. 1, 2. xcvi. 1, 2. xcvi. 1-4. s Matt. xxvi. 30. Eph. v. 19. Col. iii. 16. Jam. v. 13. t Ps. xl. 10. lxxi. 17, 18. xcvi. 32. cv. 2, 3. cxlv. 4-6, 12. u Ps. xxxiv. 2. xlv. 8. Is. xlv. 25. Jer. ix. 23. 24. 1 Cor. i. 30, 31. v Ps. xlviii. 9. Prov. xiii. 17. Is. xlv. 19. lv. 6, 7. Jer. xxix. 12. Matt. vii. 7, 8. —y Am. v. 6. Zeph. ii. 2, 3. 2 Chr. vi. 41. —z Ps. lxxviii. 35. lxxviii. 61. —a Ps. iv. 8. xxvii. 8, 9. lxxvii. 1.

Doubtless David acted as a prophet in regulating this part of divine worship: and his example will not justify uninspired men, in introducing human inventions into the worship of God, and imposing them by their own authority; for when Hezekiah made similar arrangements, he only enforced what David had appointed. (Marg. Ref.)—The use of instrumental music in the worship of God was evidently prior to the ceremonial law; and therefore could form no part of it, or be abrogated with it: and though it is not required in the New Testament, yet it seems no way inconsistent with it, provided it be suited to the solemnity and seriousness of our religious rejoicing, and so regulated as really to assist the exercise of devout affections.—The sad abuse of making, what is called sacred music, a matter of mere carnal diversion, with some other subordinate evils of the same kind, forms the strongest argument against it. The trumpets alone were appointed in the law, and had a typical meaning.

V. 7. The psalm which was sung on this solemn occasion is composed of extracts from several psalms. (Marg. Ref.) Probably David had these by him, with many others, for his own private use; and he composed from them a song of praise and thanksgiving, to record the mercies of the Lord, suited to the solemnity. But afterwards he gave the other psalms also, one after another, into the hand of the chief singers, for the benefit of the people who attended the worship performed before the ark.

V. 8, 9. In these verses the inspired and enraptured Psalmist excited the people, and taught them to animate each other, in blessing the God of Israel for all his mercies, and in celebrating his glorious perfections, which are worthy to be known, admired, and extolled; and which render him the meet object of the universal and entire love, worship, confidence, and obedience of all rational creatures. He also exhorted them to meditate and converse frequently on the wonderful works of the Lord, and to proclaim them before others; to call on him in all their wants and dangers; and by every means to adore and praise him.

V. 10. To glory in God, is to value our relation to him, as our honour and privilege, far above all other distinctions; to make that alone the ground of our confidence and exultation; to account ourselves in this, more happy, more honoured, and more favoured, than any other people.

12 ^b Remember his marvellous works that he hath done, his wonders, and ^c the judgments of his mouth;

13 O ^d ye seed of Israel his servant, ye children of Jacob, ^e his chosen ones.

14 He is ^f the LORD our God; ^g his judgments are in all the earth.

15 Be ^h ye mindful always of his covenant; the word which he commanded to ⁱ a thousand generations;

16 Even of the covenant ^k which he made with Abraham, and of his oath unto Isaac;

17 And hath confirmed the same to

To glory in his holy name, is to rejoice and exult in his immutable wisdom, justice, truth, and love. And even they, who are only beginning to seek the Lord, may rejoice that he is upon a mercy-seat ready to receive their submissions, to hear their prayers, to forgive their sins, to supply their wants, and to save their souls.

V. 11. Seeking the Lord implies an earnest and diligent endeavour to obtain the knowledge and favour of God according to the revelation made of him in his word; the renewal of the soul to holiness by his grace, the safety to be enjoyed under his omnipotent protection, and the comfort and support of his Spirit under all trials and temptations, till his strength hath perfected the work of his mercy in the full salvation of both body and soul; when present glimpses of his glory, and experience of his love, shall be perfected by beholding the full display of that glory, and enjoying the full effects of that love, in heaven for ever.—The gracious aid and protection of JEHOVAH were ensured to Israel, when they sought him as dwelling between the cherubims above the ark; therefore the ark itself is called his strength: and this implies, that we must seek the Lord, through Christ, and according to the gospel. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 12. “The judgments of his mouth,” may either mean, the righteous laws and statutes given to Israel, or the just vengeance which God denounced and executed on his enemies, in Egypt, in the wilderness, and in Canaan.

V. 14. Israel, as the peculiar people of JEHOVAH, were bound to worship and obey him; and ought to rejoice in him. Indeed his word and his works, both of mercy and vengeance, which had become known and renowned among the nations far and wide, suggested powerful motives both of warning and encouragement, to his professed servants. He also governs the whole earth, in justice and in judgment; and is continually executing, in his providence, deserved punishment upon offending nations and individuals. His judgments were known in all the earth, in a most striking manner, when christianity was established in the world; while the nation of the Jews, and the idolatrous Gentiles, who opposed the cause of Christ, were exposed to the most terrible and durable calamities.

1 Gen. xvii. 7, 8.
2 Sam. xxiii. 5.
Is. lv. 3. Heb.
xiii. 20.
m Gen. xii. 3.
xiii. 15. xvii. 8.
xxviii. 13, 14.
xxxv. 11, 12.
† Heb. cord. Num.
xxvi. 53—56.
Deut. xxxii. 8.
† Heb. men of number.
n Gen. xxxiv. 30.
Acts vii. 5. Heb.
xi. 13.
o Gen. xii. 10.
xx. 1. xvi. 3.
p Gen. xxi. 24.
29. 42.
q Gen. xii. 17.
xx. 3. Ex. vii.
16, 17. ix. 13-18.
r 1 Kings xix. 16.
1 John ii. 27.
s Gen. xx. 7. xxvii.
39, 40. xlviii. 19.
20. xlix. 8-10.
t Ps. xcvi. 1-13.
u 9. Ps. xlviii. 1.
6, 7. xcv. 1, 2.
x Ps. xl. 10. lxxi.
15. xcvi. 2. Is.
li. 6, 8.
y 2 Kings xix. 19.
xxii. 27.
lxxii. 19. xevi.
10. cxvii. 13. xii.
2-6. Dan. iv. 1-3.

Jacob for a law, and to Israel for¹ an everlasting covenant, 18 Saying, "Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the † lot of your inheritance;
19 When we were but ‡ few, even^a a few, and strangers in it.
20 And when^a they went from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people;
21^p He suffered no man to do them wrong: yea, ^a he reprov'd kings for their sakes, 22 Saying, Touch not^r mine anointed, and do my^s prophets no harm.
23^t Sing^u unto the LORD, all the earth; ^x shew forth, from day to day, his salvation.
24 ¶^v Declare his glory among the heathen; his marvellous works among all nations.

25 For^z great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised: ^a he also is to be feared above all gods.

26 For^b all the gods of the people are idols: but ^c the LORD made the heavens.

27^d Glory and honour are in his presence; ^e strength and gladness are in his^f place.

28^g Give unto the LORD, ^h ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORDⁱ glory and strength.

29 Give unto the LORD^k the glory due unto his name: ^l bring an offering, and ^m come before him: worship the LORD inⁿ the beauty of holiness.

9-11. v. 12-14. vii. 12.—11 Kings viii. 41-43 Ps. lxxviii. 30, 31. lxxii. 10, 15 Is. lx. 6, 7.—m Ps. xcv. 2. c. 4.—n 2 Chr. xx. 21 Ps. xxix. 2. 1. xevi. 6, 9. cx. 3 Ez. vii. 20. xiv. 25.

z Ps. lxxviii. 7. cxlv. 3-6. Is.
xl. 12-17. Rev.
xv. 3, 4.
a Ex. xv. 11. Ps.
lxxvi. 3 — 5
lxxvi. 7. Jer. v.
12. x. 6-10.
b Lev. xix. 4. Ps.
cxv. 4-8. Act.
xix. 26. 1 Cor.
viii. 4.
c Is. xlii. 5. Jer.
x. 11, 12.
d Ps. viii. 1. xvi.
11. lxxiii. 2, 3.
John xvii. 24.
e Ps. xxvii. 4-6.
xxviii. 7, 8.
f Ps. xxi. 6.
g Ps. xxix. 1, 2.
lxxviii. 34.
h Ps. lxxvi. 1, 2.
lxxvi. 4. 7.
lxxviii. 8-10.
ixviii. 4. c. 1, 2.
Is. xl. 10.
i xxix. 10-14.
Ps. xcv. 1, 2.
1 Cor. xv. 12.
2 Cor. xii. 9, 10.
Eph. i. 6, 17-19.
k Ps. lxxix. 5-6. cxviii. 3-5.
cxviii. 13, 14.
Is. vi. 3. Rev. i.
9-11. v. 12-14. vii. 12.—11 Kings viii. 41-43 Ps. lxxviii. 30, 31. lxxii. 10, 15 Is. lx. 6, 7.—m Ps. xcv. 2. c. 4.—n 2 Chr. xx. 21 Ps. xxix. 2. 1. xevi. 6, 9. cx. 3 Ez. vii. 20. xiv. 25.

V. 15-19. The covenant of the Lord with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, engaged to their posterity the inheritance of Canaan. This was absolute, as a law which requires prompt obedience. Their descendants must inherit the land; but in which of their generations, or for how long a time that should be, depended on other circumstances, which were declared by the Sinai-covenant. A thousand generations is a large definite number taken for an indefinite one; and this language was suited to lead the thoughts of pious Israelites to the eternal inheritance typified by Canaan. The oath, by which the Lord condescended to ratify this engagement, showed the immutability of his counsel; and represented the covenant of grace, as irreversibly confirmed with every true believer. David called upon the people to remember this covenant: that considering from how small beginnings, through how many and formidable difficulties, and after how many delays, the Lord's engagement had been fulfilled; they might be animated to praise him, encouraged to trust him, and induced to cleave to and obey him.

V. 20-22. The patriarchs were the Lord's anointed, as they were believers, prophets, priests, types, and ancestors of Christ; in respect of the Lord's choice of them, his grace bestowed upon them, and their spiritual consecration to his service; though they were not externally anointed with oil, that we read of. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 23, 24. David having taken a suitable passage from one psalm, to stir up the congregation to celebrate the praises of God, for his special mercies to Israel; from another psalm, adds a solemn call to all the inhabitants of the earth to join in his praises, as the only living and true God, the Creator and Judge of the world, and the God of salvation; and from day to day to make known his glory and salvation still more widely.

V. 25, 26. The power, majesty, authority, eternity, omniscience, omnipresence, and unchangeableness of God, are his greatness: as his justice, wisdom, truth, goodness, and mercy form his holiness. In both respects he is altogether glorious, and infinitely exceeds the most exalted praises, and even the comprehension of the noblest of all created intelligences. Thus he is the sole object of fear, and reverential worship, and adoring love; while all others, to whom divine worship ever was rendered, are either senseless stocks, or fallen angels, or mere creatures, who cannot help their worshippers, or punish their despisers.

V. 27. Wherever the Lord displays his presence by his operations, he shows us the glory and honour of his perfections: but in heaven, where his presence is manifested, in a manner to us inconceivable and ineffable, his glory and honour beam forth upon the blessed inhabitants, so as to transform them fully into his holy image of light, purity, and felicity, and to be reflected back in their rapturous unceasing worship and service of him. This is, in a feeble way, imitated and emulated, in his place, his sanctuary, his church on earth. There his power and beauty are in a measure displayed; and the true believer beholding in Christ Jesus the glory of the Lord, "is changed into the same image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord;" and thus is both made meet for the inheritance of the saints in light, and enjoys the earnest of it.

V. 28, 29. This is an exhortation to all who then heard, and all who now hear or read it, to ascribe to JEHOVAH the tribute of praise and adoration, which he demands as his due; to allow that all glory belongs to him, and that all power resides in him, or is derived from him; to render to him that gratitude, love, and service, which he deserves from all as their Creator and hourly Benefactor. This cannot be withheld without the basest ingratitude. "All the kindreds of the earth," form but one family; and ought to unite in the service of their common Father. But all had sinned, and fallen under condemnation: yet through the Redeemer, who was promised from the beginning, all were invited to approach the Lord with their worship and oblations at his sanctuary. This may be called, the beauty of holiness, from the especial presence of the Lord, dwelling above the ark between the cherubim, upon the mercy-seat as Israel's God; as typifying the human nature of Jesus Christ; and representing the believer's heart, as become an o 23. Rev. xi. 15. p Ps. xxxiii. 9.

xciii. 1. cxlviii.
5. 6. Is. xlix. 8.
Col. i. 17. Heb.
i. 3.

30 • Fear before him, all the earth: the world also shall be ^r stable, that it be not moved.

q Ps. xix. lxxxix.
5. cxlviii. 1-4.
Luke ii. 13, 14.
xv. 10.

31 ^a Let the heavens be glad, and ^r let the earth rejoice: and let men say among the nations, ^s The LORD reigneth.

r Ps. xcvi. 1. xcviii. 4. Luke
ii. 10.

32 Let ^t the sea roar, and the fulness thereof: let the ^u fields rejoice, and all that is therein.

s Ps. xciii. 1, 2.
xcvi. 10. xcix.
1. cxlv. 1. Is.
xxxiii. 22. Mat.
vi. 13. Rev. xix. 6.

t Ps. xciii. 4.
xcviii. 7.

33 Then shall ^x the trees of the wood sing out at the presence of the LORD, ^y because he cometh to judge the earth.

u Ps. xcvi. 8.
xcviii. 9, 10. Is.
xlv. 23. lv. 12.

x Ps. xcvi. 12, 13.
Ez. xx. 46, 47.

34 O ^z give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

y Ps. xcvi. 9.
2 Thes. i. 10.
Rev. xi. 17, 18.

z Ezra iii. 11. Ps.
cvi. 1. cvii. 1.
cxviii. 1. cxlvi.
1. &c. Jer. xxxiii.
11.

35 And say ye, ^a Save us, O God of our salvation, and gather us together, and deliver us from the heathen, ^b that we may give thanks to thy holy name, and ^c glory in thy praise.

w Ps. xiv. 7. liii. 6. lxxxix. 9, 10. cvi.
47, 48.

b Ps. cv. 45. Is.
xliii. 21. Eph. i.
12. 1 Pet. ii.
9, 9.

c 9, 10. Ps. xlv.
8. Is. xiv. 25.
1 Cor. i. 31.

36 ^d Blessed be the LORD God of Israel for ever and ever. And ^e all the d 1 Kings viii. 15.

56. Ps. lxxxii.
18, 19. cvi. 48.

e Eph. i. 3. 1 Pet. i. 3.

— e Deu. xxvii. 15. Neh. viii. 6. Jer. xxviii. 6. 1 Cor. xiv. 16.

habitation of God through the Spirit. When, however, we approach the Father, upon a mercy-seat, through the sacrifice and mediation of the Son, and under the influences of the Holy Spirit: then, and then only, do we worship God in the beauty of holiness.

V. 30. Let all men fear the power, justice, and majesty of God: let them fear his wrath, and flee for refuge to his mercy: let them reverence his authority and excellency, and learn to worship and obey him. If this were done, it would render the moral state of the world as stable and immovable, and keep every thing in as great order and regularity, as his creating and upholding word hath established the natural state of it: and to this the Gospel is suited to bring all who embrace it.

V. 31. Wise, righteous, and good kings, and equitable laws, impartially administered, make prosperous nations; and all good subjects must rejoice in such a government: but traitors and criminals tremble on that very account.—The Lord, who reigneth over all, is perfect in his character, his law, and his administration: this alone would be cause of universal joy, if all were loyal and obedient; yet it speaks terror to the sinner's conscience. But as the Lord reigneth in Jesus Christ upon a throne of grace; even sinners, yea, the vilest, may rejoice, when desirous of forgiveness and reconciliation, they are made humbly willing to become his subjects: so that men of all nations on earth are called on to join the gladness of the blessed inhabitants of heaven; and in exulting joy to proclaim, that "the LORD God omnipotent reigneth." (Marg. Ref.)

V. 32—34. All the parts of nature are here poetically addressed by the royal prophet, to join the universal song of joy and praise, and in their several ways to welcome JEHOVAH as the Sovereign of the universe; and to wait the great decisive day, when he will come, as the Saviour of his people, to judge the world in righteousness. Per-people said Amen, and praised the LORD.

37 ¶ So he left there, before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, ^f Asaph and his brethren, to minister before the ark continually, ^g as every day's work required:

f 4-6. xv. 17--
24. xxv. 1-6.

g 2 Chr. viii. 14.
Ezra iii. 4.

38 And ^h Obed-edom, with their brethren, threescore and eight; Obed-edom also the son of ⁱ Jeduthan, and Hosah to be porters:

h xiii. 14. xxvi. 4 —8.

i xxv. 3.

39 And ^k Zadok the priest, and his brethren the priests, ^l before the tabernacle of the LORD, ^m in the high place that was at Gibeon.

k xii. 28.

l xxi. 29. 2 Chr.
i. 3.

m 1 Kings iii. 4.

40 To ⁿ offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD upon the altar of the burnt-offering continually, ^{*} morning and evening, and to do according to all that is written in the law of the LORD, which he commanded Israel;

n Ex. xxix. 32-- 42. Num. xxviii.
3-8.

* Heb. in the morning and in the evening.

41 And with them ^o Heman and Jedu-

o 37. vi. 39-47.
xxv. 1-6.

haps all the different ranks and descriptions of the human species, who have feared the Lord, and hoped in his mercy, and who will then unanimously rejoice in the consummation of their felicity, are here intended under figurative expressions. The first coming of Christ likewise, with the calling of the Gentiles, and the surprising and most happy change effected by the Gospel, in the moral and religious state of the world, as preparatory to his second coming, seem also to have been predicted. Indeed nothing but the plenteous goodness of God, the perpetuity and eternity of his mercy in Christ Jesus, can encourage a sinner to hope for and desire his appearing as a Judge; all therefore, but believers, must tremble at the thoughts of that solemn season, and will be driven to desperation when it shall arrive.

V. 35, 36. Many Israelites, even when David came to the throne, might be dispersed in other nations by the frequent wars waged with their neighbours. And he prayed that they might be gathered from their dispersions, to join in this joyful worship. Perhaps the Spirit of God, that spake by the Psalmist, intended the gathering of Israel from future and greater dispersions; and it may well be accommodated to the present state of that nation, and our hope of their future calling into the church, as well as to the collecting together of believers from all the nations of the earth, to bless and adore the God of Israel, in and through the Lord Jesus Christ. We can scarcely stretch our thoughts to conceive the effect, which these high praises of God, sung by so vast a multitude, with harmonious elevation of heart and voice, upon this joyful occasion, must have produced: it naturally leads our thoughts to the songs of the redeemed of the Lord in glory; and perhaps we are not in this world, capable of more just and spiritual ideas of them, than are suggested by this subject, though we are sure that they are unspeakably more sublime and refined. (Marg. Ref.) p xli. 31. Num. i.

17. Ez. viii. 20.
q 34. 2 Chr. v. 4.
13. vii. 3.

r 2 Chr. xxix. 25.
—23. Ps. cl. 3
—6.

thun, and the rest that were chosen, who were ^p expressed by name, ^q to give thanks to the LORD, because his mercy endureth for ever;

42 And with them Heman and Jeduthun with ^r trumpets and cymbals, for those that should make a sound, and with ^s musical instruments of God. And ^s xxv. 6. Heb for the gate.

the sons of Jeduthun were ^{*} porters.

43 And ^t all the people departed, every man to his house: and David returned ^u to bless his house. t 2 Sam. vi. 19. 20. 1 Kings viii. 66. u Gen. xviii. 19. Josh. xxiv. 15. Ps. cl. 2.

V. 37—43. Abiathar was high-priest at this time; and, it is probable, he resided at Jerusalem. The stated worship before the ark consisted principally of Psalmody and music, over which Asaph presided. But Zadock, of Eleazar's line, as next in authority under the high-priest, resided at Gibeon, where the tabernacle and the brazen altar still remained; and there, with the other priests, he took care that all the sacrifices prescribed by the law should be regularly offered. Psalmody was constantly performed here also, under the direction of Heman and Jeduthun: and they had with them the sacred trumpets, which seem to have been kept by them, though used by none but the priests. When David brought the ark from obscurity, he was directed to convey it to Jerusalem, because it was to be stationed there. As he intended immediately to build a temple for its reception, he did not remove the tabernacle of Moses thither; but prepared a temporary tent, perhaps formed in the same manner: and when he was not allowed to build the temple, he made no alteration, but attended to both separately all his days. It seems that these regulations were made and declared, before the people separated, and were continued from that very day.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—12.

The public revival of religion, and the pure worship of God, being countenanced and protected by the powers that be, are joyful events to believers: and when their hearts are enlarged with gratitude to God, they will also be expanded in liberality towards men, and disposed to pray for them, and to do good to them, for his sake. It is a good and pleasant thing to be thankful, and we should carefully record and frequently review the Lord's mercies, to us and to his church, that we may be excited to abound in joyful praises: and ministers are especially appointed by the son of David our King to animate, and assist the people thus to glorify and rejoice in God, by preaching to them the gospel of salvation, and by every other means in their power. The streams of mercy we partake of should be traced back to that fountain of love whence they are derived; and in thanking the Lord for his benefits to us, we should celebrate the glorious excellencies of his nature. This will also encourage our own faith and hope, and excite the attention of others to observe and admire his marvellous works: and therefore we should be unreserved and open, in singing and speaking forth the praises of our God. Riches, pre-eminence, wisdom, and strength, are precarious blessings, in which we must not glory and rejoice: but let him that glorieth, glory in his relation to the Lord our salvation. To know, love, and belong to him, constitutes the chief honour and happiness of man; and forms that good part which shall never be taken from us. Whilst the assured believer boldly glories in the righteousness, mercy, truth, and power of his reconciled God, let the trembling sinner rejoice also; for he casteth out none that come, and saveth all who trust in him. But let us all learn to seek him diligently and continually: not only that we may rejoice in his favour; but that we may be strengthened by him, to perform every service, and triumph over all our inward and outward enemies. Indeed we could no longer distrust either his mercy or his power, if we duly remembered his works of old; especially the marvellous work of redemption, through Jesus Christ, which hath eclipsed all former displays of his wisdom, truth, and love. Nor are the judgments of his mouth less worthy of our attention, than the operations of his hands; by them we are instructed and directed: and even the denunciations of his wrath, and the execution of his righteous vengeance upon sinners, warn us to flee from the wrath to come, and to give diligence to make our calling and election sure; whilst his mercies are recorded, to enliven our gratitude and encourage our hope.

V. 13—29.

Happy are the chosen servants of God, who "are followers of them who through faith, and patience; inherit the promises:" He is their portion, and their everlasting recompense; whilst his worship and service form the solace of their souls in this evil world. "He is ever mindful of his covenant," and he makes it a law to himself, an invariable rule of his conduct towards his people: and if we were duly mindful of it, we should derive great encouragement from his promises, and from that oath which he hath interposed for the "strong consolation of all those, who have fled for refuge to lay hold on the hope set before them;" while love and gratitude would, as an inward law in our minds, command and constrain our most devoted obedience. They, who are interested in his promise of eternal life, by faith in Jesus Christ, will be carried through all difficulties, and rendered superior in all conflicts, though in themselves they are few and poor. Here, they wander as strangers and pilgrims: but compared with them the most potent monarchs are accounted mean and vile, in the judgment of God. They have received the unction of his Holy Spirit; his seal is affixed to them, and no man can injure them with impunity: nay, nothing can possibly harm them, but all things shall eventually work together for their good. Let us however be careful of prematurely concluding, that we are numbered with them: let us seriously appeal to our consciences and experience, whether the Lord of the whole earth be that Lord whom we desire to obey? And whether salvation by Jesus Christ from deserved wrath, from Satan, sin, and this present evil world, be our daily prayer, hope, and rejoicing? Do we perceive and adore the glory of the divine perfections, and rejoice in celebrating his praise? And do

CHAP. XVII.

David, purposing to build a temple, is encouraged by Nathan, 1, 2. The Lord afterwards, by Nathan, prohibits it; but with many encouraging promises, 3—15. David's prayer and thanksgiving, 16—27.

a 2 Sam. vii. 1, 2.
Dan. iv. 29, 30.

b 2 Sam. xii. 1.
1 Kings i. 8.

c Jer. xxii. 15.
Hag. i. 4.

d Ps. cxxxii. 5.
Acts vii. 46.

e xvi. 1. Ex. xl.
19—21. 2 Sam.

vi. 17. 2 Chr.
i. 4.

f xxxii. 7. xxxviii. 2.
Josh. ix. 14.

g 1 Sam. xvi. 7.
Ps. xx. 4. 1 Cor.

xiii. 9.

h 1 Sam. x. 7.
2 Sam. vii. 3.

i Zech. viii. 23.
xxx. 21. Amos

iii. 7.

j Is. lv. 8. Rom.
xi. 33, 34.

k xxxii. 8. xxxviii. 2.
3. 2 Sam. vii.

1. 1 Kings viii.
19.

* Heb. been.

i Ex. xl. 2. 2 Sam.

vi. 17. 1 Kings

viii. 4. 16.

NOW it came to pass, ^a as David sat in his house, that David said to ^b Nathan the prophet, Lo, ^c I dwell in an house of cedars, but ^d the ark of the covenant of the LORD remaineth ^e under curtains.

2 Then Nathan said unto David, ^f Do all that is in thine heart: ^g for God is with thee.

3 And it came to pass the same night, that ^h the word of God came to Nathan, saying,

4 ⁱ Go and tell David my servant, Thus saith the LORD, ^k Thou shalt not build me an house to dwell in:

5 For I have not dwelt in an house since the day that I brought up Israel, unto this day; but have ^{*} gone ^l from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to another.

6 Wheresoever I have ^m walked with all Israel, spake I a word to any of ⁿ the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to ^o feed my people, saying, Why have ye not built me an house of cedars?

7 Now therefore thus shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^p I took thee from the sheep-cote, ^q even ^r from following the sheep, that thou shouldest be ^s ruler over my people Israel:

8 And ^t I have been with thee whithersoever thou hast walked, and ^u have cut off ^v all thine enemies from before thee, and have ^w made thee a name like the name of the great men that are in the earth.

9 Also ^x I will ordain a place for my people Israel, and will ^y plant them, and they shall dwell in their place, ^z and shall be moved no more; neither shall ^a the children of wickedness waste them any more, (^b as at the beginning,

10 And ^c since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people

m Ex. xxxiii. 14, 15. xl. 35—38,
Lev. xxvi. 11,
12. Num. x. 33
—36. Deut. xxxiii.
14. 2 Cor. vi. 15.
Rev. ii. 1.

n Judg. ii. 16—19.
1 Sam. xii. 11.
2 Sam. vii. 7.
tribes. Acts xiii.
20.

o xi. 2 Ps. lxxviii.
71. 72. Jer. xxxii.
4. Ez. xxiv. 2.

p Jc. v. 4.

q Ex. iii. 1. 10.

r 1 Sam. xvii. 15.

s 2 Sam. vii. 8.

t Ps. lxxviii. 70.

u 1 Am. vii. 14.

v Luke v. 10.

w Heb. from after.

x 2 Sam. vi. 21.

y Mic. v. 2. Matt.
ii. 6.

z 1 Sam. xviii. 14.

a 2 Sam. vii.

b viii. 6. 14. Ps.

xlvi. 11.

c 1 Sam. xxvi. 10.

xxxii. 1—6.

d 2 Sam. xxii. 1.

e 38—42.

f Ps. lxxxv. 7.

g cxlii. 7. 8. Luke

i. 52.

h Jer. xxxi. 3—

12. Ez. xxxiv.

13. xxxvi. 14, 15.

x Ps. xlv. 2. ver.

xlv. 6. xxxlii.

41.

y Ez. xxxvii. 25.

z Ps. lxxxix. 22.

a Eph. ii. 2; 3.

v. 6.

b Is. ix. 18.

c Ex. i. 13, 14.

d ii. 23.

e Judg. iii. 8. iv. 3.

f vi. 5. 6. 1 Sam.

xiii. 5, 6. 19, 20.

we yield ourselves to his service; depending on his mercy and grace, and lamenting that we love him no more and serve him no better? All this, and far more, is due to him: for he is infinitely great, holy, and good; all our praises are beneath his excellency, and nothing can be compared with his uncreated majesty. But let us devote all we have and are to him, and aim to worship him “in the beauty of holiness.”

V. 30—43.

The LORD our God is greatly to be feared. All the earth should stand in awe of him, for his wrath against the workers of iniquity is intolerable and eternal; but “in his favour there is life, in his presence there is fulness of joy, and at his right hand there are pleasures for evermore.” He is glorious as our Creator and Judge, but more glorious as a Saviour: in that character sinners may approach and worship him with acceptance and comfort; and men on earth may rejoice in his universal and everlasting kingdom, as well as the holy inhabitants of heaven; because in Christ Jesus, “He is good, and his mercy endureth for ever.” Oh that there were such a heart in us and in all men, thus to fear him and to hope in his mercy; that we might look forward with comfort, and exultation to our meeting him upon his awful judgment seat! He is continually collecting before his throne, that chosen remnant which the Saviour hath redeemed unto God with his blood, from all the nations of the earth: and there being freed from sin, admitted to the beatific vision, and filled with love, and gratitude, and joy, they sing eternal praises to his name. As we successively depart this life, may our souls be gathered unto them; and may that time speedily arrive, when the scattered Jews shall at length be gathered into the church, and the fulness of the Gentiles brought in, to “give thanks to his holy name, and to glory in his praise!” Amen, and Amen! In this life believers enjoy, from time to time, earnest and foretastes of heavenly bliss; but when they cannot reach such fervent affections and exalted strains, they must steadily persevere in using the means of grace as sinners, “beholding the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world:” and the continual attendance of his appointed ministers in his courts, is not only right in itself, but an encouragement to faith and hope, and a help to the praises and thanksgivings, of the people. Finally, it is well, when one duty prepares the soul for another; when public worship renders us more constant and spiritual in family and secret devotion; and when the effects of the whole appear in our conduct in relative life, and in society.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVII. V. 5. Tent to tent, &c. In the wilderness, the ark was taken out of the tent, when the camp of Israel marched: and was returned into it, when they rested. It was afterwards taken from the tabernacle at Shiloh, and then stationed at Kirjath-jearim, doubtless in a tent prepared for it; and thence David removed it to another tent on mount Zion. (Notes, 2 Sam. vii.)

3 Ps. xxi. 8, 9.
Isa. xlii. 23. c.

c Ex. i. 21. 2
Sam. vii. 11. Ps.
cxxxvii. 1.

cxxxix. 15. 28.
Amos xiii. 30.
1 K. i. 21. 21
10. Acts ii. 29.
2 Sam. vii. 12.
3. xli. 24. 25.
3 Kings viii. 20.
Ps. cxxxii. 11.
Ec. xxxiii. 5. 6.
Rom. i. 3, 4.

xvii. 10. 10. xxviii.
6-10. 1 Kings v.
Zech. vi. 12.
3. John ii. 19-
21. Col. ii. 9.
Ps. lxxxix. 4.
29. 36, 37. Is.
ix. 7. Dan. ii.
44. 1 Cor. xv.
15.

2 Sam. vii. 14.
Ps. lxxxix. 26.
27. Heb. i. 5.
Ps. ii. 7. 12.
Luke i. 35.
John iii. 35.
2 Sam. vii. 15.
13. 1 Kings xi.
12, 13. 26. 1 Sam.
xv. 28.

Ps. ii. 6. lxxxix.
36. Luke i. 32.
38. Heb. iii. 6.
2 Sam. vii. 17.
Jer. xxxiii. 28.

2 Sam. vii. 18.
2 Kings xix. 14.
Gen. xxxii. 10.
Ps. cxlv. 3.
t Juig. vi. 15.
1 Sam. ix. 21.

u Gen. xlviii. 15.
16. 1 Sam. vii.
12. Acts xxvi.

22. 2 Cor. i. 10.
x. 7. 8. 2 Sam.
vii. 19. xli. 8.
2 Kings iii. 18.
Is. xlix. 6.
v. 11-15. Eph.
iii. 20.

21 Kings iii. 13.
Ps. lxxxviii. 70-
73. lxxxix. 19.
Sc. Phil. ii. 8-41.

a 1 Sam. ii. 30.
2 Sam. vii. 20-
31.

b 1 Sam. xvi. 7.
Ps. xxxix. 1.
John i. 23. 17.
Rev. ii. 23.

c Is. xxxvii. 35.
xlii. i. xlix. 3. 6.
1 Matt. xi. 25.
Eph. i. 9-11.
ad. 11.

Israel.) ^a Moreover I will subdue all thine enemies. Furthermore I tell thee that ^e the LORD will build thee an house.

11 And it shall come to pass, ^f when thy days be expired that thou must ^g go to be with thy fathers, that ^h I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom.

12 ⁱ He shall build me an house, and I will stablish his throne for ever.

13 ^j I will be his father, and he shall be ^k my son: and ^l I will not take my mercy away from him, ^m as I took it from him that was before thee:

14 But I will settle him ⁿ in mine house, and in my kingdom for ever:
and his throne shall be established for evermore.

15 ^o According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

16 ^p And David the king came and ^q sat before the LORD, and said, ^r Who am I, O LORD God, and ^s what is mine house, ^t that thou hast brought me hitherto?

17 And yet this was ^u a small thing in thine eyes, O God; for ^v thou hast also spoken of thy servant's house for a great white to come, and ^w hast regarded me according to the estate of a man of high degree, O LORD God.

18 What can David speak more to thee for ^x the honour of thy servant? for ^y thou knowest thy servant.

19 O LORD, for ^z thy servant's sake, and ^a according to thine own heart, hast thou done all this greatness, in making known all these * great things.

20 O LORD, there is ^b none like thee, neither is there any God ^c beside thee, ^d according to all that we have heard with our ears.

21 And ^e what one nation in the earth is like thy people Israel, whom God went to ^f redeem to be his own people, to ^g make thee a name of ^h greatness and terribleness, ⁱ by driving out nations from before thy people, whom thou hast redeemed out of Egypt?

22 For ^j thy people Israel didst thou make thine own people for ever; and thou, LORD, becamest their God.

23 Therefore now, LORD, ^k let the thing that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, be established for ever, and do as thou hast said.

24 Let it even be established, ^l that thy name may be magnified for ever, saying, The LORD of hosts is the God of Israel, even ^m a God to Israel: and let the house of David thy servant be established before thee.

25 For thou, O my God, hast ⁿ told thy servant, ^o that thou wilt build him an house: therefore thy servant hath ^p found in his heart to pray before thee.

26 And now, LORD, ^q thou art God, and hast promised this goodness unto thy servant:

27 Now therefore ^r let it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may be before thee for ever: for thou ^s blessest, O LORD, and it shall be blessed for ever.

* Heb. greatnesses. xxix. 11, 12. Ps.
cxi. 3. 6.
e Ex. xv. 11 xviii
11. Deut. iii. 24.
Ps. lxxxix. 6. 8.
Is. xl. 18. 25.
Jer. x. 6, 7.
f Deut. iv. 35. 39.
1 Sam. i. 2. Is.
xliii. 10. xlv. 6.
xiv. 5. 22.
g Ps. xlv. 1.
Is. xlviii. 3, 4. Is.
lxvii. 1.
h Deut. iv. 7. 32
-34. xxxiii. 26
-29. Ps. cxlvii.
20.
i Ex. iii. 7. 8. xix.
4-6. Deut. xv.
15. Ps. lxxxvii.
15. cvii. 2. cxli.
9. Is. lxiii. 9.
Tit. ii. 14.
k Neh. ix. 10. Is.
xlviii. 9. Ez. xx.
9. 10.
l Deut. iv. 34. Ps.
lxxv. 5. lxxvi. 3-7. cxiv. 3-2.
Is. lxviii. 3.
m Deut. vii. 1, 2.
Josh. x. 42.
xxi. 43-45.
xxiv. 11, 12. Ps.
xlv. 2, 3.
n Gen. xvii. 7.
Deut. xxvi. 18.
19. 1 Sam. xii.
22. Jer. xxxi.
31-34. Zech.
xiii. 9. Rom.
ix. 4-6. 25, 26.
1 Pet. ii. 9.
o Gen. xxxii. 12.
2 Sam. vii. 25
-29. Ps. cxix.
49. Jer. xi. 5.
Luke i. 38.
p 2 Chr. vi. 33.
Ps. xxi. 13.
lxxii. 19. Matt.
vi. 9. 13. John
xii. 28. 1 Pet.
iv. 11.
q Jer. xxxi. 1.
Heb. xi. 15.
r Heb. revealed
the ear of 1 Sam.
ix. 15.
s Ps. x. 17. Ez. xxxvi. 27. 1 John
v. 11, 15.
t Ex. xxxiv. 6, 7.
Tit. i. 2. Heb.
vi. 18.
Or, it hath pleased.
u Gen. xxvii. 33.
Ps. lxvii. 17.
Rom. xi. 29.
Eph. i. 3.

V. 14. In the parallel passage the Lord says to David, “thine house, and thy kingdom;” but here “mine house,”
&c. The Lord was Israel’s King; and David and Solomon were his vicegerents, as well as types of the Messiah, in whose church and kingdom all these promises and predictions have their grand fulfilment.

V. 17. Thou hast, &c. In the parallel passage we read, “Is this the manner of men, O LORD!” It was not the manner of men to raise a poor shepherd to be a renowned and powerful king. Some expositors, however, suppose, that David here referred to the Messiah himself, the seed of the woman, the greatest of the human race, being also “the Lord from heaven;” in whose line God had placed David as the progenitor, and had honoured him as the type of his anointed king. In this sense the words may be rendered, “Thou hast looked upon me, according to the order, or line of that exalted Man, who is above all,” O LORD God. And we know that “David in Spirit called him Lord;” though he knew he was to be his Son.

V. 19. Thy servant’s sake. In the second of Samuel we read, “For thy word’s sake.” The promise, in fulfilling which, God conferred these benefits on David and his race, was first given from love to him, as a type of Christ, “his Servant in whom his soul delighteth.”

V. 24. A God to Israel. The Lord not only, as “the God of Israel,” required worship and obedience; but he was himself the all-sufficient Friend and Patron of his chosen people.

CHAP. XVIII.

David subdues the Philistines, and makes the Moabites tributary, 1, 2. He smites Hadarezer and the Syrians, 3—8. Tou, king of Hamath, sends his son to David with presents, which he dedicates, with the spoil, unto God, 9—11. He puts garrisons into Edom, 12, 13. He reigns in equity, 14. His principal officers, 15—17.

* 2 Sam. vii. 9.

† 2 Sam. viii. 1.
Metheg-ammah.c Num. xxiv. 17.
2 Sam. viii. 2.
Ps ix. 8.a 1 Kings x. 2, 5.
3 Kings iii. 4, 5.
Ps lxxviii. 29, 30.
Isa. viii. 8—10. Is.
xvi. 1.b 2 Sam. viii. 3.
Hadarezer.f 1 Sam. xiv. 47.
2 Sam. x. 6. Ps
ix. titleg Gen. xv. 18.
Ex. xxxiii. 31.h 2 Sam. viii. 4.
seven hundred.i Deut. xvii. 16.
Josh. xi. 6, 9.Ps. xx. 7. xxxiii.
16, 17.k 1 Kings ix. 19.
x. 26.l 2 Sam. viii. 5, 6.
1 Kings xi. 23,
24.

* Heb. Darmeseck.

NOW ^a after this it came to pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and took ^b Gath and her towns out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And ^c he smote Moab; and the Moabites became David's servants, and ^d brought gifts.

3 And David smote ^e Hadarezer king of ^f Zobah unto Hamah, as he went to establish his dominion ^g by the river Euphrates.

4 And David took from him a thousand chariots, and ^h seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen: David also ⁱ houghed all the chariot-horses, but reserved of them ^k an hundred chariots.

5 And when ^l the Syrians of ^{*} Damascus came ^m to help Hadarezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then David put garrisons in Syria-damascus; and the Syrians ⁿ became David's servants, and brought gifts.

^o Thus the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took ^p the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 Likewise from ^q Tibhath, and from Chun, cities of Hadarezer, brought David very much brass, ^r wherewith Solomon made the brazen sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of brass.

9 ¶ Now when ^s Tou king of Hamath heard how David had smitten all the host of Hadarezer king of Zobah,

10 He sent ^{*} Hadoram his son to king David, to ^t inquire of his welfare, and to congratulate him, because he had fought against Hadarezer, and smitten him: (for Hadarezer ^u had war with Tou;) and ^v with him ^w all manner of vessels of gold, and silver, and brass.

11 Them also king David ^x dedicated unto the LORD, with the silver and the gold that he brought from all ^y these nations; from Edom, and from Moab, and m Is. viii. 9, 10.

n 2. Ps. xviii. 43, 44.

o xvii. 9. Ps. cxvi. 8. Prov. xxi. 31.

p 1 Kings x. 16, 17. xiv. 28.

q 2 Sam. viii. 3. Beth. Berotha.

r xxvii. 14. 1 Kings vii. 15, &c. 49. - 47. 2 Chr. iv. 2—6. 12—18. Jer. lii. 17—23.

s 2 Sam. viii. 9. Tou.

* Jeram. 2 Sam. viii. 10.

† Or, salute him.

‡ Heb. bless him.

§ Heb. was the man of wars.

t 2 Chr. ix. 1, 23, 24. Is. xxxix. 1.

u xxii. 14. xxvi. 20, 26, 27. xxix.

v 14. Ex. xxxv. 5. 21—24. 2 Sam.

viii. 11, 12. 2 Chr. v. 1. Mic. iv. 13.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The repetitions in the word of God may be considered as tacit reproofs of our negligence, forgetfulness, and unteachableness. Indeed we are very backward to get familiarly acquainted with every part of the sacred volume, and very prone to forget what we have read; so that we need to be taught again what we seem to have already learned: and for all these reasons it is very useful to have the same important truths, precepts, and examples enforced on us, in different parts of the Scriptures. If, in reading any chapter, or hearing any sermon, we learn nothing new; yet are reminded of those things of which we had lost sight, and stirred up to the exercise of faith and holy affections, and to the more diligent, fervent, and delightful practice of our several duties; very important purposes are answered. It may, however, suffice to observe in this place, that persons of eminent piety will still be devising and attempting one service after another for the honour of God, and to promote the best interests of mankind: accounting themselves to have done nothing, whilst so much remains to be done: that Christ alone begins and finishes his work, and perpetually unites in his own person all those offices which are requisite for the welfare of his church; but that mere men have, for a short space, certain portions of service allotted them, which they cannot exceed; that God accepts and rewards those good desires, which he is pleased for wise reasons to frustrate; that his favour and his image ennoble the meanest of his people, above the estate of men of high degree: that we cannot possibly desire more for ourselves, or for the church, than he hath promised: that true grace desires all this, and wants no more; and true faith, in vigorous exercise, seeks, asks, expects, and waits for it all, in the way which God hath prescribed: and that, if we serve the Lord, as a God, over us, in dependence on his mercy through Jesus Christ, he will be a God to us; and they whom he blesseth, will be blessed for evermore. For this blessedness may we look, with patient submission and joyful expectation, amidst the trials of life, and in the hour of death; and may the same be continued to our children and posterity after us, through successive generations!

NOTES.

CHAP. XVIII. V. 1. In the parallel passage Gath is called Metheg-ammah, or the bridle of Ammah, as built on a natural strong hold, called Ammah, and intended to bridle, or keep in subjection, the adjacent country. The rest of this chapter has already been commented on. (Notes, 2 Sam. viii.—Marg. Ref.)

x xx. 1, 2.

y Ps. lxxxiii. 6, 7.

z Heb. Abshai. xix. 11. 15.

2 2 Sam. viii. 13. Ps. lx. title. 8, 9.

a 2 Kings xiv. 7.

b G.

c Gen. xxv. 23.

xxvii. 29. 37. 40.

Num. xxiv. 18.

d Ps. xviii. 48—50.

e xii. 28.

f 2 Sam. viii. 15.

Ps. lxxviii. 71.

72. Is. ix. 7.

xxxii. 1, 2. Jer.

xxii. 15. xxiii.

5, 6. xxxiii. 15.

g xi. 6. 2 Sam.

viii. 16.

h 1 Kings iv. 3.*

† Or, remembrance.

i 2 Sam. viii. 17.

Abimelech.

k 2 Sam. xx. 25.

1 Kings ii. 35.

l 2 Sam. viii. 17.

Seraiah. xx. 25.

Shevah. 1 Kings

iv. 3. Shisha.

m 2 Sam. viii. 18.

xv. 18. xx. 7. 23.

n 1 Kings i. 39.

o Zeph. ii. 5.

† Heb. at thehand of.

* from the children of Ammon, and from the Philistines, and from ^y Amalek.

12 Moreover * Abishai the son of Zeruiah ^z slew of the Edomites in ^a the valley of salt eighteen thousand.

13 And he put ^b garrisons in Edom; and all the Edomites ^c became David's servants. ^d Thus the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

14 ¶ So ^e David reigned over all Israel, and ^f executed judgment and justice among all his people.

15 And ^g Joab the son of Zeruiah ^h was over the host; and ⁱ Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud ^j recorder.

16 And Zadok the son of Abitub, and Abimelech the son of ^k Abiathar, ^l were the priests; and ^m Shavsha was scribe;

17 And ⁿ Benaiah the son of Jehoiada ^o was over the ^p Cherethites and the Pelethites; and the sons of David ^q were chief ^r about the king.

CHAP. XIX.

David sends ambassadors to comfort the king of Ammon, who abuses and insults them, 1—5. The Ammonites and Syrians are vanquished by Joab and Abishai, 6—15. The king of Syria sends another army, which David conquers, slaying its commander, 16—18. The Syrians submit to David, 19.

B. C. 1037.

a 1 Sam. xi. 1, 2.

2 Sam. x. 1—3.

NOW it came to pass after this, that ^a Nahash the king of the children of Ammon died, and his son reigned in his stead.

2 And David said, ^b I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, because his father shewed kindness to me. And David sent messengers to comfort him concerning his father. So the servants of David came into the land of the children of Ammon, to Hanun, to comfort him.

3 But the princes of the children of Ammon said to Hanun, * Thinkest thou that David doth honour thy father, ^d that he hath sent comforters unto thee? are not his servants come unto thee for ^e to search, and to overthrow, and to spy out the land?

4 Wherefore ^f Hanun took David's servants, and ^g shaved them, and ^h cut off their garments in the midst, hard by their buttocks, and ⁱ sent them away.

5 Then there went certain, and told David how the men were served. And he sent to meet them: for the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, ^k Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return.

6 And when the children of Ammon saw that they had made themselves [†] odious to David, Hanun and the children of Ammon sent ¹ a thousand talents of silver, to hire them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria-maachah, and out of ^m Zobah.

7 So they ⁿ hired thirty and two thousand chariots, and ^o the king of Maachah and his people; who came and pitched before ^p Medeba. And the children of Ammon gathered themselves together from their cities, and came to battle.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

They, who seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, shall, in due time and manner, have all other things added unto them. Communion with God, and his consolations, are intended to animate us to diligence in our proper work, and vigour in our spiritual warfare. Earthly possessions are often lost by attempting to establish them: and sinners ruin themselves by encouraging and assisting one another, in rebellion against God, and opposition to his cause. Our good fight of faith, under the Captain of our salvation, will assuredly issue in everlasting triumph and peace. But the happiness of Israel, through David's victories and equitable administration, very faintly shadowed forth the felicity of the redeemed in the realms above, when the last enemy shall be destroyed, and Jesus shall reign in the midst of them for ever and ever, and they shall behold and share the joy and glory of his kingdom. Let us then, without delay, join ourselves to him, trusting and serving him constantly and faithfully, that at length we may be for ever with him.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIX. V. 1. (Notes, 2 Sam. x.)

V. 6. Syria-maachah, or Aram-macha. Maachah lay to the east of Jordan, and had been allotted to Manasseh: but it is probable, that the Syrians had gotten possession of it; and that it was thence called Syria-maachah. (Deut. iii. 14. Josh. xiii. 5.)

V. 7. Thirty-two thousand soldiers, (exclusive of those sent by the king of Maachah,) are mentioned in the parallel passage: but thirty-two thousand chariots are here

8 And when David heard of it, he sent ^a Joab and all the host of the mighty men.

9 And the children of Ammon came out, and ^r put the battle in array before the gate of the city: and ^s the kings that were come were by themselves in the field.

10 Now when Joab saw that the ^{*} battle was ^t set against him before and behind, he chose out of all the [†] choice of Israel, and put them in array against the Syrians.

11 And the rest of the people he delivered unto the hand of [‡] Abishai his brother, and they set themselves in array against the children of Ammon.

12 And he said, ^u If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will help thee.

13 ^{*} Be of good courage, and let us behave ourselves valiantly for our people, and for the cities of our God: and ^y let the LORD do that which is good in his sight.

14 So Joab, and the people that were with him, drew nigh before the Syrians unto the battle; and ^z they fled before him.

15 And when the children of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, ^a they likewise fled before Abishai his brother, and entered into the city. Then Joab came to Jerusalem.

16 ¶ And when the Syrians saw that they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers, and ^b drew forth the Syrians that were beyond the ^{*} river: and ^c Shophach the captain of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

17 And it was told David; and he gathered all Israel, and passed over Jordan, and came upon them, ^d and set the battle in array against them. So when David had put the battle in array against the Syrians, they fought with him.

18 But the Syrians ^e fled before Israel; and David slew of the Syrians seven thousand men, which fought in chariots, and forty thousand ^f footmen, and killed Shophach the captain of the host.

19 And when ^g the servants ^h of Hadarezer saw that they were put to the worse before Israel, they made peace with David, and became his servants: neither ⁱ would the Syrians help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAP. XX.

Rabbah is taken and spoiled, and the inhabitants are treated with severity, 1—3. Three giants are slain by David's servants, in three battles against the Philistines, 4—8.

AND ^a it came to pass, that ^{*} after the year was expired, at the time ^b it kings go out to battle, Joab led forth the power of the army, and ^c wasted the country of the children of Ammon, and came and besieged Rabbah. But David reckoned up. Either some trivial mistake has crept into the text, in respect of the number, or kind, of these auxiliaries; or they were used in general to fight, some on foot and others on horseback; yet on some occasions they all could drive and fight from chariots of war.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

We may expect, that in this world our kindest actions will often be requited with the basest returns, and our best intentions expose us to the most injurious suspicions. Even in our most implicit obedience to our great and gracious Lord, when we most sincerely desire to do good to our fellow creatures, we must lay our account with ingratitude, contempt, and abuse. But these things should not discourage us; for he will plead our cause, and both comfort us, and kindly recompense all that we endure for his sake: and after his example we also should endeavour to make up to those that serve us, every loss that they are exposed to in executing our orders. In every case the servants of God, though here disgraced, will finally be honoured: but none of his enemies will bring upon themselves more sudden and terrible vengeance, than they who insult his ambassadors, when sent with a message of peace and salvation. The only safety of us sinners consists in submitting to God, making our peace with him, and becoming his servants: thus separating from those who persist in their opposition and rebellion, we may escape their doom. When prudence, vigilance, courage, and diligence, have been used in a good cause, and we have mutually assisted each other; we may confidently leave the event to the Lord, "Let him do what seemeth him good." But we may sometimes fear, lest being instruments of good to others, we should ourselves be found to come short of salvation, through unbelief and impenitent continuance in sin.

^c 2 Sam. xii. 26—31. tarried at Jerusalem. And ^c Joab smote Rabbah, and destroyed it.

^{* Heb. the weight of it.}

2 And David took the crown of their king from off his head, and found ^{*} it to weigh a talent of gold, and there were precious stones in it; and it was set upon David's head: and he brought also exceeding much spoil out of the city.

d xix. 2—5 Ps. xvi. 8, 9.
e Ex. i. 14. Josh. ix. 23. Judg. viii. 6, 7, 16, 17.
1 Kings ix. 21.

3 And he brought out the people that were in it; ^d and cut them ^e with saws, and with harrows of iron, and with axes. Even so dealt David with all the cities of the children of Ammon. And David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

B. C. 1018.

f 2 Sam. xxi. 15.
† Or, continued.
Heb. stood.
g 2 Sam. xxi. 18.
Gob.
h xi. 29. Stbbecai.
i 2 Sam. xxi. 18.
Saph.
j Or, Rapha.

4 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that [†] there [†] arose a war at ^g Gezer with the Philistines: at which time ^h Sibbechai the Hushathite slew ⁱ Sippai, that was of the children of the ^j giant: and they were subdued.

k 2 Sam. xxi. 19.
Jaare-oregim.

5 And there was war again with the Philistines; and Elhanan the son of ^k Jair slew Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, whose spear's staff was like a weaver's beam.

† Heb. of measure.
2 Sam. xxi. 20.

6 And yet again there was war at Gath, where was a man [†] of great stature, whose fingers and toes were four and twenty, six on each hand, and six on each foot: and he also was ^{||} the son of the giant.

|| Heb. born to the giant, or, Rapha.

l 1 Sam. xvii. 10.
26, 36. Is. xxxvii. 23.

* Or, reproached. m ii. 14. Shimma.
n Sam. xvi. 9.
hammah.

7 But when ^l he ^{*} defied Israel, Jonathan the son of ^m Shimea David's brother slew him.

8 These were born unto the giant in Gath; and ⁿ they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

n Josh. xiv. 12.
Ec ix. 11. Jer. ix. 23. Rom. viii. 31.

CHAP. XXI.

David, tempted by Satan, requires Joab to number the people, 1—4. The number is returned to the king, 5, 6. God is displeased; and David owns his fault, 7, 8. The Lord, by Gad the prophet, proposes three judgments to David, who chooses three days' pestilence, 9—13. Seventy thousand are cut off; and David, seeing the destroying angel intercedes for the people, 14—17. Directed by Gad, he buys Ornan's threshing-floor; he sacrifices, fire consumes the oblation, and the plague is stayed, 18—27. He again sacrifices there, fearing to go unto Gibeon, 28—30.

a 2 Sam. xxiv. 1.
1 Kings xxii. 20.
—22. Job i. 6—12. ii. 4—6.
Zech. iii. 1.
Matt. iv. 3.
Luke xxii. 31.
John xiii. 2.
Acts v. 3. Jam. i. 13. Rev. xii. 10.

AND ^a Satan stood up against Israel, and ^b provoked David to number Israel

b Luke xi. 53.
Heb. x. 24.

2 And David said to ^c Joab and to the rulers of the people, Go, number Israel, from ^d Beer-sheba even to Dan; and ^e bring the number of them to me, ^f that I may know it.

c 2 Sam. xxiv. 2—4. d Judg. xx. 1.
2 Sam. xvii. 11.
e xxvii. 23, 24.
f Deut. viii. 13—17. 2 Chr. xxxii. 25, 26. Prov. xxix. 23. 2 Cor. xii. 7.
g xix. 13. Ps. cxv. 14. Prov. xiv. 28. Is. xxvi. 15. xlviii. 19.

3 And Joab answered, ^g The LORD make his people an hundred times so many more as they be: but, my lord the

NOTES.

CHAP. XX. V. 1—3. The whole account of David's adultery, and the sins and sufferings consequent upon it, is here entirely omitted. (Notes, 2 Sam. xii. 26—31. xxi. 15—22. Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

A pious, and benevolent mind cannot possibly delight in mentioning the transgressions of useful and eminent men. So that if truth and candour will permit, and if no good purpose can be answered by speaking, persons of this character will choose to be silent: though they will by no means set themselves to deny, excuse, or extenuate the sins of any man, when they cannot honestly conceal them. It however, proves a malignant or an unfeeling mind, to be always raking into the miscarriages of others, especially those of superior reputation in the world or in the church. —The conflicts of believers, like those of David, will be successive, as long as they live here, and sometimes the sharpest are reserved till the last: and their victories will be gradual, as their enemies will still be renewing their assaults, and recovering their strength. Though the Lord severely correct the sins of his own believing people, he will not leave them in the hands of their enemies. His assistance far more than counterbalances all the advantages in number and strength of those that defy his Israel; and all that trust in him shall be made more than conquerors, through him that loved them.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXI. V. 1. (Notes, 2 Sam. xxiv.) 'God, being angry with Israel, suffered Satan to move David to number them. The phrase stood up is to be observed; which was the posture of those who charged or accused any person of a crime, in a court of justice. Thus Satan is represented as the accuser of the brethren, in the book of the Revelation; and here to lay some sin to the charge of the Israelites, which he represented to God as a reason to punish them. For it is the way of the holy Scripture, thus to bring down these things, and accommodate them to the lowest capacities.' (Bp. Patrick.)

king, are they not all my lord's servants? why then doth my lord require this thing? ^h why will he be a cause of trespass to Israel?

4 Nevertheless ⁱ the king's word prevailed against Joab. ^k Wherefore Joab departed, and went throughout all Israel, and came to Jerusalem.

5 And Joab gave the sum of the number of the people unto David. And all they of Israel were ^l a thousand thousand and an hundred thousand men that drew sword: and Judah was four hundred threescore and ten thousand men that drew sword.

6 But ^m Levi and Benjamin counted he not among them: for the king's word was ⁿ abominable to Joab

7 * And ^o God was displeased with this thing; therefore ^p he smote Israel.

8 And David said unto God, ^q I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing: but now, I beseech thee, ^r do away the iniquity of thy servant; for ^s I have done very foolishly.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Gad, David's seer, saying,

10 Go and tell David, saying, Thus saith the LORD, I ^t offer thee three things; ^u choose thee one of them that ^x I may do it unto thee.

11 So Gad came to David, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, [†] Choose thee,

12 Either ^y three years famine; or ^z three months to be destroyed before thy foes, while that the sword of thine enemies overtaketh thee; or else ^a three days ^b the sword of the LORD, even the pestilence, in the land, and ^c the angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the coasts of Israel. ^d Now therefore advise thyself, what word I shall bring again to him that sent me.

13 And David said unto Gad, ^e I am in a great strait: ^f let me fall now into the hand of the LORD; for very ^g great are his mercies: but ^h let me not fall into the hand of man.

14 ¶ So ^h the LORD sent pestilence upon Israel: and there fell of Israel ⁱ seventy thousand men.

15 And God sent an angel ^k unto Jerusalem to destroy it: and as he was destroying, the LORD beheld, and he ^l repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed, ^m It is enough, stay now thine hand. And the angel of the LORD stood by the threshing floor of ⁿ Ornan the Jebusite.

16 And David lifted up his eyes and ^o saw the angel of the LORD stand between the earth and the heaven, having a drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders ^p of Israel, who were ^q clothed in sackcloth, ^r fell upon their faces.

17 And David said unto God, ^r Is it not I that commanded the people to be numbered? even I it is that have sinned and done evil indeed: but as for ^s these sheep, ^t what have they done? ^u Let thine hand, I pray thee, O LORD my God, be on me, and ^x on my father's house; but not on thy people, ^y that they should be plagued.

18 ¶ Then ^z the angel of the LORD commanded Gad to say to David, that David should go up, and set up an altar unto the LORD in the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

19 And David went up at the saying of Gad, which he spake in the name of the LORD.

20 * And Ornan turned back, and saw the angel; and his four sons with him hid themselves. Now Ornan was threshing wheat.

21 And as David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David, and went out of the threshing floor, and ^a bowed himself to David with his face to the ground.

22 Then David said to Ornan, [†] Grant me the place of this threshing floor, that I may build an altar therein unto the LORD; ^b thou shalt grant it me for the full price: ^c that the plague may be stayed from the people.

h Num xvi 48--49. 2 Sam xxiv. 15.
i Ex xii 30. Num. xxv. 9. 1 Sam. vi. 19. 2 Kings xix. 35.
k 2 Sam. xxiv. 16. Jer. vii. 12. xxvii. 9. 18. Matt. xiii. 37, 38.
l Gen vi. 6. Ex. ii. 18. s. 16. Ps. lxxviii. 38. Jer. xviii. 7-10.
m Ps. xc. 15. Mark xiv. 41.

n 2 Sam. xxiv. 18. Achanah. 2 Chr. iii. 1.

o Ex. xiv. 19, 20. 2 Kings vi. 17.

p 1 Kings xxi. 27. 2 Kings xix. 1. Ps. xxv. 14, 15. Jon. iii. 6-8.
q Num. xiv. 9. xvi. 22.
r 8. 2 Sam. xxiv. 17. Ps. li. 4. Ez. xvi. 63.

s 1 Kings xxi. 17. Ps. xlii. 11.
t 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. u Gen. xlii. 33. Ex. xxxii. 32. 33. John x. 11, 12. Rom. ix. 3. 1 John iii. 16.
x Ex. xx. 5. 2 Sam. xii. 10. Ps. li. 14. 18. xxxix. 8.
y Josh. xxii. 18.

z 2 Sam. xxiv. 18. 2 Chr. ii. 1. Acts viii. 26.

* Or When Ornan turned back and saw the angel, then he, and his four sons with him hid themselves.

a 1 Sam. xxv. 23. 2 Sam. xxiv. 18-20.

† Heb. Give 1 Kings xxi. 21.

b 2 Sam. xxiv. 21.
c Num. xvi. 48. xxv. 8.

V. 20. The destroying angel was rendered visible, not only to David and the elders of Israel, but to Ornan and his sons also. Indeed it is probable, that this awful vision of the angel with a "drawn sword in his hand, stretched out over Jerusalem," continued apparent to all the inhabitants, till David had offered the appointed sacrifices.

d Gen. xxiii. 2-6.

23 And Ornan said unto David, ^d Take it to thee, and let my lord the king do that which is good in his eyes: lo, I give thee the oxen also for burnt-offerings, and the threshing instruments for wood, and the wheat for the meat-offering; I give it all.

e Gen. xiv. 23. e xxiii. 13. Mal. i. 12-14. Rom. xii. 17.

24 And king David said to Ornan, Nay, but I will verily buy it for the full price; for I will not take that which is thine for the LORD, nor offer burnt-offerings without cost.

f 2 Sam. xxiv. 24, 25.

25 So ^f David gave to Ornan for the place six hundred shekels of gold by weight.

26 And David built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt-offerings, and peace-offerings, and called upon the LORD; and he answered him from heaven ^g by fire upon the altar of burnt-offering. ^{g Lev. ix. 24. Judg. vi. 21. xiii. 20. 1 Kings xviii. 36. 2 Chr. iii. 1. vii. 1. h 2 Sam. xxiv. 16.}

27 And ^h the LORD commanded the angel; and he put up his sword again into the sheath thereof.

28 At that time when David saw that the LORD had answered him in the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, then he sacrificed there.

29 For ⁱ the tabernacle of the LORD which Moses made in the wilderness, and the altar of the burnt-offering, were at that season in the high place at ^k Gibeon. ^{i Ex. xl. 1, &c. k xvi. 39. 1 Kings iii. 4. 2 Chr. i. 3.}

30 But David could not go before it to inquire of God: for ^l he was afraid, because of the sword of the angel of the LORD. ^{l Ps. cxix. 120. Heb. xii. 23, 24.}

V. 26. The fire from heaven was an emblem of divine vindictive justice against sinners: but its consuming the sacrifices, and sparing the offenders, who thus pleaded guilty and sought mercy, was the highest token of the Lord's acceptance, and a type of our salvation by the propitiatory sufferings of Christ for us. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 28-30. David in general had been used to sacrifice at Gibeon: but on this emergency he was afraid to leave Jerusalem, lest the angel should smite the inhabitants: and having been accepted at the the threshing floor of Ornan, he continued afterwards to offer sacrifices there.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Whilst we remain on earth Satan has access to us through the remains of sin, especially of pride, in our hearts: and the Lord hath wise and righteous reasons for permitting this enemy, under certain restrictions, to tempt his servants. As far as he obtains this permission, he is unwearied in his malicious efforts to deceive, to defile, or to distress us; and he can vary his devices in numerous plausible ways: But he does us more harm as a seducer than as an accuser, as a subtle serpent than as a roaring lion. We are therefore called upon to be sober and vigilant, and to pray always that we enter not into temptation: and as men advance in rank and reputation, authority, or usefulness, they have need to redouble their guard, and to be more watchful and instant in prayer than ever; for the enemy levels his assaults especially against those that are eminent in character, or fill up public stations, in the church or the community; because their falls involve numbers either in sin or suffering. It is a mercy to be speedily made sensible of our guilt, when we have been left to transgress: but no confession or humiliation can secure us from present sufferings, when we have committed such crimes, as appear abominable even to ungodly men, and bring an open scandal upon our profession.—By thus yielding to temptation we bring ourselves into dreadful straits, from which we can by no means extricate ourselves; yet even in this case, there is encouragement for us to leave ourselves in the hand of the Lord, that he may do with us as he pleases; for very great are his mercies. Of all the painful consequences of our transgressions, none in this world can be more distressing to an ingenuous mind, than to see those whom we most love, and desire the most to do good to, suffering heavily through our sins. But even under the anguish of this trial we must not allow ourselves to murmur, or to despond. The Lord hath righteous reasons for his dispensations, though mysterious to us; and therefore they, who are reciprocally suffering through each other's sins, should unite together in humiliation before him, and in fervently deprecating the effects of his indignation from each other. This forms the proper business of every individual, in times of public calamity: and when public honour has thus been rendered to the righteous Author of national sufferings, his merciful interposition may be expected. He knoweth how to educe good from evil, and to over-rule our sufferings, nay, even our sins, for the good of our souls, and the promotion of true religion.—The fear of impending vengeance, from the wrath of an offended God, is naturally calculated to drive men from him. But in subserviency to the gospel, and through the influence of the Spirit of God, it concurs in showing sinners the preciousness of Christ, in disposing them to forsake all for him, and afterwards in enlarging the mind in grateful obedience to him, who hath saved them from so great a destruction. They who shelter their souls, as it were, under the atonement of his sacrifice, who "suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust," will be safe from danger even in the hour of death, and in the day of judgment: and none are losers by being willing to part with all for the sake of Christ, or to dedicate all to his service.—When the urgency of our affairs constrains us to act contrary to our judgment and inclination, we shall frequently learn afterwards, that by so doing, we were preparing the way for some important benefit from the Lord to us or to others: and in the observance of his directions, we may confidently expect acceptance and returning comfort.

CHAP. XXII.

David makes large preparations for the temple, 1—5. He instructs Solomon, and charges him to build one, 6—16. He commands the elders of Israel to assist him, 17—19.

THEN David said, ^a This is the house of the LORD God, and this is the altar of the burnt-offering for Israel. ^b 2 And David commanded to gather together the strangers that were in the land of Israel: and he set ^c masons to hew wrought stones to build the house of God.

^d 3 And David prepared iron in abundance for the nails for the doors of the gates, and for the joinings: and brass in abundance ^d without weight;

^e 4 Also ^e cedar-trees in abundance: for the Zidonians, and they of Tyre, brought much cedar-wood to David.

^f 5 And David said, ^f Solomon my son is young and tender, and the house that is to be builded for the LORD must be

^g exceeding magnificent, of fame and of glory throughout all countries: I will therefore now make preparation for it.

^h So David prepared abundantly before his death.

ⁱ 6 Then he called for Solomon his son, and ⁱ charged him to build an house for the LORD God of Israel.

^j 7 And David said to Solomon, My son, as for me, ^k it was in my mind to build an house ^l unto the name of the LORD my God:

^m 8 But the word of the LORD came to me, saying, ⁿ Thou hast shed blood abundantly, and hast made great wars: ⁿ thou shalt not build an house unto my name, because thou hast shed much blood upon the earth in my sight.

^o 9 Behold, ^o a son shall be born to thee, who shall be a man of rest; and ^p I will give him rest from his enemies round about: for his name shall be ^q * Solomon, and ^q I will give peace and quietness unto Israel in his days.

^r 10 ^r He shall build an house for my name, and ^s he shall be my son, and ^s I will be his father; and ^t I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel for ever.

^u 11 Now, my son, ^u the LORD be with thee; and prosper thou, and build the house of the LORD thy God, as he hath said of thee.

^v 12 Only ^v the LORD give thee wisdom and understanding, and give thee charge concerning Israel, that thou mayest keep the law of the LORD thy God.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXII. V. 1. The Lord having pointed out the place, where he would have sacrifice offered for averting the pestilence, and having "answered by fire from heaven;" David was assured it was his will, that the temple should be built by Solomon on this very spot. It had immediately before been in the possession of a Jebusite, which was an intimation of mercy intended for the Gentiles through Jesus Christ. It does not appear, whether David removed the ark thither with its tent, or whether they remained in their former place. Henceforth this became the spot, which God had "chosen to place his name there," and where sacrifices were regularly offered, as long as that dispensation lasted.

V. 2—5. David, though denied the honour of building the temple, yet out of love to so good a work, employed himself in making every kind of preparation for it. The strangers here mentioned seem to have been the remnant of the old inhabitants who, having submitted to David, had their lives spared and had been reduced to slavery. David had procured much cedar-wood for the temple; but Solomon had occasion for a great deal more. According to the nature of that introductory dispensation, and for an emblem of the spiritual glory of Christ and his church,

VOL. II.—No. 11.

Solomon's temple was built with great magnificence: that, being renowned through all countries, strangers might be induced to visit it, and thus become acquainted with JEHOVAH, and his true worship. Solomon also would need every encouragement and assistance for so great a work; that he might not be retarded from entering upon it in an early period of his reign.

V. 8—10. David was a type of Christ in his conflicts, victories, and the destruction of his obstinate enemies: but Solomon represented the Saviour triumphant, glorified, and giving peace and felicity to his willing subjects. In this latter character the Prince of peace erects his spiritual temple; and it more accorded to the nature of the Christian dispensation, and to the character of Jesus, both of which were represented in this transaction, that the temple should be built by a peaceable prince, than by a successful warrior. Yet David in his wars did the work, and sought the honour of God, and was eminently serviceable to his people. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 12. David had given Solomon exhortations and instructions; but the powerful influence of divine grace alone could form him to that wisdom, piety, and zeal, which such a work required.

y xxviii. 7. Josh.
i. 7, 8. 1 Kings
ii. 3. Jer. xxii.
3, 4.

z xxviii. 10. 20.
Deut. xxxi. 7.
3. Josh. i. 6-9.
18. 1 Cor. xvi.
13. Eph. vi. 10.
2 Tim. ii. 1.
* Or, poverty.

a xxix. d. 7.
1 Kings x. 14.

b 3.

† Or, masons and carpenters. 2-4.
c Ex. xxxiii. 6.
xxxi. 3-5 xxv.
42-45. 1 Kings
vi. 7. 14.

13 ^y Then shalt thou prosper, if thou takest heed to fulfil the statutes and judgments, which the LORD charged Moses with concerning Israel: ^z be strong, and of good courage; dread not, nor be dismayed.

14 Now, behold, in my ^{*} trouble I have prepared for the house of the LORD an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver; and of brass and iron ^b without weight: for it is in abundance: timber also and stone have I prepared; and thou mayest add thereto.

15 Moreover there are workmen with thee in abundance, [†] hewers and workers of stone and timber, and ^c all manner of cunning men for every manner of work.

16 Of the gold, the silver, and the brass, and the iron, there is no number.

^a Arise therefore, and be doing, and the LORD be with thee.

17 [†] David also commanded ^e all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying,

18 ^f Is not the LORD your God with you? ^g and hath he not given you rest on every side? for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into mine hand; and the land is subdued ^h before the LORD, and before his people.

19 Now ⁱ set your heart and your soul to seek the LORD your God: arise therefore, and build ye the sanctuary of the LORD God, ^k to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and the holy vessels of God, into the house that is to be built ^l to the name of the LORD.

d Josh. i. 2. 5. 9.
Judg. iv. 14. xviii.
9, 10. 2 Chr. xx.
17. 1 Cor. xv. 58.
Eph. v. 14. Phil.
ii. 12, 13. 1r. 15.
e xxviii. 20.
xxix. 6. 2 Chr.
xxiv. 17, 18.
Rom. xvi. 2, 3.
Phil. iv. 3. 3.
John 8.

f Judg. vi. 12-14 Rom. viii. 31.
g xxiii. 28 Deut.
xii. 10, 11 Josh.
xxii. 4. xxiii.
1. 2 Sam. vii. 1.
Acts ix. 31.
h Deut. xx. 4.
Josh. x. 42.
1 Sam. xxv. 28.
2 Sam. v. 19. 20.
Ps. xlv. 1-5.
i xvi. 11. xxviii.
9. Deut. iv. 23.
xxxii. 46, 47.
2 Chr. xx. 3.
Dan. ix. 3. Acts
xi. 23.
k 1 Kings viii. 6.
21. 2 Chr. v. 7.
vi. 11.

l 7. 1 Kings v. 3.

V. 13. Conscientious obedience to the commands of God, on scriptural principles, both secures final success, and inspires present courage and confidence.

V. 14. The gold and silver here mentioned, if computed by the ordinary weight of the talent, would amount to eight or nine hundred millions sterling: and this enormous quantity would more than have sufficed to erect an edifice, as large as the temple itself, apart from its courts, of solid gold and silver. Compared therefore with the size of the temple, and with the gains of Solomon, when the precious metals became common at Jerusalem; it is generally concluded, either that some mistake hath taken place in the numeral letters, or that a talent of inferior weight and value is meant. David had collected this wealth for the temple in his trouble, or in his poverty. He had set out in his life very poor; he had passed through a constant succession of trials and troubles; and all his prosperity was the result of the Lord's singular kindness in making him a gainer by all the attempts of all his numerous enemies.—He seems also to speak of his preparation as a small matter, whether compared with the greatness of the Lord to whom it was dedicated, or with his own obligations to him.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-10.

When the grace of God possesses the heart, a man's falls and mistakes will eventually be over-ruled to form him to such a humble and watchful frame of mind, as must exceedingly increase the simplicity, purity, and activity of his zeal in the service of God. The most eminent servants of the Lord are apt sometimes to abate of their diligence; and alarming providences often concur with the warnings and rebukes of the Scripture, to stir them up to greater earnestness: especially when they are reminded of the approach of death, and perceive that much remains to be done, and that probably they have only a short time in which to do it. When the Lord refuses to employ us in those kinds, and in that measure, of service to his church, which we desired and hoped to have performed; we must not on that account yield to indolence or discouragement: but we should be doing what we can, in a subordinate sphere, and upon a smaller scale; and rejoice in affording any little assistance to those who are honoured with more extensive usefulness. The "spirit indeed that is in us, powerfully lusteth to envy;" but we must seek unto Him, who giveth more grace; that this evil may be mortified and subdued. We are not likely on earth to witness those glorious times which are foretold in the scriptures, when Satan shall no more deceive the nations, but the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea: yet it is possible that we may be, as it were, collecting materials for that work. Whatever is done towards rendering the word of God more generally known, understood, and attended to in the world, is like bringing a stone, perhaps an ingot of gold, towards erecting the edifice. Whatever tends to bring the rising generations, in succession, acquainted with the Gospel of Jesus Christ in its purity and energy, is, as it were, enlisting soldiers for that decisive conflict, in which the armies of Christ shall obtain such glorious victories. These considerations should encourage us, when we are grieved that we see no more fruits of all our labours. Much good may appear after our death, which was hidden from us, "lest we should be exalted above measure:" "let us not then be weary of well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."—Above all, they who are aged, and expect shortly to be removed to a better world, should diligently instruct, encourage, charge, and caution those, who are young and inexperienced, and who are likely to succeed them in their work. The service is arduous and important, being intimately connected with the honour of God, and the salvation of souls: and who is sufficient for these things? Indeed all our sufficiency must be of God. He alloteth various services to his people; and that which qualifies for one kind of usefulness, may unfit for another; we should then all acquiesce in his will; and fill up our proper place for the common benefit, as the members do in the human body. But peace is in its own nature preferable to the most successful war; and the shedding of human blood, though sometimes necessary, should always be done with reluctance, and thought of with horror: for even when the Lord commanded it, he was pleased to speak of it, as shed in his sight, and as what he had no pleasure in beholding. We should therefore be more ambitious of the honour of giving rest and quietness to those around us, than of the conqueror's applause: "Blessed are the peace-makers; for they shall be called the children of God." Among other unspeakable advantages of public peace, this is peculiarly important, that it affords the fairest opportunities of executing useful designs to promote true religion: and then we should be active and earnest to seize the favourable opportunity, by forming or assisting every design of general utility. But especially peace among Christians is conducive to this most desirable end; which is grievously counteracted by the animosities, divisions, and vehement controversies that, alas! prevail and are multiplied. Did all real believers "endeavour to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace;" and to strive together for the faith of the Gospel;" such effects would follow, as seem at present to exceed our largest expectations or conceptions. The work is, however, in the hands of the Prince of peace: May he compose all our differences, and build the spiritual temple so magnificent and glorious, that the fame of it may be spread into all countries, till all the nations of the earth become his willing subjects, and live in peace with one another!

CHAP. XXIII.

David makes Solomon king, 1. The Levites are numbered, and classed for different services, 2—6. The sons of Gershon, 7—11. Of Kohath, 12—20. Of Merari, 21—23. The several offices of the Levites, 24—32.

V. 11—19.

Even the young, and weak, and inexperienced, when called forth to service by the Lord, may expect that he will be with them; and that he will give them upright zealous minds, with true wisdom and understanding, and then cause them to prosper in their work. No abilities or diligence can render us durably and extensively useful to others, if we do not take heed to our own conduct, that it be regulated according to the word of God. Whilst we trust in his grace and mercy, and obey his commandments, we need fear no difficulties or opposition; the things, which seem to be against us, will work together for our good; we may be strong in the Lord, and of good courage, and not dread, or be dismayed, at the prospect of any temptations, troubles, or persecutions, which may meet us in the way of our

SO when David was ^a old and full of ^b days, ^c he made Solomon his son king over Israel.

2 And ^d he gathered together all the princes of Israel, with the priests and the Levites.

3 Now ^e the Levites were numbered ^f from the age of thirty years and upward: and their number by their polls, man by duty. In such an age and nation as this, we of course enter, in many respects, into the labours of others: but to all the preparation hitherto made in any place, we shall find it requisite to add more; for much, very much, remains to be done to render us "a peculiar people, zealous of good works." All our advantages, and all the promises of the Gospel, are intended to encourage our activity, and not to excuse our sloth. And whether we seek our own salvation, or that of other men, we must "arise, and be doing." The whole weight of public services should not be laid upon those that sustain public characters. Others are commanded to assist them in proportion to their talents and abilities; and they are exhorted to set their hearts and souls thus to seek and serve the Lord, that the good works, which have been devised, may be completed without needless delay. Thus nobles, senators, magistrates, and indeed every subject in his place, should concur with the king, in every measure for checking immorality and profaneness, and for promoting the fear of God, and a regard to his truths, ordinances, and commandments: first they should lead the way by a good example; then they should proceed to employ their authority and influence to give effect to such endeavours; and finally they should seek the blessing of God upon them by fervent prayers. Thus likewise the leading persons in congregations should second to the uttermost the labours of the minister for the good of souls: their unanimity, forbearance, and cordiality; their pious examples, family-religion, and earnest prayers, should never be wanting, that they may add weight to his exhortations, strengthen his hands, encourage him in his arduous work, and bring a blessing upon it. But, alas, how contrary is the conduct of too many, who would be thought friends to the Gospel! In the church, in their families, and in their worldly concerns, they act as if they meant to counteract the labours of ministers; to weaken their influence, to discourage their hearts, to prejudice men's minds against the blessed truths which they preach, and to embolden all around them to disregard their warnings and exhortations! But surely, if "the Lord indeed be with us," and hath given us rest from our enemies; we shall turn our hearts and souls to seek him, and by every means in our power, to glorify his name, and promote the peace and prosperity of his church.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIII. V. 1, 2. This transaction seems to have preceded David's last sickness, and Adonijah's usurpation; which was thus rendered more inexcusable; for it is evident that David acted as a prophet, as well as with the full concurrence of his people.

^e Num. iv. 48.

man, was ^e thirty and eight thousand.

^{* Or, oversee.} 28
—32. vi. 46. ix.
28—32. xxvi. 20
—27.

^f xxvi. 29—32.
Deut. xvi. 18.
xxvii. 8—10. 2
Chr. xix. 8. Mal.
ii. 7.

^g ix. 17—27. xv.
23, 24. xxvi. 1—12.

^h vi. 31—48. ix.
33. xv. 16—22.
xvi. 41, 42. xxv.
1—7. 2 Chr. xx.
19—21. Ps.
lxxxvii. 7.

ⁱ 2 Chr. xxix. 25.
25. Amos vi. 5.
k 2 Chr. viii. 14.
xxix. 25.

[†] Heb. divisions.
xxiv. 1. xxvi. 1.
l vi. 1. 16. Gershom. Ex. vi. 16.

Num. xxvi. 57,
58.

m vi. 17. 20. xv.
7. xxvi. 21.

ⁿ Ex. vi. 17. Lib-
ni. Shimi.
o xv. 18. 20, 21.
p xv. 5. 11. 17.

^q 11. Zizah.

^r 10. Zina.

[†] Heb. did not multiply sons.

^x vi. 2. Ex. vi. 18.
Num. iii. 27.

xxvi. 58
^t vi. 3. Ex. vi. 20.

Num. iii. 27
xxvi. 59.

^u Ex. xxviii. 1.
Num. xviii. 1.

Ps. xcix. 6. cvi.
16. Gal. i. 15.

Heb. v. 4.
^x Ex. xxix. 33—
37. 44. xl. 9—15.

Iev. x. 10. 17,
18. xvi. 11—19.
32, 33. xvii. 2
—6. Num. xviii.
3—8.

4 Of which twenty and four thousand were to ^{*} set forward the work of the house of the LORD; and six thousand were ^f officers and judges.

5 Moreover four thousand were ^g porters; and four thousand ^h praised the LORD with ⁱ the instruments which I made, (said David), to praise therewith.

6 And David ^k divided them into [†] courses among the sons of Levi, namely, ^l Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

7 ¶ Of the ^m Gershonites were ⁿ Laa-dan and Shimei.

8 The sons of Laadan; the chief was ^o Jehiel, and Zetham, and ^p Joel, three.

9 The sons of Shimei; Shelomith, and Haziël, and Haran, three. These were the chief of the fathers of Laadan.

10 And the sons of Shimei were Ja-bath, ^q Zina, and Jeush, and Beriah.
These four were the sons of Shimei.

11 And Jahath was the chief, and ^r Zizah the second: but Jeush and Be-riah [†] had not many sons; therefore they were in one reckoning, according to their father's house.

12 ¶ The ^s sons of Kohath; Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four.

13 The ^t sons of Amram; Aaron and Moses: and Aaron was ^u separated, that he should ^x sanctify the most holy things, he and his sons for ever, ^y to burn incense before the LORD, to minister unto him, and ^z to bless in his name for ever.

14 Now concerning Moses ^a the man of God, ^b his sons were named of the tribe of Levi.

15 The sons of Moses were, ^c Gershom and Eliezer.

16 Of the sons of Gershom, ^d Shebu-el was the chief.

17 And the sons of Eliezer were, Rehabiah [†] the chief. And Eliezer had none other sons; but the sons of Re-habiah ^{||} were very many.

18 Of the sons of Izhar; ^e Shelomith the chief.

19 Of the sons of ^f Hebron; Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jehaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth.

20 Of the sons of Uzziel; Micah the first, and Jesiah the second.

21 ¶ The sons of ^g Merari; ^h Mahli and Mushi. The sons of Mahli; Eleazar and Kish.

22 And Eleazar died, and ⁱ had no sons, but daughters: and their ^{*} brethren the sons of Kish ^k took them.

23 The sons of Mushi; Mahli, and Eder, and ^l Jeremoth, three.

24 ¶ These were ^m the sons of Levi after the house of their fathers: even the chief of the fathers, ⁿ as they were counted

^y Ex. xxx. 6—16.
34—38. Lev. x.
1, 2 xvi. 12, 13.

Num. xvi. 16—
18. 35—40. 46,
47. 2 Chr. xxvi.
18—21. Luke i.

9. Rev. viii. 3.
^z Lev. ix. 22, 23.

Num. ix. 23—
27. Deu. xxi. 5.
^a Deu. xxxiii. 1.

Ps. xc. title.
^b xxvi. 23—25.
^c Ex. ii. 22. iv. 20.

xviii. 3, 4.
^d xxiv. 20. Shubael.

^{||} Heb. were highly multiplied.
^e xxiv. 22. Shelo-
moth. xxvi. 26.

[†] Or, the first
xxvi. 25.

^{||} Heb. were highly multiplied.
^e xxiv. 22. Shelo-
moth. xxvi. 26.

^f 12. xv. 9. xxix.
23.

^g 6. vi. 29. 30
xxiv. 26—30.
^h Ex. vi. 19. Mahali.

ⁱ xxiv. 28.

^{*} Or, kinsmen.

^k Num. xxxvi. 6 —8.

^l xxiv. 30. Jerimoth.

^m Num. x. 17. 21

ⁿ Num. ii. 32. iii.
22. 39. iv. 34—
49.

V. 3—6. The ark being now stationed at Jerusalem, the place of the temple appointed, and great preparations made for the building of it; David proceeded to reduce the whole service of the priests and Levites to method, which seems before to have been conducted with less regularity. The Israelites had been greatly increased; and we may suppose that, towards the close of David's reign, the occasional sacrifices were far more numerous than they had been. The priests and Levites also were greatly multiplied; and it was of importance to make every thing ready for conducting the service, with proportionable splendour and solemnity, as soon as the temple was finished. David therefore began his arrangements with numbering the Levites, from thirty years of age, as in the time of Moses; but it does not appear, that such as were above fifty years old were omitted. The priests, who were very numerous, were not included in the sum total here mentioned: so that this tribe had increased in greater proportion, than the others. Twenty-four thousand Levites were employed to set forward the work of the house of the LORD: that is, to assist the priests in every thing pertaining to the sacrifices, and in removing from the temple and its courts, whatever might be polluting and offensive; that the whole service might be performed with expedition and exactness, and every thing preserved entirely clean and beautiful; and it is probable, that while the temple was building, they were employed in superintending the workmen. They served in rotation by courses; every week a thousand came in, and a thousand went out. (Marg. Ref.) Doubtless it was also intended, that they should be instructors of the people, in their several districts, when not employed at the sanctuary. Six thousand were employed as magistrates, in the different parts of the country, and perhaps they likewise acted in rotation. Four thousand kept the doors of the sanctuary, that no unclean or improper person might enter the courts, that none but priests might go into the temple, and that no one might rob the treasures there deposited: and four thousand were appointed as singers and musicians, to keep up that part of divine worship continually. They also were divided into twenty-four courses, and changed weekly.

V. 13. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 14. As the sons of Moses were excluded from the priesthood; no other person, not of Aaron's race, could on any account reasonably think of intruding into that sacred office.

by number of names by their polls, that did the work for the service of the house of the LORD, from the age of ^o twenty years and upward.

25 For David said, ^p The LORD God of Israel hath given rest unto his people, * that they may dwell in Jerusalem for ever ;

26 And also unto the Levites : they shall no ^{more} ^q carry the tabernacle, nor any vessels of it for the service thereof.

27 For ^r by the last words of David, the Levites ^{were} [†] numbered from twenty years old and above :

28 Because their [‡] office ^{was} to wait on the sons of Aaron ^s for the service of the house of the LORD, in the courts, and ^t in the chambers, and in the ^u purifying of all holy things, and the work of the service of the house of God ;

29 Both for ^x the shew-bread, and for the fine flour for meat-offering, and for the ^z unleavened cakes, and for ^{that} ^{which is baked in the} [‡] pan, and for that which is fried, and for all manner of ^a measure and size ;

30 And to ^b stand ^c every morning to thank and praise the LORD, and likewise at even ;

31 And to offer all burnt-sacrifices unto the LORD ^d in the sabbaths in the new-moons, and on the ^e set feasts, by number, according to the order commanded unto them continually before the LORD :

32 And that they should ^f keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the holy place, and ^g the charge of the sons of Aaron their brethren, in the service of the house of the LORD.

^{27.} Num. i. 3.
^{iv.} 3. viii. 24.
Ezra iii. 8.

^{25.} xxii. 18. 2 Sam.
vii. 1. 11.

^{26.} Or, and he dwelleth in Jerusalem, &c.
1 Kings viii. 13.
27. Ps lxviii. 16
—18. cxxxii. 13.
14. 2 Cor vi.
16. Col ii. 9.
^{28.} Num. iv. 5, &c.

²⁷ 2 Sam xxiii. 1.
[†] Heb. numbers.
[†] Heb. station was at the hand of Neh. xi. 24.
²⁸ Num. iii. 6—9.
viii. 11—22. 26.
xviii. 2—6.
²⁹ ix. 26. 1 Kings vi. 5. 2 Chr. xxxi. 11. Ezra viii. 29. Neh. xiii. 4, 5, 9.
^u ix. 28, 29.
2 Chr. xxix. 5, 18, 19. xxxv. 3—6. 11—14.
^s ix. 31, 32. Ex. xxv. 30. Lev. xlii. 5—9.

^y Lev. vi. 20—23.

^z Lev. ii. 4—7.
[‡] Or, flat plate.

^a Lev. xix. 35, 36.
Num. iii. 50.
^b vi. 31. 33. ix. 33. xvi. 37—42.
^c xv. 1—7.
2 Chr. xxix. 25—28. xxxi. 2.
Ezra iii. 10, 11.
Ps cxxxv. 1—3.
19, 20. cxxxvii. 2—4. Rev. v. 8.
^d Ex. xix. 39—42. Ps xcii. 1—3. cxxxiv. 1, 2.
^e Lev. xxiii. 24. 39. Num. x. 10.
Ps. lxxxii. 1—4.
Is i. 13, 14.
^f Lev. xxiii. Num. cxxxvii. xxix.
^g ix. 27. Num. i. 53. 1 Kings viii. 4.

^g Num. iii. 6—9.
33.

V. 25—27. The work of the Levites was not so hard at this time, as when the tabernacle was carried by them, along with Israel in their journeys ; and perhaps numbers of the young Levites, being out of employ, contracted bad habits, or set bad examples ; and therefore David, as a prophet, ordered this change. Twenty-five years of age had been the earliest term of their entering upon their probationary services, but now they were to be employed from twenty years old : and as a matter of importance David confirmed it with his last words.

V. 29. All manner, &c. Those Levites, who acted as magistrates, had the inspection of weights and measures of every kind, that no fraud might in this way be committed. Honesty is nearly connected with piety ; and therefore the Levites, being sufficiently numerous, were employed to superintend the former as well as the latter. They probably kept standard-weights and measures at the temple, by which all those allowed in traffic, were tried and approved.

V. 31. The Levites assisted the priests, in offering the sacrifices ; though some parts of that service were performed by the priests alone. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

If we be prepared for death, having accomplished our measure of service, and seeing others raised up to succeed us in our stations in the church or community, we surely may be full of days, whatever our term of life may be : and satisfied with living in this world of sin and sorrow, of vanity and temptation, we may rejoice to leave all below, and even to be absent from our bodies, that we may go to heaven and be present with the Lord. We should be thankful, in declining years, to be eclipsed by men of real integrity, piety, and useful endowments, who are coming forward upon the stage of action : yet we ought still to endeavour to do all we can, to promote the common cause of religion ; and sometimes the sagacity and experience of old age, when incapable of much bodily exertion, may suggest and effect more real good, than the vigour and activity of youth.

—The increase of ministers is of great importance, provided they be men of God, zealous for his glory, and earnestly seeking the salvation of souls. In this case they will desire employment, and in one way or other they will be usefully active.—But it is expedient that every one should know his proper place, to help forward the work of the house of the Lord, to promote equity and justice, to instruct the people in the truths and precepts of God's word, to take care that his ordinances be duly administered, and to excite and assist the people in his sacred worship.—Every method should be used to prevent the irregularity, indolence, and worldly lusts, of this order of men, whose example, influence, and conversation are more useful, or more pernicious, than those of any other ; and who are commonly either better or worse employed than other orders in society.—Though it be generally inexpedient, that the more arduous part of the sacred ministry should be performed by very young men : yet they who are intended for this service, ought by no means to waste their youth in inactivity or dissipation ; but to employ their time in preparatory and initiatory studies and exercises.—A constant succession of religious duties, stated or occasional, public or private, must engage the true minister's attention, day by day continually : and if a man cannot take pleasure in such employments, he must soon be weary of the work as a drudgery ; and will either neglect it, or attend upon it unwillingly for the sake of his wages. A new heart, a spiritual mind, which delights greatly in God's commandments, is the first and most essential qualification for the ministry ; (as indeed it forms the great distinction betwixt the true Christian, and all other men in the world.) To the spiritual man every successive service will yield

CHAP. XXIV.

The priests are divided by lot into twenty-four orders, 1—19. The rest of the Kohathites, and the Merarites divided in like manner, 20—31.

NOW these are the divisions of the sons of Aaron. ^aThe sons of Aaron; Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

2 But ^bNadab and Abihu ^cdied before their father, and had no children: therefore ^dEleazar and Ithamar executed the priest's office.

3 And David distributed them, both ^eZadok of the sons of Eleazar, and ^fAhimelech of the sons of Ithamar, according to their offices in their service.

4 And there were more ^gchief men found of ^hthe sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar: and thus were they divided. Among the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen chief men of the house of their fathers, and eight among the sons of Ithamar according to the house of their fathers.

5 Thus were they divided by ⁱlot, one sort with another; for ^kthe governors of the sanctuary, and governors of the house of God, were of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar.

6 And Shemaiah the son of Nethaneel ^lthe scribe, one of the Levites, wrote them before the king, and the princes, and Zadok the priest, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, and before the chief of the fathers of the priests and Levites: one ^m* principal household being taken for Eleazar, and one taken for Ithamar.

7 Now the first lot came forth to ⁿJehoiarib, the second ^oto Jedaiah, 8 The third to ^pHarim, the fourth to Seorim,

9 The fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to ^qMijamin,

10 The seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to ^rAbijah,

11 The ninth to ^sJeshuah, the tenth to Shecaniah,

12 The eleventh to ^tEliashib, the twelfth to Jakim,

13 The thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab,

14 The fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to ^uImmer,

^a vi. 3. Ex. vi. 33.
^b xviii. 1. Lev.
^c x. 1. 6. Num.
^d iii. 2. xxvi. 60.
^e Ex. xxiv. 1. 9.
^f Lev. x. 2. Num.
^g iii. 1. xxvi. 61.
^h Lev. x. 12.
ⁱ Num. xvi. 40.
^j xviii. 7.

^k 6. 31. vi. 4—8.
^l 50—53. xii. 27.
^m 28. xv. 11. xvi.
ⁿ 39. 2 Sam. xx.
^o 25. 1 Kings ii.
^p 35.
^q 2 Sam. viii. 17.
^r xv. 6—12. 16.
^s Num. xxv. 11—
^t 13. 1 Sam. ii.
^u 30—33.

^v Josh. xviii. 10.
^w Prov. xvi. 33.
^x Acts i. 26.

^y 1 Kings iv. 2.
^z Neh. viii. 1.
^{aa} Matt. xxiii. 1.
^{ab} 2.

^{ac} Heb. house of the father.

^{ad} ix 10 Neh. xii.
^{ae} 19. Jozarib
^{af} n Ezra ii. 36 Neh.
^{ag} vii 39. xi 10.
^{ah} o Ezra ii 39. x.
^{ai} 21 Neh vii 39.
^{aj} xii 15.

^{ak} p Neh xii. 17.
^{al} Minjamin.

^{am} q Neh xii. 4. 17.
^{an} Luke i 5. Abia.
^{ao} r Ezra ii 36. Neh.
^{ap} vii 39. xii. 10.

^{aq} s Neh. xii. 10.

^{ar} t Ezra ii. 37. x.
^{as} 20. Neh. vii. 40.

renewed satisfaction; and he will be unwearied, and always abounding and delighting in the work of the Lord; being never so happy, as when employed for such a good Master in so pleasant a service. With him the work itself, and the success of his labours, are the principal objects: the emolument or maintenance, (though he has a right to it, and perhaps cannot live without it,) is a very subordinate consideration: nor will he much regard whether he be called to take the lead, or whether he keep the charge of others who are placed over him, provided they do not bind his hands, or impede his usefulness. These are “men of God;” may he supply his church with numbers of them; in the place of those hirelings, who have in all ages swarmed in the professing church, to the scandal of religion and the ruin of their own souls! Such ministers, as have been described, will be accepted and useful in the most obscure situations; and will subserve the interests of morality most effectually, as well as promote the spiritual worship of God through Jesus Christ. And should they leave their families in poverty and obscurity, after their decease: this circumstance will be a testimony before the world of their disinterestedness; and the Lord will surely provide for them and theirs, as far as is truly good for them. He advances, and abases, as in his infinite wisdom he sees good, whatever our cares or desires may be. May we then seek and serve him uprightly, and leave all the rest to his disposal, by faith in his word and resignation to his will.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIV. V. 4. We may suppose that the house of Ithamar, in consequence of the sentence denounced against them in the days of Eli, had decreased in numbers and eminency, before Zadok was constituted high-priest: so that there were twice as many flourishing families and principal persons in the line of Eleazar, as in that of Ithamar.

V. 5. Governors, &c. Or principal ministers in holy things; and rulers of God, or superior magistrates.

V. 6. The regulation of these courses of the priests was made by casting lots before the king, and all the chief persons in the land, in a most solemn manner; and a record was made of the transaction, to prevent any future contest. First one household was taken of Eleazar's race, and then one of Ithamar's, till sixteen had been completed; and then the remaining eight of Eleazar's sons, were arranged according to the order in which their lots came forth.

V. 8. It was thought by the Jews in after ages, a great honour to be descended from Jehoiarib. The Maccabees were descended from him; (1 Mac. ii. 54:) and Josephus thought himself noble, because he sprang from the first of these twenty-four courses.

V. 10. Abijah. The courses of the priests, established by David, were continued with some alterations till the days of Christ: these records must therefore have been very useful to the Jews, after their return from the Babylonish captivity. (Marg. Ref.)

15 The seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Apses,

16 The nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkeel,

17 The one and twentieth to Jachin, the two and twentieth to Gamul, 18 The three and twentieth to Delaiah, the four and twentieth to Maaziah.

19 These were ^uthe orderings of them in their service to come into the house of the LORD, according to their manner, under Aaron their father, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

20 ¶ And the rest of the sons of Levi were these: Of the sons of ^vAmram; ^zShubael: of the sons of Shubael; Jehdeiah.

21 Concerning ^aRehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, the first was ^oIsshiah.

22 Of the Izharites; ^cShelomoth: of the sons of Shelomoth; Jahath.

23 And the sons of Hebron; ^dJeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, Jekameam the fourth.

24 Of the sons of Uzziel: ^eMichah: of the sons of Michah; Shamir.

25 The brother of Michah was ^fIsshiah; of the sons of Isshiah; ^gZechariah.

26 ¶ The ^hsons of Merari were Mahli and Mushi: the sons of Jaaziah; Beno.

27 The sons of Merari by Jaaziah; Beno, and Shoham, and Zaccur, and Ibrì.

28 Of Mahli came Eleazar, ⁱwho had ⁱxxiii. 22. no sons.

29 Concerning Kish: the son of Kish was Jerahmeel.

30 The sons also of ^kMushi; Mahli, ^kvi. 47. xxiii. 23. and Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites after the house of their fathers.

31 These likewise cast ⁱlots over ^l5, 6. Num. xxvi. 56. against their brethren the sons of Aaron in the presence of David the king, and Zadok, and Ahimelech, and the chief of the fathers of the priests and Levites, even ^mthe principal fathers over against ^mxxv. 6. xxvi. 13. their younger brethren.

CHAP. XXV.

The names and offices of the principal singers and musicians, 1—7. They are divided by lot into twenty-four orders, 8—31.

MOREOVER David and ^athe captains of the host separated to the service, of the sons of ^bAsaph, and

V. 19. Under Aaron. All the priests were considered as Aaron's successors, and as filling up his place, in whose person the whole priesthood was originally vested, and from him it was derived to his posterity. These arrangements having been made by David, acting under the divine direction, and according to the commandment given by Moses concerning the priesthood; the courses of the priests attended a week at a time for the ordinary services; though at the great festivals, and on other public occasions, numbers of the rest would be present and assist.

V. 20—30. These persons seem to have been the heads of those twenty-four thousand Levites, who in twenty-four courses waited on the priests in their ministrations. (xxiii. 4.) But they all appear to have been of the families of Kohath and Merari, and none of Gershon's line.

V. 31. The principal, &c. The whole company being ranged according to their families into the proper number of divisions, the order of their courses was assigned them by lot, without respect to rank or seniority.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord will certainly perform all his promises and threatenings; and if they do not take effect suddenly, and with observation, they will gradually and silently. Sin ruins men's characters, comforts, and families; and it will destroy the immortal souls of all those, who do not obtain salvation by faith in Jesus Christ. In all cases we ought to act with exact impartiality, as far as we are able: and when human prudence fails of discerning a reason of preference, where it must be given, it is right, in one way or other, to refer the determination to the Lord.—Much wisdom and equity is requisite to exclude occasions of envy, jealousy, and contention, in the regulation of public affairs, where numbers are concerned: but what is done fairly and openly, and in the fear of God, is placed upon the most permanent basis. The solemn appointment and orderly attendance of ministers is of considerable importance; but they are all under the hand of Jesus, from whom they receive their commission and instructions, as well as qualifications; and to whom they are all accountable. Difference of age, learning, piety, reputation, and other circumstances may give external precedence to some ministers; but they are all brethren, and none ought to lord it over the others. Thus in Jesus Christ, there is neither male nor female, bond or free; but all believers are one in him, being children of God, fellow-heirs of eternal life, and brethren to each other. May they all on earth emulate that love, peace, and harmony, which will subsist in the heavenly world!

c 3. 1 Sam. x. 5.
2 Kings iii. 15.
1 Cor xiv. 24—26
d xv. 16—21. xvi.
4, 5, 42. xxiii. 5
—7. 2 Chr xxiii.
13. xxix. 25, 26
xxxi. 2. xxxiv.
12. Ezra iii. 10,
11. Neh xii. 24.
27. 43—46. Ps.
lxxxix. 2. cl. 3—3. Rev. xv. 2—4.
xix. 1—6.
xvi. 39. xv. 17.
xvi. 5. Ps. lxxiii.
lxxiv. x. c. titlos.
f 14. Jesharelah.
g Heb. by the hands of the king. 6
gix. 16. xvi. 41, 42. 2 Chr. xxix.
14.
h 9.
i 11. Izri.
k 15.
l 21. xv. 18. 21.
with Shimei. 17.
m Ps. xcii. 1 Jer.
xxxiii. 1.
n vi. 33. xv. 17.
19. xvi. 41, 42.
Ps. lxxxviii.
title.
o 13.
p 16.
q 18. Azareel.
xxiv. 24.
r 20. xxiv. 20.
Shubael.
s 22. xxiv.
t 23.
u 25.
x 27.
y 29.
z 31.
a 24.
b 28.
c 28.
d xxi. 9. 1 Sam.
ix. 9.
e Or, matters.
f xxviii. 5. Gen.
xxxiii. 5. Ps.
cxxxvii. 3. Is.
viii. 18.
f 2. 3. xv. 22.
xxiii. 5. Ps.
lxxviii. 25. Eph.
v. 19. Col. iii. 16.
g 1—3.
h Heb. by the hands of the king.

of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who should prophesy with ^d harps, with psalteries, and with cymbals: and the number of the workmen according to their service was :

2 Of the sons of ^e Asaph; Zaccur, and Joseph, and Nethaniah, and ^f Asarelah, the sons of Asaph, under the hands of Asaph, which prophesied * according to the order of the king.

3 Of ^g Jeduthun: the sons of Jeduthun; ^h Gedaliah, and ⁱ Zeri, and ^k Jeshaiiah, Hashabiah, and ^l Mattithiah, six, under the hands of their father Jeduthun, who prophesied with a harp, ^m to give thanks and to praise the LORD.

4 Of ⁿ Heman: the sons of Heman; ^o Bukkiah, ^p Mattaniah, ^q Uzziel, ^r Shebuel, and ^s Jerimoth, ^t Hananiah, ^u Hanani, ^x Eliathah, ^y Giddalti, and ^z Romamti-ezer, ^a Joshbekashah, ^b Mallothi, ^c Hothir, and Mahazioth:

5 All these were the sons of Heman ^d the king's seer in the ^f words of God, to lift up the horn. And ^e God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these were ^f under the hands of their father ^g for song in the house of the LORD, with cymbals, psalteries, and harps, for the service of the house of God, ^h according to the king's order to Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman.

7 So the number of them, with their brethren, that were instructed in the songs of the LORD, even all that were cunning, was two hundred fourscore and eight.

8 ¶ And they ^h cast lots, ⁱ ward against ^j ward, as well the small as the great, ^k the teacher as the scholar.

9 Now the first lot came forth for Asaph to ^l Joseph: the second to Gedaliah, ^l 2. who with his brethren and sons were twelve:

10 The third to ^m Zaccur, he, his ^m 2. sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

11 The fourth to ⁿ Izri, he, his sons, ⁿ 3. Zeri, and his brethren, were twelve:

12 The fifth to ^o Nethaniah, he, his ^o 2. sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

13 The sixth to Bukkiah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

14 The seventh to ^p Jesharelah, he, ^p 2. Azareel, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

15 The eighth to Jeshaiiah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

16 The ninth to Mattaniah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

17 The tenth to Shimei, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

18 The eleventh to ^q Azareel, he, his ^q 4. Uzziel, sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

19 The twelfth to ^r Hashabiah, he, ^r 3. his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

20 The thirteenth to ^s Shubael, he, his ^s 4. Shebuel, sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

21 The fourteenth to Matithiah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

22 The fifteenth to Jeremoth, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

NOTES.

CHAP. XXV. V. 1—6. The captains of the host seem to mean the leaders, or heads, of the several courses of the priests and Levites. Jeduthun was either the same person, who before was called Ethan; or Ethan was dead, and Jeduthun succeeded him. The word prophesy, in this place, seems to mean no more, than praising God by singing inspired prophetic hymns, with great earnestness and devout affections, under the influences of the Holy Spirit. As the prophets in Samuel's days used music and singing; it hath been conjectured, that he first introduced them into the regular worship of Israel, and that David reduced to order what he found already established. These persons are said to have prophesied according "to the order of the king;" because he instituted the order of their services. Only five sons of Jeduthun are here named: but Shimei, afterwards mentioned, is supposed to have been the sixth.

(17.) Perhaps, though as Jeduthun's son, he was chosen to be the head of one course; he was at this time young, and not fit for present service. Heman seems to have been a prophet, or seer, in the common acceptation, and was much consulted by David: "he lifted up the horn," or presided over those who used wind-instruments of music.

V. 7. These two hundred and eighty-eight being twenty-four courses of twelve each, were more skilful than the other Levites; and being placed under the twenty-four sons of the chief singers, they had the four thousand before mentioned divided among them, to perform by courses, according to their instructions.

V. 8. Even among the twenty-four leaders some were more expert than others; some were teachers and others scholars: but every one was taken by the solemn casting of lots, without any regard to these distinctions. (Marg. Ref.)

23 The sixteenth to Hananiah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

24 The seventeenth to Joshbekashah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

25 The eighteenth to Hanani, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

26 The nineteenth to Mallothi, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

27 The twentieth to Eliathah, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

28 The one and twentieth to Hothir, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

29 The two and twentieth to Gid-dalti, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

30 The three and twentieth to ^u Mahazioth, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve :

31 The four and twentieth to Romainti-ezer, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve.

CHAP. XXVI.

The divisions of the porters, 1—12. The gates assigned to them by lot, 13—19. The Levites who had the charge of the treasures, 20—28. Those who were officers and judges, 29—32.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord is in himself exalted far above all blessing and praise, and our obligations to him are infinite: we ought therefore to give him thanks, and to praise him, with our noblest powers; and to render every kind and degree of capacity, ingenuity, or skill that we possess, subservient to that highest end: but especially our best and most lively affections are his due. Every part of his service is delightful in proportion as we are properly disposed: yet we should apply our minds to instruction, that we may become workmen that need not be ashamed, as capable of performing our several duties with propriety and readiness.—Human prudence must regulate certain circumstances relative to religious worship; and every society, larger or smaller, should order such matters for themselves to the best of their judgment: but without the Spirit of God put life and fervour into our devotions, they will, however appointed, be a lifeless worthless form.—We should all be ready to give or to receive instructions, without self-preference, or accounting ourselves degraded: for in God's sight the teachable scholar is nearly as honourable as the able instructor.—It is pleasant to receive all our temporal and domestic comforts, as given unto us of God, and then to devote them all to his service: and it is a singular mercy

VOL. II.—No. 11.

CONCERNING the divisions of ^a the porters: of the ^b Korhites was ^c Meshelemiah the son of Kore, of the sons of ^d Asaph.

2 And the sons of Meshelemiah were, Zechariah the first born, Jediael the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth,

3 Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth, Elioenai the seventh.

4 Moreover the sons of ^e Obed-edom were, Shemaiah the first-born, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, and Sacar the fourth, and Nethaneel the fifth,

5 Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peulthai the eighth: for ^f God blessed him.

6 Also unto Shemaiah his son were sons born, that ruled throughout the house of their father: for they were ^g mighty men of valour.

7 The sons of Shemaiah; Othni, and Rephael, and Obed, Elzabad, whose brethren were strong men, Elihu, and Semachiah.

8 All these of the sons of Obed-edom: they and their sons and their brethren, able men for strength for the service, were threescore and two of Obed-edom.

to have a large family, all employed and accepted by him. But whether our children and connexions be few or many, may we all be his, and meet in his temple above to sing his praises for ever! Whatever Providence may allot us here, may this be the lot and portion of our inheritance hereafter!

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVI. V. 4, 5. The numerous and prosperous family of Obed-edom was the effect of the divine blessing, by which his reverential regard to the ark was recompensed.

V. 6. Mighty men, &c. The porters, and treasurers of the temple had occasion for strength and valour, both to oppose such as improperly attempted to enter the courts or sanctuary, or to raise any disturbance there; and also to guard the sacred treasures of money, vessels, flour, frankincense, wine, and oil, there deposited, and of which some of them were appointed to keep an account. (Marg. Ref.) Josephus speaks of the gates of the temple being so massy, as to require twenty persons to open or shut them: this too would find employment for the strength of the porters.

The temple indeed was not yet built; but David had received from the Lord a pattern of what it was to be, and he arranged every thing with reference to it.

2 K

^a ix. 17—27. xv. 18. 23, 24. 2 Chr. xxiii. 19.
^b Num. xxvi. 9. Ps. xlii. xlv. titles.
^c 14. Shelemiah.
^d vi. 37. ix. 13. Ebiasaph.

^e xv. 18. 21. 24. xvi. 5. 38.

^f xlii. 14. Obed-edom.

^g 8 xii. 28. 2 Chr. xxvi. 27. Neh. xi. 14. 1 Tim. vi. 12. 2 Tim. ii. 3.

h 1. 14.

9 And ^h Meshelemiah had sons and brethren, strong men, eighteen.

i xvi. 38.

10 Also ⁱ Hosah, of the children of Merari, had sons: Simri the chief, (for though he was not the first-born, yet ^k his father made him the chief;)

k v. 1, 2.

11 Hilkiath the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brethren of Hosah were thirteen.

i xxv. 8.

12 Among these were the divisions of the porters, even among the chief men, having ^l wards one against another, to minister in the house of the LORD.

* Or, as well for the small as for the great. xxiv. 31. xxv. 8.

13 ¶ And they cast lots, * as well the small as the great, according to the house of their fathers, for every gate.

m 1. Meshelemiah.

14 And the lot eastward fell to ^m Shelemiah. Then for ⁿ Zechariah his son (a wise counsellor,) they cast lots; and his lot came out northward.

n 2.

15 To Obed-edom southward; and to his sons, the house of [†] Asuppim.

† Heb. gatherings. 17. o 10, 11.

16 To Shuppim and ^o Hosah the lot came forth westward, with the gate Shallecheth, by the ^p causeway of the going up, ^q ward against ward.

p 1 Kings x. 5. 2 Chr. ix. 4. q 12. xxv. 8. Neh. xii. 24. r ix. 24. 2 Chr. viii. 14.

17 ^r Eastward were six Levites, northward four a day, southward four a day, and toward Asuppim two and two.

18 At Parbar westward, four at the causeway, and two at Parbar.

s Num. xxvi. 11. Korah. 22. ix. 26-30. xxii. 3, 4. 14-16. xxviii. 12-19. xxix. 2-8. 1 Kings xiv. 26. xv. 18. Mal. iii. 9.

19 These are the divisions of the porters among the sons of ^s Kore, and among the sons of Merari.

20 ¶ And of the Levites, Ahijah was over the ^t treasures of the house of God, and over the treasures of the [†] dedicated things.

† Heb. holy. 26-28. xviii. 11. 1 Kings vii. 51. 2 Chr. xxxi. 11, 12. u vi. 17. Libb. xxiii. 7.

21 As concerning the sons of ^u Laadan; the sons of the Gershonite Laadan, chief fathers, even of Laadan the Gershonite, were ^x Jehieli.

x xxiii. 8. xxix. 5. Jehiel.

22 The sons of Jehieli; Zetham, and Joel his brother, which were ^y over the treasures of the house of the LORD.

y 20. Neh. x. 37.

23 Of the ^z Amramites, and the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites:

z xxiii. 12. Num. iii. 19. 27.

24 And ^a Shebuel the son of Gershon, the son of Moses, was ruler of the treasures.

a xxiii. 15, 16. xxiv. 20. Shebuel.

25 And his brethren by ^b Eliezer; ^c Rehabiah his son, and Jeshaiiah his son, and Joram his son, and Zechri his son, and ^d Shelomith his son:

b xxiii. 15. Ex. xviii. 4. c xxiii. 17.

26 Which Shelomith and his brethren were ^e over all the treasures of the dedicated things, which David the king, and the chief fathers, the captains over thousands and hundreds, and the captains of the host had dedicated.

d xxiii. 18.

27 Out of the ^f spoils won in battles did they dedicate, ^g to maintain the house of the LORD.

f Heb. battles and spoils. g 2 Kings xii. 14. Neh. x. 32-34.

28 And all that ^h Samuel the seer, and Saul the son of Kish, and ⁱ Abner the son of Ner, and ^j Joab the son of Zeruiab, had dedicated; and whosoever had dedicated any thing, it was under the hand of Shelomith, and of his brethren.

h 1 Sam. ix. 9. i 1 Sam. xiv. 47-51. xvii. 55. j 2 Sam. x. 9-14.

29 ¶ Of the ^k Isharites, Chenaniah and his sons were for ^l the outward business over Israel, for ^m officers and judges.

k 23. xxiii. 12. 18. l 2 Chr. xxxiv. 19. Neh. xi. 16. m xxiii. 4. 2 Chr. xix. 8-11.

V. 13. And they, &c. The porters seem to have been divided into courses, by a method different from the other Levites. The different families or divisions of them cast lots at which gates they should keep ward; and then the individuals of those divisions attended in rotation; but whether their order of succession was determined by lot, or by agreement, does not appear.

V. 14. A wise, &c. It seems that Zechariah was for his wisdom preferred to be the king's counsellor. The office of porter in the temple was a place of great trust, and therefore honourable.

V. 15. Asuppim, signifying gatherings: it is supposed that the house of Asuppim was a building erected to contain the collections made for the service of the sanctuary.

V. 24-26. These are the only persons among the descendants of Moses, who have been mentioned hitherto, as appointed to any office of honour and distinction.

V. 28. Samuel, &c. It had been customary from the time of Abraham, and probably from the beginning of the world, for persons to dedicate a portion of their gains to the service of God, as an acknowledgment that all came from him: but it is uncertain whether Samuel, or the other persons here mentioned, had an expectation of a temple being built, for which they desired to make preparation.

V. 29. The outward business, &c. These Levites seem not to have performed any service within the sanctuary; and their employment on that account is called "the outward business." In general it may be supposed, that as well as the other Levites, they were expected to be instructors of the people in the law of God: and in particular they were made magistrates of different orders, to administer justice to the people. As the Levites were more numerous than could be employed in the sanctuary; and as they ought to be, and had opportunities of being better acquainted with the law than the other Israelites; they were appointed to this service, along with the elders of every tribe. From these, the scribes, lawyers, or doctors of the law, mentioned in the New Testament, seem to have arisen.

n xxiii. 12—19.

* Heb. over the charge.

v xxiii. 19. Jeriah.

p xxix. 27. 1 Kings ii. 11.

q Josh. xxi. 39. Is. xvi. 9. r 6—9.

s xv. 12. xxiii. 24. xxiv. 31. t xii. 37.

u 2 Chr. xix. 11. † Heb. thing.

30 And of the ^aHebronites, Hashabiah and his brethren, men of valour, a thousand and seven hundred, were ^{*}officers among them of Israel on this side Jordan westward, in all the business of the Lord, and in the service of the king.

31 Among the Hebronites was ^oJeriah the chief, even among the Hebronites, according to the generations of his fathers. In the ^pfortieth year of the reign of David they were sought for, and there were found among them mighty men of valour, at ^qJazer of Gilead.

32 And his brethren, ^rmen of valour, were two thousand and seven hundred ^schief fathers, whom king David made rulers over the ^tReubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, for every matter ^upertaining to God, and [†]affairs of the king.

CHAP. XXVII.

David's twelve captains one for each month, 1—15. The princes of the twelve tribes, 16—22. The numbering of the people hindered, 23, 24. David's several officers and counsellors, 25—34.

NOW the children of Israel after their number, to wit, the chief fathers and ^acaptains of thousands and hundreds, and their officers that ^bserved the king in ^cany matter of the courses, which came in and went out ^dmonth by month throughout all the months of the year of every course, were twenty and four thousand.

2 Over the first course for the first month was ^eJashobeam the son of Zabdiel: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

3 Of the children of ^fPerez, was ^gthe chief of all the captains of the host for the first month.

4 And over the course of the second month was ^hDodai an Ahohite, and of his course was Mikloth also the ruler: in his course likewise were twenty and four thousand.

a xliii. 1. b xxviii. 25. Deut. i. 15. 1 Sam. viii. 12. Mic. v. 2. b xxviii. 1. 2 Chr. xvii. 12—19. c 1 Kings v. 11. d 1 Kings iv. 7. 27.

e xi. 11. 2 Sam. xx ii. 8. Adino the Ezrite.

f Gen. xxxviii. 29. Num. xxvi. 20. Pharez. g Gen. xlix. 8—10. Num. vii. 12. x. 14.

h xi. 12. 2 Sam. xxiii. 9. Dodo.

As the office of the magistracy reaches only to the regulation of the outward conduct; whilst the ministry of the word forms the means of regulating the affections of the heart; the former may in this sense also be called "the outward business." The lawyers before mentioned made the whole of religion a mere outward business; and they have always had abundance of disciples in this respect.

V. 30—32. Hebron was first assigned to the priests, but it was afterwards occupied by Levites, perhaps as tenants whilst the priests were but few. The Levites here mentioned, lived there till they had acquired the name of Hebronites, and then removed over Jordan into the land of Gilead. But being sought out, they were appointed judges, on each side Jordan in two divisions: though the larger proportion was assigned to those who lived east of that river; perhaps because being more remote from the sanctuary, and the seat of government, they needed more attention to keep them to their duty, both to God and to the king.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The blessing of God renders individuals happy, and families flourishing; and they that have been faithful in a little, will be made rulers over many things. Wisdom, courage, strength of faith, holy affections, and constancy of mind in our duty, are requisite for every station. But they who minister in the house of the Lord, and are required, without respect of persons, to prevent the profanation of holy things, have peculiar need of these qualifications. They are the porters of the spiritual house, the stewards of the mysteries of God; a charge is committed to their trust, infinitely more valuable than all the treasures of the temple; and they need to be watchful and faithful. Their office requires them rightly to divide the word of truth, and to administer divine ordinances according to it; that the hungry souls may be fed and feasted from the provisions of the Lord's house; and that he may be glorified by their spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to him through Jesus Christ. Great integrity, firmness, and discretion, are necessary to do this according to the mind of the great Master of the family, and to prevent abuses and prostitution of sacred ordinances to secular purposes by ungodly men. From these sacred treasures, the unsearchable riches of Christ, all our wants are supplied: but receiving from his fulness, and being victorious over our enemies by his grace, we must give him the glory, and endeavour to dispose of the whole of our abilities and substance according to his will; allotting a proportion to maintain the expense of his worship, as well as to provide for the poor. Many unbelievers, however, join in these external services, and we must not in any wise rest our hopes on them.—The work of the ministry requires the whole man: internal renovation is immediately its object; and the outward business of external order in society properly belongs to the magistrate. These services are therefore best preserved distinct; yet particular circumstances may warrant exceptions. However, both magistrates and ministers should concur in leading people, by different means, to fear God and honour the king, and to do justice and show kindness to their brethren.—It is very wrong for able men to get out of the way, when their help is wanted; but they should be sought out, and set to work: and as our end approaches, we should be more earnest to render our last services to mankind.

5 The third captain of the host for the third month was ⁱ Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, * a chief priest: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

6 This is that Benaiah, who was ^k mighty among the thirty, and above the thirty: and in his course was Ammizabad his son.

7 The fourth captain for the fourth month was ^l Ashel the brother of Joab, and Zebadiah his son after him: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

8 The fifth captain for the fifth month was ^m Shamhuth the Izrahite: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

9 The sixth captain for the sixth month was ⁿ Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

10 The seventh captain for the seventh month was ^o Helez the ^p Pelonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

11 The eighth captain for the eighth month was ^q Sibbecai the Hushathite, of the ^r Zarhites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

12 The ninth captain for the ninth month was Abiezer the ^s Anetothite, of the Benjamites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

13 The tenth captain for the tenth month was ^t Maharai the Netophathite, of the ^u Zarhites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

14 The eleventh captain for the eleventh month was ^x Benaiah the Pirathonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

15 The twelfth captain for the twelfth month was ^y Heldai the Netophathite, of ^z Othniel: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

16 ¶ Furthermore over the tribes of Israel: the ruler of the Reubenites was Eliezer the son of Zichri: of the Simeonites, Shephatiah the son of Maachah:

17 Of the Levites, ^a Hashabiah the son of Kemuel: ^b of the Aaronites, Zadok:

18 Of Judah, ^c Elihu, one of the brethren of David: of Issachar, Omri the son of Michael:

19 Of Zebulun, Ishmaiah the son of Obadiah: of Naphtali, Jerimoth the son of Azriel:

20 Of the children of Ephraim, Hoshea the son of Azaziah: of the half tribe of Manasseh, Joel the son of Pedaiah:

21 Of the half tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, ^d Iddo the son of Zechariah: of Benjamin, Jaasiel the son of ^e Abner:

22 Of Dan, Azareel the son of Jeroham. These were the princes of the tribes of Israel.

23 ¶ But David took not the number of them ^f from twenty years old and under: because the Lord had said ^g he would increase Israel like to the stars of the heavens.

24 Joab the son of Zeruiah ^h began to number, but he finished not, because there fell wrath for it against Israel; neither ⁱ was the number put in the account of the chronicles of king David.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVII. V. 1—15. When David was not actually engaged in war, twenty-four thousand men seem to have been continually kept under military discipline. These were exchanged every month for others; so that two hundred and eighty-eight thousand men were every year exercised as a regular militia; but they were not kept from their other engagements, more than a month at once. These were mustered from all the tribes of Israel, under commanders, perhaps not always of the same tribe; but with inferior officers from among themselves. All the twelve captains are named amongst David's mighty men; (xi.)—The word translated priest, and applied to Benaiah, evidently means and should be rendered Ruler. Asahel, whom Abner slew, is numbered among these captains, and upon his death, his son succeeded him: hence we learn, that this order was at least begun to be established before David ruled over the whole land. Joab was the commander in chief. (34.)

V. 16—22. These rulers seem to have been civil rulers over their several tribes, not entirely unlike the lord lieutenants of counties in England.—Gad and Ashur are not mentioned, probably because they were joined to their neighbouring tribes. Elihu, or Eliab, was David's elder brother. The son of Abner was probably advanced upon his father's death, as an expression of David's unfeigned concern for that event.

V. 23, 24. It seems probable from this passage, that Joab began by David's order to number the children, as well as the grown men, but was prevented from finishing the account. The numbering of the effective men might have been deemed politically expedient: but ostentation alone could dictate the numbering of minors and infants;

2 Kings. xviii.
15. 2 Chr. xvi. 2.
1 Gen. xli. 49.
Ex. i. 11. 2 Chr.
xxvi. 10. Jer.
xli. 8.

25 And over ⁱ the king's treasures was Azmaveth the son of Adiel: and over ^k the store-houses in the fields, in the cities, and in the villages, and in the castles, was Jehonathan the son of Uziah;

26 And over them that did the work of the field for tillage of the ground was Ezri the son of Chelub:

27 And over the vineyards was Shimei the Rameathite; over ^{*} the increase of the vineyards for the wine-cellars was Zabdi the Shiphmite:

28 And ^l over the olive-trees and the sycamore-trees that were in the low plains, was Baal-hanan the Gederite: and over the cellars of oil was Joash:

29 And over the herds that fed in ^m Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite: and over the herds that were in the valleys was Shaphat the son of Adlai:

30 Over ⁿ the camels also was Obil the Ishmaelite: and over the asses was Jehdeiah the Meronothite:

31 And over the flocks was Jaziz the Hagarite. All these were the rulers of the substance which was king David's.

32 Also Jonathan David's ^p uncle was a counsellor, a wise man, and a [†] scribe: and Jehiel the [‡] son of Hachmoni was with the king's sons:

33 And ^q Ahithophel was the king's counsellor; and ^r Hushi the Archite was the king's ^s companion:

34 And after Ahithophel was Jehoia-da the son of Benaiah, and Abiathar: and ^t the general of the king's army was Joab.

2 Sam. xv. 32.
37. xvi. 16.
2 Sam. xvi. 17.
Ps. lv. 12. Zech.
xiii. 7.

xi. 6.

CHAP. XXVIII.

David assembles the chiefs of Israel, shows them how his purpose of building a temple had been disallowed, and relates the Lord's special favour to him, and his promises to Solomon, 1—8. He charges Solomon to serve God, and to build the temple, 9, 10. He gives a pattern for the form, (as God had showed him,) and gold and silver for the materials, 11—19. He encourages Solomon with the assurance of help, both from God and his people, 20, 21.

AND David ^a assembled all the princes of Israel, ^b the princes of the tribes, and the ^c captains of the companies that ministered to the king by course, and the captains over the thousands, and captains over the hundreds, and ^d the stewards over all the ^{*} substance and possessions of the king, [†] and of his sons, with ^e the [‡] officers, and with [§] the mighty men, and with all the valiant men, unto Jerusalem.

a xxiii. 2. Josh.
xxiii. 2. xxiv. 1.
b xxvii. 16—22.

c xxvii. 1—15.

d xxvii. 25—31.
* Or, cattle.

† Or, and his sons.
e xxvii. 32—34.
‡ Or, eunuchs.
§ xii. 10, &c.

especially as God had pronounced the seed of Abraham Isaac, and Jacob, innumerable. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 25—31. We do not read here of sinecure places, or officers of State, merely to make a show of magnificence. Luxury, ambition, and venality have multiplied these attendants on courts; and selfish opposers will so impede the most unexceptionable measures of government, in limited monarchies, that without a number of retainers, whose interest it is to support the crown, the public business must move heavily, if it could at all proceed. Yet ancient simplicity was preferable to modern refinement; and the useful productions of the earth, to all the devices of luxury and indulgence.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The prudent management of secular affairs subserves the interests of godliness; provided it be kept in its proper place, and the favour and glory of God have a decided preference. In the kingdoms of this world, habitual readiness for war forms a better security of peace, than any treaties or alliances: in like manner, nothing so much encourages Satan's assaults, as our unwatchfulness; and while we stand armed with the whole armour of God, in the exercise of faith and preparation of heart for the conflict, we shall certainly be safe, and probably enjoy inward peace. When we have exposed ourselves to wrath and chastening for our sins, we ought humbly to confess them, and to desist from them: this will not make atonement for our crimes; but it is a frame of mind, that prepares us for receiving the atonement made by the Saviour. Usefulness is the proper standard of valuableness; and he who estimates by this rule, will give the word of God, the salvation of Christ, and true religion, a decided preference to all other things; because infinitely more useful. Well chosen counsellors prove the wisdom of princes: yet, some will be found wise men and scribes, and eminent for worldly policy and plausibility, who are in fact very wicked characters. But the faithful, the upright, and godly, should be our friends and chosen companions; and no king will be well advised in all things, or in those of the greatest importance, who doth not make the testimonies of God his delight and his counsellors, however he may be surrounded by powerful family connexions, faithful friends, and able politicians.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVIII. V. 1. This transaction seems to have occurred in the time of David's last sickness, which, notwithstanding remissions, he was aware would terminate in death. He therefore summoned the several descriptions g Gen. xlviii. 2.

1 Kings i. 47.
h xl. 1-3. Deut.
xvii. 15. 20. Ps.
xxii. 12. Heb.
i. 11. 12.
Exviii. 1. 2 Sam.
viii. 1. 1 Kings
viii. 17. 18.
k vii. 31. Ps.
cxviii. 3-5. 8.
14.
l Ps. xcix. 5.
cxxxii. 7. 18.
lxvi. 1. Lam. ii.
1. Acts vii. 49.
m xviii. 7-11.
xxii. 2-5. 14.
n xvii. 4. xxii. 8.
2 Sam. vii. 5-
13. 1 Kings v. 3.
2 Chr. vi. 8, 9.
† Heb. bloods.

o 1 Sam xvi 6-
13. 2 Sam. vii. 9
-16. Ps lxxviii.
66-72. lxxxix.
19-27.
p v. 2. Gen. xlix
8-10. Ps. lx 7
cviii 8
q 1 Sam. xvi. 1.
r 1 Sam. xvi. 12.
13. Ps. xviii. 19.
cxlviii. 10. 11.

s iii. 1-9. xiv. 4
-7.
t xxii. 9. xxiii. 1.

u xvii. 14. xlix.
23. 2 Chr. i. 8.
9. Ps. lxxii. title.
1. &c. Is. ix.
6, 7.
x xvii. 11-14.
xxii. 10. 2 Sam.
vii. 3. 1. Zech.
vii. 12. 13. Heb.
iii. 3. 6.

2 Then David the king ^a stood up upon his feet, and said, Hear me, ^b my brethren, and my people: As for me, ^c I had in mine heart to build an house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and for ^d the footstool of our God, and ^e had made ready for the building:

3 But God said unto me, ^f Thou shalt not build an house for my name, because thou hast been a man of war, and hast shed ^g blood.

4 Howbeit the LORD God of Israel ^h chose me before all the house of my father, to be king over Israel for ever: for he hath ⁱ chosen Judah to be the ruler; and of ^j the house of Judah the house of my father; and ^k among the sons of my father he liked me to make me king over all Israel:

5 And of ^l all my sons, (for the LORD hath given me many sons,) ^m he hath chosen Solomon my son ⁿ to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel.

6 And he said unto me, Solomon thy son, ^o he shall build my house and my courts: for ^p I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father.

7 Moreover ^q I will establish his kingdom for ever, ^r if he be ^s constant to do my commandments and my judgments, ^t as at this day.

8 Now therefore ^u in the sight of all Israel the congregation of the LORD, and ^v in the audience of our God, ^w keep and seek for all the commandments of the LORD your God: ^x that ye may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance for your children after you for ever.

9 And thou, Solomon, my son, ^y know thou ^z the God of thy father, and ^a serve him with a perfect heart, and with ^b a willing mind: for ^c the LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all ^d the imaginations of the thoughts: ^e if thou seek him, he will be found of thee: but ^f if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever.

k 2 Cor. viii. 12. ix. 7. 1 Pet. v. 2. — l xxix. 17. 1 Sam. xvi. 7. 1 Kings viii. 39. Ps. iii. 2. Prov. xvii. 3. Jer. xi. 20. xvii. 10. xx. 12. John ii. 25. xli. 17. Acts i. 24. Rev. ii. 28. — m Gen. vi. 5. viii. 21. Deut. xxxi. 21. Ps. cxxxix. 2. Ez. xxxviii. 10. — n 2 Chr. xv. 2. Prov. ii. 1-6. Is. xlv. 19. lv. 6, 7. Jer. xxix. 13. Matt. vii. 7. 8. Jam. iv. 8-11. — o Deut. xxxi. 16, 17. 1 Kings ix. 6-9. Ezra viii. 22. Is. i. 28. Heb. x. 38, 39.

y Heb. i. 5.
z Ps. lxxxix. 28-37. cxxxii. 1. Dan. ii. 44.
a xxii. 13. 1 Kings vi. 12. 13. ix. 4, 5. xi. 9-13.
b Heb. strong. 10. Josh. i. 6, 7. 1 Kings ii. 2-4. c Deut. iv. 6. Matt. v. 16. Jud. ii. 15, 16. Heb. xii. 1, 2. d Deut. iv. 26. xxix. 10. 15.
e Acts x. 33.
f Ps. cxix. 4. 10. e Prov. 11-6. 11. 1.
g Deut. iv. 1. v. 32, 33. vi. 1, 2. Deut. iv. 35.
h 1 Kings viii. 43. Ps. ix. 10. Jer. ix. 24. xli. 16. xxiv. 37. xxxi. 34. Hos. iv. 1.
i 6 John viii. 55. xvii. 3. Acts xvii. 23. 30. Rom. i. 28. 1 Cor. xv. 34. 2 Cor. iv. 6.
j Gen. xlviii. 12. Is. iii. 16. xv. 2. 1 Kings iii. 6. Ps. xxviii. 2. lxxxix. 26.
k xxix. 9. 17-19. 1 Kings viii. 61. 2 Kings xx. 3. xxii. 2. Ps. 1. 2. John i. 47.

of men, which were mentioned in the preceding chapter, and which formed a convention of the states, or representatives of the people; that he might declare to them the will of God as revealed to him, and engage them to a hearty concurrence in those public measures, which, in obedience to that will, he had resolved on. Many of the chief priests and Levites generally resided with David at Jerusalem: but it is not expressly said, that they were present on this occasion.

V. 2. David, finding himself able, and being animated by the solemn occasion, stood up on his feet, to express his earnestness in this address, and his affection and respect for the people; and especially intending to honour the Lord, by whose authority and commission he spake. Moses and Joshua had, just before their death, assembled the people for similar purposes. David used the most endearing language in this parting interview, begging their attention, as his brethren and his people. The ark is here called "the footstool of our God." Heaven, where the Lord unveils his glories to his holy angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect, is his throne: the earth is his footstool; and the place of the ark was, as it were, the centre of that footstool, where the gracious presence of God on earth was chiefly displayed, and before and toward which all his people worshipped. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 4. For ever. That is, permanently in his posterity, and to the end of the world, yea, to eternity in Christ, of whom David and Solomon were remarkable types. It was not known till David's time, from which family in Judah the Messiah would descend.

V. 7, 8. David had committed several great transgressions, and he every where speaks the language of conscious sinfulness. Yet the people had been preserved from idolatry, and retained in the worship and service of God, during his reign; and at this time they, as well as Solomon, appeared well disposed to true religion. If therefore they continued constant, as at that day, to keep the Lord's commandments and judgments; their national covenant remaining unviolated, would secure their possession of Canaan, and other national advantages. Yet they were exhorted not only to keep, but to seek for, all the commandments of the Lord; that they might know them more exactly, and perform them more entirely from day to day. David therefore exhorted the princes to engage themselves to this conduct, as "in the sight of all Israel, even the congregation of the LORD; and as in audience of their God," who was especially in that solemn assembly: that they might be the more impressed, and that their example might have a salutary effect on others also.

V. 9. The being and perfections of God are made known by his works, and by his word: and we ought diligently to seek the knowledge of him from both these sources. That discovery of some of the divine perfections, which may be made by studying the works of creation and providence, may be naturally delightful to man; because it gratifies his love of knowledge, and excites his surprise, without affronting his pride, alarming his conscience, or offending his prejudices. But revelation gives us the whole character of God, connected with the mysterious manner of his subsistence: and this not only in plain declarations, but in an historical and prophetic view of his providential government of the universe; in his holy law, the ministrap 6. xxii. 16—19.

 1 Tim iv. 16.
 q 19. Ex. xxv. 40.
 xxvi. 30. xxxix.
 42, 43. 2 Chr
 iii. 3. Ez. xliii.
 10, 11. Heb viii.
 5

r 1 Kings vi. 3.
 2 Chr. iii. 4.
 Ez. xl. 8, 9. 15.
 48, 49.
 s 1 Kings vi. 16—
 20. 2 Chr. iii. 5.
 —10. Ez. xli.
 13, &c. Heb. ix.
 2—8.
 t ix. 26—29. xxvi.
 20—27. Luke
 xxi. 1.

u 1 Kings vi. 5, 6.
 10. 2 Chr. iii. 9.
 Neh. x. 38, 39.
 Jer.
 xlii. 5. Jer.
 xxv. 2. Ez.
 xli. 6, &c.
 x Ex. xxv. 17—22.
 1 xl. 20, 21. 1 Kings
 vi. 19. 2 Chr. v.
 7. Heb. ix. 5.

10 ^p Take heed now; for the LORD hath chosen thee to build an house for the sanctuary: be strong, and do it.

11 ¶ Then David gave to Solomon his son ^a the pattern of ^r the porch, and of ^s the houses thereof, and of ^t the treasures thereof, and of the ^u upper-chambers thereof, and of the inner parlours thereof, and of ^x the place of the mercy-seat.

12 And the pattern of all ^{*} that he had by the Spirit, of the courts of the house of the LORD, and of all the chambers round about, of the treasures of the house of God, and of ^y the treasures of the dedicated things:

^{*} Heb. that was with him by.

13 Also for ^z the courses of the priests and the Levites, and for all the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and for all ^a the vessels of service in the house of the LORD.

14 He gave of gold by weight for things of gold, for all instruments of all manner of service; silver also for all instruments of silver by weight, for all instruments of every kind of service:

15 Even the weight for ^b the candlesticks of gold, and for their lamps of y xxvi. 26—28.

 1 Kings xiv. 26.
 xv. 15. 18. 2
 Kings xvi. 8.
 xviii. 15.
 z xxiv. 1, &c.
 xxv. 1, &c.

a ix. 29. Ezra viii.
 25—30. 33.

b Ex. xxv. 31—39.
 1 Kings vii. 49.
 2 Chron. iv. 7.
 Zech. iv. 2, 3.
 11—13. Rev. i.
 12. 20. ii. 1.

tion of condemnation to all sinners, and in his blessed Gospel, the ministration of righteousness and of the Spirit to all believers. This knowledge of God the natural man cannot receive. It implies the infinite justice and holiness of God, and the entire apostacy, rebellion, pollution, and misery of man; and shows every person on earth to be a criminal condemned to everlasting punishment, from which he can only be delivered by the unmerited mercy of the Father, through the atonement of the Son, and by the sanctification of the Holy Ghost. All men therefore oppose, neglect, or abuse this knowledge of God, except as they are taught of him. Some notions of these things may be attained by a carnal unhumiliated sinner: but he sees them not as they really are, according to their nature and value; and his ideas no more agree to the true meaning of his own words, than the words of a man born blind do to his ideas when he speaks about light and colours. This knowledge therefore will have no effect, unless a bad one, on the state of his heart, and the conduct of his life. But where God is truly known, he is also feared, believed, trusted, loved, worshipped, and obeyed, in proportion to that knowledge. Self-abasement, hatred of sin, indifference about worldly objects, and general benevolence, from the purest principle, will uniformly attend and grow with it; and all true religion may be resolved into it. (Marg. Ref.) It is received by faith simply crediting the testimony of God, and diligently appropriating the information which he communicates in Scripture. As far as acquired, this knowledge of God regulates the understanding, judgment, conscience, will, affections, and all the powers and operations of the soul; and consequently, all the intentions, dispositions, words, and actions. It brings a man acquainted with God in Christ, as a Father and Friend, in a way of experience and communion. It discovers what we may expect from him, and what he must approve or abhor in us; and consequently what is requisite to his honourably saving sinners, and to our being capable of happiness in his favour and service. Thus we learn the inestimable value of the Saviour's atonement, and of the sanctification of the Holy Ghost, and are influenced to walk conscientiously in all his ordinances and commandments. It brings a sinner to his proper place, at the foot of the cross, and prostrate before the mercy-seat of a forgiving God, as a poor helpless worthless worm, an ignorant child, a poor suppliant, a condemned criminal, deserving nothing but wrath, yet expecting every thing needful or desirable, from the infinitely free mercy and grace of God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ. Having been forgiven much, and receiving much, the pardoned sinner learns to love much: and experiencing the blessed effects of this knowledge of God on his own soul, he declares his excellency to others, that they too may seek and find so inestimable a treasure. Thus David had known the Lord; and having for many a year feared, trusted, loved, and worshipped him, he was about to remove to that better world, where knowledge, holiness, love, and felicity are perfected: but before he went, he desired to give it as his parting counsel to his beloved Solomon, to cultivate the acquaintance of so kind, merciful, faithful, and powerful a Friend; (Job xxii. 21:) and to serve him with a perfect heart and a willing mind, or inward delight. But he also reminded him at the same time of the Lord's heart-searching knowledge, and of his justice and holiness, as well as of his mercy. A formal service therefore would not profit: if he sought God in a proper manner, he would be found of him; but if he finally renounced his service, he would cast him off for ever, notwithstanding all his former kindness for him.

V. 12. David was divinely instructed, either by immediate revelation, or by some prophet, (perhaps Nathan,) in what form the temple was to be built and how to regulate every thing respecting it, and its chambers, courts, and treasures. "The LORD made him understand it in writing by his hand upon him." (19.) And in what way soever this writing was made and sent to him, he gave it to Solomon just before his death; so that nothing was left even to the wisdom and discretion of Solomon, but all was done by rule, even to the quantity of metal used in each vessel. Moses had been instructed in the same manner in erecting the tabernacle. For both the tabernacle and temple were typical of Christ, and heavenly things. (Note, Ex. xxv. 9.) In vain do men of opposite sentiments contend for such uniformity in the circumstances of our worship, under the New Testament; seeing it is evident, that exact, precise, and express rules are no where to be found, in respect of every particular. It is, however, most evident, that to model divine ordinances according to man's imagination, would have been the height of presumption even in Solomon himself.

gold, by weight for every candlestick, and for the lamps thereof; and for the candlesticks of silver by weight, both for the candlestick, and also for the lamps thereof, according to the use of every candlestick.

16 And by weight he gave gold for the ^c tables of shew-bread, for every table; and likewise silver for the tables of silver.

17 Also ^d pure gold for the flesh-hooks, and ^e the bowls, and the cups: and for the golden basons he gave gold by weight for every bason; and likewise silver by weight for every bason of silver;

18 And for ^f the altar of incense refined gold by weight, and gold for the pattern of ^g the chariot of the cherubims, that spread out their wings, and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

V. 15, 16. The candlesticks of silver, and tables of silver, are not elsewhere mentioned, and we do not know to what use they were put. It seems there were in the temple several tables of gold for the shew-bread, and the vessels belonging to that part of the stated service.

V. 17. The word, rendered basons, seems to be derived from the atonement made by the blood of the sacrifices, which was received into them till it was sprinkled.

V. 18. Above the ark, between the cherubim, the glory of the Lord appeared, as a mighty warrior riding in the chariot of war, to the assistance of Israel his people. (Marg. Ref.) (Notes, Ex. xxv. 10—21.) As the cherubim of gold made by Moses seem to have been joined to the mercy-seat, which covered the ark; it has been thought, that Solomon was directed to make two additional cherubim, after the same pattern. These must, however, be distinguished from those made of olive-trees covered with gold. (Note, 1 Kings vi. 23—28.) And it is not absolutely certain, that, amidst the many removals of the ark which had taken place, the cherubim had not been separated from it; and whether Solomon did any thing more than make two others in the stead of them.

V. 21. There appeared, in all the several orders of men, a promising disposition to harmony amongst themselves, and loyalty to their prince; and David foresaw that God would dispose them to cordial obedience to Solomon, though a younger brother, and in his youth.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

Whist life continues, it is desirable to spend it in promoting the peace, prosperity, and spiritual good, of those who may remain behind. To treat inferiors with a condescending respect and affection, is the way to gain love, without losing any due honour: and to address subjects as 19 All this, said David, ^h the LORD ^h 11, 12. ^{Ex. xxv. 40.} ^{xxvi. 30.} made me understand in writing ⁱ by his ⁱ 1. ^{Ex. i. 3.} ^{iii. 14.} hand upon me, even all the works of this pattern.

20 ¶ And David said to Solomon his son, ^k Be strong, and of good courage, and do it: ^l fear not, nor be dismayed; for the LORD God, even my God, will be with thee; ^m he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the LORD.

21 And, behold, ⁿ the courses of the priests and the Levites, even they shall be with thee for all the service of the house of God: and there shall be with thee, for ^o all manner of workmanship, every ^p willing skilful man, for any manner of service: ^q also the princes and all the people will be wholly at thy commandment.

rational creatures, showing them the propriety and advantage of proposed measures, and persuading them to a willing concurrence, is far preferable to the exercise of despotic authority. Indeed kings and their meanest subjects are all brethren in fallen Adam: and believers on a throne or in a cottage are all brethren in Jesus Christ, and should mutually seek each other's welfare. In that monarchy which God established in Israel and sanctioned by his approbation, we see no traces of the unalterable right of primogeniture, or of ruling with absolute authority. Rather we perceive a resemblance of that limited, moderate, and equitable authority, which a kind providence hath established over these kingdoms; for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, and for the continuance of which to our latest posterity, we should most fervently pray. The wickedness of man indeed, and the experience of ages, have taught the friends of liberty to secure that blessing by many regulations, which were not thought of, nor needful, in the happy days of the man after God's own heart: and prudence dictates the general expediency of hereditary succession. Yet surely the conduct of David at the beginning, in the middle, and at the close of his reign, greatly resembled that of a British monarch meeting his Parliament, and doing all things by their concurrence and assistance. It may be comfortable to us in a dying hour, to recollect the plans that we had framed to promote true religion, though we have been unable to accomplish them: for hence we may infer that we are the chosen and called of God; as such designs prove, that he hath given us a heart to account his service a delightful privilege, and to long and love to be employed in it. But, in the nature and measure of our services, we must learn acquiescence in his will, whose choice of us is the source of all our grace, comfort, or usefulness: he liketh to make us Christians or ministers, and to employ us in various ways; but he doth not generally acquaint us with the reason of it. Happy are they,

CHAP. XXIX.

David shows the princes and people what he had prepared for the building and service of the temple, 1—5. After his example they offer liberally, 6—9. He adores and blesses God, and prays for the people and for Solomon, 10—19. The people worship, sacrifice, and feast with joy; and then make Solomon king the second time, 20—22. He reigns in majesty and prosperity, 23—25. David's long and prosperous reign, and happy death, 26—30.

FURTHERMORE David the king said ^a unto all the congregation, Solomon my son, ^b whom alone God bath chosen, is yet ^c young and tender, and the work is great: ^d for the palace is not for man, but for the LORD God.

2 Now ^e I have prepared ^f with all my might for the house of my God: ^g the gold for things to be made of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and the brass for things of brass, the iron for things of iron, and wood for things of wood; ^h onyx-stones, and stones to be set, glistening stones, and of divers colours, and all manner of precious stones, and marble stones in abundance.

3 Moreover, because ⁱ I have set my affection to the house of my God, ^k I have of mine own proper good, of gold and silver, which I have given to the house of c xxii. 5. 1 Kings

iii. 7. 2 Chr.
xiii. 7. Prov. iv.
3. Jer. i. 6, 7.
d xxviii. 10. 2
Chr. ii. 4, 5.
e xxii. 3, 4. 14—16.
f 2 Chr. xxxi. 20, 21. Ec. ix. 10.
2 Cor. viii. 3.
Col. iii. 23.
1 Pet. iv. 10, 11.
g xxviii. 14—18.

h Gen. ii. 12. Ex.
xxviii. 20. xxxiv.
13. Job. xxviii.
16. Is. liv. 11,
12. Rev. xxi. 18
—21.

i Ps. xxvi. 8.
xxviii. 4. lxxxiv.
1. 10. cxxii. 1
—9.
k xxi. 14. Prov.
iii. 9, 10.

a xxviii. 1. 8.
b xxviii. 5, 6.
1 Kings viii. 19, 20.

whom he hath chosen in Christ “to the adoption of children “unto himself, according to the good pleasure of his will:” from their almighty Father they will receive a kingdom that cannot be moved, and he will establish it to them for ever. This their privilege will appear, by their constancy in keeping his commandments, and doing their proper work in his church, after the example and by the grace of the Saviour. Let us then give diligence to make our calling and election sure: and as in the presence of God, and in the sight of his people, let us seek out that we may do all his commandments, sincerely, unreservedly, and in humble imitation of our perfect pattern. Let us seek the knowledge of God, as the most valuable of all treasures; and acquaint ourselves with him, as the God of all those who through faith and patience have inherited the promises. Let us seek grace from him by earnest prayer, that we may serve him with an upright undivided heart, and a willing cheerful mind. Let us beware of hypocrisy; “for the “LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the “imaginations of our thoughts.” Let us fear coming short, growing negligent, or turning aside; for “if we forsake “him, he will cast us off for ever.” But let us hope also in his mercy; for if we seek him he will be found of us: and we shall be strong to do our work, shall live in some measure in possession of our privileges, and may hope to leave them for an inheritance to our children. In this fear of the LORD, there is strong confidence: and by attaining to an assurance that we are his people, we may be assured also that he will not fail us nor forsake us: we may then bid defiance to all our enemies, and be of good courage in the prospect of difficulties and dangers.

V. 11—21.

If the Lord employ us and be with us, he will raise us up helpers, both willing and skilful, as far as we want them: and thus he will carry us through our work, and that being finished, will receive us unto himself.—Nobles, ministers, and people should be wholly at the command of those rulers especially who boldly endeavour to promote true religion; using their influence and authority to lead

VOL. II—No. 11.

all their subjects to a willing attendance to things evidently scriptural, and of acknowledged excellency and importance.—But we should never forget, that the whole contrivance, purchase, and revelation of salvation for sinners are of the LORD: the way of access, the ministry of the Gospel, the written word, the throne of grace, the public ordinances, the sacramental seals, and every thing pertaining to our reconciliation and walk with God, are from him; and may not be modelled by any human authority. Even mere circumstances, which must be regulated by man's discretion, and in which every society has a right to judge for its willing members, are not to be imposed on our brethren: and we are accountable to God, though not to man, for that judgment and practice which we ourselves form and adopt. We should therefore in every thing be circumspect, and not leave the Scripture in any particular, where it affords us directions; yet we should not endanger the peace of the church, for the sake of minute external regulations. Hitherto much has been amiss in every age, in every state, and in every division of the church: ere long our Prince of peace, the Builder of the true temple, the Son of God, will come and set all right. In the mean time let us judge for ourselves, and bear with each other; let us cease from self-confident boastings, and acrimonious controversies; and in our several places, let us endeavour to serve God, and to help one another, and to promote the common cause of truth and holiness.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIX. V. 1. Whom alone God, &c. David by this expression declared that God had chosen Solomon, in preference to the rest of his sons; and that this was the sole reason of his succession to the throne, and not any partial affection of his own towards him. This would tend to satisfy the people, and to induce David's other sons to submit to the divine appointment. (Note, xxii. 5.)

V. 2. The peculiar use made of the precious stones of various kinds, mentioned in this verse, in decorating the temple, or in adding to the magnificence of the service there performed, is not known. (Marg. Ref.)

xxii. 4, 5, 14—
16. my God, ¹ over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house,

4 Even three thousand talents of gold, of the ^m gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the houses withal:

5 The gold for things of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and for all manner of work to be made by the hands of artificers. And ^a who then is willing to ^{*}consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?

6 ¶ Then ^othe chief of the fathers and princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and of hundreds, with the rulers over the king's work, offered willingly,

7 And gave for the service of the house of God, of gold five thousand talents and ten thousand drams, and of silver ten thousand talents, and of brass eighteen thousand talents, and one hundred thousand talents of iron.

8 And they with whom precious stones were found gave them to the treasure of the house of the LORD, by the hand of ^pJehiel the Gershonite.

9 Then the people rejoiced, for that ^athey offered willingly; because with ^rperfect heart they offered willingly to the LORD; and ^aDavid the king also rejoiced with great joy.

10 ¶ Wherefore ^tDavid blessed the LORD before all the congregation: and David said, ^uBlessed be thou, ^{*}LORD God of Israel, ^your Father, for ever and ever.

11 Thine, O LORD, ^{*}is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and ^dthe victory, and ^emajesty: for ^fall that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; ^gthine is the kingdom, O LORD, and thou art ^hexalted as head above all.

12 Both ⁱriches and honour come of thee, and thou ^kreignest over all; and in thine hand is ^lpower and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to ^mgive strength unto all.

13 Now therefore, our God, ⁿwe thank thee, and praise thy glorious name.

14 But ^owho am I, and what is my people, ^pthat we should ^{*}be able to offer so ^qwillingly after this sort? for ^rall things come of thee, and of [†]thine own have we given thee.

15 For ^swe are strangers before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers: ^tour days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none [‡]abiding.

16 O LORD our God, ^uall this store, that we have prepared to build thee an house for thine holy name, cometh of thine hand, and is all thine own.

17 I know also, my God, that thou ^xtriest the heart, and ^yhast pleasure in uprightness. As for me, ^zin the uprightness of mine heart I have willingly offered all these things: and now have I seen with ^ajoy thy people, which are [†]present here, to offer willingly unto thee.

Ps. i. 10—12. Rom. xi. 35. 1 Cor. xvi. 2.—† Heb. of thine hand.—a Gen. xlvii. 9. Ps. xxxix. 12. cxix. 19. Heb. xi. 13—19. 1 Pet. ii. 11.—t Job xiv. 2 Ps. xc. 3. cii. 11. cxlii. 4. Ec. vi. 12. Jam. iv. 14.—i Heb. expectation.—u 14. 2 Chr. xxxi. 10. Ps. xxxiv. 1. Hos. ii. 8. Luke xix. 16.—x xxviii. 9. Deut. viii. 2 1 Sam. xvi. 7. Ps. vii. 9. 1. 6. Prov. xvi. 2 xxi. 2. Heb. xvii. 12. Rev. ii. 23.—y Prov. xi. 20. xv. 6. 9. John i. 47.—z Acts xxiv. 16. 2 Cor. i. 12. 1 Thes. ii. 10.—a 9. Philom. 7. 20.—† Heb. found.

V. 3—9. David seems to have dedicated a certain proportion of all his spoils and gains to God, before he considered the residue as his own; and this proportion constituted the treasures before spoken of; (xxii. 14:) but besides this, he gave, from his own treasury, above eighteen millions sterling of gold and silver. This he offered, not by constraint, or from ostentation; but because "he had set his affection to the house of his God," and thought he could never do enough towards promoting that good work. He was likewise desirous to see his subjects "abound in this grace also;" as they had been enriched by his victories, and never burdened with taxes; and he knew that it would be "fruit, which would abound to their own account." Having set them the example, he only inquired who was willing to assist, and to consecrate his service unto the Lord, by contributing part of his wealth to that holy use? and immediately they offered about thirty millions of gold and silver, besides brass, iron, and precious stones: and instead of grudging the expense, the king and people all rejoiced together; for they were cordial in it, and offered willingly themselves, and rejoiced to see all the others offering with similar liberality. The prosperity of Israel must have been immense, under the reign of David; and it seems that there was also much true piety amongst them, especially towards the close of his reign. We can scarcely form a conception of the magnificence of the temple and adjacent edifices, about which such immense quantities of gold and silver were employed. But the unsearchable riches of Christ excel the splendour of the temple, infinitely more than that surpassed the meanest cottage on earth.—The refined silver seems to have been used in covering the inner walls of the chambers, and other parts of out-buildings, as distinct from the temple; for those of the temple itself were plated with gold.

b Ex. iii. 6. 15.
iv. 5. Matt. xii.
32 Acts iii. 13
c Deut. xxx. 6
Ps. li. 10. cxix.
116, 117. Jer. x.
23 xxxii. 39.
40. Phil. i. 6. 9.
11. 1 Thes. iii.
11. 12. Heb.
xiii. 21.
d xxviii. 9. Gen.
vi. 5. Ps. cxix.
113.
e Heb. stabilish.
Ps. x. 17. 2 Thes.
ii. 16, 17. 1 Pet.
v. 10.
f xxviii. 9. Ps.
lxxii. 1. cxix.
60. James i. 17.
52. xlii. 14.

18 O ^b LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, ^c keep this for ever ^d in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and ^e prepare their heart unto thee.

19 And ^e give unto Solomon my son a perfect heart, to keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes, and to do all these things, and to build the palace, for ^f the which I have made provision

20 ¶ And David said to all the congregation, ^g Now bless the LORD your God. And all the congregation blessed the LORD God of their fathers, and ^h bowed down their heads, and ⁱ worshipped the LORD, and the king.

21 And they ^k sacrificed sacrifices unto the LORD, and offered burnt-offerings unto the LORD, on the morrow after that day, even a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their ^l drink-offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel;

22 And did ^m eat and drink before the LORD on that day with great gladness. And they made Solomon the son of David king ⁿ the second time, ^o and anointed him unto the LORD to be the chief governor, and ^p Zadok to be priest.

23 Then Solomon ^q sat on the throne of the LORD as king instead of David his father, and ^r prospered; and ^s all Israel obeyed him.

24 And ^t all the princes, and the mighty men, and ^u all the sons likewise of king David, ^v submitted themselves unto Solomon the king.

25 And the LORD ^x magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and ^y bestowed upon him such royal majesty, as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

1 Lev. xxiii. 12.
N um. xi. 5. Y.
19.
w Ex. xxiv. 11.
Deut. xii. 7. 11.
12 xvi. 14. 17.
2 Chr. vii. 9.
Neh. viii. 12.
Ec. i. 24. iii. 12.
14. vii. 15. ix.
7. 1 Tim. v. 17.
18. n xxiii. 1.
o 1 Kings i. 35-39.
p 1 Kings ii. 35.

q xvii. 11. 19.
xxviii. 5. Ps.
cxxxii. 11. Is.
ix. 6, 7.
r xlii. 11.
s Ec. viii. 2-6.
Rom. xiii. 1.
t xlii. 17. xxviii.
21. u iii. 3-9. 1
Kings i. 50-53.
ii. 24, 25.
v Heb. gave the hand under.
Gen. xxiv. 2.
xlii. 23. 2 Chr.
xxx. 8. Marg.
Ez. xvii. 18.
x Josh. iii. 7. iv.
14. 2 Chr. i. 1.
Job. vii. 17.
Acts xix. 17.
y 1 Kings iii. 13.
2 Chr. i. 12. Ec.
ii. 9. Dan. v. 18.
19. Heb. ii. 9.

V. 10—19. Instead of boasting of these extraordinary oblations; (Num. xxiii. 4;) David gave solemn thanks to the Lord, with vast enlargement of heart and copiousness of expression: and in this act of joyful adoration, we meet with the first scriptural instance of any person addressing God in prayer by the words "Our Father," which are the language of the spirit of adoption, and found chiefly in the New Testament. (Marg. Ref.) As king of Israel, David was become great, powerful, and honourable; he had obtained victories, taken spoils, and been crowned with royal majesty: but what was all this, before him who "inhabiteh eternity," and filleth immensity, and is underived, and independent of all; who possesses immutably every glorious and adorable perfection, and exercises almighty power and absolute universal authority; and who, victorious over all his enemies, reigns in majesty which exceeds all description or imagination! for "his is the king-dom, the power, and the glory for ever, Amen." From this God alone David had received his wealth, honour, and power: this he acknowledged with grateful praise; but contemplating the infinite glories of his great Benefactor, and then turning his thoughts to himself and his people, the comparison affected him with a deep conviction of their meanness, weakness, and unworthiness; and he could not but wonder, that the glorious God would condescend to notice such indigent and sinful creatures. "LORD," says he, "what are we, that we should offer so willingly "after this sort!" Their existence was derived from God: he had graciously given them these treasures, and had disposed their hearts willingly to make this use of them; so that in every way the whole praise belonged to him. As for them, they were strangers and sojourners; dying because sinful creatures. Indeed all that they gave to the Lord to build his temple, was his own before; if they had attempted to keep it, death would soon have removed them: so that the only use which they could make of it, to their own real advantage, was thus to consecrate it to the service of Him who gave it, and whose gracious acceptance of their oblation would add still more to their obligations. At the same time David was conscious of his own uprightness and willingness in this oblation, as in the presence of that heart-searching God who hath pleasure in uprightness; and with great joy he beheld his people showing every token of the same disposition. He well knew that this, as far as genuine, was the effect of the grace of God: and he most fervently prayed that it might be evermore kept there by the same grace; that the hearts of them all, but especially of Solomon, might be prepared for the Lord; and that he might accomplish the arduous important service before him. Such is this address of David to the LORD God of Israel; and nothing on this side heaven can be conceived, more humble, pure, evangelical, spiritual, devout, or exalted, than the praise, adoration, gratitude, confidence, love, zeal, and philanthropy, which it breathes throughout. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 20. David, having concluded his worship, called upon the people to bless the LORD with him: and when they had rendered their adoring praises to God, they performed obedience to their aged and pious king.

V. 21—25. Besides the burnt-offerings which were entirely consumed on the altar, numerous peace-offerings were sacrificed, on the flesh of which the assembled multitudes joyfully feasted. Solomon had been hastily, and by a few persons, anointed king during Adonijah's usurpation: but he was at this time anointed in a more solemn and public manner. As Abiathar was removed from the high priesthood, and Zadok substituted in his place after David's death, it has been thought that the second anointing of Solomon was also subsequent to that event: but that does not seem to have been the case. He was "anointed unto 26 ¶ Thus David the son of Jesse reigned ² over all Israel.

27 And the time that he reigned over Israel was ^a forty years; seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

28 And he died in ^b a good old age, full of days, riches, and honour: and Solomon his son reigned in his stead.

29 Now ^d the acts of David the king, first and last, behold, they are written in the [†] book of ^e Samuel the seer, and in the book of ^f Nathan the prophet, and in the book of ^g Gad the seer,

“the LORD to be the chief governor,” and “he sat on the throne of the LORD.” For the LORD was in an especial manner the king of Israel; the princes received their authority from him by particular designation; and they were expressly required to support his worship and law by it. They also were all types of Christ, who “sat down with his father on his throne.”—We may suppose that every kind of personal accomplishment united with justice, wisdom, and prosperity, in that royal majesty which the Lord bestowed upon Solomon, and by which he magnified him in the sight of all Israel.

V. 26—28. When we read the eleventh chapter of the second book of Samuel, and the sequel of that melancholy narration, we could scarcely have expected to behold David appear so illustrious in his closing scene, in which every thing heavenly and excellent is combined; and the people seem to have considered him with a veneration and affection which language fails to express. But his repentance had been as remarkable as his sins; and his conduct during his affliction, and towards the end of his life, seems to have had more effect upon his subjects, than all that they had before witnessed. It is indeed hard to say which shines the brightest in this chapter, the rising or the setting sun: but it is better to rise behind clouds, and to be much obscured in the course of our lives, and to set, like David, with splendour: than with Solomon to arise very bright, and shine very splendid, and then to set behind an almost impenetrable cloud.

V. 29, 30. It is plain, from these verses, that the contemporary prophets were the historians, or annalists of God's people; and that they left far more copious records of public transactions, both in respect of Israel and the adjacent countries, than have come down to us. Learned men may indeed regret the loss of these histories; but ‘God knows better than we, what was most fit to be preserved for the use and benefit of the church.’ (Bp. Patrick.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—9.

The due support and promotion of religion, is always more important, and in many cases more arduous, than the administration of civil government: because the honour of God, and the most essential interests of immortal souls, are concerned in it; compared with which objects all other interests are trivial. They alone, whom the Lord hath chosen for such a work, will prosper in it; and it is the duty of all to assist by every proper means in their power.—Strong affection to God, and to all that relates to him for his sake, will constrain men to the most disinterested, self-denying, and liberal services; and they will never think, that they have done, or can do, enough to promote his glory; but with all their might, will be preparing for and abounding in every good work. They who would excite others to consecrate their service to the Lord, either in feeding his poor children, or in spreading his truth and supporting his worship, must set the example: and then a hint from them will go further than a laboured and eloquent oration from a man, who pretends to persuade others to those things which he himself evidently does not practise.—Our holy joy in God will commonly bear proportion to the willingness, uprightness, and liberality, with which we devote our all to him: and that rejoicing is peculiarly pure and heavenly, which springs from beholding those we love, giving evidence of their real devotedness to God, and their delight in his ways. The bodily pain and infirmities of age, and the chilling hand of death, whilst they indispose us for or separate us from all other enjoyments, cannot preclude or extinguish this, which emulates that of angels, who rejoice over one sinner that repenteth.

V. 10—19.

They who are zealous for real good works, will never boast of them, or trust in them. Sensible of their indigence as creatures, and conscious of their guilt and defilement as sinners, they will allow that ‘it is of the LORD’s mercy they are not consumed.’ To them it appears an unspeakable favour, that a holy God will accept any worship or service from such polluted creatures: they know that all their ability of every kind is from him: and they account it their chief pleasure, honour, and privilege, to be employed by him, who needeth not and cannot be profited by their services. They are conscious that their best needs forgiveness, falls infinitely beneath his glorious majesty, and is utterly unworthy of his acceptance, “whose is the kingdom, and who is exalted as Head above all.” ‘In like manner we ought to acknowledge God in all spiritual things: referring every good thought, good purpose, good work, to his divine grace, from whom we receive it; beseeching him, as David does, to preserve it in us.’ (Bp. Patrick.) Thus our best and most useful works will issue in admiration of his inconceivable majesty, goodness, power, and holiness; in unfeigned praises and thanksgivings, and in the deepest self abasement before him. This is genuine grace: but when we are proud of our services, (which we are very prone to be,) what is it, but sacrilegiously to steal the Lord’s dues, and sacrifice them to the vilest of our own lusts? We may indeed rejoice in the testimony of our consciences, when we have acted with simplicity and godly sincerity, in the presence of that God who trieth the heart, and hath pleasure in uprightness; and should joyfully observe the indications of the same disposition in others: but we must remember that this also is the gift of God; and ² xviii. 14 Ps.

lxxviii. 71, 72.

^a iii. 4. 2 Sam.
v. 4, 5. 1 Kings
ii. 11.

^b Gen. xv. 15.
xxv. 2. Job v.
26. Prov. xvi.
31. Acts xiii. 36.

^c xxiii. 1. Gen.
xxxv. 29.

^d 1 Kings xi. 41.
xiv 29. Heb. xi.
32, 33.

[†] Or, History.
Heb words
^e 1 Sam. ix. 9.
^f 2 Sam. vii. 2—
4 xii. 1—7
^g xxi. 9—11.

2 Kings x. 34.
xiv 28.
Dan. ii. 21.

30 With all his reign and his might,
and the times that went over him, and over Israel, and over all the kingdoms of the countries.

that we can no more offer the sacrifice of a broken or a thankful heart, than we can present ten thousands of bulls and goats, except as we give unto him his own, which he hath previously conferred upon us. All cometh from him, and to him belongeth "the kingdom, the power, and the glory for ever!" Whilst we bless the Lord for putting good desires into our hearts, or the hearts of others, we should never forget to pray to him to keep them there, and to bring them to good effect. When we feel that there is no abiding for us on earth, but that we are departing as a shadow, and following our fathers, who have been strangers and sojourners before us; we should be peculiarly fervent in our prayers that they who are to succeed us, or whom we consider as having profited by our instructions, may have their hearts prepared unto the Lord, and disposed for the work to which they are called. Parents and ministers also, when they perceive any of their children or people under serious impressions, should "travail in birth for them till Christ be formed in them," by earnest constant prayer, that "the Lord would keep for ever in the imaginations of the thoughts of their hearts," those good desires which he hath excited, and prepare their hearts unto himself. We should also call upon them to pray and to bless the Lord for themselves: and when our example proves that we are in earnest, we may hope that our exhortations will have the desired effect.

V. 20—30.

They, who render God the honour due unto his name, will seldom fail duly to respect those who have been the instruments of his kindness to them. All our obedience and communion with God must have a believing reference to that one great sacrifice, which more honours his law and justice, than the multiplied oblations which shadowed it forth to ancient believers: thus, peace with him, peace of conscience, and gladness of heart, will make sacred ordinances pleasant to us; and even render our ordinary meals subservient to our spiritual improvement and the honour of God; whilst they are attended with gratitude, temperance, liberality, and a heavenly mind. These are the pleasures and employments which add dignity to prosperity, rank, and eminency for wisdom; which adorn every personal accomplishment, and increase the enjoyment of sprightly youth and vigorous health. These are essential to that royal majesty, which God bestows on those whom he loves: and without these there can be no durable prosperity, honour, comfort, or usefulness. Unless we have some acquaintance with these pious exercises, riches, honour, and prosperity, only render the king of terrors more unwelcome; but these are sufficient to deprive death of his sting: and when we read or hear of one, who hath been taken away from the midst of such employments, we readily conceive of his soul as escaped out of prison, mounting up to heaven, and joining immediately with ineffable delight in the worship of angels. May we "die the death of the righteous, and may our latter end be like his!" Blessed be God, the chief of sinners may hope for such a glorious exit, when brought to repent and to flee for refuge to the Saviour's atoning blood. Nay, even they who have grievously sinned after a long profession of godliness, to the triumphing of the wicked, and their own severe correction, may possibly retrieve all, may have their broken bones made to rejoice, may recover "the joy of God's salvation; may have their lips opened to show forth his praises, that sinners may be converted unto him;" and may regain the entire confidence of those who had been the most offended by their fall. But this cannot be done without deep humiliation before God and man, resigned patience under correction, and redoubled watchfulness and diligence in the Lord's ways. Let us then mark the difference between the spirit and character of the man after God's own heart, living and dying: and those of such worthless professors as resemble him in nothing but his sin, and who apologize for their crimes by his example. Let us also compare him with those presumptuous cavillers who profanely carp at the blemishes in illustrious scriptural characters; but never raise their minds to an idea of such exalted excellency, piety, and philanthropy, as they showed living and dying. We cannot too closely imitate the general example of this most eminent saint: but let us watch and pray, lest we be overcome by temptation and overtaken with sin, to the dishonour of God, and the wounding of our own consciences: and if we have offended, let us copy his example of repentance and patience, still hoping to close our days like him; and having served our generation after the will of God, to fall asleep, with the sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection, through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ! Amen.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE CHRONICLES.

THIS book is a continuation of the history begun in the former book. It in some respects coincides with the books of Kings. But there the histories of Judah and Israel are carried on together; as those of England and Scotland are by some of our historians: here the affairs of Judah are more fully and distinctly recorded, while those of Israel are only mentioned occasionally, when required by the main subject; as an English historian would sometimes digress concerning the affairs of France or Germany, in elucidating his narrative. The history opens with the accession of Solomon, and contains a narrative of the several kings of his race, who reigned in succession, till the Babylonish captivity; and it concludes with an intimation of Cyrus's decree for the restoration of the Jews and the rebuilding of the temple, about four hundred and eighty years after. Besides the additional practical instruction, especially in respect of the different effects of piety, or profaneness, in the affairs of nations favoured with revelation, here afforded; this history throws great light on the prophetic writings, which can by no means be so well understood without constantly adverting to it. The prophecies contained in it either were fulfilled soon after they were spoken, or coincide with those before considered: and it is not always easy to determine, concerning scriptural references, whether they relate to this book or to the books of Kings.

B. C. 1015.

CHAP. I.

Solomon, established as king, calls on his nobles and people to join in sacrificing at Gibeon, 1—7. The Lord appears to him there by night, and allows him to choose what blessing to ask: he asks wisdom, and is promised also riches and honour, 8—12. Solomon's forces, riches, and commerce, 13—17.

AND Solomon the son of David^a was strengthened in his kingdom, and the LORD his God^b was with him, and he magnified him exceedingly.
2 Then Solomon spake unto all Israel, and to the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and to the judges, and to every governor in all Israel, the chief of the fathers.

3 So Solomon and all the congregation with him, went to the high place that was at^c Gibeon; for there was^e the tabernacle of the congregation of God,^{B C 1015.} which Moses^h the servant of the LORD^h had made in the wilderness.

4 Butⁱ the ark of God had David brought up from Kirjath-jearim, to the place which David had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem^k

5 Moreover^l the brazen altar that Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, had made, * he put before the tabernacle of the LORD: and Solomon and the congregation sought unto it.

6 And Solomon went up thither to the brazen altar before the LORD, which was at the tabernacle of the congregation, and offered^a a thousand burnt-offerings upon it.

7 ° In that night did God appear unto Solomon, and said unto him, ^p Ask what I shall give thee.

8 And Solomon said unto God, ^q Thou hast shewed great mercy unto David my

NOTES.

CHAP. I. V. 2. This seems to have taken place a short time after David's decease: when Solomon, being established in his kingdom, convened his chief men, and spake to them concerning the solemn sacrifice, in honour of God, which he purposed. (Note, 1 Kings iii. 4, 5.)

^a 1 Kings ii. 12, 46.

^b Gen. xxi. 22. xxxix. 2. 21 Ex. iii. 1 Chr. xvii. 3. Matt. xxviii. 20.

^c 1 Chr. xxix. 25 Phil. ii. 9—11. 1 Chron. 20. xxx. 2. xxxiv. 29. 30. 1 Chr. xli. 1 xv. 3 xxviii. 1 xxix. 1.

^d 1 Chr. xv. 12. xxiv. 4. 31. 1 Kings iii. 4. 1 Chr. xvi. 39. xxi. 29. g Ex. xxvi. 1, &c. xl. 2. 34. Lev. i. 1.

B. C. 1015. i 2 Sam. vi. 2. 17. 1 Chr. xii. 5, &c. xv. 25—28.

^k 1 Chr. xvi. 1. Ps. cxxxii. 5, 6.

^l Ex. xxxvii. 1—8. xxxviii. 1—7. m Ex. xxxv. 2. 1 Chr. ii. 19. 20. * Heb. was there.

ⁿ 1 Kings iii. 4. viii. 63. 1 Chr. xxix. 21. Is. xli. 16.

^o 1 Kings iii. 5—15. Pro. iii. 5, 6. p Mat. vii. 7, 8. Marc. x. 36. 37. 51. John xvi. 23. 1 John v. 14, 15. q 2 Sam. vii. 8, 9. xii. 7, 8. xxiii. 51. xxiii. 1. Ps. lxxxvi. 13. lxxxix. 20—26. 49. Is. lv. 3.

1 Chr. xxviii.
5. xxix. 23.

father, and hast made me ^vto reign in his stead.

s² Sam. vii. 12—
16. 25—29. 1
Chr. xvii. 11—
14. 23—27. xxviii.
3. 7. Ps. lxxxix.
35—37. cxxaii
11, 12.

• Heb. much as the dust of the earth.
Gen. xiii. 16.

Gen. xiii. 16. xxii. 17. Num.
xxiii. 10.

† Ps. cxix. 34. 73.
Prov. ii. 3—6.
iii. 13—18. Jam.
i. 5.

u Num. xxvii. 17.
Deut. xxxi. 2. 2
Sam. v. 2.

x 2 Cor. ii. 16.
iii. 5.

y 1 Sam. xvi. 7.
1 Kings viii. 18.
1 Chr. xxviii. 2.
xxix. 17, 18.
Acts v. 4.

z 1 Kings iii. 23.
Prov. xiv. 8.
Jam. iii. 13. 17.

a Matt. vi. 33.
Eph. iii. 20.
b ix. 22. 1 Chr.
xxix. 25. Ec. ii.
9.

c 3.

d 1 Kings iv. 24, 25.
e ix. 25. Deut.
xvii. 16. 1 Kings
iv. 26. x. 26.

V. 11. The expression, “this was in thine heart,” does not occur in Kings: and it implies, that the request of Solomon, as arising from a spiritual judgment and heart, was peculiarly acceptable to that God who searches, and regards, and demands, the heart.

V. 12. God promised Solomon all the things he had not asked, except the life of his enemies: but he was to be a peaceable king, a type of the Prince of peace.

V. 14—17. (Notes, 1 Kings x. 26—29.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The presence and blessing of God give strength, honour, happiness, and stability; and to whom he hath given much, from them he requires the more. It would be a comely sight to the spiritually-minded, to behold kings and nobles, and the chief estates of their dominions, assembling together for the purpose of religious worship, vying with each other in the fervency of their devotions, and giving evident demonstrations how generally and deeply their hearts were engaged in the sacred service. Alas! even in Christian countries, such scenes are very seldom exhibited. But the example, the influence, and the exhortations of princes, who greatly fear and love the Lord, who are eminent for piety and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, which he placed in the chariot cities, and with the king at Jerusalem.

15 And ^fthe king [†]made silver and gold at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and cedar-trees made he as the sycamore-trees that are in the vale for abundance.

16 And [†]Solomon had horses brought out of Egypt, and linen yarn: the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

17 And they fetched up, and brought forth out of Egypt a chariot for six hundred shekels of silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty: and so brought they out horses for all ^bthe kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, by their [‡]means.

CHAP. II.

Solomon purposes to build the temple and a palace, 1. His workmen, 2. He sends to Hiram for skilful artificers, and for timber, 3—10. Hiram's friendly answer, 11—16. Solomon employs strangers as labourers, and overseers, 17, 18.

AND Solomon ^adetermined to build an house ^bfor the name of the LORD, and ^can house for his kingdom.

and wisdom, and succeed each other in the same steps, may effect very great things: and all who love the truths and service of God should unite in praying, not formally but fervently, for all in authority; that being enriched with grace and wisdom, they may become instruments of such extensive good to their dominions. To us the desires of men's hearts can only be known by their habitual conduct; but in themselves they as certainly distinguish characters, as their actions do: and if the Lord see, that it is in our heart to desire wisdom and grace, more than riches, honour, or pleasure, he will delight to fulfil all our mind. His promises should form the rule of our prayers: and when they respect any important end, they may be pleaded as engaging him to grant all things requisite in order to it. To know and to do our duty in the station of life assigned us, to the glory of God and the benefit of our connexions in society, requires much wisdom, and is one principal exercise and evidence of it: and if we humbly feel our need of this wisdom, and faithfully ask it of God, he will give it liberally, and not upbraid our former folly. Those secular employments, that are commenced by the worship and service of God, are likely to be well managed and to be prosperous: and as he “gives grace and glory; so he will withhold no good thing from them that walk uprightly.” But, alas! prosperity f 12 ix. 27.

Kings x. 27.
Job xxii. 28.
29. Is ix. 17.
† Heb. gave.
g ix. 27. Is ix.
10. Am vii.

† Heb. the government of the honour which was Solomon's. ix.
28. 1 Kings x.
28, 29.

h 2 Kings vii. 6.

‡ Heb. hand.

a 1 Kings v. 5.
b Deut. xii. 5.
11. xxviii. 58. 1
Kings viii. 18.
20. 1 Chr. xxii.
10. Matt. vi. 9.
10. c 1 Kings vii. 1.
ix. 1.

19. 1 Kings v.
15. 16.

2 And Solomon ^a told out threescore and ten thousand men to bear burdens, and fourscore thousand to hew in the mountains, and three thousand and six hundred to oversee them.

e 1 Kings v. 1.
Hiram.
f 2 Sam. v. 11. 1
Chr. xiv. 1.

3 And Solomon sent to ^e Hiram the king of Tyre, saying, 'As thou didst deal with David my father, and didst send him cedars to build him an house to dwell therein, even so deal with me.

g 1. 1 Kings viii.
18.
h 1 Kings viii. 63.

4 Behold, ^g I build an house to the name of the LORD my God, ^b to dedicate it to him, and ⁱ to burn before him ^{*} sweet incense, and for ^k the continual shewbread, and for ^l the burnt-offerings morning and evening, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on ^m the solemn feasts of the LORD our God. This is an ordinance for ever to Israel.

i Ex. xxx. 7.
* Heb. incense of spices.
k Ex. xxv. 30.
Lev. xxiv. 40—
1 Ex. xxix. 40—
42. Num. xxviii.
3, 4. 9—11.

m Lev. xxiii.
Num. xxviii.
xxix.

5 And the house which I build is ⁿ great: for ^o great is our God above all gods.

n 9. 1 Kings. ix.
8. 1 Chr. xxix.
1. Ez. vii. 20.
o Ex. xv. 11. 1
Chr. xvi. 25. Ps.
lxxxvi. 8, 9.
cxxxv. 5. cxlv.
3. Jer. x. 6.
p vi. 18. 1 Kings
viii. 27. Is. lxvi.
1. Acts vii. 48,
49.

† Heb. hath retained, or, obtained strength.
q i. 10. Ex. iii.
11. 2 Sam. vii.
18. 1 Chr. xxix.
14. 2 Cor. ii. 16.
Eph. iii. 8.
r Deut. xii. 5, 6.
11. 14. 26.
s Ex. xxxi. 3—5.
1. Kings vii. 14.
1s. xxviii. 26.
29. lx. 10.
† Heb. to grave
gravings.

v 1 Chr. xxii. 15, t 16.
u 1 Kings v. 6.

6 But ^p who is ^q able to build him an house, seeing the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain him? ^a who am I then, that I should build him an house, ^r save only to burn sacrifice before him?

7 Send me now therefore a man ^s cunning to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in iron, and in purple, and in crimson, and blue, and that can skill ^t to grave with the cunning men that are with me in Judah and in Jerusalem, ^u whom David my father did provide.

8 ^u Send me also cedar-trees, fir-trees,

^z and ^z algaum-trees, out of Lebanon: for I know that thy servants can skill to cut timber in Lebanon: and, behold, my servants shall be with thy servants, x 1 Kings x. 11

almug-trees.
† Or, algaumin

9 Even to prepare me timber in abundance: for the house which I am about to build shall be || wonderful great.

† Heb. great and wonderful. 5.
vii. 21. 1 Kings
ix. 8.
y 1 Kings v. 11 Luke x. 7. Rom
xiii. 7, 8.

10 And, behold, ^y I will give to thy servants, the hewers that cut timber, twenty thousand measures of beaten wheat, and twenty thousand measures of barley, and twenty thousand ^z baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.

z 1 Kings vii. 26
38. Ezra vii. 22

11 ¶ Then Hiram the king of Tyre answered in writing, which he sent to Solomon, ^a Because the LORD hath loved his people, he hath made thee king over them.

a ix. 8. Deut. vii
7, 8. 1 Kings x
9.

12 Hiram said moreover, ^b Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, ^c that made heaven and earth, who hath given to David the king a wise son, ^{*} endued with prudence and understanding, that might build ^d an house for the LORD, and an house for his kingdom.

b 1 Kings v. 7.
1 Chr. xxix. 20.
Ps. lxxxii. 18, 19.
Luke i. 68. 1
Pet. i. 3.
c Gen. i. ii. Ps.
xxxiii. 6. cii.
25. cxxxiv. 8
cxxxvi. 5, 6.
cxlvi. 5, 6. Jer.
x. 11. Acts iv.
24. xiv. 15. Col.
i. 16, 17. Rev.
iv. 11. x. 6.

13 And now I have sent a cunning man, endued with understanding, ^e of Hiram my father's,

* Heb. knowing prudence, &c. i.
10—12.
d i.
e iv. 16.

14 'The son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a man of Tyre, ^g skilful to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, in iron, in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen, and in crimson; also to grave any manner of graving, and to find out every device which shall be put to him, with

f 1 Kings vii. 13, 14.
g 7. Ex. xxxi. 3, 4.

is always dangerous, because our hearts are deceitful: and it is with great propriety, that we pray, 'in all time of our wealth,—good Lord deliver us,' from pride, ostentation, indolence, self-indulgence, and a worldly mind. Let us then improve our present talent, seek heavenly blessings, and be contented without those great things which men generally covet, but which commonly prove fatal snares to their souls!

NOTES.

CHAP. II. V. 3—6. We have here a more particular account of Solomon's message to Hiram, or Hiram, king of Tyre, than was before given; (Notes, 1 Kings v.) and it appears, that he thought it no impropriety to speak freely upon religious subjects, in treating with a heathen prince about secular business. On the contrary, he laboured to give him very high and honourable thoughts of Israel's God, as great above all gods, and as one whom the heaven of heavens could not contain: he particularly explained to him his intentions in building a temple to the name of the Lord; viz. that it was to be the stated place of those instituted ordinances, which were required by the law of God given to Israel; that he might not misapprehend him, as if he supposed that JEHOVAH could be circumscribed in a temple, like the idols of the heathen: and he represented to him his own inability and unworthiness for such a service, except as mercifully assisted, and accepted in it by that gracious God, who had chosen him for the work.

V. 11, 12. The just sentiments contained in these verses, with the pious and benevolent spirit which they breathe, leave no doubt, but that Hiram was a spiritual worshipper of the true God.

V. 13. Of Hiram my father's. Or, Hiram-abi. It seems that this man, being the most eminent in his line of business, was called father, or my father Hiram. King Hiram called him so, and Solomon did the same. (iv. 16.) For it is evident that the artist's name is here meant, and not that of the king's father.

thy cunning men, and with the cunning men of my lord David thy father.

15 Now therefore the wheat, and the barley, the oil, and the wine, ^h which my lord hath spoken of, let him send unto his servants:

^h 1 Kings v. 8, 9.

^o Heb. according to all thy need.

[†] Heb. Japho.

Josh. xix. 46.

Ezra iii 7. Jon.

i. 3. Acts ix. 36.

x. 32.

k 2 viii. 7, 8.

1 Kings v. 13—

16, ix. 20, 21.

[†] Heb. the men

the strangers.

1 Chr. xxii. 2.

16 And ⁱ we will cut wood out of Lebanon, as ^{*} much as thou shalt need; and we will bring it to thee in floats by sea to [†] Joppa, and thou shalt carry it up to Jerusalem.

17 And Solomon ^k numbered all [†] the strangers that were in the land of Israel, ¹ after the numbering wherewith David his father had numbered them; and they were found an hundred and fifty thousand, and three thousand and six hundred.

ph 2.

18 And he set ^m threescore and ten thousand of them to be bearers of burdens, and fourscore thousand to be hewers in the mountain, and three thousand and six hundred overseers to set the people a-work.

CHAP. III.

The place of the temple, and the time when the building of it was begun, 1, 2.

Its dimensions and ornaments, 3—7. Those of the most holy place, 8—10. The cherubim placed in it, 11—13. The veil, 14. The two pillars, 15—17.

THEN ^a Solomon began to build the house of the LORD at Jerusalem ^b in mount Moriah, ^{*} where the LORD appeared unto David his father, in the place that David had prepared in the threshing-floor of ^c Ornan the Jebusite.

^a 1 Kings vi. 1.

^b Gen. xxii. 2.

^c Or, which was seen of David.

14.

^e 2 Sam. xxiv.

28. &c. Araunah.

1 Chr. xxi. 28.

xxii. 1.

d 1 Kings vi. 1.

2 And he began to build ^d in the second day of the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.

3 ¶ Now these are the things wherein ^e Solomon was [†] instructed for the building of the house of God. ^f The length by cubits, after the first measure was threescore cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits.

^e 1 Chr. xxviii.

11—19.

[†] Heb. founded.

f 1 Kings vi. 2, 3.

4 And the porch that was in the front of the house, the length of it was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and the height was an hundred and twenty: and he overlaid it within with pure gold.

V. 17, 18. (Marg. Ref. Notes, 1 Kings v. ix. 20—22.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

We ought always to attend to the work of God, in preference to our own indulgence or accommodation: and our hearts should be resolved for every service, that we may endure hardship, and struggle with difficulties, and not yield to weariness or discouragement. The greatest monarchs upon earth are as nothing, in comparison with the God of heaven; and they should deem it their highest honour to be his servants, and to speak of his glorious majesty. —The genuine love of God, abounding in the heart, would intermix the savour of piety in the ordinary concerns and converse of life. Indeed we should be neither afraid nor ashamed to embrace every opportunity of speaking honourably of God, and of impressing the minds of men with a deep sense of his majesty and excellency, and of the importance of his favour, worship, and service. It is a great part of our “wisdom towards them that are without,” so to explain our meaning in every doctrine and ordinance, and so to guard our discourses about them, as may best prevent misapprehension or prejudice: and the neglect of this rule is not boldness, or faithfulness, as some well meaning zealots suppose, but indiscretion and folly. In pleading the cause of God and religion, we should always speak humbly of ourselves; but except we be humbled, our temper and conduct will betray the hypocrisy of our self-abasing language; may the Lord himself therefore clothe us with humility! Possessions, endowments, or royal authority, are given men for the sake of others; and a wise and pious king is an evidence of the Lord's special love to the people: who then can express the greatness of his love to his believing people, in giving them his only begotten Son, to be their Prince and Saviour! It is also a great mercy to have children endued with wisdom and understanding: and we should all desire to be blessings to those among whom we live, that they may bless God for us. We ought also to praise him for those blessings which are exclusively bestowed on others: and it is pleasant to observe how the friendship of pious men becomes the means of bringing those that were far off, to know, love and worship our God and Saviour. Let us then be unwearied in spreading the knowledge of his name and truth; let us devote our several talents to his service; let us endeavour to be helpful to one another in this good work; and let us be thankful that poor heathens, and the meanest slaves, may be usefully and acceptably employed by our great and gracious Lord!

Vol. II.—No. 11.

NOTES.

CHAP. III. V. 1. (Notes, Gen. xxii. 2. 1 Chr. xxii. 1.) It is thought that the temple and its courts were situated, partly in the lot of Judah, and partly in that of Benjamin.

V. 3, 4. The first measure seems to mean the original 2 M g 1 Kings vi. 15—17, 21, 22.

5 And ^g the greater house he ceiled with fir-tree, which he overlaid with fine gold, and set thereon palm-trees and chains.

† Heb. covered.

h 1 Chr. xxix. 2.
8. Is. liv. 12.
Rev. xxi. 19, 20.

6 And he † garnished the house with precious stones for beauty: and the gold was gold of Parvaim.

i Ex. xxvi. 29.
1 Kings vi. 20—
22, 30. Ez. vii.
20.

7 He ⁱ overlaid also the house, the beams, the posts, and the walls thereof, and the doors thereof, with gold; and k Ex. xxvi. 1.

1 Kings vi. 35.
1 Ex. xxvi. 33.
1 Kings vi. 19,
20. Heb. ix. 3.
8. x. 19.

k ^k graved cherubims on the walls.

8 And he made ^l the most holy house, the length whereof was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits: and he overlaid it with fine gold, amounting to six hundred talents.

9 And the weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. And he overlaid the upper chambers with gold.

m 1 Kings v. 23—24.
† Or, moveable work
n 1 Kings 6. 24.

10 And in the most holy house he made ^m two cherubims of ^o image-work, and overlaid them with gold.

11 And the ^a wings of the cherubims were twenty cubits long: one wing of the one cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house; and the other wing was likewise five cubits, reaching to the wing of the other cherub.

12 And one wing of the other cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house; and the other wing was five cubits also joining to the wing of the other cherub.

13 The wings of these cherubims spread themselves forth twenty cubits: and they stood on their feet, and their faces were * inward.

* Or, toward the house. Ex xxv. 20.
o Ex. xxvi. 31—
35. Mrt. xxvii. 51.
Heb. ix. 3. x. 20.
† Heb. caused to ascend.

14 † And he made ^q the veil of blue, and purple, and crimson, and fine linen, and † wrought cherubims thereon.

15 Also he made before the house ^p two pillars of thirty and five cubits ^p high, and the chapter that was on the top of each of them was five cubits.

p 1 Kings vii. 15
—24. Jer. iii. 21
—23.
† Heb. long.

16 And he made ^a chains as in the oracle, and put them on the heads of the pillars; and made ^r an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chains.

q 1 Kings vi. 21.

17 And he ^s reared up the pillars before the temple, one on the right hand, and the other on the left; and called the name of that on the right hand [†] Jachin, and the name of that on the left ^{||} Boaz.

r 1 Kings vii. 29, 21.

s 1 Kings vii. 21.

† He shall establish.
|| In it is strength.

CHAP. IV.

The altar of brass, 1. The molten sea supported by twelve oxen, 2—5. The lavers, candlesticks, and tables, 6—8. The two courts of the temple, 9, 10. The vessels, furniture, and instruments of brass, 11—18. Those of gold, 19—22.

MOREOVER he made ^a an altar of brass, twenty cubits the length thereof, and twenty cubits the breadth thereof, and ten cubits the height thereof.

ai 5. Ex. xxxvii.
1—8. 1 Kings
viii. 22. 64. ix.
25. 3 Kings xvi.
14, 15. Ez. xliii.
13—16.

plan. The height of the porch is not mentioned in Kings; but the description given of the temple, in the exposition, takes in this account.

V. 6. It is not known on what account the gold, here mentioned, is called gold of Parvaim; that word not elsewhere occurring in Scripture.

V. 9. Some, by the word rendered the upper chambers, suppose the ceiling of the most holy place to be meant: but perhaps some of the upper chambers, on the outside of the temple, were thus decorated; the lower being used for more common purposes.

V. 10. The meaning of the word rendered image-work is not well known; but it implies something highly ornamented.

V. 12—16. (Notes, 1 Kings vi.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Proper instructions, well understood, enable us to go about our work without hesitation or uncertainty, and to proceed in it with confidence and comfort. Blessed be God, the sacred Scriptures are sufficient to render the man of God thoroughly furnished for every good work: and all our mistakes and embarrassments in matters of importance, arise from inattention to this our heavenly rule. Let us then search it daily; and beseech the Lord to enable us to understand, believe, remember, and obey his whole word; that our way may be made plain before us! Let us endeavour that all our works may be begun, continued, and ended in him; let us seek his grace to adorn our souls with the beauties of holiness, and his strength to establish us in faith and steady obedience, and to prosper our labours for his glory! Beholding God in Christ, his true temple, infinitely more glorious than that of Solomon, may we too become a spiritual house, “an habitation of God through the Spirit;” and a holy priesthood, that here on earth we may begin to join the worship of cherubim and seraphim before the throne, and at length, in his courts above, sing “praises to him who sitteth upon the throne, and to the Lamb for ever and ever!”

b Ex. xxx. 18—
21. 1 Kings vii.
23—26. Zech.
xiii. 1. Tit iii.
5. Rev. vii. 14.
* Heb. his brim to his brim.

c Ez. i. 10 x. 14.
1 Cor. ix. 9, 10.
Rev. iv. 7.

d Matt. xvi. 18.
Eph. ii. 20. Rev.
xxi. 14.
e Matt. xxviii.
19, 20. Mark
xvi. 15. Luke
xxiv. 46, 47.
Acts ix. 15.

* Or, like a Lily-flower.

f 1 Kings vii. 26.

g Ex. xxx. 18—
21. 1 Kings vii.
23, 40. Ps. li. 2.
1 Cor. vi. 11.
1 John i. 7.

† Heb. the work of burnt-offering.
Ex. xxiv. 4.
Lev. i. 9, 13.
Ez. xl. 38. Rev.
vii. 14.

h 2. Heb. ix. 14.
1 Kings vii. 49.
1 Chr. xxviii.
15. Zech. iv. 2.
3. 11—14. Matt.
v. 14—16. John viii. 12. Rev. i.
20.

k Ex. xxv. 31—40.

l Ex. xxv. 23—30.
xxxvii. 10—16.
1 Kings vii. 49.
1s. xxv. 6. Ez.
xlv. 16. Mal. i.
12. 1 Cor. x. 21.

† Or, bells. Jer.
lii. 18, 19.

m 1 Kings vi. 36.
vii. 12.

2 Also he made ^b a molten sea of ten cubits from ^{*} brim to brim, round in compass, and five cubits the height thereof; and a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about.

3 And under it was ^c the similitude of oxen, which did compass it round about: ten in a cubit, compassing the sea round about. Two rows of oxen were cast, when it was cast.

4 It ^d stood upon twelve oxen, ^e three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east: and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

5 And the thickness of it was an handbreadth, and the brim of it like the work of the brim of a cup, ^{*} with flowers of lilies: and it received and held ^f three thousand baths.

6 ¶ He made also ^g ten lavers, and put five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in them: [†] such things as they offered for the burnt-offering they washed in them; ^h but the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7 And he made ⁱ ten candlesticks of gold ^k according to their form, and set them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on the left.

8 He made also ^l ten tables, and placed them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. And he made an hundred [†] basons of gold.

9 ¶ Furthermore he made ^m the court of the priests, and the great court, and doors for the court, and overlaid the doors of them with brass.

10 And ⁿ he set the sea on the right side of the east end, over against the south.

11 And Hiram made ^o the pots, and the shovels, and the ^p basons. And Hiram ^{||} finished the work, that he was to make for king Solomon for the house of God;

12 To wit, ^q the two pillars, and ^r the pommels, and the chapters which were on the top of the two pillars, and the two wreaths to cover the two pommels of the chapters which were on the top of the pillars;

13 And ^r four hundred pomegranates on the two wreaths; two rows of pomegranates on each wreath, to cover the two pommels of the chapters which were upon the ^{*} pillars.

14 He made also ^s bases; and [†] lavers made he upon the bases;

15 ^t One sea, and twelve oxen under it:

16 The ^u pots also, and the shovels, and the ^v flesh-hooks, and all their instruments, did ^w Hiram ^z his father make to king Solomon, for the house of the LORD, of [†] bright brass.

17 In the plain of Jordan did the king cast them, in the [†] clay-ground between Succoth and ^a Zeredathah.

18 Thus Solomon made all these vessels in great abundance: for ^b the weight of the brass could not be found out.

19 And Solomon made ^c all the vessels that were for the house of God, ^d the golden altar also, and ^e the tables whereon the shew-bread was set;

n 1 Kings vii. 39.

o 1 Kings vii. 40.

p 45

q 1 Kings vii. 40.

r 45

s 1 Kings vii. 40.

t 2—5.

u 11. Ex. xxviii.

v 3. xxxviii. 3.

w Zech. xiv. 20.

x 21.

y 1 Sam. ii. 13, 14.

z 1 Chr. xxviii. 17.

a 1 Kings vii. 14.

b 45 Hiram.

c 1 Kings vii. 40.

d 45 Hiram.

e 1 Kings vii. 40.

f 45 Hiram.

g 1 Kings vii. 40.

h 45 Hiram.

i 1 Kings vii. 40.

j 45 Hiram.

k 1 Kings vii. 40.

l 45 Hiram.

m 1 Kings vii. 40.

n 1 Kings vii. 40.

o 1 Kings vii. 40.

p 45 Hiram.

q 1 Kings vii. 40.

r 45 Hiram.

s 1 Kings vii. 40.

t 2—5.

u 11. Ex. xxviii.

v 3. xxxviii. 3.

w Zech. xiv. 20.

x 21.

y 1 Sam. ii. 13, 14.

z 1 Chr. xxviii. 17.

a 1 Kings vii. 14.

b 45 Hiram.

c 1 Kings vii. 40.

d 45 Hiram.

e 1 Kings vii. 40.

f 45 Hiram.

g 1 Kings vii. 40.

h 45 Hiram.

i 1 Kings vii. 40.

j 45 Hiram.

k 1 Kings vii. 40.

l 45 Hiram.

m 1 Kings vii. 40.

n 1 Kings vii. 40.

o 1 Kings vii. 40.

p 45 Hiram.

q 1 Kings vii. 40.

r 45 Hiram.

s 1 Kings vii. 40.

t 2—5.

u 11. Ex. xxviii.

v 3. xxxviii. 3.

w Zech. xiv. 20.

x 21.

y 1 Sam. ii. 13, 14.

z 1 Chr. xxviii. 17.

a 1 Kings vii. 14.

b 45 Hiram.

c 1 Kings vii. 40.

d 45 Hiram.

e 1 Kings vii. 40.

f 45 Hiram.

g 1 Kings vii. 40.

h 45 Hiram.

i 1 Kings vii. 40.

j 45 Hiram.

NOTES.

CHAP. IV. V. 1. This altar is not mentioned in the book of kings. It was four times as long and as broad as that made by Moses. (Notes, Exod. xxviii. 1—8;) and formed a scaffold, above eleven yards square, and five yards high. It might be supposed that the Israelites, now that they were settled, multiplied, and enriched in Canaan, would bring vastly more sacrifices than they could have done in the wilderness; and the altar was formed accordingly, to be capable of containing many more. As it was so high, all the worshippers in the most distant parts of the courts of the temple, might behold, and be affected with, this representation of the Lord's wrath against sinners, and his way of showing mercy through the sufferings of the promised Saviour. This was continually shadowed forth by the innocent animals consumed by the fire which came down from heaven, while the guilty offerers were spared.

V. 2. (Notes, 1 Kings vii.)

V. 7. Form. Or, the form in which Moses had been taught to make the golden candlestick for the tabernacle. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 12. Pommels. Or Globes. These are not mentioned in the parallel passage. Perhaps they were globes placed above the chapters, which were seen through the ornaments with which they were decorated. (Note, 1 Kings vii. 15—22.)

V. 16. 'Some think, Solomon calls him his father, out of great respect to him, or because he was the inventor of this excellent work.' (Gen. iv. 20, 21.) (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 19. It is probable, that but one table was used for the shew-bread: but the rest might be placed near to it, 17. Ex. xxv. 31—37.

 Ex. xxvii. 20, 21.
 1 Kings vi. 5.
 16, 17. viii. 6.
 Ps. xxviii. 2.

20 Moreover the candlesticks with their lamps, that they should burn after the manner, before the oracle of pure gold;

5. Ex. xxv. 31.
 xxvii. 20. 1 Kings vi. 18. 29. 35.
 Heb. perfections of.
 Ex. xxxvii. 23.
 1 Kings vii. 50.
 2 Kings xii. 13.
 xxv. 14. Jer. lii. 18.

21 And the flowers, and the lamps, and the tongs, made he of gold, and that perfect gold;

Ex. xxxvii. 23.
 1 Kings vii. 50.
 2 Kings xii. 13.
 xxv. 14. Jer. lii. 18.
 Or. bowls.
 1 Chr. vi. 31, 32.

22 And the snuffers, and the basons, and the spoons, and the censers, of pure gold: and the entry of the house, the inner doors thereof for the most holy place, and the doors of the house of the temple, were of gold.

CHAP. V.

The temple is finished, and the dedicated treasures deposited in it, 1. The ark is brought into the most holy place, 2—10. Whilst the Levites sing praises to God, a cloud fills the temple, 11—14.

1 Kings vii. 51.
 1 Chr. xxii. 14.
 xxvi. 26—28.

THUS all the work that Solomon made for the house of the LORD was finished: and Solomon brought in all the things that David his father had dedicated; and the silver, and the gold, and all the instruments, put he among the treasures of the house of God.

for other purposes; or perhaps some of them kept against future emergencies.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The furniture of the temple, compared with that of the tabernacle, plainly instructed God's ancient people that his church would be gradually enlarged, and his worshippers immensely multiplied: and, blessed be God, in the person, sacrifice, and offices of Christ, there is an abundant sufficiency for any multitudes who can ever come to the Father through him. May the preaching of the Gospel hold him forth, as crucified for sinners, to all the nations of the earth; and may his Spirit prepare the hearts of all the inhabitants to welcome his salvation: for all things else are now ready. Whilst we thus pray for others, may we be found humble penitents, by faith beholding Jesus as "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world:" may we daily wash our souls and our services in that fountain which he hath opened for sin and for uncleanness: may we find continual access to the Father through our heavenly Advocate, and receive continual supplies of his Spirit: may we walk in the light of his word, feast upon the provisions of his house, and be "constrained by his love to live no longer to ourselves, but unto him who died for us and rose again." Nothing can be too precious to be consecrated to his service; and he will not

2 Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion.

1. 2. 1 Kings viii. 1—11. 1 Chr. xxix. 1.
 1 Chr. xv. 12. xxiv. 6. 31. xxvi. 26.
 1. 4. 2 Sam. vi. 12. 1 Chr. xvi. 1. 2 Sam. v. 7.

3 Wherefore all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto the king, in the feast which was in the seventh month.

4 And all the elders of Israel came; and the Levites took up the ark.

5 And they brought up the ark, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, these did the priests and the Levites bring up.

7. 8—10. Lev. xxiii. 34—36. 1 Kings viii. 2.
 Num. iv. 15. Josh. iii. 6. vi. 6. 1 Kings viii. 3. 1 Chr. xv. 2. 12—14.
 1. 3. 1 Kings viii. 4. 6.

6 Also king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him before the ark, sacrificed sheep and oxen, which could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

7 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD unto his place, to the oracle of the house, into the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubims.

1. 2 Sam. vi. 13. 1 Kings viii. 5. 1 Chr. xvi. 1, 2. xxix. 21.

8 For the cherubims spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and the reject the meanest abilities, the feeblest endeavours, or the most trivial oblations, which are offered in faith and love: yet he requires the very best of our affections and of all we have; and he will sooner bear with external meanness in our services, than with an insincere heart, however covered with specious and pompous professions and performances. The nearer we approach him in privilege and external worship, the more holy we should be; and the nearer we really approach to him in knowledge and communion, the more holy we shall be: till at length faith shall be exchanged for vision, and we shall become perfectly and eternally like him, and fitted for the full fruition of his favour and glory.

NOTES.

CHAP. V. V. 4. Perhaps the Levites, of the family of Kohath carried the ark into the courts of the temple, and then the priests conveyed it into its proper place. (Notes, Num. iv. 1 Kings viii. 1—11.)

V. 6. 'The observation of Victorinus Strigelius upon this history is very pious: That nothing is more lovely in human things, than such concord as here appeared among all orders of men; both of teachers and learners, magistrates, soldiers, and people, who were all combined to promote the honour and service of God. Such unity ought to be studied by Christian people, that we may be all one, as our Saviour prayed.' (Bp. Patrick.)

1 Ex. xxv. 12-15.
xxxvii. 3-5.
Num. iv. 6.

cherubims covered the ark and ¹ the staves thereof above.

m 1 Kings viii. 8.
9.

• Or, they are there.

n Ex. xxxi. 18.
xxxii. 15, 16, 19.
xxxiv. 1. xl. 20.
Deut. x. 2-5.
Hob. ix. 4.
† Or, where.
o Ex. xix. 5. xxiv. 7, 8. Deu. xxix. 1-10-14. Jer. xxxi. 31-34.

9 And they drew out the staves of the ark, that ^m the ends of the staves were seen from the ark before the oracle; but they were not seen without. And ^{*} there it is unto this day.

10 There was nothing in the ark ^a save the two tables which Moses put therein at Horeb, [†] when ^o the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt.

† Heb. found.
p xxxix. 5. 15. 34.
xxx. 15. 17-20.
Ex. xix. 10. 14, 15. Job i. 5.
q xxxv. 4. 1 Chr. xxiv.
r xxxix. 25. 1 Chr. xv. 16-22. xvi. 4-6. 41. 42. xxxiii. 5. 30.
xxv. 1-7. Ezra iii. 10, 11.
s 1 Chr. vi. 33. 39.
xxv. 6. Ps. i. lxi. lxxxviii. titles.
t 1 Chr. xv. 27. Rev. xv. 6. xix. 3.
u Ps. xciii. 3. exlix. 3. cl. 3-5.
x Num. x. 1-10. Josh. vi. 6-20.
1 Chr. xv. 24. xvi. 6.
y Ps. xcv. 1, 2. c. 1, 2. Is. lii. 8. Jer. xxxii. 39. Acts iv. 32. Rom. xv. 6. Rev. v. 11-14.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place; (for all the priests that were [‡] present were ^p sanctified, and did not then ^a wait by course :

12 Also ^r the Levites which were the singers, all of them of ^a Asaph, of Heman, of Jeduthun, with their sons and their brethren, being ^t arrayed in white linen, having ^u cymbals and psalteries and harps, stood at the east end of the altar, and with them ^{*} an hundred and twenty priests sounding with trumpets:)

13 It came even to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were ^v as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the LORD, and when they lifted up their voice with ^z the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of music, and praised the LORD, saying, For ^a he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever; that ^b then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the LORD;

14 So that ^c the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the cloud: for ^d the glory of the LORD had filled the house of God.

CHAP. VI.

Solomon ¹ blesses the people, and praises God, 1-11. His prayer at the dedication of the temple, 12-39. He concludes by earnestly entreating the Lord's special presence and blessing, 40-42.

THEN said Solomon, ^a The LORD hath said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

2 But ^b I have built an house of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever.

3 And the king ^c turned his face, and ^d blessed the whole congregation of

V. 9. Unto this day. That is, The day when these events were recorded; not the day when these extracts were made, after the captivity.

V. 11. So great a multitude of sacrifices were offered on this occasion, that the whole body of the priests, who were capable of service, were employed at once; and not only those who attended in their courses. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 13. It is remarkable, that the Lord took possession of his temple by the cloud, at the moment when, with one consent, the Levites were singing the praises of his everlasting goodness and mercy.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The gracious presence of God renders his ordinances far more glorious, and is more essential to their efficacy, than any conceivable external order or magnificence: and he is as really present with two or three humble worshippers in a mean obscure corner, as with tens of thousands assembled with every possible accommodation. Yet on some occasions the concurrence of vast multitudes, under the direction of pious princes, has been made extensively useful to mankind, and greatly honourable to and honoured by God. The eye of our faith must, in every service, be primarily directed to the atoning sacrifice of Christ: but in subordination to it, our sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving are peculiarly well pleasing unto God, if the harmony of our voices, or musical instruments, be really accompanied with the sweet melody of a humble and grateful heart. All the divine perfections are glorious in themselves: but his goodness and ever enduring mercy are peculiarly endearing to the broken-hearted sinner; and the Lord especially delights in the exercise and in the glory of his mercy, in harmony with his wisdom, truth, and justice, through the merits of the Saviour. This should encourage all who feel their need of abounding mercy: being conscious that their sins have greatly abounded. The ministers of God should always be ready, both in body and soul, for every service, ordinary or extraordinary: and it looks ill, when they are loath to exceed that measure which entitles them to their emoluments. When the worshippers of God are of one mind, as well as in one place, they may expect the more immediate presence and blessing of God: if he take possession of our hearts to sanctify them, he will exclude whatever interferes with his design of filling them with his glory: and though darkness now rests upon our views of heavenly things; yet in the temple above, the Lord himself will be our everlasting Light, and we shall know even as we are known. May he prepare us for, and bring us to, that land of perfect knowledge, purity, and felicity!

NOTES.

CHAP. VI. V. 11. This chapter varies so little from the parallel passage, (1 Kings viii. 12-53;) that the reader must in general be referred to the exposition already given.

c 1 Kings viii. 14.
Neh. viii. 5-7.
Mat. xiii. 2.

f 1 Kings viii. 15.
1 Chr. xxix. 10.
22. Ps. lxxviii. 4.
72-75. lxxviii. 18.
19. 1 Tim. i. 69.
Eph. i. 3.
g 1 Chr. xviii. 12.
Ps. cxxxviii. 1.
2. Matt. xxviii.
35. Luke i. 70.
h 2 Sam. vii. 6, 7.
1 Kings viii. 16.

i Ex. xx. 24. xliii.
11. Deut. xii. 5.
11. Dan. ix. 13.
k 1 Sam. x. 21.
xliii. 13, 14. xv.
24. 2 Sam. vii.
15.

l 13. Ps. xlviii.
1. lxxviii. 69-
70. cxxxii. 13.

m 1 Sam. xvi. 1.
Ps. lxxxix. 19, 20.

n 2 Sam. vii. 2, 3.
1 Kings v. 3.
viii. 17. 1 Chr.
xxii. 7. xxviii.
2.

o 1 Kings viii. 19.
-21. Mark xiv.
8. 2 Cor. viii. 12.

p 2 Sam. vii. 12.
1 Chr. xvii. 4.
11.

q 4.

r i. 1. 1 Kings ii.
12. iii. 6, 7.
1 Chr. xxix. 15.
22. Ec. i. 4. ii.
18, 19.
s 1 Chr. xxviii. 5.

t v. 10. Ex. xl. 20.
1 Kings viii. 9.
21. Heb. ix. 4.

u 1 Kings viii. 22.
2 Kings xi. 14.
xxiii. 3. Ps.
xxix. 1, 2.

x Ex. ix. 33. Job
xli. 13. Ps. xxviii.
2. lxxiii. 4. cxli.
2. Is. i. 15.
1 Tim. ii. 8.

y Neh. viii. 4.
Heb. the length
thereof.

z iv. 9. 1 Kings
vi. 36. vii. 12.

a 1 Kings viii. 54.
Ezra ix. 5. Ps.
xcv. 6. Dan. vi.
10. Luke xxii.
41. Acts xx. 36.
xxi. 5.

Israel: and ^e all the congregation of Israel stood.

4 And he said, ^f Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, ^g who hath with his hands fulfilled that which he spake with his mouth to my father David, saying,

5 ^h Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build an house in, that ⁱ my name might be there; ^k neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel:

6 But I have ^l chosen Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and have ^m chosen David to be over my people Israel.

7 Now ⁿ it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the LORD God of Israel.

8 But the LORD said to David my father, Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, ^o thou didst well in that it was in thine heart:

9 Notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house; but ^p thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name.

10 The LORD therefore hath ^q performed his word that he hath spoken: for ^r I am risen up in the room of David my father, and am set on the throne of Israel, ^s as the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD God of Israel:

11 And in it have I put the ark, wherein ^t is the covenant of the LORD, that he made with the children of Israel.

12 ¶ And ^u he stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and ^x spread forth his hands:

13 (For Solomon had made a brazen scaffold, of five cubits ^y long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and had set it in the midst of ^z the court: and upon it he stood, and ^a kneeled down upon his knees before all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven,)

14 And said, ^b O LORD God of Israel, there is ^c no god like thee in the heaven, nor in the earth; which ^d keepest covenant, and shewest ^e mercy unto thy servants, that ^f walk before thee with all their hearts:

15 Thou which hast kept with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him; and ^g spakest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

16 Now therefore, O LORD God of Israel, ^h keep with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him, ⁱ saying, † There shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit upon the throne of Israel; yet so that thy children take heed to their way ^k to walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me.

17 Now then, ^l O LORD God of Israel, ^m let thy word be verified, which thou hast spoken unto thy servant David.

18 But ⁿ will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, ^o heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee: ^p how much less this house which I have built!

19 ^q Have respect therefore to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, ^r to hearken unto the cry and the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee:

20 That ^s thine eyes may be open upon this house day and night, upon the place whereof thou hast said that thou wouldest ^t put thy name there; to hearken unto the prayer which thy servant prayeth ^u toward this place.

21 Hearken therefore unto the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they shall ^v make toward this place: hear thou from ^w thy dwelling-place, even from heaven; and, when thou hearest, ^x forgive.

22 ¶ If a man ^y sin against his neighbour, ¶ and an oath be laid upon him to b Gen. xxiii. 27.

xxxv. 10. Ex.
xii. 15. 1 Kings
viii. 23. xviii. 36.
1 Chr. xxix. 19.
20.

c Ex. xv. 11.
2 Sam. vii. 22.
Ps. lxxxvii. 8.
lxxxix. 6. Jer.
x. 6. 16.

d Deut. vii. 9.
Neh. i. 5. Ps.
lxxxix. 28. Dan.
ix. 4. Mic. vii.
18-20. Luke i.
72.

e Ps. ciii. 17, 18.
Luke i. 50. 54.
55.

f Gen. v. 24. xvi.
1. 1 Kings i. 6.
vi. 12. Luke i.
6. 1 Thes. ii. 12.

g 2 Sam. vii. 12.
1 Kings viii. 24.
1 Chr. xxii. 9, 19.

h Ex. xxxvi. 57.
John xv. 14, 15.
i vii. 18. 2 Sam.
vii. 12. 16.

j Ps. cxxxii. 12.
† Heb. There shall not a man be cut off.

k Ps. xxvii. 6.
cxxx. 1.

l Ex. xxiv. 10. Is.
xli. 17. xlv. 3.

m 2 Sam. vii. 25-29. Jer. xi. 5.

n 1 Kings viii. 27.
Ps. cxlii. 5, 6. Is.
lviii. 15. lxxvi. 1.
Acts vii. 48, 49.

o xlv. 24.
p ii. 6. Ps. cxxxix.
7-10. Jer. xxxiii.
21. 2 Cor. xii. 2.

q xxxii. 15. Job
iv. 19. ix. 14.
xxv. 4-6. Mat.
vii. 11.

r 1 Kings viii. 27.
Ps. lxxiv. 20.
c. xxx. 2. Dan.
ix. 17-19. Luke
xviii. 1-7.

s Ps. iv. 1. v. 1, 2.
xx. 1-3. John
xvii. 20.

t xvi. 9. 1 Kings
viii. 29. 30.
2 Kings xix. 16.
Neh. i. 6. Ps.
xxxiv. 15.

u 6. Deut. xxi. 2.
Col. ii. 9.

v Or. in this place.
Dan. vi. 10.

w Heb. pray.
u 39. Job xxii. 12
-14. Ps. cxlii. 1.

x Ec. v. 2. Is. lviii.
15. Mat. vi. 9.

y Ps. lxxxv. 2, 3.
cxxx. 2. 4. Is.
xliii. 25. xlv. 22.

z Dan. ix. 19. Mic.
vi. 18. 19. Mat.
vi. 12.

a 1 Kings viii. 31, 32.

† Heb. and he require an oath of him. Ec. x. 11. 11.
Lev. v. 1. Prov.
xxx. 9.

V. 5. Neither chose, &c. The judges and Saul were chosen of God, for a season, to be rulers of Israel; but not to establish a permanent and hereditary authority over that people, as was the case of David.

V. 6. On this occasion Jerusalem was expressly marked out, as the centre of the worship of Israel; as the Lord had before spoken by Moses: (Marg. Ref.)

^a Num. v. 19—22 Matt. xxiii.
18.

^a 21.
^b Num. v. 27.
Prov. i. 31. 1s
iii. 11. Rom. ii.
9.

^c Deut. xxv. 1.
Prov. xvii. 13.
1s iii. 10. Ez.
xxiii. 20. Rom.
ii. 10.

^{* Or, be smitten.}
1. ev. xxvi. 17.
37. Deut. xxviii.
25. 48. Josh. vii.
8. 1 Kings viii.
33, 34. Ps. xlv.
10.

^d Josh. xiv. 11.
12. Judg. ii. 11.
14. 15. 2 Kings
xvii. 7—18.

^e Lev. xxvi. 40
—42. Deut. iv
29—31 xxx. 1—
6. Neh. i. 8, 9.
Prov. xxxiii. 13.
Jer. iii. 12. 13.

^f Ezra ix. 5, &c.
Neh. ix. 1, &c.
1s. lxiii. lxiv.
Dan. ix. 3, &c.
[†] Or, toward 20

^g Ezra i. 6. Ps.
cvi. 47. Jer.
xxiii. 6—13.
^h Gen. xiii. 15.
Ex. vi. 8 Josh
xvi. 43.

ⁱ Lev. xxvi. 19.
Deut. xi. 17.
xxviii. 23. 1
Kings xviii. 1.
Luke iv. 25.

^k 1s. i. 1, 2. Ez.
xiv. 13. Amos iv.
4—9. Rev. xi. 6.
^l Jer. xiv. 7—9.
Joel i. 13—20.
ii. 15—17.

^m Prov. xxviii. 13.
Ez. viii. 27—32.
ⁿ xxxiii. 12, 13
Hos. v. 15. vi. 1.

^o 1 Kings viii. 25.
36. Ps. xxv. 3, 4.
8. 12. xciv. 12
cxix. 33. Mic.
iv. 2. John. i. 45.

^p 1s. xxx. 21. Jer.
vi. 16. xlii. 3.
^q 1 Kings xviii.
40—45. Job
xxxvii. 11—14.

^r Ps. lxxviii. 9. Jer.
xiv. 22. Joel ii.
23. Zech. x. 1.
Jam. v. 17, 18.

^r Lev. xxvi. 16
25, 26. Deut.
xxviii. 21—61.
Ruth i. 1. 1
Kings viii. 37—
40. 2 Kings vi.
25—29. viii. 1.

^s Ex. x. 12—15.
Joel. 4—7. ii. 25.
Rev. ix. 3—11

^t xlii. 2—5. xx. 9—
13. xxxiii. 1. Lev.
xxvi. 25. Deut.
xxviii. 52—57.

[†] Heb. Land of their gates ^u 1 Kings viii. 37, 38.

^x Ps. xxxiii. 12.
43. i. 15. xci. 15.
^y Prov. xiv. 10.
2. 12, 13. 1s. i. 15.

^z Ps. xviii. 20—26.
Jer. xviii. 10.
Ez. xviii. 30.
Matt. xvi. 27.

^b 1 Kings viii.
39. 1 Chr. xxviii.
5. xxix. 17. Ps.
xi. 4, 5. John.
ii. 25. Heb. iv.
13. Rev. ii. 23.

^c Ps. xx. 20.
1 Sam. xii. 24.
Job xxviii. 28.
Ps. cxxviii. 1.
cxxx. 4. Acts
ix. 31.

[†] Heb. all the days which they live upon the face of the land.

make him swear, and ^a the oath come before thine altar in this house;

23 Then hear thou ^a from heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, by ^b requit-ing the wicked, by recompensing his way upon his own head; and by ^c justifying the righteous, by giving him according to his righteousness.

24 ¶ And if thy people Israel be ^{*} put to the worse before the enemy, ^d because they have sinned against thee; and ^e shall return and confess thy name, and ^f pray and make supplication before thee [†] in this house;

25 Then hear thou from the heavens,
and ^g forgive the sin of thy people Israel,
and bring them again unto the land, which thou gavest to them and to their fathers.

26 ¶ When ⁱ the heaven is shut up, and ^k there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; yet ^l if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and ^m turn from their sin, when ⁿ thou dost afflict them;

27 Then hear thou from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, ^o when thou hast taught them the ^p good way wherein they should walk; and ^q send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given unto thy people for an inheritance.

28 ¶ If there be ^r dearth in the land,
if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, ^s locusts, or caterpil-lars; if ^t their enemies besiege them in the [†] cities of their land; ^u whatsoever sore or whatsoever sickness there be:

29 Then ^{*} what prayer or what supplication soever shall be made of any man, or of all thy people Israel, when every one shall ^v know his own sore and his own grief, and shall ^w spread forth his hands in this house:

30 Then hear thou from heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive, and ^x render unto every man according unto ^y all his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for ^z thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men:)

31 That they may ^c fear thee, to walk in thy ways, [†] so long as they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

32 ¶ Moreover concerning ^d the stranger, which is not of thy people Israel, but ^e is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, and ^f thy mighty hand, and thy stretched-out arm; ^g if they come and pray in this house;

33 Then hear thou from the heavens,
even from thy dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for; ^h that all people of the earth may know thy name, and fear thee, as doth thy people Israel, and may know that ^{||} this house which I have built is called by thy name.

34 ¶ If ⁱ thy people go out to war against their enemies ^k by the way that thou shalt send them, and ^l they pray unto thee ^m toward this city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name;

35 Then ^a hear thou from the heavens their prayer and their supplication, and ^o maintain their ^{*} cause.

36 ¶ If ^p they sin against thee, (^q for there is no man which sinneth not,) and ^r thou be angry with them, and deliver them over before their enemies, and [†] they carry them away captives unto a land far off or near;

37 Yet ^s if they [†] bethink themselves in the land whither they are carried captive, and turn and pray unto thee in the land of their captivity, saying, ^t We have sinned, we have done amiss, and have dealt wickedly:

38 If they ^u return to thee with all their heart and with all their soul, in the land of their captivity, whither they have carried them captives, and ^x pray towards their land which thou gavest unto their fathers, and towards ^y the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house which I have built for thy name:

39 Then hear thou from the heavens,
even from thy dwelling-place, their prayer and their supplications, and maintain their [†] cause, and ^z forgive thy people which have sinned against thee.

40 Now, ^a my God, let, I beseech thee, ^b thine eyes be open, and let ^c thine ears be attent unto the prayer ^{||} that is made in this place.

^d Ex. xii. 48, 49.
Ruth i. 16. ii. 11.
1 Kings viii. 41
—43. x. 1, 2. 1s.
lvi. 3—7. Matt.
ii. 1. viii. 10.
11. John xii.
20. Acts vii. 27.
x. 1—4. Eph. ii.
12, 13.

^e Ex. xviii. 8—12.
Josh. ii. 9. ix. 9.
2 Kings v. 3. 8.
15. 1s. ix. 1—10.
Zech. viii. 22.

^f Matt. xii. 42.
^g Ex. iii. 13, 20.
xiii. 14. Ps.
lxxxix. 13.

^h 1s. lxxvi. 20.
Zech. xiv. 16.
17. Acts ii. 10.
h. 1 Sam. xvii. 46.

ⁱ 2 Kings xix. 19.
Ps. xxxii. 27. lxxvii.
2. cxxxviii. 4, 5.
1s. xi. 10. xlix.
6. liv. 1—3.

^{||} Heb. thy name is called upon this house. Num.
vi. 27. 1 Kings
viii. 16.

^l Deut. xx. 1—4.
Josh. i. 2—5.
1 Kings viii. 41,
45.

^k Num. xxxi. 1, &c. Josh. viii. 1.
—8. Judg. i. 1,
2. 1 Sam. xv. 3.
18.

^l xiv. 9—12. xlviii.
31. xx. 6—13.
xxii. 20, 21.
m. 6. 1 Kings viii.
13. 1s. xiv. 32.

^m Dan. vi. 10.
n. Dan. ix. 17—19.
o. 1s. xxxvii. 21
—35.

^{*} Or, right. Ps.
ix. 4. Jer. v. 28.
p. 1 Kings viii.
45. 50.

^q Job. xv. 14—15.
cxxx. 3. cxliii.
2. Prov. xx. 9.
Ec. vii. 20. Jam.
iii. 2. 1 John i.
8—10.

^r Lev. xxvi. 34—
44. Deut. iv. 26,
27. xviii. 35. 64
—68. xxix. 24—
29. 2 Kings xvii.
6. 18. 23. xxv.
21. Dan. ix. 7—
14. Luke xxi. 24.

[†] Heb. they that take them captive, carry them away.

^s Lev. xxvi. 40—
45. Deut. iv. 29,
30. xxx. 1—3.
Luke. v. 17.

^t Heb. bring back to their heart.
^u Ezra ix. 6, 7.
Neh. i. 6. ix. 26
—30. Job xxxiii.
27, 28. Ps. cvj.
6. 1s. liiv. 6—12.

^v Jer. iii. 12—14.
xxxi. 18—20. Dan.
ix. 9—11. Luke
xv. 18, 19.

^x Deut. xxx. 2—6.
Jer. xxix. 12—14.
Hos. xiv. 1—4.
Joel ii. 12, 13.

^z xxxiii. 11—13.
Dan. ix. 3, 4.
y. 34.

^{||} Or, right. 35.
Zech. i. 15, 16.
z. Ps. xxv. 18, 19.
Mic. vii. 18—20.

^a Ps. vii. 3. xlii.
3. xxii. 1, 2.
lxxxviii. 1.
b. vii. 16. xvi. 9.
1 Kings viii. 52.
Ps. xxxiv. 15.
1s. xxxvii. 27.
Dan. ix. 17—19.

^c Ps. xvii. lxxxii.
2. cxvi. 2.
^{||} Heb. of this place.

d Ps. cxxxii. 6—

10. 16.

e 1 Chr. xxviii. 2.

f Josh. iii. 13. vi.

4, 5. 1 Chr. xvi. f

24. Ps. cx. 2.

Rom. i. 15.

g Is. lix. 18—19.

Jxi. 3. 6. 10.

41 Now therefore ^d arise, O LORD God, into ^e thy resting-place, thou, and the ark of thy strength: let ^g thy priests, O LORD God, be clothed with

Rom. xiii. 14. Gal. iii. 27. Eph. iv. 22—24. Rev. xix. 8. 14.

V. 41, 42. These concluding words are not in the book of Kings; but are taken with some variation from the hundred and thirty-second Psalm, which probably was composed with reference to the former removal of the ark.—The temple was called the resting-place of the ark, because it there had a permanent settlement. The temple typified the human nature of Christ, “in whom dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily;” the ark typified his meritorious obedience and sufferings, by which the holy law was magnified, and through which believing sinners approach and hold communion with, a reconciled God. The ark, the sacramental pledge of JEHOVAH’s strength, engaged for Israel’s help, would not avail without his actual presence. This might be expected, and indeed would be visible in its effects, if “his priests were clothed with salvation,” or righteousness. If they were partakers of salvation in their souls, and brought forth the fruits of it in their holy lives and conversations: then their example, instructions, and ministrations, would be extensively useful. They who, as penitent believers, have obtained mercy, and are separated from the love and spirit of the world, under the influences of the sanctifying Spirit of God, are saints. Their edification, comfort, and joy, in subserviency to the glory of God, and in connexion with the conversion of sinners, forms the great object of religious ordinances; and the faith and piety of ministers, the purity and solemnity of their services, and the flourishing of true religion, cause them “to rejoice in the goodness” of the LORD; by enlarging and gratifying all their holy, pious and benevolent affections. These seem, therefore, the blessings peculiarly intended; though the outward protection and prosperity of both priests and people might also be implied. Solomon further prayed, that God would not reject his prayer, which he made for a blessing on that work to which he had called him, and for which he had caused him to be anointed: for that would be to turn away his face, and to send him away ashamed and discouraged. But in this he was a type of, and probably had reference to, the promised Messiah.—He also entreated the Lord to remember the mercies that he had promised to David, and through him to his people and posterity; and to continue and perfect them. This also may be applied to the mercies of our Lord Jesus Christ, and of God the Father through him.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—17.

It is a great mercy to be enabled to go through important services to the church, in simple obedience, and dependence on the Lord; and to witness their accomplishment with humble gratitude to the giver of both the will, the ability, and the success: adoring his power, faithfulness, and goodness in every part of it, without expressing self-importance or self-complacency. For pride and ostentation, if allowed to intrude, rob God of his glory, and mar the acceptance, or the comfort, of the most useful and excellent undersalvation, and let ^h thy saints rejoice in goodness.

42 O LORD God, turn not away the face of ⁱ thine anointed; ^k remember the mercies of David thy servant.

h Neh. ix. 25. Is.

lxv. 18. 19. Phil.

iii. 3. iv. 4.

i 1 Kings i. 34.

Ps. ii. 2. 13.

lxi. 1.

k Ps. cxxxii. 1.

Is. lv. 3. Acts

xiii. 34.

takings. Here then the main guard should be placed, by those who are employed as instruments for the good of others: this, this above all the rest, should dictate their constant prayers; and all, that wish success to their attempts, should join in prayer for them, that they may be kept humble, in proportion as they are honoured of God for usefulness. When a good work is well finished, it is not done with: when the sermon is preached, the letter written, or the book sent to the press, or even well received by the public, its real utility depends on the Lord’s consequent blessing. Then it should be dedicated to him, committed to his hands, and his blessing sought upon it; and in this case we may confidently expect that the fruit which by his grace we have produced, will remain for the durable good of many when we are gone to our long home.

V. 18—42.

The more we know of God and religion, spiritually and experimentally, the more humbly we shall think of ourselves, and of all our performances; the more reverentially we shall adore the infinitely glorious God, and the more entirely we shall trust to his covenant of mercy and grace, made with believing sinners in Jesus Christ. We may and ought, unworthy as we are, to expect large answers to all our prayers, which we present for ourselves and others through the Saviour’s intercession. They are greatly favoured who have pious friends to pray for them; and it is a mercy for us all that “we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, who is the propitiation for the sins of the world;” (1 John ii. 1, 2.) Yet this will not prevent the destruction of any that never pray for themselves: not that the Saviour pleads in vain, but that the event shows he does not intercede for them.—In times of prosperity, personal or public, we should expect adversity, and pray with reference to it: and in seasons of deep distress and temptation, we should still hope and pray for deliverance and comfort. Blessed be God, sinners of every description, when they bethink themselves, and humbly pour out their prayers, in dependence on the Saviour’s merits, may be assured of forgiveness, acceptance, and all the blessings of salvation. JEHOVAH hath made our nature his resting-place for ever, in the person of Emmanuel, and through him he dwells and delights in his church of redeemed sinners. May all his ministers of every name be clothed with righteousness and salvation; may all his saints be made joyful in his goodness; may the numbers of both be continually increasing, till the boundaries of his church extend as wide as those of the human species. May the heart of the writer, and of every reader, become his resting place; may Christ dwell there by faith, casting out every idol, cleansing them from all filthiness, consecrating them as his temples, and shedding abroad his love therein: may the Father look upon us, in and through his Anointed, whose face he never turns away, and whose petitions meet with no repulse; and may he

CHAP. VII.

God testifies his acceptance of Solomon's prayer by fire from heaven; the glory fills the temple, and the people worship, 1—3. Solomon's sacrifices at the dedication, 4—7. The congregation keep the feast of tabernacles, and the feast of the dedication, fourteen days, 8, 9. He dismisses the people joyful, and is prospered, 10, 11. God again appears to Solomon, and makes a covenant with him, 12—23.

NOW ^a when Solomon had made an end of praying, ^b the fire came down from heaven, and consumed the burnt-offering and the sacrifices; and ^c the glory of the LORD filled the house.

2 And ^d the priests could not enter into the house of the LORD, because the glory of the LORD had filled the LORD's house.

3 And when all the children of Israel saw how the fire came down, and the glory of the LORD upon the house, ^e they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped, and praised the LORD, saying, ^f For he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

4 Then the king and all the people offered sacrifices before the LORD.

5 And king Solomon offered ^g a sacrifice of twenty and two thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep: so the king and all the people dedicated the house of God.

6 And ^h the priests waited on their offices: ⁱ the Levites also with instruments of music of the LORD, ^k which David the king had made to praise the LORD, ^l because his mercy endureth for ever, when David praised by their ^m ministry; and ⁿ the priests sounded trumpets before them, and all Israel stood.

7 Moreover Solomon ^o hallowed the middle of the court that ^p was before the house of the LORD: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings, because ^q the brazen altar which Solomon had made was not able to receive the burnt-offerings, and the meat-offerings, and the fat.

8 Also at the same time Solomon ^r kept the feast seven days, and all Israel with him, ^s a very great congregation, from ^t the entering in of Hamath, unto the river of Egypt.

9 And in the eighth day they made a ^u solemn assembly: for they kept the dedication of the altar ^v seven days, and the feast seven days.

10 And on the ^w three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent the people away into their tents, ^x glad and merry in heart ^y for the goodness that the LORD had shewed unto David, and to Solomon, and to Israel his people.

11 Thus ^z Solomon finished the house of the LORD, and the king's house: and ^{aa} all that came into Solomon's heart to make in the house of the LORD, and in his own house he prosperously effected.

12 ¶ And ^{ab} the LORD appeared to Solomon by night, and said unto him, ^{ac} I have heard thy prayer, and ^{ad} have chosen this place to myself, for ^{ae} an house of sacrifice.

13 If ^{af} I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if ^{ag} I command the locusts to devour the land, or if ^{ah} I send pestilence among my people;

14 If ^{ai} my people, ^{aj} which are called by my name, shall ^{ak} humble themselves,

^a 1 Kings viii. 54.
Dan. ix. 20.
^b Gen. xv. 17.
Lev. ix. 24.
Judg. vi. 21.
1 Kings xviii. 24.
39. 1 Chr. xxi. 26.
^c v. 13, 14. Ek. xi. 34, 35. Lev. ix. 23. 1 Kings viii. 10, 11. Is. vi. 1—4. Ez. x. 3, 4.
^d v. 14. Ex. xxiv. 17. Is. vi. 5. Rev. xv. 8.

^e Ex. ix. 31. Lev. ix. 24. Num. xiv. 5. xvi. 22.
1 Kings xviii. 39.
1 Chr. xxix. 29.
Ps. xcvi. 6.
^f v. 13. xxi. 21.
Ezra iii. 11. Ps. ciii. 17. cxxxvi. 1, &c. Is. lxiii. 7. Jer. xxxiii. 11. Luke i. 50.

^g 1. 6. v. 6. xv. 11.
1 Kings viii. 62.
63. 1 Chr. xxi. 21.
Ezra vi. 16.
17. Ez. xlv. 17.
Mic. vi. 7.

^h 1 Chr. xvi. 39.
40. xxiv. 1—3.
ⁱ xxix. 25. 1 Chr. vi. 31, 32. xv. 16—21. xvi. 1—7.
^k Amos vi. 5.
^l 1 Chr. xvi. 31.
Ps. cvii. 1. cviii. 1—4. cxxxviii. 8.

^m Heb. hand.
ⁿ 12. Num. x. 1.
—10. 1 Chr. xv. 24. Ps. lxxxix. 15.
^o 1 Kings viii. 64.
Ez. xx. 20. Heb. xiii. 10—12.

^p Lev. xxiii. 34—43. Num. xxxix. 12—35. Deut. xvi. 13—15. 1 Kings viii. 65. Neh. viii. 13—18. Zech. xiv. 16—19. John vii. 3. 37—39.
^q xxx. 13.
^r Gen. xv. 16. Num. xxxiv. 6—8. Josh. xiii. 3—5. 1 Kings iv. 21—25. Am. vi. 14.
^s Heb. restraint.
^t xxx. 23. 1 Kings viii. 65.
^u 1 Kings viii. 66.
^v xxxix. 36. xxxix. 25. Deut. xii. 7.
^w 12. 18. xvi. 11.
^x Neh. viii. 10.
^y Ps. xxxiii. 11.
^z xxxiii. 1. xxi. 4.
^{aa} c. 2. cv. 3. cvi. 5. Acts ii. 46.
^{ab} xvi. 34. Phil. iv. 4.
^{ac} Is. lxiii. 7.
^{ad} y. ii. 1. 1 Kings ix. 1.
^{ae} z. Ec. ii. 4. 10, 11.
^{af} ai. 7. Gen. xvii. 1. 1 Kings ix. 2.
^{ag} b. 2. Kings ix. 5.
^{ah} Ps. x. 17. lxxvi. 19. Luke i. 13.
^{ai} Acts x. 31.
^{aj} 1 John v. 14, 15.
^{ak} c. 16. Deut. xii. 5.
^{al} 11. Ps. lxxxviii. 68, 69. cxxxii. 13, 14.
^{am} d. ii. 6.

^{an} e. vi. 25—28.
Deut. xi. 17.
Job. xi. 10. xii. 14. Luke iv. 25.
Rev. iii. 7. xi. 6.
^{ao} f. Ex. x. 4—6. Ps. cv. 34. Joel i. 4—7. ii. 25.
^{ap} g. Num. xiv. 12.
xvi. 46, 47.
2 Sam. xxiv. 13.
—16. Ez. xiv. 19—21.
^{aq} h. Is. lxiii. 19.
^{ar} i. Heb. upon whom my name is called.
^{as} vi. 37—39.
xxxiii. 12, 13.
18. 19. Lev. xxvi. 40, 41. Deut. iv. 29. 30. xxx. 1—6. Ez. xxxiii. 11. Jam. iv. 9, 10.

remember and bless us in all things, according to his mercies to sinners in and through him!

NOTES.

CHAP. VII. V. 1—3. Fire, descending and consuming the sacrifices, was the customary token of divine acceptance; (Marg. Ref.) This represented the righteous displeasure of God against man's sin, as the cause of the sufferings of our holy Surety; and perhaps, the sanctification of our souls by the power of the Holy Spirit,

VOL. II.—No. 11.

like purifying fire consuming our carnal and corrupt affections. The visible displays also of the divine glory still continued, or were renewed after some intermission; or perhaps were sensibly augmented. But as it is probable, that the people expected these tokens of the Lord's acceptance, the awful sight did not terrify them, but only disposed them to the most reverential adoration, united with reiterated praises of his goodness and mercy that endure for ever.

V. 4—10. (Notes, 1 Kings viii. 63—66. Marg. Ref.)

E N

k Prb. xxviii. 13
Is. lv. 6, 7. Ez.
xviii. 27—30.
1 vi. 39.

m Ps. lx. 2. Jer.
viii. 22. xxxiii.
6. ii. 9.

n vi. 20. 40. Deu.
xi. 12. Ps. lxxv.
2. 1 Pet. iii. 12

o Heb. of this place. vi. 40.

p vi. 6. 38. xxxiii.
4. 7. 1 Kings ix.
3. 2 Kings xxi.

q 4. 7. 8.
r Matt. iii. 17.
John ii. 19—21.
Col. ii. 9.

s Deu. xxviii. 1.
&c. 1 Kings ii.
3. iii. 14. viii.
25. xi. 38. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 9. Zech.
iii. 7.

t Deu. iv. 40. Ps.
cv. 45. Ez.
xxvi. 27. John
xiv. 21

u 2 Sam. vii. 13—16.

v Ps. lxxxix. 28—
40. cxxxii. 11, 12.

w Heb. be cut off to thee. vi. 16.

x Lev. xxvi. 14.
&c. Deu. xxviii.
15. &c. 1 Sam.
xii. 25. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 9.

y Deu. iv. 23—27.
Josh. xxiii. 15.
16. 1 Kings ix.
6, 7. xi. 4—8

z 2 Kings xvii. 20.
Ps. lli. 5. Jer.
xii. 17. xviii. 7.
xxxi. 28. Jude 12.

aa Deu. xxviii. 37.
1 Kings ix. 7.
Neh. iv. 1—4.
Ps. xlv. 14. Jer.
xxiv. 9. Lam.
ii. 15, 16.

ab xxix. 8. Jer.
xix. 8. xlix. 17.
1. 13.

and pray; and seek my face, and ^k turn from their wicked ways; then ^l will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will ^m heal their land.

15 Now ⁿ mine eyes shall be open, and mine ears attent unto the prayer ^{* that is made} in this place.

16 For now ^o have I chosen and sanctified this house, that my name may be there for ever: and ^p mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually.

17 And as for thee, ^q if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and shalt ^r observe my statutes and my judgments;

18 ^s Then will I stablish the throne of thy kingdom, according ^t as I have covenanted with David thy father, saying, There shall not ^u fail thee a man to be ruler in Israel.

19 But ^v if ye turn away, and forsake my statutes and my commandments, which I have set before you, and ^w shall go and serve other gods, and worship them;

20 Then ^x will I pluck them up by the roots out of my land which I have given them: and this house, which I have sanctified for my name, will I cast out of my sight, and will make it ^z to be a proverb and a by-word among all nations.

21 And this house, which is high, shall be an astonishment to every one that passeth by it; so that he shall say, ^b Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and unto this house?

22 And it shall be answered, ^c Because they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on other gods, and worshipped them, and served them: ^d therefore hath he brought all this evil upon them.

CHAP. VIII.

The cities built by Solomon, 1—6. The remnant of the devoted nations are subjected to tribute; and the Israelites employed in honourable services, 7—10. Pharaoh's daughter removes to her house, 11. Solomon's daily and festival sacrifices, 12, 13. He appoints the priests and Levites to their services in order, 14, 15. The work finished, 16. Solomon's navy brings gold from Ophir, 17.

AND it came to pass ^a at the end of twenty years, wherein Solomon had built the house of the LORD, and his own house,

2 That ^b the cities which Hiram had restored to Solomon, Solomon built them, and caused the children of Israel to dwell there.

3 And Solomon went to ^c Hamath-zobah, and prevailed against it.

b Deut. xxix. 24
—38. 1 Kings ix.
8, 9. Jer. v. 19.
xlii. 22. xvi. 10
—12. xxi. 8, 9.
28

c Judg. ii. 12, 13.
Jer. ii. 13. Lam.
ii. 16, 17. iv. 13
—15. Ez. xxxvi.
17—20.

d xxxvi. 17. Dan.
ix. 12.

B. C. 992. a 1 Kings ix. 10.

b 1 Kings ix. 11—13.

c Num. xlii. 24.
xxxiv. 8. 2 Sam.
viii. 3. 1 Kings
xi. 23. 1 Chr.
xviii. 3

V. 11—22. (Notes, 1 Kings ix. 1—9. Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The mercies of God to sinners are communicated in a manner suited to impress all who receive them with the most profound reverence of his majesty, justice, and holiness: thus leading them to unite humble confidence with fear of offending so holy a God. So that whoever beholds with true faith the divine Saviour agonizing and dying for man's sin, will by that view find his godly sorrow enlarged, his hatred of sin increased, his soul made more watchful, and his life more holy: and they are mere speculating hypocrites, who profess to expect salvation by the cross of Christ, whilst the world has their hearts, and sin is allowed in their habitual conduct. The Lord's ready answers to our prayers should animate us to repeat, with deeper reverence and livelier gratitude, our praises of his mercy.—The most endearing displays of the love of God, rightly understood, speak terror to hypocrites and presumptuous offenders: but the most tremendous discoveries of his righteous vengeance need not discourage the upright humble believer. Every token of his favour should enlarge our hearts in his service: and they who are inspired with zeal for his glory, and taste the joy of his salvation, will never think too much time or expense can be bestowed in communion with him and his saints, provided other duties be not neglected. In the best state of nations, favoured with revelation, there hath hitherto been a succession of prosperity, ingratitude, corrections, repentance, forgiveness, renewed mercies, prosperity, &c. Yet the Lord delights in those places where his ordinances are maintained and attended on, in some measure of purity and consistency. But in case of apostacy, or general profaneness, or hypocrisy, he will glorify his justice upon those who have thus abused his mercies and so forfeited their privileges. Let us then stand in awe of him, and watch against all sin; and copy the examples of the most approved of his saints, in the brightest parts of their characters.

d 1 Kings ix. 17
-19.

4 And ^d he built Tadmor in the wilderness, and all the store cities, which he built in Hamath.

e Josh. xvi. 3. 5.
1 Chr. vii. 24.

5 Also he built ^e Beth-horon the upper, and Beth-horon the nether, fenced cities, with walls, gates, and bars;

f Josh. xviii. 14.
2 Sam. vi. 2.
1 Chr. xiii. 6.
1 Kings ix. 19.
14. 1 Kings x.
26.

* Heb. all the desire of Solomon which he desired to build. 1 Kings ix. 19. Ec. ii. 10.

6 And ^f Baalath, and all ^g the store-cities that Solomon had, and all the chariot-cities, and the cities of the horse-men, and ^{*} all that Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and throughout all the land of his dominion.

1 Kings ix. 20
-22.

k Gen. xv. 19-
21. Deut. vii. 1.

7 ¶ As for ⁱ all the people that were left of ^k the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which were not of Israel,

1 Judg. i. 21-36.
Ps. cvi. 34.

m ii. 17. 1 Kings
v. 13, 14.

8 But of their children who were left after them in the land, ^l whom the children of Israel consumed not, them did Solomon make ^m to pay tribute until this day.

n Ex. xix. 5, 6.
Gal. iv. 26. 31.

9 But ⁿ of the children of Israel did Solomon make no servants for his work: but ^o they were men of war and chief of his captains, and captains of his chariots and horsemen.

o 1 Sam. viii. 11, 12.

10 And these were the chief of king Solomon's officers, even ^p two hundred and fifty, that bare rule over the people.

p ii. 18. 1 Kings
v. 16. ix. 23.

q 1 Kings iii. 1.
vii. 8. ix. 24.

11 ¶ And Solomon ^q brought up the daughter of Pharaoh out of the city of David, unto the house that he had built for her: for he said, My wife shall not dwell in the house of David king of Israel, because the places are [†] holy whereunto the ark of the LORD hath come.

i Heb. holiness.
Ex. iii. 5. xxix.
33. 2 Pet. i. 18.

12 ¶ Then Solomon offered burnt-offerings unto the LORD, ^r on the altar ^r iv. 1. of the LORD, which he had built before the porch;

13 Even after a certain rate ^s every day, offering according to the commandment of Moses, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts, ^t three times in the year, even in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles.

s Ex. xxix. 38-42. Lev. xxviii. Num. xxviii. xxix. Ez. xlv. 17. xlv. 3-15.

t Ex. xxiii. 14. Deut. xvi. 16. 1 Kings ix. 25.

14 And he appointed, according to the order of David his father, ^u the courses of the priests to their service, and ^x the Levites to their charges, to praise and minister before the priests, as the duty of every day required: the porters also by their courses at every ^y gate: for ^z so ^z had David ^a the man of God commanded.

u 1 Chr. xxiv. 1-19.
x 1 Chr. vi. 31, 32, &c. xv. 16-22. xvi. 4-6. 42 xxiii. xxiv. 20-31. xxv.

y xxvi. 1 Heb. so was the commandment of David.

15 And they departed not from the commandment of the king unto the priests and Levites concerning any matter, or concerning ^b the treasures.

z 2 Sam. xxviii. 2. 1 Chr. xxviii. 19. Acts xiii. 22. 36.

a Deut. xxxiii. 1. 1 Kings xiii. 1.

16 Now ^c all the work of Solomon was prepared unto the day of the foundation of the house of the LORD, and until it was finished. So the house of the LORD was perfected.

b 1 Kings vii. 51. 1 Chr. ix. 29. xxvi. 20-25.

c 1 Kings v. 18. vi. 7.

17 ¶ Then went Solomon to ^d Ezion-geber, and to ^e Elath, at the sea-side in the land of Edom.

d xx. 36. 1 Kings ix. 26.
e Deut. ii. 8. 2 Kings xiv. 22. xvi. 6. Elath.

18 And ^f Hiram sent him by the hands of his servants, ships, and servants that had knowledge of the sea; and they went with the servants of Solomon to Ophir, and took thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought them to king Solomon.

f ix. 10-13. 1 Kings ix. 27. 28. x. 22.

NOTES.

CHAP. VIII. V. 1-3. Perhaps Hamath-zobah had revolted: but Solomon regained possession of it. (Notes, 1 Kings ix. 1, 2. 11-14. xi. 23-25.)

V. 4-9. Notes, 1 Kings ix. 13-22.

V. 10. (Marg. Ref.) Three hundred overseers, omitted in one place, are added in another of the places referred to.

V. 11. Pharaoh's daughter is supposed to have been a proselyte to the true religion: but she was of heathen extraction, and perhaps attended by many who were not proselyted. If there were no open idolatry or profaneness in her court, there might be many things inconsistent with spiritual religion; and Solomon did not think it right that she should reside where the ark had been situated, and so near the continual temple worship. Perhaps he wanted resolution entirely to suppress all that he did not entirely approve.

V. 14, 15. Solomon exactly adhered to all David's regulations: not only because he was his father; but because he was a man of God, and acted by his authority in forming them.

V. 16. (Note, 1 Kings v. 7.)

V. 18. Ships, &c. The materials perhaps were ready prepared, and the workmen sent, that the ships might be constructed at the Red sea; for vessels could not sail from Tyre to Ezion-geber, or Elath.—(Note, 2 Kings ix. 26-28.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Some difficulty or conflict must be expected in every state on earth: but they whom the Lord loveth will prevail;

CHAP. IX.

The queen of Sheba's visit to Solomon ; her admiration of his wisdom and magnificence, her presents and return, 1—12. Solomon's annual revenue in gold, 13, 14. His golden shields and targets, 15, 16. His ivory throne, and rich vessels of gold, 17—22. The honour paid him by other kings, 23, 24. His stalls, horses, and chariots, 25. The extent and wealth of his dominions, 26—28. He dies, and is succeeded by Rehoboam, 29—31.

AND ^a when the queen of ^b Sheba heard of ^c the fame of Solomon, ^d she came to prove Solomon with hard questions at Jerusalem, with a very great company, and ^e camels that bare ^f spices, and gold in abundance, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, ^g she communed with him of all that was in her heart.

2 And Solomon ^h told her all her questions: and ⁱ there was nothing hid from Solomon which he told her not.

3 And when the queen of Sheba had seen the wisdom of Solomon, and the house that he had built,

4 And ^m the meat of his table; and ⁿ the sitting of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, and their apparel; his ^{*} cup-bearers also, and their apparel; and ^o his ascent by which he went up into the house of the LORD; ^p there was no more spirit in her.

5 And she said to the king, It was a true [†] report which I heard in mine own land of thine [‡] acts and of thy wisdom:

6 Howbeit ^q I believed not their words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it: and, behold, ^r the one half of the greatness of thy wisdom was not told me: for thou ^s exceedest the fame that I heard.

7 Happy are thy men, and happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and hear thy wisdom.

8 ^u Blessed be the LORD thy God, ^x which delighted in thee to set thee on his throne, to be king for the LORD thy God: ^y because thy God loved Israel, to establish them for ever, therefore made he thee king over them, ^z to do judgment and justice.

9 And ^a she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold, and ^b of spices great abundance, and precious stones: neither was there any such spice, as the queen of Sheba gave king Solomon.

and in heaven their peace will be perfect and eternal.—We shall never be satisfied with our possessions, enjoyments, or achievements, except we limit our desires by the precept and providence of God: yet he indulges his people in things indifferent, as far as is consistent with their real good.—His service is perfect liberty, all else is bondage: but if we poor condemned criminals and strangers be brought nigh, pardoned, and employed by our merciful Lord, we shall surely render him our tribute of praise and grateful obedience, though the lowest and most laborious service in his house be allotted to us.—It is hard to keep up a proper distinction betwixt things sacred and common in the palaces of the great, or in the courts of kings: and it sometimes requires more wisdom and resolution to govern a large family in the fear of God, without conniving at abuses, than it does to govern a large kingdom, with reputation, and in prosperity: and the difficulty is increased, when by any means a man hath got a hinderance instead of a helper in the wife of his bosom. But the truths, worship, and honour of God should be nearer our hearts than any relative comforts: and we ought to offend or grieve any one, rather than disobey God and grieve his people, by allowing his ordinances to be profaned. In all things, which are expressly directed in scripture, our religious diligence should be exactly regulated by it: every part of the Lord's service should be attended to, in due succession, order, and proportion; and then we shall not find any vacant time lie heavy upon our hands. In beginning and conducting every undertaking, we should keep the end in view: and from our entrance upon life we should look forward, and be preparing for the close of it; that then we may have peace, and a happy entrance into a better state. Nor should we allow ourselves in any pursuit or indulgence, which interferes with that grand object. Thus "known unto the Lord are all his works from the beginning of the world:" every thing respecting his spiritual temple was planned and determined before he began to work; and "his counsel shall stand, and he will do all his pleasure." As men risk much, and undergo great hardship, in obtaining an earthly treasure: may we remember how much better wisdom is than gold; and leaving the children of this world to scramble for the toys of this world; may we, as the children of God, lay up our treasure in heaven, that where our treasure is there our hearts also may be!

NOTES.

CHAP. IX. V. 8. The throne on which Solomon reigned, was the throne of God: for he was God's vicergerent, and thus "king for the LORD his God," to promote his glory and support religion. (Notes, 1 Kings x.)

m 1 Kings iv. 22, 23. Prov ix. 5. John vi. 53—57. n 1 Kings x. 5. Luke xii. 37. Rev. iii. 20. * Or, butlers. Neh i. 11. o xxiii. 13. 2 Kings xvi. 18. 1 Chr ix. 18. Ez. xlv. 3 xlv. 2. p Ps. cxix. 81. cxliii. 7. Cant. v. 8. Dan. x. 17. Rev. i. 17. † Heb. word. 1 Kings x. 6. ‡ Or, sayings. q John x. 25. 1 Chr. x. 25. r 1 Kings x. 7. Ps. xxxi. 19. Zech. ix. 17. 1 Cor. ii. 9. 1 John iii. 2. s 5. 1 Kings iv. 31. 34. Cant. v. 9—15. t Deut. xxxiii. 29. 1 Kings x. 8. Ps. xxxvii. 4. lxxxiv. 10—12. Prov. iii. 13, 14. viii. 34. x. 21. xliii. 20. Luke x. 39. —42. xi. 28. u 1 Kings x. 9. 1 Chr. xxix. 10. 20. Ps. lxxii. 18. 19. 2 Cor. ix. 12—15. x 2 Sam. xv. 25. 26. Ps. xviii. 19. xxv. 8. Is. xlii. 1. xlii. 4. y ii. 11. Deut. vii. 8. 1 Chr. xxii. 22. z 2 Sam. viii. 15. xxii. 3. Ps. lxxii. 2. xlix. 4. Is. ix. 7. xi. 1—5. xxxii. 1, 2. Jer. xxxiii. 15. 16. Heb. i. 8, 9. a 14. 1 Kings ix. 14. x. 10. b 1 Gen. xliii. 11. Ex. xxx. 34.

viii 13.
1 Kings x. 11.
12. almug-trees.
* Or, stays. Heb. high-ways.
1 Chr. xxiii. 5.
xxv. 1. Ps. xcii.
1—3. cl. 3—5.
1 Kings x. 13.
Ps. xx. 4. Eph. iii. 20.

10 And the servants also of Huram, and the servants of Solomon, ^d which brought gold from Ophir, brought ^d al-gum-trees, and precious stones.

* Or, stays. Heb. high-ways.
1 Chr. xxiii. 5.
xxv. 1. Ps. xcii.
1—3. cl. 3—5.
1 Kings x. 13.
Ps. xx. 4. Eph. iii. 20.

11 And the king made of the al-gum-trees * terraces to the house of the LORD, and to the king's palace, and ^e harps, and psalteries for singers: and there were none such seen before in the land of Judah.

1 Kings x. 13.
Ps. xx. 4. Eph. iii. 20.

12 And king Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba, ^f all her desire, whatso-ever she asked, besides that which she had brought unto the king. So she turned, and went away to her own land, she and her servants.

1 Kings x. 14.
Ps. lxviii.
29. xxii. 10. 15.

13 ¶ Now ^g the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year, was six hundred and threescore and six talents of gold;

* Or, captains.
xii. 9. 10.
1 Kings x. 16.

14 Beside that which chapmen and merchants brought. And all the kings of Arabia, and ^h governors of the coun-try brought gold and silver to Solomon.

xii. 9. 10.
1 Kings x. 16.

15 And king Solomon made ⁱ two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hun-dred shekels of beaten gold went to one target.

1 Kings vii. 2.

16 And three hundred shields made he of beaten gold: three hundred she-kels of gold went to one shield. And the king put them ^j in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

1 Kings x. 18—
20. Ps. xlv. 6.
Rev. xx. 11.

17 Moreover the king made ^k a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold.

1 Heb. hands.
Gen. xlix. 1.
10. Num. xxvii.
24. xxiv. 9.
Rev. v. 5.
Matt. xix. 28.
Rev. xxi. 12.

18 And there were six steps to the throne, with a foot-stool of gold, which were fastened to the throne, and ^l stays on each side of the sitting place, and ^m two lions standing by the stays:

1 Kings x. 21.
Ezth. i. 7. Dan. 2. 3.

19 And ⁿ twelve lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps. There was not the like made in any kingdom.

1 Kings x. 21.
Ezth. i. 7. Dan. 2. 3.

20 And all ^o the drinking vessels of king Solomon were of gold; and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of ^p pure gold: || none were of silver; it was not any thing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

1 Kings x. 22.
xxii. 48. Thar-shish.
* Or, elephant teeth. Amos i. 15.
1. 12. 1 Kings iii. 12. 13. iv. 30. 31. x. 21. 24. Ps. lxxxix. 27. Col. ii. 2. 3.

21 For the king's ships went to ^q Tar-shish with the servants of H^ruram: every three years once came the ships of Tar-shish bringing gold, and silver, * ivory, and apes, and ^r peacocks.

22 ¶ And king Solomon ^s passed all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom.

1 Kings iv. 31.
Is. xi. 2. 10.
1 Kings iii. 28.
Prov. ii. 6. Dan. i. 17. ii. 21—23. v. 11. Luke xxi. 15.
9. 1 Sam x. 27. Job xlii. 11.

23 And all the kings of the earth ^t sought the presence of Solomon, to hear his wisdom, that ^u God had put in his heart.

24 And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and raiment, harness, and spices, horses and mules, a rate year by year.

25 And Solomon had ^v four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen; whom he bestowed in the chariot-cities, and with the king at Jerusalem.

x 1 Kings iv. 21.
24. Ps. lxxxii. 9.
—11. Dan. vii. 14. Rev. xix. 16.
† Euphrates. Gen. xv. 18. Ex. xxiii. 31. Josh. xiii. 2—7.
y i. 15. 1 Kings x. 27. Job xxii. 24, 25.
† Heb. gave.

26 And he ^x reigned over all the kings, from [†] the river even unto the land of the Philistines, and to the border of Egypt.

27 And ^y the king [‡] made silver in Jerusalem as stones, and cedar-trees made he as the sycamore-trees that are in the low plains in abundance.

28 And they ^z brought unto Solomon horses out of Egypt, and out of all lands.

29 ¶ Now ^a the rest of the acts of Solomon, first and last, are they not written in the [§] book of ^b Nathan the prophet, and in the prophecy of ^c Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the vision of ^d Iddo the seer, against Jeroboam the son of Nebat?

30 And ^e Solomon reigned in Jerusa-lem over all Israel forty years.

31 And Solomon slept with his fa-thers, and he was buried in the city of David his father: and Rehoboam his son reigned in his stead.

V. 21. The imports here mentioned indicate, that prosper-ity had enervated the minds of Solomon and his subjects, and led them to love things curious and uncommon, though useless in themselves: and indeed the East-india trade hath rendered every nation luxurious and self-indulgent, which hath prospered in it, from the beginning to this day.

V. 29—31. Solomon's apostacy and idolatry are not at all hinted at in this narration: and this forms a cogent

CHAP. X.

The Israelites, at Shechem, make Rehoboam king; and with Jeroboam require him to lighten their yoke, 1—5. Rehoboam, rejecting the advice of his father's counsellors, and consulting with the young men, answers very roughly, 6—15. The ten tribes revolt, kill Hadoram, and drive away Rehoboam, 16—19.

a 1 Kings xii. 1.
1 Chr. iii. 10.
Matt. i. 7. Rehoboam.
b Gen. xii. 6.
Shechem. Josh. xxiv. 1. Judg. ix. 1. c 1 Chr. xii. 38.
d 1 Kings xi. 40. xii. 2.

e 1 Sam. viii. 11.—18. 1 Kings xii. 4. Matt. xi. 29, 30.

f 1 Kings xii. 5. Prov. iii. 28.

g Job. xii. 12, 13. xxxii. 7. Prov. xxvii. 10. Jer. xlii. 2—5.

argument, that, being repented of and forgiven, they would never be remembered against him to his condemnation; though they were in one place recorded for a warning to others in all future ages.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

In proportion as we possess true wisdom, we shall perceive its excellency, and labour to attain an increase of it: and in the same proportion we shall become more indifferent about worldly wealth, and more liberal in our use of it to good purposes, if God hath bestowed it upon us. For true wisdom and happiness are inseparably connected; but no such alliance is formed between riches and the enjoyment even of this present life. It is therefore far more desirable to be connected with those who can teach us wisdom, than with those that can give us wealth; let us then acquaint ourselves with the divine Saviour, that becoming his disciples and servants, we may find rest for our souls; and we shall in that case see more glory, ex-saying, ^h What counsel give ye me to return answer to this people? ^h 2 Sam. xvi. 20.

7 And they spake unto him, saying, ⁱ If thou be kind to this people, and please them, and ^k speak good words to them, they will be thy servants for ever. ⁱ 1 Kings xii. 7. ⁸ Prov. xv. 1. ^k Gen. xlix. 21. ² Sam. xv. 2—6.

8 But ^l he forsook the counsel which the old men gave him, and took counsel with the young men that were brought up with him, that stood before him. ^l xxv. 15, 16. ⁹ Prov. i. 25. ix. 9. xix. 20. xxv. 12. Ec. x. 2, 3. 16.

9 And he said unto them, ^m What advice give ye that we may return answer to this people, which have spoken to me, saying, Ease somewhat the yoke that thy father did put upon us? ^m 2 Sam. xvii. 5. ⁶ 1 Kings xxii. 6—8.

10 And the young men that were brought up with him spake unto him, saying, ⁿ Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it somewhat lighter for us: thus shalt thou say unto them, ^o My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins. ⁿ 2 Sam. xvii. 7—13. ^o 1 Kings xii. 10. ¹¹ Prov. x. 14. ^{xiii} 16. xiv. 16. ^{xviii} 6. ⁷ xxviii. 25. xxix. 23.

11 For whereas ^p my father * put a heavy yoke upon you, ^q I will put more to your yoke: my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions. ^p 4. ^q Heb. laded. ^r Ex. i. 13, 14. v. 5—9. ¹⁸ 1. ^s Sam. viii. 18. Is. xlvii. 6. lviii. 6. ^{Jer} xxviii. 13. ¹⁴ Matt. xi. 29. ^r Ez. ii. 6. Luke x. 19. Rev. ix. 3. 5. 10.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king bade, saying, ^s Come again to me on the third day. ^s 5. 1 Kings xli. 12—15. ^t Gen. xlii. 7. 30. ^{Ex} x. 28. ¹ Sam. xxv. 10. ¹¹ 1 Kings xx. 6—11. ^{Prov} xv. 1.

13 And the king ^t answered them perience more pleasure, and appropriate more riches, than our hearts can previously conceive. He will do for us exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think; and the meanest of his servants will be great above all the ungodly princes of the earth: nor can they be separated from him; though, whilst present with the body they are absent from the Lord, as to the full enjoyment of his presence and communion with him. Next to this, let us value the acquaintance of those who love and serve him, that we may hear the wisdom that God hath put into their hearts: and let us follow them as far as they follow Christ, but no further, whatever may be their reputation in the church. —Seeing God buries in the depth of the sea the sins of his believing servants, we should be tender of their reputations, as well as careful to avoid their mistakes and falls. As to worldly grandeur, what is it, that we should covet it? Neither authority, wealth, magnificence, nor reputation for wisdom, can ward off, or prepare us for, the stroke of death. But thanks be to God, who giveth victory to the true believer, even over this dreaded enemy, through Jesus Christ our Lord!

roughly; and king Rehoboam forsook the counsel of the old men, u xxii. 4. Prov.

xii. 5. Dan vi. 7.
x. Prov. xvii. 14.
Ec. ii. 19 vii. 8.
x. 16. Jam. iii.
14-18. iv. 1, 2.

14 And answered them after ^u the advice of the young men, saying, * My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add thereto: my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

y xxv. 16-20
Deut. ii. 30.
Judg. xiv. 4.
1 Sam. ii. 25.
1 Kings xxii. 25.
Acts ii. 23. iv.
28. z 1 Kings xi. 29-39.
a ix. 29.

15 So the king hearkened not unto the people: for ^y the cause was of God, ^z that the LORD might perform his word, which he spake by the hand of ^a Abijah the Shilonite, to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

b 2 Sam. xx. 1.
1 Kings xii. 16, 17.
c 1 Sam. xxii. 7.

16 ¶ And when all Israel saw that the king would not hearken unto them, the people answered the king, saying, ^b What portion have we in David? and ^c we have none inheritance in ^e the son of Jesse: every man to your tents, O Israel: and now, ^d David, see to thine own house. ^e So all Israel went to their tents.

d 2 Sam. vii. 15, 16. 1 Kings xi. 13. 35-39. Ps. ii. 1-6. lxxvi. 10 lxxix. 29-37. cxxxii. 17.
e Luke xix. 14, 27.
f Judg. viii. 35 2 Sam. xv. 13. xvi. 11. John vi. 66. vii. 53.

17 But as for the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

g 1 Kings iv. 6 v. 14. Adoram. xii. 18. Adoram.

18 Then king Rehoboam sent ^f Hadoram, that ^{was} over the tribute; and ^g the children of Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. But king Rehoh xxiv. 21. Acts vii. 57, 58.

boam * made speed to get him up to his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

* Heb. strengthened himself;

19 And ^a Israel rebelled against the house of David ⁱ unto this day.

h 1 Kings xii. 19. i Kings xvii. 21-23.
i v. 9.

CHAP. XI.

Rehoboam, preparing to reduce Israel, is forbidden by the prophet Shemaiah, 1-4. He builds and fortifies several cities, 5-12. The priests and Levites, being cast off by Jeroboam, resort to Jerusalem, attended by other pious Israelites, 13-17. Rehoboam's wives and children, 18-23.

AND ^a when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered of the house of Judah and Benjamin ^b an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against Israel, that he might bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam.

a 1 Kings xii. 21-24.

2 But the word of the LORD came ^c to Shemaiah ^d the man of God, saying, e xii. 7. 15. d viii. 14. 1 Sam. ii. 27. 1 Tim. vi. 11. e Gen. xii. 8. 2 Sam. ii. 26. Acts vii. 26. 1 Cor. vi. 5-8. Heb. xiii. 1. 1 Pet. iii. 8. 1 John iii. 11-13.

3 Speak unto Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, saying,

4 Thus saith the LORD, Ye shall not go up nor fight ^e against your brethren:

NOTES.

CHAP. X. V. 1-19. (Notes, 1 Kings xii. 1-19.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The wisest of mere men in some things act imprudently, especially when by sin they provoke God to leave them to themselves: nay, the most equitable princes may be betrayed into partial, oppressive, or unwarrantable measures; and this is the general consequence of being drawn, by their favourites or their passions, into lavish expenses. Thus, some cause of complaint will exist in every kingdom, of which turbulent and ambitious men will avail themselves. For whilst we all need so many allowances for ourselves, we are all naturally indisposed to make allowances for others. Indeed very many would be dissatisfied, even if God were to place over them perfectly wise and righteous governors: for do they murmur against his most righteous dispensations? do they not regard his holy law as a heavy yoke, a grievous servitude? and are not they ungrateful for his manifold goodness? Nay, the very kingdom of the Prince of peace, though his throne is established in mercy, doth not give satisfaction: numbers "will not have him to reign over them:" numbers neglect his service because they think him an austere Lord; numbers renounce their professed subjection to him; and prefer the yoke of sin and Satan; and, alas! the impatience, the negligence, the reluctance to his professed service, which most christians discover, evince that they want somewhat to be eased even of his yoke. Yet his wisdom, righteousness, truth, goodness, and mercy, are infinite; "his yoke is easy, and his burden light;" and the whole blame of our uneasiness rests upon ourselves alone. This reflection should teach us to abhor ourselves, and to pray continually, "turn thou me, and so shall I be turned." And being so culpable ourselves, we should learn to bear with the perverseness of others, and to prefer lenient to violent measures. But nothing manifests greater folly than affronting menacing language, when united with indecision and weakness in perilous circumstances. No man can bequeath his prosperity, any more than his wisdom, to his heirs; though our children will generally be affected by our conduct. Let us then seek those good things, which will be our own for ever; and implore the blessing of God upon our posterity, in preference to wealth, or worldly exaltation: let us lay our account with vicissitudes and vexations on earth, and with fickleness and ingratitude from man: and let us learn to depend on the power, faithfulness, and love of that God, who, in correcting his children, or punishing his enemies, will never fail of performing his largest promises to those who trust in him.

f x. 16. 1 Kings f
xxii 36
g x. 15. Gen l. 20.
1 Kings xi 29—
38. Hos. viii. 4. h
b xxv. 7—10.
xxviii. 9—15.
return every man to his house;
g for this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the words of the LORD, and returned from going against Jeroboam.

5 ¶ And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and ⁱ built cities for defence in Judah.

6 He built even ^k Beth-lehem, and 1 Judg. xv. 8.
l Chr. iv. 32.
m xx. 20. Jer.
vi. 1.
n Josh. xv. 58.
o Josh. xv. 35.
p Adullam,
q Mic. i. 15.
r Cor. xviii. 1.
s 1 Sam. xxiii. 5.
t Josh. x. 5. 11.
u Josh. 35. 39.

7 And ^b Beth-zur, and ^c Shoco, and
p Adullam,

8 And ^d Gath, and ^e Mareshah, and
r Josh. xv. 44.
s 1 Sam. xxiii. 5.
t Josh. x. 5. 11.
u Josh. 35. 39.

9 And Adoraim, and ^f Lachish, and Azekah,

10 And ^g Zorah, and Aijalon, and
v Josh. xv. 33.
Zorah. xix. 41.
42. Aijalon.
x Gen. xxiii. 2.
Josh. xiv. 14.

11 And he fortified the strong-holds, and put ^y captains in them, and store of victual, and of oil and wine.

12 And in every several city he put shields and spears, and made them exceeding strong, having Judah and Benjamin on his side.

13 ¶ And the priests and the Levites that were in all Israel * resorted to him out of all their coasts.

* Heb. presented themselves to him.

14 For the Levites left ^z their suburbs and their possession, and came to Judah and Jerusalem: for ^a Jeroboam and his sons had cast them off from executing the priest's office unto the LORD.

15 And he ordained him priests for the high places, and ^b for the devils, and c for the calves which he had made.

16 And ^d after them out of all the tribes of Israel, such as ^e set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel, came to Jerusalem, ^f to sacrifice unto the LORD
God of their fathers.

17 So they ^g strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam the son of Solomon strong three years: for three years ^h they walked in the way of David and Solomon

z Num. xxx. 9
—5 Josh. xxi.
20. &c. 1 Chr.
vi. 66—81
a xiii. 9. 1 Kings
xii. 28—38. xiii.
38.

b Lev. xvii. 7.
Deut. xxxii. 17.
1 Cor. x. 20, 21.
1 Tim. iv. 1.
Rev. xvi. 14.
c Ex. xxxii. 4—8.
31. 1 Kings xii. 28
xiv. 6. Hos. viii.
5, 6. xiii. 2.
d xv. 9. xxx. 11.
18, 19. Josh.
xxii. 19.
e 1 Sam. vii. 3, 4.
1 Chr. xxii. 19.
Ps. cviii. 1. Acts
xi. 23.
f 1 Chr. xvi. 29.
g xii. 1.
B. C. 971.

h i. 1—12 vii. 15.
—19. viii. 12—
16. Hos. vi. 4.
Mat. xiii. 20, 21.

NOTES.

CHAP. XI. V. 1—4. (Notes, 1 Kings xii. 21—24.)

V. 5—12. Though the Lord did not permit Rehoboam to wage war against the newly erected kingdom of Israel:
yet it was allowable and prudent for him to take all proper measures for the defence of his remaining dominions: this he did by repairing and fortifying several cities, to obstruct the entrance, or retard the progress of Jeroboam and his troops, in case he should attempt an invasion. Perhaps he was become weary of his young counsellors, and disposed to hearken to more sage advisers; and his remaining subjects were very hearty and united in his interests.

V. 13—17. When Jeroboam had established the worship of the golden calves, and prevented his subjects from going to Jerusalem; (Notes, &c. 1 Kings xii. 25—33.)
it is probable that all the priests and Levites unanimously protested against this idolatry; and were therefore laid aside, to make way for a more compliant priesthood. As Jeroboam established no other idolatry than that of the calves; the language here employed teaches us, that the worship paid to them was actually rendered to devils;
though he professed, and probably intended, by them to worship the God of Israel. For it was in a way which he had expressly prohibited, and which was infinitely dishonourable to him; and therefore it was only acceptable to Satan, and his detestable associates in rebellion. (Note, Lev. xvii. 3—7.) It is not certain whether Jeroboam had deprived the priests and Levites of their dues, to maintain his new priesthood: but it seems, that for the present they might have retained their cities, suburbs, and possessions, if they would have remained inactive; yet their situation, would have been extremely ensnaring and perilous, and it afforded them little or no prospect of usefulness. In the days of David and Solomon, they had become generally attached to the worship of God at the sanctuary, as well as to the royal family of Judah; and as a body, they seem to have been more pious and zealous, than at any other period: they therefore magnanimously determind with one consent to desert their cities and possessions, and entirely to leave the apostate Israelites, thus “shaking “off the very dust of their feet for a testimony against them.”

—Jeroboam probably was glad to be rid of them; but they were cordially welcomed by the king and people of Judah;
and doubtless were provided for among their brethren, whose emoluments must thus have been greatly reduced.
It is probable, that scarcely any either of the priests or Levites remained behind on this occasion, for we read nothing of them in the subsequent history of Israel: and this must be allowed to have been as noble a testimony for the cause of God, against apostates and idolaters, as any history hath recorded of a whole body of professed ministers. Along with them numbers of the pious Israelites left their estates, and came to unite with the tribes of Judah and Benjamin.
They might bring away with them many of their effects:
and as the land afforded room enough for them, their numbers and treasures greatly strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and rendered it almost equal in force to that of Israel.
But the chief advantage was, that nearly all the true religion of the nation was concentrated in that division of it. Accordingly for three years the kingdom of Judah was greatly strengthened; whilst the king and the people in general adhered to the worship of God, as in the days of David, and in the best times of Solomon: but afterwards matters took another turn. It is not probable that Solomon would have been thus joined with David, as the good pattern which Rehoboam and his subjects followed, if he had persevered and perished in his apostacy.

18 ¶ And Rehoboam took him Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the son of David, to wife, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the son of Jesse; persed of all his children throughout all the countries of Judah and Benjamin, unto every fenced city: and he gave them victual in abundance. And he desired * many wives. ^{r 11.}

1 Sam. xvi. 6
xvii. 13. 28.
1 Chr. ii. 13.
xxvii. 18. Ekkh.

19 Which bare him children; Jeush, and Shamariah, and Zaham.

* Heb. gullis
tude.

2 xlii. 2. Mi- chalah the daughter of Uriel.

1 1 Kings xv. 2.
Abshalom.
1 1 Kings xv. 1.
Abijah. Matt. i.
7. Abia.

20 And after her he took ^k Maachah the daughter of Absalom; which bare him ^m Abijah, and Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith.

21 And Rehoboam loved Maachah the daughter of Absalom above all his wives and his concubines: (for he took ⁿ eighteen wives, and threescore concubines; and begat twenty and eight sons, and threescore daughters.)

23. Deut. xvii.
17. 1 Kings xi. 3.
1 Chr. iii. 1—9.
Cant. vi. 8, 9.

22 And Rehoboam ^a made Abijah the son of Maachah the chief, to be ruler among his brethren: for he thought to make him king.

o Deut. xxi. 15—
17. 1 Chr. v. 1,
2. xxix. 1.

p x. 8—15. Luke
xvi. 8.
q xxi. 3. Gen.
xxv. 6. 1 Kings
i. 5, 6.

23 And ^p he dealt wisely, and ^a dis-

CHAP. XII.

Rehoboam, forsaking God, is punished by Shishak's invasion, 1—4. He, and his princes, being warned by Shemaiah, humble themselves; and though spoiled, are not destroyed, 6—12. Rehoboam's reign and death. Abijah succeeds him, 13—16.

AND it came to pass, ^a when Rehoboam had established the kingdom, and had strengthened himself, ^b he forsook the law of the LORD, and ^c all Israel with him.

a 14. xi. 1.
1 Kings xiv. 22
—24.
b xxvi. 13—16.
Deut. vii. 10—
12. viii. 10—14.
xxxii. 15. Jer.
ii. 31. Hos. xiii.
6—8.
c 1 Kings xii. 17.
Hos. v. 11. Mic.
vi. 16.

V. 18—21. Rehoboam imitated his father in multiplying wives, but not to the same enormous excess: and he does not appear to have married any heathen women. Absalom here mentioned seems to have been a Benjamite: for Gibeah belonged to the tribe of Benjamin. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 22, 23. Rehoboam acted from partial affection, and by his own authority, in advancing Abijah above his elder brethren: whereas God himself chose Solomon to be king in preference to David's other sons. It is probable, that Rehoboam's conduct gave umbrage to his other sons; and that he dispersed them, in the fenced cities, in honourable and affluent situations, to prevent their uniting against Abijah: but perhaps he also confided in them to retain these cities in their duty, and to defend them against the common enemy. Whatever was his motive, it was deemed good policy by his contemporaries.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

It is commonly more prudent to manage moderate possessions well, than to risk them by grasping at greater advantages: and when an egregious error has exposed us to some heavy loss, it is generally wisest to sit down by it, lest we be betrayed into still more fatal mistakes. It is in vain to contend with the purpose of God when he makes it known unto us: and as his word declares that none shall enjoy durable peace in the practice of wickedness, it is madness to expect it: yet by this rule of judgment, what a mad world do we live in!—Even they, who are destitute of true faith and grace, frequently pay some regard to the word of God, and for a time are restrained by it from actions to which they are inclined, and do many things disagreeable to them: and even this temporary faith and external obedience, are often recompensed with temporary and external advantages. In seasons of prevailing ungodliness and public disturbances, the ministers of religion will be exposed to peculiar trials; as they must either act contrary to their consciences, or expose themselves to great loss and peril. This is the time when God puts the sincerity of their faith and love to the proof: on these great occasions he peculiarly calls upon them to bear testimony to his truth, and to protest at all events, against enormous abuses by whomsoever patronized. As connivance and silence in such a case are very criminal; so, it is peculiarly honourable to God, and convincing to the consciences of men, when they readily renounce their secular interests, and stand up boldly for the cause of God, without regarding consequences: nor will such behaviour ever lose its reward.—It may be their duty to retire from such places as will not receive their testimony, where they can do no good, where their temptations are great, and where they may be exposed to still fiercer persecutions: and in that case no possessions or connexions ought to be regarded.—When the ministers and ordinances of God are driven from any place, it is time for them, “who set their hearts to seek the LORD,” to come out and be separate, that they may not be seduced to have fellowship with the worshippers and servants of Satan. Trials like these, serve to separate the chaff from the wheat; and indeed untried faith is not much to be depended on: but when we have been proved, and it appears that we are willing to renounce our worldly interests as far as called to it, for the sake of Christ and the Gospel, we have got one good evidence that we are truly his disciples. Those ministers should be welcomed and encouraged, who evidently prefer their work, with a good conscience, to their possessions; and if things were as they should be, their more affluent brethren would readily share their emoluments with them, if they saw them destitute. It is genuine policy for any kingdom to entertain such as are willing to leave their estates and native country, purely for conscience sake; for they will prove the strength and bulwark of the state;

2 And it came to pass, that, in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, ^d Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, ^e because they had transgressed against the LORD,

3 With ^f twelve hundred chariots, and threescore thousand horsemen: and the people were ^g without number that came with him out of Egypt; the ^h Lubims, the Sukkiims, and the ⁱ Ethiopians.

4 And he took ^k the fenced cities which pertained to Judah, and ^l came to Jerusalem.

5 Then came ^m Shemaiah the prophet to Rehoboam, and to the princes of Judah that were gathered together to Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said unto them, Thus saith the LORD, ⁿ Ye have forsaken me, and therefore have I also ^o left you in the hand of Shishak.

6 Whereupon the princes of Israel and the king ^p humbled themselves; and they said, ^q The LORD is righteous.

7 And when ^r the LORD saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, saying, They have humbled themselves; therefore I will not destroy them, but I will grant them ^s some deliverance; and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak.

8 Nevertheless ^t they shall be his servants; that ^u they may know my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries.

9 So ^v Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, and ^w took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he took all: he carried away also ^x the shields of gold which Solomon had made.

that gives them a comfortable asylum. But "Ichabod," the "glory is departed," may be written on that kingdom which drives them away, by superstitious or idolatrous impositions and persecutions. Nothing can injure us, whilst we keep close to the worship and service of God: but without true faith and grace, all apparent zeal and external profession at length will wither. Yet many deem themselves passing good, because they are circumstantially not so faulty, in the best part of their character, as some eminently godly persons were in the greatest blemishes of their lives! It is, indeed, well when they, who begin foolishly, grow wiser by experience: but, alas! that wisdom is of little value, which is engrossed by the care of secular interests, to the neglect of the immortal soul, through the indulgence of worldly lusts, and departing from the living God.

NOTES.

CHAP. XII. V. 1. Rehoboam's religion seems to have proceeded wholly from his fears of being given up into the hands of Jeroboam: when therefore he was become so strong that, as he supposed, he had nothing to apprehend from that quarter, he became openly irreligious and idolatrous. (Notes, 1 Kings xiv. 21—24.) And the leading men, and the bulk of the nation, so generally and openly renounced the worship of God at the temple, that it was adjudged a national apostacy. The ten tribes had before apostatized with Jeroboam; and when Rehoboam, with Judah and Benjamin, followed their example, "all Israel," as a nation, "had forsaken the law of the LORD:" and the pious remnant were a few exceptions to the general rule.

V. 2. It is probable that Shishak was of another family than Pharaoh, whose daughter Solomon had married; and was excited to this invasion by the reports of the immense treasures which that prince had collected at Jerusalem, the division in his dominions, and the weakness of Rehoboam's administration. But the Lord gave him power to execute his rapacious purposes; which he would not have done, if the people had not transgressed against him.

V. 4. It is likely, that several of Rehoboam's sons were slain, or taken captive, by Shishak, when he took the cities in which they governed.

V. 5, 6. Whilst the king and his nobles were consulting what measures to adopt in this dangerous extremity, and perhaps were about to surrender to the conqueror, the prophet in a few words reminded them, that Shishak's power over them was the effect of the Lord's righteous indignation, who was contending with them for their apostacy. The time and circumstances indeed of their affliction, evidently proclaimed this truth, yet they had not before attended to it: but this message had an immediate effect upon them; for they humbled themselves, and acknowledged the justice of God in their punishment. An external reformation, and a regard to the temple-worship during the remainder of Rehoboam's reign, were consequent to this humiliation; but it went no further, at least with him.

V. 7—9. It is probable, that Shishak had intended to give up the city to be plundered by his army: but God suddenly disposed him to greater moderation and clemency, than could possibly have been expected from such a man in his circumstances. So that he contented himself with emptying the treasures of the temple and of the king, and carrying away the golden shields which Solomon had made for magnificence rather than for use; and he did not proceed to rob the temple of its sacred vessels. Neither did he deprive the inhabitants of their private property; but perhaps he exacted a sum of money in token of their becoming his servants. He was, however, permitted thus far to prevail, that Rehoboam and his subjects might experience the different effects of keeping close to the worship of God, as in the prosperous days of David and Solomon; and of red 1 Kings xiv. 24

—26.

e Judg. ii. 13.
1 Chr. xxviii. 9.
Ps. cvi. 43, 44.
Jer. ii. 19.
f Judg. iv. 12.
2 Sam. x. 18.

g xiv. 9. Judg. vi.
h xvi. 8. Ez. xxx.
i Nah. iii. 9.
1 Gen. x. 6—8.

k xi. 5—12. Is.
xxvi. 1. Jer. v.
19.
l 2 Kings xviii. 17.
Is. viii. 8. x. 11

m xi. 2. 1 Kings
xii. 22.

n xv. 9. Deut.
xxviii. 15, &c.
Judg. x. 9—14.
1 Chr. xxviii. 9.
Jer. ii. 19. iv. 18.
v. 19. xxiii. 33.
o 2 Sam. xxiv. 14.
Ps. xxxvii. 33.

p xxviii. 26. xxxiii.
12. 19. 23. Ez. x.
3. Lev. xxvi. 40.
q 1 Kings viii. 37.
—39. Ps. lxxviii.
34, 35. Hos. v.
15. Jam. iv. 10.
r Ex. ix. 27. Job
xxxiii. 27. Rom.
x. 3.
s 1 Kings xxi. 28,
29. Jer. iii. 13.
Luke xv. 18—21.

* Or, a little while. 2 Kings
xiii. 4—7. 23.
Am. vi. 6—8.

s Is. xxvi. 13.
t Deut. xxxviii. 47,
48. Judg. iii. 1,
2. Jer. x. 24.
Hos. viii. 10.

u 1 Kings xiv. 25.
26.
x 1 Kings xv. 18.
2 Kings xvi. 6.
xxviii. 13, 16.

v ix. 15, 16.
1 Kings x. 17.

10 Instead of which king Rehoboam made ² shields of brass, and committed them to the hands of ^a the chief of the guard, that kept the entrance of the king's house.

11 And when the king entered into the house of the Lord, the guard came and fetched them, and brought them again into the guard-chamber.

12 And ^b when he humbled himself, the wrath of the Lord turned from him, that he would not destroy him altogether: and ^{*} also in Judah things went well.

13 So king Rehoboam strengthened himself in Jerusalem, and reigned: for Rehoboam was one and forty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, ^d the city which the Lord had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, ^e to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naamah, ^f an Ammonitess.

14 And he did evil, because ^g he [†] prepared not his heart ^h to seek the Lord.

15 Now the acts of Rehoboam, ⁱ first and last, are they not written in the ^j book of ^k Shemaiah the prophet, and of ^l Iddo the seer concerning genealogies? And there were ^m wars between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continually.

16 And Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David: and ⁿ Abijah his son reigned in his stead.

nouncing his service, and in consequence being reduced under the power of the conqueror and preserved from entire ruin, merely by his unexpected clemency on their unreserved submission. (Note, 1 Kings xii. 25—27.)

V. 12. Things went, &c. Or in Judah there were good things: that is, there were a number of true believers, spiritual worshippers, and servants of God, especially such as came out of Israel; for whose sake Rehoboam and the kingdom were spared: so that we read no more of Shishak, who, by one means or other, was kept from coming to exert any further tribute or services from them. (Notes, Gen. xxxii. 6—8. 23. xxxiii. 4.)

V. 13. The city, &c. It was a peculiar honour conferred on Rehoboam for his father's sake, and his greatest advantage, that he reigned in that city which the Lord had chosen for his temple and instituted worship; but it seems to be here mentioned as an aggravation of the guilt of his ungodliness.

V. 14. Rehoboam's religion was a reluctant formal service; his heart was not engaged, he never called upon all that was within him to praise the Lord: he neither desired, nor endeavoured after, that preparation of a humble, believing, and pious disposition of heart, which is requisite in order to worship God spiritually and with delight. Therefore he was easily drawn into open ungodliness and wickedness.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

It is a very common but most lamentable case, that men who in distress, or danger, or apparently near death, seem very much engaged in seeking God, often throw aside their religion when they have received a merciful deliverance. But the warning, "Sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee," deserves the most serious consideration of all who are tempted to such vile ingratitude. The Lord can soon arrest them by renewed afflictions, reduce them to still greater extremities, and bring trouble upon them from those quarters whence it was least expected. Ungodly prosperity serves only to increase vain confidence and to invite rapacity, without affording any real security; and, all methods of defence prove ineffectual, when an angry God "arises to that judgment which he hath commanded." —Every affliction has a voice, and delivers a message from the Lord; but sinners do not regard or understand: it is therefore a singular mercy when he sends them an interpreter, to explain the voice of his rod by that of his word: (Job xxxiii. 23.) Humiliation before God for sin, and cordial acknowledgments that he is just in all that he inflicts or threatens, are essential to true repentance: but this may be counterfeited both by word and deed. Yet, when there are merely external appearances of contrition, our merciful God will often grant respites, in order to encourage true penitents, by showing his readiness to forgive. This is especially the case in his dealings with sinful nations: for, a general external humiliation before God, under national judgments, is a good evidence that their iniquities are not yet full: and when there is a number of true believers among them, who are protected from oppression and persecution; the Lord will grant some deliverance, and his wrath shall not be poured out upon them as yet. Amidst all our abounding iniquity, impiety, and infidelity, these kingdoms seem hitherto to have been spared on these accounts: may he reform, and not destroy us! When the Lord is pleased to show mercy, he can dispose the hardest hearts to compassion, the most rapacious to moderation, or the most impious to fear profaning sacred things: for he rules the impetuous lusts of men as he does the raging ocean, saying, "Hitherto shalt thou go, and no further, and here shall thy proud waves be stayed." But his wrath may occasion many painful effects, when not poured out unto the uttermost. These are however often intended in mercy, and are of salutary tendency: for it is good to be convinced by any sufferings, short of eternal misery, that by forsaking the Lord we are cruel to ourselves: and that his service, which is but another name for liberty, peace, and felicity, cannot be renounced without our becoming the miserable slaves of the worst of tyrants and oppressors: and whenever the heart is truly humbled, the afflictions will be removed, or alleviated by divine consolations. Sin always debases those who commit it: it robs them of substantial blessings, and substitutes a mere empty worthless show of CHAP. XIII.

Abijah and Jeroboam, with vast preparations, make war against each other, 1—3. Abijah shows the right of his cause, 4—12. Judah, relying on God, gains a signal victory, with immense slaughter of the Israelites, 13—19. Jeroboam dies, 20. Abijah's wives and children, 21, 22.

a 1 Kings xv. 1, 2.

NOW ^a in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam began Abijah to reign over Judah.

2 He reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was ^b Michaiah the daughter of Uriel of ^c Gibeath. ^d And there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam.

3 And Abijah set ^e the battle in array with an army of valiant men of war, even ^e four hundred thousand chosen men: Jeroboam also set the battle in array against him, with ^f eight hundred thousand chosen men, being mighty men of valour.

4 ^g And Abijah stood up upon mount ^h Zemaraim, which is in mount Ephraim, and said, ⁱ Hear me, thou Jeroboam, and all Israel:

5 ^j Ought ye not to know that ^k the LORD God of Israel gave the kingdom over Israel to David for ever, even to him and to his sons by ^l a covenant of salt?

6 Yet Jeroboam the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon the son of David, is risen up, and hath ^m rebelled against his lord.

7 And there are gathered unto him ⁿ vain men, ^o the children of Belial, and have strengthened themselves against Rehoboam the son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was ^p young and tender-hearted, and could not withstand them.

8 And now ye think to withstand ^r the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David; and ye be ^s a great multitude, and there are ^t with you golden calves, which Jeroboam made you for gods.

9 Have ye not ^u cast out the priests of the LORD, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites, and have ^x made you priests after the manner of the nations of other lands? so that whosoever cometh to ^y consecrate himself with a young bullock and seven rams, the same may be a priest of them that are ^z no gods.

10 But as for us, ^a the LORD is our God, and we have not forsaken him; and ^b the priests, which minister unto the LORD, are the sons of Aaron, and the Levites wait upon their business:

11 And ^c they burn unto the LORD, every morning and every evening, burnt-sacrifices, and ^d sweet incense: the ^e shew-bread also set they in order upon the pure table; and ^f the candlestick of gold with the lamps thereof, to burn every evening: for ^g we keep the charge of the LORD our God; but ye have forsaken him.

b xi. 20. Maachah the daughter of Absalom.
c Josh. xviii. 28. Gibeath. Judg. xix. 14. 16. 1 Sam. x. 26.
d 1 Sam. x. 26.
e Heb. sound to gether. 1 Sam. xvii. 1—3.
f Heb. 14—19.
g Chr. xxi. 5.
h xiv. 9.

g Gen. x. 18. Josh. xviii. 22.
h Judg. ix. 7. Ps. xx. 7.
i Neh. v. 9. Prov. i. 29. 2 Pet. iii. 5.
j Judg. xi. 21—24. 2 Sam. vii. 12. 16. Ps. lxxxix. 19—37. Jer. xxvii. 5—7. Dan. iv. 25—32. v. 18.
k Lev. ii. 13. Num. xvi. 19. Ez. xl. 24. Mark ix. 49. 50.

n Judg. ix. 4. xi. 3. Job xxx. 8. Prov. xii. 11. Acts xvii. 5. o Deut. xiii. 13. 1 Kings xxi. 10. 13. p xii. 13. Ec. x. 16. Is. iii. 4. 1 Cor. xiv. 29. Heb. v. 12. q xi. 1—4.

r ix. 8. Ps. ii. 6. Is. vii. 6, 7. ix. 7, 8. s xx. 6. 12. Ps. xxxiii. 16. t 1 Kings xii. 29. xiv. 9. Hos. viii. 6.

u xi. 14, 15.

x 1 Kings xii. 31—33. xiii. 33.

y Heb. fill his hand. Ex. xix. 1. 35. Lev. viii. 2. Num. xvi. 40.
z Deu. xxxii. 17. Hos. viii. 6. Acts xix. 26.

a xi. 16, 17. xii. 6. Ex. xix. 5, 6. Jer. xxxi. 33. Zech. xiii. 9. b Ex. xxxix. 1, &c. Num. xviii. 1—7.

b ii. 4. Ex. xxxix. 38—42.

c Ex. xxx. 1—10. Lev. ii. 2. 2. Num. xvi. 6, 7. 46, 47. Luke i. 9. Rev. viii. 3, 4. d Ex. xxv. 30. Lev. xxiv. 6. e Ex. xxv. 31—39. xxvii. 20, 21. Lev. xxiv. 3, 4. f Gen. xxvi. 5. Num. ix. 19, 23.

good; and whatever else be preserved or obtained, it will ruin the immortal soul, except true repentance intervene. —Unless the heart be prepared to seek the Lord, we must perish; and if convinced, that we are unable of ourselves to effect this preparation, let us pray fervently, according to the language of Scripture, “Turn thou me, and so shall I be turned;” “Create in me a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within me.” If we do this in sincerity, using the other means of grace, and watching against sin and temptation, our endeavours will not be in vain. Where these things are wanting, formality and hypocrisy form a man's highest attainments; his chief advantages prove an aggravation of his crimes, and a life of vanity and vexation will be closed by a miserable death. May we then look to our hearts, and keep them with all diligence; for the Lord especially regards them: and may he prepare our hearts unto himself, that we may serve him with perseverance and delight whilst we live; and have a strong consolation and joyful hope, when we are called to wait through the valley of the shadow of death, and so have an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of Jesus Christ! Amen.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIII. V. 1, 2. (Notes, xi. 21. 1 Kings xv. 1, 2.)

V. 3. The kingdom of the ten tribes had been given to Jeroboam; but both he and his people had by their apostasy and idolatry merited the severest punishment which Abijah was permitted to execute. Rehoboam had aimed to recover dominion over all Israel; but perhaps Abijah only endeavoured to secure his own kingdom. The numbers which they brought into the field were immense; but when every man was a soldier, small kingdoms could raise vast armies upon any great emergency. Five hundred thousand had been numbered of Judah in the time of David, and it had received a great increase upon the division of the kingdom: yet Israel raised an army twice as large out of all their tribes.

Num. xxviii. 21.
1 Sam. iv. 5-7.
Rom. viii. 31.
Deut. xx. 4.
Josh. v. 13-15.
Ps. xx. 7. Heb.
ii. 10.
i Num. x. 9.
xxxj. 6. Josh.
vi. 20.
k Job ix. 4. xv.
25, 26 xl. 2. Is.
xlv. 9. Acts v.
39 ix. 4, 5.
l Ps. cxv. 7.
m Josh. viii. 4.
Prov. xxi. 30.
Jer. iv. 22.

n Ex. xiv. 10.
Josh. viii. 20.
2 Sam. x. 8-14.
o xiv. 11. xviii.
31. Ps. i. 15.

p xx. 21. Josh.
vi. 16. 20 Judg.
vii. 18-22 Ps.
xlvii. 1-5.
q xiv. 12. Josh.
xi. 8. Judg. iv.
15. 2 Kings v. 1.
Ps. c. xviii. 4-7.

12 And, behold, ^a God himself ^b is with us ^c for ^d our captain, and ^e his priests with sounding trumpets to cry alarm against you. O children of Israel, ^f fight ye not against the LORD God of your fathers; for ye shall not prosper.

13 ¶ But ^g Jeroboam caused ^h an ambushment to come about behind them: so they were before Judah, and the ambushment was behind them.

14 And when Judah ⁱ looked back, behold, the battle was before and behind: and they ^j cried unto the LORD, and the priests sounded with the trumpets.

15 Then the men of Judah gave a shout: and ^k as the men of Judah shouted, it came to pass, that ^l God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah.

16 And the children of Israel fled before Judah: And God delivered them into their hand.

17 And Abijah and his people slew them with a great slaughter: so there fell down slain of Israel ^m five hundred thousand chosen men.

18 Thus the children of Israel were brought under at that time, and the children of Judah prevailed, ⁿ because they relied upon the LORD God of their fathers.

19 And Abijah pursued after Jeroboam, and ^o took cities from him, Beth-el with the towns thereof, and Jeshanah with the towns thereof, and ^p Ephraim with the towns thereof.

20 Neither did Jeroboam recover strength again in the days of Abijah: and ^q the LORD struck him, and ^r he died.

21 But Abijah ^s waxed mighty, and married ^t fourteen wives, and ^u begat twenty and two sons, and sixteen daughters.

22 And the rest of the acts of Abijah, and his ways, and his sayings, are written in the ^v story of the prophet ^w Iddo.

r 3 12 xxviii. 6.
Is. x. 16-19.
xxxvii. 36.
Nah. i. 6. 1 Cor.
x. 22.

s xvi. 8, 9. xx.
20. 2 Kings
xxviii. 5. 1 Chr.
v. 20 Ps. xxii.
45. cvi. 5. Dan.
iii. 28. Eph.
i. 12.

t Josh. x. 19. 39.
xi. 12. 1 Sam.
xxxi. 7.

u xv. 8. Josh. xv.
9. Ephron. John
xi. 54.

x 1 Sam. xxv. 38.
xxvi. 19. Ez.
xxiv. 16. Acts
xii. 23.

y 1 Kings xiv. 20.
xv. 9.

z 2 Sam. v. 12; 13.

aa xi. 21.
b Judg. viii. 30.
31. ix. 5. x. 4.

* Or. commentary.
c ix. 29. xii. 15.

V. 4-12. Jeroboam seems to have been the aggressor in this war: yet Abijah had marched into his country; and from a hill, whence Jeroboam and many of the Israelites could hear him, he spake to them as one who wished to bring the contest to an amicable conclusion. At least this seems to have been his ostensible design; though his speech was well suited to encourage his own troops, and to dismay those of Jeroboam. Abijah bears a bad character in the first of Kings: yet on this occasion he spake religiously; and he seems to have had a kind of confidence in God, grounded on the maintenance of his ordinances, and the number of pious worshippers, in his kingdom. The basis of his address was truth; but there was much false colouring in his manner of stating it, according to the general custom of eloquent orators. For the covenant respecting the kingdom made with David in behalf of his posterity, (except as it related to the Messiah,) was conditional, and neither Solomon, Rehoboam, nor Abijah, had been attentive to the restipulations. A covenant of salt is one solemnly ratified by a sacrifice and a feast, at both of which salt was used; that is to say, an unchangeable covenant: but the Lord evidently did not consider himself irreversibly engaged to continue the kingdom of all Israel to David's posterity. Jeroboam had indeed acted wickedly in his manner of seizing and governing the kingdom of Israel; yet it had been granted to him by God himself, and Abijah never mentioned that circumstance. The persons, who revolted from Rehoboam and made Jeroboam king, had acted with great precipitation and ingratitude; but perhaps it was not candid to call them indiscriminately vain men and children of Belial. Rehoboam had given them no small provocation; he was surely old enough to have behaved more wisely, if he had not been actuated by a proud domineering disposition: and it was not so much owing either to his lenity, his timidity, or his weakness, that he had not prosecuted his pretensions by war, as to the divine prohibition. But Abijah's words were more forcible when he exposed the apostacy and idolatry of the kingdom of Israel; their impiety and sacrilege in excluding the priests of the Lord from their possessions; and the shameful manner in which any worthless man was made a priest, who could and would bring the sacrifice appointed by way of consecration: for by these crimes Jeroboam and his subjects were drawing down the vengeance of heaven upon them. But what Abijah urged, concerning the state of true religion in Judah, was not strictly just; and, as spoken by him, it savoured of ostentation. Abijah himself was not a godly man; and idolatry was evidently connived at in his days; (xiv. 5.) Yet it was true, that the men of Judah had the priests, ordinances, and worship of God among them; that there were numbers of pious worshippers in the land; that their's was the more righteous cause; that the Lord was on their side, and their Captain, whilst the Israelites fought against him; and that the presence of the priests blowing the sacred trumpets, according to the law, was a token of his presence with them and favour to them. The expression, "after the manner of the nations," (9.) shows that the laws of Moses were not made according to the customs of the Gentiles, as many suppose; but entirely distinct from them: and that the similarity which in many instances has been traced, actually arose from the idolaters in several particulars adopting, or imitating the usages of Israel.

V. 13-22. Jeroboam, like a profane politician, disregarded all Abijah's pleas, and rested his whole dependence on the valour of his troops, and the skilfulness of his ar-

CHAP. XIV.

Abijah dies, and Asa succeeds him, 1. He abolishes idolatry, 2—5. Enjoying peace, he fortifies his kingdom, and establishes a large army, 6—8. Being attacked by Zerah, with an immense army of Ethiopians, he calls on God, is victorious, and acquires much spoil, 9—15.

SO Abijah ^a slept with his fathers, and ^a they buried him in the city of David: ^b and ^b Asa his son reigned in his stead. In his days the land was quiet ten years.

^a 1 Kings xi. 31.
^b 1 Kings xi. 31.

^b 1 Kings xv. 6
^c 1 Chr. iii. 10
^d Matt. i. 7, 8.

rangements. Whilst Abijah therefore was speaking about peace, he was preparing for action: and to make, as he supposed, sure of the event, to the superiority of his numbers he added an ambushment, that he might surround and destroy the whole army of Judah, probably intending to seize upon that kingdom also. But the people cried unto the Lord in this extremity, as expecting help and deliverance from him alone; whilst the sounding of the sacred trumpets caused numbers to shout with confidence of success; and according to their hope, it pleased God to smite the Israelites in such a manner, that they were unable to resist or to flee; and thus five hundred thousand were slain in one day, which is the largest slaughter that history records to have been ever made in any one battle. This decisive blow gave Judah so great a superiority, that we can only ascribe it to a divine interposition, that the kingdom of Israel was not entirely subverted. Many cities however were subdued, and amongst the rest Beth-el fell into the hands of the victor; yet we do not read that he removed the golden calf, and probably the city was soon conceded to Jeroboam. But that prince never recovered from this blow, for the Lord soon after smote him, and he died: yet Abijah died near two years before him, and did not long enjoy the fruits of his victory, for which he made very ungrateful returns. He seems to have possessed great vigour and capacity, though destitute of piety. During his short reign he became very powerful; he had a numerous family; and his ways and sayings were so remarkable as to be particularly recorded by the prophet Iddo, of whom we have no further knowledge; (Notes, 1 Kings xv. 3—9.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—12.

The promptitude of mankind to war, lamentably proclaims the depravity of our nature, and the influence that the great murderer of bodies and souls has upon the minds of men, even in the determinations of senates and in the cabinets of kings. Nor can vain-glorious commanders more delight in seeking renown, power, or revenge, by the destruction of the human species, than their inferiors do, in listing under their banners, seconding their aims, and rushing upon danger and death, that they may attempt the slaughter of those who never injured or even saw them! Such stubborn facts stand in the page of every history, a confutation of the ridiculous encomiums, which self-flattering speculators have passed upon the sufficiency of human reason, for every purpose of virtue and religion, and the philanthropy of the human heart. The annals of mankind form one continued narration of blood shed in the most wanton and unnecessary manner, in pursuit of that bubble honour, or in seeking to wrest the sword of vengeance from the hands of the Supreme Judge! The millions that have thus perished miserably, “hateful, and hating one another,” exceed almost imagination; and to crown the whole, the chief actors in this bloody tragedy have almost engrossed the applause of their fellow mortals; or shared it with the poets, orators, and historians, who have excited them by infamous panegyrics to such destructive pursuits. Compare the whole with the short command, “Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself:” and then bring in an impartial verdict concerning the heart of man, and the state of human nature. Yet all the blood thus shed must be one day accounted for, as for murder, on whomsoever that load of guilt may fall. Surely then, war should be always considered as the last resource, a desperate remedy, never to be used when the welfare of the state can be otherwise secured! A righteous cause, a willingness for peace on reasonable terms, and a well grounded confidence in God, should be considered as the grand requisites, in the management of this direful appeal to the supreme arbiter of kings and nations. But it is easy to speak on these topics, without the fear of God possessing the heart. Many presume upon external privileges, who disregard his precepts: they boast of the form of godliness, without the power of it: they are justly severe upon the crimes of other men, yet do not amend their own; but palliate the offences of their own party, whilst they aggravate the misconduct of their adversaries. These are not only the arts of those who purposely frame manifestos to varnish their ambition with the show of equity, but are often employed by such as really have justice on their side, yet forget that real beauty is disgraced and rendered suspected, by being painted. It is, however, obvious that ungodly princes have often prospered, because their enemies have been still more abandoned; because they had justice on their side; because many of their subjects were pious; because more external honour was paid to the truth and ordinances of God among them; or because the appeal to him and professed reliance on him, was more openly made in the decision of the contest.

V. 13—22.

The wise politicians of the world generally treat with contempt all arguments grounded on the state of religion, and the favour of God towards his worshippers; their whole dependence is upon an arm of flesh; and if their confidence be disappointed, they ascribe it only to fortune, or to the chance of war. But the God of battles gives victory to whom he pleases, against him all courage and conduct are vain; and he will appear for them, who rely on and call

o xxxi. 20. 1
Kings xv. 11. 14.
Luke 7. 5.
1 Deut. vii. 5.
4 Kings xi. 7. 8
xiv. 22. 24.
2 xv. 17. Lev
xxvi. 30. 1
Kings xv. 14.
3 xxxiv. 4. Ex
xxxiv. 13.
Deut. vii. 5. 25.
* Heb. statues.
3 Judg. vi. 25—
39. 2 Kings xviii.
4. xxxiii. 6. 13.
14.
3a xxxix. 21. 27.
30. xxxi. 21.
xxxiii. 16.
xxxiv. 32. 33.
Gen. xviii. 15.
Josh. xxiv. 19.
1 Sam. iii. 13.
Pzra x. 7. &c.
Neh. xiii. 9.
Sc Ps. ci. 2. 8.
xi. 16. xxx. 19.
Is. lv. 6. 7.
3 Neh. x. 29. &c.
Ps. cxix. 10.
† Heb. sun-timgers.
2 Gen. 2—6. xi. 5
—12.
3 Judg. iii. 11
30. v. 31. 1
Kings v. 4.
p xv. 15. Job
xxxiv. 23. Ps.
xvii. 9.
3 xxxii. 5. Acts
ix. 31.
p John ix. 4. xii
25. 36. Heb. iii.
13—15.
q 1 Chr. xxviii.
9. Ps. cv. 3. 4.
Jer. xxxix. 12—
14. 1 Pet. iii. 12
r Josh. xxiii. 1.
Matt. xi. 28. 29.

2 And Asa did that which was ° good and right in the eyes of the LORD his God:

3 For he took away ° the altars of the strange gods, and ° the high places, and ° brake down the * images, and ° cut down the groves:

4 And ° commanded Judah to ° seek the LORD God of their fathers, and * to do the law and the commandment.

5 Also he took away out of all the cities of Judah, the high places and the † images: and the kingdom was quiet before him.

6 And ° he built fenced cities in Judah;
° for the land had rest, and he had no war in those years; because ° the LORD had given him rest.

7 ° Therefore he said unto Judah, Let us build these cities, and make about them walls and towers, gates and bars, ° while the land is yet before us; because we have sought the LORD our God, ° we have sought him, and ° he hath given us rest on every side. So they built and prospered.

8 And Asa had an army of men that bare targets and spears: ° out of Judah three hundred thousand; and out of Benjamin, that bare shields and drew bows, two hundred and fourscore thousand: all these were mighty men of valour.

9 ¶ And there came out against them Zerah the Ethiopian with an host of a thousand thousand, and three hundred chariots; and came unto ° Mareshah.

10 Then Asa went out against him, and they set the battle in array in the valley of ° Zephathah at Mareshah.

11 And Asa ° cried unto the LORD his God, and said, LORD, it is ° nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with ° them that have no power: help us, O LORD our God; for we ° rest on thee, and ° in thy name we go against this multitude. O LORD, thou art our God; ° let not † man prevail against thee.

12 So ° the LORD smote the Ethiopians before Asa, and before Judah; and the Ethiopians fled.

Deut. xxviii. 7. xxxii. 33. Ps. lx. 12. cxxxvi. 17, 18. 1 Cor. ix. 26, xv. 57.

upon him in the time of distress. He hath often brought his people into imminent danger, to exercise their faith, and to put vigour into their prayers, which will be sure to terminate in shouts of victory. But to triumph in those contests, which cause so many thousands of the human species to expire in agony, and their immortal souls to be sent to the tribunal of God and an eternal state, can give little pleasure to a feeling heart; except as his justice and faithful care of his people, are seen and adored in them. And least of all can success in civil wars, which are commonly conducted with the most unrelenting rancour, and most tremendous slaughter, give satisfaction to any benevolent mind. Nor are the victories acquired in those fierce, though unbloody, contests which rend the church of Christ, to the disgrace of the common cause, and the joy of the common enemy, to be more rejoiced in. But to conquer our passions, to prevail against the tempter and the world, and to overcome evil with good, are victories to be gained by faith, patience, and prayer, in which we may safely and purely rejoice. And when the conquerors and the conquered in bloody battles will join in execrating their own and each other's madness; "when the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain;" then shall we receive the unsullied palm, the conqueror's noblest crown. Nay, death and the grave, which so dreadfully triumph over those whom the Lord smites in his anger, and so speedily wrench the prosperous from all their grandeur, will never hurt us; indeed we shall then gain a final victory over that last enemy, and mortality shall be swallowed up of life.

NOTES.

CHAP. XIV. V. 1. The land, &c. Abijah's vigour and success laid the foundation of Asa's peace and prosperity. Jeroboam and his son Nadab, remained quiet during the short time which they reigned over Israel, after Abijah's victory. Baasha began to reign before the close of Asa's third year; but though "there was war between him and Asa all their days;" (1 Kings xv. 16;) it did not for some time occasion much disturbance to the peace of Judah, through the enfeebled state of Israel.

V. 2—5. Asa not only behaved so well as to approve his conduct to man, but he aimed to act as in the sight of Him who seeth the secret intentions of the heart; and accordingly "he had this testimony that he pleased God." He began his reign by abolishing those idolatries which had been connived at in the preceding reigns; and by using his authority to retain the people in the worship of God at the temple, and to enforce obedience to his commandments. He afterwards carried his reformation still further (xv. 5) yet, at last, the high places where JEHOVAH was irregularly worshipped, were not removed, though the idolatrous altars were destroyed. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 6—8. The union of piety and prudence, in Asa's conduct, is worthy of notice and commendation. We may suppose that his army generally served in divisions by rotation, but could be marshalled all together upon occasion. The number of his soldiers was great, especially that of Benjamin: but probably many from the other tribes were numbered among them.

13 And Asa and the people that were with him pursued them unto Gerar: and the Ethiopians were overthrown, that they could not recover themselves; for they were ^{}destroyed ^{}before the LORD, and before ⁿhis host; and they carried away very much spoil.

14 And they smote all the cities round about Gerar; for ⁱthe fear of the LORD came upon them: and they spoiled all the cities; for there was ^{*}exceeding much spoil in them.

15 They smote also ^lthe tents of cattle, and ^mcarried away sheep and camels in abundance, and returned to Jerusalem.

V. 9—15. It is by no means certain, whether the Ethiopians or Cushites of Africa, or those near Arabia, are here intended: but they who suppose the former to be meant, conjecture that Zerah had subjugated his neighbours, the Egyptians; had taken possession of the cities and territories in Asia, near to that kingdom: and that he intended still further to extend his conquests, when he had seized upon the kingdom of Judah. Asa's army was formidable, though not equal to Zerah's immense preparations. He however placed no confidence in them, but relied only on the protection of God. His prayer is the genuine language of faith. He was conscious that his aim had been to glorify the Lord and promote his worship, in the time of his prosperity; and this encouraged him to look upon him as his reconciled Friend and Father. Having put himself and his people under God's protection; he was persuaded, that none could prevail against them, without seeming at least to prevail against God. If his army had been superior to that of the enemy, it could not have secured the victory; if it had consisted of a few enfeebled dispirited troops, the Lord could have helped by them: for it was "nothing with him to help with many, or with them that had no power." Either way he desired to confide wholly in God, and to give him the glory of the victory. The event accorded to his faith: the Lord fought by Asa's subjects as his host; the Ethiopians were entirely overthrown, and dispersed: the spoil, which had been deposited in Gerar of the Philistines, and in other cities in that vicinity, was taken; and this most formidable invasion greatly enriched Judah.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The active talents and outward success of ungodly men sometimes make way for the peace and prosperity of those, whose leading aim it is to glorify God and promote true religion: and thus they, whose hearts are not prepared to seek the Lord, may be serviceable to others: but nothing will profit our own souls, except that religion, which induces us to "do that which is good and right in the eyes of the LORD." Indeed, this alone can prepare us for arduous and perilous services; and influence us to

CHAP. XV.

The prophecy of Azariah before Asa, I —7. Asa puts away idolatry, assembles the people, and enters into covenant with God, 8—15. He removes his mother from being queen, for her idolatry; yet the high places are not taken away, 16, 17. He brings the dedicated things into the temple, and enjoys a long peace, 18, 19.

AND ^{*}the Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Obed:
2 And he went out ^{*}to meet Asa, and a xx. 14. xxiv.

20 Num. xxiv.
2 Judg. iii. 10.
2 Sam. xxiii. 2.
2 Pet. i. 21.
* Heb. before Asa undertake, to pursue without weariness, and by cheerful perseverance to accomplish, designs of usefulness in our various situations: and when men in authority, (or others according to the duties of their station;) properly attempt reformation, they often find less difficulty than they expected: for they are approved by the consciences of those men whose lusts oppose their designs. In all our prosperity we should notice and acknowledge the Lord's hand: if he give rest, none can cause trouble; and they who uprightly seek him, shall find peace and comfort. Yet, while in this world, we must prepare for trials and conflicts; we can never be safe except we are watching; the grace of God will indeed be sufficient for his people, but none of them will have any strength to spare. Our utmost watchfulness and diligence will not secure us from tribulation: but the consciousness of having heartily served God in our prosperity, will turn to us for a testimony, that we are indeed his people and he our God; and this will encourage our confidence in him in the hour of trouble and temptation. When we can clearly see that "God is for us," we shall be enabled to rest in him, and call upon him with more vigorous faith and enlarged expectation: and then we shall perceive, that our own weakness, or the power of our assailants, are no good reasons for discouragement. Improbabilities, and impossibilities to us, of help and deliverance, are perfectly easy to an almighty arm: and if his glory engage him on our side, no created power can prevail against us. Indeed it is our duty to employ every prudent precaution, to use all proper means, and to exert the whole strength that he hath given us; and in this way he commonly helps us, both in our temporal and spiritual concerns: but he can as readily work without us, as by us; and when we go forth in his name, and are disposed to give him the glory, we shall certainly have all desirable success. —They whom the Lord smites, cannot recover their strength, nor they whom he intimidates, their courage; and all things work together for the good of those whom he favours. However he may deal with us in temporal things, if the soldiers of Jesus Christ, we must be enriched by every conflict, and prove gainers by all our losses; and the approaching victory over our last enemy, death, will make way for our entrance into "his presence, where is fulness of joy, and pleasures for evermore."

b xlii. 12 xxxii. said unto him, Hear ye me, Asa, and c 4. 15 xxxiii. 12, all Judah and Benjamin; ^b The LORD is 13. Is. lv. 7, 8, with you, while ye be with him; and ^c if Jer. xxix. 13, ye seek him, he will be found of you;
 d 4. Matt. vii. 7, but ^d if ye forsake him, he will forsake you.

3 Now for ^e a long season Israel hath been without the ^f true God, and without a teaching priest, and ^h without law.

4 But when they ⁱ in their trouble did turn unto the LORD God of Israel, and sought him, he was ^k found of them.

5 And in those times there was ^l no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but ^m great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the countries.

6 And ⁿ nation was ^{*} destroyed of nation, and city of city: for ^o God did vex them with all adversity.

7 Be ^p ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak: for ^q your work shall be rewarded.

8 ¶ And when Asa heard these words, and the prophecy of ^r Oded the prophet,
 Luke xxi. 29—24. —p Josh. i. 7. 9. 1 Chr. xxviii. 20. Ps. xxvii. 14. Dan. x. 13. 1
 Cor. xvi. 13. Eph. vi. 10. —q Gen. xv. 1. Ruth. ii. 12. Ps. xix. 11. lvi. 11. Mat. v.
 12. 40. vi. 1. 4. 6. 18. x. 41, 42. Luke vi. 35. Rom. iv. 4, 5. 1 Cor. iii. 8. 14. ix. 17, 18.
 xv. 58. Col. iii. 24. Heb. vi. 10. x. 35. 2 John 8. —r 1.

he took courage, and put away the † abominable idols out of all the land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of ^s the cities which he had taken from mount Ephraim, and renewed ^t the altar of the LORD, that was before the porch of the LORD.

9 And he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and ^u the strangers with them out of Ephraim and Manasseh, and out of Simeon: for they fell to him out of Israel in abundance, when ^v they saw that the LORD his God was with him:

10 So they gathered themselves together at Jerusalem in ^w the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa.

11 And they ^x offered unto the LORD
 † the same time, of the spoil which they had brought, ^a seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep.

12 And ^b they entered into a covenant to ^c seek the LORD God of their fathers with all their heart, and with all their soul;

13 That ^d whosoever would not seek the LORD God of Israel should be put to

NOTES.

CHAP. XV. V. 3—6. It is not easy to determine what times or events were intended by the prophet, in these verses. Some think, that he referred to the state of Israel in the days of the judges, when the people for a long time generally forsook, and almost forgot, the true God, the priests were not public teachers as they ought to have been, and the law was greatly neglected; and at the same time the people were exposed to the invasions of various enemies, who destroyed each other, yet alternately harassed and oppressed them: because for their sins "God did vex them" with all adversity; and consequently there was no peace to those who journeyed or went out upon business. Now these times of trouble and vexation seemed to be returning again, (after the prosperity and peace enjoyed under David and Solomon,) in the divisions, apostacies, idolatries, and calamities of the preceding reigns. And they might be assured, that the Lord would deal with them by the same measure as he had dealt with their fathers: if they forsook his worship, and ran into idolatry and impiety, they would be left to all their former miseries; but if they returned to God and served him, he would protect and prosper them: even as when Israel under the judges, in their trouble, sought the Lord, he was always ready to remove their afflictions. Others suppose that the prophet referred to the state of the kingdom of Israel: they had rejected the true God, expelled the teaching priesthood, and cast off the law of the Lord; and their subsequent calamities were intended as a warning for Judah: yet even whenever Israel should repent and seek God, he would be found of them. Others again suppose the passage to be prophetic of the Babylonish captivity, and even of the present dispersion and future conversion of the Jews, to which the words are doubtless applicable. Perhaps the prophet had some reference to God's general method of dealing with Israel in all ages, and then no wonder that his expressions are descriptive of several distinct transactions. It is however plain, that warning and encouragement were intended for Asa and his subjects; and the prophet's scope was to excite them properly to improve their present success, by attempting a more effectual reformation, which would assuredly be rewarded with proportionable prosperity.

V. 8. Perhaps the prophet was called Oded, as well as his father, (1;) and Azariah by way of distinction; though some think, that Oded confirmed the words of his son by a prophecy to the same effect. The work of complete reformation appeared to Asa so difficult and perilous, through the inveterate propensity of the people, and of the chief persons, to idolatry, that he had not courage to attempt it, till thus assured of the divine assistance and acceptance. Accordingly when he proceeded in his work, many abominable idols were found in every part of the land; which he removed, with those that were in the cities taken from Israel: but as the golden calf was not removed from Bethel, it is probable that that city had been previously ceded to the king of Israel.

V. 9. Simeon, &c. The situation of this tribe, in part of the lot of Judah, had not prevented them from joining the general revolt. But many of them now submitted to Asa, and probably a great part of that tribe from this time adhered to Judah.

e Gen. xix. 11.
 Ex. xii. 29. Job
 iii. 19. xxxiv.
 19. Ps. cxv. 13.
 Acts xxvi. 22.
 Rev. vi. 15. xx.
 12.
 f Neh. v. 13. x.
 29.
 g Ps. lxxxi. 1-4.
 h xxxiii. 16-21.
 xxix. 10. 38.
 Deut. xxvi. 11.
 Neh. viii. 9.
 i Ps. xxxii. 11.
 cxix. 111. Prov.
 iii. 17. 2 Cor. i.
 12.
 j Ps. cxix. 166.
 k 2. 4. Is. xiv.
 19.
 l Joh. h. xxxiii. 1.
 Job xxxiv. 29.
 m 1 Kings xv. 13.
 n 1 Kings xv. 1.
 o 10. Grandmother.
 o xiv. 3-5. Ex.
 xxxii. 27, 28. Deut. xiii. 6-8. xxxiii. 9. Zech. xiii. 2. Mark iii. 21. 31-35. 2 Cor. v. 16.

death,^e whether small or great, whether man or woman.

14 And ^f they sware unto the Lord with a loud voice, and with shouting, and ^g with trumpets, and with cornets.

15 And all Judah ^h rejoiced at the oath: for they had ⁱ sworn with all their heart, and ^k sought him with their whole desire; and he was found of them: and ^l the Lord gave them rest round about.

16 ¶ And also concerning ^m Maachah the mother of Asa the king, ⁿ he removed her from being queen, because she had made an ^{} idol in a grove; and Asa ^{} Heb. horror.

^p cut down her idol, and stamped it, and burnt it at the brook Kidron.

17 But ^q the high places were not taken away out of Israel: nevertheless ^r the heart of Asa was perfect all his days.

18 And he ^s brought into the house of God the things that his father had dedicated, and that he himself had dedicated, silver, and gold, and vessels.

19 And there was no more war unto the ^t five and thirtieth year of the reign of Asa.

p xxxiv. 7. Ex.
 xxxii. 20. Lev.
 xxvi. 30. Deut.
 vii. 5. 25. 26.
 ix. 21. 2 Kings
 xxxiii. 6. 12. 15.
 q xiv. 3-5. Deu.
 xii. 13. 14. 1
 Kings iii. 2-4.
 xxii. 43. 2 Kings
 xii. 3. xiv. 4.
 r xvi. 7-12. 1
 Kings xi. 4.
 s 1 Kings vii. 51.
 xv. 14. 15. 1 Chr.
 xxvi. 20-26.

t xvi. 1. 1 Kings
 xv. 16.

V. 12-15. The people voluntarily covenanted to seek the Lord, each for himself, with all earnestness: and also without respect of persons, to execute the law of God on idolaters: and on those who disregarded the sabbaths and solemn feasts, or refused their attendance on the public ordinances of religion. This covenant they entered into in the most cheerful and open manner; and every one ratified it with a solemn oath, with a loud voice, in the presence of all the people: for they were deeply impressed with the kindness which they had experienced, and numbers were very sincere and earnest in their religion.

V. 16. (Note, 1 Kings xv. 10-13.)

V. 17. Out of Israel, &c. Some have thought that this only relates to the cities that had been taken from the kingdom of Israel: but it is probable that some high places at least were still connived at in Judah, perhaps as a human device, to render the people more willing to renounce idolatry. Yet upon the whole Asa meant well and did well, and was cordial in his endeavours for reformation.

V. 19. Baasha died in the twenty-sixth year of Asa's reign; and as there were wars between Asa and Baasha, (Marg. Ref.) it seems impossible to reconcile this verse, and the date of the ensuing chapter, with the other history, except by allowing a trivial error of the transcribers, and reading the twenty-fifth instead of the thirty-fifth, in this verse, and the twenty-sixth instead of the thirty-sixth, in the first verse of the following chapter. This is the date which Josephus affixes to these events, and it is very probable in itself. Other ways of solving the difficulty have been proposed, but they are liable to insuperable objections.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Prosperity and comfort are intended to animate us to more diligent obedience: and we need the ministry of the word to remind us of our duty when successful, as much at least as when afflicted. The gracious tenour of the Gospel authorizes us to assure sinners of every description, that if they seek the Lord in a proper manner, he will be found of them; at the same time professors should be warned, that if they forsake the Lord, he will cast them off: and we may know that God is with us for every saving purpose, when we are conscious of trusting in his mercy, attending on his ordinances, and walking in obedience to his commandments. But cautious fear and cheering hope must unite to render us vigilant, active, and steadfast in the ways of God. The history of the church in all ages, and the experience of every believer, demonstrate, that vexation and distress are the never failing consequences of negligence and sin, even to those who are not left to final apostasy; and that humiliation before God, and diligent seeking him, uniformly make way for peace and comfort. Hence the benefit of a teaching ministry, of the holy law, and of the blessed Gospel. May the Lord grant that all who are called ministers, may become "apt to teach," mighty in the scriptures, men of God, acquainted with him, his truth, and his will, and able to declare his whole counsel to the people! May he send forth such labourers to his harvest, and extend the blessing of them to the remotest nations of the earth! And may the Jews, who have been so long without the "true God and eternal life;" (1 John v. 20, 21;) without a teaching priesthood, and without him who is the true and only High Priest of God's church, whom "God hath so long vexed with all adversity," at length in their trouble, seek the Lord, be found of him, and be grafted again into their own olive tree, from which they were broken off through unbelief. The assured expectation of assistance, acceptance, and a gracious recompense, inspires the soul with courage and strength for present duty: and we ought to exhort and encourage one another, that we may be strong in the Lord, and that our hands may not be weak, when called to arduous and perilous attempts, for the honour of God, and the promotion of true religion. The way to win those, who are of the contrary party, is by showing them evidently that "the Lord our God is with us." In order to this, all abominable things must be put away, and conscientious obedience must unite with cheerful confidence in God.—Whatever the Lord gives should be employed according to his will: especially we should devote our bodies and souls unto him, according to his everlasting covenant; by accepting his salvation, and yielding ourselves to his service. Our devotedness to God our saviour should be avowed and professed in the most solemn and public manner. Such obligations indeed bind to no more than was before our duty: but they have a tendency to fortify the heart against temptation, to excite us in the way of remembrance to every service, and to give us a further opportunity of watching over each other, and exhorting one another to every good work. Without we sincerely mean

CHAP. XVI.

Asa makes a league with Benhadad against Baasha, who is hindered from building Ramath; and Asa with the stones of it builds Geba and Mizpah, 1—6. Hanani the prophet reproves him for trusting in the Syrians, rather than in God, and is imprisoned, 7—10. Asa, when sick, seeks to physicians, and not to God, 11, 12. His death and burial, 13, 14.

a 1 Kings xv. 17
—22.

b xl. 16. xv. 9.
1 Kings xii. 27.

c 2 Kings xii. 18.
xvi. 8. xviii. 15.

* Heb. Darneseck.

d xviii. 3. xix. 2.
Judg. ii. 2. 15.
xxxi. 1—3.
2 Cor. vi. 16.

e Ek. xxxii. 21.
Josh ix. 19, 20.
2 Sam. xxi. 2.
Ps. xv. 4. Rom.
i. 31. 32 2 Tim.
iii. 3.

f 1 Tim. vi. 10.
2 Pet. ii. 15.
g Heb. armies which were his.

g 1 Kings xv. 20.
Judg. xvii. 28.
29. xx. 1.

to seek and serve God with our whole heart, and our whole soul, such transactions are mere hypocrisy. But if we enter into these engagements with uprightness, really purposing to be helpful to others also, we may joyfully expect that the Lord will give rest to our souls.—Every public transaction should be conducted with cautious regard to peace, and to civil subordination in all things lawful, lest our good should be evil spoken of. We are not indeed called to inflict death or any secular punishment on those who are guilty of impiety, apostacy, or idolatry; yet they who neglect the great salvation of the Gospel, will by no means escape a more dreadful doom.—No relative affections are to be indulged, when they interfere with our evident duty to God: but where the heart is upright, there will be peace and acceptance, though we come short of that perfection which is proposed to us, and to which we should continually be pressing forward.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVI. V. 1—6. (Notes, xv. 19. 1 Kings xvi. 8—14.) Baasha seems to have meditated war against Judah from maim, and all the ⁱ store-cities of Naph- ⁱ 1 Kings. ix 19 tali.

5 And it came to pass, when Baasha heard it, that he left off building of Ramah, and let his work cease.

6 Then Asa the king took all Judah, and ^k they carried away the stones of ^k 1 Kings xv 22 Ramah, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasha was a building: and he built therewith ^l Geba and Mizpah.

7 ¶ And at that time ^m Hanani the seer came to Asa king of Judah, and said unto him, ⁿ Because thou hast relied on the king of Syria, and not ^o relied on the LORD thy God, therefore is ^p the host of the king of Syria escaped out of thine hand.

8 Were not ^q the Ethiopians and the Lubims [†] a huge host, with very many chariots and horsemen? yet, ^r because thou didst rely on the LORD, he delivered them into thine hand.

9 For ^s the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to [†] shew himself strong in the behalf of them ^t whose heart is perfect toward him. Herein ^u thou hast done foolishly:
therefore from ^x henceforth thou shalt have wars.

10 Then Asa was ^y wroth with the seer, and ^z put him in a prison-house;
for he was in a rage with him because of this thing. And Asa ^{||} oppressed some of the people ^a the same time.

the beginning of his reign: and probably he had made some hostile attempts before; but he was not able to make any formidable attack before the year preceding his death. At that time he so fortified Ramah upon the frontiers of the land, that he not only prevented his own subjects from migrating into Judah, but stopped all travellers from passing; and this not only hindered the Israelites from going over to the king of Judah, but was likely, it seems, by these means, to reduce him and his subjects to distress. In this difficulty Asa not only distrusted his own troops, and neglected the proper means of defence, but he gave up his confidence in God, and used every sinful means for deliverance. He tempted a heathen prince, with the consecrated treasures, to break a solemn league, and to turn his arms against his ally: and by making a league with him to this effect, he became accessory to all the treachery, perjury, injustice, and cruelty of Benhadad! But though it answered a present purpose, it exposed him to severe rebukes, and he never prospered afterwards.

V. 7—10. Asa's misconduct entirely originated from unbelief. Had he relied on the Lord, he would have deb1 Kings xv. 23.

11 And, behold,^b the acts of Asa, first and last, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

c Matt. vii. 2.

Luke vi. 37, 38.

Rev. iii. 19.

d xxviii. 22. 1

Chr. x. 14. Jer.

xvii. 5.

e Gen. i. 2. Job xlii. 4. Jer. viii.

22. Matt. ix. 1.

Mark ii. 17. v.

28. Col. iv. 14.

B. C. 914.

f1 Kin's xv. 24.

12 And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was^c diseased in his feet, until his disease was exceeding great: yet^d in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to the^e physicians.

13 And Asa^f slept with his fathers, and died in the one and fortieth year of his reign.

14 And they buried him in his own sepulchre, which he had^{*} made for himself in the city of David, and laid him in the bed which was filled with^g sweet odours, and divers kinds of spices prepared by the^h apothecaries' art: and they madeⁱ a very great burning for him.

* Heb. digged.

g Gen. i. 2. Mark

xvi. 1. John xii.

39, 40.

h Ex. xxx. 25--

37. Ec. x. 1.

i xxi. 19. Jer.

xxxiv. 5.

fended him against the Israelites, and enabled him likewise to prevail against the king of Syria, who was then in league with Baasha; by which he might have enriched his treasures, instead of emptying them to purchase his assistance. This was the more inexcusable in him, seeing he had before experienced the prevalence of faith and prayer, in his victory over the Ethiopians. Indeed Asa could not but be ignorant of God's omnipresent and ever watchful providence, by which he notices all the wants, dangers, and trials of those who uprightly trust and serve him; and is ever ready to give speedy assistance to them, as the matter may require. In this Asa greatly failed, and the prophet plainly told him that he had acted foolishly, and thenceforth should have wars. His subsequent conduct seems to be without parallel in scripture. No one pious man, as I recollect, is recorded to have so resented a reproof from a prophet in the name of God, as to have used severity against him for it: yet the expressions concerning Asa's character are so strong, (xiv. 2. xv. 17.) that we must consider him as an exception, and a lamentable proof that there is no kind of sin which a believer is not capable of committing if left to himself; so that we must not form our judgment of men's characters from any detached actions, but the general tenour of their conduct.—In his rage he committed the prophet to prison, or rather he put him into the stocks, for that is the meaning of the original word; perhaps excusing himself to others, and to his own conscience, by criminating the prophet as rude, intermeddling, and insolent: and when some of the people censured his conduct, he oppressed them also, as determined to crush all opposition by violent means. It is, however, probable that he speedily released the prophet: and as he lived at least fifteen years after this event, (for so long he lived after Baasha's death;) and as we do not find that he oppressed or persecuted any person, except on this occasion, we may conclude that he repented, and maintained religion to the close of his life. But having openly dishonoured God, the latter part of his reign was obscure, inglorious, and troublesome. We are not informed what wars he was engaged in, but probably they were more teasing to him than fatal to his people.

V. 12. 'Asa had the gout, which increased to such a height that he died of it; which was a just punishment for putting the prophet's feet in the stocks.' (Bp. Patrick.) Under this excruciating correction he relapsed into his former sin, of relying upon man, and not upon the Lord. If he consulted physicians, properly so called, his sin entirely consisted in his reliance on them, instead of seeking a blessing from God on the means which they employed. But perhaps they were such persons as attempted, by charms or other superstitious devices, to alleviate his pain: and then the thing itself likewise was exceedingly sinful. As the Lord has been pleased to throw a cloud upon his memory, we will not further attempt to penetrate it; though we trust that he did not die without repenting of this sin also.

V. 14. Some have considered this funeral as an argument of the improper state of Asa, even at death, supposing that he appointed it for himself out of vain glory and in conformity to heathen customs. Indeed it is said that he digged a sepulchre for himself, as Manasseh and others also did: but probably the pomp of his interment, which had nothing idolatrous or unlawful in it, was intended by the people as an expression of respect for his memory; (Marg. Ref.) for notwithstanding the blemishes recorded in this chapter, he had been an excellent, valuable, and successful prince: and the state of Judah during his reign was most happy, compared with the distractions and miseries of Israel; (Notes, 1 Kings xvi.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The strongest faith is sometimes lamentably out of exercise: and whenever we waver, as to confidence in God, we grow slack and heartless in waiting on him and serving him, and in using proper means for our own defence or deliverance; and are ready to turn aside into by-paths and employ sinful expedients. When once we have set forward in this down-hill road, we hurry along from one thing to another, till we fall into greater ungodliness; nor can we tell into what impiety, treachery, or injustice we may run, if we are left to ourselves. Well may we then be cautioned, "Whilst we think we stand, to take heed lest we fall." And well may we pray, "Lord increase our faith!"—The self-sufficient are impatient of reproof or contradiction: and then the plain language of God's faithful ministers appears ill-nature, ill-manners, impertinence, or insolence. In this case, if power unite with haughty resentment, persecution will follow: so that they are not qualified, at all times, to deliver the messages of God, even to good princes, who are not ready to bear the cross. For in general, "the flatterer, who spreads a net for a man's feet," and merits execration, may more reasonably expect a reward from men, than he who most affectionately labours for their present and eternal good, but who will speak offensive truth, unreservedly, in plain language. And they who venture to take the part of such as have thus given umbrage, must expect to share in the resentment they have excited; for where rage prevails against the fear of God, justice and humanity will scarcely

CHAP. XVII.

Jehoshaphat succeeds Asa, reigns well, and prospers, 1—6. He sends priests and Levites, accompanied by princes, to teach the law throughout Judah, 7—9. God overrules the minds of Jehoshaphat's neighbours, so that they submit to him, 10, 11. His greatness; and his army, with the captains, 12—19.

AND ^a Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel.

2 And he ^b placed forces in all the fenced cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and ^c in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had taken.

3 And ^d the LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in ^e the first ways of ^f his father David, and ^g sought not unto Baalim;

4 But sought to the LORD God of his father, and ^h walked in his commandments, and ⁱ not after the doings of Israel:

5 ^j Therefore the LORD stablished the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah brought to Jehoshaphat presents; and ^k he had riches and honour in abundance:

6 And his heart was ^l lifted up in the ways of the LORD: moreover ^m he took away the high places and groves out of Judah.

7 ⁿ Also in the third year of his reign he sent to his ^o princes, even to Ben-hail, and to Obadiah, and to Zechariah, and to Nethaneel, and to Micaiah, ^p to teach in the cities of Judah.

8 And with them ^q he sent Levites, even Shemaiah, and Nethaniah, and Zebadiah, and Asabel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehonathan, and Adonijah, and Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah, Levites; and with them Elishama and Jehoram, ^r priests.

9 And they taught in Judah, and ^s had the book of the law of the LORD with them, and went about ^t throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught the people.

a 1 Kings xv. 24.
1 Chr. iii. 10.
Matt. i. 8. Jo-saphat.

b xi. 11, 12.

c xv. 8.

d xv. 2. 9. Gen.
xxxix. 2, 3, 21.
Ex. xii. 12. iv. 12.
Matt. xxviii. 20.
e 2 Sam. v. 10 vi.
12—18. viii. 15.
1 Kings xv. 4.
Ps. cxxxii. 1—5.
f Or, his father,
and of David.
xiv. 2—5. 11. xv.
8—13.
g Judg. ii. 11. viii.
33. Jer. ii. 23.
h Luke i. 6. 1 Thes.
ii. 12. iv. 1.

be attended to. If, however, any of the Lord's own people thus resent the conduct of his faithful ministers, they may lay their account with most severe chastisement; and when they repeatedly relapse into the same crime, they may expect to go down to the grave in dishonour and uncertainty, and to leave their characters involved in obscurity. But notwithstanding incidental faults, we should honour the memory of those who have been useful in their generation, and that of our benefactors: leaving their eternal state to the heart-searching Judge.—In all our conflicts and sufferings, we have need especially to look to our own hearts, that they be “perfect towards God,” in the exercise of faith, patience, and obedience: remembering that “his eyes run to and fro, throughout the earth, to show himself strong in behalf of them,” who thus trust and serve him; being an ever-present and all sufficient Helper and Comforter. And he will especially plead the cause, and abundantly recompense the sufferings, of those who are here persecuted for righteousness' sake, and for being faithful to his truth, and in delivering his message to their fellow sinners.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVII. V. 1, 2. It is probable that Asa had been engaged in war with the kingdom of Israel, after the establishment of Omri on the throne, though no events occurred so considerable as to be recorded.

V. 3. The first ways, &c. Jehoshaphat copied the example of David, by proceeding to reform the state of religion immediately on his accession to the throne; and in his zeal for the pure, orderly, and spiritual worship of God:

but he carefully avoided those sins into which David afterwards fell. This is the common explication of the expression.—But as David's piety and zeal never shone brighter than at the close of his life; perhaps the words might as properly be read, In the first ways, even those of David his father: proposing him as his model, and not the succeeding princes, under whom idolatry had been introduced, tolerated, or but feebly opposed; and not being satisfied even with walking in the steps of his father Asa, but aiming at reducing matters to their ancient purity. Some versions read it, of his father, and of David; for the latter days of Asa were not so worthy of imitation, as his former had been.

V. 6. The heart of Jehoshaphat was lifted up, not in pride, but in courage, zeal, and vigour. By strong faith and ardent love, he was lifted up above fears and discouragements; and readily faced and endured dangers and difficulties in the cause of God. And he did not glory in his riches and honour, but in serving the Lord, and promoting his cause: (Note, 1 Sam. ii. 1.)—He took away the high places in Judah; but perhaps he left them in the cities of Ephraim; or he destroyed such as were devoted to idols, but spared those in which God was worshipped. Or he destroyed them at the beginning of his reign; but his subjects restored some of them afterwards. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 7—9. Whilst the priests and Levites neglected their duty as public teachers, the people remained ignorant of the truth and law of God, and were easily seduced into superstition or idolatry: so that the reformations which took place, were rather the result of authority than con-

h 1 Kings xii. 28—
33. xiii. 33, 34.
xvi. 31—33.

i 2 Sam. vii. 25,
10. 1 Kings ix.
4. 5. Ps. cxxxvii.
1. cxxxii. 12.
1 Pet. v. 10.

j Heb. gave.
1 Sam. x. 27.
1 Kings iv. 21. x.
25. Ps. lxxviii. 29.
lxxii. 16. lxxvi.
11. Matt. ii. 11.

k 15 ix. 27. xviii.
1 Matt. vi. 33.
Or, encouraged.
Job xii. 26.

l xiv. 3. xv. 17.
xix. 3. xx. 53.
1 Kings xxii. 43.
B. C. 912.

m Deut. iv. 5. Ps.
xxxiv. 11, 12.
13. Ec. i. 12.
xii. 9, 10. 13.
xlix. 23.

n xv. 3. xxx. 22.
xxxv. 3. Neh.
viii. 7, 8. Matt.
iv. 23. Mark iv.
2. Luke iv. 43.
44. Acts i. 1.

o Ezra vii. 1—5.
Mat. ii. 7.
p Deut. vi. 6—9.
1. xviii. 20. Matt.
xv. 2—9. xxviii.
19, 20. John v.
39, 46. Acts
xxviii. 23. 1 Pet.
iv. 11.
q Matt. x. 23. xi.
1. Acts viii. 40.

xiv. 14. Gen.
xxxv. 5. Ex. xv.
14-16. Josh. ii.
9-11.
* Heb. was.
s Ex. xxxiv. 24.
Prov. xvi. 7.

10 ¶ And ^r the fear of the LORD ^{*} fell upon all the kingdoms of the lands that were round about Judah, ^s so that they made no war against Jehoshaphat.

t ix. 14. xxvi. 8.
2 Sam. viii. 2.
2 Kings iii. 4

11 Also some of the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat presents, and tribute-silver: and the Arabians brought him flocks, seven thousand and seven hundred rams, and seven thousand and seven hundred he-goats.

u xviii. 1. 1 Chr.
xxix. 25.
x viii. 2-6. xi.
5-12. xiv. 6, 7.
† Or, palaces.

12 And Jehoshaphat ^u waxed great exceedingly; and he ^{*} built in Judah [†] castles, and cities of store.

v xxvi. 9-15.
1 Chr. xxvii. 25-31.

13 And he had ^v much business in the cities of Judah: and the men of war, mighty men of valour, were in Jerusalem.

w Gen. xii. 2. xiii.
16. xv. 5.
a Num. i. 2. 18.

14 And these ^w are ^a the numbers of them according ^a to the house of their fathers: Of Judah, the captains of thousands; Adnah the chief, and with him mighty men of valour three hundred thousand.

15 And [†] next to him was Jehohanan the captain, and with him two hundred and fourscore thousand.

† Heb. at his hand.

16 And next him was Amaziah the son of Zichri, who ^b willingly offered himself unto the LORD; and with him two hundred thousand mighty men of valour.

b Judg. v. 2. 9.
1 Chr. xxix. 9.
14. 17. Ps. cx. 3.
2 Cor. viii. 6.
5. 12.

17 And of Benjamin; Eliada, a mighty man of valour, and with him ^c armed men with bow and shield, two hundred thousand.

c xiv. 8. 2 Sam. i. 21, 22.

18 And next him was Jehozabad, and with him an hundred and fourscore thousand ready prepared for the war.

19 These waited on the king, beside those whom the king ^d put in the fenced cities throughout all Judah.

d 2. 12. xi. 12. 25.

viction, and thus only external and transient. Asa and his people had done well, in covenanting together to punish those who would not seek the Lord: for this was according to the genius and intention of that introductory dispensation, under which the capital punishment of apostate Israelites was one divinely appointed method of preserving that people from sinking wholly into idolatry, till the coming of Christ. But Jehoshaphat did better, when he added the public teaching of the people from the law of God: for this not only tended to the same object, but promoted the salvation of souls and the increase of spiritual worshippers, who would hand down religion to their posterity.—The princes were joined in commission with the priests and Levites, both to excite them to their duty, and to induce the attention of the people. Probably they acted as magistrates, and were men of known probity, piety, and acquaintance with the law of God; who, when they administered justice, instructed and exhorted the people, and charged them, both as a matter of conscience, and as they regarded the favour of the king, to receive and observe the instructions of the priests and Levites. The persons appointed to be the itinerant instructors, were doubtless selected, because they were known to be eminent for piety and ability. They took the book of the law with them, and read and expounded it wherever they went, grounding all their instructions upon it. We must also suppose that these teachers were intended to excite, and to strengthen the hands of the priests and Levites who resided in the neighbourhood, and who were to be considered as the stated teachers in their several districts. It hath before been shown, that the prophets in the kingdom of Israel held stated assemblies for religious worship, on the sabbath days, and on some of their solemn feasts; (Note, 2 Kings iv. 23.) And it is probable that it became gradually the practice of the priests in Judah, as far as they had paid any regard to their duty.

V. 10. Though the army of Jehoshaphat was very formidable, yet it was “the fear of the LORD” that deterred his neighbours from attacking him: they were so dismayed, that they dared not attempt any thing against one who was so evidently favoured of God; and it is probable they had observed that Judah always prospered when the worship of God was kept up in the land.

V. 11. The Philistines had been subdued by David, and no doubt had paid him tribute: but after a time they seem to have again become independent; and it is not certain whether they and the Arabians brought these presents to Jehoshaphat, as submitting to his authority, or only as desiring to conciliate his friendship.

V. 13—19. Jehoshaphat’s militia far exceeded in number that of any of his predecessors, though he had not much above a third of the country over which David had reigned. But numbers had flocked into his kingdom from Israel, his people increased by a peculiar blessing, and no wasting wars had occurred for many years. It is probable that these troops served by rotation, and some of them might be employed in the buildings, and other business which he had in the cities of Judah. (Marg. Ref.) And one of his chief officers is distinguished for having offered himself willingly to serve God, as well as his country, in that station.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—6.

It is a signal blessing, when the Lord raises up pious and able men, in church or state, to succeed one another. For often useful instruments are removed, or laid aside, at the very crisis when their preparations were completed, and their purposes in a fair way of being effected; and others come in their stead, who have a pride and pleasure in rendering their schemes abortive: and thus “one sinner destroyeth much good.” It therefore behooves us all to pray for a succession of useful men, who may every one of them endeavour to complete the designs of their predecessors, and

CHAP. XVIII.

Jehoshaphat joins affinity with Ahab, and agrees to go with him against Ramoth-gilead, 1—3. The false prophets assure them of success, 4, 5. At Jehoshaphat's request Micaiah is sent for, who foretells Ahab's death, and shows that his prophets were instigated by a lying spirit, 6—23. He is abused and sent back to prison, 24—27. Ahab goes in disguise to the battle, where Jehoshaphat, in imminent danger, calls on God, and is preserved, 28—32. Ahab is slain by an arrow shot at a venture, 33, 34.

NOW Jehoshaphat had ^a riches and honour in abundance, and ^b joined affinity with Ahab.

a i. 11—15. xvi. 5. 12. Matt. vi. 33.
b xxi. 6. xxii. 2. 3. 2 Kings viii. 18. 26, 27. xi. 1 2 Cor. vi. 14.

make way for the usefulness of their successors: and did all pious persons, with one accord and without intermission, unite in such prayers, in behalf of the community, the church at large, and in particular congregations, they would witness blessed effects, and brighter prospects would open before us. It is happy when prudence, vigour, and piety unite in distinguished characters; when they carefully imitate the best parts of the conduct of eminent believers, and as carefully avoid their mistakes: and when the purest ages of the church are made the models of personal religion and public reformation. Indeed we should all study and walk in those first ways of christians, when "great grace was upon them all;" and not be satisfied with the current standard of modern profession: and this would tend to the establishment of our hearts in peace and assurance, and to the prosperity of our endeavours to glorify God and to do good. When faith is in vigorous exercise, and when zeal, love, and active hope render the ways of God delightful; the soul rises superior to dangers and difficulties, disregards hardships and labours, and can even rejoice in sufferings for the Lord's sake. Then low earthly affections are subdued; the heart is lifted up above them, and soars heaven-ward; ambitious of, and glorying in, nothing but the service, truth, and favour of God. This exalted piety springs from genuine poverty of spirit: and the consideration of the condescension of the infinite God; in employing and accepting us poor, guilty, polluted, worthless worms, inspires the heart with renewed vigour in his service.

V. 7—19.

The public teaching of the word of God forms in all ages the grand method of promoting the power of godliness: for by it the understanding is informed, the conscience awakened and directed, and the hopes, fears, and affections suitably excited; and as far as the divine blessing is vouchsafed, religious worship is rendered a voluntary, reasonable, and spiritual service. Kings and princes, therefore, render a most essential service to the cause of God, when they use their influence to excite and countenance those, who "labour in the word and doctrine;" and by their example and public declarations make it known, that they best approve of such as diligently attend on their instructions. And though no violence must be done to any man's conscience, nor any constrained to teach in contradiction to his judgment; yet surely they, who are publicly maintained as teachers of the people, may be required either to do their work, or to give place to those that will. Notwithstanding the prejudices of mankind, and the indiscretions of individuals, an itinerant teacher, if duly qualified and sent forth, is one of the most honourable and useful characters that can be found upon earth: and there needs no other proof that, when this work is done properly and with perseverance, it forms the grand method of spreading wide and rendering efficacious religious knowledge, than the experience of the church in all ages; for great reformatations and revivals of religion have uniformly been thus effected. It is especially sanctioned by the example of Christ and his apostles, and recommended as the divine method of spreading the gospel through the nations of the earth; itinerant preaching having almost always preceded, and made way for, the stated ministry of regular pastors. But it is a work which requires peculiar talents and dispositions, and a peculiar call in Providence; and is not rashly and hastily to be ventured upon by every novice, who has learned to speak about the gospel, and has more zeal than knowledge, prudence, humility, or experience. An unblemished character, a disinterested spirit, an exemplary deadness to the world, unaffected humility, deep acquaintance with the human heart, and preparation for enduring the cross, not only with boldness, but with meekness, patience, and sweetness of temper, are indispensably necessary in such a service. They who engage in it, should go upon broad scriptural grounds, and dwell chiefly upon those grand essentials of religion, in which pious men of different persuasions are agreed; plainly proving every thing from the word of God, running nothing into extremes, and avoiding all disputes, however urged to it, about the Shibboleths of a party. In this way itinerant preaching is a blessing which all that love the souls of men must wish to be vouchsafed to every part of every nation upon earth. And if those who are in authority, were to employ select men of known and approved piety and ability, protected and countenanced by them, to go from city to city, and from village to village, through the kingdom, teaching in every place the plain acknowledged truths and precepts of the Bible; immense good might be done. Those stated teachers, who have been grossly negligent or profligate, must either be disgraced or reformed; others might be stirred up to use greater diligence; and the instructions of stated faithful ministers would receive an additional sanction, which could not fail of producing a happy effect. Thus it was in the days of Jehoshaphat; and thus it will be, wherever or whenever God shall please to stir up the hearts of kings, princes, and ministers, to teach the people in every part of their territories, according to the word of God. This is also the proper way of promoting public peace and prosperity; and it will prove a better protection of nations than an increase of powerful armies or navies: though it may very properly be connected with the ordinary me-

^o Heb. at the end of years.
^c xix. 2. 1 Kings xxii. 2. Prov. ix. 6.

^d 1 Kings xxii. 4.

^e Josh. xx. 3.
^f 1 Kings. iv. 13.

^g Ps. cxxxix. 21.
^h Eph. v. 11.
ⁱ John 11, 12.

^g 1 Sam. xxiii. 2.
^h 9-12. 2 Sam. ii. 1. v. 19, 23.
ⁱ 1 Kings xxii. 5.
^j Ps. xxvii. 4.

^h 1 Kings xviii. 19. 2 Tim. iv. 3.

ⁱ Jer. xxxviii. 14.
^k Ec. xiii. 12, 3.

^k 14. 20, 21. Jer. viii. 10, 11. xliii. 17. Ez. xiii. 3-10. 22 Mic. ii. 11. iii. 11. Rev. xix. 20.

^l 1 Kings xxii. 7-9. 2 Kings iii. 11-13.

^l Heb. yet, or, more.

^m 1 Kings xviii. 4. xix. 10.

ⁿ 1 Kings xviii. 17. xx. 42, 43.

^o xxi. 20. Prov. ix. 8. Jer. xviii. 18. Am. v. 10.

^p John vii. 7. Gal. iv. 16.

^o Is. xxx. 10. Jer. xxxviii. 4.

^p 13. 2 Kings ix. 22. Ez. iii. 17-19. Acts xx. 26, 27.

^q Prov. xxv. 12. Mic. ii. 7.

^r Or eunuchs.
^s Heb. Hasten.

25, 26.

^r 1 Kings xxii. 10-12. Is. xiv. 8. Ez. xxvi. 16.

^s Dan. vii. 9. Matt. xix. 28.

^t 29. Matt. vi. 29. xi. 8.

^u Or, floor.

^v Jer. xxvii. 14-16.

2 And * after certain years ^c he went down to Ahab to Samaria: and Ahab killed sheep and oxen for him in abundance, and for the people that he had with him, and ^d persuaded him to go up with him to ^e Ramoth-gilead.

3 And Ahab king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-gilead? And he answered him, ^f I am as thou art, and my people as thy people: and we will be with thee in the war.

4 And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, ^g Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to-day.

5 Therefore the king of Israel gathered together ^h of prophets four hundred men, and said unto them, ⁱ Shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, Go up; ^j for God will deliver it into the king's hand.

6 But Jehoshaphat said, ^k Is there not here a prophet of the LORD ^l besides, that we might inquire of him?

7 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, ^m There is yet ⁿ one man by whom we may inquire of the LORD: but ^o I hate him: for he never prophesieth ^p good unto ^q me, but always evil: the same is Micaiah the son of Imla. And Jehoshaphat said, ^r Let not the king say so.

8 And the king of Israel called for one of ^s his ^t officers, and said, ^u Fetch quickly Micaiah the son of Imla.

9 And the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat king of Judah, ^v sat either of them on his throne, ^w clothed in their robes, and they sat in ^x a void place at the entering in of the gate of Samaria; and ^y all the prophets prophesied before them.

10 And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah had made him ^z horns of iron, and said, ^a Thus saith the LORD, With these thou shalt push Syria, until ^b they be consumed.

11 And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, ^c Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

12 And the messenger that went to call Micaiah spake to him, saying, ^d Behold, the words of the prophets declare good to the king with one ^e assent: let thy word, therefore, I pray thee, be like one of their's, and speak thou good.

13 And Micaiah said, ^f As the LORD liveth, ^g even what my God saith, that will I speak.

14 ^h And when he was come to the king, the king said unto him, Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And he said, ⁱ Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand.

15 And the king said to him, How many times ^j shall I adjure thee, that thou say nothing but the truth to me, in the name of the LORD?

16 ^k Then he said, I did see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, ^l as sheep that have no shepherd; and the LORD said, These have no ^m master; let them return therefore every man to his house in peace.

17 And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, ⁿ Did I not tell thee that he would not prophesy good unto me, but ^o evil?

18 Again he said, Therefore hear the word of the LORD; ^p I saw the LORD sitting upon his throne, and ^q all the host of heaven standing on his right hand, and on his left.

19 And the LORD said, ^r Who shall ^u Jer. xxvii. 2. xxviii. 10-14. Zech. i. 18-21. 2 Tim. iii. 8. ^x Jer. xxviii. 17. 21. 29. 31. xxxiii. 2, 3. xlix. 21. Ez. xxxii. 28. ^y Thou consume them ^z 33, 34. Prov. xxiv. 24, 25. Jude 16. Rev. xvi. 13, 14.

^a Job xxii. 13. Ps. x. 11. Hos. vii. 3. Am. vii. 13. Mic. ii. 6. 14. 1 Cor. ii. 14-16. ^b Heb. month.

^c Num. xxii. 12-20. 35. xxxii. 12. 26. xxiv. 13. 1 Kings xxii. 13. Jer. xliii. 28. xlii. 4. 1 Cor. xi. 23. 2 Cor. 17. Gal. i. 8. 1 Thes. ii. 4.

^d 1 Kings xviii. 27. xxi. 15. Ps. xi. 9. Lam. iv. 21. Am. iv. 4. Matt. xxvi. 40.

^e 1 Sam. xiv. 24. 1 Kings xxii. 16. Mark v. 7. Acts xix. 13.

^f Matt. xxvi. 63, 64.

^g 33, 34. 1 Kings xxii. 17, 18. 34-36. Jer. xxiii. 1, 2. Zech. x. 2. xlii. 7. Mark vi. 34. ^h 2 Sam. v. 2.

ⁱ Prov. xxix. 1. Jer. xliii. 2, 3.

^j Or, for evil.

^k 1 Kings xxii. 19-23. Is. vi. 1. 5. Dan. vii. 9, 10. Acts vii. 55, 56. ^l Gen. xxvii. 2. Ps. cii. 20, 21. Zech. i. 10. ^m Job xii. 16. Is. vi. 9, 10. liv. 16. 2 Thes. ii. 11, 12.

thods of defence. Persons in authority have much business to which they ought to attend: and they should consider that stable peace, and increasing numbers of well maintained and orderly subjects, are more honourable than the most successful wars: and whatever ability any man possesses, he should willingly devote himself to God, and serve him with it.

NOTES.

CHAP. XVIII. V. 1. Affinity, &c. Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat married Athaliah the daughter of Ahab.

Perhaps pride and ambition had some influence in forming this fatal union: but probably Jehoshaphat was allured to it, by the hopes of cementing a durable peace betwixt Judah and Israel, whom he wished to consider as brethren. Ahab perceived Jehoshaphat to be so strong that he had no hope of prevailing against him, and therefore he courted his friendship. But this affinity was evil in itself, and peculiarly dangerous to Jehoshaphat; who, though firm and courageous in resisting and overcoming opposition and difficulties, was easily persuaded by fair words into improper compliances.

entice Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one spake, saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner.

20 Then ¹ there came out a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will entice him. And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith?

21 And he said, I will go out, and be ^m a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the LORD said, ⁿ Thou shalt entice him, and thou shalt also prevail: go out, and do even so.

22 Now therefore, behold, ^o the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets, ^p and the LORD hath spoken evil against thee.

23 Then ^q Zedekiah the son of Che-naanah came near, and ^r smote Micaiah upon the cheek, and said, ^s Which way went the Spirit of the LORD from me to speak unto thee?

24 And Micaiah said, ^t Behold, thou shalt see on that day, when thou shalt go ^{*} into an inner chamber to hide thyself.

25 Then the king of Israel said, Take ye Micaiah, ^u and carry him back to Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son;

26 And say, Thus saith the king, ^v Put ^w this fellow in the prison, and feed him with ^x bread of affliction and with water of affliction, ^y until I return in peace.

27 And Micaiah said, ^z If thou certainly return in peace, ^a then hath not the LORD spoken by me. And he said, ^c Harken, all ye people.

28 ¶ So ^d the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, went up to Ramoth-gilead.

29 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, ^e I will disguise myself, and will go to the battle; but ^f put thou on thy robes. So ^g the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went to the battle.

30 Now the king of Syria had commanded the captains of the chariots that were with him, saying, ^h Fight ye not with ⁱ small or great, save only with the king of Israel.

31 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, It is the king of Israel; therefore they compassed about him to fight: but ^k Jehoshaphat cried out, and ^l the LORD helped him; and ^m God moved them to depart from him.

32 For it came to pass, that, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back again ⁿ from pursuing him.

33 And a certain man drew a bow ^o at a venture, and smote the king of Israel ^p between the joints of the harness; therefore he said to his chariot-man, Turn thine hand, that thou mayest carry me out of the host: for I am ^q wounded.

34 And the battle increased that day: howbeit the king of Israel stayed himself up in his chariot against the Syrians until the even; and about the time of the sun going down ^r he died.

V. 29. It has been thought that Ahab wished Jehoshaphat to fall by the Syrians, in expectation that the affairs of Judah would come under his management, as the father-in-law of Jehoram.

V. 31. God moved, &c. In the extremity of danger, Jehoshaphat made the Lord his refuge, who remembered his servant, though out of the path of duty, and in answer to his prayer inclined his pursuers to depart from him, by a secret but powerful influence on their minds. (Notes, 1 Kings xxi.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Abundant riches and honour do indeed give large opportunities of doing good; but they are attended with such strong temptations, as very few who possess them are able to withstand. It is therefore a certain proof, that men are not well acquainted with the artifices of Satan and the deceitfulness of their own hearts, and that they have much self-confidence, when they covet riches in order to do good; for they are far more likely to get harm by them. Among other evils, they often betray pious persons into improper marriages for themselves or their children. It appears beneath them to join affinity with inferior families; but "not many mighty or noble are called:" and so they are seduced to prefer titles and estates, to faith and holiness; and the effects are generally lamentable to themselves, to posterity, and to the cause of godliness.—We should follow peace with all men: but we ought to have no intimacies with the workers of iniquity; for their caresses, flatteries, and feasts, are more dangerous than their most embittered rage; and in fact they are frequently

VOL. II.—No. 11.

CHAP. XIX.

Jehoshaphat, on his return, is reproved by Jehu the prophet, for joining alliance with Ahab; but commended in other respects, 1—3. He visits and reforms his kingdom, 4. He gives a charge to the judges, priests, and Levites, in the cities of Judah, and at Jerusalem, 5—11.

AND Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned to his house^a in peace to Jerusalem.

2 And^b Jehu the son of Hanani^c the seer went out to meet him, and said to king Jehoshaphat, ^eShouldst thou help the ungodly, and love them that^f hate the LORD? therefore^g is wrath upon thee from before the LORD.

3 Nevertheless there are^b good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves out of the land, and hastⁱ prepared thine heart to seek God.

4 And Jehoshaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: and he^{*} went out again through the people from^k Beer-sheba to^l mount Ephraim, and^m brought them back unto the LORD God of their fathers.

5 ¶ Andⁿ he set Judges in the land throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city;

6 And said to the judges, ^oTake heed what ye do: for^p ye judge not for man, but for the LORD, who is with you in the[†] judgment.

7 Wherefore now^a let the fear of the LORD be upon you; take heed and do it: for there is^t no iniquity with the LORD our God, nor^s respect of persons, nor^t taking of gifts.

8 Moreover in Jerusalem did Jehoshaphat set^u of the Levites, and of the priests, and of the chief of the fathers of Israel, for^{*} the judgment of the LORD, and for controversies, when they returned to Jerusalem.

9 And he charged them, saying, Thus shall ye do^v in the fear of the LORD, faithfully, and with a perfect heart.

10 And what cause soever shall come to you of your brethren that dwell in their cities,^z between blood and blood, between law and commandments, statutes a xviii. 31, 32.

b xx. 34. 1 Kings
xvi. 1. 7. 12.

c xvi. 7.

d 1 Sam. ix. 9.

e xviii. 3.

f xviii. 3. 28.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

b xxix. 21, 22.

c xxix. 21, 22.

d xxix. 21, 22.

e xxix. 21, 22.

f xxix. 21, 22.

g xxix. 21, 22.

h xxix. 21, 22.

i xxix. 21, 22.

j xxix. 21, 22.

k xxix. 21, 22.

l xxix. 21, 22.

m xxix. 21, 22.

n xxix. 21, 22.

o xxix. 21, 22.

p xxix. 21, 22.

q xxix. 21, 22.

r xxix. 21, 22.

s xxix. 21, 22.

t xxix. 21, 22.

u xxix. 21, 22.

v xxix. 21, 22.

w xxix. 21, 22.

x xxix. 21, 22.

y xxix. 21, 22.

z xxix. 21, 22.

a xxix. 21, 22.

a Ez. iii. 18, 19.
xxiii. 6. Acts
xx 31.

b Num. xvi. 46.
Josh. xxii. 18.
20.

c 1 Chr. vi. 11.

d 8. 1 Chr. xxvi.
38. Mat. ii. 7.

* Heb. take counrage and do.
Josh. i. 6. 9.
1 Chr. xxii. 11.
15. 19. 1 Cor.
xvi. 13. 2 Tim.
ii. 1.

e xv. 2. Ps. xviii.
25, 26. Rom. ii.
4—11.

and judgments, ye shall even ^awarn them that they trespass not against the LORD, and so ^bwrath come upon you, and upon your brethren: this do, and ye shall not trespass.

11 And, behold, ^cAmariah the chief priest is over you in ^dall matters of the LORD: and Zebadiah the son of Ishmael, the ruler of the house of Judah, for all the king's matters: also the Levites shall be officers before you. * Deal courageously, and the LORD shall be ^ewith the good.

CHAP. XX.

Jehoshaphat, alarmed by an invasion of the Moabites and others, proclaims a fast, 1—4. His prayer, 5—13. Jahaziel, the prophet, assures him of a signal deliverance, 14—17. Jehoshaphat and his people receive the promise with adoring thankfulness, 18, 19. He exhorts them to believe, and appoints singers to praise the LORD, 20, 21. The invaders destroy one another, and the people gather immense spoils, 22—25. They bless God at Berachah, return in triumph, and enjoy peace, 26—30. Jehoshaphat's good reign and acts, 31—34. He joins with Ahaziah in sending ships to Tarshish, which are wrecked, according to the prediction of Eliezer, 35—37.

IT came to pass ^aafter this also, that ^bthe children of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and with them other a xix. 9, 10. xxxi.

1. b Ps. lxxxiii. 5—
8. Is. vii. 1 viii
9, 10. xvi. 6.

V. 5—11. In process of time irregularities and abuses in the magistracy had interrupted the regular administration of justice: but Jehoshaphat carefully reduced this likewise into order; and took care that judges and courts of justice should be established in every considerable town, for the benefit of the neighbourhood; but with appeal to the superior courts at Jerusalem. It seems that in all these courts the priests and Levites were joined with the principal persons of the other tribes: for the law of God was in an especial manner the statute-law of the realm; according to which both ecclesiastical causes, or the “judgment of the LORD,” the pleas of the crown, or “the king’s matters,” and common pleas, or “controversies,” were to be determined. This settlement was completed, when the king and his attendants returned to Jerusalem from the circuit of the land: and both in the country, and at Jerusalem, the king solemnly exhorted, and charged the magistrates to do the duty of their office, in the fear of the Lord; as acting by his authority, in his presence, under his protection, copying his impartial justice and equity, and looking forward to the account which they must shortly render to him. (Marg. Ref.)—Some interpret, blood and blood, relationship and titles to estates; but it seems rather to mean causes concerning murder, or maiming, or accidentally killing any one. The judges were required to warn the people not to transgress; as for other reasons, so lest others should be involved in the consequences of their crimes. The Targum renders part of the sixth verse in this manner: ‘Ye do not judge before the sons of men, but before the WORD of the LORD; and his glorious presence resides among you in the act of judgment.’

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Nothing but perils, wrath, and painful effects, can be expected from intimacies with ungodly men; in proportion to the degree of their avowed hatred to the character, worship, and service of God: we ought therefore to shun all needless familiarity with them, and to show them and all the world, our disapprobation of their principles and conduct; whatever may be their rank, abilities, or accomplishments, or however political interest, or relative ties may plead for a coalition. We should bear them good-will, and be ready to relieve their distress, and to help them in their most important interests; but we should be cautious of involving ourselves with their secular undertakings, and still more of concurring with them in any of their sinful projects. The unmerited mercies of God are often united with severe rebukes and corrections; and these again are moderated by tokens of his approbation, where our conduct hath been good in his sight: for he would not have those discouraged, who “prepare their hearts to seek him;” and when there are real good things found in us, he will mercifully forgive the evil that we allow not, and accept the good, through the Saviour’s advocacy. In these things we should be followers of God: we must not “hate our offending brother, nor suffer sin upon him; but in any wise re-buke him;” (Note, Lev. xix. 17.) But we should take more pleasure in commending what is evidently good; and we should bear much from those in whom good things are found. Whilst ministers must not fear or respect the persons of men, or be intimidated by the sufferings of others in the same cause, but must deliver their whole message plainly: they should also endeavour to do it with forbearance, tenderness, and candour, which will render reproofs less offensive and more effectual: when these are prudently given and properly taken, they are not only salutary, but confer honour on both parties: and when, being united with due commendations, they excite men to renewed vigilance and diligence in their proper work, they become general benefits. The tendency of human nature to evil renders unremitting vigour necessary to all those who would suppress abuses and effect reformation; for on every relaxation, evils will revive and gather strength rapidly, and all will need to be done over again. The ministry and the magistracy, when restricted to their distinct methods, may concur in promoting godliness, as well as preserving public peace: and all legal decisions should be cix. 2. Jer. x.

21 Rev. iii. 19.

beside the Ammonites, came against Jehoshaphat to battle.

2 Then there came some that told Jehoshaphat, saying, There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea on this side Syria; and, behold, they be in Hazazon-tamar, which is Engedi.

d Gen. xiv. 3
Num. xxxiv. 12
Josh iii. 16.

e Gen. xiv. 7.
f Josh. xv. 62.

g Gen. xxxii. 7-11. 24-28. Ps. lvi. 3, 4. Is. xxxvii. 3-6.
* Heb. his face.
h xi. 16. xix. 3.
i Judg. xx. 26.
j Sam. vii. 6.
k Ezra viii. 21-23. Esth. iv. 16.
Jer. xxxvi. 9.
Joel i. 14. ii. 12-13. Jon. iii. 5-9.

l Ps. xxxiv. 5, 6.
m Ex iii. 6. 15. 16.
n Chr. xxix. 18.
o Deut. iv. 39.
Josh. ii. 11.
p Kings viii. 23.
Is. lviii. 15, 16.
q Ivi. 1. Matt. vi. 9.

3 And Jehoshaphat feared, and set himself to seek the LORD, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah.

4 And Judah gathered themselves together, to ask help of the LORD: even out of all the cities of Judah they came to seek the LORD.

5 And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court,

6 And said, O LORD God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven?

and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee?

7 Art not thou our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend for ever?

8 And they dwelt therein, and have built thee a sanctuary therein for thy name, saying,

9 If, when evil cometh upon us, as the sword, judgment, or pestilence, or famine, we stand before this house, and in thy presence, (for thy name is in this house,) and cry unto thee in our affliction, then thou wilt hear and help.

10 And now, behold, the children of Ammon, and Moab, and mount Seir, whom thou wouldest not let Israel in-o1 Chr xxxix. 17.

12 Ps. xlviii. 2.
8. Dan. iv. 17.
25 32-35.
p Ps lvi. 11. Mat. vi. 13.

q xiv. 11. Gen. xvii. 7. Ex. vi. 7. xix. 5-7. xx. 2. 1 Chr xvii. 21.
-24.
r Ps. xlv. 2.
s Gen. xii. 7. xiii. 15. Josh. xxiv. 3. 13. Neh. ix. 9. t Is. xlii. 8. John xv. 15. Jam. ii. 23.
u ii. 4. vi. 19.

x vi. 28-30.
1 Kings viii. 33.
37.

y vi. 20. Ex. xx. 24. xxiii. 21.

z Num. xx. 17-21. Deut. ii. 4. 5. 9. 19. Judg. xi. 15-18.

expedited in a regular and easy method, and with little expense; that the poor may be placed, as nearly as possible, at an equal advantage with the rich, in obtaining their dues. Magistrates are the vicegerents of the Governor and Judge of the world, and are therefore to be obeyed in all things lawful for the Lord's sake. But there lies an appeal from their decisions to a superior tribunal: and they should be reminded, that they will be exposed to condemnation, if they do not act uprightly in the fear of God, without respect of persons or taking of gifts. And besides executing the laws of man impartially, it is their duty also to warn men not to trespass against the Lord, lest wrath come upon them and their brethren. They should therefore take heed and deal courageously, not fearing the displeasure of man, but confiding in the protection of God, who is with them in the judgment; that he may indeed be with them for their good. May he provide increasing numbers of good ministers and magistrates, to suppress vice, and to promote the cause of truth and holiness!

NOTES.

CHAP. XX. V. 2. This formidable armament came from beyond the dead sea.—“The fear of the LORD had fallen upon the kingdoms round about Judah;” and Jehoshaphat had so long enjoyed peace, that he seems to have neglected his military arrangements, and to have remitted of his vigilance. Perhaps his enemies observed this, and thought to take the advantage of it; and perhaps they had heard “that wrath was upon him from before the LORD” for uniting with Ahab. Accordingly they had actually invaded his dominions, before he was apprised of their intention; so that he was not able to muster his forces.

V. 3, 4. Probably this invasion took place soon after Jehoshaphat's return from Ramoth; and he was afraid that God was about to chastise his sin, by permitting the devastation of his kingdom. To avert this calamity, “he set himself to seek the LORD.” We may suppose that he made the best military arrangement of which the exigency would admit; but his chief preparation consisted in proclaiming a fast, and gathering his people together to ask help of the LORD. We have read of private fasting with prayer; of afflicting the soul at the day of atonement; of the people's fasting at the instance of Samuel the prophet; and of the people fasting by common consent; (Marg. Ref.) But the fast here mentioned was observed by the proclamation of the chief magistrate, who acted by the authority of his station, and not by the Spirit of prophecy; and the event of this measure both warrants civil governors in times of distress to act in this manner, and encourages them to expect the most important benefits from it. Every one was called upon to humble himself before God for his own sins and the sins of the public, as the aggregate of the whole. Thus they united in expressing their sorrow and self-displacement for their sins: and they publicly honoured God as the righteous author of their calamity, and as their only hope and refuge in distress. All other cares being laid aside, they were at leisure to unite in uninterrupted and fervent prayers for help and forgiveness.—Doubtless serious impressions would be made on many who before had been inattentive; the pious affections of others would be revived, and rendered more fixed and lively; and in every way it would therefore tend to the honour of God and the good of his people.

V. 5. New court. It is not known what is here meant by the new court. It is probable that Jehoshaphat had rebuilt some of the courts, or had added one to them.

V. 6. After the example of Solomon, Jehoshaphat himself offered the public prayer for this vast congregation, in words which proceeded from the abundance of his heart: but a careful examination of the marginal references will be the best comment on them.

vade, when they came out of the land of Egypt, but they turned from them, and destroyed them not:

11 Behold, I say, ^a how they reward us, to come ^b to cast us out of thy possession, which thou hast given us to inherit.

12 O our God, wilt thou not ^c judge them? for ^d we have no might against this great company that cometh against us; ^e neither know we what to do: but ^f our eyes are upon thee.

13 And ^g all Judah stood before the LORD, with their little ones, their wives, and their children.

14 ¶ Then ^h upon Jahaziel, the son of Zechariah, the son of Benaiah, the son of Jeiel, the son of Mattaniah, a Levite, of the sons of Asaph, ⁱ came the Spirit of the LORD in the midst of the congregation:

15 And he said, Harken ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat, Thus saith the LORD unto you, ^k Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for ^l the battle is not your's, but God's.

16 To-morrow go ye down against them: behold, they come up by the [†] cliff of Ziz; and ye shall find them at the end of the [‡] brook, before the wilderness of Jeruel.

17 ^m Ye shall not need to fight in this battle; set yourselves, ⁿ stand ye still, and see the salvation of the LORD with you, O Judah and Jerusalem: fear not, nor be dismayed; to-morrow go out against them: ^o for the LORD will be with you.

18 And Jehoshaphat ^p bowed his head with his face to the ground: and all Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell before the LORD, worshipping the LORD.

19 And ^q the Levites of the children of the Kohathites and of the children of the ^r Korhites, stood up to praise the LORD God of Israel, with ^s a loud voice on high.

20 And they rose early in the morning, and went forth into the wilderness of Tekoa: and, as they went forth, Jehoshaphat stood and said, ^u Hear me, O Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem; ^v Believe in the LORD your God, so shall ye be established; ^w believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper.

a Ps. vii. 4. Jer. xviii. 20.
b Ps. lxxxiii. 3-12.

c Deut. xxxii. 36. Ps. vii. 6. 8. ix. 19. xliii. 1. d xiv. 11. 1 Sam. xiv. 6. 2 Cor. i. 9.

e 2 Kings vi. 15.

f Ps. xxv. 15. cxxi. 1, 2. cxxiii. 1, 2. cxi. 8. Jon. ii. 4.

g Deut. xxix. 10. 11. Jon. iii. 5. Acts xxi. 5.

h Is. lviii. 9. lxxv. 24. Dan. ix. 20. 21. Acts x. 4. 31.

i xvi. 1. xxiv. 20. Num. xi. 25, 26. xxiv. 2.

k xxxii. 7, 8. Deut. i. 29, 30. xx. 1. 4. xxxi. 6. 8. Ps. xxxvii. 1, 2. Is. xli. 10-16.

l 1 Sam. xvii. 47.

† Heb. ascent.
‡ Or, valley.

m 22, 23. Ex. xiv. 13, 14. 25. n Ps. xlvii. 10, 11. Is xxx. 7. 15.

o xv. 2. xxxii. 8. Num. xiv. 9. Is. viii. 9, 10. Matt. i. 23. xxviii. 20. Rom. viii. 31. p vii. 3. Gen. xxiv. 25. Ex. iv. 31.

q 1 Chr. xv. 16. —22. xvi. 5. 42. xxxiii. 5. xxv. 1-7. r Ps. xlv. title.

s v. 13. Ezra iii. 12, 13. Neh. xii. 42, 43. Ps. lxxxii. 1. xcv. 1, 2.

t xii. 6. 2 Sam. xiv. 2. 1 Chr. iv. 5. Jer. vi. 1. u 15.

x Is. vii. 9. xxvi. 3. Rom. viii. 31. y Ex. xiv. 31. John xiii. 20.

V. 10, 11. The mention of mount Seir, the country of Edom, shows what is meant in the first verse by "other beside the Ammonites."—The Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites, had been expressly named as nations whom Israel must not invade: and the divine admonition had been exactly attended to. Other wars indeed had brought some of them under the dominion of Judah and Israel: but it seems the superiority had been used with gentleness, and no reason had been given for this violent assault; in which, it is probable, the confederates meant to destroy the kingdom of Judah and the house of David; as well as to expel the people of God, from that land which was "his possession;" so that the war was indeed waged against the LORD himself.

V. 12. The language of this verse is peculiarly expressive of humble genuine faith. The appeal, as to the justice of the cause, is simply yet emphatically made to God: and the inability of Jehoshaphat, and the small force he had hastily collected to resist so vast an army; the perplexity to which he was reduced; and his only refuge from despair, by firmly relying on the Almighty, and expecting help from him, as pleading his own cause in pleading their's, are stated in the most natural and affecting manner; (Marg. Ref.) "In this declining state of the church, let us say daily with Jehoshaphat, "We know not what to do; but our eyes are unto thee." "Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory." "Thou art our King and our Shepherd. Thou only art powerful, we are infirm: but thy power will be perfected in our weakness." "Not unto us, O LORD, but unto thy name give the glory; for thy mercy and thy truth's sake." "Such addresses will illustrate this prayer, better than the largest commentaries." (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 13. With, &c. Not only the women and children, that were grown up, attended on this occasion, but the infants also: for, it is probable the people intended their presence as a silent plea with the Lord to have mercy upon them, for the sake of their helpless offspring. (Note, Jonah iv. 11.)

V. 14—17. The Lord did not speak, on this occasion, by the high-priest, but by an ordinary Levite, who it is probable was an eminently pious person. Whether he had previously been known as a prophet, or not, all present were satisfied that he spake by the Spirit of God. He assured them of the Lord's immediate interposition; for as the battle immediately concerned his honour, it would be decided by his power. Without any fear of the multitude of their invaders, they were ordered to march forth the next day, not to fight, but to witness the salvation of the Lord with them, and his answer to their fervent prayers.

V. 18, 19. The king and his people, placing the most entire confidence in the divine promise, at once anticipated its fulfilment, and directly joined in songs of gratitude and praise for this yet unaccomplished deliverance.

z 1 Chr. xli. 12.

Prov. xi. 14.

a xxix. 25—30.

Ezra iii. 10, 11.

b Heb. praisers

of.

b 1 Chr. xvi. 29.

Ps. xxix. 2 1.

9. xc. 17. xcvi.

9.

c v. 13 vii. 3. 6.

1 Chr. xvi. 34.

41. Ezra iii. 11.

Ps. cvi. 1 cvii.

1. cxxxvi. 1.

8c. Jer. xxxiii.

11.

|| Heb. in the time that, &c.

• Heb. in singing and praise.

d Judg. vii. 22.

1 Sam. xiv. 16.

20. 2 Kings vi.

17. Ps. xxxv. 5.

6. Is. xix. 2.

Ez. xxxviii. 21.

† Or, smote one another

|| Heb. for the de- struction.

e Ex. xiv. 20.

Ps. cx. 6. Is.

xxxvii. 36. Jer.

xxxiii. 5.

† Heb. there was not an escaping.

f Ex. xli. 25, 36.

1 Sam. xxx. 19.

20. 2 Kings vii.

8. 16. Ps. lxxviii.

12. Rom. viii.

37.

g Prov. iii. 15.

21 And when he had ^z consulted with the people, he ^a appointed singers unto the LORD, and that should ^δ praise ^b the beauty of holiness, as they went out before the army, and to say, ^c Praise the LORD; for his mercy endureth for ever.

22 And || when they began * to sing and to praise, ^d the LORD set ambushments against the children of Ammon, Moab, and mount Seir, which were come against Judah; and they † were smitten.

23 For the children of Ammon and Moab stood up against the inhabitants of mount Seir, utterly to slay and destroy them: and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Seir, every one helped ‡ to destroy another.

24 And when Judah came toward the watch-tower in the wilderness, they looked unto the multitude, and, behold, they were ^e dead bodies fallen to the earth, and ^δ none escaped.

25 And when Jehoshaphat and his people came to take away the spoil of them, ^f they found among them in abundance both riches with the dead bodies, and ^g precious jewels, which they stripped off for themselves, more than they could carry away: and they were three days in gathering of the spoil, it was so much.

26 And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of || Berachah; for there they ^b blessed the LORD: therefore ⁱ the name of the same place was called, The valley of Berachah ^k unto this day.

27 Then they returned, every man of Judah and Jerusalem, and Jehoshaphat in the * forefront of them, to go again to Jerusalem with joy; for ^l the LORD had made them to rejoice over their enemies.

28 And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries, and harps, and trumpets, unto the house of the LORD.

29 And ^m the fear of God was on all the kingdoms of those countries, when ⁿ they had heard that the LORD fought against the enemies of Israel.

30 So the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet: for ^o his God gave him rest round about.

31 ¶ And ^p Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah: he was thirty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Azubah, the daughter of Shilhi.

32 And ^q he walked in ^r the way of Asa || Blessing.

h Ex. xv. 1—18.

2 Sam. xxii. 1.

Ps. ciii. 1, 2.

cvii. 21, 22.

Luke i. 68. Rev.

xix. 1—5

i Gen. xxviii. 19.

xxii. 30. Ex.

xvii. 16. 1 Sam.

xii. 12. Is. lxiii.

4. Acts i. 19.

k v. 9.

* Heb. head.

2 Sam. vii. 15.

Mic. ii. 13. Heb.

vi. 20.

l Neh. xii. 43. Ps.

xx. 5. xxxi. 1.

Is. xxxv. 10 11.

11. Rev. xviii.

29.

m xvii. 10. Gen.

xxxv. 5. Josh.

v. 1. 2 Kings

vii. 6.

n Ex. xv. 14—16.

Josh. ii. 9—11.

ix. 9—11.

o xiv. 6, 7. xv.

15. Josh. xxxiii.

1. 2 Sam. vii. 1.

Job xxxiv. 29.

Prov. xvi. 7.

John xiv. 27.

p 1 Kings xxii.

41—44.

q xvii. 3—6.

r xiv. 2—5. 11—

13. 1 Kings xv.

11.

V. 20, 21. Jehoshaphat seems not much to have regarded the arrangement of his army; for he so firmly believed the words of the prophet, that he marched forth as to a triumph, and not to a battle: accordingly he exhorted his troops to a firm faith in God, and an entire reliance on his power, faithfulness, and covenanted mercy to his people; and a confident expectation, that all his words spoken to them by his prophets should be accomplished: thus, and thus only, could they be established, and prosper. He also caused singers to go before the army, “that should praise “the beauty of holiness:” that is, according to some expositors, exactly as they used to do at his beautiful sanctuary. But perhaps the expression rather means, that they should celebrate the glorious excellencies of his holy character, which render him the perfection of beauty, and the meet object of the most absolute love, confidence, and delight of all his rational creatures, especially, as “his mercy “which endureth for ever,” is displayed in perfect harmony with his more awful attributes.

V. 22—25. Some commentators, both ancient and modern, think that angels were employed on this occasion, who came on the invaders by surprise, and slew some of them: and that the survivors supposed themselves assaulted by their confederates; and so retaliated, till they fell into utter confusion, and entirely destroyed one another. But perhaps the Lord only left the several nations to a natural distrust and jealousy of each other: and thus some of them formed ambushments against the rest, which ensued in their mutual destruction. Or, perhaps, the ambushments placed against the Jews, fell by mistake on their own allies. This however fulfilled God's purpose, as effectually as if he had placed the ambushments, or they had acted in obedience to his commandments. The slaughter was universal, and the spoil immense: so that this invasion served exceedingly to enrich Jehoshaphat and his kingdom.

V. 26. Berachah signifies blessing. Having previously sought deliverance, by fasting and prayer, and received the assurance of it with grateful joy, Jehoshaphat and his army returned immediate and most fervent thanks and praise to the Lord, who had in so wonderful a manner performed his promise. The whole forms a most remarkable and instructive history: and no undertaking, recorded in Scripture, was entered on, conducted, and concluded in a more unexceptionable manner.

V. 29, 30. When the surrounding nations perceived how wonderfully the Lord had destroyed this powerful armament, they dared not to attack Jehoshaphat any more; and thus God gave him rest round about, which continued during the remainder of his reign.

s xvi. 7-12.

his father, and ^s departed not from it, doing that which was right in the sight of the LORD.

• xiv. 3. xvii. 6.

33 Howbeit ^t the high places were not taken away: for as yet the people had not prepared their hearts unto the God of their fathers.

u xii. 14. xix. 3.

34 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, first and last, behold, they are written in the ^{} book of ^{} Jehu the son of Hanani, who is [†] mentioned in the book of the kings of Israel.

• Heb. words.

x xix 2. 1 Kings

xvi. 1. 7.

• Heb. made to ascend.

B. C. 898.

y 1 Kings xxii.

48, 49.

35 ¶ And after this ^v did Jehosha-phat king of Judah join himself with Ahaziah king of Israel, ^z who did very wickedly: z 2 Kings 12-16.

36 And he joined himself with him to make ships to go to ^a Tarshish: and they made the ships in ^b Ezion-gaber.

a 1 Kings x. 22.

Tarshish

b 1 Kings ix. 26.

Ezion-gaber.

37 Then Eliezer the son of Dodavah of Mareshah, prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, ^c Because thou hast joined thyself with Ahaziah, ^d the LORD hath broken thy works. And the ships were broken, that they were not able to go to Tarshish.

c xix. 2.

d xvi. 9. Prov. ix

6. xiii. 20 Heb

xii. 6.

V. 33. The minds of the people were not suitably prepared for the regular and cordial worship of God at Jerusalem: so that Jehoshaphat either did not dare to attempt, or was not able to effect, an entire and abiding suppression of all those high places where God was irregularly worshipped.

V. 35-37. Jehoshaphat's affinity with Ahab's family drew him in to join in this traffick with wicked Ahaziah; for which he was rebuked and chastened; and afterwards he refused to join with him. Ahaziah died within less than two years after Ahab, and Jehoshaphat survived him for a considerable time. (Marg. Ref.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-13.

Uninterrupted peace must not be expected in this world, even when we are most devotedly serving God. The enemies of true religion are the more exasperated by our zeal to promote it; our own miscarriages require rebukes; trials are needful to repress pride; and difficulties form the proper exercise and discovery of our faith, love, patience, and hope in God. Thus his honour, the edification of others, the good of our own souls, and our situation in the midst of ungodly men, all require that "in the world we should have tribulation."—In calamities or dangers, public or personal, our first business should be to seek help from God. When two or three agree in doing this, that concurrence adds energy to their supplications: how much more then, when multitudes with one accord pour out their fervent supplications for the same common blessing! Hence the advantage of days appointed for national fasting and prayer. Such seasons remind the remnant of believers to unite in the same requests, as with one heart and voice: and even the cries of natural men for outward mercies form an honourable acknowledgment of God, and of their entire dependence on him; and frequently receive a gracious answer. It is therefore commendable in christian princes to call their people to these solemn services, and indeed a most important part of their duty, and true wisdom: but it can scarcely be supposed that the mere appointment is sufficient: unless their own example proves that they are in earnest in the sacred service, let who will be formal. It is also the duty of every individual, according to his station in the community, to concur in such pious measures, and to stir up himself and those around him to engage cordially in them, that good impressions may be made, fixed, or revived in the minds of men in every place.—What then shall we think of those, who call themselves Christians and patriots; yet, not only neglect, but ridicule or revile, this scriptural method of seeking help in danger, from our almighty Friend, after an example so honoured by God himself! or of those, who give occasion to such reproach and contempt by their absurd and manifest hypocrisy in these observances!—The fear of wrath, when united with a hope of mercy, excites sinners to seek the Lord in good earnest; and is often useful to quicken the believer, when his love subsides, and he grows sluggish in the concerns of his soul. We must, therefore, first approach the holy majesty of our God with humiliation for our sin, justifying him in all we suffer or fear, and confiding only in his mercy for acceptance, and in his power for protection. And in all ages of the church, fasting has been deemed an expedient attendant upon such exercises, on particular occasions, personal and public, being expressive of a mind abstracted from and disrelishing earthly things, conscious of having forfeited every enjoyment by sin, and attentive only to obtain the great objects which the soul is then pursuing.—Every believer is a son of Abraham and a friend of God: with all such the everlasting covenant is established, and to them every promise belongs. Even in those distresses, which are intended for the correction of their sins, when they cry unto the Lord, he will hear and help them. Their enemies are his; and when they are rewarded with evil for good, HE will appear for them and plead their cause. When they are the most indisposed to avenge themselves, and least able to ward off injuries, their dependence on God will become more unreserved, and their prayers more fervent: and he will no more forsake those who know not what to do, but look up to him alone for help, than a fond mother will desert her helpless infant, that clings to her bosom, and knows and seeks no other refuge.—Indeed this is the very frame of mind to which he designs to form his people. The covenant is made with believers for the good of their children after them; and they should bring them and the rest of their families, as soon as possible, to the ordinances of God, that they may be trained up in his house, and become truly a part of his family.

CHAP. XXI.

Jehoshaphat dies; Jehoram succeeds, slays his brethren, and reigns wickedly, 1—7. Edom and Libnah revolt, 8—10. He establishes idolatry, 11. Elijah's written prophecy against him, 12—15. The Philistines and Arabians invade and plunder his kingdom, and carry all his family captive except Jehouhaz, 16, 17. Elijah's prophecy fulfilled in his incurable disease and death; and his disgraceful funeral, 18—20.

a¹ Kings xxii.
50.
b 20.

NOW ^a Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and ^b was buried with his

V. 14—35.

The Lord will surely speak peace to those who seek him in due manner: and when his word banishes our fears and calms our spirits, our prayers are answered in good measure, even previously to those providential deliverances, of which we have received a blessed pledge. —If our sins are pardoned, God is for us; and, “if He be for us, who can be against us?” We need not be dismayed at the number and power of our enemies, or on account of our own weakness: the battle is the Lord’s, and the victory is sure. We have only to observe his word of command, whether he call us to labour, to wrestle, and strive; or whether it become our part to “stand still, and to see the salvation of the LORD.” When vigorous faith receives the promises, their accomplishment is anticipated with humble gratitude. The Christian soldier may sing his songs of triumph, when marching to or conflicting in his spiritual battles, being assured of being more than conqueror, through the Saviour who hath loved him: and thus the joy and praise of the church militant emulate and anticipate those of the church triumphant. But, alas! our faith is apt to waver, and then our joys decline: believers need frequent exhortations to persevering faith and hope in God; and it becomes the strong thus to animate the weak. But as we cannot know the truth and promises of God, except by his prophets and apostles; how can we believe in him, unless we firmly credit their infallible testimony, as recorded in the sacred Scriptures? In proportion as we expect protection in this way from God, in obedient faith, we shall be established, and prosper; and shall adore the beauty of the divine holiness and the everlasting mercy of God in Christ Jesus, with thankful hearts: and the more generally this is done, the greater stability and success will attend the affairs of the nation. When we proceed in this manner, our enemies will fall before us; our trials will prove our gain; and our very sorrows will enrich our souls with more abundant rejoicing. The advantage will be all our own; but the whole glory will be ascribed to the Lord. We should always render our tribute of praise and gratitude for mercies received, when our hearts are impressed with a lively sense of the loving-kindness of God:

fathers in the city of David. And ^c Jehoram his son reigned in his stead. ^{c 2 Kings viii. 16, 17.}

2 And he had brethren, the sons of Jehoshaphat, Azariah, and Jehiel, and Zechariah, and Azariah, and Michael, and Shephatiah: all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat king of Israel.

3 And their father ^d gave them great gifts of silver, and of gold, and of precious things, with fenced cities in Judah: but the kingdom gave he to Jehoram: because he was the first born. ^{d xi. 23. Gen. xxv. 6.}

4 Now when Jehoram was risen up to the kingdom of his father, he strengthened himself, and ^e slew all his brethren with the sword, and divers also of the princes of Israel. ^{e 17. xxii. 8. 19. Gen. iv. 8. Judg. xi. 56, 57. 1 John iii. 12.}

as thanksgivings for public or private benefits, grow vapid by delay. But, alas! we find very few that are so prompt at returning thanks for favours vouchsafed, as they were in crying for relief in the hour of distress. (Luke xvii. 11—19.) Blessed be God, there are some honourable exceptions, whose example proves very useful to others also. —Mercy thus sought and improved will be durable; and if God give us rest, none will dare to molest us. —But the best of men seldom shine so bright in prosperity as in adversity, and even relapses into sin may be noticed in very valuable characters, which the Lord will mark with rebukes and chastenings. Many things must also remain imperfect in the church on earth; for there are many desirable regulations which the greatest reformers have not ventured to attempt, or have not been able to accomplish: and indeed, except men’s hearts are prepared to seek the Lord, magistrates and ministers can do nothing effectual. The zealous however will never labour in vain. Much good will be done, though not all they desire. God will graciously accept their endeavours; and in heaven they will be associated with the spirits of just men made perfect, and be made like them in holiness and felicity.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXI. V. 2. The second Azariah, in the original, is called Azariahu.

V. 3. Perhaps Jehoram had acted the hypocrite during his father’s life-time: but if he showed his evil disposition, Jehoshaphat, having no command from God, did not think it proper to set him aside; otherwise his brethren were better than he, more wise and more righteous; (13.) The succession of so vile a wretch as Jehoram, to pious Jehoshaphat, was a just judgment upon the men of Judah for “not having prepared their hearts unto the God of their fathers,” during the preceding reigns.

V. 4. On one pretence or other Jehoram cruelly slew all his brethren, out of a jealous ambition, lest they should supplant him in his authority; which was probably increased by their reputation and favour with the people; and the affluence and authority to which Jehoshaphat had raised them. He slew some of the princes also, who perhaps had favoured them. Some think these were the magistrates whom Jehoshaphat had appointed. (xix.)

5 Jehoram was thirty and two years old when he began to reign, and ¹he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

6 And he walked ²in the way of the kings of Israel, like as did the house of Ahab; for ³he had the daughter of Ahab to wife: and he wrought that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD.

7 Howbeit ⁴the LORD would not destroy the house of David, ⁵because of the covenant that he had made with David, and ⁶as he promised to give a ⁷* light to him and to his sons for ever.

8 ¶ In his days ⁸the Edomites revolted from under the ⁹† dominion of Judah, ¹⁰and made themselves a king.

9 Then Jehoram went forth with his princes, and all his chariots with him: and he rose up by night, and smote the Edomites which compassed him in, and the captains of the chariots.

10 So the Edomites revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day. The same time also did ¹¹° Lionah revolt from under his hand; ¹²because he had forsaken the LORD God of his fathers.

11 Moreover ¹³he made high places in the mountains of Judah, and ¹⁴caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to commit ¹⁵* fornication, and ¹⁶compelled Judah thereto.

12 ¶ And there came ¹⁷a writing to him from ¹⁸* Elijah the prophet, saying, Thus saith the LORD God of David thy father, Because thou hast not walked ¹⁹in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor ²⁰in the ways of Asa king of Judah, 13 But hast walked ²¹a in the way of the kings of Israel, and hast made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to go a ²²b whoring, like to the whoredoms of the house of Ahab, and also ²³c hast slain thy brethren of thy father's house, which were better than thyself:

14 Behold, with a great ²⁴† plague will the LORD smite ²⁵d thy people, and ²⁶e thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods.

15 And thou shalt have great sickness ²⁷f by disease of thy bowels, until ²⁸g thy bowels fall out, by reason of ²⁹h the sickness day by day.

16 ¶ Moreover ³⁰i the LORD stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the ³¹k Philistines, and of the Arabians, that were near the Ethiopians:

17 And they came up into Judah, and brake into it, and ³²l carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, and ³³m his sons also, and his wives; so that there was never a son left him, save ³⁴n Jehoahaz, the youngest of his sons.

18 And after all this the LORD smote him in his bowels with ³⁵o an incurable ³⁶p disease.

19 And it came to pass, that in process of time, after the end of two years, his bowels fell out by reason of his sickness: so he died of sore diseases: and his people

V. 5—11. (Notes, 2 Kings viii. 16—25.) Jehoram, though he obtained some advantages over the Edomites, could not re-establish his dominion. Libnah seems to have revolted, rather than submit to his idolatrous impositions.—The inhabitants of Jerusalem were induced by his persuasions to fall in with his idolatry; but the other parts of Judah were compelled to it by persecution.—All kinds of licentious and unnatural practices, to the extreme disgrace of human nature, were encouraged and even held sacred, in the worship of these abominable idols; as may undeniably be proved even from pagan authors!

V. 12. If the account of Elijah's translation be given according to the order of time in which it occurred, it happened before Jehoram reigned alone; (Marg. Ref.) But the Spirit of prophecy might direct Elijah to prepare this writing before his translation, in the foresight of Jehoram's crimes; and it might be left to Elisha, or some other prophet, to transmit it to him: and coming to him in that extraordinary manner, it would have a peculiarly awful energy.—But some have conjectured that Elisha, and not Elijah is here intended.—The opinion, found in Josephus, the Septuagint, and elsewhere, that this letter was sent by Elijah from heaven, only shows that the papists have not the honour of being the first inventors of such legendary tales.

V. 13. Better. Jehoram's brethren seem to have been pious persons, and hated for the same cause as Abel was hated by Cain.

V. 14. Many of the people had concurred in Jehoram's idolatry, and some of them must have been instruments in his base unnatural murders. They were therefore joined in his punishment; and he suffered by losing his subjects.

V. 16, 17. The spirit of these invaders was stirred up against Jehoram, and they seem not to have done any great mischief to the country or to Jerusalem. Having taken captive all his sons, except Jehoahaz or Ahaziah, (names of similar meaning,) they put them to death.—Athaliah the daughter of Ahab was left, to be a still further curse to the family of Jehoram. It is probable that she concealed herself and her youngest son.

o xvi. 14. Jer. o
xxxiv. 9.

made no burning for him, like the burning of his fathers.

p 5.

20 ^p Thirty and two years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years, and departed without * being desired. Howbeit they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings.

* Heb. without desire. xxiii. 21.
Prov. x. 7. Jer.
xxii. 18, 19. 28.

CHAP. XXII.

Ahaziah succeeds Jehoram, reigns wickedly, joins Jehoram king of Israel, and is slain by Jehu, 1—9. Athaliah murders the seed royal, and usurps the throne, 10. Joash is preserved by Jehoshabeath, 11, 12.

V. 18—20. Jehoram lived to witness the fulfilment of the other most afflictive particulars of Elijah's prophecy; and then he was seized with the predicted malady. He was a young man, yet he could get no relief from the most painful and loathsome disease; and "he departed without "being desired." No one regretted his death, as none had desired his recovery; but the idolaters, and even his dependents, were glad to be relieved from his tyranny: they therefore burnt no sweet spices in honour of him, and refused to bury him among their former kings.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The effects of sin may be very dreadful and durable, even when it doth not prove finally destructive to him that committed it.—No means can ensure divine grace to our children: but connexions with atrocious sinners almost render their ungodliness certain.—We are reminded to bless God for equitable rulers, a mild administration, and a well poised constitution, and to pray for a continuation of these blessings: for notwithstanding the most prudent regulations, we may be suddenly and irreparably bereaved of them, unless God mercifully protect us.—Ambition, envy, and jealousy destroy natural affection, and convert men into savage monsters, when they have got power in possession and are afraid of losing it, and when there is no fear of God before their eyes. In the mystery of Providence such men prosper for a time, and murder much wiser and better men than themselves: but the Lord hath righteous purposes in permitting such events; part of which may now be discerned, and all the rest will be discovered by the light of the eternal world.—The vilest characters are in some way connected in the great chain of causes and effects: and are reserved to be undesignedly instrumental in carrying on the purposes of God, and in fulfilling his promises to his church and servants: or they are spared a while, for the sake of their relation to those whom he delighteth to honour. But his plan will not long require them; their measure of iniquities will speedily be full, and then all

AND ^a the inhabitants of Jerusalem made ^b Ahaziah his youngest son king in his stead: for the band of men that came with the Arabians to the camp had ^c slain all the eldest. So Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah reigned.

2 ^d Forty and two years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was ^e Athaliah the daughter of Omri.

3 He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab: for ^f his mother was his ^g counsellor to do wickedly.

4 Wherefore he did evil in the sight of the LORD, like the house of Ahab: for ^h they were his counsellors, after the death of his father, to his destruction.

a xxiii. 3. xxvi.
1. xxxiii. 25.
xxxvi. 1.
b 6. Asariah xvi.
17. Jehoshaph.
1 Chr. iii. 11.

e xxi. 16, 17.

d 2 Kings viii. 26.

e xxi. 6. 1 Kings
xvi. 28.

f Gen. vi. 4, 5.
Deut. xiii. 6—9.
Judg. xvii. 4, 5.
Neh. xii. 23—
27. Mal. ii. 16.
Matt. xiv. 8—11.
g Gen. xxvii. 12.
13. Matt. x. 37.
h xxiv. 17, 18.
Prov. i. 10. xii.
20. xix. 27.

their prosperity will end in ruin and despair.—The Lord, by one means or other, reminds offenders of their guilt, and warns them of their danger: and they who despise these admonitions, will experience the truth of them when it is too late; for when neither judgments nor respites bring men to repentance, destruction cannot be far distant.—The dreadful torments and deaths of some murderers, persecutors, and other haughty criminals who defy human justice, proclaim, that "Verily there is a God, that judgeth "the earth," and show what all such enemies of God and man may expect, in the day of wrath and righteous vengeance. None need lament the departure of those who were plagues and tempters whilst they lived: and it may be right, in some cases, to withhold customary respect from them after their death, that other tyrants, whilst surrounded by sycophants who flatter them in their crimes, may understand how they are despised and abhorred in the general sentiments of mankind. May the Lord enable us so to live, that we may have hope and comfort in the approach and agonies of death, and a joyful entrance into glory; and that our survivors may have to bless God for the benefit they have received from us, and to regret their loss of us! Of this we should be ambitious; and such honour have all the saints of God.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXII. V. 1. The Arabians seem to have taken Jehoram's family captive, in prospect of obtaining a ransom: but some band of men in their camp slew them; and thus defeated their purpose, but accomplished that of God.

V. 2. Forty-two. As Jehoram was under forty years old when he died, it must be granted that this is an error of the transcribers, and that it should be twenty-two, as in Kings, and in some ancient versions. Ahaziah was born when his father was eighteen years of age, yet he had several elder brethren: so that Jehoram must have been married to Athaliah when he was very young; and this circumstance rendered Jehoshaphat's conduct in this alliance still more blame-worthy.

i Ps. i. 1.

R 2 Kings viii.
28, 29.i xviii. 3. 31. xix.
2. 1 Kings xxii.
3. 4. Dan. v. 22, 23.* Heb. with which they wounded him.m i. 7. Ahaziah.
xxi. 17. Jehoahaz.
n 2 Kings viii.
29. x. 13, 14.† Heb. treading down. Mal. iv. 3.
o x. 15. Judg.
xiv. 4. 1 Kings
xiii. 15. xxii. 20.
Ps. ix. 16. Is.
xvi. 10.
p 2 Kings ix. 21
q 1 Kings xix. 16.
2 Kings ix. 1—7.r 2 Kings x. 11—14.

s 2 Kings ix. 27.

t 1 Kings xiii. 32.

u 2 Kings ix. 28.
34.
x. xvii. 3. 4. xxi.
20.
y i. 8. xxii. 4. 17.

5 Heⁱ walked also after their counsel, and^k went with Jehoram the son of Ahab king of Israel, to war against Hazael king of Syria at^l Ramoth-gilead: and the Syrians smote Joram.

6 And he returned to be healed in Jezreel, because of the wounds^{*} which were given him at Ramah, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria. And m Azariah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went downⁿ to see Jehoram the son of Ahab at Jezreel, because he was sick.

7 And the[†] destruction of Ahaziah^o was of God by coming to Joram: for when he was come,^p he went out with Jehoram against Jehu the son of Nimshi, whom^q the LORD had anointed to cut off the house of Ahab.

8 And it came to pass, that^r when Jehu was executing judgment upon the house of Ahab, and found the princes of Judah, and the sons of the brethren of Ahaziah, that ministered to Ahaziah, he slew them.

9 And^s he sought Ahaziah; and they caught him, (for he was held^t in Samaria,) and brought him to Jehu: and when they had slain him, they buried him:

u Because, said they, he is^x the son of Jehoshaphat, who sought the LORD with all his heart. So^y the house of Ahaziah had no power to keep still the kingdom.

10 But when^z Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed-royal of the house of Judah.

11 But^a Jehoshabeath the daughter of the king took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, and put him and his nurse in a^b bed-chamber. So Jehoshabeath the daughter of king Jehoram, the wife of^c Jehoiada the priest, (for she was the sister of Ahaziah,) hid him from Athaliah, so that^d she slew him not.

12 And he was with them^e hid in the house of God six years: and^f Athaliah reigned over the land.

CHAP. XXIII.

Jehoiada takes proper measures, and makes Joash king, 1—12. Athaliah is slain, 12—15. Jehoiada subverts idolatry; restores the worship of God, and places Joash on the throne, to the great joy of the people, 16—21.

AND in the^a seventh year Jehoiada strengthened himself, and took the captains of hundreds, Azariah the son of z 2—4. 2 Kings

xi. 1, &c.a 2 Kings xi. 2
Jehosheba.

b Ex. xl. 45, 46.

c xxiii. 1.
d xxi. 7. 2 Sam.
vii. 18. 1 Kings
xv. 4. Ps. xxiii.
10. lxxvi. 16.
Is. lxxv. 8. Acts
iv. 20.e Ps. xxvii. 5.
f Is. xii. 8. lxxiii.
14. 18. 19. Jer.
xii. 1. Hab.
12.B. C. 878.
a 2 Kings xi. 4,
&c.

V. 5. ' Ahaziah would not imitate his grandfather in that which was good:—yet he followed his bad example ' in joining with Ahab's son, as Jehoshaphat had with ' Ahab.' (Bp. Patrick.)—This propensity in human nature, not only to copy bad examples, but even to select the bad part of good characters for imitation, is an awful and conclusive proof of deep depravity.

V. 6. The name given the king of Judah in this verse though in the translation it varies only in a single letter, is more different in the original, and seems to have been a distinct name by which he was known.—It signifies the help of the LORD.

V. 7. The Lord was pleased to commission Jehu, at this crisis, in order that Ahaziah might be involved in the righteous judgment which was executed upon the house of Ahab.

V. 8. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 9. Ahaziah lay concealed in some part of the kingdom of Samaria, though not in the city so called. When he had seen Jehoram slain, he fled, and endeavoured to conceal himself in some part of that country: but Jehu ordered him to be pursued, and at length he was taken at Megiddo, and brought to Jehu, who ordered him to be put to death. His servants were however permitted to carry his corpse to Jerusalem, and bury him out of respect to the memory of Jehoshaphat his grandfather: whilst Jehoram was left unburied, in detestation of his father Ahab's enormous wickedness.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

No tongue can express, no imagination can conceive the guilt and condemnation of those parents who counsel their own children to do wickedly, and who thus become their murderers in the most awful sense! Yet this fatal calamity to families and to society, is frequently the consequence of contracting marriages with wicked people!—They, who are not previously disposed to ungodliness and vice, will not hearken to such pernicious counsellors: and neither the persuasion, authority, example, nor favour even of a parent, is to be regarded, when the will and honour of God are concerned. But when men hate the truth and service of God, they are judicially left to be seduced and deceived, till their impolicy and impiety concur in bringing destruction upon them.—There is no fleeing or hiding from that evil which pursueth sinners; or from those instruments, that God employs to execute judgment upon his enemies: and the external respect paid to them, for the sake of pious ancestors, will not Jehoram, and Ishmael the son of Jehohanan, and Azariah the son of Obed, and Maaseiah the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri, into ^b covenant with him.

2 And they ^c went about in Judah, and gathered the Levites out of all the cities of Judah, and ^d the chief of the fathers of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem.

3 And all the congregation ^e made a covenant with the king in the house of God. And he said unto them, Behold, the king's son shall reign, ^f as the LORD hath said of the sons of David.

4 This is the thing that ye shall do; A third part of you ^g entering on the sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, shall be ^h porters of the * doors;

5 And a third part shall be at ⁱ the king's house; and a third part at ^k the gate of the foundation: and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD.

6 But let none come into the house of the LORD save the priests, and ^l they that minister of the Levites; they shall go in, for they are holy: but all the people shall keep the watch of the LORD.

7 And ^m the Levites shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand; and ⁿ whosoever else cometh into the house, he shall be put to death: but be you with the king when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

8 So ^o the Levites and all Judah did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest had commanded, and took every man his men that were to come in on the sabbath, with them that were to go out on the sabbath: for Jehoiada the priest dismissed not ^p the courses.

9 Moreover Jehoiada the priest delivered to the captains of hundreds, ^q spears, and bucklers, and shields, that had been king David's, which were in the house of God.

10 And he set all the people, every man having his weapon in his hand, from the right ^r side of the temple to the left side of the temple, ^s along by the altar and the temple, by the king round about.

11 Then ^t they brought out the king's son, and ^u put upon him the crown, and gave him ^v the testimony, and made him king. And Jehoiada and his sons ^w appointed him, and said, ^x God save the king.

12 ¶ Now ^y when Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, ^z she came to the people into the house of the LORD:

13 And she looked, and, behold, ^a the king stood at his pillar at the entering in, ^b and the princes and the trumpets by the king: and ^c all the people of the land rejoiced, and ^d sounded with trumpets; also ^e the singers with instruments of music; and such as taught to sing praise. Then Athaliah rent her clothes, and said ^f Treason, Treason.

14 ¶ Then Jehoiada the priest brought out the captains of hundreds that were set over the host, and said unto them, Have her forth of the ranges: and ^g whoso followeth her, let him be slain with the sword. For the priest said, ^h Slay her not in the house of the LORD.

15 So they laid hands on her; and when she was come to the entering ⁱ of p 1 Chr. xxiv. xxv. xxvi.

q 1 Sam. xxi. 9. 2 Sam. viii. 7

r Heb. shoulder of the house. 2 Kings xi. 11. s vi. 12. Ex. xl. 6. Matt. xxiii. 35.

s xxii. 11. 1 Kings ii. 12. t 2 Sam. i. 10. Ps. xxi. 3. lxxxix. 39. cxxxii. 18. Heb. ii. 9. Jam. i. 12. ii. 5. Rev. iv. 4. 10 v. 10. ix. 13.

u Ex. xxv. 16. xxxi. 18. Deut. xvii. 18. Ps. ii. 10-12. lxxviii. 5. Is. viii. 16. 20. xlix. 23.

x 1 Sam. x. 1. 2 Sam. v. 3. 1 Kings i. 39. Ps. lxxxix. 20. Acts iv. 26, 27. y 2 Kings xi. 13-16.

z 2 Kings ix. 32-37. a xxxiv. 31. 2 Kings xxiii. 3. b Num. x. 1-10. 1 Chr. xv. 24. c 1 Kings i. 39, 40. 1 Chr. xii. 40. Prov. xi. 10. xxix. 2. d Judg. vii. 8. 18. 22. 2 Kings ix. 13.

e 1 Chr. xv. 16-22. 27. xxv. 1-8. f Heb. conspiracy. 1 Kings xviii. 17, 18. 2 Kings ix. 23. Rom. ii. 1, 2. g 2 Kings x. 25. xi. 8. 15. g Ex. ix. 7.

h Neh. iii. 29.

prevent the ruin of their own souls, or that of their families.—The most desperate and prosperous workers of iniquity, who are hardened against every natural affection, as well as all remains of the fear of God, can do no more than execute his righteous purposes: but he will not suffer his promises to be broken; and if infants, or pious persons, be permitted to be cut off in such unnatural massacres, he will set all right in the eternal world.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIII. V. 3. These "chief fathers of Israel" seem to have been the descendants of those priests and Levites from the ten tribes, who left their cities and joined themselves to Judah, in the days of Jeroboam. (Marg. Ref.) The word Israel, however, is sometimes used as a general term for the nation, and so applied to the people of Judah.

V. 6. "The house of the LORD" must here mean the inner court: for no mere Levites entered the sanctuary. This serves to show, that on some occasions the people were admitted into the inner courts; else the injunction had been needless.

V. 11. Probably Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, who was afterwards stoned by Joash's command, assisted in crowning and appointing him.

the horse-gate, by the king's house, they slew her there.

16 And Jehoiada ^k made a covenant between him, and between all the people, and between the king, ^l that they should be the Lord's people.

17 Then all the people went to ^m the house of Baal, and brake it down, and ⁿ brake his altars and his images in pieces, and ^o slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars.

18 Also Jehoiada appointed the officers of the house of the LORD by the hand of the priests the Levites, ^p whom David had distributed in the house of the LORD, ^q as it is written in the law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, as it was ordained ^{*} by David.

19 And he set the ^r porters at the gates of the house of the LORD, that none which was unclean in any thing should enter in.

20 And he took ^s the captains of hundreds and the nobles, and the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and brought down the king from the house of the LORD: and they came through the high gate into the king's house, and set the king upon the throne of the kingdom.

21 And ^t all the people of the land rejoiced: and the city was quiet, after that they had slain Athaliah with the sword.

CHAP. XXIV.

Joash reigns well during Jehoiada's life; and zealously repairs the temple, 1—14. Jehoiada dies, and is honourably buried, 15, 16. Joash, seduced by his princes, falls into idolatry; and causes Zechariah, Jehoiada's son, to be stoned, for reproving him in the name of God, 17—21. Zechariah's dying prediction, 22. Joash is spoiled by the Syrians, left sick, and then slain by his own servants, 23—26. Amaziah succeeds him, 27.

^a JOASH was seven years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.

2 And ^b Joash did that which was right in the sight of the LORD ^c all the days of Jehoiada the priest.

3 And Jehoiada ^d took for him ^e two wives; and he begat sons and daughters.

4 ^f And it came to pass after this, that Joash was minded to ^{*} repair the house of the LORD.

5 And he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said to them, Go out unto the cities of Judah, and ^g gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter. ^h Howbeit the Levites hastened it not.

6 And the king called for Jehoiada

V. 16. Jehoiada, as priest and probably high-priest, represented God in this solemn transaction.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Lord commonly effects great and important changes, by those persons whom he hath furnished with wisdom, courage, piety, and integrity; and who intend to do his will and promote his glory, and not to advance their own interests. In the greatest emergencies care ought to be taken that sacred things be not profaned; and that every one concur in a manner consistent with his character and calling: and as ministers are by profession holy persons, they should be careful to exhibit holy examples. Civil transactions should be managed with a regard to the word and worship of God; and whilst men's hearts overflow with good wishes for their princes, commendations of them, or joy in their advancement; they should remember to terminate all in thanksgivings and praises unto God. This is peculiarly becoming, when persecuting tyrants and usurpers are removed, and equitable rulers come in their places: the work is the Lord's, whatever instruments he is pleased to employ. Such national mercies should be acknowledged by public reformatations; and by a concurrence of all ranks, in solemnly yielding themselves up to be the Lord's people, and in establishing his worship and ordinances according to his word. Where this is neglected, the joy and singing, which take place upon great deliverances, or the accession of kings to the throne, will commonly be short-lived, and will terminate in complaints, discords, and calamities.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIV. V. 3. The Jewish expositors are of opinion, that Jehoiada took these two wives for himself, not for Joash: and they consider this as inconsistent with the character of the high-priest. But it is most obvious to understand the words, for him, of Joash. It is not indeed expressly said that Jehoiada was high-priest, but the way in which he is distinguished from the other priests, and the authority which he exercised, seem to put it beyond all reasonable doubt, that he was.

h 2 Sam. xxiv. 3. the chief, and said unto him, ^b Why hast thou not required of the Levites to bring in out of Judah, and out of Jerusalem, ⁱ the collection, according to the commandment of Moses the servant of the LORD, and of the congregation of Israel, for the ^k tabernacle of witness?

7 For the ^l sons of Athaliah, ^m that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God; and also all the dedicated things of the house of the LORD ⁿ did they bestow upon Baalim.

8 And ^o at the king's commandment they made a chest, and set it without at the gate of the house of the LORD.

9 And they made a ^{*} proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the LORD the ^p collection, that Moses the servant of God laid upon Israel in the wilderness.

10 And all the princes and all the people ^q rejoiced, and brought in, and cast into the chest, until they had made an end.

11 Now it came to pass, that ^r at what time the chest was brought into the king's office by the hand of the Levites, and when they saw that there was much money, the king's scribe and the high-priest's officer came and emptied the chest, and took it, and carried it to his place again. Thus they did day by day, and gathered money in abundance.

12 And the king and Jehoiada ^s gave it to such as did the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and hired ^t masons and carpenters to repair the house of the LORD, and also such as wrought iron and brass to mend the house of the LORD.

13 So the workmen wrought, and [†] the work was perfected by them, and they set the house of God ^u in his state, and strengthened it.

14 And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada, whereof were made ^v vessels for the house of the LORD, even ^y vessels to minister, and [‡] to offer withal, and spoons, and vessels of gold and silver. And they ^z offered burnt-offerings in the house of the LORD continually ^a all the days of Jehoiada.

15 [¶] But Jehoiada waxed old, and was ^b full of days when he died: ^c an hundred and thirty years old was he when he died.

16 And they buried him ^d in the city of David among the kings, ^e because he had done good in Israel, both towards God, and towards his house.

17 [¶] Now ^f after the death of Jehoiada, came ^g the princes of Judah, and made obeisance to the king. Then the king hearkened unto them.

18 And ^h they left the house of the LORD God of their fathers, and served groves and idols: and ⁱ wrath came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this their trespass.

t 1 Kings v. 15.

† Heb. the heating went up upon the work by their hand Neh. iv. 7.
u 1 Chr. v. ii. 5.
Hag. ii. 3 Mark xiii. 1, 2.x 2 Kings xii. 13.
y 1 Kings vii. 50.
‡ On pebble. Prov. xxvii. 22.

z Ex. xxxix. 38—42 Num. xxviii. 2, &c.

a 2.

B. C. 845
b Gen. xv. 15.
xxv. 8. 1 Chr. xxiii. 1. Job i. 26. Ps. xci. 16.
c Gen. xlvii. 9. Ps. xc. 10.
d 1 Sam. ii. 30.
1 Kings ii. 10.
Acts ii. 29.
e xxii. xxxii. 14.
21. Neh. xii. 14.
Heb. vi. 10.f Deut. xxxi. 27.
Acts xx. 29, 30.
2 Pet. i. 15.
g x. 8—10. xxii. 3, 4. Prov. vii. 21—23. xx. 19.
xxvi. 28. xxxix. 5. Dan. xi. 32.
B. C. 840
h 4. xxi. 13.
xxxiii. 3—7.
1 Kings xi. 4, 5.
xiv. 9. 23.
i xix. 2. xxviii. 13. xxxix. 8. Josh. xxii. 20. Judg. v. 8. 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. Hos. v. 11.

V. 7. (Note, 2 Kings xii. 6—12. Marg. Ref.)

V. 8—14. (Note, 2 Kings xii. 13—15.)

V. 15, 16. Jehoiada was born in the reign of Solomon, and had lived through six successive reigns, besides Athaliah's usurpation! He was honourably interred among the kings of Judah: but the reason assigned for this extraordinary respect was much more honourable; and perhaps it was inscribed on his monument. "He had done good in Israel, both towards God, and towards his house." He had eminently promoted true religion, and forwarded the regular worship of God, and the repairs of the temple; in which the best interests of the people were greatly concerned. He had also been exceedingly useful in preserving the line of David in the person of Joash, and in terminating Athaliah's wicked usurpation. Israel, the general name of the whole nation, is sometimes used when the kingdom of Judah is meant.

V. 17, 18. Jehoiada had acquired his influence over Joash during his childhood; and his near relation to the king, and the vast obligations which he had conferred upon him, concurred with his age, gravity, reputation, piety, and wisdom, in supporting him in authority. So that, whilst he lived, neither Joash nor his courtiers ventured to follow, or even to declare, their inclinations to idolatry, but externally conformed to Jehoiada's regulations. As soon however as he was removed, they threw off the mask; and the nobles paid court to Joash, and perhaps flattered him; as at length freed from priestly domination, tuition, grave lectures, and restraints, and as being now a king indeed: and intimated, that he would have no objection to release the rigour of Jehoiada's administration in matters of religion. Perhaps they only proposed, that he should tolerate their sacrificing upon the high places, as more convenient and agreeable to them, than always coming to Jerusalem: but he, being won by their homage, as well as induced by his own inclinations, joined with them even in more avowed idolatry; in consequence of which, they soon experienced some tokens of the divine displeasure. (Note, 2 Kings xii. 17, 18.)

xxvi. 15, 16.
2 Kings xvii. 13
- 15. Neh. ix.
26. Jer vii. 29,
26. xxvi. 4, 5
xlv. 4, 5. Lu. e.
xi. 47-51. xvi.
31. xx. 9-15.

1 Is. xxxiii. 23.
xlii. 23. II. 4. Iv.
3. Matt. xlii. 9.
15, 16.

m xv. 1. xx. 14.
d Heb. clothed.
Judg. vi. 34. 1
Chr. xii. 18.

o xxiii. 11.
p Num. xiv. 41.
1 Sam. xlii. 13,
14. 2 Sam. xii.
9, 10. Zech. vii.
11-14.

q xv. 2. Deut.
xxix. 25, 26.
1 Cor. xxviii.
9. Jer. ii. 19.
iv. 18. v. 19. 25.

r Jer. xi. 19. xlviii.
18. xxxviii. 4
- 6.

s Matt. xxi. 35.
xxiii. 34 - 37.
Acts vii. 53, 59

t Ps. cix. 1. Luke
xvii. 15 - 18.
John x. 32.

u Gen. ix. 5. Jer.
xi. 29. xxvi. 14.
15. 2 Tim. iv.
14. Rev. vi. 9 -
11. xviii. 20.

xix. 2, 3.
v Heb. in the revelation 1 Kings
xx. 22, 26

x Deu. xxxii. 35.
2 Kings xii. 17,
18.

y 17, 18. Ps. ii. 10.
11. lviii. 10, 11.
lxxxii. 6, 7.

19 Yet ^k he sent prophets to them, to bring them again unto the LORD; and they testified against them: but they would not ^l give ear.

20 And ^m the Spirit of God ⁿ came upon Zechariah ^o the son of Jehoiada the priest, which stood above the people, and said unto them, Thus saith God, ^p Why transgress ye the commandments of the LORD, that ye cannot prosper? ^q because ye have forsaken the LORD, he hath also forsaken you.

21 And they ^r conspired against him, and ^s stoned him with stones at the commandment of the king, in the court of the house of the LORD.

22 Thus Joash the king ^t remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada his father had done to him, but slew his son. And when he died, he said, ^u The LORD look upon it, and require it.

23 ¶ And it came to pass ^v at the end of the year, that ^x the host of Syria came up against him: and they came to Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed ^y all the princes of the people from among the people, and sent all the spoil of them unto the king of ^z Damascus.

24 For the army of the Syrians ^a came with a small company of men, and the LORD ^b delivered a very great host into their hand, because they had forsaken the LORD God of their fathers. ^c So they executed judgment against Joash.

25 And when they were departed from him, (for they left him in ^d great diseases,) ^e his own servants conspired against him, ^f for the blood of the sons of Jehoiada the priest, and slew him on his bed, and he died: and they buried him in the city of David, but they buried him ^g not in the sepulchres of the kings.

26 And these ^h are they that conspired against him, ⁱ Zabad the son of Shimeath an Ammonitess, and Jehozabad the son of ^j Shimrith a Moabitess.

27 Now ^k concerning his sons, and the greatness of the ^l burdens laid upon him, and the ^m repairing of the house of God, behold they ⁿ are written in the ^o story of the book of the kings. And ^p Amaziah his son reigned in his stead.

† Heb. Darmaseek.

z Lev. xxvi. 8.
Deut. xxxii. 30.
Is. xxx. 17. Jer.
xxxvii. 10
a xvi. 8, 9. xx. 11, 12. Lev. xxv.
25. Deut. xxvii.
25.

b xxii. 8. Is. x. 5,
6. xlii. 5. Hab.
1. 12.

c xxi. 15, 18, 19.
xxii. 6.
d 2 Kings xii. 20.
e xvi. 19, 20.
f xii. 22. Ps. x.
14. Rev. xvi. 6.

g 16. xxi. 29.
xxviii. 27.

h 2 Kings xii. 21.
Josachar.

i Shomer.

j 2 Kings xii. 18.

k Heb. founding.

l Or. commentary.
ix. 29. xvi. 11.
xx. 34
h xxv. 1. 1 Chr.
iii. 12.

V. 19-22. Both the king and his courtiers seem to have entirely disregarded the warnings of the prophets, first sent to them; so that they did not honour them with their hatred or persecution. But at length, when they were assembled, on account of some festival; (for the temple was not utterly forsaken;) the Spirit of God directed Zechariah to expostulate with them respecting their idolatry. Being the son of Jehoiada, a near relation to Joash, a chief priest, if not the high priest, he seemed to be the most unexceptionable person that could have been selected for the service: while his piety, and the meekness and reasonableness of his plain address and warning, concurred to procure him a favourable hearing, and evidenced his admonition to be seasonable. But all this was in vain; the enraged apostate, who hated reproof, ordered him to be stoned, and the wretched multitude with one accord executed the unrighteous sentence, even in the court of the temple! (xxiii. 14, 15.) It is scarcely possible that a murder could contain more aggravated injustice and impiety: but the ingratitude of Joash is peculiarly noticed. Many, who had cast off all fear of God, retained some regard to their earthly benefactors: but this base man was lost to every thing, which had the least semblance of good in it. Zechariah's dying words would be best rendered, "The LORD will look upon it, and require it," as a prophecy, and not a prayer. The event soon verified this prediction, and the judgment of God seems to have singled out the most guilty persons. "Though Zechariah spake by the Spirit of God, he only applied the prediction of Moses to the present time; (Deut. xxxi. 16, 17;) that they might learn

'to have a greater regard to Moses, and to continually meditate in his law, unto which if they had attended, they would easily have discerned, who were the true prophets, and who were false!' (Bp Patrick.)

V. 25, 26. Joash seems to have murdered some other sons of Jehoiada, perhaps lest they should avenge the death of Zechariah. Whether the conspirators intended to punish Joash for this murder, or were actuated by private resentment or ambition; God was pleased to use them as executioners of his righteous vengeance. They were both born of foreign women; the idolatrous kings perhaps encouraged such forbidden marriages; but in this case they proved fatal to Joash. (2 Kings xii. 20, 21.)

V. 27. Burdens, &c. Either the tribute demanded by the victor; or the judgments denounced and inflicted by the Lord.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-16.

The best education, the most scriptural instructions, and the brightest examples, are insufficient of themselves to convert the soul: they are, however, the general means by which the Lord works; and even when not eventually successful to change the sinner's heart, they commonly produce effects salutary to the community. Hypocrites may show extraordinary zeal for externals; but they foolishly neglect the heart! The reluctance of men to part with their money, for pious and charitable uses, is increased by the avarice of many through whose hands it should

CHAP. XXV.

Amaziah at first reigns well, and justly punishes his father's murderers, 1—4. He gathers a great army, and hires, for an hundred talents, an hundred thousand Israelites against Edom: but, losing the money, he dismisses them at the word of a prophet; and they depart in great anger, 5—10. He smites the Edomites, and exercises great cruelty, 11, 12. The Israelites, on their return, spoil the cities of Judah, 13. Amaziah serves the gods of Edom, and rejects the admonitions of a prophet, 14—16. He challenges Joash, who in vain warns him; he is vanquished, and Jerusalem spoiled, 17—24. The rest of his reign, 25, 26. He is slain by a conspiracy, 27, 28.

AMAZIAH was ^a twenty and five ^{a 2 Kings xiv. 1} years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, ^b but not with a perfect heart.

3 Now it came to pass, when the kingdom was ^{*} established to him, that ^c he slew his servants that had killed the king his father.

b 14. xxiv. 2. xxvi. 4. 1 Sam. xvi. 7. Ps. lxxviii. 37. Is. xxi. 13. Hos. x. 2. Acts viii. 21. ^{*} Heb. confirmed upon him. c xxiv. 25, 26. Gen. ix. 5, 6. Ex. xxi. 14. Num. xxxv. 31—33.

pass, and who basely intercept it: but exact fidelity and punctuality, in showing that it has been, or will be, expended for the end proposed, go far towards inducing men to contribute liberally in a good cause; and this alone can afford comfort upon reflection, or bring honour upon a man's character. If we live to the glory of God, and endeavour to do good to men, especially in the great concern of salvation; we may be satisfied that we have lived long enough, though we should die young; or we may be willing to linger out many years in infirm old age, if the Lord hath then work for us. But whenever, or however, we pass from time into eternity, may we leave such a testimony in the consciences of our survivors, that if they were required to pen an inscription for our tomb, they might be constrained to write; "He did good to Israel, both towards God, and towards his house." 'Tis true that many, who are overawed by the personal qualities, the rank, or the reputation of eminent men, secretly hate their piety, and are weary of their authority. But a good conscience, the assurance of usefulness, and the approbation of God, may enable a man to disregard such painful effects of superior excellency.

V. 17—27.

The authority or influence of parents, ministers, or godly friends, joined with transient serious impressions, and other incidental circumstances, may produce, and long maintain, a plausible profession of religion: but the lamp will go out when it is wanted, unless supplied from the oil in the vessel, the grace of God possessing the heart. When a man is under the power of pride and worldly passions, he disrelishes those counsels from which he has received the most important temporal advantage, and which tend to his eternal good: and then flattery, licentious liberty, arbitrary authority, and the most impious proposals, will be more welcome, because congenial to his judgment and affections. But he that has not sense to direct his own conduct, and is too proud to take good advice, will soon be proved a fool, let who will flatter his wisdom. "This is the love of God to keep his commandments, and his commandments

"are not grievous." But the yoke of external obedience is very uneasy to the carnal mind: and in this case men will rejoice, and congratulate one another, upon the death of pious monitors, or even parents! But impiety will bring wrath, especially when consequent to apostacy, on such as cast off the fear of God. No caution, tenderness, or gentleness consistent with faithfulness; no respectability of character, eminent services, or personal obligations, can secure the ministers of God from persecution, if they rouse the dormant conscience, contradict the haughty spirit, or excite disquietude in sin: and except their word be accompanied with the converting grace of God, the sinner will rage in proportion to his power, pride, or impiety.—Some regard to justice, decency, and gratitude may be expected from ignorant and profligate characters, and from infidels and deists: but the rage of an apostate bursts all obligations and restraints; for he has so done violence to his conscience, that it has lost all its energy; and except he be restrained by human laws, every thing desperate may be expected from his resentment. The testimony of faithful ministers will however be accepted by God, when rejected by men; and he will recompense them for all their losses and sufferings for his sake. They who transgress the commandments of the Lord, cannot prosper, whatever they suppose; and when they forsake God, he will forsake them. And, without the Spirit of prophecy, we may confidently foretel, that the Lord will look upon and require all the persecutions, slanders, mockeries, and ill usage, which his servants meet with, except their prayers are answered, and he give the persecutors repentance and better minds. The Lord can soon find such as will, for their own purposes, execute judgment upon murderers, and other atrocious criminals, however exalted; nor can any power avail against those into whose hands he delivers his enemies to be punished. Then superiority in station only ensures precedency in suffering: and how dreadful is it when a painful and miserable death transmits the impenitent rebel to a more miserable eternity! God help us to be in earnest, to take warning, to be upright in heart, and to persevere unto the end: and may he grant that we "may die the death of the righteous, and that our latter end may be like his."

4 But he slew not their children, but did^d as it is written in the law in the book of Moses, where the LORD commanded, saying, The fathers shall not die for the children, neither shall the children die for the fathers, but every man shall die for his own sin.

5 ¶ Moreover Amaziah gathered Judah together, and made them^e captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, according to the houses of their fathers, throughout all Judah and Benjamin: and he numbered them^f from twenty years old and above, and found them three hundred thousand choice men, able to go forth to war, that could handle spear and shield.

6 He hired also an hundred thousand mighty men of valour out of^g Israel, for an hundred talents of silver.

7 But there came^h a man of God to him, saying, O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee; ⁱ for the LORD is not with Israel, to wit, with all the children of Ephraim.

8 But if thou wilt go, do it,^k be strong for the battle: God shall make thee fall before the enemy: for^l God hath power to help, and to cast down.

9 And Amaziah said to the man of God, But what shall we do for the hundred talents, which I have given to the^m army of Israel? And the man of God answered, ⁿ The LORD is able to give thee much more than this.

10 Then^o Amaziah separated them, to wit, the army that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go^p home again: wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned home in^q great anger.

11 ¶ And Amaziah strengthened himself, and led forth his people, and went to the^r valley of salt, and smote of the children of Seir ten thousand.

12 And other ten thousand left alive did the children of Judah carry away captive, and brought them unto the top of the rock, and^s cast them down from the top of the rock, that they all were^t broken in pieces.

13 But the^u soldiers of the army which Amaziah sent back, that they should not go with him to battle, fell upon the cities of Judah, from^v Samaria even unto^w Beth-horon, and smote three thousand of them, and took much spoil.

* Heb. band.

m i. 12 Deut. vii. 18. Prov. x. 22. Hag. ii. 8. Luke xviii. 29, 30. 1 Kings xii. 24.

† Heb. to their place.

‡ Heb. heat of anger. 2 Sam. xix. 43. Prov. xxix. 22.

o 2 Sam. viii. 18. 2 Kings xiv. 7. Ps. lx. title.

p 2 Sam. xii. 31. 1 Chr. xx. 3.

q xx. 10. xxi. 8. —10. { Heb. sons of the band.

r 1 Kings xvi. 24. —29. s viii. 6. 1 Kings ix. 17.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXV. V. 3, 4. Even if the conspirators against Joash intended to avenge upon him the murder of Zechariah, they acted without a commission from that God to whom vengeance belongeth; and were justly put to death for treason and murder. (Note, 2 Kings xiv. 5, 6.)

V. 5. Nearly four times as many soldiers had been numbered in the days of Jehoshaphat; (Marg. Ref.) The inhabitants of the land must have vastly decreased during the late reigns, in consequence of their wickedness, and as a punishment of it: but perhaps numbers were unwilling to enlist under Amaziah; and either he did not attempt to force them, or they found means to evade his inquiries. His army however seems to have been sufficiently numerous to reduce the revolted Edomites.

V. 6—10. If Amaziah had previously consulted God, the disagreeable consequences of this measure would have been prevented. As the hundred talents would not divide above eight shillings a piece amongst one hundred thousand men; we may suppose that it was only an earnest of their pay, or else that they expected to be enriched with the plunder of the Edomites. The kingdom of Israel was openly idolatrous, and the Lord would not have Judah join alliance with them. Perhaps the army that Amaziah had hired, was chiefly of the tribe of Ephraim: or that tribe, being the most considerable in the kingdom of Israel, is put for the whole. As the Lord was not with the men of Ephraim, he declared by his prophet that he would not prosper Amaziah, if he employed them: and if, after this prohibition, he would persist in taking them with him, he was warned, that God would make him fall before the enemy: for God could help him without the aid of idolaters, and he could cast him down though he thus made himself strong for the battle. And as for the hundred talents, which he had given to the Israelites, and could not recover, and which he was unwilling to lose; the Lord was able to give him much more than that. Amaziah, though destitute of true faith, paid so much regard to the message of God, that he discharged the hired army: and they were exceedingly offended at the affront put upon them, in being sent away as the enemies of God; and likewise perhaps by the disappointment of their avaricious or ambitious expectations.

V. 11, 12. (Note, 2 Kings xiv. 7.)

V. 13. The Israelites seem to have returned home, when discharged by Amaziah, as his powerful army deterred them from attempting revenge at that time: but when he was engaged with the Edomites, they took the opportunity, marched from Samaria, and plundered all the cities till they came to Beth-horon, and slew three thousand of the inhabitants. Amaziah had indeed dismissed these auxiliaries in obedience to God; but his savage cruelty to the prisoners of Edom, and his subsequent idolatry, proved that he acted by constraint or terror when he was obedient: and he there-

14 ¶ Now it came to pass, after that Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, that ^t he brought the gods of the children of Seir, and set them up to be ^u his gods, and bowed down himself before them, and burned incense unto them.

15 Wherefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against Amaziah, and he sent unto him ^x a prophet, which said unto him, ^y Why hast thou sought after ^z the gods of the people, ^a which could not deliver their own people out of thine hand?

16 And it came to pass, as he talked with him, that the king said unto him, ^b Art thou made of the king's counsel? ^c forbear; why shouldest thou be smitten? Then the prophet forbore, and said, I know that God ^d hath ^{*} determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my counsel.

17 ¶ Then ^e Amaziah king of Judah took advice, and sent to Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, the son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, Come, ^f let us see one another in the face.

18 And Joash king of Israel sent to Amaziah king of Judah, saying, The [†] thistle that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and there passed by [‡] a wild beast that was in Lebanon, and trode down the thistle.

19 Thou sayest, Lo, thou hast smitten the Edomites; and [§] thine heart lifteth thee up ^b to boast: abide now at home;

why shouldest thou meddle to thine hurt, that thou shouldest fall, even thou, and Judah with thee?

20 But Amaziah would not hear: for ^k it came of God, that he might deliver them into the hand of their enemies, because they sought after the gods of Edom.

21 So Joash the king of Israel went up, and they ^l saw one another in the face, both he and Amaziah king of Judah, at ^m Beth-shemesh, which belongeth to Judah.

22 And Judah was [§] put to the worse before Israel, and they ⁿ fled every man to his tent.

23 And Joash the king of Israel ^o took Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Joash, the son of ^p Jehoahaz, at Beth-shemesh, and brought him to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem, from the ^q gate of Ephraim to the ^{||} corner-gate, four hundred cubits.

24 And he took ^r all the gold and the silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God with Obed-edom, and the treasures of the king's house, the hostages also, and returned to Samaria.

25 ¶ And Amaziah, the son of Joash king of Judah, lived after the death of ^s Joash, son of Jehoahaz king of Israel, fifteen years.

26 Now the ^t rest of the acts of Amaziah, first and last, behold, are they not written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel?

27 Now after the time that Amaziah did turn away ^{*} from following the LORD, they [†] made a conspiracy against him in fore received for his complicated misconduct just rebuke. Had he broken the idols to pieces, and treated the prisoners with clemency, he might have expected comfort in his success, and not experienced such painful effects from dismissing the Israelites. Perhaps the cities which were destroyed on this occasion, being in the vicinity of Israel, were infected with idolatry.

V. 14—16. Ahaz, who worshipped the idols of Syria by whom he was vanquished, was not so senseless as Amaziah, who sought unto the gods of the people, which could not deliver them from his cruelty. But Amaziah, who had borne with the prophet that spake to him concerning dismissing the Israelites, by which he lost one hundred talents, was so mad upon his idols that he would not endure that subject to be insisted on. He seems to have menaced the prophet with Zechariah's doom; and thus he made himself a sharer in the guilt of that atrocious murder. The prophet was a counsellor whom the Lord had appointed him; and none of those whom he had chosen for himself, gave him such honest, wise, and salutary counsel. But as he would not hearken to it, the prophet desisted, having warned him that the Lord had counselled to destroy him.

V. 17. Took advice, &c. Amaziah, having rejected the counsel of God, advised with his flatterers; and they counselled him to make that foolish challenge which paved the way for his ruin, to which he had been doomed for his obstinate idolatry; (Notes, 2 Kings xiv. 8—20. Marg. Ref.)

V. 24. Obed-edom, perhaps a descendant of him who received the ark in the days of David, had the charge of these treasures in the house of God.

† xxviii. 23.

u Ex. xx. 3—5.
Deut. vii. 5, 25.
2 Sam. v. 21.

x 7. xvi. 7—9.
xix. 2. xx. 37.
2 Sam. xii. 1—6.
y xxiv. 20. Judg.
ii. 2. Jer. ii. 5.
z Ps. xcvi. 5.
a 11. Ps. cxv. 4—
8. Is. xlv. 9.
10. xlv. 1. 2.
Jer. x. 7. 1 Cor.
viii. 4. x. 20.

b xvi. 10. xviii.
25, 26. xxiv. 21.
Am. vii. 10—13.
Matt. xxi. 23.
c Prov. ix. 7, 8.
Is. xxx. 10, 11.
Jer. xxxix. 26.
2 Tim. iv. 3.
Rev. xi. 10.
d Ex. ix. 16.
Deut. ii. 30. 1
Sam. ii. 25. Acts
iv. 28. Rom. ix.
22.
e Heb. counselled.
xviii. 20, 21. Is.
xlv. 10. Eph. i.
11.
f 13. 2 Kings xiv.
8—14.

f 2 Sam. ii. 14.
Prov. xx. 3.

† Or surge-bush, or thorn. Judg.
ix. 8—15.
1 Kings iv. 33.
† Heb. a beast of the field. Ps.
lxxx. 13.
‡ xxvi. 16. xxxii.
25. Deut. viii.
14. Prov. xlii.
10. xvi. 18.
xxviii. 25. Dan.
v. 20—23. Hab.
ii. 4. Jam. iv.
6. 1 Pet. v. 5.
§ Jer. ix. 23, 24.
1 Cor. i. 29.

i xxxv. 21. Prov.
xviii. 6. xx. 3.
xxvii. 17. Luke
xiv. 31.

k 16. xxii. 7.
1 Kings xii. 15.
Ps. lxxxi. 11.
12. Acts xxviii.
25—27. 2 Thes.
ii. 9—11. 1 Pet.
ii. 8.

l 17.

m Josh. xxi. 15.
1 Sam. vi. 9
19, 20.

§ Heb. smitten. n 1 Sam. iv. 10.
1 Kings xxii.
36.

o xxxiii. 11.
xxxvi. 6. 10.
Prov. xvi. 18.
xxix. 23. Dan.
Dan. iv. 37.
Obad. 3. Luke
xiv. 11.
p xxi. 17. xxii. 1.
Azariah. xxii.
6. Azariah.
q Neh. viii. 16.
xii. 39.
|| Heb. the gate of it that looketh
Jer. xxxi. 38
r xii. 9. 2 Kings
xiv. 14.

s 2 Kings xiv. 17.
Jehoash.

B. C. 810
t xx. 34. 2 Kings
xiv. 15.

* Heb. from after.
† Heb. conspired
a conspiracy.
xxiv. 26. 2 King.
xiv. 19.

Josh. x. 31.

Jerusalem; and he fled to ^u Lachish: but they sent to Lachish after him, and slew him there.

23 And they brought him upon horses, and buried him with his fathers in ^x the city of Judah.

x 2 Kings xiv. 20.
City of David.

V. 25—27. We find no evidences of Amaziah's repentance, during the whole space of the Lord's long suffering. Probably he added tyranny and oppression to his idolatry: and this, with his imprudent administration, rendered him so odious, that he was slain, as it seems, by the general consent of his subjects, and nobody was called to account for his death.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

Many favour and support religion, who either do not appear, or only appear, to be religious: yet the Lord has no pleasure in dissemblers. Traitors and murderers are sometimes so powerful, as for a time to set justice at defiance; but they will at length find those that are able to execute righteous vengeance upon them. But in every case the law of God should be adhered to as our perfect rule of duty. As unrepented sin will inevitably and finally ruin those who continue in it; so it will infallibly enfeeble, and diminish the prosperity and consequence of those nations where it prevails. Princes and statesmen professing Christianity, when forming alliances, or stipulating succours from foreign courts, seldom inquire, Whether the Lord be with them or not? Indeed the very question would excite general ridicule and disgust: and yet this will be found of far greater efficacy in the success of wars and the prosperity of kingdoms, than men are disposed to believe. It is however, certain, that no enterprise, public or private, should be engaged in, without seeking to know the will of God concerning it, if men would avoid those distressing consequences which often follow from politic measures. But none are such dangerous confederates, as apostates. Success cannot reasonably be expected by those who act in defiance of the divine commands: they may be strong for the battle, or for the business; but if God is pleased to make them fall, their strength will avail them nothing; for he has power to help, and to cast down: and if men prosper in presumptuous wickedness, their success is the prelude of their ruin.—Convinced sinners, who have not true faith or a spiritual mind, always object to self-denying obedience; and seem to say, “But what shall we do for the hundred talents?” “What shall we do, if by hallowing the sabbath, we lose so many good customers? What shall we do, if we quit this illegal traffic and exorbitant profit, to compensate so important a loss? What shall we do, if we affront our friends, balk our preferment, or lose the friendship of the world? How shall we maintain our families? “What shall we eat? or what shall we drink? And wherewithal shall we be clothed?” Penury and distress face us in the way which you point out to us: we are almost persuaded it is the road to heaven: but what shall we do about the expenses of the journey?” Here many stumble and turn aside, or endeavour to quiet their conscience in a vain pretence, that such and such practices are necessary in their case; that the precept must be dispensed with; that by them, circumstanced as they are, both God and mammon may be served; and that they may be Christ's disciples without denying themselves, taking up the cross, and forsaking all for him. But the answer to such objections is obvious: “The Lord is able to give thee much more than this;” and he hath promised “to add all other things to those who seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness:” yea, to make up a hundred fold, even in this present world, all that hath been conscientiously renounced for his sake and the Gospel: and we are compassed about with an innumerable cloud of witnesses of his faithfulness to this promise. Unbelief, however, will trust the Lord no further than it can understand in what way he is to work: but faith approves the security, and gives him full credit for his truth, power, and love; and makes every sacrifice, and ventures every consequence, in dependence on his word, and in obedience to his command. He that in this way is reduced to poverty, is enriched for ever; and he may set down his largest losses as his most certain gains, and rest assured, that “no good thing will the Lord withhold from those who thus walk uprightly.”—Yet a single instance of self-denying obedience, performed on a sudden, under some vehement impression, does not always prove that a man has true faith. A person in a heat, might cut off his hand, in any cause, and upon reflection repent of it ever after; but the deliberate daily renouncing of the world, and opposing our strongest sinful inclinations, (though as painful to part with as a right hand or eye,) for the sake of the Gospel, and in obedience to the Saviour, forms the constant evidence of an interest in him, and all his precious promises; (Phil. iii. 7—10:) and to some measure of this temper and conduct every true believer hath attained. But the behaviour of the mere professor will frequently detect the hypocrisy of his obedience in some instances, and justify God in punishing his other crimes, by the very consequences of that obedience.

V. 11—23.

They who are evidently and consciously irreligious, are yet often much offended with being treated as such: and affronted pride, united with disappointed rapacity, kindles a resentment, from which the most fatal effects may be expected. Abused mercies occasion man's most aggravated wickedness, and accelerate his ruin; so that when we are prospered by Providence, we should be peculiarly careful what return we make for God's goodness, and what use we make of his bounty. The tender mercies of the wicked are cruel: and none are so imperious and inhuman towards those who oppose their will, as they who dare to bid defiance to the authority of the Almighty. The absurdities of superstition and idolatry, to which the human race has in all ages shown so strange a propensity, are as disgraceful to the understanding as to the heart of man: and if we did but consider how unavailing those worldly objects, which we are apt to idolize, have always proved to the peace, safety, and happiness of their possessors; the reflection

CHAP. XXVI.

Uzziah succeeds Amaziah, reigns well for a time, and is greatly prospered, 1—8. His buildings, husbandry, army, and engines of war, 9—15. Growing proud, he attempts to burn incense in the temple, is opposed by the priests, and smitten with leprosy by God, 16—21. He dies, and is succeeded by Jotham, 22, 23.

a xxii. 1. xxxiii. 25.
b 2 Kings xiv 21.
xv. 1. 1 Chr. iii. 12.
Asariah.
Matt. i. 8, 9.
Ozias.
c viii. 17. 2 Kings xiv. 22. xvi. 6.
Eliath.
1 xxv. 13. 28.

e Is. i. 1. vi. 1.
Hos. i. 1. Am. i. 1.
1 Zech. xiv. 5.

THEN ^a all the people of Judah took ^b Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king in the room of his father Amaziah.

2 He built ^c Eloth, and ^d restored it to Judah, after that the king slept with his fathers.

3 Sixteen years old was ^e Uzziah when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty and two years in Jerusalem. His tion must check our eager pursuit of wealth, honour, or sensual pleasure; or at least show it to be as irrational as the worship of useless helpless idols. They who are mad upon their lusts, will not bear control or counsel: and he who would expostulate with them for their good, may expect to be treated as impertinent, intermeddling, or insolent: especially if an inferior venture to admonish, in the name of the Lord, sinners of superior rank and station. These indeed seem generally to claim it as their prerogative to walk unmolested in the broad way that leadeth to destruction: and ridicule or menaces will be his recompense, who dares to warn them that it is a dangerous road. But after all the contempt and obloquy, to which such counsellors are exposed; the event demonstrates that princes generally hearken to those that are much worse: and though assuming churchmen have often disgraced their profession: yet no man, from the throne to the almshouse, will have cause to repent attending to the warnings, instructions, and counsel, of those few, who honestly declare the truth and will of God, without courting the favour, fearing the frown, or respecting the person, of any man. If, however, mild, serious, rational and scriptural reproof is proudly rejected and resented, we are not required to force our admonitions, but must desist, after plainly giving men to understand the consequence. When the remonstrances of conscience are silenced, and the ministers of God are rejected and menaced, it is to be feared that God hath determined upon the sinner's destruction: and if he too says, "Let him alone," "My Spirit shall not alway strive with him;" he will be given up to strong delusion, to increasing vain-confidence, infatuated projects, rash intermeddling, and obstinate perseverance in a course of folly, till the measure of his wickedness be filled up, and destruction from the Almighty come upon him. Thus a man's pride shall bring him low; his ruin may be dated mother's name also was ^f Jecoliah of Jerusalem. ^{f2 Kings x Jecoliah.}

4 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, ^g according to all that his father Amaziah did. ^{g xxv. 2.}

5 And ^h he sought God in the days of Zechariah, who ⁱ had understanding in the ^{*} visions of God: and, ^k as long as he sought the LORD, God made him to prosper. ^{h xxiv. 2. Judg ii 7. Hos. vi. 4. Mark iv. 16, 17. Acts xx. 30. 1 Gen. xii. 15. Dan. i. 17. ii. 19. v. 16. x. 1. * Heb. seeing of God. k xv. 2. xxv. 8. 1 Chr. xxii. 11. 13. Ps. i. 3. 1 xxi. 16. Is. xiv. 29. m 2 Sam. viii. 1. 1 Chr. xviii. 1.}

6 And he went forth and ^l warred against the Philistines, and brake down ^m the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod, and built cities [†] about Ashdod, and among the Philistines. ^{† Or, in the country of Ashdod. 1 Sam. v. 1. 6. n xiv. 11. 1 Chr. v. 20. xii. 18. Ps. xviii. 29. 34. 35. Acts xxvi. 22. o xvii. 11. xxi. 16. p xx. 1. Gen. xix. 38. Deut. ii. 19. Judg. xi. 15—18. 1 Sam. xii. 1. q Gen. xii. 2. 2 Sam. viii. 13. 1 Kings iv. 31. Matt. iv. 24. † Heb. went.}

7 And ⁿ God helped him against the Philistines, and against ^o the Arabians that dwelt in Gur-baal, and the Me-hunims.

8 And ^p the Ammonites gave gifts to Uzziah: and ^q his name [†] spread abroad from his turning away from the Lord, and the longer he is spared, the more will he "treasure up wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who shall render to every man according to his works." May the Lord preserve us from this dreadful doom, and prepare our hearts to receive his truth, to welcome his counsels and reproofs, and obediently to submit to his authority, and do his will.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVI. V. 1—3. (Notes, 2 Kings xiv. 21, 22. xv. 1—7.)

V. 4. Uzziah, or Azariah, began his reign much better than he ended it, as Amaziah had done. But he seems to have supported the worship of God all his days; and he is never charged with idolatry or any kind of immorality. His reign must therefore have been very happy for his people, and favourable to the interests of religion; though the close of it proved disgraceful to him.

V. 5. It is not known of what tribe or family this Zechariah was; though some conjecture that he was the son of that Zechariah whom Joash murdered. It is, however, a singular instance in Scripture, of a son called by his father's name. He was perhaps endued with a peculiar gift in distinguishing between those who were actually favoured with prophetic visions, and those who only pretended to be so; (1 Cor. xii. 10.) At least he was well acquainted with divine things, an intelligent, prudent, pious, and heavenly-minded man: and an instructor, or counsellor, to Uzziah, who prospered by hearkening to his admonitions: whilst Amaziah, who scorned to be counselled by a prophet, followed advice which brought him to destruction. Had Zechariah been spared, he might perhaps have dissuaded Uzziah from that fatal attempt, which he afterwards made.

even to the entering in of Egypt : for he strengthened himself exceedingly.

9 Moreover Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at ^r the corner-gate, and at ^s the valley-gate, and ^t at the turning of the wall, and * fortified them.

10 Also he built towers in the desert, and † digged many wells : for ^u he had much cattle, both in the low country and in the plains : husbandmen also, and vine-dressers in the mountains, and in ‡ Carmel : for he loved ^o husbandry.

11 ¶ Moreover Uzziah had an host of fighting men, that ^x went out to war by bands, according to the number of their account, by the hand of Jeiel the scribe, and Maaseiah the ruler, under the hand of Hananiah, one of the king's captains.

12 The whole number of the chief of the fathers of the mighty men of valour were two thousand and six hundred.

13 And under their hand was || an army, ^y three hundred thousand and seven thousand and five hundred, that made war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy.

14 And Uzziah prepared for them, throughout all the host, shields, and spears, and helmets, and habergeons, and bows, and * slings to cast stones.

15 And he made in Jerusalem engines, invented by ^z cunning men, to be on the towers, and upon the bulwarks, to shoot arrows and great stones withal : and his name † spread far abroad ; for he was marvellously helped till he was strong.

16 ¶ But ^a when he was strong, his heart was lifted up to his destruction ; for he transgressed against the LORD his God, and ^b went into the temple of the LORD to burn incense upon the altar of incense.

17 And ^d Azariah the priest went in after him, and with him four-score priests of the LORD, that were ^e valiant men ;

18 And they ^f withstood Uzziah the king, and said unto him, It appertaineth ^g not unto thee, Uzziah, to burn incense unto the LORD, but ^h to the priests the sons of Aaron, that are consecrated to burn incense : go out of the sanctuary ; for thou hast trespassed ; ⁱ neither shalt it be for thine honour from the LORD God.

19 Then Uzziah was wroth, and had a censer in his hand to burn incense ; and while ^k he was wroth with the priests, ^l the leprosy even rose up in his forehead, before the priests in the house of the LORD, from beside the incense-altar.

20 And Azariah the chief priest, and all the priests, looked upon him, and, behold, he was leprous in his forehead, and they thrust him out from thence ; yea, himself ^m hasted also to go out, because ⁿ the LORD had smitten him.

21 And ^o Uzziah the king was a leper unto the day of his death, and ^p dwelt in a ‡ several house, being a leper ; for he was cut off from the house of the LORD : and Jotham his son was over the king's house, judging the people of the land.

22 ¶ Now the rest of the acts of Uzziah, ^q first and last, did ^r Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amos, write.

23 So Uzziah ^s slept with his fathers, and ^t they buried him with his fathers in the field of the burial which belonged to the kings ; for they said, He is a leper : and Jotham his son reigned in his stead.

xxv. 23. 2 Kings
xiv. 13. Jer
xxx. 30. Zech.
xiv 10.
Neh ii. 13 iii.
Neh. iii. 20. 24
Or, repaired Or, cut out many cisterns. Gen
xxvi. 18-21
2 Kings iii 4.
Chr xxvii 26
-31.

Or, fruitful fields. 2 Kings
xviii. 32. Is.
xxix 17.
Heb. ground.
2 Kings v. 2.

Heb. the power
of an army.
xi. i. xiii 3
xiv. 8. xvii. 14.
19.

Heb. stones of slings. Judg. xx 16 1 Sam. xvii.
49.
ii. 7. 14. Ex.
xxxii. 4.

Heb. went forth.
Matt. iv. 24.

xxv. 19. xxxiii.
25. Deut. xviii.
14. 17. xxxiii.
13-15. Prov
xvi. 18. Hab. ii.
4. Col. ii. 18.
2 Kings xvi. 12,
13.

Num xvi 7, 17,
18. 35. 1 Kings
xii 33. xiii. 1-4.
1 Chr. vi. 10.

1 Chr xii 29.
xxvi 6
xvi 7-9. xix.
2 Jer xii. 18.
Matt x 18.
28 xiv 16.
2 Cor x 11.
g Num xvi. 40.
46-48 xvi. 37.
h Ex xxx. 7, 8.
Heb v. 4.

1 Sam. ii 30.
Dan. iv. 37.
John v. 43 Jam.
ii. 1.

xxvi. 10. xxv. 16.

1 Nep. xii. 10.
2 Kings v. 27.

m Esth vi 12.

n Lev. xiv 34.
Deu xxviii 22.
35

o 2 Kings xv. 5.
p Lev. xiii 46.
Num v 2. 3.

xii. 15. 2 Kings
vii 3.
† Heb. free.

q ix. 29. xii. 15.
r Is. i. 1. ii. 1.

s 2 Kings xv. 6, 7.

t 18. xxi. 20.
xxviii. 27.
xxxiii. 26.

V. 6—9. These verses contain some particulars, in which Uzziah, by the special help and blessing of God, was prospered, while he adhered strictly to the ordinances of God.—In the days of his father, the wall of Jerusalem had been broken down at the corner-gate : (xxv. 23 :) and Uzziah not only repaired it, but he added towers and fortifications to secure it.

V. 10. Towers. These towers seem to have been built in the desert for the protection of Uzziah's shepherds and flocks from the depredations of the Arabian free-booters and others, upon whom he seems to have retaliated ; (11.)—A prince can hardly have a more rational, inoffensive, and indeed useful, recreation from public business, than these rural occupations.

V. 16—23. Uzziah had been remarkably prospered in every thing ; but pride, instead of gratitude, was fostered by it : so that deeming himself as much favoured as the priests were, he thought it a reproach to him to be excluded from any part of the temple, or the worship, of God.—Burning incense was the most honourable part of the sacerdotal office, and of that he became ambitious. The law had forbidden any, but the priests of the family of Aaron, to enter the sanctuary, or to burn incense ; and the fate of Korah, and his company, was an awful example upon record, of the consequences to be expected from violating that statute. But perhaps Uzziah was tempted to disbelieve these ancient records ; imagining that they had been falsified by the priests to keep up their own consequence ;

CHAP. XXVII.

*Jotham reigns well and prospers, 1, 2.
His buildings, 3, 4. He subdues the* Ammonites, 5, 6. He dies, and is succeeded by Ahaz, 7—9.

JOTHAM was ^a twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he

a 2 Kings xv. 32,
33. 1 Chr. iii.
12. Is. i. 1.
Hos. i. 1. Mic.
i. 1. Matt. i. 9.
Jotham

or that the law was now become obsolete: and he might be confirmed in this, by considering that nothing of this kind had taken place for many centuries. Thus "his heart" was lifted up to his destruction; his disgrace or death, for the sin he committed exposed him to that punishment; and though he was respited, yet his remaining days were spent, as it were, in a lingering ignominious execution.—None of the former kings of Judah had attempted to burn incense in the temple; perhaps none to invade the sacerdotal office in any way: though many of them offended by forsaking the worship of God. Had Uzziah contented himself with imitating David, Solomon, Jehoshaphat, &c. in instructing, and praying with and for, his people, he would have done commendably.—The idolatrous kings indeed burned incense to their idols, and it seems he took them for his pattern in this instance, though he would not forsake the God of Israel.—Azariah and the other priests behaved nobly on this occasion: they opposed the king's design, not with violence or reproachful language, but with plain scriptural remonstrances, precepts, and counsels; and by warning him that his attempt would expose him to disgrace from the Lord God. But he was insensible to their arguments, and enraged by their faithful opposition: and Josephus writes us that he threatened them with death, when an extraordinary earthquake preceded his being smitten with leprosy. (Amos i. 1. Zech. xiv. 5.) But when he found that this divine judgment was inflicted upon him and was conspicuous in his forehead, he became sensible of his sin and danger, and hastily yielded to the priests, who hurried him out of the sanctuary. It pleased God to continue this stigma upon him during the remainder of his life; though we know not how long he lived afterwards: and in consequence he was excluded from the precincts of the temple; from society, except that of the priests into whose office he had intruded; and from the exercise of his regal authority. Thus by aspiring after that honour which did not belong to him, he lost all his dignity and reputation, and was in some sense degraded beneath the meanest of his subjects; and even after his death, notwithstanding his good and prosperous reign, he was, as a leper, excluded from the sepulchres of the kings. But the long-suffering of God gave him space for repentance; and his patient and quiet submission to this severe rebuke, and to all its most painful consequences, (as they must have been to so honourable and prosperous a monarch,) forms no inconsiderable proof of his repentance; and gives a confidence that his retirement was well improved, and his death happy.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—15.

Wise and pious instructors are an invaluable treasure to young people; especially to those who are advanced to exalted stations, and who are generally poisoned with the flattery of interested sycophants and dependents. Yet, unless they seek and serve God from an inward principle of piety; they will at length lose, or shake off, their preceptors and their religion together. Many have experienced, and some have confessed, that when they paid regard to the service of God they prospered; but that every thing went wrong, from the time that they grew negligent in religion. Indeed external prosperity does not now so uniformly attend godliness, as it did in the case of Israel: yet every undertaking will succeed with the true Christian, as far as it is good for him: and God will help and prosper him in his spiritual warfare, in proportion to the simplicity of his dependence and obedience. No lawful business will be the worse managed, or prove less pleasant to any man, on account of his diligence in the service of God, if he have learned to arrange his temporal and spiritual concerns in due order. It would be happy for mankind, if able and powerful monarchs took more delight, and spent more leisure hours, in rural occupations, which are both manly, useful, and truly honourable: but hitherto man's chief ambition, exertion, and ingenuity have been directed to the destruction of his own species! If, however, it must be a part of the occupation of mankind to invent and forge instruments of destruction, and of shortening the already contracted duration of human life; surely these should be used only in self-defence, or in awing the turbulent spirits of those public depredators, who cannot otherwise be prevented from disturbing the world.

V. 16—23.

It is written as with a sun-beam, that prosperity is most dangerous to fallen man. Some are by it lifted up to their destruction, others to their deep disgrace and lasting distress: and we have all more cause to pray to be preserved from its fascinating influence, than from the depth of poverty, or from the anguish of disappointment. The narrow way is one and straight: but the paths of transgression are numerous and various; and new ones are continually struck out by the perverse ingenuity and presumption of rebellious man. Extremes are on every side. To avoid enthusiasm and credulity, men become profane and infidel; and in shunning infidelity they rush into superstition. They who are not chargeable with immorality or gross profaneness, may yet provoke the Lord by their hypocrisy or self-righteous pride. We are not indeed at present kept at that awful distance from sacred things which the people of God of old were: yet let us not suppose that we are in no danger of offending in this way. The sacred ministry may be intruded into with a presumption and impiety, bordering upon sacrilege and blasphemy: whilst mercenary and ungodly men make those professions, engagements, and protestations, in the presence of God, for filthy lucre's sake, which they deride as enthusiastic or superstitious! The Lord's table may be approached in hypocrisy, pride, unbelief, and impenitency, or even as a reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was Jerushah, the daughter of Zadok.

b xxvi. 4. 2 Kings xv. 34.

2 And ^b he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Uziah did: howbeit ^c he entered not into the temple of the LORD. And ^d the people did yet corruptly.

c xxvi. 16-21. Ps cxix. 120. Acts v. 13.

d 2 Kings xv. 35.

3 He built the ^e high gate of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of ^{*} Ophel he built much.

e xxiii. 15. 20. Jer. xx 2. * Or, the tower. xxxiii. 14. Neh. iii. 26.

4 Moreover ^f he built cities in ^g the mountains of Judah, and in the forests he built castles and towers.

f xi. 5-10. xiv. 7. xxvi. 9. 10. g Josh. xiv. 12, 13. Luke i. 39.

5 He fought also with ^h the king of the Ammonites, and prevailed against them. And the children of Ammon gave him the same year an hundred talents of h xx. 1. Judg. xi. 4 &c. 2 Sam. x. 1. &c. Jer. xlii. 1-6.

silver, and ten thousand measures of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. † So much did the children of Ammon pay unto him, both the second year, and the third.

† Heb. This.

6 So Jotham became mighty, because he ‡ prepared his ways before the LORD his God.

‡ Or, established. xix 3.

7 ¶ Now ⁱ the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

i xx. 34. xxvi. 22, 23. xxxii 32, 33.

8 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign; and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem.

9 And ^k Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Ahaz his son reigned in his stead.

k 2 Kings xv. 38

step to preferment, by infidels and debauchees who are the slaves to every lust! and in many ways man may be guilty of most awful profanations. Against these abuses the ministers of God must caution all men, however wealthy, honourable, or powerful, with plain declarations of the truths and precepts of Scripture, and solemn warnings respecting the consequences of transgression. Yet, alas! few are found, who are valiant men, that dare, in meekness and faithfulness, oppose the powerful who attempt such scandalous profanations; and venture all the consequences of their displeasure in refusing to concur in them. But the Lord will assuredly stand by those few, and mark their opposers with evident tokens of his anger. No wonder that ungodly men are so enraged at opposition from the Lord's ministers; for even believers at some times cannot endure it. But his rebuke brings them to themselves, and they then make haste to renounce their wayward purposes, they submit patiently to his severest corrections, and are humbled for the pride of their hearts. And, whatever humiliating or disgraceful events take place, however we may be excluded from the earthly courts of the Lord, the communion of his saints, and the comforts of society; if we are brought to true repentance, and at length obtain eternal life, we shall bless God for the whole. But the Lord always resists the proud; and contempt, either on earth or in hell, is the never-failing consequence of self-confidence and arrogance. When, however, the Lord sees good to throw prosperous and useful men aside, as a broken vessel; if he raises up their children, or other able persons, to fill their places, that the community be not losers, they may rejoice in renouncing all worldly concerns, and in employing their remaining days in preparation for death and heaven.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVII. V. 2. Entered. Jotham imitated his father in the best part of his conduct; but did not attempt to enter the temple, or to burn incense, as Uziah had done.

V. 3. Ophel. This seems to have been a cliff, or high rock, where a tower and wall were built to fortify the city. These Jotham greatly strengthened and improved.

V. 5. (Marg. Ref.) It is probable, that at the end of three years, the Ammonites recovered strength, and refused to pay the tribute.

V. 6. It has been observed, that most, if not all the pious kings of Judah, have some evil thing laid to their charge: but Jotham has not: except as the people did corruptly, and the high places were not demolished.

V. 7. It is supposed, that Jotham's deeds so attracted attention, that they were recorded in the chronicles of Israel, as well as in those of Judah: though but little hath been transmitted to us concerning him.

L

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

The severest judgments of God have mercy connected with them, either to the persons themselves, or to others, who thence learn caution and circumspection. It ought to be the constant aim of every one of us to imitate the faith, piety, equity, kindness, self-denial, patience, and meekness, of those servants of God with whom we have acquaintance; and carefully to avoid their failings, and the sins into which they have been betrayed: but the reverse of this is natural, and general among mankind.—If we would attain to eminency in godliness, or usefulness, we must diligently “prepare our ways before the LORD our God;” acting habitually, as under his inspection, and depending on his assistance and merciful acceptance, from love to his name, and zeal for his glory. Many pious men have not fortitude or vigour to combat the difficulties which they who attempt reformation, in opposition to inveterate prejudices, errors, superstitions, and immoralities, must expect; yet all in public stations should remember, that this is incumbent upon them, and forms that improvement of their talents which God requires. They should therefore “arise, and be doing,” according to the duties of their situations, “and the LORD will be with them for good.” But even when the most unexceptionable example is united to the most strenuous and

CHAP. XXVIII.

Ahaz reigns very wickedly, and is defeated with vast slaughter by the kings of Israel and Syria, 1—7. The Israelites lead to Samaria an immense number of captives; but are induced by the remonstrance of a prophet and the interference of the princes, to treat them kindly and send them home, 8—15. Ahaz, attacked by the Edomites and Philistines, sends to the king of Assyria, but receives no benefit from his assistance, 16—21. In his distress he adds to his idolatries, 22—25. He dies, and is succeeded by Hezekiah, 26, 27.

a 2 Kings xvi. 1, 2.
1 Chr. iii. 13 Is.
i. 1. vii. 1—12.
Hos. i. 1. Mic. i.
1. Matt. i. 9.
Ahaz.

b xvii. 3.
c xxi. 6 xxii. 3.
4. 1 Kings xvi.
31—33. 2 Kings
x. 26—28
d Ex xxix. 17.
Lev. xix. 4
e Judg. ii. 11, 13.
* Or, offered sacrifice.
f 2 Kings xxiii.
10 Jer vii. 31,
32. xix. 2—6.
13.

g xxxiii. 6. Lev.
xviii. 21 2 Kings
xvi. 3 Ps cvi.
37, 38 Jer ii
34. Ez. xvi. 20, 21 Mic vi. 7
h xxxiii. 2 Deu
xii. 31

AHAZ was twenty years old when he began to reign; and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem: but he did not that which was right in the sight of the LORD, ^b like David his father.

2 For ^c he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made also ^d molten images for ^e Baalim.

3 Moreover he ^{*} burnt incense in ^f the valley of the son of Hinnom, and ^g burnt his children in the fire, ^h after the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD had cast out before the children of Israel.

4 He ⁱ sacrificed also, and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 Wherefore the LORD ^k his God ^l delivered him into the hand of the king of Syria; and they smote him, and carried away a great multitude of them captives, and brought them to [†] Damascus; and he also was delivered into the hand of the king of Israel, who smote him with a great slaughter.

6 For ^m Pekah the son of Remaliah slew in Judah ⁿ an hundred and twenty thousand in one day, which were all [‡] valiant men: ^o because they had forsaken the LORD God of their fathers.

7 And Zichri, a mighty man of Ephraim, slew ^{*} Maaseiah the king's son, and Azikram the governor of the house, and Elkanah that was [§] next to the king.

8 ¶ And the children of Israel ^p carried away captive of their ^q brethren, two hundred thousand, women, sons, and daughters, and took also away much spoil from them, and brought the spoil to Samaria.

9 But a prophet of the LORD was there, whose name was Oded; and ^r he k xxxvi. 6. Ez.

xx. 2, 3.
l xxiv. 24. xxxiii.
11. xxxvi. 17.
Judg. ii. 14.
2 Kings xvi. 8.
Is. vii. 1, 6.

† Heb. Damascus.

m 2 Kings xv. 27.
37 Is. vii. 4.
n 9 ix. 21
o xiii. 17.
† Heb. sons of valiant.
p xv. 2. Deu. vi.
14, 15. xxxviii.
15, 25. xxix. 24
—26. xxxi. 16,
17. xxxiii. 30.
Josh. xxiii. 16.
Is. xxiv. 5, 6.
Jer. ii. 19.

§ Heb. the second to p Deut. xxviii.
25. 41.
q xi. 4. Acts vii.
26. xiii. 26.

r xix. 1, 2. xxv.
15, 16. 1 Kings
xx. 13, 22, 42.
2 Kings xx. 14,
15.

persevering endeavours, the success of pious reformers will not answer their desires and expectations. Many of the people will still do corruptly: and in righteous displeasure against those who hate to be reformed, the Lord often prematurely removes wise, prosperous, and pious rulers in church or state; and sends others, whose follies and vices severely punish a people, who valued not their mercies till they were withdrawn from them.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXVIII. V. 1—4. (Notes, 2 Kings xvi. 1—4.)

V. 5. The Lord was the God of Ahaz, as his Creator, Upholder, and Governor; as he was born among God's professing and covenant people, dedicated to him by circumcision, and educated in a religious manner; as he was king over Judah, where alone the worship of God was instituted; and as he was bound by every obligation to serve and obey him. But he was not the God of Ahaz, as he is the God of true believers, according to the covenant of grace; he was not Ahaz's Portion and Salvation, nor was Ahaz the Lord's servant and worshipper, for he was a vile apostate and idolater. In short, he had not the privilege of having the Lord for his God, his Shield, and exceeding great reward: but he had the guilt of violating the strongest obligations to his service: and of continuing impenitent, and ungodly, in the midst of every advantage and means of grace. Had he been born and educated a heathen, he might perhaps have escaped remarkable judgments: but as he was an apostate, "the Lord his God" delivered him to be punished, into the hands of the Syrians and Israelites. His people also were involved in the same guilt, and in the same punishment. They did corruptly under pious Jotham: for their correction Jotham was removed, and wicked Ahaz succeeded; and his idolatry and enormous crimes were punished by dreadful havoc made among his subjects. Thus, the sins and sufferings of kings and people resemble the case of the human body; in which the head must share the sufferings of the members, and the members those of the head, by reason of that unity which subsists betwixt them.

V. 6—8. This is the greatest slaughter of the men of Judah that we read of. And as they were all valiant men, and Israel was not in a very prosperous state, it must be ascribed to some supernatural terror or confusion. Ahaz escaped the massacre: but one of his sons, and two of his chief officers were slain, one of whom was next under him in authority; and an immense spoil, and a vast number of prisoners were collected from the defenceless country by the rapacious victors: but it does not appear that Jerusalem was taken by them.

went out before the host that came to Samaria, and said unto them, Behold, ^s because the LORD God of your fathers was wroth with Judah, he hath delivered them into your hand, and ye have slain them in a rage ^t that reacheth up unto heaven.

^u 10 And now ye purpose to ^v keep under the children of Judah and Jerusalem for bond-men and bond-women unto you; ^{but are there} ^x not with you, even with you, sins against ^y the LORD your God?

¹¹ Now hear me therefore, and ^z deliver the captives again, which ye have taken captive of your brethren: for ^a the fierce wrath of the LORD is upon you.

^s 5. Judg. iii. 8.
Ps. lxxix. 26. Is.
x. 5. xlviii. 6.
Ez. xxv. 12. 15.
xxvi. 32. Obad.
10—16. Zech.
1. 15.
Gen. xi. 4.
Ezra ix. 6. Rev.
xviii. 5.

^u Lev. xxv. 39—
46.

^x Jer. xxv. 29.
Rom. xi. 20, 21.
^y 1 Pet. iv. 17, 18.

^z Is. lviii. 6. Jer.
xxxiv. 14, 15.
Heb. xiii. 1—3.

^a Ezra x. 14.
Matt. v. 7. vii.
2 Jam. ii. 14.

V. 9—11. The Lord, provoked with Judah's idolatries, had delivered them into the hands of their still more idolatrous brethren, who had shown the most exorbitant rage and cruelty in destroying them; and as if this had been a small thing, they proceeded to gratify their inhuman avarice by seizing all the women and children, to sell them, or to keep them for slaves. But if the Lord had so severely punished their offending brethren of Judah, could the men of Israel expect to escape his fierce indignation? Were there no sins among them to provoke his displeasure? Or were they not sufficient, without augmenting them by this iniquitous and cruel treatment of the women and children, who had never injured them? Or could they hope for the mercy of God, if they neither showed mercy nor justice to their brethren? This was the Lord's message to the conquerors by his prophet: and it naturally leads us to consider some questions concerning slavery. Let it then be remembered, that there do not at present subsist any such distinctions betwixt nations, as God for wise reasons was pleased for a time to establish betwixt Israel and the Gentiles; but every man is now our neighbour, and in one sense our brother; our fellow-man, if not our fellow-Christian. Perhaps they attempt too much who argue that slavery in all cases is contrary to scriptural principles; and this has given its advocates some advantages in the controversy. But no man, well acquainted with the word of God, needs fear to maintain, that the modern slave-trade stands in diametrical opposition to both the law and the Gospel; as well as to the true interests of mankind. Who can possibly hold his unoffending brother in bondage, for his own gain, without violating the rule of doing to others, as he would that they should do unto him? and as he might fairly expect that they should do to him? Suppose that an African should kidnap the son of an English merchant, and carry him to Africa, and pretending property in him, should sell him for a slave; and so he should be sold from one to another for life, and his children after him. Suppose that Africans gave such prices for Englishmen, as encouraged them to steal and sell one another, till it became a regular trade: would not free-born Britons execrate buyers, sellers, stealers, and all concerned in such a traffic? They, who have forfeited their lives by crimes against the state, have also forfeited their natural right to liberty; and might justly be sold for slaves, by public authority, declaring the crimes for which they were thus punished. Some other criminals, and some kinds of fraudulent debtors, might be sold for a limited time, consistently with equity. Perhaps some prisoners taken in battle, in those wars which are evidently undertaken and conducted in avarice and cruelty, might thus be punished, without transgressing the law of God: (for the policy of it forms quite a distinct question.) But to seize, enslave, and sell a fellow-creature, who has by no criminality known to us, or cognizable by us, merited so severe a treatment, must in all cases be contrary to the law of "loving our neighbour as ourselves." The poor Africans cannot be proved to be either criminals, debtors, or prisoners taken in rapacious or revengeful wars; but they appear generally to be persons, that have been kidnapped from their relatives, or bought of them; or taken prisoners in wars excited on purpose to supply that infamous market. If any of them are criminals, the European merchants know it not: they have no authority from either God or man to be their executioners; and their descendants certainly are not criminals. Were it indeed true, that if not bought by the Europeans, they would be slain by the conquerors: we need only answer, that "You must not do evil, that good may come." "If you have no other way of rescuing them, you had better leave them to fight their own battles, and treat their captives as they please, without interfering: and you certainly would do so, if avarice were no more concerned in the business than humanity is." It is true, that the scripture throughout speaks of slavery as actually existing. But the judicial law was very distinct from the moral law, as hath before been shown: (Note, Exod. xxi. 1—6.) Like other municipal laws, it aimed to prevent those evils which originated from abuses and human passions, and which could not be terminated except by constant miracle; as in the case of divorces. The apostles and evangelists were preachers, and not legislators; they were not empowered to subvert the foundations of civil government throughout the world; and they found slavery universally and inseparably interwoven with them. Every one must therefore perceive what confusion, what reproach, and what additional enmity to Christianity, must have been occasioned by such an attempt. They indeed laid down the principles which, when reduced to practice, will infallibly annihilate slavery: and, taking things as they then stood in civil society, they taught all Christians how to accommodate themselves to their stations, consistently with their profession, even if they were slaves, and slaves in a heathen family. The question is therefore not to be decided by facts; but by The moral Law of God and the tendency of the Gospel. The practice could not then be regularly opposed, without creating convulsions in society: nor can it ever be successfully rectified by preachers; it is the work of enlightened, humane, and pious legislators. Individual believers under both dispensations possessed slaves: they took matters as they were; and treated their slaves with such equity and humanity, as rendered it a kindness to them, to take them

b 1 Chr. xxviii.

12 Then certain of the heads of the children of Ephraim, Azariah the son of Johanan, Berechiah the son of Meshillemoth, and Jehizkiah the son of Shallum, and Amasa the son of Hadlai, stood up against them that came from the war, c 1 Chr. xxvi. 16.

13 And said unto them, Ye shall not bring in the captives hither: for whereas we have offended against the LORD already, ye intend to add more to our sins and to our trespass: for our trespass is great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel.

d Num. xxxiii. 14. Josh xxii. 17, 18. Matt. xxiii. 32, 35. Rom. ii. 5.

14 So the armed men left the captives and the spoil before the princes and all the congregation.

e 12.

15 And the men which were expressed by name rose up, and took the captives, and with the spoil clothed all that were naked among them, and arrayed them, and shod them, and gave them to eat and to drink, and anointed them and carried all the feeble of them upon asses, and brought them to Jericho, the city of palm-trees, to their brethren: then they returned to Samaria.

f Job xxxi. 15-23. Is. lviii. 7. Matt. xxv. 35-45. Acts ix. 30. 1 Tim. v. 10. Jam. ii. 15, 16. 1 John iii. 17, 18.

g 2 Kings vi. 22. Prov. xxv. 21. 22. Luke vi. 27. Rom. xii. 20, 21.

h Deut. xxxiv. 3. 1. Judg. i. 16.

out of ungodly families. And a pious West-Indian, who laments the enormities which he cannot but witness, arising from this unnatural trade, and who sincerely wishes and prays for its entire abolition; may in the mean time deem it better, quietly to set his neighbours an example of treating slaves with brotherly lenity and kindness, conducive to their real happiness, than indiscriminately to liberate them; when perhaps it might occasion fatal effects upon the minds of the other planters and their slaves; if this were done by an individual, in opposition to all his neighbours, and without the interference of legal authority. When strangers are brought so far from home, and are not able to return, a truly pious and humane man may render the yoke very tolerable to them. But who had a right by compulsion to bring their unoffending brethren so far from home? And what proportion do pious and humane persons, in most communities, bear to those of an opposite character? A succession of wise and good kings, if that could be ensured, might render even absolute government a blessing. But whilst mankind are what they are, men of reflection, and lovers of their brethren, will never be friends to despotism in kingdoms or in families: and absolute monarchs and slave-holders will ever be justly exposed to the determined opposition of mankind, even when they merit not their detestation by any abuse of power.

V. 12—15. It is remarkable that Pekah is not mentioned in this transaction, but probably he was at the head of the army when the prophet addressed them. The courage of these princes who ventured to oppose the whole 16 At that time did king Ahaz send unto the kings of Assyria to help him.

i 2 Kings xvi. 5-7. Is. vii. 1-9. 17.

17 For again the Edomites had come and smitten Judah, and carried away captives.

k xxv. 11. 12. Lev. xxvi. 13.

* Heb. a captivity. 1 Ez. xvi. 27. 57.

18 The Philistines also had invaded the cities of the low country, and of the south of Judah, and had taken Bethshemesh, and Ajalon, and Gederoth, and Shochowith the villages thereof, and Timnah with the villages thereof, Gimzo also and the villages thereof: and they dwelt there.

m Josh xv. 10. 1 Sam vi. 9. 13. n xi. 10. Ajalon. o Josh. xv. 41. p Josh. xv. 48. Socoh. q Judg. xiv. 1. Timnah.

19 For the LORD brought Judah low, because of Ahaz king of Israel; for he made Judah naked, and transgressed sore against the LORD.

r Deut. xxviii. 43. 1 Sam ii. 7. Job xl. 12. Ps. cvi. 41-43. Prov. xxix. 23. Hos v. 11. Mic. vi. 16.

20 And Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria came unto him, and distressed him, but strengthened him not.

t xxi. 2. u Gen. iii. 7. 11. Ex. xxxii. 25. Rev. iii. 17, 18. xvi. 15.

21 For Ahaz took away a portion out of the house of the LORD, and out of the house of the king, and of the princes, and gave it unto the king of Assyria: but he helped him not.

x 2 Kings xv. 29. xvi. 7-10. Tilgath-pilneser. 1 Chr. v. 26. Hos. v. 13.

22 And in the time of his distress did y 2 Kings xvi. 5. Is vii. 20 xxx. 3. 16 Jer. ii. 37. z xii. 9. 2 Kings xviii. 15, 16. Prov. xx. 25. a xxxiii. 12 Ps. i. 15. Is i. 5. Ez. xxi. 13. Hos. v. 15. Rev. xvi. 9-11.

army, insolent with victory and enriched with booty, was admirable and commendable, and their arguments were cogent, and coincided with the messages of the prophet. The apostacy, idolatry, and recent cruelty of Israel rendered their trespass very great; and if they reduced the captives to slavery, it would add more to their sins, and hasten the execution of the fierce wrath of God upon them.—The compliance of the army, in leaving both the captives and the spoil to the disposal of the princes, was very wonderful; and the humane treatment, and the carrying back of the captives to their brethren, deserves all possible applause.—The prophet's remonstrance had for the time its full effect: but, alas! both princes and people still cleaved to their idols, and went on in their other sins.

V. 16. 'Before the time of Paul, (2 Kings xv. 19.) we read nothing of the Assyrian monarchy, which grew by degrees to its greatness from small beginnings. If their large empire had been of long standing, we should in all probability have heard of them before this time, as we do often afterwards.' (Bp. Patrick.)

V. 19. Naked. The Lord himself was the glory and defence of Judah: but Ahaz, by seducing his subjects from his worship and service, had degraded them, stripped them of all their ornament, deprived them of all their protection, and left them defenceless and contemptible in the hands of their feeblest enemies.

V. 20, 21. (Note, 2 Kings xvi. 7—9.)

he trespass yet more against the LORD :

this is that king Ahaz.

23 For ^c he sacrificed unto the gods of † Damascus, which smote him; and he said, ^d Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, therefore will I ^e sacrifice to them, that they may help me.

But ^f they were the ruin of him, and of all Israel.

24 And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and ^g cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, and ^h shut up the doors of the house of the LORD; and ⁱ he made him altars in every corner of Jerusalem.

25 And in every several city of Judah

he made high places to [†] burn incense ^{† Or, offer.}

unto other gods, and provoked to anger

the LORD God of his fathers.

26 ¶ Now ^k the rest of his acts, and of all his ways, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

27 And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city, even in Jerusalem: but ^l they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings of Israel: and Hezekiah his son reigned in his stead.

^b Esth. vii. 6. Ps.

lii. 7.

^c xxv. 14 2 Kings

xvi. 12, 13.

[†] Heb. Darmeseck.

^d Hab. i. 11.

^e Jer. xliv. 15—

18.

^f Jer. xliv. 20—20.

^g 2 Kings xvi. 17.

^h xxv. 13, &c.

ⁱ xxxiii. 3. 7.

^j xxxiii. 3—5 Jer

ii. 23 Hos. xii.

^k Acts xvii. 16.

^l 22.

B. C. 726.

1 xxi. 20 xxvii. 2.

xxxiii. 20 1 Sam.

ii. 20. Prov. xi.

7.

V. 22, 23. This, &c. ‘This is that notorious offender, who grew more outrageous in his idolatry and impiety, amidst his distresses! That abandoned prince, who disgraced the house of David, and accelerated the ruin of Judah! Who foolishly sacrificed to the gods of his enemies, supposing that they had smitten him; instead of humbling himself before the Lord, who had used the Syrians as his instruments for his correction! That Ahaz, who acted in a manner which tended to ruin himself, his family, and his kingdom; and persevered therein so obstinately, that he provoked the Lord to cut him off by a premature death, in the full career of his wickedness!’ (Notes, 2 Kings xvi. 12—20.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—7.

They who succeed eminently wise and pious men in the same important station, seldom enter into their views or imitate their conduct, in “doing that which is right in the sight of the LORD.” Nay, frequently they seem ambitious of being as opposite to them as possible; especially when they run into wickedness after having received a pious education! When sinners “like not to retain God in their knowledge,” he “gives them over to vile affections,” to perpetrate every thing horrible and unnatural: and if such monsters of iniquity are advanced to thrones, the Lord intends by them to punish a guilty land, by involving their subjects in the consequences of their crimes and follies. They therefore who are groaning under the oppression of cruel tyrants, or smarting through the effects of their infatuated counsels, are called on to humble themselves before God for their own sins, to submit to his justice, and to seek deliverance from his mercy. On the other hand, if we are governed with equity and clemency, and live in peace and prosperity, through the prudent and successful administration of our rulers; we should bless God for his mercies, and show forth our gratitude in our daily conduct: and it is the constant duty of us all to pray for those who are, or shall be, placed over us, that they may be the instruments of God’s goodness to us, and not of his wrath. Tempters and examples of iniquity, are often employed to be scourges; and the sentence, which God righteously denounces, man may unrighteously execute.—It is a lamentable reflection that so many thousands of lives are sacrificed to the mad passions of potent individuals, who themselves escape: but they that thus are cut off, are sinners, and are punished for having forsaken or offended God.

V. 8—27.

The combined effects of several depraved passions is very dreadful: when revenge is satiated, avarice or ambition may take the reins; and if power be not wanting, the widow, the orphan, the stranger, and the helpless, will be oppressed, crushed, and enslaved without redress; and men will rejoice in growing rich by these detestable measures. But the Lord beholds and disapproves: and in one way or other he will plead or revenge the cause of the oppressed. It is happy when the authority of his word, or the expostulations of his ministers, deter men from persisting in mercenary cruelties; or excite legislators and princes to put a stop to such iniquity. If the oppressed have provoked God to deliver them up into the hand of their oppressors, should not these remember, that “there are with them also sins against the LORD?” Even rigorous justice towards an offending brother, is a grievous offence, in one that only lives and hopes through the mercy of God. (Matt. xviii. 23—35.) But for such persons to injure and cruelly entreat their unoffending brethren, must add exceedingly to the fierce wrath of the Lord that is upon them.” If “he shall have judgment without mercy, who hath showed no mercy,” what will be his doom, who hath been guilty of the most flagrant injustice to the inoffensive stranger, merely because he had it in his power to oppress him? Surely, in such a case, whilst the ministers of the Gospel warn, exhort, and beseech the oppressors to deliver the captives up whom they have taken their brethren: the legislators and rulers of every state should peremptorily refuse admission into their dominions, to those bond-slaves whom they have so unjustly reduced under their subjection. For we have offended against the Lord already, and this connivance will add still more to our sin and to our trespass, till fierce wrath come upon the

CHAP. XXIX.

Hezekiah reigns well, opens the doors of the temple, and exhorts the priests and Levites to prepare every thing for the worship of God, 1—11. They sanctify themselves, and cleanse the temple, 12—19. Hezekiah offers solemn sacrifices; and the Levites show more zeal than the priests, 20—36.

^a 2 Kings xviii. 1
—3 1 Chr. iii. 13.
Is. i. 1. Hos. i. 1.
Mic. i. 1. Matt.
i. 9, 10. Ezekias.

^b xxvi. 5. Is. viii.
2.
^c xxviii. 1. xxxiv.
2. 1 Kings xv. 5.

HEZEKIAH began to reign when he was five and twenty years old, and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Abijah, the daughter of ^b Zechariah.

2 And he ^c did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that David his father had done.

nation. Nay, if the poor captives who have violently been torn from their native country, and who have no power to return to their beloved relatives, could, when dismissed and kindly treated, be carried back again to them, it would be a conduct becoming the disciples of Christ; it might tend to render the name of Christian respectable in those distant regions, where the cruelty, treachery, and avarice of those who bear it, have rendered it odious; and thus at length prepare the way for the propagation of the Gospel among these poor benighted heathens. And instead of injuring the interests of the community, or of any individuals, (except the most atrocious of the oppressors, who have no right to be considered, let it suffice them to escape deserved punishment;) we may venture, upon general scriptural principles, to foretel, that above all other measures, it would tend the most effectually to the lengthening of our tranquillity and prosperity. (Dan. iv. 27.) But if they who commiserate their oppressed fellow-creatures, long to see their grievous servitude terminated, they must unite their prayers for the divine blessing upon the exertions of those who honourably stand forth in this benevolent cause. For without the Lord touch the hearts of those who are to decide upon it, every exertion will be in vain. When sinners are left to their own hearts' lusts, they grow more and more callous, and desperate in wickedness; and trespass yet more and more in their distresses, as if in defiance of God; and seek redress in their miseries, from those sins whence all their sufferings spring, and which will terminate in their ruin, and that of all who adhere unto them. For when God casts down, none can raise up: and all helpers will increase distress, instead of affording deliverance. The progress of wickedness and misery is often rapid; and it is awful to reflect upon a sinner's being driven away in his wickedness into the eternal world. Yet this apparent severity of God against the ringleaders in iniquity proves mercy to thousands, when righteous and useful persons are raised up in their stead.

3 He, ^d in the first year of his reign, in the first month, ^e opened the doors of the house of the LORD, and repaired them.

4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them together into the ^f east-street.

5 And said unto them, ^g Hear me, ye Levites; Sanctify now yourselves, and ^h sanctify the house of the LORD God of your fathers, and carry forth the filthiness out of the holy place.

6 For ⁱ our fathers have trespassed, and done that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD our God, and ^k have forsaken him, and have ^l turned away their faces from the habitation of the LORD, and ^m turned their backs.

7 Also ⁿ they have shut up the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and ^d xxxiv. 3. Ec. ix.

10. Matt. vi. 33.
^e xxviii. 24. 2
Kings xvi. 14—
18.

^f xxxii. 6. Neh.
iii. 29. Jer. xix.
2.

^g xxxv. 6. Ex. xix.
10. 15 1 Chr. xv.
12
^h 16. xxxiv. 3. 8.
Ez. xxxvi. 25.
Matt. xxi. 12, 13.
ⁱ 1 Cor. iii. 16, 17.
^j 2 Cor. vi. 16.
^k vii. 1. Eph. v.
26, 27.

^l xxxviii. 2—4. 23
—25. xxxvi. 21.
Ezra v. 12 ix. 7.
Neh. ix. 16. 32.
Jer. xvi. 19.
xlv. 21. 22. Lam.
xv. 7. Dan. ix. 8.
^m 15. Matt. x. 37.
xxxiii. 30—32.
ⁿ Jer. ii. 27.
^o Ez. viii. 16.

^p Heb. given the neck.
^q xxxviii. 24. Lev.
xxiv. 2—9.
2 Kings xvi. 17,
18.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXIX. V. 1, 2. (Notes, &c. 2 Kings xviii. 1—3.)

V. 3. It seems that the public worship at the temple was entirely suppressed and prohibited, during the latter years of king Ahaz: (7.) The only reason advanced for a contrary opinion, is this: It is not said that the sacred fire on the altar of burnt-offering was extinguished, or that it was rekindled by fire from heaven, as at the dedication of the temple. If, however, the service was not totally put a stop to, the people in general were shut out from attending.—Hezekiah must have witnessed this impiety of his father with deep regret and indignation: but immediately upon his succession to the throne, he threw open the doors of the temple, and proceeded to re-establish the worship there, as in the days of David. Yet the priests and Levites delayed to do their duty, till excited to it by the king. Perhaps Urijah was still the high-priest; the chief priests were infected with idolatry, and disaffected to the service of God; and their inferiors, who were better disposed, might be held back by the authority of the leading men, till authorized by Hezekiah.

V. 5. Personal repentance, and purification from legal and moral defilements, were requisite in the priests and Levites, before they could orderly proceed to purify the temple. Much rubbish, dirt, and rust, would be contracted, through disuse and neglect, in the temple, the courts, and the sacred vessels: but the idolatry, with which they had been polluted, and the altar made after the model of one which Ahaz saw at Damascus, formed by far the worst filthiness, from which they needed to be cleansed. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 6. Our fathers, &c. When the honour of God was concerned, Hezekiah hesitated not to criminate those who had gone before. He did not directly mention Ahaz his father, because that was not needful; and the neglect, and base compliances of the priests and Levites, had greatly contributed to the wickedness of the king and his nobles.

have not burned incense, nor offered burnt-offerings in the holy place unto the God of Israel.

8^a Wherefore the wrath of the LORD was upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them to *trouble,^o to astonishment, and to hissing, as ye see with your eyes.

9 For, lo,^p our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons, and our daughters, and our wives are in captivity for this.

10 Now ^q*it is* in mine heart ^rto make a covenant with the LORD God of Israel, ^sthat his fierce wrath may turn away from us.

11 My sons, be not now ^tnegligent: for ^tthe LORD hath chosen you to stand before him, to serve him, and that ye should minister unto him, and [†]burn incense.

12 Then the Levites arose, Mahath the son of Amasai, and Joel the son of Azariah, of the sons of the ^uKohathites: and ^xof the sons of Merari; Kish the son of Abdi, and Azariah the son of Jehalelel: and ^yof the Gershonites; Joah the son of Zimmah, and Eden the son of Joah:

13 And of the sons of ^zElizaphan; Shimri, and Jeiel: and of the sons of ^aAsaph; Zechariah, and Mattaniah:

14 And of the sons of ^bHeman; Jehiel, and Shimei: and of the sons of ^cJeduthun; Shemaiah, and Uzziel.

15 And they gathered their brethren, and ^dsanctified themselves, and came, according to the commandment of the king, [†]by the words of the LORD, ^eto cleanse the house of the LORD.

16 And the priests went into ^fthe inner part of the house of the LORD, to cleanse it, and brought out ^gall the uncleanness that they found in the temple of the LORD, into the court of the house of the LORD. And the Levites took it, to carry it out abroad into the brook ^hKidron.

17 Now they began on the first ⁱday of the first month to sanctify, and on the eighth day of the month came they to ^jthe porch of the LORD: so they sanctified the house of the LORD in eight days: and in ^kthe sixteenth day of the first month they made an end.

18 Then they went in to Hezekiah the king, and said, We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, and ^lthe altar of burnt-offering, with all the vessels thereof, and ^mthe shew-bread table, with all the vessels thereof.

19 Moreover ⁿall the vessels, which king Ahaz in his reign did cast away in his transgression, have we prepared and sanctified; and, behold, they are before the altar of the LORD.

20 ^oThen Hezekiah the king ^orose early, and gathered the rulers of the city, and went up to the house of the LORD.

21 And they brought ^pseven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven lambs, and seven he-goats, for ^qa sin-offering for the kingdom, and for the sanctuary, and for Judah. And he commanded the priests the sons of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the LORD.

V. 8, 9. The defeat and dreadful slaughter recorded in the foregoing chapter seems here referred to, as the effect of some extraordinary terror from God on the minds of the Jews: and the Edomites and Philistines had been successful, because God had employed them as the weapons of his indignation.

V. 11. Hezekiah attempted to prevail with the priests and Levites to attend to their duty, by argument and affectionate exhortation, and not by compulsion. This condescending address assured them of his readiness to support and protect them, as a father would do his obedient children. He warned them not to be deceived, (so some render the word,) for God would certainly call them to a strict account, if they neglected the work to which he had chosen them: or he exhorted them not to be remiss, when extraordinary exertions were become absolutely necessary.

V. 12—16. All these leaders in the work were Levites; not the chief in rank, but the most eminent for zeal and diligence. The high-priest is not mentioned. Some of the other priests concurred, and cleansed the inside of the sanctuary, whither the Levites might not come. When the ark was to be removed, and on other necessary occasions, the priests might enter the holy of holies; though not at other times. Ahaz died about the close of the year; and Hezekiah had given timely orders to the priests and Levites, for them to begin this good work with the new year.

V. 20. Perhaps Hezekiah arose earlier on that day than common, that he might set the people an example of earnestness in the service of God. He would not lose a day nor an hour, after the temple was ready, before he opened the solemn worship of God, by sin-offerings and other sacrifices.

[†] Or, in the business. xxx. 12.
^e 1 Chr. xxiii. 28.

^f iii 8. v. 7. Ex. xxvi. 33, 34.
^g 1 Kings vi. 19, 20. Heb. ix. 2—8, 23, 24.
^h Ez. xxxvi. 29. Mat. xxiii. 27.

^h xv. 15. 2 Kings xxiii. 4—6. John xviii. 1. Cedron.

ⁱ 7. iii. 4. 1 Kings vi. 3. 1 Chr. xxviii. 11.

^k Ex. xii. 2—8.

^l iv. 1—8.

^m iv. 8. xiii. 11.

ⁿ xxviii. 24.

^o Gen. xxii. 32. Ex. xxiv. 4. Josh. vi. 12. Jer. xxv. 4.

^p Num. xxiii. 1, 14, 29. 1 Chr. xv. 26. Ezra viii. 35. Job xlii. 8. Ez. xlv. 23.

^q Lev. iv. 3—14. Num. xv. 22—24. 2 Cor. v. 24.

^z Lev. x. 4. Elizaphan. 1 Chro. xv. 8.

^a 1 Chr. vi. 39. xv. 17. xxv. 8.
^b 1 Chr. vi. 33. xv. 19.

^c 1 Chr. xxv. 1. 3, 6.

^d 5.

22 So they killed the bullocks, and the priests received the blood, and sprinkled it on the altar: likewise, when they had killed the rams, they sprinkled the blood upon the altar: they killed also the lambs, and they sprinkled the blood upon the altar.

23 And they brought * forth the he-goats for the sin-offering before the king and the congregation; and * they laid their hands upon them:

24 And the priests killed them, and they made ^t reconciliation with their blood upon the altar, to make an atonement for all Israel; for the king commanded that the burnt-offering and ^u the sin-offering should be made for all Israel.

25 And ^x he set the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, with psalteries, and with harps, ^y according to the commandment of David, and of ^z Gad the king's seer, and ^a Nathan the prophet: ^b for so was the commandment ^c of the LORD by his prophets.

26 And the Levites stood with ^d the instruments of David, and ^e the priests with the trumpets.

27 And Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar. And ^f when the burnt-offering began, ^g the song of the LORD began also with the trumpets, and with ^h the instruments ordained by David king of Israel.

28 And ⁱ all the congregation worshipped, and ^j the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded: and all this continued until the burnt-offering was finished.

29 And when they had made an end of offering, the king and all that were * present with him, ^k bowed themselves, and worshipped.

30 Moreover Hezekiah the king and the princes commanded the Levites to sing praise unto the LORD, ^l with the words of David, and of Asaph the seer. And ^m they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshipped.

31 Then Hezekiah answered, and said, Now ye have ⁿ consecrated yourselves unto the LORD, come near, and bring ^o sacrifices, and ^p thank-offerings into the house of the LORD. And the congregation brought in sacrifices, and thank-offerings; and ^q as many as were of a free heart, burnt-offerings.

32 And ^r the number of the burnt-offerings, which the congregation brought, was threescore and ten bullocks, an hundred rams, and two hundred lambs: all these were for a burnt-offering to the LORD.

33 And the ^s consecrated things were ^t six hundred oxen, and three thousand sheep.

34 But ^u the priests were too few, so that they could not slay all the burnt-offerings: wherefore ^v their brethren the Levites ^w did help them, till the work was ended, and until the other priests had sanctified themselves: ^x for the Levites r Lev. i. 5. iv. 7.

13. 31. viii. 15.
19. 24. Heb.
ix. 21.

* Heb. near.

s Lev. i. 4. iv. 15.
21.

t Lev. vi. 30.
viii. 15. Ez. xiv.
15. 17. Dan. ix.
21. Rom. v. 10.
11. 2 Cor. v. 18
—20. Col. i. 20.
21. Heb. ii. 17.
u Lev. iv. 13. &c.
x 1 Chr. ix. 33.
xv. 16—22. xvi.
4. 5. 42. xxv. 1
—7.

y viii. 14. xxxv.
15. 1 Chr. xxiii.
5. xxxvii. 12. 19.
z 2 Sam. xxiv.
11. 1 Chr. xxi. 3.
xxix. 29.
a 2 Sam. vii. 2—
4. xii. 1—7.
b xxx. 12.

c Heb. by the hand of the LORD, by the hand of his prophets.

d 1 Chr. xxiii. 5.
Am. vi. 5.
e v. 12, 13. Num.
x. 10. Josh. vi.
4—9. 1 Chr. xv.
24. xvi. 6. Ps.
lxxxii. 3. xcv. i.
6. 6. cl. 3.

f Heb. in the time.
e vii. 3. xx. 21.
xxiii. 18. Ps.
cxxxvi. 1.

g Heb. hands of instruments.

h Ps. lxxviii. 24—28. Rev. v. 8—14.

i Heb. song. Ps.
lxxxix. 19.

* Heb. found.
g xx. 18. 1 Chr.
xxix. 20. Ps.
lxxii. 11. Rom.
xiv. 11. Phil. ii.
10, 11.

h 2 Sam. xxiii. 1.
2. 1 Chr. xvi. 7.
—36.

i Ps. xxxii. 11.
xxxiii. 1. xcv.
1. 2. c. 1. 2.
cxlix. 2. Phil.
iv. 4.

† Or, filled your hand. xiii. 9.

k Lev. i. iii.
l Lev. vii. 12.

m Lev. i. 3. xxi.
38. Ezra i. 4.

n 1 Kings iii. 4.
viii. 63. 1 Chr.
xxix. 21. Ezra
vi. 17.

p 5. xxx. 16, 17.

q xxxv. 11. Num.
viii. 15. 19.
xxviii. 3. 6. 7.
† Heb. strengthened them.

r xxx. 3.

V. 21—24. (Notes, &c. Lev. iv. (Marg. Ref.) One bullock was appointed for a sin-offering for the whole congregation: but on this extraordinary occasion, when so many and great enormities had been committed, multiplied atoning sacrifices were offered. The ceremony of the king and the congregation laying their hands upon the head of the goats, expressed their confession of guilt, and the substitution of the guiltless animals to suffer in their stead; which prefigured Him “who bare our sins in his own body on the tree.” The word rendered he-goats is not used in scripture till after the captivity; and learned men think that this is one proof that Ezra compiled these books. —The sin offerings especially were presented not only in behalf of the kingdom of Judah, but for all Israel, even the ten tribes, which were at this time governed by Hoshea. Hezekiah seems in this to have had respect to the plan which he afterwards proposed, and which is recorded in the ensuing chapter; namely, of uniting the whole nation of Israel in celebrating the passover, and in the worship of God.

V. 25. The temple-psalmody was regulated with the concurrence of these other prophets, as well as by the appointment of David.

V. 26—28. (Note, Num. x. 1—10. Marg. Ref.)

V. 31, 32. As burnt-sacrifices were wholly consumed on the altar, the offering of them evinced greater zeal and liberality, than the oblation of peace-offerings, a great part of which was eaten by the offerer and his friends. Comparing the sacrifices offered on this occasion with those of Solomon when the temple was dedicated; (though here it is said the burnt-offerings were in abundance;) we may form some idea how greatly the riches and prosperity of the kingdom of Judah were diminished; or how greatly the general spirit of piety had declined!

V. 33. It is probable that the consecrated things denote the peace-offerings, and thank-offerings.

1 Chr. xxix. 17.
Ps. vii. 10.
t 32.
u Ek. xxix. 13.
Lev. iii. 15, 16.
x Gen. xxxv. 14.
Lev. xxiii. 13.
Num. xv. 5-7.
10.
y 1 Chr. xvi. 37—
42. Ezra vi. 18.
1 Cor. xiv. 40.

were more ^a upright in heart to sanctify themselves than the priests.

35 And also ^t the burnt-offerings were in abundance, with ^u the fat of the peace-offerings, and ^x the drink-offerings for every burnt-offering. ^y So the service of the house of the LORD was set in order.

36 And ^z Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people, that ^a God had prepared the people: for ^b the thing was done suddenly.

z 1 Chr. xxix. 9.
17. Ezra vi. 22.
1 Thes. iii. 8, 9.
a xxx. 12. 1 Chr.
xxix. 13. Ps. x.
17. Prov. xvi. 1.
b Acts ii. 41.

V. 34. The priests, &c. We do not find that any idolrous priests were punished: but perhaps some were disgraced and excluded from attendance; whilst more neglected to sanctify themselves, being averse to the sacred service. It was therefore deemed more proper that upright and duly sanctified Levites should slay the sacrifices, than unclean or profane priests. This is considered by many as irregular, but it is no where expressly prohibited. Indeed before the Levites were explicitly given to the sons of Aaron, the slaying the sacrifices was exclusively the work of the priests: but afterwards it seems to have been a part of the ministry assigned to the Levites, at the will of the priests: yet the Levites might not in any case sprinkle the blood, or burn the fat and flesh, or approach the altar.

V. 36. The great and sudden change produced in the conduct of the people; and the alacrity with which they concurred in measures to which much opposition had been expected, evidenced that God had prepared the people: and Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced in it, as a token that he would prosper them in endeavouring a more complete reformation.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—19.

The removal of a single individual of very bad character, from any public situation, and the succession of a wise and pious person in his stead, may be productive of most important and extensive good consequences: for, authority, influence, and example, give such efficacy to the attempts of princes and nobles, that the consequences of their conduct are beyond calculation. And what an honour is it to be employed in diffusing piety and felicity through whole kingdoms! But how dreadful will be the condemnation of those who spread guilt and misery in so extensive a manner!—Whether a godly man inherit a kingdom or an estate; whether he change his station in society, or his place of abode, or be removed to a new situation in the church, his first actions will be of considerable importance, and often leave an abiding impression: and regulations may frequently be then made without difficulty, before different habits and expectations have been formed, which would afterwards become almost impracticable.—Even where God had appointed that apostates and idolaters should be punished with death, we find that the most effectual revivals of true religion were produced by example, exhortation, and encouragement: and if it were in the hearts of kings and rulers, thus to join themselves in covenant with the Lord, and zealously to stir up all orders of men to do their duty, by earnest persuasions and affectionate expostulations, without using violence, or imposing upon men's consciences; many would be excited willingly to concur in their pious designs, and to “come according to the commandment of the king, by the words of the “LORD.” Happy and honourable will they be, who shall thus become nursing fathers to the church, not by bribes and preferments, but by countenancing those who zealously labour to promote acknowledged truth and practical godliness, though not all exactly in the same way.

V. 20—36.

The nominal ministers of religion have in all ages been lamentably backward in labouring and venturing to promote the cause of God: and the higher their dignities, and the greater their emoluments, the more evident frequently has been their aversion to the work of the ministry. Too generally indeed the infidelity and impiety of all orders in the community are justly chargeable upon the vices, the supineness, or the insufficiency, of the stated ministers. Instead of exhorting all others to do their duty, no exhortations have been found effectual, on some occasions, to induce them to attend to their own: nay, they have often been found disposed to overawe and browbeat their inferior brethren, who were willing to “labour in the word and “doctrine,” and to supply their lack of service, that immortal souls might not perish for want of instruction. But if the honour of a parent is not to be regarded where the glory of God is concerned, such clergymen must not expect to be treated with respect, when the very existence of true religion is at stake: and the reputation of the clerical function must be supported by the holy lives, superior knowledge in divine things, and unwearied labours of the clergy: or else it must sink into neglect and contempt. The true minister of Christ, however, should take heed first to himself, and then to his ministry. His own conscience, heart, and life must first be purified by repentance and faith in the divine Saviour: and then he may hope to prosper in endeavouring to convert others also, and to promote the pure and spiritual worship of God. In all reformation, personal or public, we must first be convinced, in what particulars we have done wrong, and then consider how we may do better. Neglect of God, and omission of duty, lead to more direct impiety and iniquity; and our own transgressions prepare us to become tempters and seducers of others. Thus religion is run down, and the wrath of the Lord comes on apostate professors and apostate nations. In returning to him, therefore, we must renounce our sins and begin to practise neglected duties, to use the means of grace, and to watch against the wickedness of the heart. We indeed have no occasion for multiplied sacrifices, as the one atonement of Christ is sufficient for all who rely on it: but we need repeated confessions of guilt, constant humiliation before God, and application to the Saviour's blood, for forgiveness and acceptance; we need to maintain daily communion with, and to receive continual communications from, our reconciled Father, through him; and we should present our

CHAP. XXX.

Hezekiah proclaims a solemn passover to be kept in the second month, and calls both Judah and Israel to unite in celebrating it, 1—5. His message to them, and the reception it met with, 6—12. A great multitude, having destroyed the altars for Idolatry in Jerusalem, prepare to keep the feast, 13—16. Hezekiah prays for those who were not ceremonially clean, and prevails, 17—20. They keep the feast fourteen days with great joy, 21—26. The priests bless the people, 27.

a xi. 13, 15.

b 10. 11. xxv. 7.
xxxv. 6. Hos.
v. 4. vii. 8, 9.
xi. 8.

c Deut. xvi. 2—6.

d Ex. xii. 3—20.
1 Cor. v. 7, 8.e 1 Chr. xiii. 1—
3 Prov. xi. 14.
xv. 22. Ec. iv.
13.

f Num. ix. 10, 11.

AND Hezekiah sent ^a to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters ^b also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come ^c to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, ^d to keep the passover unto the LORD God of Israel.

2 For ^e the king had taken counsel, and his princes, and all the congregation in Jerusalem, to keep the passover ^f in the second month.

spiritual sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving, and devote our time, talents, and substance, yea, our bodies and souls, with a free heart, as sacrifices acceptable to the Father, through the Redeemer's name. To these things we are encouraged by the joyful sound of his gospel: when we abound in these sacred exercises, according to the commandment of the holy prophets and apostles of Christ, we shall be enabled, though in ourselves most miserable sinners, to rejoice in the Lord and to glory in his salvation.—Those ministers who are most diligent in preparing for their work and performing it, will be most employed and honoured, even though inferior in external distinctions; and slothful disqualification will never excuse any man's negligence before God. But He alone can prepare the heart of man for vital godliness: when much real good is effected in a little time, the glory must be ascribed to him; and all who love him, or the souls of men, will rejoice. And if we would have such blessings, we must make it our constant prayer to the Lord, thus to prepare our hearts and those of others: for when he works, great things may suddenly be effected. May he grant that none called ministers may be negligent: but that they may all act as chosen by him to stand before him, and to serve him; and that they may zealously do his will, that the wrath of God may be turned from them and from others on every side, by his blessing upon their labours.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXX. V. 1. The other tribes of Israel were as much bound to obey the law of Moses, as Judah and

3 For they could not keep it ^g at that time, ^h because the priests had not sanctified themselves sufficiently, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem.

4 And the thing ^{*} pleased the king, and all the congregation.

5 So they ⁱ established a decree ^k to make proclamation throughout all Israel; ^l from Beersheba even to Dan, that they should come to keep the passover unto the LORD God of Israel at Jerusalem: ^m for they had not done it of a long time in such sort as it was written.

6 So ⁿ the posts went with the letters from the [†] king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, saying, Ye children of Israel, ^o turn again unto the LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant of you, that are ^p escaped out of the hand of the kings of Assyria.

7 And be not ye ^q like your fathers and like your brethren, which trespassed against the LORD God of their fathers, g Ex. xii. 6. 18.

h xxix. 34.

* Heb. was right
in the eyes of.
1 Chr. xiii. 4.i Ezra vi. 8—12.
Esth. iii. 12—
15. viii. 8—10.
ix. 20, 21. Dan.
vi. 8.
k xxiv. 9. xxxvi.
22. Lev. xxiii.
2 4. Dan. iv. 1,
kc.
l Judg. xx. 1.
m xxxv. 13.n Job ix. 25. Est.
viii. 14. Jer. li.
31.
† Heb. the hand of.o Is. lv. 6, 7. Jer.
iv. i. Ez. xxxiii.
11. Hos. xiv. 1.
Joel ii. 12, 13.
Jam. iv. 8.p xxxviii. 20.
1 Kings xv. 19.
29. 1 Chr. v.
26. Is. i. 9.
q Ez. xx. 18
Zech. i. 3, 4.

Benjamin were: but Hezekiah had no authority over them. Yet the circumstances in which they were placed, encouraged him to address them by letters, with an amicable and pious invitation; which implied that they might attend at the temple with perfect safety, though not his subjects.—Ephraim and Manasseh, as principal tribes, seem put for the whole kingdom of Israel.

V. 2—4. Hezekiah and his counsellors justly concluded, that the regulation of the fourteenth day of the second month, which had been made for individuals who were hindered from eating the passover at the appointed season, might, in their present circumstances, be extended to the whole congregation. A sufficient number of the priests had not been duly sanctified, to prepare the temple for that ordinance at the sacred time, or to officiate in it; the people, long disused from attendance, were not generally assembled; they who were present, seemed well disposed to celebrate that solemn and significant ordinance, and it might have an abiding good effect, if the favourable opportunity were seized. For these reasons it was determined to summon the people to attend, and to keep the passover in the second month.

V. 5. As it was written. It seems probable, that the passover, and the other solemn feasts, were sometimes totally omitted for years together; and at other times very carelessly attended, and by very few persons, compared with what the law required: and the ten tribes had never been accustomed to repair to Jerusalem, since the division of the kingdom.

• Heb. harden not your necks.
xxxvi. 13. Ex.
xxii. 9. Deut.
1. 16. Is. xlviii.
† Heb. give the hand. 1 Chr.
xxix. 24. Ezra
x. 19. Ps. lxxviii.
31. Rom. vi. 13.
16. 19.

8 Now * be ye not stiff-necked as your fathers were, but † yield yourselves unto the LORD, and † enter into his sanctuary, * which he hath sanctified forever: and † serve the LORD your God, that the fierceness of his wrath may turn away from you.

9 For * if ye turn again unto the LORD, your brethren and your children shall find compassion before them that lead them captive, * so that they shall come again into this land: for * the LORD your God is gracious and merciful, and * will not * turn away his face from you, if ye return unto him.

10 So * the posts passed from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, even unto Zebulun: but * they laughed them to scorn, and mocked them.

11 Nevertheless, * divers of Asher, and Manasseh, and of Zebulun, * humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem.

12 Also in Judah * the hand of God was to give them one heart to do * the commandment of the king and of the princes, * by the word of the LORD.

13 † And there assembled at Jerusalem much people to keep the feast of unleavened bread in * the second month, a very great congregation.

14 And they arose, and took away the * altars that were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for incense took they away, and cast them into * the brook Kidron.

d xxxvi. 16 Gen.
xix. 14 Neh. ii.
19. Job xii. 4.
Luke viii. 53.
xvi. 14 xxiii. 63.
64. xxiii. 35.
Acts xvii. 32.
Heb. xi. 36.
e 19. 16. Acts
xvii. 34.
f xxxiii. 12. 19.
23. Ex. x. 3.
Lev. xxvi. 41.
1 Pot. v. 6.
g xxxix. 36. 1 Chr.
xxix. 18. 19.
Ezra vii. 27. Ps.
cx. 3 Jer. xxxii.
39. Phil. ii. 13.
2 Thes. ii. 13.
14.
h Deut. iv. 2. 5.
6. 1 Thes. iv.
2.
i xxxix. 25.
k 2.

l xxxviii. 24. Is.
li. 18-20.

m xv. 16. xxix.
16.

V. 6—9. Hoshea was king of Israel at this time, and it does not appear that he attempted to hinder his subjects from resorting to Jerusalem to worship, if they chose it; (Note, 2 Kings xvii. 2.)—In the preceding reign Israel had made a dreadful slaughter of the men of Judah: yet Hezekiah considered the Israelites as brethren, and greatly desired to bring them back, by kind treatment, to the religion of their fathers: and therefore he sent his proclamation or letters, into the parts of the land belonging to the ten tribes, as well as throughout his own dominions. The word rendered posts signifies runners: for men were then, and still are, in many places, trained and kept on purpose to convey dispatches speedily by running. Even then the Israelites were but a remnant, that had escaped from the ravages of Pul and Tiglath-pilezer: and far heavier judgments awaited them for their apostacy and idolatry; which could not be averted, except by turning again to the God of their fathers. Hezekiah, however, most affectionately and plainly cautioned them not to copy the crimes of their fathers and brethren, whose miseries they had witnessed: he warned them not to be stiff-necked, or obstinate in rebellion: and he exhorted them “to yield themselves unto the Lord;” that is, to yield the victory to him, to submit to his authority, to lay down their rebellious arms, to crave mercy, and to become his servants. He entreated them also “to enter “into his sanctuary, which he had sanctified for ever;” that is, to renounce their idolatries and self-invented worship, and to resort with their sacrifices to the temple at Jerusalem, and there to keep the solemn feasts. The temple was not only the centre of God’s worship, and the pledge of his gracious presence with his people, but likewise the type of those spiritual blessings which are from everlasting to everlasting upon all true believers. Hezekiah also encouraged those whom he addressed to hope, from the mercy and grace of God to the penitent, that if thus they turned to him, the fierceness of his wrath would be turned away from them; and they might expect the restoration of their brethren and children, who were already in captivity: for having all hearts in his hand, he can and will make the enemies of those that please him to be at peace with them, and to show them compassion. In this he evidently referred to the promises contained in the books of Moses. (Marg. Ref.) It is observable that these letters carefully avoided all mention of the claim of David’s family to dominion over all Israel; and of former injuries and quarrels, or whatever could give any shadow of offence, either to the prince or his subjects, except in the immediate concerns of religion.

V. 10, 11. The nation of Israel was almost ripe for destruction; and no wonder that most of them insulted and mocked the messengers who conveyed these invitations: we may rather wonder, that they met with no worse treatment. Some however of several tribes were prevailed on, and humbling themselves for former sins, resorted to Jerusalem: so that Hezekiah’s pious design was not ineffectual, though not so successful as he wished it to be.

V. 12. The language of this verse is entitled to special attention. “The commandment of the king and his “princes, by the word of the LORD,” met with ready and general obedience from the men of Judah; because “the hand of God was to give them one heart to do it.” If the rulers had commanded any thing contrary to the word of the LORD, or beyond it, in affairs of religion; it would have been a misapplication of their authority: but, as they required nothing but what God had expressly enjoined; they duly improved their talent, and the people, by the grace of God, knew and performed their duty. It does not appear that Christianity has altered the duty either of rulers or subjects in this respect.

V. 13. The emphatical language here used fully proves, that the concourse of people to celebrate this passover, was exceedingly great, compared with all other instances with which the writer was acquainted.

V. 14. As the people assembled at Jerusalem some days before the passover, they employed the intermediate time in clearing the city of altars for idolatry, and from other abominations. This was an excellent preparation for the solemn ordinance which they were about to celebrate.

15 Then they killed the passover on the fourteenth day of the second month: and the priests and the Levites^a were ashamed, and sanctified themselves, and brought in the burnt-offerings into the house of the LORD.

16 And they stood in their^{*} place after their manner, according to the law of Moses the man of God: ^o the priests sprinkled the blood, which they received of the hand of the Levites.

17 For there were many in the congregation that were not sanctified: therefore^p the Levites had the charge of the killing of the passovers, ^q for every one that was not clean, to sanctify them unto the LORD.

18 For a multitude of the people, even many of Ephraim and Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, ^a had not cleansed themselves, yet did they eat ^t the passover otherwise than it was written. But Hezekiah^u prayed for them, saying, ^x The good LORD pardon every one, 19 That ^y prepareth his heart to seek God, the LORD God of his fathers, ^z though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary.

20 And the LORD hearkened to Hezekiah, and ^a healed the people.

21 And the children of Israel that were † present at Jerusalem kept ^b the feast of unleavened bread seven days, with ^c great gladness: and the Levites and ^d the priests praised the LORD day by day, singing with [‡] loud instruments unto the LORD.

22 And Hezekiah spake [§] comfortably unto all the Levites ^e that taught ^f the good knowledge of the LORD: and they did eat throughout the feast seven days, offering peace-offerings, and ^g making confession to the LORD God of their fathers.

23 And the whole assembly ^h took counsel ⁱ to keep other seven days: and they kept other seven days with gladness.

24 For Hezekiah king of Judah [‖] did ^k give to the congregation a thousand bullocks, and seven thousand sheep: and the princes gave to the congregation a thousand bullocks, and ten thousand sheep: and ^l a great number of priests sanctified themselves.

25 And all the congregation of Judah, with the priests and the Levites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel, and ^m the strangers that came out of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Judah, ⁿ rejoiced.

26 So there was great joy in Jerusalem: for ^o since the time of Solomon the son of David king of Israel, there was not the like in Jerusalem.

V. 15. The zeal and earnestness of the king, the princes, and the people in general, made the priests and Levites ashamed of their own supineness, and stirred them up to prepare themselves, and attend on their work. The hand of God was in this also, or they would have been the more irritated. (Matt. xxi. 15.)

V. 16, 17. (Marg. Ref.) Either the Levites or the offerers might receive the blood of the victims: but the priests alone might sprinkle it. It is evident, that in ordinary cases, the persons who brought the paschal lambs slew them; or this exception would not have been stated: and it is at least probable, that the case was the same with other sacrifices. (Note, Lev. i. 5. 9.)

V. 18—20. Many of the ten tribes having come at a short warning, and being destitute of instruction, were ceremonially unclean, and therefore not regularly prepared to eat the passover. But it would have greatly discouraged them, had they been excluded from that ordinance to which they had been invited; they appeared very sincere and earnest in returning to the Lord; and there was a prospect of important usefulness. They were therefore allowed to eat the passover, when the Levites had killed it for them, notwithstanding their ceremonial disqualification: and Hezekiah, sensible that there was danger in this deviation, earnestly prayed to the good and merciful LORD, “to “pardon every one that prepared his heart to seek—“the LORD,—though not cleansed, according to the purification of the sanctuary.” (Marg. Ref.) To this prayer the Lord granted a favourable answer, “and healed the people.” Perhaps he had visited them with some sickness for their irregularity, which he then graciously healed. (1 Cor. xi. 30.) Or he gave peace to their consciences, and healed their souls.

V. 22. The sacrifices, psalmody, and supplications of the people, were accompanied by the reading and expounding of the law: some of the Levites were thus employed in instructing the people, in the good, the profitable, and pleasant knowledge of the Lord; (Note, 1 Chron. xxviii. 9 :) and the king peculiarly noticed and encouraged them in this useful work, which was very much wanted. This would excite others to apply themselves to the study of the law, that they too might be qualified for this service. By “making confession,” may be meant, either confessing their sins, or acknowledging the unmerited goodness of the Lord.

V. 23. This passover must have been nearly about the time of harvest: but the hearts of the people were so enlarged with holy affections, that they were neither weary of the sacred service, nor in haste to return to their secular business. (Marg. Ref.)

^a xxix. 34. Ez. xvi. 61—63. xliii. 10, 11.

^{*} Heb. standing.

^o xxxv. 10, 11. Lev. i. 5. Heb. xxi. 25.

^q xix. 3. xx. 33. Job xi. 13. Prov. xxi. 26.

^r 11. Num. xix. 20. 1 Cor. xi. 28.

^t Ex. xii. 43. &c.

^u Gen. xx. 7. 17.

^x Job xlii. 8, 9.

^y Jam. v. 15.

^z 1 John v. 16.

^a vi. 21. Ex. xxxiv.

^b 9. Num. xiv.

^c 18—20. Ps. xxxvi.

^d 5. Dan. ix. 19.

^e xix. 3. xx. 33.

^f 1 Sam. vii. 3.

^g Ezra vii. 10.

^h Job xi. 13. Prov.

ⁱ xxi. 26.

^j Lev. xii. 4. xv.

^k 31—33. xxi. 17.

^l —23. xxi. 3—6.

^m Num. ix. 6. xix.

ⁿ 13—20.

^o Ex. xv. 26. Ps.

^p ciii. 3. Jam. v.

^q 18.

[†] Heb. found.

^b Ez. xii. 15. xlii.

^c 6. Lev. xxiii. 6.

^d Luke xxii. 1. 7.

^e 1 Cor. v. 7, 8.

^f 26. vii. 10. Deut.

^g xii. 12. Acts ii.

^h 46.

ⁱ d. xx. 21. xxix. 25.

^j —27.

^k Heb. instruments

^l of strength. Ps.

^m el. 3—5.

ⁿ Heb. to the hearts

^o of all. xxxii. 6.

^p Is. xl. 1. Hos.

^q ii. 14.

^r e. xv. 3. xvii. 9.

^s xxxv. 3. Deut.

^t xxxiii. 10. Ezra

^u vii. 10. 25. Neh.

^v vii. 7. 8. 18. ix.

^w 3. 2. Tim. iv. 2.

^x f. Prov. ii. 6. 7.

^y viii. 6. Phil. iii.

^z 8.

^a g. Deut. xxvi. 3—

^b 11. Ezra x. 11.

^c Neh. ix. 3. &c.

^d h. 2.

^e j. vii. 9. 1 Kings

^f viii. 65.

^g h. Heb. lifted up,

^h or, offered.

ⁱ k. xxxv. 7. 8.

^j 1 Chr. xxix. 3—

^k 9. Ez. xiv. 17.

^l Eph. iv. 8.

^m 1. xxix. 34.

ⁿ —49.

^o m. 18. Ez. xii. 43.

^p —49.

^q n. 1 Chr. xvi. 16.

^r 11. Ps. xcii. 4.

^s civ. 34.

^t o. vii. 9, 10.

p Num vi. 23—
26. Deut. x. 8.

q 1 Kings viii. 30.
Acts x. 4.

27 Then^p the priests the Levites arose, and blessed the people: and their voice was heard, and ^q their prayer came up to * his holy dwelling place, even unto heaven.

* Heb the habitation of his holiness. Ps. lxxviii. 5. Is. lvi. 15. lxiii. 15. lxvi. 1.

V. 27. Arose, &c. This seems to have been at the close of the solemnity. The observance of this passover, and the solemnities that attended it, were crowned with a peculiar blessing, and brought many of the priests and people to a serious sense of religion, and introduced an important revival among them; even superior to any that had taken place since the days of Solomon. As this occurred in the first year of Hezekiah's reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years, we may be sure that he witnessed the effects of so good a beginning to the end of his life. It was done suddenly, but by the grace of God it was done effectually. Doubtless the passovers and other solemn feasts were kept up and attended to during this reign, but not in so remarkable a manner as this first passover.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—12.

Favourable opportunities of fixing good impressions ought by no means to be let slip: and it is better that circumstantial irregularities should be admitted, than that divine ordinances should be neglected, or substantial usefulness prevented. When duties have been long omitted, the time ought to be more carefully redeemed, that no further delays may be occasioned: former negligence, though it cannot be excused, may be forgiven; but persevering ungodliness will infallibly end in destruction. We ought to embrace every proper opportunity of addressing men upon their eternal concerns, and of engaging as many as possible in the service of God: and we may employ arguments and persuasions with those over whom we pretend to no authority. No injuries or enmities should render us indifferent about the salvation of any man: no expense or labour ought to be grudged in such endeavours: nor should we be discouraged by the prospect of the neglect, or contempt, or even rage, of the very persons whose happiness we are seeking. Numbers may and will laugh us to scorn: but several will be humbled and benefited; and perhaps, where success was least expected, where impiety and profligacy were most notorious, and among those that appeared ripe for destruction! Such attempts should be made in plainness, meekness, and affection; all reproaches and upbraidings, and every thing assuming or needlessly offensive, should be avoided; important and undeniable truths and duties should chiefly be insisted upon; and the conscience and passions, especially hope and fear, should be vigorously addressed. The consequences of continuing in sin, and of returning to God, should be contrasted; and the whole should be enforced by arguments deduced from fact and experience. Addresses to this effect are peculiarly seasonable, while men are suffering for their crimes, and still deeper miseries present themselves to their view, from which they have no prospect of deliverance, but by the merciful interposition of God. And when the prosperity of eminently pious persons, among their acquaintance or relatives, can be compared with the misery of others notoriously profligate; the argument thence deduced, for repentance and returning to God, will have peculiar energy: for even the irreligious must see the absurdity of copying the wicked examples of fathers or brethren, who have been evidently ruined by their vices. But the rich mercy of God forms the grand argument, by which to enforce repentance on the sinner's conscience. There is forgiveness with him, and plenteous redemption in the Saviour's blood; and we are under a dispensation of mercy. Nothing but stiff-necked, obstinate, impenitent wickedness can ruin us. The vilest of sinners, "who yield themselves to the LORD," shall certainly be saved. Let then sinners trust in his mercy, and attend upon his ordinances, and join themselves to his people, that they may serve him: and then the fierceness of his wrath will turn away from them; but not otherwise. To this "we should exhort one another daily, lest any of us should be hardened, through the deceitfulness of sin:" to this we may invite and persuade the chief of sinners; for "him that cometh" to the Saviour, "he will in no wise cast out:" but he "will grant" unto all who believe in him, "that, being delivered from the hand of their enemies, they may serve him without fear, in righteousness and true holiness, before him, all the days of their life:" and the covenant made with them will prove for the good of their children and brethren also. Oh, that messengers were sent forth to carry these invitations to every city and village, through every land! Indeed the Lord alone can render them effectual: but he works by the word of his ministers, and also by the commandment of kings and princes. Faith comes by hearing: and true religion hath uniformly flourished in proportion to the measure in which faithful scriptural preaching hath abounded. In general, persons of wealth or authority might be instrumental in promoting this faithful preaching of the word of God, if they had the inclination, and were willing to bear the expense of it: and superior rank does not enjoy a higher privilege. All who are employed in such a work, should do it with their might; and neither be discouraged nor exasperated by opposition or reproach; and they will find that their labour has not been in vain in the Lord.

V. 13—27.

When we are humbled for our transgressions, and declare war against all our idols, expecting and seeking forgiveness and salvation through the atonement of Christ, we become welcome guests at the Lord's table. The unhumbled and impenitent indeed; the man who lives in allowed known sin, and he who comes 'trusting in his own righteousness,' instead of God's manifold and great mercies, may pretend to commemorate the death of Christ; but he is an intruder who comes to the marriage-feast without the wedding-garment. Yet when the sinner has indeed begun to prepare his heart to seek the Lord; though his views are feeble, obscure, and in many things erroneous, and his approach be not exactly regular; he must not be discouraged, despised, or treated with harshness: our blessed Advocate, who breaketh not the bruised reed, will intercede for him; we

CHAP. XXXI.

The people destroy the idols and their temples and altars, throughout Judah and Israel, 1. Hezekiah orders the courses of the priests and Levites, and provides for their maintenance as well as for the stated sacrifices, 2—4. The people readily bring their first-fruits and tithes, 5—10. Hezekiah appoints officers to dispose of these oblations, 11—19. A high commendation of his zeal and integrity, 20, 21.

a xxx. 1, &c.
1 Kings xviii. 38
—40. 2 Kings
xxiii. 2—20.
Heb. found.

NOW^a when all this was finished, all Israel that were^{*} present went out too ought to pray for and encourage him, and our good Lord will pardon every one who bears this character. No trembling believer, therefore, who desires to trust in the Redeemer, and to show his gratitude by obeying his plain command, need to be alarmed lest he should fail in that exactness which he supposes is required in this ordinance: for the good LORD lays no snares in the way of humble upright inquirers. Previous preparation is indeed profitable; but the true believer is habitually ready, and ought not to retire for want of actual preparation. Yet every defect is sin, and needs forgiveness; and should be matter of humiliation, but not of discouragement. Man's authority cannot disannul or alter divinely instituted externals in the worship of God: yet they may be idolized; and the Lord will on some occasions approve the conduct of those who prefer the spirit to the letter of an insituted observance, where both cannot possibly be attained; and who seize an opportunity of glorifying him, in seeking the conversion and salvation of souls, by postponing, or relaxing in, the exact observance of an external regulation. Much allowance should be made for those who are newly brought forth out of very ignorant places: yet they must not be left in their mistakes. The ministers of God must diligently teach them the good knowledge of the Lord, of his perfections, mysteries, ordinances, and precepts; that they may proceed with increasing understanding and alacrity. They who labour in this important work should be encouraged and counselled by all that are able; for it is very arduous, and brings a man into many perplexities.—When the chief of sinners humble themselves before God, they may in due time expect great gladness in his ordinances. Their confessions of sin will be made pleasant by the hope of forgiveness, and by that peace and joy which are the sweet fruits of the sanctifying Spirit. They who taste this happiness in the worship of God, will not speedily grow weary of it, but will be glad to prolong the delightful employment, and must be, as it were, torn away to return to their secular occupations. When the ignorant, the mean, and the profligate, as well as those of superior stations, become earnest in God's service, Pharisees will either be exasperated or ashamed: and it is happy for them-to the cities of Judah, and ^b brake the ^b ^{xiv. 3 xxxiv. 3} ^{—7. Deut. vii.} ^{5. 2 Kings xviii.} ^{4. Heb. statues.} ^{c xxx. 18. 2 Kings xvii. 2. xviii. 1.} ^{† Heb. until to make an end.} ^{d 1 Chr. xvi. 37. 40. xxiii. xxiv. xxv. xxvi. Ezra vi. 18. Luke i. 5.} ^{e xxxix. 24. 26. 1 Chr. xvi. 4—6. 41. 42. xxv. 3. Neh. xi. 17. Ps. cxxxiv. ? —3. cxxxv. 1 —3. 19, 20. Jer. xxxiii. 11.} ^{† images in pieces, and cut down the groves, and threw down the high places and the altars out of all Judah and Benjamin, ^c in Ephraim also and Manasseh, [†] until they had utterly destroyed them all. Then all the children of Israel returned, every man to his possession, into their own cities.}

2 And Hezekiah appointed^d the courses of the priests, and the Levites after their courses, every man according to his service, the priests and Levites for burnt-offerings, and for peace-offerings, to minister, and ^e to give thanks, and to praise in the gates of the tents of the LORD.

selves, and for others, when they are at length brought to true repentance, and fall in with and help forward the work of God in their several places. And if numbers of ministers, that have been ungodly and mercenary, become obedient to the faith, we may be sure, that God is powerfully at work, and has much more to do. (Acts vi. 7.) True godliness will be attended with proportionable joy; and numbers met together, to whom God hath given one heart to delight in his ordinances, will share and augment each other's rejoicing. But such seasons on earth are transient: trials and conflicts await us after our choicest consolations; yet these are beneficial to us. The benedictions and prayers of the Lord's ministers, by which the people are dismissed from solemn ordinances, are not to be slighted; though spoken on earth, they are heard in heaven, the holy dwelling place of our reconciled God. But the intercession of our great High-Priest is chiefly to be valued: he never fails to plead for every believer, and he never pleads in vain. A few more interruptions of our joy by conflicts and temptations, (whilst in him we still have peace!) and we shall soon be with him to behold his glory: and there our worship, our love, and rejoicing, will be uninterrupted, unalloyed, and eternal.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXXI. V. 1. This destruction of idolatry and its appendages, was either confined to those cities and villages which had come under the dominion of the kings of Judah, or to those places whence the Israelites came, who resorted to Jerusalem to keep the passover: or else, Hoshea not objecting to it, the people, in their zeal for the honour of the God of Israel, went through the whole land, for this purpose; whilst the idolaters were intimidated from making any opposition. When this was done, they returned home: and it is probable that some of the Israelites, who had been at the feast, retired into the land of Judah during the ravages of Shalmaneser, and so escaped the general ruin.

V. 2. The tents, &c. The buildings which surrounded the temple in which the priests and Levites were stationed, resembled the tents in which soldiers are regularly encamped. (Marg. Ref.) f xxx. 24. 1 Chr. xvi. 26. Ex. xlv. 17. xlv. 4. 7. 12-18.

 g Ex. xxix. 38. 42. Num. xxviii. 3-8.
 h Num. xxviii. 9, 10.
 i Num. xxviii. 11-15.
 k Lev. xxiii. 2. 3c. Num. xxviii. 16-31.
 l xxix. 1, 3c. Deut. xvi. 1, 3c. Ps. lxxxvi. 1-4. Col. ii. 16. 17.
 m Lev. xxviii. 30. Num. xviii. 9. 21. Mal. iii. 8-10.
 n Neh. xlii. 10-13. 1 Cor. ix. 10-14.
 o Mal. ii. 7. xxiv. 10, 11. Ek. xxxv. 5. 20-29. xxxvi. 5. 6. 2 Cor. viii. 2-5.
 p Heb. brake forth.
 q Ex. xxii. 29. xxiii. 19. xxxiv. 22. 26. Num. xxviii. 12. Neh. x. 35-39. xii. 44. xlii. 31. Prov. iii. 9. 1 Cor. xv. 20. Jam. i. 18. Rev. xiv. 4.
 r Or, datas.
 s Lev. xxvii. 30. Deut. xiv. 28.
 t Heb. heaps, heaps.
 u Lev. xxiii. 16-24.
 v Gen. xiv. 20. 1 Kings viii. 14. 15. 1 Chr. xxix. 10. 20. Ezra vii. 27. Eph. i. 3. 1 Pet. i. 3.
 w Gen. xiv. 19. 2 Sam. vi. 18. 1 Kings viii. 55. 56.
 x xxvi. 17. 1 Chr. vi. 8. 10-14.
 3 He appointed also ^f the king's portion of his substance for the burnt offerings, ^g to wit, ^h for the morning and evening burnt-offerings, and ⁱ the burnt-offerings for the sabbaths, and ^j for the new moons, and for ^k the set feasts, as ^l it is written in the law of the LORD.
 4 Moreover he commanded the people that dwelt in Jerusalem, to give ^m the portion of the priests and the Levites, ⁿ that they might be encouraged in ^o the law of the LORD.
 5 ¶ And ^p as soon as the commandment ^q came abroad, the children of Israel brought in abundance ^r the first-fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and ^s honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly.
 6 And ^t concerning the children of Israel and Judah, that dwelt in the cities of Judah, they also brought in ^u the tithe of oxen and sheep, and the tithe of holy things which were consecrated unto the LORD their God, and laid ^v them by ^w heaps.
 7 In ^x the third month they began to lay the foundation of the heaps, and finished ^y them in the seventh month.
 8 And when Hezekiah and the princes came and saw the heaps, they ^z blessed the LORD, ^a and his people Israel.
 9 Then Hezekiah questioned with the priests and the Levites concerning the heaps.
 10 And ^b Azariah the chief priest of the house of Zadok answered him, and said, ^c Since the people began to bring the offerings into the house of the LORD, ^d we have had enough to eat, and have left plenty: for ^e the LORD hath blessed his people; and that which is left is this great store.

 11 Then Hezekiah commanded to prepare ^f chambers in the house of the LORD; and they prepared ^g them,
 12 And brought in the offerings and the tithes and the dedicated things faithfully: ^h over which Cononiah the Levite was ruler, and Shimei his brother was the next.
 13 And Jehiel, and Azaziah, and Nathath, and Ashael and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliel, and Ismachiah, and Mahath, and Benaiah, were overseers ⁱ under the hand of Cononiah and Shimei his brother, at the commandment of Hezekiah the king, and ^j Azariah the ruler of the house of God.
 14 And Kore the son of Imnah the Levite, ^k the porter toward the east, was over ^l the free-will-offerings of God, to distribute the oblations of the LORD, and ^m the most holy things.
 15 And ⁿ next him were Eden, and Miniamin, and Jeshua, and Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah, in ^o the cities of the priests, in ^p their ^q set office, to give to their brethren by courses, ^r as well to the great as to the small:
 16 Beside their genealogy of males, from ^s three years old and upward, even unto every one that entereth into the house of the LORD, his daily portion for said, ^c Since the people began to bring the offerings into the house of the LORD, ^d we have had enough to eat, and have left plenty: for ^e the LORD hath blessed his people; and that which is left is this great store.

 11 Then Hezekiah commanded to prepare ^f chambers in the house of the LORD; and they prepared ^g them,
 12 And brought in the offerings and the tithes and the dedicated things faithfully: ^h over which Cononiah the Levite was ruler, and Shimei his brother was the next.
 13 And Jehiel, and Azaziah, and Nathath, and Ashael and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliel, and Ismachiah, and Mahath, and Benaiah, were overseers ⁱ under the hand of Cononiah and Shimei his brother, at the commandment of Hezekiah the king, and ^j Azariah the ruler of the house of God.
 14 And Kore the son of Imnah the Levite, ^k the porter toward the east, was over ^l the free-will-offerings of God, to distribute the oblations of the LORD, and ^m the most holy things.
 15 And ⁿ next him were Eden, and Miniamin, and Jeshua, and Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah, in ^o the cities of the priests, in ^p their ^q set office, to give to their brethren by courses, ^r as well to the great as to the small:
 16 Beside their genealogy of males, from ^s three years old and upward, even unto every one that entereth into the house of the LORD, his daily portion for unto every one that entereth into the house of the LORD, his daily portion for unto every one that entereth into the house of the LORD, his daily portion for unto every one that entereth into the house of the LORD, his daily portion for

V. 3, 4. The public sacrifices were generally purchased by contributions from the people: but Hezekiah chose to be at that expense out of his stated revenue; that the people might be the more ready to obey his commandment in bringing their tithes and first-fruits, according to the law of God, for the maintenance of the priests and Levites. This was intended to encourage the priests and Levites to apply themselves entirely to studying, teaching, and fulfilling the law of the Lord; being assured that their families would not be left destitute.

V. 6. The several productions here mentioned were laid in different heaps, in some convenient place, but not properly guarded or taken care of. It is probable that some of the first-fruits, tithes, and offerings, were sold, and the money reposit in one common stock.

V. 8. Hezekiah and his princes commended the liberality of the people; they also prayed for them, and gave thanks to the Lord, who had given them the power and inclination to bring such abundance.

V. 9, 10. The king and the princes supposed, from the abundance which they beheld, that the priests who had the superintendence of the business, had preserved the whole; and they inquired wherefore they had not distributed the oblations of the people? But it was answered, that the Lord had blessed the people with such an abundant increase, that all this was left, after the priests and Levites had been sufficiently provided for! This disinterestedness of the priests was very commendable; for they might easily have enriched themselves without being suspected: and the whole transaction enlarges our idea of the blessing which had attended the preceding solemnity. For before this, the priests seem to have been generally very careless and ungodly.—It is probable that Azariah was the chief-priest under the high-priest, and nearly related to him their service in their charges, according to their courses;

17 Both to the genealogy of the priests by the house of their fathers, and the Levites from ¹twenty years old and upward, in their charges, ²by their courses;

18 And to the genealogy of all their little ones, their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, through all the congregation: for their ^{*}set office ¹they sanctified themselves in holiness:

19 Also of the sons of Aaron, the priests, which were in ^mthe fields of the suburbs of their cities, in every several city, ⁿthe men that were expressed by ^{n 12-15. xxviii. 15.} name, to give portions to all the males among the priests, and to all that were reckoned by genealogies among the Levites.

20 And thus did Hezekiah throughout all Judah, and ^owrought that which was good, and right, and truth, before the Lord his God.

21 And in every work that he began in the service of the house of God, and in the law, and in the commandments, to seek his God, he did it ^pwith all his heart, and ^qprospered.

i Num. iv. 3.
viii. 24. 1 Chr.
xxiii. 24. 27.
k 1 Chr. xxiv.
20-31. xxv.
xxvi.

Or. trust. 15.
1 Chr. ix. 23.
1 Is. v. 16. Rom.
xv. 16.

m Lev. xxv. 34.
Num. xxxv. 2
-5. 1 Chr. vi.
54, &c.

o 1 Kings xv. 6.
2 Kings xx. 3.
xxii. 2 John i.
47. Acts xxiv.
16. 1 Thes. ii
10.

p Deut. vi. 5. x.
12. 1 Kings ii. 4.
1 Chr. xxii. 19.
Ec. ix. 10. Jer.
xxix. 13.
q xiv. 7. xx. 20:
xxvi. 5. Josh i.
7. 1 Chr. xxii.
13. Ps. i. 3.
Matt. vi. 33.

V. 15-19. The priests and Levites, as they attended in course, had a certain portion allotted to them, according to their office and charge. The sons of the priests who attended with them, as it seems, from three years of age, to learn the work of the sanctuary previously to the time of their officiating, had a provision made for them. A list was taken of the wives, and of the other children of the priests and Levites, and a proportionable allowance was assigned them: as also to those who were excluded or excused from attendance; and for all of them, when absent from the temple, and acting as magistrates and teachers in their several districts. Thus none appropriated an exorbitant proportion, and none wanted a suitable provision: "for in their set office they sanctified themselves in holiness;" they separated themselves from other employments, and devoted themselves to serve God in their proper office, in a holy and believing expectation that he would provide for them; (for so the words seem to mean;) nor were they disappointed. And this regular provision kept them from the temptation of entangling themselves in worldly cares, to the neglect of their ministry.

V. 20, 21. The conduct of Hezekiah was good in itself; he acted with equity and impartiality towards all his subjects in these regulations; his heart was upright in the sight of God; and in all that he attempted to establish the worship of the Lord, and to obey and enforce the observance of his law, seeking his favour and glory, he was earnest and hearty, and single in his aim and dependence: and he was prospered accordingly. What a commendation was this from God himself! What a happy instrument was this pious king of good to his people! And what an encouraging and worthy example is this for princes, ministers, and Christians to imitate!

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1-10.

The finishing of one duty should form an introduction to another; and he that "delights greatly in God's commandments," will not complain of this as a weariness.—Public ordinances and divine consolations should stir us up to cleanse our hearts, and houses, or shops, and every thing in which we are concerned, from the filthiness of sin and the idolatry of covetousness: and to exhort and excite others to do the same, by every method consistent with relative duties and the peace of society. The subsequent improvement of solemn ordinances is of the greatest importance to personal, family, and public religion. It is then our business to meditate on, and reduce to practice, what we have learned; to give vent to our pious affections in every kind of good work; and to take care that the vigour of them do not subside through unwatchfulness, neglect of prayer, or worldly indulgences. Inattention to these duties renders the private conversation and behaviour of most professors so inconsistent with their public profession and apparently religious affections; their growth in grace is thus prevented, and religion does not appear so venerable as it otherwise would do. Examples should concur with exhortations or injunctions, whether men act as magistrates or ministers: and this will give them greater effect, in many cases, than menaces, coercive measures, or severe rebukes. They who would have others expend their wealth in useful works, ought to take the lead: nay, the easiest method of enforcing the laws, and prevailing with others to pay their dues, hath often been found to be by receding from personal claims, and joining liberality with justice, in the magistrate's own conduct. The proper use of superior riches is, to do superior good with them: and if this were generally understood and believed, the most blessed effects would be produced. Every exercise of human authority in the church of God, must be regulated and bounded by his law, and must enforce obedience to it, and not make additions to it, or alterations in it. Whilst ministers ought to attend upon their proper work, in their several places; they should be encouraged in it, and not constrained or tempted to neglect it, by the want of a suitable maintenance for their families; or made uneasy and distressed in attending on it: nor should any excuse be afforded to those who, by choice, leave the word of God for secular engagements. A man is never impoverished by prudent liberality in works of piety and charity: indeed, this is the way to ensure the blessing of God on his substance and his labours. (Marg. Ref.) And when the portion that is due to the ministers of religion and to the poor, is conscientiously rendered to them, it shall be recompensed as if it were a free-will-offering.

CHAP. XXXII.

Sennacherib invades Judah; and Hezekiah fortifies Jerusalem, and encourages the people, 1—8. Sennacherib's blasphemous messages and letters, 9—19. Hezekiah and Isaiah pray for deliverance: an angel destroys the Assyrian army, and their king returning home is slain by his sons, 20—22. Hezekiah prospers and is renowned, 23. In his sickness he prays, and is miraculously recovered: his heart is lifted up; but he afterwards humbly himself, 24—26. His riches and works, 27—30. His misconduct in respect of the ambassadors from the king of Babylon, 31. He dies: his memory is honoured: and Manasseh succeeds him, 32, 33.

xxx. 1, 2. 2 Kings
xviii. 13. Is.
xxxvi. 1, &c.

AFTER * these things, and the establishment thereof, Sennacherib

V. 11—21.

A proper use of authority, joined with a good example and convincing arguments, will induce many to do their duty in those things, in which they before were entirely negligent: but whatever means are used, when men abound in good works, we should bless the Lord for it; though due commendation should not be withheld from them.—Disinterestedness, impartiality, and frugality, are requisite in those who have the management of public charities, or other public funds: for when proper care is taken of the sums already contributed, and they are evidently expended for the sole purpose intended, encouragement is given to further contributions. It would tend greatly to the welfare of the church, if ministers were provided for with some degree of equality proportioned to their diligence, their families, and their necessary expenses: and it is a shameful abuse, that funds anciently appropriated for the maintenance of the clergy, are in great measure applied to aggrandize those that do very little for them; whilst the real labourers in the vineyard are scarcely kept from starving, and leave no provision for their families when taken from them. Legislators should rectify such abuses; but the faithful servant of God needs not be discouraged: let him study to live and to preach according to the word of truth, and give himself wholly to his work; and let him do it in faith, and the Lord will not suffer him to want: yea, he will provide for his children after him. But all pious men are not able to go on comfortably in this manner; and it is a grievous thing, that their spirits should be depressed, and their hands weakened in their work, on this account: and it is still worse, when they are tempted to leave their proper employment, to earn a morsel of bread for their wives and children. May the Lord raise up in king of Assyria came, and entered into Judah, and encamped against the fenced cities, and thought to * win them for himself.

b Is. vii. 17, 18.
viii. 6—8. x. 5, 6.

* Heb. break them up Is. x. 7—11.
xxxvii. 24, 25.

2 And when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib was come, and that † he was purposed to fight against Jerusalem,

† Heb. his face
was to war.
2 Kings xii. 17.
Luke ix. 51. 53.

3 He^e took counsel with his princes and his mighty men,^d to stop the waters of the fountains which were without the city: and they did help him.

c xxx. 2. 2 Kings
xviii. 20.
d 2 Kings xx. 20.
Is. xxii. 8—11.

4 So there was gathered much people together, who stopped all the fountains, and^e the brook that ‡ ran through the midst of the land, saying, Why should the † kings of Assyria come, and^e find much water?

e 30. xxx. 14.
1 Kings i. 33.
† Heb. overflowed.

† 2 Kings xviii. 9.
13. xix. 17. Is.
x. 8.

g 2 Kings iii. 9. 16.
17. xix. 24.
h xiv. 5—7. xvii.
1, 2. Is. xxii. 9,
10.

5 Also^h he strengthened himself, and built up all the wallⁱ that was broken, and raised it up to the towers, and^k another wall without, and repaired^l Millo in the city of David, and made^o darts and shields in abundance.

i xxv. 23.
k 2 Kings xxv. 4.
Jer. xxxix. 4.

l Judg. ix. 6. 2
Sam. v. 9. 1
Kings ix. 24. xi.
27. 2 Kings xii.
20.

o Or, swords. or,
weapons. xxvi.
14, 15.

m xvii. 14—19.
1 Chr. xxvii. 3,
4, &c.

6 And^m he set captains of war over the every nation zealous men, who in such matters and in all other, “will work that which is good, and right, and truth, “before the LORD:” and who will do their utmost, “with “all their hearts in the service of the house of God, and “in the law and in the commandments,” to seek the honour of the Lord! Whether we have few or many talents, may we thus improve them, and encourage others to do the same: we shall then assuredly be prospered in some measure; and shall obtain that honour that cometh from God, being graciously accosted by him with, “Well “done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy “of thy Lord.”

NOTES.

CHAP. XXXII. V. 1. Most of the transactions, recorded in the preceding chapters, took place in the first year of Hezekiah's reign: and from that time he proceeded to establish and complete his reformation, without any very memorable occurrences, till his fourteenth year, in which Sennacherib's first invasion occurred. (Notes, 2 Kings xviii. xix. Marg. Ref.)

V. 4. The brook here mentioned is supposed to have been Kidron, or Cedron, called also the upper water-course of Gihon. (30.) Through subterraneous or concealed channels, Hezekiah brought the waters of this rivulet into the city, to supply certain pools there formed for the use of the inhabitants. Or by some means he turned or concealed the course of it, in order that the Assyrians might be distressed for water, if they undertook the siege of Jerusalem.—The kings of Assyria had, during several successions, been formidable enemies to Israel and Judah: and this measure was intended, not only for a present defence against Sennacherib, but also as a security against future sieges of him or his successors.

people, and gathered them together to him ^a in the street of the gate of the city, and spake ^{*} comfortably to them, saying,

7 ^o Be strong and courageous, ^v be not afraid nor dismayed for the king of Assyria, nor for all the multitude that is with him: ^q for there be more with us than with him:

8 With him is ^r an arm of flesh; but ^s with us is the LORD our God, to help us, and ^t to fight our battles. And the people [†] rested themselves upon the words of Hezekiah king of Judah.

9 ¶ After this did ^u Sennacherib king of Assyria send his servants to Jerusalem, (but he himself laid siege against ^{*} Lachish, and all his [†] power with him,) unto Hezekiah king of Judah, and unto all Judah that were at Jerusalem, saying,

10 ^v Thus saith Sennacherib king of Assyria, Whereon do ye trust, that ye abide in the [‡] siege in Jerusalem?

11 Doth not Hezekiah persuade you ^{*} to give over yourselves to die by famine and by thirst, saying, ^a The LORD our God shall deliver us out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

12 ^b Hath not the same Hezekiah taken away his high places and his altars, and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, saying, ^c Ye shall worship before ^d one altar, and burn incense upon it?

13 Know ye not what ^e I and my fathers have done unto all the people of other lands? ^f were the gods of the nations of those lands any ways able to deliver their lands out of mine hand?

14 Who was there ^g among all the gods of those nations that my fathers utterly destroyed, that could deliver his people out of mine hand, that ^h your God should be able to deliver you out of mine hand?

15 Now therefore let not Hezekiah ⁱ deceive you, nor ^k persuade you on this manner, neither yet believe him: for no god of any nation or kingdom was able to deliver his people out of mine hand, and out of the hand of my fathers: how ^l much less shall your God deliver you out of mine hand?

16 And his servants spake ^m yet more against the LORD God, and ⁿ against his servant Hezekiah.

17 He ^o wrote also letters ^p to rail on the LORD God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying, ^q As the gods of the nations of other lands have not delivered their people out of mine hand, so shall not the God of Hezekiah deliver his people out of mine hand.

18 Then ^r they cried with a loud voice in the Jews' speech unto the people of Jerusalem that were on the wall, ^s to affright them, and to trouble them; that they might take the city.

19 And they ^t spake against ^u the God of Jerusalem, as against the gods of the people of the earth, which were ^x the work of the hands of man.

20 And for this cause ^y Hezekiah the king, and ^z the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz, ^a prayed and cried to heaven.

21 And ^b the LORD sent ^c an angel, which ^d cut off all the mighty men of valour, and ^e the leaders and captains, in the camp of the king of Assyria: so he returned ^f with shame of face to his own land. And when ^g he was come into the house of his god, they that came forth of his own bowels, ^h slew him there with the sword.

22 Thus ⁱ the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the

V. 8. Rested, &c. These measures seem to have been adopted at the approach of Sennacherib's first invasion: and the people in general had a strong confidence that the Lord would deliver them according to the word of Hezekiah; though others confided rather in their fortifications. Yet Hezekiah himself was afterwards induced to submit to Sennacherib, and pay him tribute. On this he departed; but not long after he renewed his attempts.

V. 15. How much less, &c.? This haughty conqueror supposed that JEHOVAH was even inferior to the gods of the nations! Probably he grounded this notion on the inferiority of Judah, in extent and population, to many of the kingdoms that he had subdued: especially as he was almost master of the whole land already.

V. 19. Sennacherib called JEHOVAH "the God of Jerusalem," either because that city alone remained in the hands of his worshippers; or because Hezekiah, by abolishing the high places, seemed to have confined to Jerusalem alone, the worship of his God, which before had been spread over the land.

^a Neh. viii. 1-3.

^{*} Heb. to their hearts. xxx. 22. Is xl. 2.

^e Deu. xxxi. 6, 7. 23. Josh. i. 6, 9. 1 Chr. xxviii. 20. Eph. vi. 10, 2 Tim. ii. 1.

^p xx. 15. 2 Kings xviii. 30. xix. 6, 7.

^q 2 Kings vi. 16. Rom. viii. 31. 1 John iv. 4.

^r Job xl. 9. Jer. xlv. 5.

^s xlv. 12. xiv. 11. Ps. xlv. 11. Is. xli. 10. Acts xviii. 10.

^t xx. 15. Deu. xx. 1. 4. Jos. x. 42.

[†] Heb. leaned. 15. xx. 20. Is. xxxvi. 18.

^u B. C. 710. 2 Kings xviii. 17. Is. xxxvi. 2. x. Jos. x. 31. Is. xxxvii. 8.

[†] Heb. dominion.

^y 2 Kings xviii. 19. Is. xxxvi. 4.

^{||} Heb. strong hold.

^z 2 Kings xviii. 27. Is. xxxvi. 12, 18.

^a 15. 2 Kings xix. 10. Ps. iii. 2. xlii. 10. lxxi. 11. Mat. xxvii. 43.

^b xxxi. 1. 1 Kings xviii. 4. 22. Is. xxxvi. 7.

^c Deu. xii. 13, 14. 26. 27.

^d i. Ex. xxvii. 1-8. xxx. 1-6. xl. 26-29. 1 Kings vii. 48.

^e 2 Kings xv. 29. xlv. 5, 6. xix. 11-13, 17, 18. Is. x. 9, 10. xxxvii. 12, 13. 18-20. Dan. iv. 39, 37.

^f 19. 2 Kings xviii. 33-35. xix. 18, 19. Ps. cxv. 3-8. Is. xlii. 8-10. Jer. x. 11, 12. 16. Acts xix. 26. 1 Cor. viii. 4.

^g Is. x. 11, 12.

^h 19. Ex. xiv. 3. xv. 9-11. Is. xlii. 8.

ⁱ 2 Kings xviii. 29. xix. 10.

^k 1 Kings xxiii. 22.

^l Ex. v. 2. Dan. iii. 15. John xix. 10, 11.

^m Job xv. 25, 26. Ps. lxxviii. 9.

ⁿ John xv. 21.

^o 2 Kings xix. 14. Neh. vi. 5. Is. xxxvii. 14.

^p 2 Kings xix. 22. 28. Is. x. 15. xxxvii. 23, 24. 28, 29. Rev. xiii. 6.

^q 2 Kings xix. 12. r 2 Kings xviii. 26-28. Is. xxxvi. 13.

^s 1 Sam. xvii. 16. 26. Neh. vi. 9. t 13-17.

^u vi. 6. Ps. lxxvii. 1, 2. lxxviii. 68. lxxxvii. 1-3. cxxxii. 13, 14. Is. xlv. 32. Heb. xii. 22.

^x 2 Kings xix. 16. Ps. cxxxv. 15-18. Is. xlv. 16-20. Hos. viii. 5, 6.

^y 2 Kings xix. 14-19. Is. xxxvii. 14-20.

^z 2 Kings xix. 2-4. Is. xxxvii. 2-4.

^a xlv. 11. xx. 6-12. Ps. l. 16. xlv. 15.

^b 2 Kings xix. 29. 35. Is. xxxvii. 21, 36, 37.

^c 2 Sam. xxiv. 16. Matt. xlii. 49, 50. Acts xxi. 23.

^d Job. ix. 4. Ps. lxxvi. 5-7. 12.

^e Is. x. 16-19. 33. 34. xvii. 12-14. xlix. 5-8. xxx. 30-33.

^f xxxiii. 10-12. xxxvi. 9. Rev. vi. 15, 16. xix. 17, 18.

^g Ps. cxxxii. 16. Prov. xi. 2. xvi. 18.

^h 2 Kings. xix. 36, 37. Is. xxxvii. 37, 38.

ⁱ Heb. made him to fall.

^j Ps. xviii. 48-50. cxlv. 10. Is. x. 24, 25. xxxi. 4, 5. xxxiii. 22.

hand of Sennacherib the king of Assyria, and from the hand of all other, and guided them on every side:

23 And many brought ^k gifts unto the LORD to Jerusalem, ^l and ^{*} presents to Hezekiah king of Judah: so that ^m he was magnified in the sight of all nations from thenceforth.

24 ¶ In those days ⁿ Hezekiah was sick to the death, and prayed unto the LORD: and he spake unto him, and he [†] gave him a sign.

25 But Hezekiah ^o rendered not again, according to the benefit done unto him; for ^p his heart was lifted up: ^q therefore there was wrath upon him, and upon Judah and Jerusalem.

26 Notwithstanding ^r Hezekiah humbled himself for the [‡] pride of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the wrath of the LORD came not upon them ^s in the days of Hezekiah.

27 ¶ And Hezekiah had ^t exceeding much riches and honour: and he made himself ^u treasures for silver, and for gold, and for precious stones, and for spices, and for shields, and for all manner of [‡] pleasant jewels;

28 ^x Storehouses also for the increase of corn, and wine, and oil; and stalls for all manner of beasts, and ^y cotes for flocks.

29 Moreover he provided him cities, and possessions of flocks and herds in abundance: for ^z God had given him substance very much.

30 This same Hezekiah also ^a stopped the upper water-course of Gihon, and brought it straight down to the west side of the city of David. And ^b Hezekiah prospered in all his works.

31 Howbeit in ^c the business of the ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who sent unto him to inquire of ^d the wonder that was done in the land, God ^e left him ^f to try him, ^g that he might know all that was in his heart.

32 Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his ^h goodness, behold, they are written ⁱ in the vision of Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, and ^j in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

33 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the [†] chiefest of the sepulchres of the sons of David: and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem ^k did him honour at his death. And Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

1 Ps. xlviii. 14.
lxxiii. 24.
k 2 Sam. viii. 10.
11. Ps. lxxviii. 29.
lxxii. 10.
l xvii. 11. 1 Kings
iv. 21.
* Heb. precious things. ix. 9, 10.
24.
m 1. 1. 1 Chr.
xxix. 25.
B. C. 713.
n 2 Kings xx. 1-3.
Is. xxxviii. 1-3.

Or, wrought a miracle for him.
2 Kings xx. 4-
11. Is. xxxviii.
4-8. 21. 22.
o Deut. xxxiii. 6.
Ps. cxvi. 12-13.
Luke xvii. 17, 18.
p 17. xxv. 19. xvi.
16. Deut. viii.
12-14. 17. 2
Kings xx. 13.
Dan. v. 20. 23.
Hab. ii. 4. 2 Cor.
xii. 7. 1 Pet. v.
5, 6.
q xxiv. 18. 2 Sam.
xxiv. 1. 10-17.
r Lev. xxvi. 40.
41. 2 Kings xx.
19. Jer. xxvi.
18, 19.
s Heb. lifting up.
p xxiv. 27, 28.
1 Kings xxi. 29.
Is. xxxix. 6-8.
B. C. 760.
t i. 12. ix. 27.
xvii. 5.
u 1 Chr. xxxvii.
25, &c.

Heb. instruments of desire.
x xxvi. 10.

2 Sam. vi. 2.
z xxv. 9. Deut.
viii. 18. 1 Sam.
ii. 2. 1 Chr.
xxix. 12. Prov.
x. 22.
B. C. 712.
a 4 Is. xxxii. 9-11.

b Ps. i. 1-3.

c 2 Kings xx. 12,
13. Is. xxxix.
1, 2.
|| Heb. interpreters.
d 2 Kings xx. 8.
11 Is. xxxviii. 3.
e Judge. xvi. 20.
Ps. xxvii. 9. ii.
11, 12. cxix. 116.
117. John xv. 5.
f Gen. xxii. 1.
Deut. viii. 16.
Job i. 11, 12. ii.
3-6. Ps. cxxxix.
1, 2. 23. 24.
Prov. xvii. 3.
Zech. xiii. 9.
Mal. iii. 2, 3.
1 Pet. i. 7.
g Deut. viii. 2.
xiii. 3.
h Heb. kindnesses.
xxxix. 20, 21.
i Is. xxxvi-
xxxix.
j 2 Kings xviii-
xx.
B. C. 698.
† Or, highest.

k xvi. 14. Gen. 1.
10. 11. Num.
xx. 29. Deut.
xxxiv. 8. 1 Sam.
ii. 30. xxv. 1.
Prov. x. 7.

V. 25, 26. (Notes, 2 Kings xx. Is. xxxviii. xxxix.) These events are supposed, by many learned men, to have been previous to Sennacherib's first invasion, as evidently occurring in the fourteenth year of Hezekiah's reign. The princes and the people of Judah, as well as the king, had been very faulty; and when "he was humbled for the pride of his heart," and had received Isaiah's alarming message, it is probable he made open confession of his offence, and called upon the people to join with him in solemn humiliation and prayer on that account. The Lord would not let Sennacherib prevail against his servant: but perhaps it was at this crisis that Hezekiah's confidence so failed him, that he hired Sennacherib's departure, with those treasures which he had ostentatiously displayed. — This chapter is in great measure an abridgment of those chapters in the Second of Kings, and in the prophecy of Isaiah, which are referred to.

V. 31. "The princes of Babylon sent to inquire of the wonder that had been done in the land:" but it is not certain that the Chaldeans observed any change in the motion of the heavenly bodies. The report of the miracles which attended Hezekiah's recovery, might suffice for that purpose. Yet, in Isaiah, it is said, "The sun returned, &c." — The Lord on this occasion withdrew from Hezekiah the immediate efficacy of his grace, and left him to follow the dictates of his own natural propensity, "to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart." The omniscient God before knew the whole: but having by the trial made the case evident, he pointed it out to Hezekiah and to all succeeding ages, for their humiliation, warning, and instruction. For it hence appears undeniable, that the best of men, if left to themselves, are prone to pride and ostentation, to idolize themselves and their fellow creatures, to withdraw their dependence from God, to rob him of his glory, and to be ungrateful for his mercies. 'God made proof of Hezekiah, as he had done of many other good men, whether he would entirely obey him or not. — God no doubt knew and saw the pride and vanity that lurked in Hezekiah's heart; which was hid from every one but God himself, who now suffered him to discover it for his humiliation.' (Bp. Patrick.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—23.

Satan and his emissaries are most eager to give us disturbance, when we are most usefully employed: but God restrains them, till he sees it needful to correct our misconduct or to try our faith and constancy, and then they

CHAP. XXXIII.

Manasseh reigns long, is very wicked, multiplies idolatries, corrupts the people, and rejects the admonitions of God, 1—10. He is carried captive to Babylon; he humbles himself greatly before God, and is restored to his kingdom, 11—13. He fortifies his dominions, and restores the worship of God, 14—17. His acts and prayers, 18, 19. He dies, and Amon succeeds, who reigns wickedly, and is murdered, 20—24. The people slay the murderers, and make Josiah king, 25.

^a 2 Kings xxi. 1, 2 ^a MANASSEH ^b was ^b twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem: ^c 2 But did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, ^c like unto the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD are permitted, under certain restrictions, to assault us.—It is very lawful and proper to employ prudent precautions and means of defence; and to be united and vigorous in every advisable measure, when there is a prospect of danger or difficulty; but it is seldom, that men attend to these things, without confiding in them. We should therefore encourage ourselves and each other to trust wholly in the Lord: and, if he be for us, there will be more with us than with our foes; should all the men on earth, and all the legions of fallen angels, combine and actually approach to assault us. What need then have we to fear the strongest arm of flesh, when we have the “LORD our God to help us, and to fight our battles?” These are words, that may safely be rested upon, by all who “repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.” Yet such a confidence will excite the contempt and reviling of proud infidels; they, who venture to do their duty, in defiance of the persecuting rage of some powerful king, professing to rely on the LORD of hosts, will be deemed obstinate and infatuated: and in various difficulties, it will be inquired, Whether “they will be persuaded to give themselves over to die by famine and thirst?” The more undaunted any one is in trusting the Lord in the path of duty, the more will some impious wretches rail, blaspheme, menace, boast, and triumph; especially when grown insolent by success, and intoxicated with absolute authority. But let the oppressed and insulted believer pray earnestly to the Lord, that he may not be driven from his confidence. In due time it will appear, that “none ever hardened himself against God and prospered;” and that none were ever confounded who put their trust in him. For, as the power and justice of God are displayed in the destruction of his enemies; so, his rich and free mercy are glorified in the salvation of his people.

had cast out before the children of Israel.

3 For ^d he ^e * built again the high places, ^e which Hezekiah his father had broken down, and ^f he reared up altars for Baalim, and ^g made groves, and worshipped all ^h the host of heaven, and served them.

4 Also ⁱ he built altars in the house of the LORD, whereof the LORD had said, ^k In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever.

5 And he built altars for all the host of heaven ^l in the two courts of the house of the LORD.

6 And he ^m caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom: also ⁿ he observed times, and used enchantments, and used witchcraft, and ^o dealt with a familiar spirit, and with wizards: he wrought much evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

V. 24—33.

Alas, how seldom do we in any tolerable degree render to the Lord according to his benefits! none, who know themselves and watch their own hearts, will venture to cast a stone at Hezekiah; but they will all, one by one, depart convicted in their consciences of similar guilt, and crying out, “God be merciful to me a sinner.” If we are not left to expose our foolish and wicked pride before the world, the Lord sees and abhors the risings of it in our hearts, and might justly pour out his wrath upon us: yet, if we are humbled for this pride of our heart, he will forgive us and continue to bless us. But we ought to watch and pray always, that we may not enter into temptation, and that God would not leave us to ourselves: we ought to repress every vain-glorious thought, and to welcome even affliction and severe rebukes, when they keep us from being exalted above measure. Blessed be God, death will soon end the believer’s conflict; then every sin will be abolished, and he may safely be trusted with the most glorious exaltation and uninterrupted felicity; and will no more to all eternity be tempted to intercept the least mite of that revenue of praise, which belongs to the God of his salvation. Whilst we are here, we ought to honour those to whom honour is due, though they be far from perfect: and we may well respect the memories, and should imitate the examples, of those who have been pious and useful in their generation: for a short time may perhaps awfully convince survivors, that the loss of them was greater, than it was at first supposed to be.

NOTES.

CHAP. XXXIII. V. 6. Manasseh ‘seems to have studied to find out what God had forbidden in his ^d Ec. ii. 19 ix. 18.

^e Heb. returned and built.
^f xxx. 14 xxxi. 1.
^g xxxii. 12. 2 Kings
xxiii. 4 xxi. 3.
^h xxviii. 2—4.
ⁱ Judg. ii. 11—13.
^j Deut. xvi. 21.
^k Deut. iv. 19.
^l xvii. 3. 2 Kings
xxiii. 5, 6. 11.
^m Jer. viii. 2.
ⁿ xxxiv. 3, 4. 2
Kings xxi. 4, 5.

^o vi. 6. vii. 16.
xxxii. 13 Deut.
xii. 11. 1 Kings
viii. 29. ix. 3.

^l iv. 9. xxviii. 24.
25 Jer. xxxii.
34, 35. Ez. viii.
7—18.

^m xxviii. 3. Lev.
xxiii. 21. xx. 2.
Deut. xii. 31.
xxiii. 10. 2 Kings
xxi. 6. xxiii. 10.
Jer. vii. 31. 32.
12. xxiii. 37. 39.
ⁿ Lev. xix. 26.
xx. 6. Deut.
xxiii. 10—14.
^o 2 Kings xxi. 6.
xxiii. 24. 1 Chr.
x. 13. Is. viii. 19.
xix. 3.

7 And he set a carved image, the idol which he had made, ^p in the house of God, of which ^q God had said to David, and to Solomon his son, In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen before all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever :

8 Neither will I any more remove the foot of Israel from out of the land, which I have appointed for your fathers ; so that they will take heed to do all that I have commanded them, according to the whole law and the statutes and the ordinances by the hand of Moses.

9 So Manasseh ^t made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to err, and ^u to do worse than ^x the heathen, whom the LORD had destroyed before the children of Israel.

‘law, that he might practise it.’ (Bp. Patrick.) (Notes, 2 Kings xxiii.)

V. 9. ‘A most prodigious change from the height of piety in his father’s reign, into the sink of iniquity in this.—Victorinus Strigelius, professor of theology at Heidelberg, left this remark in his lectures on this place, ‘near a hundred and forty years ago,’ (or soon after the establishment of the reformation in Germany:—‘Now we have the word of God abundantly in all wisdom, and pious princes patronize both those who preach and those who learn the Gospel. But this plenty of the word we now enjoy, (I tremble to speak it, but I must speak it, because it will come to pass,) shall be taken away: and that sad mourning time will come, when the public assemblies of the church shall be scattered, and a few pious souls shall meet with fear in a corner, to communicate among themselves the fragments of the heavenly doctrine, and to give God thanks for these remainders.’ (Vic. Strig.) ‘Which we have seen fulfilled in that country, and in France, and in other places.’ (Bp. Patrick.) This apparent prophecy seems to have been merely a pre-sage grounded on the vicissitudes of things, especially in respect of religion; and the tendency of prosperity to induce carnal security.

V. 11. We have not the least intimation, in the Second of Kings, either of Manasseh’s captivity or of his repentance: but we might have concluded, from the narrative there given, that he persevered in his career of impiety and iniquity with impunity till his death. But here we find a most instructive view of his latter end; and this very man became as eminent an instance of the power, riches, and freeness of divine mercy and grace, as any recorded in the scripture. When he and his people had long disregarded the admonitions of the prophets, and added persecutions and multiplied murders to their other crimes, “the LORD was pleased to bring upon them the captains of “the host of the king of Assyria.” We are not informed what devastations they made in Judah or Jerusalem: but

10 And ^v the LORD spake to Manasseh, and to his people: but they would not hearken.

11 Wherefore ^w the LORD brought upon them ^x the captains of the host ^y of the king of Assyria, which took Manasseh ^z among the thorns, and ^a bound him with ^b fetters, and carried him to Babylon.

12 And ^c when he was in affliction, ^d he besought ^e the LORD his God, and ^f humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, 13 And prayed unto him; and ^g he was entreated of him, and heard his supplication, and ^h brought him again to Jerusalem into his kingdom. Then Manasseh ⁱ knew that the LORD he was God.

Manasseh, being either vanquished or intimidated, attempted to conceal himself in a thicket, where, being discovered, he was taken prisoner, loaded with fetters, and sent to Babylon. God, in his providence, gave the Assyrians the power and opportunity of making this invasion, and he left them to follow their own ambition, or other carnal motives; and he also gave them success, in order to chastise Manasseh’s wickedness. Many suppose, that Esar-haddon, having got possession of Babylon, and entirely changed the inhabitants of the kingdom of Israel, about the same time sent to invade Judah, and carried Manasseh captive to Babylon, in the twenty-second year of his reign. But the scripture does not mention the date of this event, nor the name of the Assyrian king: and from the character of Manasseh’s reign, as exceedingly wicked, it seems highly improbable that he lived above thirty years after his repentance and reformation, as upon this supposition he must have done.

V. 12, 13. When Manasseh was deprived of his authority and liberty, and secluded from his evil counsellors and companions, and from all his pleasures; in chains, and in a prison; without any other prospect than that of ending his days in that wretched situation, he had leisure to reflect on what had passed. He would then no doubt recollect the honour, and prosperity, and deliverances, with which his father had been favoured; his own good education, and the instructions and warnings of the prophets; and his atrocious, multiplied, and daring crimes: and he would remember that his miseries had been foretold by his faithful monitors.—Thus, by the special grace of God, his solitude and affliction brought him to view his own conduct and character in another light than before; and he began to cry for mercy and deliverance, “humbling himself greatly before the “God of his fathers.” He confessed his sins, condemned himself, and was covered with shame before God, abhorring his crimes, and loathing himself for them, as a monster of ingratitude, impiety, and iniquity; yet still hoping to be pardoned, through the abundant mercy of the Lord,

xxxii. 5.

14 ¶ Now after this ^m he built a wall without the city of David, on the west side of ⁿ Gihon, in the valley, even to the entering in at ^o the fish-gate, and compassed about * Ophel, and raised it up a very great height, and ^p put captains of war in all the fenced cities of Judah.

3-7. Is. ii. 17
—21. Ez xviii.
20 — 22. Hos
xlv. 1—3. Mat.
8.

15 And ^q he took away the strange gods, and the idol out of the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built in the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the city.

xxix. 18. 1
Kings xviii. 30.
Lev. iii. 1, &c.

16 And he ^r repaired the altar of the LORD, and sacrificed thereon ^s peace-offerings, and ^t thank-offerings, and ^u commanded Judah to serve the LORD God of Israel.

Lev. vii. 12—18.
xiv. 4 xxx.
2 Gen. viii.
19. Luke xxi.
32.

17 * Nevertheless the people did sacrifice still in the high places, yet unto the LORD their God only.

x xxxii. 12. 1
Kings xxii. 43.
Kings xv. 4.

18 ¶ Now ^v the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and ^z his prayer unto his God, and the words of ^a the seers that spake to him in the name of the LORD God of Israel, behold, they are

xxxii. 32.

z 12, 13.

a 10. 1 Sam. ix. 9.

written in the book of the kings of Israel:

19 ^b His prayer also, and how God ^c was entreated of him, and ^e all his sin, and his trespass, and the places wherein he built high places, and set up groves and graven images, ^d before he was humbled: behold, they are written among the sayings of the * seers.

^b Prov. xv. 2
^c Acts ix. 11.
^e 1—10.

20 So ^e Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in his own house: and ^f Amon his son reigned in his stead.

^d 12. 23. xxx. 11.
xxxvi. 12. Jer.
xlv. x. Dan.
v. 22
* Or, Hosai.
B. C. 643.
^e 2 Kings xxi. 18.

21 ¶ Amon was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned ^g two years in Jerusalem.

^g 1. Luke xii. 19.
20. Jam. iv. 13
—15

22 But he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, ^h as did Manasseh his father: for Amon sacrificed unto all the carved images which Manasseh his father had made, and served them;

^h 2 Kings xxi. 1 —11. 20. Ez.
xx. 18.

23 And ⁱ he humbled not himself before the LORD, as Manasseh his father had humbled himself; but Amon ^j trespassed more and more.

ⁱ 12. 19. Jer. viii.
12.
Heb. multiplied
trespass xlviii.
22. 2 Tim. iii.
13.

24 And ^k his servants conspired against him, and slew him in his own house.

^k xxiv. 25. 26.
xxv. 27. 28.
2 Sam. iv. 5—
12. 2 Kings
xxi. 23—26. Ps.
lv. 23. Rom.
xi. 22.

who had always, in the days of his ancestors, shown himself ready to forgive repenting rebels. These humble supplications the Lord graciously accepted: and he inclined the king of Assyria to liberate his prisoner, and to reinstate him in his authority. Then Manasseh knew, that the Lord he was God; alone able to punish, or to deliver: he likewise became acquainted with him as a God of salvation, and learned to fear, trust, love, and obey him.

V. 14. (Marg. Ref.)

V. 15—17. Manasseh, upon his return from Babylon, entirely renounced all idolatry; and set himself to suppress it in his kingdom, to revive the worship of God at the temple, and by his example and authority to prevail with the people to attend on it. These were fruits meet for repentance. It has, however, been asserted that his public reformation was very imperfect, and that he did not show the zeal and vigour which a true penitent ought to have done: but it does not appear, from this short account, that he was remarkably deficient. He would have done better, if he had demolished the idols, instead of casting them out of the city. But he totally suppressed all open idolatry: and it might arise from other causes than Manasseh's want of zeal, that the high places were not removed. The inveterate habits of the people; the powerful opposition of that party which had concurred in his former idolatries; and the weakness of his authority, through ill success, and the power of the Assyrian monarch, would occasion obstacles which he might not be able to overcome. But there is not the most remote intimation that God did not accept his endeavours. Yet the opposition, or hypocrisy of the people, who had readily concurred in his iniquities, but did not imitate his repentance, prevented it from being a national blessing; as his crimes had formed and occasioned, a load of national sin, which the Lord would not pardon.

V. 18, 19. The repeated mention of Manasseh's prayer, and of his being humbled, are well worthy our notice.—This humble supplicating frame of mind forms, as it were, a crisis in the sinner's case; and from the moment that he is brought into it, he enters upon a new state, and commences a new life, however vile he before hath been. (Marg. Ref.) It is uncertain whether the prayer contained in the Apocrypha were, in whole or in part, composed by Manasseh: but we may be sure, that he prayed continually and fervently for all the blessings and mercies which such a sinner needed; and with particular confessions of his sins, and with all that unstudied copiousness, which a burdened conscience, a broken heart, trembling fears, wavering hopes, and fervent desires will invariably dictate. Instead of the seers, the marginal reading is Hosai, whom some suppose to have been a prophet in those days.

V. 21—24. As soon as Manasseh was dead, Amon re-established all his father's idolatries; either bringing back those images that had been thrown aside, or forming others of the same kind. Perhaps he flattered himself, that he too should live many years; and should repent in his old age, if that were necessary, and so at last be saved as his father was supposed to have been. But whatever warnings or convictions he had, he never humbled himself in true repentance; but trespassed more and 1 Gen. ix 5, 6.

Num. xxxv. 31
—3d.

25 But the people of the land¹ slew all them that had conspired against king

Amon; and ^{m xxxvi. l. xxxvii. l.}the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead.

more. He was therefore soon cut off in his sins, and made an example of just severity; and placed as a beacon, to warn all men not to abuse the example of the Lord's patience and mercy to Manasseh, into an encouragement to continue in sin. (Luke xxiii. 39—43.)

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

V. 1—10.

It would be extremely distressing to pious parents, magistrates, or ministers, if they could foresee the consequences of their removal, in the conduct of their children or people, and in the subversion of their most important regulations. Yet good instructions and examples may remain, like seed under the ground, for a long time unperceived, and at length spring up and bring forth much fruit. Without disquieting ourselves about futurity, we may therefore cheerfully commit our families and our endeavours to do good, as well as our souls and bodies, into the hand of God, assured that our labours will not prove wholly ineffectual. The tendency of human nature to evil is so strong, that nothing but divine grace can give it a contrary bias: and when that power is suspended we return to evil, as a stone falls downwards; and run with rapid and accelerated motion, further and further, into transgression continually. But the Lord notices both the number, the variety, and the aggravations of our offences: mercies and opportunities ungratefully abused, the truth held in unrighteousness, the seduction or compulsion of others to sin, warnings slighted or despised, and mischief extensively committed, add exceedingly to the heinousness of men's offences. Yet, where sin hath abounded, grace hath often much more abounded: and some of every description of sinners shall be brought to repentance and salvation, to prove that "with God nothing is impossible."

V. 11—25.

When the objects of the Lord's special love disregard the rebukes of his word, he will let them feel his chastening rod; and they may truly say, "Before I was afflicted, I went astray; but now have I kept thy word." Adversity, solitude, and sequestration from gay companions, scenes of pleasure and dissipation, connected with present sufferings and the prospect of death and eternity, cause many to reflect, who in prosperity were careless and presumptuous. The seeds of a pious education, or of solid religious instruction, often vegetate in affliction; the troubles themselves verify the warnings of pious relatives or teachers; and worse things arise before the mind, as the consequence of continuing in sin. Yet all this would not have an abiding effect, if afflictions were not a means of grace, which God himself uses and blesses, as evidently, as he doth those which he commands us to employ for ourselves and for each other. When men are left to themselves, in their distress they trespass yet more against "the Lord." But when he gives the blessing, the hardest, stoutest, and proudest heart softens, and becomes broken and contrite. His hand should therefore be noticed in all our afflictions; and our prayers presented that they may be sanctified, and converted into blessings to our souls. They who have been most daring in rebellion against God, are sometimes the most cowardly when assaulted by their fellow-creatures. "In the fear of the Lord, there is strong confidence:" but guilt appals the sinner: and his courage fails him in the hour of danger. There is however no way of fleeing, or hiding ourselves from God: our only hope consists in humbling ourselves before him; and if our distresses and perils induce us to this, they will prove the most effectual means of promoting our felicity. "The Lord is rich in mercy, with him there is plenteous redemption;" and he so delights in pardoning and saving sinners, that he permits the vilest to come to his throne of grace. Wherever there is a sinner of whom it can truly be said, "Behold he prayeth," there will the Lord be found a God that heareth prayer. There is indeed immense difficulty in bringing the sinner thus to seek the Lord; but none in prevailing with Him, to hear and forgive the sinner that calls upon him in truth. He often answers the mere cry of distress with temporal deliverances, whilst relapses into former crimes; and perseverance in them, prove that the supplicants were never truly humbled or penitent. But when a sinner in his affliction beseeches the Lord, and humbles himself greatly before him; when he condemns himself, ingenuously confesses his sins, and is covered with shame, and melted into godly sorrow; when he renounces all hope but in free mercy, and every plea but in the Redeemer's name, and seeks forgiveness and salvation before all other things: he will assuredly find access and acceptance; and his future life will evince, that his repentance, faith, and love, have united in bringing him to hate and renounce all his sins, and to walk henceforth in newness of life. If it were possible, he would undo his former wicked works, and lead into the ways of truth and peace all those whom he had before seduced into the paths of sin and ruin: if his former life hath been profane or immoral, his future conduct will appear a perfect contrast to it; and he will make a contrary use of his wealth, abilities, or influence, after he is humbled and hath begun to pray, to what he did before. Sincere piety, and love to the truths, ordinances, and commandments of God, will be manifest in his consequent conduct; and he will desire and aim at more than he can accomplish, both in serving God himself, and in attempting to prevail with others to do the same. The blood of Christ cleanseth such penitents from all sin: their afflictions will either be sanctified and counterbalanced with comfort, or removed; in due time the Lord will extricate them from all the difficulties in which their former sins had involved them; and he will be greatly glorified in their repentance, future conduct, and eternal salvation. Let sinners then be willing to know the worst of their case; for it is by no means desperate: let them consider all their pains and sorrows as so many calls to humble themselves before God, to call upon him, and to "acquaint themselves with him, that they may be at peace." Let not the hearts of those, who are thus seeking him, yield to discouragement; but let them humble themselves yet more, and pray always and not faint. Let pardoned sinners exert

CHAP. XXXIV.

Josiah reigns well, and destroys idolatry both in Judah and Israel, 1—7. He provides for the repair of the temple, 8—13. Hilkiah finds the book of the law, and reads it before the king; who is alarmed, and inquires of God by the prophetess Huldah, 14—22. Huldah predicts the destruction of Jerusalem, but not till after Josiah's death, 23—28. He causes the law to be read in a solemn assembly, and renews the covenant between God and the people, 29—33.

JOSIAH was ^b eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem one and thirty years. ^a 2 And he did that which was ^c right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the ways of David his father, and ^d declined neither to the right hand nor to the left. ^e 3 For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet young, he began ^f to seek after the God of David his father: and in the twelfth year ^g he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem from ^h the high places, and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images. ⁱ 4 And they ^j brake down the altars of Baalim in his presence; and the ^k images

^a 1 Kings xlii. 2. ^b 2 Kings xxii. 1. ^c 2 Chr. iii. 14. ^d 15. Jer. i. 2. ^e Zeph. i. 1. Mat. i. 10, 11. ^f Josias. xxxiv. 1. xxvi. 1. xxxiii. 1. 1 Sam. ii. 18. 26. 1 Kings iii. 7—9. Ec. iv. 13. ^g xvii. 3. xxix. 2. ^h 1 Kings xv. 5. ⁱ Deu. v. 32. Josh. i. 7. xxiii. 6. ^j Prov. iv. 27. ^k B. C. 634. ^l Ps. cxix. 9. Ec. xli. 1. 2 Tim. iii. 15. ^m xv. 2. 1 Chr. xxviii. 9. Prov. viii. 17. ⁿ B. C. 630. ^o xxxiii. 17. 22. ^p 2 Kings xxiii. 4. 14. ^q xxx. 14. 2 Kings xviii. 4. ^r Ex. xxxiii. 24. Lev. xxvi. 30. ^s Deu. vii. 5. 25. ^t Or, sun images. ^u xiv. 5. 2 Kings xxiii. 4, 5. 11.

that were on high above them he cut down; and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images he brake in pieces, and ^k made dust of them, and strewed it upon ^l the graves of them that had sacrificed unto them.

5 And ^l he burnt the bones of the priests upon their altars, and ^m cleansed Judah and Jerusalem.

6 And so did he ⁿ in the cities of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, even unto Naphtali, with their ^o mattocks round about.

7 And when he had broken down the altars and the groves, and had ^p beaten the graven images ^q into powder, and cut down all the idols throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

8 ¶ Now in ^r the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purged the land, and the house, he ^s sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, and Maaseiah the governor of the city, and Joah the son of Joahaz the recorder, ^t to repair the house of the LORD his God.

9 And when they came to Hilkiah the high-priest, ^u they delivered the money that was brought into the house of God, which the Levites that kept the doors had gathered of the hand of ^v Manasseh and Ephraim, and of all the remnant of Israel, and of all Judah and Benjamin; and ^w they returned to Jerusalem.

^k Ex. xxxii. 29. ^l Ps. xviii. 42. 14. ^m xxvii. 9. ⁿ Heb. faces of the graves. ^o 2 Kings x. 26, 27. xxiii. 4. 6. ^p 1 Kings xlii. 2. ^q 2 Kings xxiii. 16. ^r Jer. viii. 1. 2. ^s m Jer. iii. 10. iv. 14. ^t n xxx. 1. 10, 11. ^u xxxi. 1. 2 Kings xxiii. 15—20.

^v Or, maule.

^w Deut. ix. 21. ^x Heb. to make powder.

^y B. C. 624. ^z p Jer. i. 2, 3.

^{aa} q 2 Kings xxii. 7. 12. 14.

^{ab} r xxiv. 4—13. 2 Kings xlii. 12. xxii. 5.

^{ac} s 2 Kings xxii. 4. Phil. iv. 8.

^{ad} t xxx. 10. 18. xxxi. 1.

^{ae} u 7.

themselves to evidence their gratitude, and to glorify the God of their salvation; and let them walk humbly before him, and hope, pray, and endeavour after the conversion of their fellow sinners, not excepting the very vilest: “for the things that are impossible with man are possible with God.” Let presumptuous abusers of gospel grace read in Manasseh’s deep humiliation, earnest prayers, and consequent newness of life, their own fatal and horrible delusion, who practically say, “Let us sin on that grace may abound.” Let those who trifle and procrastinate, because a merciful God hath long borne with, and at length given repentance and forgiveness of sins, to a few most notorious rebels, meditate upon the example of Amon; and tremble, lest he should make them monuments of his righteous vengeance. But we have all sinned: let us all then inquire seriously, whether we have been and are deeply humbled, or not? and whether we are pouring out our prayers before the mercy-seat of a forgiving God, day by day, in this self-abased frame of mind? Whether we have experienced a change in our judgment, disposition, aim, and general conduct? Or whether we still continue unhumbled, impenitent, trespassing still more and more, and imitating the wickedness, and only the wickedness, of those that are gone before us? The two characters are easily distinguished; and they comprise all mankind, and distinguish betwixt those who are now in the broad road to destruction, and those who are in the narrow way of eternal life. May God help us to be honest to ourselves, and to form a just conclusion concerning our own characters, before death (which perhaps may come sooner than we expect) fixes us for ever in an unchangeable state!

NOTES.

CHAP. XXXIV. V. 3—7. This passage seems a compendious account of Josiah’s reformation, perhaps without much respect to the order of time. He began seriously to attend to religious subjects in the eighth year of his reign. Something was attempted in the twelfth year (which was before Jeremiah began to prophecy, (Marg. Ref.) but probably not much was effected till the eighteenth. Yet the land was purged from its grosser abominations, before the repairing of the temple: but it is uncertain whether this extended to the land of Israel, or whether that be spoken of by anticipation. (Notes, 2 Kings xxii. xxiii.)

* 2 Kings xii. 11.
12, 13. xxii. 5, 6.

10 And they put it in the hand of the workmen that had the oversight of the house of the LORD, and they gave it to the workmen that wrought in the house of the LORD, to repair and mend the house :

* Or, rafter.

† xxxiii. 4-7. 22.

11 Even to the artificers and builders gave they it, to buy hewn stone, and timber for couplings, and to * floor the houses which ^v the kings of Judah had destroyed.

2 2 Kings xii. 15.
xxii. 7. Neh. vii.
2. Prov. xxviii.
29. 1 Cor. iv. 2.

12 And the men did the work ^z faithfully : and the overseers of them were Jahath and Obadiah, the Levites, of the sons of Merari ; and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to set it forward ; and other of the Levites, ^a all that could skill of instruments of music.

5 1 Chr. vi. 31, &c.
xv. 16-22. xvi.
4, 5. 41, 42
xxiii. 5. xxv. 1,
&c.
6 ii. 18. viii. 10.
Neh. iv. 10.

13 Also they were over ^b the bearers of burdens, and were overseers of all that wrought the work in any manner of service : and of the Levites there were

6 Ezra vii. 6. Jer.
viii. 8. Matt.
xxvi. 3.

7 xix. 11. 1 Chr.
xxiii. 4. xxvi.
29, 30.

8 1 Chr. xxvi. 1,
&c.

9 2 Kings xxii. 8.
Deut. xxxi. 24
-26.

† Heb. hand of Moses.

^c scribes, and ^d officers, and ^e porters.

14 ¶ And when they brought out the money, that was brought into the house of the LORD, ^f Hilkiah the priest found a book of the law of the LORD given by [†] Moses.

5 2 Kings xxii. 9,
10.

15 And Hilkiah answered and said to Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD. And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan.

† Heb. the hand of thy.

† Heb. poured out or melted.

16 And ^g Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought the king word back again, saying, All that was committed to [†] thy servants, they do it.

17 And they have ^h gathered together the money that was found in the house of the LORD, and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers, and to the hand of the workmen.

† Heb. in it.

† Deut. xvii. 19.

† Josh. i. 8. Ps.
cxix. 46. 97-99.
Jer. xxxvi. 20-26.

18 Then Shaphan the scribe told the king, saying, Hilkiah the priest hath given me a book. And Shaphan read ^{||} it ^b before the king.

19 And it came to pass, when the king had heard ⁱ the words of the law, ^k that he rent his clothes.

i Rom. iii. 20. vii.
7-11. Gal. ii.
13. iii. 10-13.
k 2 Kings xix. 1.
xxii. 11. 19. Joel
ii. 13.

20 And the king commanded Hilkiah, and Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and ^l Abdon the son of Micah, and Shaphan the scribe, and ^m Asaiah a servant of the king's, saying,

l 2 Kings xxii. 12.
Achbor. Jer.
xxvi. 22-24.
m 2 Kings xxii. 12.
Asaiah.

21 Go, inquire of the LORD for me, and for them ⁿ that are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that is found : ^o for great is the wrath of the LORD that is poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD, to do after all that is written in this book.

n xxviii. 9. xxxiii.
11. 2 Kings xvii.
6, 7. xxi. 13.

o Lev. xxvi. 14.
&c. Deu. xxviii.
15. &c. xxxix. 18-
20. xxx. 17-19.
xxxi. 16-18.
xxxi. 15-25.
Rom. iv. 15.

22 And Hilkiah, and they that the king had appointed, went to Huldah ^p the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Tikvath, the son of ^q Hasrah, keeper of the ^{*} wardrobe ; (now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the [†] college :) and they spake to her to that effect.

p Ex. xv. 20. Judg.
iv. 4. Luke i.
41-45. xi. 36.
Acts xi. 9.

q 2 Kings xxii.
13. Harhas.

* Heb. garments.

† Or, school, or second part.

23 And she answered them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, ^r Tell ye the man that sent you to me, r 2 Kings xxii.

15-20. Jer. xxii.
5-7. xxxvii. 7
-10.

24 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, ^s I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even ^t all the curses that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah :

s xxxvi. 14-20.
2 Kings xxiii.
26, 27. Is. v. 4

t Deut. xxvii. 15
-26. xxviii. 16,
&c. xxxix. 20, 21,
27, 28.

25 Because ^u they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands ; therefore ^x my wrath shall be poured out upon this place, and ^y shall not be quenched.

u xii. 2. xv. 2.
xxxiii. 3-9.
2 Kings xxiv. 3,
4. Is. ii. 3, 9.
Jer. xv. 1-4.

26 And as for the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, so shall ye say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, concerning the words which thou hast heard ;

x Is. xlii. 25.
Jer. vii. 20.
Lam. ii. 4. iv.
11. Nah. i. 6.

Rev. xiv. 10. 11.
y Jer. iv. 4. Ez.
xx. 47. Mark
ix. 43-44.

27 Because ^z thine heart was tender, and thou didst ^a humble thyself before God, when thou heardest his words against this place, and against the inhaz Ps. xxxiv. 18.

li. 17. Is. lvii.
15. lxxvi. 2. Ez.
ix. 4. xxxvi. 26.

a xxxii. 25.
xxxiii. 12, 19.
Jam. iv. 6-10.

V. 9. They returned. &c. These Levites seem to have gone through the land, soliciting contributions for repairing the temple, even from the remnant of Israel ; and they returned to Jerusalem when they had completed that business. The temple began to go to decay during the idolatries of Manasseh : and the wicked reign of Amon, and the long minority of Josiah, rendered it much in need of a thorough repair.

V. 12. All, &c. It seems, that the Levites, who attended by courses, in the intervals of their proper work, assisted by turns in overlooking the workmen ; nor were they excepted who were employed in psalmody : thus they became doubly useful, and saved the expense of other overseers. (Notes, 2 Kings xxii. xxiii.)

19. Jer. xxvi.
22, 24.

d xxxv. 24. 2
Kings xvii. 20.
Is. lvii. 1, 2. Jer.
xv. 1. Ez. xiv.
14-21.
d Ps. xxxvii. 37.
Is. lvii. 1, 2.

e 1 Sam. xii. 11, 12. 23. 1 Chr.
xxviii. 3. 10, &c.
xxix. 2, &c.
Mark xiv. 8.
f xxx. 2. 2 Kings
xxiii. 1-3.

* Heb. from great even to small.
xv. 12, 13. xxviii.
30. Deut. i. 17.
Job iii. 19.

g vi. 1. &c. xvii.
7-9. Deut. xvii.
18-20. Neh. viii. 2-5. Ec. i.
12. xii. 9, 10.

h vi. 13. 2 Kings
xi. 14. xxiii. 3.
Ez. xlv. 2.

i xxiii. 16. xxix.
10. Ex. xxiv. 6
-8. Deut. xxix.
1. 10-15. Josh.
xxiv. 25. Neh.
ix. 38. x. 29.
Jer. i. 5. Heb.
viii. 6-13.

k xv. 12. 15.
Deut. vi. 5.
Luke x. 27-29.
l xiv. 4. xxx. 12.
xxiii. 16. Gen.
xxviii. 19. Ec.
viii. 2.

† Heb. found.

bitants thereof, and humbled thyself before me, and ^b didst rend thy clothes, and weep before me; I have even heard thee also, saith the LORD.

28 Behold, ^c I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy grave ^d in peace, neither shall thine eye see all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and upon the inhabitants of the same. So they brought the king word again.

29 ¶ Then ^e the king sent, and ^f gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem.

30 And the king went up into the house of the LORD, and all the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and all the people, ^g great and small: and ^h he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the LORD,

31 And the king stood ⁱ in his place, and ^j made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, ^k with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book.

32 And ^l he caused all that were [†] present in Jerusalem and Benjamin to stand to it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers.

33 And Josiah ^m took away all ⁿ the abominations out of all the countries that pertained to the children of Israel, and made all that were present in Israel to serve, even to serve the LORD their God. And ^o all his days they departed not [‡] from following the LORD, the God of their fathers.

CHAP. XXXV.

Josiah causes a solemn passover to be celebrated, 1-19. He is slain in battle against Pharaoh-necho, 20-24. The lamentations made for him, 25. His acts and goodness, 26, 27.

MOREOVER ^a Josiah kept a passover unto the LORD in Jerusalem: and they killed the passover on ^b the fourteenth day of the first month.

2 And he set the priests in their ^c charges, and ^d encouraged them to the service of the house of the LORD,

3 And said unto ^e the Levites that taught all Israel, which were holy unto the LORD, ^f Put the holy ark ^g in the m 2 Kings xxiii.

4-20.
n 1 Kings xi. 5-7.

o Josh. xxiv. 21.
Jer. iii. 10.
† Heb. from after.

a xxx. 2 Kings
xxiii. 21-23.
b Ex. xii. 6.
Num. ix. 3.
Deut. xvi. 1-8.
Ezra vi. 13. Ez.
xlv. 21.

c xxiii. 8. xxxi.
2. Num. xviii.
5-7. 1 Chr.
xxiv. Ezra vi.
18.

d xxix. 5-11.
xxxii. 2. 1 Chr.
xxiii. 19.

e xvii. 8, 9. xxx.
22 Deut. xxxiii.
10. Neh. viii. 7.
f Mal. ii. 7.
g xxxiv. 14.
v. 7.

V. 29-32. (Notes, 2 Kings xxiii. 2, 3.)

V. 33. Whilst Josiah lived, the people were restrained from open idolatry: yet we learn from the prophets, that, at this very time especially, they were ripening for destruction, by their hypocrisy and iniquity.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

Several years of our lives must pass before we become capable of performing useful services: our earliest youth should therefore be dedicated to God, that we may not waste any of our remaining span. Happy and wise are they who seek the Lord at a period of life when others are pursuing sinful pleasures, contracting bad habits, forming ruinous connexions, and making work for repentance; either gracious repentance in this world, or that which is attended with despair in the regions of misery. None can express the anguish that is prevented by early piety, and its happy consequences. If we would be useful, we must first take heed to ourselves; and when we are established in faith and grace, we shall be fitted for instruments of good to others. In this important work we must expect many opposers, and but few cordial helpers: and the more we look into the world, the church, or our own

